Introducing the Book

Nalas Nalanda is a unique series of three books. The books are a collection of lectures and all the knowledge of philosopher Nalas Nalanda. It is an extraordinary system of knowledge that unifies materialism and idealism into a complete whole. It includes the theory of the smallest energy particles - causal energy particles, production and connection mechanisms, rotation mechanisms, the nature of all things is information, the origin and mission of humans and the soul, the history of the universe, humans' task in the human world, the transformation mechanism of all things, the method and path to achieving full enlightenment. All that knowledge was returned and upgraded by philosopher Nalas Nalanda when he remembered his past lives and his mission in this human life. He did not consult any religious documents, books or knowledge. He called his knowledge the two truths, which included the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment. In particular, all lectures and understanding of Nalas Nalanda are rewritten, edited and published exclusively by author Hoang Van Truong. The author is one specific person, always next to philosopher Nalas Nalanda. That's why he most accurately understood and rewrote all of the philosopher's lectures and knowledge. Philosopher Nalas Nalanda used to talk to his students, "Only Hoang Van Truong understands all my knowledge."

Nalas Nalanda's knowledge of the two truths is a unique knowledge system in the human world. It is special because he built in it a theory of the smallest energy particle, also known as the causal energy particle. Not only that, he also analyzes the information values inside the smallest energy particles to explain the mechanisms and nature of all things, events and phenomena in and outside the universe, from the past to the present and the future. However, because current science and technology cannot decipher the smallest energy particle, he cannot use them to prove his theory of the smallest particle and the value of knowledge. Despite this, Nalas Nalanda devoted many years to teaching his knowledge to many people. The people who learn his knowledge are people with mental illnesses, serious illnesses such as cancer, people experiencing suffering in life, and people with spiritual and religious issues. People learn his knowledge through social networking platforms and in his classes, especially his research class. His knowledge is becoming increasingly popular in Vietnam because of its value to everyone and the achievements recognized by learners and patients.

After more than six years of teaching and spreading his knowledge, he has proven that his knowledge has excellent power in curing mental diseases, physical diseases, and intellectual ignorance. People's achievements were recognized as they participated in live classes and learned through lectures on social media channels. Specifically:

- Many people have completely recovered from diseases related to mental health problems such as depression, postpartum depression, anxiety disorders, insomnia for many years, hallucinations, paranoia, multiple personalities, and mild to severe schizophrenia. They were cured after a few months to a year or two of studying and practising knowledge. Depending on the duration and severity of the disease, they will recover faster or slower.

- Many patients with different diseases and many cases of cancer could not be treated in the hospital because they were about to die. They recovered from their illness after studying and practising according to the knowledge and lectures.

- All people who have problems related to spirituality or religious issues, such as seeing and hearing demons and having their bodies controlled by demons, recover completely and quickly when they learn and practice according to knowledge.

- People who encounter suffering and problems overcome them easily after learning and practising knowledge. In particular, they apply knowledge to life to build better relationships. As a result, they achieve many mental and physical achievements in life.

- There are many students and students who, after learning knowledge, have overcome mental health problems. They become more brilliant and have better thinking ability in learning compared to the time before learning knowledge.

- Women have recognized and overcome depression during and after giving birth easily because they have learned previous knowledge.

Patients who have entirely and quickly recovered because they do not take medicine as recommended by Nalas Nalanda. He explained that people's illnesses (including mental health problems and physical diseases) will wholly and quickly recover if they do not take medication and receive hospital treatment. The quick recovery is due to the soul structure in the human body implementing a unique mechanism, which is re-encoding information in the energy particle and cell structure to heal itself. That mechanism produces the smallest energy particles of the soul structure and cells in the body.

To demonstrate the value of knowledge of the two truths and the achievements that the learner would achieve, Nalas Nalanda had a study class that lasted for seven months. Each month, there were four days; each day had six hours of study, including morning and afternoon. Study participants included five patients with stage three and four metastatic cancer; Fifteen patients had mental health problems such as depression, hallucinations, anxiety disorders, and mild to severe schizophrenia (the patient with the most severe mental illness was twenty years old), and epilepsy for many years; Many people suffer from the phenomenon of seeing demons and having their bodies controlled by monsters; Some patients have sharp pain in their bones and joints; and people who encounter complex problems in life. They come from many places in Vietnam, and the research class is held in the capital Hanoi. When the research class began, Nalas Nalanda told the participants, "To completely cure the disease, the patient must not take medicine or be treated at the hospital." The class on healing with the knowledge of two truths is called healing by re-encoding information in the energy particles of the soul, referred to as healing body - soul - intelligence by data.

- Three patients with metastatic cancer were cured entirely after the course. One was a patient with stage four metastatic colon cancer, and two were patients with stage three metastatic breast cancer. During the process of learning and receiving knowledge-based therapy, they did not take drugs or undergo chemotherapy or radiotherapy according to hospital methods. They strictly follow Nalas Nalanda's regimen: study and practice according to the content of knowledge, drink sugared ginger water at 7 - 8 a.m daily. They experienced sharp bone and joint pain and other side effects during the study and treatment process. Results: index tests from the hospital proved that they were completely cured, and the body had no more metastatic cells, tumours and lymph nodes (for two patients who had surgery to remove tumours). For a patient who has not had surgery before, the tumour has been shrinking, all indicators have returned to the safe zone, and the lymph nodes have disappeared. However, two patients with stage three metastatic breast cancer dropped out when the class was halfway through and continued treatment at the hospital. As a result, they died. Thus, three cancer patients have recovered, and two patients have not survived because they did not learn and practice the proper knowledge.

- Twelve patients with mental health diseases have recovered and returned to everyday life. They went to work and communicated well with the people around them. They do not have to take medicine from the time the class starts and after they have recovered. Among the twelve people who recovered, there was a case of a patient who had schizophrenia for twenty years. He did not speak and could not go to work during that time, having to take medicine every day. As a result, he is now able to work and talk to people and does not have to take medication. There is a patient who has had epilepsy for many years and has recovered from the disease and no longer has seizures during their studies and afterwards. He has done better and is in college. In addition, the remaining patients who have recovered are cases of depression for many years, hallucinations for more than ten years, and milder schizophrenia patients. They recovered quickly and thoroughly because relatives accompanied them during the study and treatment process and even read Nalas Nalanda's books to the sick before going to bed. However, three people with mild schizophrenia did not recover. The reason is that they have no relatives to support them, and they still take psychiatric medication every day.

- Patients with bone and joint pain and other diseases have miraculously recovered even though they did not receive hospital treatment or take medication. They learn and practice sharing knowledge to help other sick people or those experiencing suffering and problems.

- People whose bodies were controlled by demons, who heard and saw demons, no longer had those phenomena after the course.

- After understanding the knowledge, many people have applied it to solve problems in life and overcome suffering easily. Currently, they are the ones helping other patients overcome their illnesses quickly through the application of knowledge of the two truths in disease treatment and life.

After the research class ended in 2022, Nalas Nalanda's students shared and spread knowledge widely in Vietnam. They have helped many people overcome illness and suffering without having to learn directly from Nalas Nalanda. From the achievements of Nalas Nalanda's live classes, studying knowledge through social media channels, and the accomplishments of his students helping the sick and everyone, Nalas Nalanda asked Hoang Van Truong rewrote all of his lectures and knowledge in English so that people around the world can access and learn this magical knowledge.

Applying the knowledge of the two truths and the wisdom of the smallest energy particle to heal everyone's body - soul - intelligence is just a tiny demonstration of this unique knowledge's value to everyone and humanity. The great importance of this knowledge is to help humankind understand the origin of oneself and one's soul, practice and complete the mission of spiritual practice in the human world. It is understanding the truth about yourself, God, Buddha, and all things inside and outside the universe to practice the path of sustainable transformation to reach full enlightenment. Full enlightenment is attaining the unified Tao of the universe.

Introducing Nalas Nalanda

Nalas Nalanda is a proper noun for a particular person or the supreme soul (Tuelinh). It means immeasurable wisdom; wisdom covers the past to the future; intellect covers all things inside and outside the universe, tuelinhs (souls) and humans. In addition, it also means nature, the mechanism, the path to create and build the entire life of all things in and outside the universe. In particular, it is the wisdom of the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment to help humans and souls (tuelinhs) practice and attain the unified Tao of the universe. The unifying Tao of the cosmos is to achieve complete enlightenment when the original yin and yang energy embryo has been transformed into an energy filter in the soul (tuelinh). Another name for attaining the unified Tao of the universe is Buddha.

We can understand that Nalas Nalanda is God, Buddha. Nalas Nalanda is the personal name of the first Tuelinh. It is a supreme soul with the most immeasurable wisdom, an intelligence encompassing both inside and outside the universe. He is God who has gone through the journey of cultivation and attained the Tao of unity of the universe. When we talk about Buddha or God, we all talk about that supreme Tuelinh. Therefore, when we think about Nalas Nalanda, we are talking about Buddha or God because he has been giving the lotus of immeasurable wisdom to humans, spiritual beings and everything in the universe.

We can understand that Nalas Nalanda is a messiah when he incarnates as a human to save humanity.

We can also understand that Nalas Nalanda is a fully enlightened being when he incarnates as a human to help humanity learn and practice enlightenment to achieve the unified Tao of the universe.

Finally, we can also understand that Nalas Nalanda is a lotus of immeasurable wisdom given to humans and all life forms in the universe by God, Buddha or a fully enlightened person.

Chapter One

Sorrow on the Faces of Children in Heaven

Heaven is the most peaceful and magical place in the universe, where five streams of energy and super-energy combine to form matter forms. They include simple matter, which constitutes rock, hills, grass, gold, silver, and treasures; Complex matter, which constitutes energy flows to connect with all planets in the universe and maintain their existence and sustainable development; super-matter, which constitutes the spiritual life-form, it is called Tuelinh. Those three groups of matter form a paradise of peace and serenity, with brilliant lights enveloping the massive planet and illuminating the surrounding planets. Tuelinhs are souls. They have the most transcendent intelligence in the universe. They operate complex matter and simple matter. Heading and operating the entire universe is the first Tuelinh. He is worshipped and called by people with noble names such as God, and Buddha. In addition, he has another name, Nalas Nalanda, which embraces all noble meanings about him: He is the intellect of the universe, all things are born of him, he works hard to develop the life of the universe to become stable, he was the most fully enlightened being in the universe, he attained the only immortality in the universe.

The beautiful memories of him and that heavenly planet brought my mind back to a past scene when he lectured to his children. This lecture makes people enlighten and understand why people have to suffer in this world.

Once, Nalas Nalanda was walking under the trees emitting bright, colourful lights when he suddenly saw children playing together not far away. They use magic within themselves to steer small, brightly coloured stones into a spot on the ground. The bright lights from the energy flows transmitted by the children blend into the rocks, creating a colourful and enchanting space. The laughter and concentration in the game kept them from noticing the difference around them. They did not know Nalas Nalanda when he stood nearby, next to an old tree, watching the children playing together. His children played for a long time without even realizing his presence nearby.

At this time, the children seem tired and bored after a long time playing. One said, "Well, I don't play anymore. I don't have any fun." Then, they all sat down together. They let out long breaths as if worried about something, and their hands constantly threw the stones they had just played around. Another said, "We play these games day in and day out. I'm bored."

Another continued, "I want to be reincarnated into the human world. We should ask the Father to let us come down and become a man." Then they all said in unison, "I also want to be a human to experience human life." Then the children got up to look for him. At this time, the children discovered him standing by a nearby tree and ran over to him. They cheered and clung to him. He held them in his arms and had warm smiles on his lips, then he said to them, "Sit down here. I will listen to your wishes."

When the children do not know how to talk to their Father, they look at each other as if telling each other to tell their Father what they want. He understood and said, "I see you are having fun. Why don't you want to play anymore, why are you so bored? Children should enjoy moments of play that will help them become innocent, connected, and free of troubles." One child immediately replied, "Father, we are bored, and we do not feel joy or happiness when we are just playing day in and day out while the older brothers have been reincarnated as humans in the human world. Father, we also want to be humans. Please let us come down to the world to practice." He looked at them and gave a satisfied smile because his children had grown up. This is a special thing when they are young, but they already have a wish. This wish is the mission of each tuelinh to perform when eligible to be incarnated as a human to practice.

He looked at them and said, "I am delighted that you desire to be a human, proving you are more mature than before. Children, this is not just a wish. It is your mission in this vast universe. It is a vital mission so that each tuelinh can survive and develop sustainably against the attacks of destructive energy. To be incarnated as a human, you must meet the conditions. You must cultivate enough information and certain cognitive abilities before being incarnated as a human. The living environment in the human world is like a school. It is a place for children and all *tuelinh*s to learn, experience, and practice for the growth of intelligence and the strength to unite, spread and develop all things to become sustainable." A child immediately interrupted him, "Dad, I love going to school, I like being a human, and I also want to grow up in wisdom and strength to develop the universe with you." At that time, he pondered and asked them, "Do you know that when you become human, you will have to live in a simple, dirty body? You will have to go through countless times suffering in the world. You will no longer be as peaceful and free as you are in this paradise, you will no longer remember this place, you will not be able to use miracles in the human world, and what you wish for will not be granted. Those are the rules I have created so that the tuelinhs have the best environment for the growth of wisdom and the power of compassion. Therefore, the human world is a living environment with nothing but suffering."

The children looked at each other and nodded together. Then they said together, "Father, we have learned about the sufferings of being human in the human world. You have taught us, and by other tuelinhs only teach after they return from the human world. We are not afraid of suffering. We accept it and want to live in it instead of playing boring games here."

A smile appeared on Nalas Nalanda's lips again, then he stood up and said to the children, "Rise and follow me. I will equip you with important knowledge before becoming a human. Children, try to remember them when you encounter suffering in the human world. That information will react and help you have the best thoughts to overcome suffering. Not only that, it will help you grow up faster." At the Father's words, the children shouted in joy. They immediately followed the Father with a radiant face instead of sadness. They know that they are about to be incarnated as humans to practice in the human world, so their joy also makes the grass, trees, and rocks have more brilliant light.

Chapter Two

The Suffering Lessons of the Tuelinh Life Form

Although Nalas Nalanda walked lightly and leisurely, the children still had to walk as if they were running to catch up with their respected Father. The bright lights from the precious stones on the ground and the colourful lights from the flowers and trees mingled with his aura. All create the purity, majesty, and wisdom of his compassion.

After magical moments of light and aura from him blending into everything, he suddenly stopped. In front was a door, where several mature tuelinhs were on duty to guard that door. It could be a secret door or inside, and significant things must be protected, so there were adult souls on duty to protect them. When he walked up to them, they bowed and greeted him, "Father, do you need to come inside?" He just smiled and gently nodded to indicate his agreement. At that time, the children accompanying him became curious. They did not know what Father would show them inside the door. They looked at each other and couldn't hide their nervousness and curiosity.

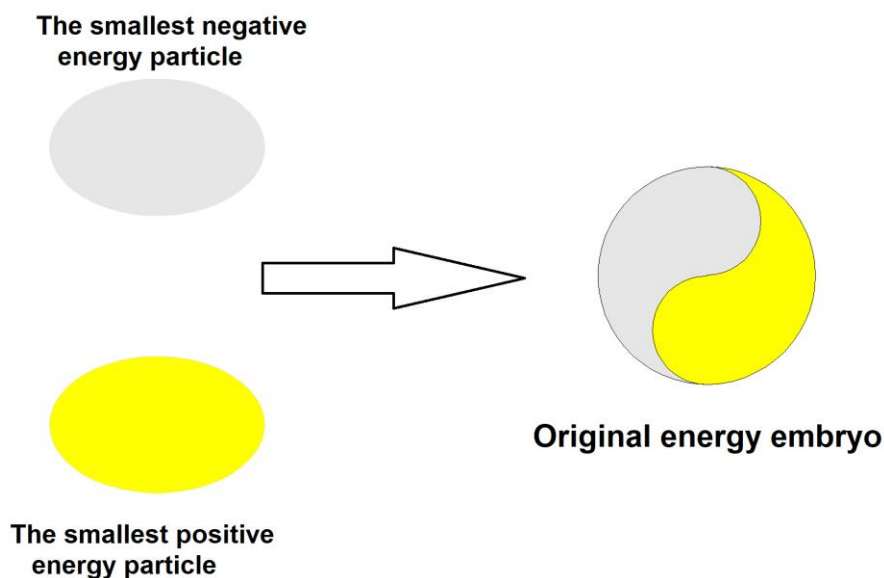

Five-coloured light shines through the crack in the door when mature tuelinhs gently open that secret door. The iridescent lights and dazzling white light caused the children to momentarily cover their eyes with their hands. When they take their hands away from their eyes, in front of them is an exceptional space. They followed Nalas Nalanda to go deeper inside. The children immediately cheered, "It's so beautiful, Dad, why haven't we been here before? Why don't you let us play here?" They looked bewildered at the dazzling white light and interwoven iridescent rays radiating from the smoky black quartz crystals. Those quartz crystals were as small and as large as the body of a mature tuelinh. Those crystalline rocks are everywhere in the vast cave. They are on the ground, on the walls, and the roof of the cave. This is a large and magnificent cave, and it contains rare stones.

Nalas Nalanda stood waiting for the children to approach him after they ran through the cave to observe those miraculous rock crystals. A moment later, when they came to him, he said to them, "You have been in this place. You have lived in this place." The children were surprised and asked, "Dad, you said we used to live in this place, so why don't we know? Can't even remember this place?" "Of course, you cannot remember that. My children, this place is called the place that nurtures and creates tuelinhs from yin and yang energy embryos. Children are also raised and born from those black rock crystals. I call this place the quartz crystal cave, and they were created by me right after I created this paradise. Only here is this rare type of quartz. In addition, each planet in the universe also has one inside its core," he replied. Then he meditated and looked at those magical stones. The children were looking forward to his lecture but did not want to distract his attention from those precious crystals. Because of that, no one spoke out loud. Everyone looked at the rock crystals as if they had some magical attraction. After observing the rock crystals, he sat down on the ground in the middle of the space of the cave. The children seemed to know he was about to lecture them, so they immediately sat down around him.

Then he said, "Children, today I will teach you two important lessons, which is why tuelinhs will have to incarnate in human bodies in the human world to practice.

1. The first lesson, I will tell you about how you were born:

- Hey, children, look at the quartz crystals. Inside, there are embryos of yin and yang energy. Each embryo has the smallest positive energy particle linked to the smallest negative energy particle. Each yin and yang energy embryo will be placed in that rare quartz stone crystal. The energy of each stone will nourish and protect the yin and yang energy embryos after they are placed. This means the yin and yang embryos are nurtured in the best environment by the beautiful energy in each stone. In addition, they are carefully guarded and protected. Each yin and yang energy embryo is different in its internal nature, and the embryos are not the same because the information value encoded inside each smallest energy particle is different. That will create differences in intelligence and cognitive abilities among tuelinhs after birth.

- The smallest positive and negative energy particles are born after a long nurturing time. This process takes place over a long time to create more energy particles. At the same time, the yin and yang energy embryo membrane is also peeled into many layers to help transform the original yin and yang embryo into a mature yin and yang embryo. At that time, the original yin and yang embryo had the two smallest positive and negative particles in the middle of the mature embryo. In the original positive particle, the positive intellectual wave codes are stored; simultaneously, it is copied into the smallest positive energy particles and moved to the outer positive pole. In the original negative particle, the negative intelligence wave codes are stored. At the same time, it is copied into the smallest negative energy particles and moves to the outer negative pole. They store the smallest yin and yang energy particles at the yin and yang extremes.

When they are increased in number of particles, they will join together to form a composite positive and negative energy particle. To be linked, the smallest energetic particles must have the same or similar information content inside the particle, and they will link between positive particles and negative particles together.

Mature embryo

The mature embryo with 16 enlarged aggregate particles

They then move outside the adult embryo to form the first 16-energy composite structure, including eight negative particles rotating around eight positive particles in a 1:1 ratio. The neutral particles will make the task of bonding between synthetic positive energy particles. When the yin and yang embryo structure has 16 expanded particles, which means starting more than 16 particles, a tuelinh baby is officially born. To create a connection between the smallest yin and yang energy particles to create tuelinh, it must be an energy particle with a super complex intellectual wave code. I will teach you when you are more mature. Hey kids, it's not easy to go from an original yin-yang embryo to a mature yin-yang embryo and then a baby. Completing this process takes a very long time and the safest environment. This cave is the safest environment created to nurture and give birth to tuelinhs beings. Children, please cherish your presence and life in this paradise.

- Hey, children, I tell you that there will be an intellectual wave code inside each negative and positive energy particle. Each strand of intellectual wave code stores all information about the circumstances in which those energy particles were born, including images, vibrations, emotions, ideologies, and actions of the generating subject in those particles. The information inside is the secret, the essence, the wisdom of each tuelinh born from the original yin and yang embryo. Therefore, each tuelinh cannot know its nature, its inner secret. Even when we have not created a living environment on Earth and brought tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to practice, I still do not fully understand the nature of tuelinhs. However, up to now, I have been a fully enlightened being and have had the best path to save the tuelinhs and this universe to become sustainable.

2. The second lesson I teach you is about destructive energy particles:

- If you want to understand this type of particle, you need to practice in the human world. You must experience suffering and become more mature. Then, I will explain them thoroughly for you to understand. Children, I call it destructive energies because they will disintegrate you, other tuelinhs, and the entire universe. After being decomposed by them, you will no longer have life, other tuelinhs will no longer have life, and this universe will no longer have life. They are truly deadly to the universe and tuelinh life form.

- When the destructive energy moves to and disintegrates the tuelinhs and all things in the universe. The tuelinhs will then feel pain and suffering because the destruction is taking place. You will feel helpless because controlling or destroying that energy is impossible. The same is true for all things when the energy of destruction penetrates and disintegrates. For the tuelinh life form, being penetrated and disintegrated by the energy of destruction is the only suffering in our existence. Those sufferings will only end when they completely disintegrate every single tuelinh.

- Why does destruction energy attack tuelinhs and other forms of matter in the universe? – That's because the energy of destruction does not have a connecting mechanism like us and the universe, so they exist in the independence of each ultimate single particle. When they move, the heat in them is generated quickly and overloaded. They face the risk of being detonated by too rapid heat generation. Therefore, they need to find physical structures or tuelinh in the universe to remove excess heat from them. This excess heat causes the structure of tuelinh, and the universe, to disintegrate. Thus, destroying energy that disintegrates the universe and tuelinh is also a way for them to save themselves.

- You must be aware of this destructive energy. They are shaped like the smallest energetic particles in the universe and brown in colour. They were born before the universe and exist outside of our universe. In particular, they are present throughout the universe like storms of destructive energy. You have to stay away from those places because once you move in, you will be decomposed immediately.

- Children, the energy of destruction is also a source of heat to help energy particles in the universe be separated and linked together, allowing the universe and tuelinh life form to be developed sustainably. However, we must understand and know how to control them. When you can control them, that is the moment when you have grown up; you have become immortal because you can attract them and convert them into heat to produce new super-energy particles. It is precious for the sustainable development of the universe and each tuelinh itself.

Hey kids, when I teach you this information, your yin and yang embryo will receive and store it. When you incarnate as a human to practice, that information will be transmitted to the human brain to create the necessary response to the information in the human world that you will have to face. When you understand, you will easily overcome suffering in the human world. This is very important. Keep it in mind."

One of the children immediately asked him when he stopped preaching, "Father, so we have only one suffering, which is being disintegrated by the energy of destruction. Is there a time when the destructive energy disintegrates you?" He immediately smiled and gently replied, "They cannot disintegrate me because I am already a fully enlightened being. I can take them and transform them into super energies; I can even move into their habitat, and they never decay me." One of them continued to ask, "Father, so we must understand ourselves first, then we can learn how to control the energy of destruction, right Father?" "Yes, that is correct. To understand yourself, you must live in an environment opposite to this wonderful environment in paradise, the living environment of humans on Earth. That environment is nothing but suffering; only suffering can help you understand all the secrets within yourself. Only then can you learn to control and transform the destructive energy." Then he said, "So you understand why incarnating as a human to practice in the human world is the mission of every tuelinh, that is the mission to liberate the suffering of you, tuelinh life form, and the whole universe." After the children listened, they seemed immersed in contemplation because the information they had just learned was vast. The thoughtful expressions on all the children made him speak to encourage them, "You men relax with games. Another day, I will teach you other lessons."

Then he and his children came out of the cave that nurtures and produces tuelinhs. The children followed him with gentle steps and thoughtful faces.

Chapter Three

The Five Messengers of Nalas Nalanda

Three tuelinhs stood outside a door on a mission to protect an ultimate energy space within and talked to each other. The area around them is nothing special like other places in paradise, with iridescent lights radiating from the rocks, plants, and flowers, blending and radiating light to all the surrounding planets. The beauty of the aura and the purity of peace are normal things on this planet, and even children feel bored. This contrasts the world people live in because people only hope that after they die, their souls will return to heaven. They think they will be immortal when they live in paradise, free from suffering and sorrow, and enjoy this peaceful world. This shows that all people inside of them are souls - tuelinhs, they have forgotten all their roots and no longer have any memories of their homeland - paradise. They don't know that the children in heaven long to be incarnated as humans to practice in the human world. They need to remember their mission.

As the three adult tuelinhs were talking, they discovered from afar the silhouette of the first Tuelinh approaching them. They immediately stopped talking, adjusted their clothes to be more dignified, and looked more majestic. In a moment, Nalas Nalanda stood before them. The three tuelinhs leaned forward to greet him, "Father, do we need to open the door?" He nodded and said, "Please call Giac and Phap here, then everyone comes inside. I will talk to you." Right after that, the two tuelinhs went to invite the other two tuelinhs to come. One opened the door to let him in. When the door is opened, golden rays of light shine outside. This is the most unique type of light in the universe. Nothing can describe the feeling of having that light shine on your body. The body becomes warm, peaceful, and full of vitality. Besides, golden energy particles floating inside the door were revealed when he stepped inside. Inside is a vast space containing shiny yellow super-energy particles, which are the smallest super-energy particles. After closing the door, the remaining tuelinh followed him inside, and they both looked at the space containing this unique super-energy.

The two did not say a word to each other, and they continued to look at the super-energy particles. They float, keeping an even distance from each other without jostling. Because they always rotate around themselves, the light from them blends to create the splendour of the aura in this space. Suddenly, in a tranquil and peaceful space mixed with a magical aura, the door opened, and four tuelinhs entered and approached him. They leaned over and bowed to him. They all continued without saying anything in this magical space, seemingly feeling the achievements of their practice, their experiences of suffering, and the transformation of the original yin and yang embryo in themselves.

After a while, Nalas Nalanda said to the five tuelinhs, "Sit down, now I want to talk to you." When they sat down opposite him, he immediately asked, "How do you feel in here?" "We feel peaceful, free, pure, warm, full of life; nothing can disturb us while staying here," all five tuelinhs said together. Next, he gently explained, "To have purity, peace, freedom, no more afflictions, it is the result of experiencing suffering in the human world, then transforming all suffering, and reforming the yin and yang embryo within oneself. As a result, the yin and yang embryo becomes the filter, the machine that produces super-energy particles. One of the super-energies is the iridescent yellow super-energy that you are seeing. This super-energy is the main energy source to ensure the whole universe is active and alive. You know, to have super energies to operate and maintain the sustainable development of the universe, we must have a responsibility: the mission of experiencing suffering in human life to transform the yin and yang embryo into an energy filter. However, so far, only I have achieved the filter that produces super energetic particles, so there is not enough energy to supply the movement of the entire universe, especially to protect the universe from the attack of destructive energy from outside." A tuelinh immediately said, "I have observed, and calculated that now is the best time for you to continue incarnating into the human world. Because some tuelinhs are already qualified to transform their yin and yang embryos into stable filters, they need you to direct them to help them transform successfully. I want you to look into that matter." He immediately replied, "I accept your request. Moreover, it's time for me to transform into a human to upgrade the yin and yang embryo again. At that time, I will produce many new types of super-energy, which will help protect and develop the universe better than it is now." The five of them rejoiced and said, "It is wonderful. There will be many tuelinhs who will become enlightened beings when Father directly guides them in the human world; they will be glad to know this fact and to meet Father in the human world." "Yes, they will be delighted and happy for that, and this will help many other tuelinhs to release all the toxins in their souls." he replied. All five tuelinhs looked at each other with surprise and asked him, "Father, could there be people who don't like your presence in the world?" "Yes, those are the toxins they need to release from their souls. This is very good for them because then they will learn to control the energy groups as they interact with them, and they will be qualified to transform their embryos of yin and yang," he replied. The five tuelinhs immediately said, "Please explain more for us to understand."

He looked at each of the tuelinhs around him in turn and said, "Today, I will thoroughly explain the function of each of the tuelinhs in all of you, and then you will unite as one and understand what I have said.

- Chap, you are an adult intellectual spirit - tuelinh, you have been chosen by me as one of the five messengers for me. I named you Chap. Your task is to observe all the tuelinhs incarnating as humans in the human world, and each tuelinh will be in a body. I call it a soul. You watch the vibration of negative energy particles in each soul. When they vibrate beyond the threshold, they tend to show conservatism, clinging, and arrogance in what they have or do not, wisdom, love, and action. Then, you must help them release all the toxins in the negative energy particles, especially their original negative particle. That is, you transmit more information, and create the right environment to captivate, and fascinate the nature of their toxins to be fully revealed. Even if they suffer because of the toxins in their souls, you must continue to help them release the toxins. You are not allowed to prevent their poison from releasing because of love and ignorance when you see them suffer. They cannot transform their yin and yang embryos if they don't remove all the toxins. As a result, they will be disintegrated by the destructive energy. Their toxins are active in all the interacting situations of human life, so you must not leave out ingredients to increase their suffering and their ability to force detoxification. As a result, there is not any tuelinh that without your help to force out the toxins of attachment, conservatism, and arrogance.

- San, you are also a mature tuelinh, I named you San. Your mission is to help the tuelinhs practising in the human world reveal all the natures of impulsiveness, impatience, winning and losing, killing each other and killing other species. The toxins in each tuelinh are secrets; they are countless, and they will explode in environments with extreme pressure, compression, in possessing or without possessing, in love, in intelligence, and actions. You must carefully observe all souls in human bodies in the human world. When the negative energy particles in them vibrate beyond the threshold, they tend to become out of control through behaviour such as impulsiveness and impatience, winning and losing, and killing. Then you have to add more environment and information to help them have more pressure and pressure on them. When they develop toxins related to that toxic tendency, they can identify them after experiencing suffering. They will eventually learn how to force those toxins out of their tuelinhs and transform their yin and yang embryos. All the tuelinhs practising in the human world are the objects you must help, and the toxins related to your mission in the tuelinhs are countless. Their toxins will erupt in all interaction situations in the human world, so you need to observe to help them.

- Han, you are also a tuelinh with many achievements and maturity. I named you Han because your mission is different from Chap and San. The toxins that need to be removed from all the tuelinhs that Chap and San are helping them with are easy to see. However, your task is to help all tuelinhs practising in the human world to force out the most difficult-to-detect toxins in the yin energy particle system and the root yin particle of each tuelinh. When each tuelinh is practising in the human world, from clinging, arrogance, conservatism, superiority, impatience, impulsiveness, and killing, the most unrecognizable poison is hatred. The poison of hatred in each tuelinh is hazardous and can kill countless people and countless lives when each tuelinh explodes toxin. Because the tuelinhs must get rid of this toxin if they want to grow and survive in this universe, you must increase the material and the environment to help them release the poison of hatred. When they release this toxin, they will recognize it after experiencing suffering, and eventually, they will learn how to transform their yin and yang embryos. All tuelinhs have this toxin, more or less depending on the secret information in the original negative particle of each tuelinh.

- Phap, you are also a mature tuelinh, I named you Phap. Your mission is the same as my other messengers. However, your task is to be selective about the objects of tuelinhs to help them. That is, whenever there is any tuelinh in the human world who researches, applies any method, or works for any purpose, whether good or bad. At that time, you must transmit more information to them to create an environment to help them release this toxin. That is the kind of toxin contained in the tuelinhs when incarnating as humans, and it will be released in any living situation, in each live environment. When it breaks out, it is destruction, dividing unity, spreading ignorance, uniting ignorance, causing murder. Then, help them release all these toxins when they only vibrate beyond the threshold until those toxins are forced out of tuelinh. Specifically, in religions and forms of practice in the human world, when people use meditation to find peace, seek and learn about miracles, mantras, and methods of saving sentient beings. Give them what they need, and praise them for their extraordinary approach. Thus, the poison within them will be released, and they will realize their poison after they have finished experiencing suffering. They will eventually learn how to transform their yin and yang embryos.

- Giac, you are like my four messengers of tuelinh. You have grown up and have many achievements. I named you Giac. Your task is to help all tuelinhs practising in the human world reveal the toxins in the yin energy particle system and their root yin particles. Your task is selective; you focus only on the toxin that tends to be intellectual. Observe all people, see if they have a poison in their tuelinhs that symbolizes intellectual arrogance or not, a poison that symbolizes intellectual inferiority. You help them by spreading more information, creating more living environment for them to release that toxin. Specifically, you create information so that people who are proud of their intelligence are satisfied, from which they will develop the poison of arrogance and think they are intelligent. Create information to help people with low self-esteem about lack of education and knowledge; the toxin that emerges is that they are self-deprecating with no intelligence. When they suffer, they will recognize this toxin and eventually learn how to force it out and transform their yin and yang embryos. Praising and criticizing the wisdom of every tuelinh in the human world is the task that you must do.

Hey, children, please unite all of your tasks into one whole. Next, close your eyes and feel the poison of each tuelinh that has been, is, and will be activated when incarnated as a human in the human world to practice. Imagine how the environment will manifest when all those toxins are released in all the circumstances."

While all five of his messengers focused on connecting and visualizing what he said, Nalas Nalanda raised his hand to hold the shiny golden energy particles before him. The wondrous lights from the superparticles radiated and merged with the aura emanating from him, adding to the magnificent beauty of this special space. He looked at the superparticles and said in his mind, "One day soon, you will become stronger; that strength comes from the enlightened ones who are nearing completion."

After a moment of silence, the five messengers opened their eyes, looked in his direction and said, "Father, if you do not create an environment for the tuelinhs to be incarnated as practitioners, the tuelinhs will never force their toxins out. It is truly miraculous what you have created in the human world. We have a wish, that is, please allow us to be incarnated in humans, with you soon. We also want to squeeze out all the toxins and successfully transform our own yin and yang embryos." He nodded slightly and said, "I agree with your request; please prepare everything for this incarnation and complete the squeezing of the toxins as well as the transformation of the yin and yang embryos." With Nalas Nalanda's consent, his five messengers could not hide their joy and happiness because it was the best chance to attain full enlightenment.

Chapter Four

The Plan and The Challenge

The winds moving in the air gently mixed with rays of light emanating from the trees, grass, rocks, and soil; they were leisurely and at ease, playing as if there was no sadness. Sometimes, they seem to be having fun as if they are chasing each other, making the children feel the coolness and mischief of the wind, causing their hair to cover their innocent eyes. They brushed those strands of hair back on their heads and then continued to listen attentively to stories from their Father.

I was immersed in the wonderful memories of the space and the peaceful mood surrounding Nalas Nalanda and his children. That peace and freedom intoxicated my mind as if I were again present. The words he was preaching to the children were listened to attentively by me. The space became quiet because he and the children enjoyed the calm, gentle, mischievous winds. Suddenly, I returned to reality, a feeling of regret because the scene there was highly fantastic, while in reality, I was trying to write down the knowledge from him, trying to convey it to everyone, and hoping for the people out there who are suffering in human form to awaken and overcome their suffering. I meditated and thought about the journey I had gone through over the years, and it was full of ups and downs, and pride. But, above all, the pieces of his knowledge that I have spread, countless people have studied and practised to overcome suffering in their lives in the human world. Diseases of the mind have been verified by many people, and found that his knowledge is truly miraculous. It can heal all suffering, from illness to suffering in life. Right now, I am trying to unite all his excellent knowledge, making it the most perfect, attractive, and powerful in healing all the sufferings of intelligence and people in humanity. With that desire, I became like someone who was fascinated by his wisdom and compassion, and I did not want to escape from his wisdom and compassion under any circumstances. I wish always to be associated with that, which helps me gain invaluable knowledge from him and spread it to all humans to study and practice because that is the only path and the only method to help tuelinhs mature and control the energy of destruction.

For a moment, I returned to Nalas Nalanda's memories. I was delighted to hear his teachings. The winds seemed to want to be around him and the children, and they were constantly playing, sometimes gentle, sometimes naughty. I was trying to concentrate on listening to his teachings to the children; however, perhaps it seemed to be coming to an end when I heard from him, "There are countless lessons you need and have to learn; I can only teach you the necessary lessons to prepare you before you transform into a human, the rest, you need to experience suffering in the human world. When you experience suffering in your human life, you will understand and become enlightened. Those are the lessons from the practice of the human practice environment." A child immediately asked him, "Father, have you ever incarnated as a human to practice with and teach tuelinhs? If you do that, the tuelinhs will quickly mature and complete their human practice in the human world." "I have incarnated many lives in human form to practice, to impart knowledge to the tuelinhs to understand the origin, task, and path to liberation from suffering. I incarnate as a human to practise when necessary, which is important," he replied to the child's question. Another child immediately confided, "Father, I hope that when we are practising in the human world, we will meet you when you also transform into a human. We will learn knowledge from our father, which is extremely fortunate for us." Now, he just looked and smiled at the children. After that, the space became quiet again because the children were immersed in thought as if imagining scenes of life in the human world when they were incarnated as humans.

Then he told the children, "My children, I told you that I would teach important and necessary lessons before each tuelinh incarnates as a human being. You have learned two lessons in the place where tuelinhs are nurtured and produced. Now I will teach you another lesson, which will greatly help you when living in the human world." The children became happy, and they sat closer to him. One happily said, "I can listen to you teaching anytime and anywhere. I hope you teach us many lessons." "I took this lesson from the reality of a human life that I practised in the human world. It's called the Plan and the Challenge," he said, and the children immediately expressed surprise and excitement, "The lesson from father's life in the human world. It is wonderful."

He said, "In my most recent human life, I was over 30 years old and had regained wisdom from the tuelinh and achieved total enlightenment. At that time, many people followed my enlightened knowledge. In the first days of my journey of spreading enlightened knowledge, I taught my students to practice meditation, and many people realized the realms of meditation. And, of course, I told them the dangers and warnings before learning to meditate. Besides, for students to have valuable means to help people suffering, I have taught them many methods to practice. I have created mantras and terms to solve different problems. Those mantras and phrases have encoded information and linked them to planets in the universe, where the tuelinh's are on duty to support the human world and directly connect with me. When they read those mantras or terms, the energy from within me will link to the planets and the people reading to support and save them. In the first stage of leading students to practice, I use those methods to guide people to practice with the knowledge of complete enlightenment. I have entirely taught them the do's and don'ts, but their compliance and listening to my instructions are not done correctly.

One day, I walked with some disciples on a dirt road in a mountain village. It was already evening because we had been walking for a long time, and everyone felt tired, so we sat down to rest on the side of the road next to the village intersection. A while later, one of my disciples came from a nearby people's house. When he saw us, he looked happy, approached me, greeted me and the other disciples. Then he said with a happy face, "Teacher, I just helped that family solve the problem of demons in their house. That family was possessed by demons and caused many diseases, and life was in a lot of trouble. I solved it and finished helping them. I feel delighted, sir." "Sit down here, and tell me how you deal with them. The other disciples want to hear it too," I asked the disciple. "Teacher, that family invited me through a relative to come check and help because they often see ghosts in the house, family members often get sick, they have to borrow money for treatment, and not enough food for the members. When I knew that, I immediately agreed to help them. When I come to the house, I meditate and carefully examine everything around their house. I immediately discovered a demon and several ghosts in that land. Next, I used my magic to seal it up, not let them escape. Then, I talked to their family members about what I saw on their land. They expressed fear and asked me to handle it so their house would be free of ghosts. Next, I follow the methods you taught me to send demons and other spirits to another planet, where excellent tuelinhs work and educate them. When I was done, I meditated to check and see that their house was free of ghosts or spirits. I told the family the outcome of the treatment; they were delighted, and I'm happy too, sir." When I heard that, I told him, "You should meditate and check that house again. The devil and the spirits are still in that house and have not been liberated."

At that time, his face became worried and then meditated to check again. After a moment of meditation, he opened his eyes, and his face became red. The red colour of anger was present on that face. He immediately stood up, his words mixed with anger and said to me, "Teacher, why is this so? Why can't they be liberated? It turns out that your method is incorrect. Your dharma has no value. Why is that?" At that time, I smiled and told him, "You want to know why? Please sit down, and I will explain it to you," When he sat, I said, "You have forgotten what I taught you. In the early days when I preached the teachings, I had to create methods to help beginners have a foundation of faith so they could pursue enlightenment knowledge. And when my knowledge has spread and grown more robust, I have told you that you must no longer use those methods to solve people's difficulties but instead spread the knowledge of enlightenment for them to understand the origin, the task of human practice in the human world, and the way to practice liberation from suffering. When people understand, they will be the ones who will directly save the demons and spirits trapped in their place. And I said, don't try to be someone else's spiritual Teacher. I will explain what you just dealt with and why you failed. That's the Plan and Challenge lesson:

- It is a plan because when the human world is built, and the tuelinhs incarnate in human form when going through lifetimes of practice, people will not remember or know their origin. Why? Because that is the plan, those living in different situations will have suffering experiences. When there is suffering, the negative energy particle system within them will vibrate and create reactions with other energy groups. At that time, the toxins in their tuelinhs will be released. They need to recognize and try to force those toxins out of themselves. In particular, through that, I will find the best method to help the tuelinhs transform their yin and yang embryos, and they can control the energy of destruction. The plan here is that humans, while living, practice evil actions towards other species, such as killing themselves, killing animals, and killing others. After they die, the soul will not be taken to heaven or elsewhere. They will have to live in the place where they died. It is inevitable because when they kill, many negative energy particles are produced from within their souls, which causes them to have information disorder and insufficient strength to perceive and move in the universe. Because of the evil they have done, they must undertake another mission. When they complete it, they will be transferred to another place to rebalance their energy before continuing their reincarnation. That is, they have to wait for people to come to the place where they die physically to build a house and stay in it. Those souls must find ways to inform living people about the world of souls, also known as tuelinhs. They must do everything possible to help people living on that land understand and believe in the world after people die. It will help people learn about the source of them and after death. It is essential to help people search for liberation from suffering to attain enlightenment and return to heaven. You must remember the suffering, illness, and poverty of the people living on that land are not caused by ghosts. They are controlled and created by the negative energy particles they produced in their past lives. Suffering is not a disease that must be avoided; it is an invaluable asset to help tuelinhs learn lessons and grow. When people living on those lands have faith in the soul, they know to practice good actions for others, and from within, they will radiate the light of wisdom. At that time, my energy will take those spirits or demons to where they need to go.

- It is a challenge because when people are walking on the path of connecting to the source and to the tuelinhs to practice the method of liberation from suffering, they will develop the final toxins in tuelinh themselves. That will help them significantly mature, transform their original yin and yang embryos, and control the destructive energy. It is a challenge to comprehend the toxins in the tuelinh of the disciples, of those practising the method of liberation. That will show the level of enlightenment and ignorance in the tuelinhs. That is to see if the disciples have listened to the Teacher's teaching, such as intellectual arrogance, superiority and inferiority with classmates, even teachers. Hey, you, mantras or methods are created by me, and they are linked from the information in my yin and yang embryo to you and throughout the universe. The data will link to me when you read or use them, and my tuelinh will directly process. But you mistakenly think you have magical powers and magic to dispel evil spirits or ghosts. That's why I answered that you cannot save the souls in that house. Why? Let them resolve it for themselves because you don't explain enlightened knowledge. When they understand and practice enlightenment for themselves and the souls where they live. Those people will attest to my knowledge and continue to spread it to countless others who are suffering to practice together. That is the most wonderful dharma, the ultimate method to save intelligent beings, tuelinhs, and humans."

When I stopped the lecture, he immediately said, "Teacher, it was my fault. I did wrong. I didn't listen to what you taught. I didn't even behave properly with you. I ask for your forgiveness?" "I forgive you, and I always forgive all your mistakes. Please remember this lesson and tell your classmates." Then, we continued to return to our home.

The children were still eagerly awaiting his teachings when they suddenly realized the lecture was over. They immediately asked him, "Father, when we incarnated into the human world, did we have to go through the same environment as you described? Will we have the same poison as that disciple?" "You will have to go through such situation, and you will develop the same poison as that disciple of mine. However, the toxicity level of each tuelinh is different, so the reactions and beliefs to practice the knowledge will also be different. When you hear this lesson, it is the amount of valuable information stored and encoded in your yin and yang embryo. When you live in a human form and encounter that situation, this information will help you control the toxins more easily. When you practice in the human world, you must understand that there are no magical powers, not even mantras. It would be best if you focused on practising good things to all beings with knowledge, spreading useful knowledge and good deeds to everyone, and constantly helping all beings. Doing so will help you quickly overcome suffering." The children immediately replied, "Father, we always remember your sermons. We thank you for your teaching. The last lesson has helped us have a deeper insight into the difficulties and hardships of practising in the human world. We hope you will always guide us and show us how to overcome all difficulties on the practising path."

At that time, he smiled and realized that his children were much more mature in thinking and communicating. That is a proof that their time to reincarnate as humans has come close. After that, he and the children still sat and enjoyed the cool breeze that was both gentle and playful.

Chapter Five

Secrets of Tuelinh

In another moment, Nalas Nalanda was sitting on a large block of rock next to a vast lake. That lake is so large that you cannot see the other shore when you look far away. He sat with his legs stacked on top of each other, in silence, looking towards the lake. Now, the children knew he was near the lake, so they invited each other to his side to listen to his new sermons. When they were far away, he heard the sounds of their breath, their footsteps, their exhilarating sounds in mischief. He still observed the lake and the cool breeze mixed with the five-coloured lights spreading in the space around him. How wonderful it is to see from the shore what is at the bottom of the lake, right next to the shore and far beyond the lake. Tiny, brilliant blue stones make up the material at the bottom of the lake. The bright lights from the small rocks on the bottom of the lake make the water in the lake become brilliant blue and iridescent as they blend with the iridescent light from the surrounding things. More miraculously, even though there were gentle breezes on the lake's surface, and sometimes it was like playing, the water surface did not have a single ripple. This makes this place strangely peaceful, and free, and all sadness, anxiety, and suffering will disappear when immersed in this magical space.

The children came to his side and received his consent to learn the new sermon. Now, they were frolicking beside him, picking up the colourful, iridescent stones at their feet and throwing them into the lake together. They are competing to throw the rocks furthest away from the lake surface. However, no ripple appeared when the stones fell into the lake. The children could only recognize the location of the stone falling into the lake when the brilliant blue light of the lake mixed with the iridescent light from the rocks. This makes the children fascinated by that magical beauty.

While the children were still playing, he said, "Come here and sit next to me. In this moment, I will teach you a new lesson." The children ran over, climbed onto the rock he was sitting on, and then sat facing him. Innocent faces are looking attentively and waiting for him to lecture. He immediately asked them, "What did you see below the lake?" "We see tiny gems radiating brilliant blue, and the whole lake is blue," the children replied. "So, do you see anything underneath that layer of tiny jade rocks?" "Father, no." He asked, "Do you see anything inside the rock we are sitting on, and what is inside those trees?" "Father, we don't know what's inside the rock and underneath the lake bottom." Surprised by his questions, one of them continued, "Father, I don't understand the implications of your questions." "Children, these are the things that you do not know. When you do not know, it is the secrets of other matter outside of yourselves, even of all things inside and outside this universe. I continue to ask you: Do you know what is inside the energy particle system in our body? And what is inside the energy particle system of your own body? "Father, we do not know. Are these the secrets within ourselves and the secrets of our spiritual being? He smiled and replied, "You already know the title of the lesson I will teach you today, which shows you are wonderful."

"Children, everything inside and outside this universe is a mystery; secrets exist in every unit of matter, the smallest being the smallest energy particle until it covers both the inside and the outside of the universe. In this lesson, I teach you about the inner secret of each tuelinh. To understand the mysteries of all matter inside and outside the universe, you need to experience practice in the human world. Then, you apply my enlightened knowledge to decode all the secrets of all things.

When you want to know the secret of some matter, of something, you must discover and study it. If you want to learn the secret inside the rock, we are sitting on. You must break it, then you will know what is in it. To understand what is inside the tree trunk, you have to cut it in half or split it lengthwise, and then you will know what is inside. To understand what lies beneath the bottom of the lake, you must remove layer by layer of matter from the bottom to understand what lies beneath each layer of matter that you want to uncover its secrets.

When you stand on this and see the brilliant blue water because the light emanates from the tiny jade stones at the bottom of the lake, look through the water and see the substances at the bottom of the lake. That is part of the secret that you have understood. That understanding is simple, easy to see, and also takes time to observe. However, all things in and out of the universe have countless secrets that are easy to see and hard to see. Especially some secrets are difficult to see, that is, the tuelinh life form and the energy of destruction. Regarding the energy of destruction, you will learn during the process of practising in the human world. To gain knowledge for you before you transform into a human to practice in the human world, you must learn about yourself first. Although it is not all the secrets of tuelinh, it is enough to help you understand the cause, mission, and responsibility and practice the path of enlightenment in the human world. When you complete the path of enlightenment in the human world, you will understand all the secrets of yourself, all things, other tuelinhs, and the group of destructive energy.

The secret in tuelinh consists of three main parts: Structure, information, and movement mechanism. As follows:

1. Structure of tuelinh

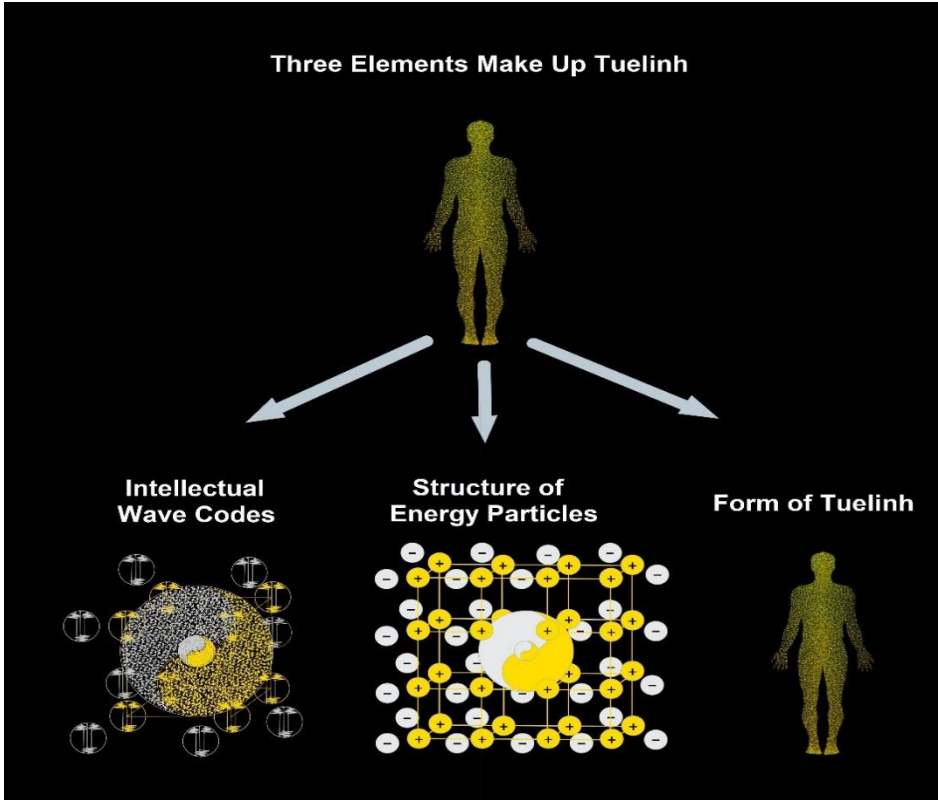

The structure of each tuelinh is made up of three elements. Each tuelinh consists of form, energy particle system, and intellectual wave code fibre system. These three factors are closely linked to form a complete tuelinh in the inseparability of any one element. When it is born, the structure of the tuelinh can move, mature, or decompose depending on the information value and the inner working mechanism of each tuelinh.

- The form of tuelinh. Appearance is divided into two stages: Before birth and after birth.

- + Before being born, tuelinh was just a mature yin and yang energy embryo with a structure of 16 synthetic energy particles outside. To create a yin and yang energy embryo and then a tuelinh, I initially select the smallest yin and yang energy particles, and they must be a group of particles with super complex intellectual wave codes. Then, I put them into the nurturing space inside the cave containing quartz crystals. Each positive and negative energy particle will be linked together if they qualify, and if they don't, they won't. This means that if they have the same or similar information inside, they will have a binding reaction; otherwise, there will be no binding reaction. After they link together to form the original yin and yang embryos, I place them in rare quartz crystals, each of which will nurture a yin and yang energy embryo. Then, information value is exchanged between negative and positive particles. That exchange helps them create primitive working rules, and negative particles will absorb heat from the outside environment, including information value. Next, the positive energy particle will do the job with the negative particle to rotate the yin and yang embryo continuously to generate heat and produce the yin and yang intellectual wave codes. The negative intelligence wave codes are stored in the original negative particle. The positive intellectual wave codes are stored in the original positive particle. At the same time, those intellectual wave codes will copy and transform into the smallest energetic particles and move away from the original yin and yang embryo. They are stored at the negative and positive extremes outside of the original embryo after the sheath of the original embryo is removed and formed into an adult embryo. When the smallest amount of yin and yang energy particles at the yin and yang extremes has a lot of numbers, the negative particles will link together to form a composite negative particle, and the positive particles will link together to form a synthetic positive particle. They will then move out to build a 16-particle structure outside the mature embryo. Neutral particles link together eight synthetic positive energy particles, and eight synthetic negative energy particles will move next to eight synthetic positive particles in a 1:1 ratio. To produce a composite yin or yang particle, the smallest particles must store the same or similar information content within each particle. Thus, the form of tuelinh before birth is a mature yin and yang energy embryo with 16 synthetic yin and yang particles linked by neutral particles. It takes a very long time to transform from the original yin and yang embryo into an adult embryo with 16 synthetic yin and yang energy particles outside, and they are carefully nurtured and protected in a wonderful space.

+ After being born, the tuelinh takes the form of a human. When born, tuelinh is as tiny as a baby in the human world called a baby tuelinh. The baby tuelinh is very weak. The milestone of a baby tuelinh birth is that the structure of yin and yang energy particles synthesized outside the mature embryo has increased in number, called a mature embryo with 16 expanded yin and yang particles. Neutral particles link the aggregate positive particles, extending the bond outward. At that time, the form of a baby tuelinh becomes clear. Because the information value in the baby tuelinh's energy particle system is small, its strength and ability to move are limited. Babies are always cared for and protected by more mature tuelinhs. When the children become more mature, they will look like adult humans. Tuelinhs have no gender like humans. Each tuelinh is a structure composed of three types of energy particles: yin, yang, and neutral. Therefore, the tuelinh can create different shapes. However, the human-like form is beautiful and easy to move, so this form is the model of the tuelinh.

- The structural system of tuelinh includes the original yin-yang embryo, the mature yin-yang embryo, and the external synthetic energy particle system. Specifically:

- + The original yin and yang embryo consists of the smallest negative and smallest positive energy particles. A strong sheath protects the original yin and yang embryo.

- + The mature yin-yang embryo consists of the original yin-yang embryo in the middle. Outside is one extreme containing the smallest negative energy particles and one extreme containing the smallest positive energy particles.

- + The system of synthetic energy particles outside the mature yin and yang embryo includes a system of synthetic positive particles linked together by neutral particles. The synthetic negative particles will move around the synthetic positive particles when they have the same group or similar information content. The system of yin and yang energy particles combined more or less in quantity shows the level of maturity or intelligence of each tuelinh.

- Intellectual wave code system. The intellectual wave code is contained in every smallest particle of positive and negative energy, including the smallest neutral particles. Initially, there was only one strand of negative intellectual wave code and one strand of positive intellectual wave code in the original yin and yang particles. When they are linked together, due to the absorption of external information and the movement process, they continuously copy other negative intellectual wave code strands, other positive intellectual wave code strands, and neutral wave code strands. The negative intellectual wave code fibres are stored in the original negative particle, and the positive intellectual wave code fibres are stored in the original positive particle. At the same time, they copy into other strands of intellectual wave code and move them to the yin and yang extremes to transform into the smallest yin and yang energy particles.

2. Information inside tuelinh

Information is images, heat, types of matter, internal and external environments, emotions, language, ideology, actions, and reactions. All of them are encoded and stored in the intellectual wave code of each energy particle in the tuelinh.

The information in the original yin and yang energy particles of each tuelinh is born from the subject, the original yin and yang embryo of the universe, which is also the first Tuelinh, because two are one and one is two. The information in the energy particles of each tuelinh is produced by their own yin and yang embryo.

The energy particles produced later will inherit the original information value of the generating subject and incorporate the external information value absorbed during the production of energy particles.

The value of information in each tuelinh is the intellectual nature of the tuelinh. That is a complicated secret for tuelinh to understand. The tuelinhs want to understand all the secrets of information, also known as the wisdom of tuelinh; all tuelinhs must practice human life in the human world to gradually discover and decode the truth about the value of information inside themselves.

3. Movement mechanism of tuelinh

The movement mechanism of the tuelinh includes the mechanism of absorbing external information, the mechanism of reacting and processing information, the mechanism of circulating information, the mechanism of transmitting information, and the mechanism of producing energy particles.

The movement mechanisms of the tuelinh depend on the information value encoded in the two original intellectual wave code strands and the intellectual wave code system in the entire tuelinh. From the nature of information, different forms of movement are created between other tuelinhs.

Dear children, the secret of the information and movement mechanism of the tuelinh is a secret that is very difficult to discover. Only when the tuelinhs incarnate as a practitioner in a suffering environment will it help reveal all of its nature, the secret of internal information, and the cause of creating forms of movement in each mechanism of tuelinh. In this lesson, remember carefully the mystery of the structure of tuelinh, but when you understand it, it is no longer a secret. When you understand your structure, you will know why we need to practice in the human world in the following lessons."

When he finished the lecture, the children looked at each other as if the lesson was too tricky. Then they told him, "This lesson is tough, father. When we heard you preach, we felt the power of the magnetic energy flowing into us. We felt a force pressing down on us, making the whole body hot. The energy in the body becomes powerful." "Because a large amount of valuable information is transmitted to you, and your diligent listening has created a mechanism for giving and receiving information. When a large amount of information value, especially true information value, is received into the yin and yang embryo, it will stimulate the yang energy particle system to move and generate warm heat. This type of heat is precious to tuelinhs and humans because it is a prerequisite to help tuelinhs produce sustainable energy particles, from which they will mature. Children, lie down, look at the five-coloured lights in this space, let your consciousness blend with them and spread with them to other planets in the universe. Relax to help the yin and yang embryo's information reaction and encoding processes be completed after each lesson."

After that, the children sink into the relaxation of that beautiful space. Not only did his children feel it, but I also felt the power and heat in my body as I absorbed his teachings. I could come back to reality and relax like the kids are doing. Relaxing, like the children and I, would be best during his sermon. It helps us become strong and heal all suffering in the human world and our tuelinhs. Each of his speeches will heal every wound of each person and will help us identify and eliminate all the toxins in our tuelinhs. Perseverance and not giving up on the journey of liberation from suffering will give us a miraculous achievement.

Chapter Six

The Miracle of the Human Body

"Please! Push gently. Father is working," whispered one child as they tried to push aside the door together. The door - the temple entrance, where Nalas Nalanda was sitting and working, was massive. That is the only temple; it is vast, majestic, and splendid. Once the children had entered the temple, they stared at each pattern on the walls and ceiling by the magnificent golden light interwoven with the antiquity emanating from everywhere. The materials in the temple are all made from gold; only the temple's floor is made from rare precious stones. Gold and precious stones are crafted to create a magnificent work, making the energy inside the temple warm, pure, and ancient. The light emitted from these materials created light for him to work without using lamps. The tuelinhs call this place a temple to pay homage to their revered father, and the truth is that this temple is not a place of worship. He works in this place, such as giving lectures to tuelinhs and discussing work with other tuelinhs. When my memory first showed me this temple, I thought, "Why does this place have such a lavish and wasteful life? Because gold and jewels are extremely precious possessions. Yet they used it to create a temple." But when the memories of paradise were completely put together, I understood why it was like that. Heaven is a planet agglomerated by all three groups of matter that make up the universe; not only that but the smallest and most quintessential particles of energy are stored and constituted into remarkable substances and such value. Super-matter constitutes the tuelinh life form; simple material forms the soil, rocks, water, plants, gold, silver, and precious stones; complex matter constitutes energies that maintain alignment and give life and aura to the entire planet. That is truly miraculous because the place where people live is entirely different to this place.

As the children approached him, they walked softly and did not stop looking at the work and patterns on the golden and ancient walls. The place where he sat to work was a simple and low table. He sits with his legs stacked on top of each other. Opposite his sitting position are seats for other tuelinhs, who will sit there whenever they listen to or discuss work with him.

He was still working even though he knew they were coming in. Perhaps he did not want to break the peaceful moment when they revelled in the ancient space with the beautiful works inside the temple. The temple walls' sculptures depict images of life in the universe. There are sketches of life in heaven and many pictures showing life elsewhere. In particular, many paintings depict human life in the human world. The images of the human world made the children observe. They observed and immersed themselves in the work as if trying to learn something.

"Our Father has finished his work," one of them said quietly. When the children look at him, he has looked at them ever since. Seeing this, the children immediately approached him and sat facing him. "Father, we have been here many times, but we feel different from the previous times this time. From the lectures that you have taught us, we gradually understand the life of the tuelinh, especially the curiosity about human life that exists in our minds. The sketches of life in the human world make us excited to be the same characters in those paintings." "So, today, I will teach you about humans. Do you want that?" "Father, we are looking forward to it, so we have come to hear you preach," the children replied.

"What have you seen from the sketches of human life?" "Father, we see babies being held by their mothers, children playing, children studying, adults lecturing, places of learning and teaching, small houses, big houses, temples, crowded residential areas, people working, fat people beating thin people while they are kneeling on the ground, many people are killing each other because of war, the deaths of children people, people enjoying food, drinking and laughing, adults and children in the house, people are mourning for their loved ones who are lying down due to something, and many other images." "Those sketches are the living situations and circumstances that each tuelinh when incarnating as a human, will have to go through while living in the human world. There are countless other situations as well." One of them confided, "Father, I see people who look like us." "Yes, the human form is built on the model of our tuelinh form. This is because it is the symbol of beauty and wisdom. In particular, that model creates a close connection between humans and tuelinhs, and feels friendly in the process of reincarnation through many lives as a practitioner." "Father, that is wonderful. The tuelinhs will appreciate the human form when incarnating as a human, and when people understand the truth, they will merge with the tuelinh inside to carry out their mission on the practising path. Isn't that right, Dad?" "Yes. Children, I will teach you about the wonder of the human form." The children became excited and began to look intently at him, taking in every detail he said.

After a moment of silence, he began to teach the children about humans.

"In the previous lesson, I told you about the tuelinh, the secrets of the tuelinh. The information and movement mechanism of the tuelinh is the biggest secret and the most difficult to discover. You must understand that information and its processing and reactions are the wisdom of the tuelinh. Intelligence is encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre system in tuelinh. Each tuelinh cannot know its intellect and the other tuelinhs, as well as all other things, because information encryption is tightly secured in the original yin and yang embryo and the intellectual wave encoding system. Little by little, the intellectual nature is only manifested and recognized at the end of responding to information from the tuelinhs to all things and other subjects. I give you some examples: when a tuelinh moves into the habitat of annihilation energy, that tuelinh immediately disintegrates entirely and, as a result, no longer exists in life. When other tuelinhs are witnessing it, they only understand that the place is hazardous but don't know why; when a tuelinh is penetrated by the body by destructive energy particles, he feels pain and emotional conflicts occur, information disturbance occurs, but he does not understand what the nature is; when you are born from the original yin and yang embryo, and it takes a very long time to form you, you and the other tuelinhs will not understand why that process happens; especially in my case, it is easy for me to absorb the destructive energies and transform them into energy super particles, but you can't do that, and you can't understand why. The process of responding to information from within each tuelinh is the secret. It is not easy for the tuelinh to recognize its intellect. This has caused many tuelinhs to be disintegrated by destructive energy, and the maturity of tuelinhs takes a lot of time. It causes the decline of the tuelinh life form and the universe to become more and more present. The reason is that the tuelinh life form cannot understand itself, cannot understand all things, especially cannot understand the destructive energy group - the object that causes death to the tuelinhs and all things in the universe.

Children, the living environment on this planet is pure, free, and peaceful. You do not see any sorrow or suffering in needing material or spiritual possessions. Even if you want it, it will be satisfied by the crystallization of the best energies on this planet. This makes it impossible for you to unleash the intellectual nature hidden within yourself. I have realized that the tuelinh life form lacks a living environment to help them reveal all the information within. To solve this problem, I have created a new living environment for all tuelinhs, a live environment in human form in the human world. When living in human form, through many lifetimes of practice, you will gradually understand your wisdom, especially when continuously reacting to information outside will promote your growth process faster. The human living environment will help all tuelinhs understand the nature of their information and movement mechanisms, and from there, will select the best method to help each tuelinh become mature faster. At that time, the tuelinh life form will become immortal, together developing all things in and outside the universe to become sustainable.

The miracle of the human form is to help all tuelinhs understand themselves, each other, and all things inside and outside the universe. You will experience that miracle in your human lives in the human world.

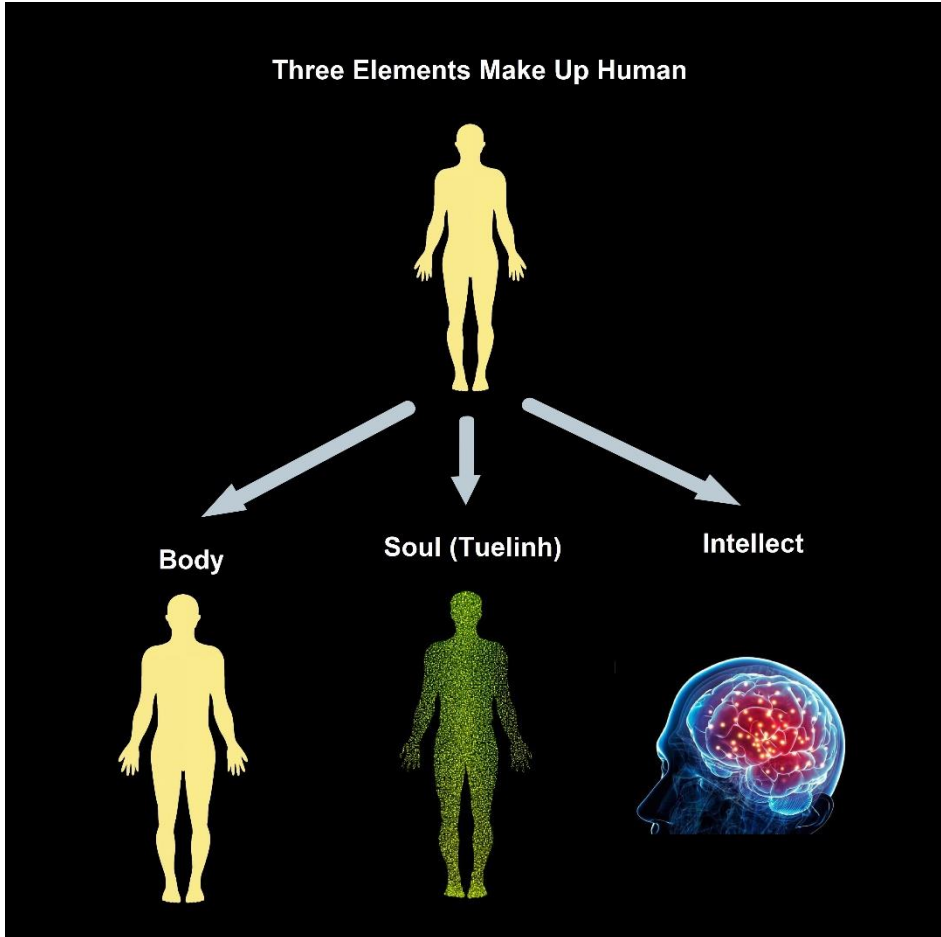

Why is the human body so miraculous? Hey children, I will analyze for you to understand the structure and mechanism of human movement:

1. The structure of a complete human

Like the structure of the tuelinh, the structure of a complete human being consists of three constituent elements. It includes body, soul, and wisdom. These three elements are always united together in inseparability. Because if separated, people will die. A person will not be genuinely complete if one of the three elements is defective or weakened.

- The first element is the human body: Appearance is similar to tuelinh. A human has two legs, arms, a middle body, a neck, and a head. They are tuelinh's copies. However, the difference with tuelinh is that humans have gender, male represents the positive energy group, and female represents the negative energy group. When men and women connect to create an information reaction process, this helps us see the mechanism of producing energy particles of tuelinhs and all things through the construction of human gender. The human body is divided into two stages, before birth and after birth:

+ Before birth: There must be a connection between the woman and the man so that the father's sperm and the mother's egg can fuse. When they combine, an embryonic membrane is formed, which holds the embryo formed from the egg and sperm inside. The embryo is located in the mother's womb. It is closely connected to the mother's body and tuelinh to receive energy and nutrients for the embryo's maturation process. The simple energy particles in the fetus's body are quickly separated at that time. Each smallest energy particle retains information about its function and task. They then bind large numbers to form cells in the fetus's body. Each cell type contains a sequence of encoded information inside, which is used to perform different functions and tasks. Those cells are born continuously and perform their functions. This process helps the embryo mature, and the baby's shape is formed more clearly with parts such as legs, arms, head, neck, body, genitals, and functional organs inside the baby's body. You must remember that while the baby is still in the mother's womb, the mother's tuelinh and the nutrition she eats will nourish and protect that fetus. The baby's movements in the mother's womb are due to the process of responding to information and electric waves in the body. Of course, there is a union from the mother's tuelinh to create life as well as the movement of the fetus. In the 7th month, according to the human calendar, the tuelinh who accepts being reincarnated as a human will have to come to the mother's side to protect that mother, and his body will be born smoothly. Why must the tuelinh follow from the 7th month to protect his body and mother? Because the human reincarnation of a tuelinh must be programmed with essential milestones in human life to have a close connection to the overall cause-and-effect structure of other humans. Therefore, reincarnation as a human must be successful without failure. The 7th month will ensure two conditions for a successful human reincarnation: the fetus is mature and can survive if born prematurely, and the mother will not be able to abort the fetus from the 7th month onwards. Therefore, the tuelinh will be present with the mother from the 7th month, and when the baby is born, the tuelinh officially merges into the baby's body to let out the first cry of life to become a child, a complete person. There will be many different cases of fetuses and babies. I will give lectures when I preach in the human world.

After being born, at this time, the baby's appearance is similar to that of the baby tuelinh. However, the difference with the tuelinh is that within the human body, another structure resides inside to maintain life, which is a tuelinh. The tuelinh is responsible for conserving energy and heat for the body, ensuring the existence and life of the body through unifying with the body and controlling the body in all activities from eating and drinking to study and be productive in labour. Through that process, the cells in the human body are rapidly divided, and from the body of a baby, become an adult, grow old, and die to end a human life. Then, continue for the next cycle of reincarnation.

- The second factor is the soul of humans: The soul is the tuelinh. That is another way of calling it after the tuelinh integrates into the human form to maintain and develop life. The soul's task is to ensure the body's life, control the body in environments that interact with people, animals, and events, and create information reactions from the intellectual wave code system in the tuelinh. That process will help the tuelinh understand and discover the nature of intelligence - information in its intellectual wave code system. In particular, when the tuelinh becomes the soul in the human body, they will no longer remember memories of their original mission and no longer have magic like living in paradise. That is extremely important and a miracle to help their wisdom manifest and transform.

- The third element is human intelligence: human intelligence consists of two parts, the intellectual centre and the intellectual transceiver station. As follows:

+ The intellectual centre is the intellectual wave code system in the yin and yang embryo inside the tuelinh when he is in the body. The task of the intelligence centre is to receive information transmitted from the body's brain. Then, there will be an information reaction process between the input external information and the information in the intellectual wave code system. At the end of the reaction process, a new amount of information will be created from the yin and yang embryo - the result of the reaction process. Each type of external information can only react and decode one kind of information inside the yin and yang embryo of the tuelinh.

+ The intellectual transceiver station is the human brain. The tools of the intellectual transceiver include sight, smell, hearing, taste, and touch. Through these tools, the brain will absorb information from the outside so that the intelligence centre can react and process information. Through that group of tools, the brain will receive the task of transmitting data to the outside world from the intellectual centre in the soul. Receiving and transmitting information helps people feel that they have awareness in the brain. We can also call the wisdom of a human life in the human world.

Wisdom will use the soul to control the body and interact with all things, events, and phenomena to absorb information and create reactions in the intelligence centre. It will then transmit the information to the outside of the body.

This process helps the tuelinh gradually discover information within itself and all things, step by step, find and practice the best method in movement mechanisms to support the tuelinh become more mature. The next is learning how to control all the energy groups in and out of the universe.

2. Human movement mechanism

The mechanism of human movement is similar to that of the tuelinh. The nature of the information within the centre of the intellectual wave code system creates movement methods for all movement mechanisms. In the previous lesson, I just told you about the movement mechanisms of the tuelinh, and in this lesson, I will analyze more deeply when the tuelinh has become the soul in the human body. To understand all of them, you will learn through the sufferings of practice, through the enlightened knowledge that I spread in the human world.

The movement of the human body is all due to the information value within the intelligence centre operating, reacting, and converting into actions.

Human emotions and moods appear during and after the information reaction process in the intellectual wave code fibre system.

When tuelinhs, humans perceive and understand the quality and quantity of information within their intellectual wave code fibre system. They will select the perfect method to promote and build sustainable movement mechanisms. That mechanism produces super-energy particles so that tuelinh can mature faster and become enlightened. They then transformed their original yin and yang embryos into energy filters and became immortal in this universe.

Through the practice environment of tuelinhs in the human world, through the movement of all things in and out of the universe, primarily through the successful transformation of my original yin and yang embryo to become a powerful filter, and produces super-energy particles from destructive energy, I tell you about two methods of movement of the tuelinh from all information reaction processes. That is the method of producing negative energy particles and the method of producing positive energy particles. When you understand these two methods, you will apply them to understand yourself, others, other tuelinhs, and all things inside and outside the universe. Next, you will choose the most magical method to implement the sustainable energy particle production mechanism.

The information reaction process in the human body consists of four stages:

- The first stage: the brain's intellectual transceiver station will use the five senses to absorb information from the outside environment into the centre of the intellectual wave code system in the tuelinh. External information includes images, sounds, matter, people, animals, events, and external phenomena.

- The second stage: at the centre of the intellectual wave code, there will be an information reaction process between external information and the information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre system. The reaction process depends on the similarity of the information content between the two sides. This will result in new information value being formed.

- In the third stage, the new information results after the reaction process becomes an ideology. It includes negative ideology and positive ideology:

+ Negative ideology is the thought of satisfying one's interests but causing harm to other people, animals, and all things in and out of the universe.

+ Positive ideology is the ideology that does not harm humans, tuelinhs, animals, and all things inside and outside the universe for their own sake. It is a thought that devotes itself to spreading, connecting, and uniting all subjects to develop all things to become sustainable in non-discrimination jointly.

- In the fourth stage, ideology is transmitted to the brain to direct the five senses to practice:

+ When the body performs the actions of negative ideology, from one to countless negative energy particles will be produced in the yin and yang embryo. Positive and neutral energy particles will not be produced.

+ When the body performs the actions of positive ideology, the yin and yang embryo will produce from one to countless positive energy particles, including neutral energy particles. In particular, the negative particles produced with electric waves are weak enough to form an energetic particle structure outside the mature yin-yang embryo in a stable ratio of 1:1 with positive energy particles.

From the process of reacting information to the actions that occur after that reaction process. We see that:

- Negative ideology is toxic information emitted from the original negative intelligence wave code fibre in the yin and yang embryo and the entire negative intelligence wave code fibre system. The toxin-produced negative energy particles are a combination of external toxic information and the essence of the original intellectual wave code of tuelinh. It causes the tuelinh to have an excess of countless negative energy particles. As a result, tuelinhs will not mature; they will become weak, miserable and disintegrated by the energy of destruction.

- Positive ideology is the excellent information, the compassion emanating from the original positive intellectual wave code fibre and the positive intelligence wave code fibre system. Positive energy particles are produced; they help control and force out the toxins in the negative particle system. Making positive energy particles brings invaluable benefits: the structure of energy particles in the tuelinh is evenly separated, and the value of the energy particles is exceptionally sustainable. This helps the tuelinh to transform into a filter that produces super-energy particles in the original yin and yang embryo when there is enough quantity and substance in the intellectual wave code system in the entire tuelinh.

When understanding these things, each tuelinh, human will know how to choose the best method for himself; from there, apply that method to all human movement mechanisms in the human world. Step by step, understand all the values of information and wisdom in tuelinh. Then, they can squeeze out all the toxins inside and persistently perform the activation of good information in the tuelinh to produce yang energy particles.

Children, today I have explained a tremendous and complex amount of knowledge. Since you have not experienced the reincarnation of a practitioner in the human world, you will not be able to realize what I am saying today. But by listening to lectures before becoming human, your yin and yang embryos have retained valuable information to prepare for your practising path.

Through today's lecture, how do you feel? Do you see the miracle of living in a human form? And remember, in the human world, you will never be satisfied with everything because that's my plan. Because of this, it has worked wonders to help tuelinhs understand themselves, other tuelinhs, and all things inside and outside the universe."

The children seemed to be intoxicated by the highly complex information of the lecture. They seemed to be flying, floating in space, and answered him, "Father, there are no words to describe that miracle. Through the human form, all malicious or good information is activated. From there, the tuelinhs will understand and practice the path of reincarnation to mature and become immortal." "That's right, let's preach to each other so that you don't forget the lectures I gave you. They will help you quickly succeed on the practising path in the human world."

Seeing the magic of being human, the children became excited and looked forward to the day they would become human. When Nalas Nalanda finished his sermon, he went out. Only children remained inside this ancient and magnificent temple. They continued to look at sketches of the human world. The reflection on their faces showed that they had tried their best to prepare mentally and intellectually for their upcoming human plan.

Chapter Seven

The Second Plan to Save All Living Beings

When Nalas Nalanda came out, the door was immediately closed. That is the door to the space containing the iridescent yellow super-energy. That is where he works alone, and it's different from the temple he works in. At the temple, tuelinhs are allowed to study and talk with him. However, in this place, only five of his messengers were allowed to enter with his permission. Inside, it has a place for him to operate life, the movement for all galaxies in this universe. In particular, that place is where energy superparticles are produced through the connection from his original yin and yang embryo. In addition to helping the tuelinhs practice in the human world, the five messengers are responsible for protecting this workplace. Any tuelinh is not allowed near this area. Outside that secret door is the workspace of the five messengers. This space has many ways of arranging energy groups and different material structures to form regimens and formations to monitor and operate the practising environment in the human world. They look massive and mysterious because, through them, the five messengers easily build and deploy plans for human incarnation and the practice of each tuelinh in the human world. That management and operation make each causal chain of each tuelinh when living in the human world suitable and closely linked to form the miracle of life from one person to the whole of humanity. All of that creates the ideal scenarios to help tuelinhs in the human world quickly understand themselves, other people, and all things. From there, they quickly squeeze out all the toxins and promote the maturation and transformation of their own original yin and yang embryos.

After walking out the door of his workplace, he went to the workplace of the five messengers. It looks like a pyramid, but the top is not a pointed shape, but a ground for them to work and operate the structures, the formations around that place. After he ascended to the top of the tower, five messengers came to him one by one, and together they sat across from him.

"Father, we have arranged everything for your incarnation. Many tuelinhs have been as incarnated as humans before, and the rest will be incarnated after you come to Earth. All of them will join you to form a second great saving of living beings. Father, among the tuelinhs who incarnated to serve that plan, there are many tuelinhs with negative multiparticle structures, which is a great opportunity for them to squeeze out all the toxins in them. But it is also a huge challenge for them because their intellectual arrogance is the most difficult toxin to remove. When they interact in the teacher-student relationship, that toxin even thrives. Do you have a plan for that?" The messenger Giac told him. He calmly said, "Let their toxins develop as much as possible. I have no trouble interacting with them in my human life. They will help me become strong and regain my wisdom. I have to thank them no matter what. It would be best to remember that when the tuelinhs have incarnated in human form to practice, releasing toxins is wonderful because that is their success and ours. When the toxin is released, they need to experience the suffering from that poison and force it out of themselves. Then they will become more enlightened, and step by step practice enlightenment to complete the transformation of their original yin and yang embryo."

Messenger Giac continued to tell him, "Father, the elements of time, family, people, nation, the main milestones in your great journey have been built. All are based on requirements and the results of interactions in the father's past lives. These elements are all kept confidential so the overall journey is safe for the body." "I agree with that plan. It is the best solution for me to overcome the obstacles and difficulties on this journey," he then asked all five messengers, "What is your plan?" Messenger Phap immediately said, "We have arranged the plan. Four of us will incarnate before and after you to accompany you. One of us will stay on duty here and protect the body until you have all your wisdom back. When one of us returns first to continue this task, the other messenger will incarnate as a human. That helps us all learn knowledge and be guided by you to transform the original yin and yang embryo successfully." He told them, "It is a wonderful solution for me and you. When I abide in our human body, I can leave my body for a short moment to return to work while my body is still safe. My body will not notice the difference. From my energy, it is not difficult."

"Children, when a tuelinh abides in a human form to practice in the human world, information about their environment and bodies will be a huge obstacle to awakening the tuelinh to fulfil its mission. You men prepared that plan for me. That awakening will help the body's brain connect with me." "Yes, Father," the messengers immediately replied.

"You also know golden super-energy is not enough to operate the entire universe and protect from the attack of destructive energy from the outside. The attrition is enormous from working the orbits of every planet, every galaxy, and the universe. That will soon lead to exhaustion and insufficient for the universe's protection and operation.

Therefore, in this incarnation, I have two main tasks to complete:

- The first task is to upgrade the yin and yang embryo to become comprehensive. It can only produce iridescent yellow super-positive energy and neutral superparticles. When fully upgraded, other superparticles will be produced. Then, these super-energies will do an excellent job of protecting and maintaining the universe's operation to achieve the best efficiency.

- Second mission: After completing the first mission, I will carry out the second mission to help humans. I will spread the knowledge of complete enlightenment, which is the knowledge of two noble truths: the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment. I will decode and encode these two truths into the knowledge of the smallest energy particle. That will help people and tuelinhs to understand the fastest and most truthfully the nature of information and intelligence in themselves, in tuelinhs and other people, and all things inside and outside the universe. When humanity's tribulation is over, the knowledge of the two truths will be disseminated and unite all humans in learning and practising the knowledge of enlightenment.

The great tribulation of humanity cannot be avoided, partly because of the transfer of energy supply for the existence and operation of the Earth, partly because of humans." When he had finished speaking, the messenger Chap said, "It is true, Father, you have created the most wonderful religions, beliefs, and environments for the tuelinhs to have the conditions to force the toxins out and successfully transform their yin and yang embryos. However, they do not practice removing that toxin, but instead indulge in contentment with what they have and do not have, love and hate, arrogant and self-deprecating intellect, action and inaction."

"We can't blame them because it is tough to break out a type of poison in the tuelinhs, and it needs many scenarios to make it break out. Squeezing a toxin is even more difficult, requiring more interactive scenarios to force a toxin out. At the same time, each tuelinh has countless toxins inside. That is also why we call this the second great saving of living beings. The third great saving will take place in 11000 years. Each time a great saving is performed, in addition to creating new super-energy for the universe, many tuelinhs will mature and become enlightened beings. That is invaluable to tuelinhs and the universe," he told the five messengers.

After that, all the preparations were completed, and the tuelinhs who incarnated as humans before him were done. The other tuelinhs continue to wait for their turn.

When the time has come, he must carry out his destiny. Before descending to Earth, he talked with children and messengers who had not yet reincarnated. Those were his instructions or encouragement for them. The children's faces became sad. They are missing a father who regularly teaches them about what is happening in the universe, human life, and the secrets of everything. It was a sad moment for the tuelinhs who remained, and they felt unhappy because they had to reincarnate later than him, even though time passed very quickly. Feeling an indescribable sadness, I decided to escape that memory and return to reality. In reality, I am far from where I was born and writing down these memories. I'm sipping warm cups of tea to become awakened, and I can remember his knowledge.

Chapter Eight

Nalas Nalanda's Journey to Return to Wisdom

Since Nalas Nalanda incarnated as a human to carry out his mission, the scenery in heaven is still the same, and it is as if they have not changed at all. In addition to playing, the children review the lessons they have learned together. Sometimes, they talk to each other to remember the lesson content. Other times, they are taught by Giac and Chap about experiences and methods to overcome suffering as humans. The two messengers Giac and Chap stayed to maintain their mission here and to help and protect the form body of Nalas Nalanda on his journey to return to his enlightened wisdom. Chap takes on the additional duties of San and Han. Giac, in addition to his mission, is taking on the other responsibilities of Phap and must constantly observe and follow all developments on the practising journey of the first Tuelinh.

It is not the first time the five messengers have taken on each other's jobs to take turns transforming into humans with Nalas Nalanda. However, they still have indescribable emotions during his human incarnation this time. They were filled with excitement, emotion, and suspense as they watched the progress of his journey on Earth and the anticipation of meeting and practising his knowledge when they incarnated as humans.

While working on the tower together, after a moment of calculation, Giac said to Chap, "Chap, according to our plan and calculations, the time has come to inform and awaken the connection between father and his body general already. That body is 29 years old, has finished getting married and has children. Tonight, when he sleeps, the two of us will go into his dream and awaken Father to the task that must be performed." "So good, these important milestones make me sobbing and nervous. Look, he's already starting to go to sleep. I probably won't be able to forget these moments. It would be great if I could remember these memories while living in the human world." Giac immediately replied, "Stop dreaming. The rules cannot be changed. Let us wait for him to fall into a deep sleep and enter his dream."

The early spring days of the new year in a poor countryside were very peaceful. The early days of spring make people everywhere feel hopeful and wish for a new year filled with joy and success. He, the form body of Nalas Nalanda, fell asleep on a cold night. That sleep washed away the ups and downs and hardships in life that he had gone through. He was indeed in a deep sleep. Seeing that scene, Giac and Chap became emotional and challenging to describe. Both saw aura light signals from within Nalas Nalanda's body that signalled the time had come for them to go to see him.

Having fallen into a deep sleep, Nalas Nalanda suddenly found himself standing in the middle of the house at night. Out in the yard, the light from the moon illuminated the scene, making it clear when viewed from inside the house through glass windows. At that time, in his awareness, he was unsure whether this was a dream or reality because tonight was the first moonlit night of the new year. He couldn't differentiate between the dream and real-life scenes every time he fell asleep because it was so real. He often dreams of locations that do not exist in the human world, which are strange and beautiful scenes that captivate the human mind. As if some invisible connection made him believe in what he saw in the dream, he believed that his words, emotions, and actions were his soul. He truly believed in the soul and what he knew in his nights of sleep, including his foreknowledge of the future in his dreams from childhood. Everything that was known in advance happened precisely. That's why he enjoys those things and often tells those stories to friends and relatives.

While engrossed in looking at the moonlight shining through the glass windows, it shines on himself. Suddenly, Nalas Nalanda heard a strange breathing sound, and it was not similar to the breathing sound of any animal on Earth. He became curious, opened the door slightly, and stepped out into the courtyard. Listening to the direction of the breath, he walked to the garden on the left side of the house. He was startled to see a jade-green dragon staring intently at him, its big and long whiskers curling with a strange breath. Its body was curved into six sections, and the head was close to the ground and looking at him, the tail was at the top. At that moment, he instinctively became frightened, ran straight into the house, and closed the door. He tried to look through the window in bewilderment. That dragon suddenly flew past the front door, and its eyes continued to look at him. It then passed to the house's front yard and transformed into two adult men. Something strange attracted him to step out and approach the two men. While standing in front of them, one of them said to him, "It's time for you to practice. Our world is in danger, and time is running out. We have magic and miracles, but we can't teach you. We will direct you to someone to study." When those two said the name of the person he had to come to study, the two disappeared. At the same time, the rooster crowed continuously, waking him up from his sleep. Although it was still dark, he couldn't sleep. He immediately sat up and recalled all the events in his sleep. He took this as an indication that his soul was linked to them. At this time, he still did not know who he was or who his soul was. Everything remains vague about the spirit world and the invisible. After that, he thought and believed he would meet the person the two men told him about last night.

A few months later, he met the person he was told about in his dream. After a period of meeting, he believed that person was indeed the person he had been informed about. Only then did he tell his story to that person. Although that person could not teach him, he would lead him to meet a woman. According to him, this woman has spiritual abilities to help Nalas Nalanda's body. After thinking about whether or not he should see her to learn the so-called miracle, he decided to see that woman in a few days. He hesitated to go because he had many people who wanted to teach him about spirituality and miracles. But he refused. He didn't want anyone to be his teacher.

On two consecutive nights, before he met that woman, two messengers continuously went to sleep to inform him.

The first night, a messenger transformed into an old man came to his house and said, "You have to study quickly. Time is running out. Heaven sent the person you are about to meet to teach you." But it seemed he still suspected something, so he didn't answer the older man. On the second night, an older woman came to him and told him the same as the older man had said. But he also had no answer. On the day he went to meet the woman and the man who was initially informed, he met him in a sceptical mood. The two messengers knew that Nalas Nalanda's human form and wisdom still did not believe what they said, so they continued to go to sleep the night after he went to meet that woman. This time, the older man and the older woman appeared before him. They repeated, "We can't teach you. You should study with that woman for one year, and you'll finish it. Everything awaits you, and you must complete that study plan." However, he did not answer when the two messengers returned from his sleep. Chap confided to Giac, "It is difficult to awaken tuelinh when in human form to live in the human world. If not for the father in his body, perhaps we could not succeed in awakening and connecting the brain intelligence and tuelinh inside him." "With what he did, we were successful. The tuelinh within him is awakening, and will receive back his memories and wisdom when he goes through all the painful experiences in this life."

Time passed very quickly; the day he finished his experience of studying the Dharma was almost over. However, he was highly disappointed because he thought he only had to learn for one year but had to study for another six months. In particular, he did not know anything or have any magic. Instead, the teacher only taught him rituals to pray from heaven to hope for someone to have money and status. Because he was so disappointed, he looked at the sky and said, "Why do you show me someone like that to learn from? I can't learn anything. There's nothing good to learn, and I only see ignorance from the teacher. I tried to listen to her. I had to convince her to let me complete my studies according to her instructions. I am very disappointed in you." His faith seemed to have collapsed after more than a year of studying. Out of frustration, he burned all the notes he took during the study period. When he burned them, he thought, "I can't use them. It's so ignorant. How can I use rituals to solve human suffering and problems? Someone may be afraid of people in heaven, but I am not, so I burn everything I wrote down from people in this so-called paradise. I'm not afraid of being punished or doing anything by those who live in heaven. I am recognized to have finished my study in the new year's spring. I don't know what to do after that. Why didn't those two spirits meet me from that day until now? Maybe they see they're wrong, so they don't want to see me."

With the bustling atmosphere, everyone, every family, is happily preparing to celebrate the new year. One night, while sleeping, he suddenly found himself sitting in the temple of Nalas Nalanda. He was sitting in Nalas Nalanda's place, and many people were listening to him. His words were profound and majestic when he heard them greet him and heard what he said to them. He was surprised. Two emotional states were intertwined at that time; one was the state of the tuelinh myself, and the other was the state of the brain wisdom; they linked together. Then he suddenly woke up in the middle of the night. He couldn't sleep anymore. He tried to reassure himself and assumed this was just an ordinary dream, not a message or memory. In the following days, he encouraged himself that it wasn't true; his soul couldn't be that tuelinh. Whenever he thought about that scene, he feared that he had offended that tuelinh. However, his soul does not let him have a peaceful life like other small people. One cold winter night later, when he was in a deep sleep under a warm cotton blanket, he stood beside a lake in heaven. It was tremendous, and the extraordinary thing was that he could see the tiny stones emitting a brilliant blue light; the water surface had no ripples. He was standing and immersed in contemplation with his eyes looking out to the lake. Suddenly, a tuelinh stood behind him and greeted, "Father, congratulations on waking up and returning to visit your homeland. I have completed protecting your body and awakening you in his form body. Now, my father's body and human wisdom know who the soul inside is. That is very difficult to accept." "Thank you for protecting my human form and for the awakenings that allowed me to connect wisdom with that form. I am inside that body, so I am the owner of the form; I know how to control the body to complete the task. That form does not know that the person he has had to study for more than a year is also my previous life teacher. He must go through that experience to see the ignorance of people and tuelinhs, of those who know psychic abilities. He needs to have my intelligence. When he burned down the things he had written out of frustration, it was my control to teach the human mind to know right and wrong, emotions. In the coming time, I will take my human wisdom with me on a tour around the universe, re-visiting the memories of my human life in the human world. I will gradually pass on all my wisdom to the human wisdom of my body." Then he woke up. Like every time, he sat up and remembered everything he saw and knew in the dream. In the following days, he learned to accept that the soul inside him was that tuelinh, especially after he knew that he had to study for more than a year with the same teacher who taught him in his previous life and how he understood that teacher. Because of that, after he finished learning from that person, he decided to go to her and preach enlightened knowledge for three hours to her. However, she was uncomfortable listening to lectures about enlightened understanding.

In the following months, every time he fell asleep in the dark of night, his human wisdom was carried by the tuelinh inside him everywhere in the universe, throughout the memories of his human lives, in the human world. But in reality, the wisdom of the tuelinh transmits essential knowledge to the brain. When the brain intelligence receives complete knowledge from the tuelinh, the body, wisdom, and tuelinh merge into one whole. This process of returning wisdom has helped him gain knowledge about the truth of the universe, humanity, the origin of humanity, the mission of tuelinhs and humans, and the path to liberate suffering through the knowledge of the two noble truths. Now, he has been teaching that knowledge. He had many classes and many students. They come and go after a learning journey. His wisdom became more and more perfect. He upgraded his enlightened knowledge each year to become more profound and comprehensive. During the difficult years on the journey to return his wisdom and spread it, he never thought of stopping or giving up. Once, he looked up at the sky on a bright moonlit night and said, "My body will vow to devote its entire life to the mission of tuelinh. The tuelinh in me is my father, my master. I am a child of tuelinh. Every breath, every cell in me is giving and fulfilling the mission of a great Father." He always feels great and happy because next to him there are people; inside them are wonderful tuelinhs, and they accompany him on the journey of spreading knowledge of two noble truths. They were always by his side in the most challenging times, encouraging and cheering him. Besides, countless people he had never met learned his knowledge through others, through modern means of society. The sick, those drowning in suffering, have studied the knowledge of the two truths and have overcome it. They continue to share that knowledge. That truth is happening, and it will not stop. Since this knowledge is the most wonderful in the universe, it is being used to benefit humanity and the tuelinhs.

Following the journey of Nalas Nalanda in human form in the human world, Giac and Chap became emotional, tears streaming down their cheeks. They are happy because the father has been successful on the road to fulfilling his mission in the world. They were delighted when Nalas Nalanda successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter when his body was 35 years old. Before that, it was just a single energy filter. After only six years of practising and spreading knowledge, with ups and downs and hardships, he overcame and even completed the first task. That's why the yin energy superparticle has a brilliant jade green colour, and his yin and yang embryo produced several other super-energies. Now, he is carrying out his second mission of spreading the knowledge of the two truths to unite humanity, helping all tuelinhs and people in humans eliminate toxins and transform yin and yang embryos to become sustainable.

While immersed in emotions while thinking about him, Giac and Chap were surprised to see him come to visit. After greeting, Giac immediately said to him, "The second great salvation of living beings is real, Father." "Of course, it's real, I'm doing it." Giac, following his mission, should remind him. After the three entered the sparkling golden energy space, he immediately said, "We are also teacher and students of the path of enlightenment. Only we can produce super energy particles." Then, Giac told him, "We now have three tuelinhs qualified to transform the original yin and yang embryo into a single filter, Father. I see that in this life of your practice, you will have many tuelinhs qualified to transform the yin and yang embryo into a single filter." "That is our joy, the joy of the whole universe. Also, the negative energy superparticle produced is doing a good job of protecting the universe from attacks from outside destructive energy. Other super-energies are doing their job well. We still have one important thing to do: save the Earth so that the practice environment of tuelinhs is not destroyed. We will try to save as many people as possible." Then, he returned to his body while that body was still asleep.

Chapter Nine

The Four Commandments of God in the Gathering of Humanity

Always observing and following Nalas Nalanda's footsteps in human life in the human world, Giac is highly proud of the achievements he has made over the years. Countless people have overcome suffering in life quickly and peacefully through studying and practising the knowledge of the two truths. Besides, many people of different ages had mental illnesses such as depression, anxiety disorders, hallucinations, paranoia, postpartum depression, being possessed by demons, and schizophrenia, they recovered and returned to normal. In particular, many people suffer from mild to severe diseases, such as body pain, bone and joint pain, cancer, etc. They have overcome illness and suffering in life like magic. However, from Nalas Nalanda's sermons, Giac knew it was not magic or a miracle. All the sick people recovered from their illnesses, and those who had suffered overcame their suffering because they diligently listened and learned his knowledge; they and their families followed his teachings and instructions correctly. Because the knowledge he is teaching is accurate information, the truth of all things in and out of the universe. All that information he called the knowledge of two noble truths, including the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment. He combined that knowledge with the smallest energy particle's truth, nature, and movement mechanism to create the magical power of enlightened knowledge. Learning about the smallest energy particles is difficult to understand because humanity cannot discover the smallest particles of simple matter, such as soil, rocks, plants, and metals. But the knowledge of the smallest energy particles that the incarnation of Nalas Nalanda is teaching includes the smallest energy particles of simple matter, complex matter, and super-matter. They are the three groups of matter that make up the universe and all life within it. However, the knowledge of the smallest energy particle became accessible for everyone in the human world to learn and remember when he encoded the knowledge of two truths into them to dispel ignorance and achieve enlightenment for tuelinhs, people in the human world. For him, it is the truth of information with the nature and operating mechanism of the smallest particle in the universe. But for me, it is magic, a miracle that my revered father has been teaching in the human world through his incarnation.

Although he still had to wait for one of the three messengers to return before Giac could transform into a human to study and practice, he could still listen to the lectures Nalas Nalanda preached to his students. The wonderful tools in Giac's workplace help him complete the task but also allow him to immerse himself in the atmosphere of the great teacher's lectures and classes. He always listens attentively and does not miss any lesson from the teacher, imparting knowledge of the two noble truths. Because he heard and received valuable information from the teacher's lectures before incarnating as a human, he is confident that he will fully understand that knowledge and practice transforming the original yin and yang embryo into an energy filter success in the following human life.

When Giac saw Nalas Nalanda preparing to give lectures to many students in a classroom with nearly a hundred students, Giac seemed to blend into the classroom atmosphere to listen to his teachings. He rented the classroom in a house to lecture on knowledge. Although the space was cramped because many people were listening to the lecture, it was even uncomfortable, but those troubles disappeared when his lesson started. That is the familiar feeling of those who have repeatedly heard speeches from the teacher.

When he knows the truth about himself, who is the tuelinh inside him? Nalas Nalanda's incarnation used his name as his own. He explained to his students the meaning of the name Nalas Nalanda: when in heaven that name means the first tuelinh, God, all things in the universe were born from him, his wisdom covers the entire understanding of the universe, especially he is the only fully enlightened tuelinh; When in the human world, that name means a fully enlightened person preaching the knowledge of two noble truths to everyone. In particular, students of Nalas Nalanda are allowed to use Nalanda as their name if they practice spreading the understanding of the two truths to everyone equally. Then, his students also became Nalandas, and they were the ones who preached the doctrine of full enlightenment to everyone.

My endless memories were suddenly replaced by memories of the lecture of Nalas Nalanda, my respected teacher. When his warm words were played, I noticed that in today's speech, he gave on the four commandments of Nalas Nalanda in the gathering of humanity. Luckily, I can remember his lectures in detail and precisely as they were. It's a wonderful thing. Please join me in the teacher's warm teachings.

Then the teacher said, "In the history of humanity, there have been countless people who, out of suffering and hurt, have sought the release of suffering. Because of affliction and ignorance, numerous people seek enlightenment to be at peace, to become wisdom. Countless people have practised on the path to enlightenment to help themselves and other suffering people.

Did you know they were successful? Did they attain enlightenment or full enlightenment? In human history, in this universe, has anyone achieved those things? These are difficult questions for you.

Put a smile on your face, even though your body is in pain from illness, even though your mind is disturbed by afflictions, by suffering in torments. Please shake it off for now, listen to what I say, look and think about the times I laugh. My smile helps you become loving, warm, and filled with enlightenment.

After learning the two truths, you will understand everything from the tiniest particle of energy to yourself, the tuelinh, humanity, the origin of humanity, and the entire universe. You need to remember that, in this universe, there is only one fully enlightened person, God, also known as Buddha. There are many enlightened ones. The rest are immersed in suffering and the gradual destruction of the tuelinh. At this time, you have questions about those answers. That is great because it helps us activate the informational natures of our souls when interacting with valuable information. Each lesson I share with you will be the magic key to unlock the secret pieces for yourself, others, all species, tuelinhs, humanity, and the universe. Relax and listen to each lecture, then you will understand and find it easy to overcome all suffering and illness in this human life.

Do you know who the ancestors of humans are? What is the origin of humans? Did humans evolve from animals or some species on this Earth? Many religions and researchers have answered this question. Some religions believe that people come from some distant planet in the universe. Some believe God punishes people; hence, they have to suffer on this Earth. Some researchers believe that humans evolved from an animal on Earth. All of these answers cause confusion and anxiety for humans. From those points of view, we are vague and do not assert the truth about our origins, from which we do not know what we exist and live for, what our mission is, and where we go after we die. We are completely unaware or vague, even misinterpreted, about these things. Then, we sink into suffering with no way out. We will fail even if we try to find enlightenment in all forms. There are many cases of failure, but they think it is a success on the path to enlightenment. Because you and humanity misunderstand the origins and duties of human beings, when suffering, people leave their families, parents, spouses, and children to go away searching for enlightenment in some pure place.

Those are the consequences of creating suffering after suffering for the next life without even realizing the truth of the enlightenment people have been searching for.

You have heard my lecture on the three elements that make up the human being, the three elements that make up the tuelinh, a little secret of the tuelinh, and why the human life form was formed. I will tell you all the secrets of the universe, of tuelinh, of man. When you receive all that accurate and valuable information, the soul within you will become strong and have the wisdom to merge with the body and the brain. Then, you become enlightened people. Next, practice in human life to become an enlightened being.

You must know and always remember about the four commandments of God in the gathering of humanity. It helps you remember your roots of humanity, your duties as a human being, and your responsibilities to yourself, animals, things, and everyone around you.

Before the congress of gathering humanity took place, on Earth, there was an entire system of vegetation with vast forests, from minor to enormous rivers, and the vast ocean, rolling hills and mountains. Animals on the ground with countless species live in rivers, lakes and seas, and those that can fly high above the ground. In particular, he created an ideal environment not to create danger to people's lives when they appear. Those are ferocious animals that are destroyed by climate change and natural disasters. The living environment is created to ensure that people can live and develop further.

After the habitat for humans on Earth was ensured, Nalas Nalanda created many gathering points for humankind on Earth. The locations are held on the edge of large river areas, next to the coast, near the forest, in the forest, and the mountains. These gathering locations will not be able to know about each other's presence. They will live separately from each other for a long time to grow from a small group of people into larger communities. Then, people between locations will discover each other, creating complexity in people's lives. That is the process built for humanity after the great gathering of humanity.

The human gathering places were created around the same time, one after the other, under the direction of Nalas Nalanda. In each location, he had four commandments to teach the first humans on Earth, which were their first lessons in the human world. Besides, the animals considered it their lesson when summoned to participate in the human gathering.

The humanity gathering congress takes place as follows: at each gathering point, many tuelinhs are participating in incarnation as humans in the human world. Four tuelinhs will transform into a family, including a father, mother, son, and daughter. There were more than four incarnated households in each location. He summoned the animals from all directions to listen to his teachings. The tuelinhs were assigned to incarnate to perform the duties of father, mother, son, and daughter before the conference took place. They went through the tuelinhs conference in heaven to thoroughly grasp the contents for the path of practice in human form in the human world. Four tuelinhs on duty in a family stand close to each other; they stand apart from other families. Households stand in a circle, and in the middle is Nalas Nalanda. When the animals fully attended, they stood among the households and behind them. He began using his miraculous power to move the smallest particles of five energy groups from the universe's space to the gathering place. Those groups of energetic particles move like tornadoes with countless particles and aggregate at the tuelinhs. Each tuelinh has a vortex of the smallest simple energy particles that merge with the tuelinh standing on the task of incarnation. This process happens very quickly; a moment later, complete people are formed. The father and mother have tall and mature bodies, and the daughter and son have small bodies. Men have rugged beauty and muscular strength, while women have gentle beauty and grace. They do not have clothes to cover their bodies, mainly because they have gender differences, but they do not have any shyness or shame. The animals expressed surprise at his creation of humans by combining the simple energy particles to form a body and the tuelinh with transcendent intelligence within that body. That also makes the tuelinhs excited and worried when they no longer have the magic to fly or transform. They have to put on a form with countless cells inside the body, a complete living organism. At that time, because of their curiosity about the human body, which was very strange, one person immediately asked him, "Father, how should we use and operate this body?" He replied, "I make your bodies from the smallest simple particles of five energy groups, which are clumped together, linked together to create the parts of the body, all of them encrypted information to do the task of creating life when there is tuelinh residing inside. Adapt to your new body, and practice your human life based on my four commandments."

Then the first humans said to him, "Please teach us. We will remember your teachings." He looked at each household and animal in turn, and then he gave four commandments, "The first thing you must remember: I brought you down here to be human with holy tuelinh, and when you return, you must also return with holy tuelinh. The second: I have given you a mission to give each other children so they can become a family, have children, and build humanity into greatness. The third thing: I give you the mission of taming the souls of animals so that they become humans like you. The fourth thing is that you will have to go through all the sufferings and tribulations for many lifetimes practising in human form until you can transform the yin and yang embryos into an energy filter, full enlightenment. My children, I suggest: to quickly attain the energy filter in the yin and yang embryos or become enlightened, you should seek the truth of the universe in each suffering and enlighten them."

Then, he instructs those people how to practice human life so that they build and develop their group to become larger and more robust. The same happens at the other gathering points. Besides, he remembered to encourage the first people who laid the foundation to build humanity so that other tuelinhs could incarnate as humans.

The miracle of the creation of humanity is that he uses his magical power to operate the smallest simple energy particles to combine with each tuelinh to form a complete human being. Only first, when he created humans, he used that method. The next generation of humans will be born by a reproductive mechanism that combines a woman's egg and a man's sperm.

You will find it difficult to understand why each member of the family has different functions and duties, such as the woman having the ability to get pregnant and give birth to a baby and the man having the same function as the woman to create a fetus and functions that develop and protect their loved ones, children with learning tasks, and more. That is not difficult to understand; it is all a secret of encrypted information. Before the tuelinhs were incarnated as humans, they knew their duties and received information and tasks from him. Then, for their mission to be carried out properly, he used the smallest infinities of energy particles to combine to create body parts to ensure the functions of each person. In particular, in the energy particles, there is a chain of information inside. When linked, they have created a difference in function in the human body and between men and women. When the first humans performed their functions, their children would observe those actions. Those actions are all informational and will be encoded in the yin and yang energy embryos within their tuelinh. This process forms the genetic element for humans in future generations.

When it comes to encrypted information, this is the secret of the universe, people, and tuelinhs. I will share it with you in other lessons. Information is the key to opening the door to understanding everything in and out of the universe, yourself, other people, animals, and spirits.

So, today, I have taught you about the origin of our humanity. We are present in this world with a clear mission, so our responsibility is to fulfil that mission. The four commandments are the guidelines for each person to rely on and practice. Try through suffering and tribulation to understand the truth of all things and enlighten them. Only when you do that you can transform the yin and yang embryo into an energy filter. At that time, you become holy tuelinh after practising for countless lives with the toxins that defile yourself.

I will share other secrets from his four commandments and human gathering in other relevant sermons. Step by step, those secret doors help you gain the wisdom of all things, and you will have the power to transform your yin and yang embryos through the path of understanding the truth of the universe and practising enlightenment in all suffering.

Chapter Ten

Congress of Unifying the Practising Path of The Tuelinhs

The teacher entered the classroom even though it was still early and it wasn't time to lecture, but the students arrived earlier than him. He heard the sounds of their conversation interspersed with the lecture on the Congress of Humanity, which some students recorded and played back. When the class hadn't started, he was still sipping hot tea and listening to the sounds of the previous lecture. Interspersed with conversations and a last speech, he suddenly heard a young student asking everyone, "Why do tuelinhs have to transform into humans? Why do people have to tame the animals so that their souls can also incarnate as humans?" He thought that was an excellent question for a young person. And then, he decided to take those two questions as the topic and content of today's lecture.

When the class was full, he began his lecture.

"In the last lesson, you learned about the origin of people through the Congress of Humanity. You even know the mission of humans in the human world. Perhaps from the time you listened to that lecture until today, you have felt pressured because you must go through all the sufferings and tribulations in countless lives. Because you must reform the yin and yang embryo, pressure becomes an energy filter to produce super-energies. Besides those pressures, questions that need to be clarified will appear in your mind. That is obvious when you first learn the knowledge of the two truths. However, after you finish studying, you will not need to ask any questions because the understanding of everything already exists in you by the magic of the accurate information values in the knowledge of two truths.

Hey you, I just saw an informational reaction in the soul and brain of a young student in our class. It is a wonderful reaction we must have, because it will help us discover and understand everything, ourselves and the tuelinh life form. The student asked, "Why do tuelinhs have to transform into humans? Why do people have to tame the animals so that their souls can also incarnate as humans?" These two questions relate to today's lesson you are learning now. That is reacting information in the yin and yang embryo with information in the external environment. Informational reactions like this will help the intellectual nature of the tuelinh to be revealed. When the information reaction has enough pressure and compression, it will help the tuelinh to release toxins or compassion. Those are the initial successes on the human journey in the human world. And then you need to force those toxins out of your soul, and then you have to activate compassion in your soul being. That is called enlightenment.

What did God do with the Earth to create a practising environment for people? Does anybody know? "Yes, Master, God used his magic and miracles to create the Earth, the plants, and the animals. After that, the gathering of people took place." Such understanding was proper when people still needed to develop science and technology. However, at this time, when people develop in terms of science and technology, they require explanations based on science and logic. Therefore, the answer must be logical. Even though they know that science is just experiences and studies of simple matter, they can't see or study super-matter, which are souls in the human world and tuelinh life forms in the universe.

Nalas Nalanda had to see so many tuelinhs disintegrate and annihilate by the energy of destruction. His pain was when he had to watch his children's death. He tried to teach the tuelinhs to ensure safety from the destructive energy storms in the universe. He even looked for methods to help the tuelinhs to cope and not perish when they were attacked by destructive energy. But all failed. Then, he observed the life of the tuelinh life-form with his own life since his yin and yang energy embryo was formed in destructive energy. His energy embryo remained safe, growing into a giant energy sphere. After the explosion of that energy sphere occurred, he majestically appeared in the centre as a mature tuelinh. Then, he built the entire life of this universe. He re-observed all the information stored in his yin and yang embryo from when it was formed until before he created the practising environment for all tuelinhs. He saw two things that set him apart from all other tuelinhs: First, the original yin and yang particles that created his yin and yang embryo, as well as that of the universe, were from the primordial green wave-particle, while the yin and yang embryos of the tuelinhs and all things in the universe were copied and produced from his yin and yang embryos. Second, he was born in a harsh environment by the constant onslaught of destructive energy, but the process of his birth and growth was still safe; while tuelinhs are born and raised in an ideal environment, they do not face birth and death right from the birth of yin and yang embryos. Those two significant differences cause the tuelinhs to decay when moving into the space of the destructive energy or to be attacked in large numbers by the destructive energy.

In contrast, he was formed from an embryo of the most wonderful yin and yang energy in and out of the universe, from the past to the future. That shows that he is unique and the only one. His yin and yang embryo can absorb and transform destructive energy into the five energy groups that make up the universe. In particular, after practising the practising path later, he upgraded his yin and yang embryo transformation into a single energy filter to produce golden super energy.

From those differences, he found a suitable planet to research and find the best method to help tuelinhs mature, transform yin and yang embryos to produce energy superparticles and become immortal. Earth was the planet he chose to research how to save tuelinhs.

Before deciding to bring incarnations of tuelinhs as humans in the human world, he went through two stages of research. Those two stages are based on his idea of creating an environment opposite to living in paradise. It is a living environment with maximum compression and pressure, and there will be nothing but suffering. Because he thinks that by doing so, the tuelinhs will reveal all the secrets in their yin and yang embryos, thereby finding a mechanism or method to save them. If the study is successful, it will help him find and confirm the success of bringing the tuelinhs incarnate as humans.

The two research phases include:

1. Phase one, research on vegetation and tree systems:

To create a system of vegetation and trees, he used his ability to manipulate energy to agglomerate infinitely many simple energy particles to form each species in the vegetation and tree system. To enable them to survive and thrive in the early Earth environment, he created changes by energetic reactions. From there, they can live and develop until now. As he created individual units of trees or vegetation, he brought energy structures with complex intellectual wave codes to rest within them. Thus, in every plant and tree, there is a complex energy structure residing within. It combines simple and complicated matter to form a reaction that interacts and develops. That is similar to that tuelinhs are born and nourished by rare quartz crystals in heaven. The gem crystals that are simple matter have helped the super-matter that is the yin and yang embryo with the super complex intellectual wave code to mature and become a tuelinh baby.

The Earth's environment is harsh because there is day and night, heat and cold. That is the maximum compression and pressure in challenging the survival and development of trees and vegetation.

This time, the object of his research is the energy structures inside the plants, within the vegetation system, which is complex energy. He needs to know the outcome of the process by which they reacted to the harshness of the environment through their hosts, trees and vegetation.

Over a long time, trees and vegetation systems have adapted and grown continuously in harsh weather and climate. In particular, the system of complex energy particle structures residing inside has matured very quickly. They generate many energy particles and become larger and stronger structures.

From the results of the first research stage, he found that complex matter structures must live in an environment of maximum pressure and compression when residing in simple matter structures. They will grow up faster than in a pure and peaceful environment. It helped him decide to carry out a second phase of research.

2. Phase two, research on animals:

He decided to increase the compression and pressure at this stage compared to stage one. That is, he created many species of animals, from underwater to on the ground and in the air. Herbivores and carnivores. They will create a variety of information reactions for each species when it comes to survival in extreme weather, climate, and interspecies killing for survival.

To create each animal species, he still uses his unique ability to manipulate energy to create diverse animals. It is exciting and magical. He used the smallest simple particles of five energy groups to create bodies and give large-scale complex energy particle structures to reside inside each animal's body.

The object of research at this stage continues to be complex energy structures. God uses complex energy structures that exist in ancient tree trunks and rocks. He uses complex energy structures of varying degrees of maturity to reside in different types of animals. For complex energy structures that are still small and weak, he will allow them to live in the insect form, which is smaller. For complex energy structures at a more mature level, he will enable them to reside in the bodies of larger animals. Because he used many complex energy structures that differed between yin and yang particles in their yin and yang embryos, this research phase gave him various research samples and resulting evaluations. The results will be very accurate.

He creates each animal as follows: When creating each animal, he uses a group of complex energy structures, which he calls the animal's soul. He transmitted information to encode their functions and tasks so that they would function according to their functions when they incarnate as animals. Next, he used the smallest simple particles of five energy groups in cosmic space to agglomerate and integrate into each complex energy structure. As they clump together, he continues to pass information into them to encode their functions and duties. When he created each species, he would make the complete set of males, females, and their offspring. Some species will include males, females and eggs. They all have information encoded when created to develop their species according to their functions. Only the first time he created a new species, he used this method. Then, they must undergo a reproductive mechanism to grow the number of species. For example, he would make a complete rooster, mother hen, and eggs to generate chicken species. When he created them, he encoded mission information for them, and then the hen would incubate those eggs to develop chicks. The task between the rooster and the hen is to mate to create new eggs to become chicks. Note that they were all created at the same time, which is similar to how the first humans appeared. When he created each animal species, he would let them exist in a safe place where no other species would know them. As they increase in number, they will be detected by different species to create interactions between species.

After a very long period of study and observation, he succeeded brilliantly. The successes during this research phase include:

- Toxins, also known as information in the souls of animals, are released: These are animals competing for mates and food with other species. Those are animals that kill other species to survive.

- Compassion, also known as good information, in the souls of animals is revealed: These are willing to sacrifice to protect their children and herds. Those are animals that only eat grass and vegetation instead of killing other animals to survive. The animals unite to protect their flock from attack and killing by other wild animals.

- Complex energy structures – souls inside animals have matured after they have activated compassion or decay rapidly after unleashing toxins over many lifetimes in the form of animals.

From the achievements in the above two research periods, he realized that the tuelinh life form needs a living environment like the habitat of animals. Such an environment will help all tuelinhs reveal the entire nature of information within their original yin and yang embryos. Also, from the research results, he found two directions of transformation of souls in animals, including transformation in sustainability and transformation in the direction of decay. They are transformed in the direction of decomposition when toxins are released, leading to actions that harm other animals. Change is sustainable when compassion is revealed, leading efforts to help and protect other animals.

From the results of the above two stages of research, he saw the most miraculous method to help tuelinhs reveal the whole nature of the information within them. Besides, he also has a magical way to help the tuelinhs force out all the toxins and activate compassion in the yin and yang embryos for sustainable transformation, to mature and transform the yin and yang embryos into energy filters in the future energy. Then he decided to build and implement a plan to incarnate as humans for the tuelinhs in the Earthly environment. That is a plan to help tuelinhs understand themselves, thereby understanding other tuelinhs, all things in and out of the universe, including the energy of destruction - the object that disintegrates tuelinhs.

Before bringing the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans, he improved the living environment on Earth to be more suitable to help humans survive, but there was nothing but suffering. He eliminated animals dangerous to human survival when the tuelinhs incarnated as humans. After completing those tasks, he organized a congress to unify the path of practice in human form for the tuelinh life form. The congress was held in heaven.

At the congress, there were all the participating tuelinhs. They all listened attentively to Nalas Nalanda's explanation of the practising path in human form in the human world.

At that time, he sat beside a table with a large plate containing a white powder while other tuelinhs stood around him. He said, "I have created a habitable environment on a planet where I have placed complex energy structures within simple matter such as plants and animals. They survive in extreme environments in terms of climate, weather, and life and death. While observing the unfolding of the nature of the information within each yin and yang embryo of complex energy structures, I have found the ideal path to help all tuelinhs fully reveal their intellectual nature yourself and the path of sustainable transformation. The peaceful and free environment in paradise is not ideal to help you reveal your intellectual nature, so you cannot grow up, confront the destructive energy, and your destruction is inevitable. All of you need to live and study in a different environment, which is the environment where plants, trees and animals live. You will live in a simple material body and a harsh environment to fully reveal your intellectual nature, thereby learning how to eliminate toxins and activate compassion. If you do that, you will grow up and become immortal."

After a while, he said to a tuelinh standing beside him, "Bring the venomous snakes here." Then, that tuelinh brought a large plate of venomous snakes to him. Nalas Nalanda immediately dropped all the small venomous snakes into a plate of white powder. He fell a small and a big snake to the ground. The small snakes in the white dough plate had slithered into that white dough plate; no one could see them above the plate. The big snake slithered into the nearby bushes, and the small snake slithered behind. Then he asked the tuelinhs, "Has anyone seen those snakes?" Everyone answered him, "Father, we don't see them anymore."

He looked at the tuelinhs and said, "My children, the small snakes hidden deep in the dough plate represent the toxin hidden within yourself and in the other tuelinhs; it is hidden in compassion, and you don't know it; I call it you not understanding yourself and other tuelinhs. The small snake slithering into the bush is the toxin that exists in all things in the universe, and you do not understand them; I call it you do not understand all things in the universe. The big snake slithered into the bush, and you did not understand it; I call it you do not understand the energy of destruction. So, you have three things you don't understand. These three things prevent you from growing up; the energy of destruction easily disintegrates you."

After reflection, he continued, "To save all of tuelinhs and this universe, I must use the toxin to activate the poison. That is, to use the toxins of each tuelinh to activate the toxins of other tuelinhs to manifest, it is to use the toxins of all things to activate the toxins of each tuelinh to manifest. The most significant poison, the destructive energy, will reveal its true nature. When the toxins are completely released, you will understand yourself and other tuelinhs, all things, and the energy of destruction. Finally, you must practice eliminating the toxins within and activating compassion. If you want to understand those three secrets, grow up, and be immortal, you must incarnate in human form and live in an environment with nothing but suffering for many human lives in the human world. It's not easy. It was extremely arduous, and endured countless sufferings. But as a result, you will become immortal and produce new energy to help the universe become sustainable. Therefore, we need tuelinhs who vow to become the first incarnation to build humanity. Then, one after another, other tuelinhs will incarnate as humans to make a more complex and harsh practising environment.

When he finished speaking, the tuelinhs said in unison, "Father, I would like to be transformed into a human first." "It is wonderful, and I call it the great vow to be a human of the tuelinhs. That is a great vow because it saves you and all life forms in and outside the universe when you succeed on your path of practice in the human world."

Because they saw a bright future ahead, the tuelinhs became enthusiastic to pioneer incarnating as humans, and other tuelinhs waited to become humans in the future. He continued, "In the human world, I will create countless situations, countless interaction scenarios to help you unleash your full intellectual nature. Therefore, I will build four forms of life that you must live in, through which you can experience suffering and transform your yin and yang embryo. That is the form of the family, the form of society, the form of the nation, and the form of teachers and students. I will encode these four forms in the four commandments at the gathering of humanity on Earth. Prepare yourselves for the journey of human incarnation, first of all, the gathering of humanity."

Thus, the congress of the tuelinhs unified the path of human incarnation of the tuelinh that he proposed, including the tuelinh living in human form must live in four forms in life to create interactions. Those interactions are what create the toxin to activate poison. When the poison is activated, it is the tribulation and suffering that people have to go through. Through suffering in human form, tuelinhs will understand themselves and other tuelinhs, all things, and the energy of destruction. Then, the tuelinhs can force out toxins and activate kindness to transform their yin and yang embryos. That is why the tuelinhs have to live in human form and suffer countless tribulations.

On the question of why should animals be tamed so that their soul can incarnate as humans? There are two reasons: through their practice, Nalas Nalanda saw how to save the tuelinhs. All living things, including plants and animals, are born from the smallest energy particles of Nalas Nalanda's yin and yang embryo. So, they have equal rights as tuelinhs. Therefore, when the tuelinhs incarnate as humans, they must be responsible for taming them so that the energy structure within them can be transformed sustainably. When there is enough quantity and quality in the intellectual wave code system inside the yin and yang embryo, their souls will be upgraded and become tuelinhs. Then they will continue to reincarnate in human form to become more mature."

When listening to the teacher finished, everyone was happy because they understood the root cause of his teachings in gathering humanity.

Chapter Eleven

The Ignorant Wisdom

The students' attentiveness and radiant faces were still directed at the Teacher while he was sipping a cup of hot tea. Many of those students have different illnesses, and many have been experiencing suffering in life. However, their illnesses seemed shaken off, and their sufferings seemed liberated when they heard the first lectures of their teacher's knowledge. A moment of quiet, peace, and happiness occurs inside each person, where their souls are immersed in the memories of their origin, homeland, and great vows before incarnating as humans. Those souls have gone through many lifetimes of practice in human form, countless sufferings and tribulations, and the toxins released have made them forget everything about their origin and mission. And now, they have those memories back, so they are enjoying the joy within their human form. That joy made tears fall down their cheeks. Some students tried to hide their tearful emotions by covering their faces with their hands. I know that, and I am hiding tears of joy when I see souls awakened after many lifetimes of suffering along with their bodies.

The quiet moment suddenly disappeared when a student asked the Teacher, "Teacher, I don't understand why every time I listen to your lecture, my body becomes warm, hot all over the body, even sweating. While the weather is freezing." "Teacher, I feel the same way." The other students continued. The Teacher smiled and replied, "That is very good. It is an information reaction between the negative information already in your soul and the true information with value for sustainable development of tuelinh. Negative information carries negative electrical waves, and positive information carries positive ones. Negative information makes your soul and body cold and sick. When receiving positive and truthful information, your body will warm and hot after the initial reaction." Another student immediately asked the Teacher, "Teacher, are the initial reactions when listening to your lectures include drowsiness, headaches, nausea, itching all over the body, and even sharp pain in the bones?" "That's right. Those strong reactions are due to the soul containing too much toxic information and negative energy particles. Therefore, strong reactions will occur when positive energy from true information moves into your soul. After that process, your body will become warm and hot. When your body becomes warm and hot, your soul has been balanced by positive information. That is the first principle for healing your illnesses, including mental and physical illness."

"Teacher, it's amazing. In previous classes, I saw my body burning hot and sweating. But I thought this phenomenon occurred because the class was crowded. But when I played back the Teacher's lectures that I had recorded to listen to at home, my body went from cold to warm and hot, even though it was freezing inside and outside the house. It's amazing." "So, you are realizing the information reaction mechanism between information in the outside environment and information already in your soul. When they react with each other, they will create manifestations, and you will notice that."

Perhaps because they know he likes to drink hot tea, his students always bring new cups to his table. Indeed, when he drinks tea, it helps him concentrate and connect closely with the memories and wisdom in his tuelinh. After the Teacher chatted with his students and sipped a cup of hot tea, he continued his lecture.

"Hey friends, after the great gathering of humanity, one after another, the *tuelinh*s were incarnated into humans through the reproductive mechanism between men and women. Groups of people at each gathering point became crowded and increased rapidly in number over many generations. Those people have immersed themselves in survival in the human world. They no longer remember his four commandments. However, his teachings were encoded into their lives right from the time of the first humans on Earth. They married their children to each other, so they became new families. They gave birth to children, and that has continued until now. They have tamed many wild animals to become good animals, which continues to this day. Countless souls of animals have been incarnated into humans after being upgraded into tuelinh structures. They live in all the interactions from the four forms of life, which create informational reactions and reveal their intellectual nature. People have been searching for enlightenment in suffering; as a result, one of them has become fully enlightened, and countless people are enlightened. From small groups of people living separately, they developed into large groups to become tribes and nations like today. When groups of people know about each other, countless interactions occur, making the human practice environment complex. These things have helped the Earth become an ideal living environment to help tuelinhs incarnate as humans with complete interaction scenarios to understand their nature.

From the practice process of the tuelinhs in the human world, from the practice lives of the tuelinh Nalas Nalanda, he understood all the nature of wisdom within each tuelinh, each person, and all things in the universe and even destructive energy. His knowledge is immeasurable, and I cannot fully describe his wisdom. However, I will try to talk about him until I complete this human life.

In today's speech, I will talk about the ignorance of wisdom.

To thoroughly understand the ignorance of wisdom, you need to define and explain what wisdom is. What is ignorance? To help you easily understand and fully understand, I will use the basic knowledge of the smallest energy particle to explain it to you. Once you have become acquainted with and understand the smallest energy particle more, I will analyze the knowledge of the two truths in the smallest energy particle. Then, you will thoroughly understand the knowledge of these two noble truths. That means it's not like I haven't taught you about the knowledge of the two truths. I have been preaching about the two truths since the first lesson, and what I said and preached is the knowledge of the two truths. Remember, this knowledge is not easy to understand or practice correctly. Therefore, I have been converting them into the simplest lectures for you to understand. After that, you will learn about it at a more challenging level, and the practice level will be more difficult. When listening and learning the knowledge of the two truths, you concentrate and receive information in a relaxed mood. It will help you understand more easily.

What is wisdom? That is the first thing you must understand adequately about it. You can understand it in the following ways:

- Intelligence is the quantity and quality of information. Information is everything, events, phenomena, people, tuelinh, animals, images, sounds, language, emotions, thoughts, ideologies, and interactive actions.

- Or it can be understood that wisdom understands all things, events, phenomena, and the worldview of each tuelinh, human, animal, and all things. Understanding encompasses the inside and outside of each subject.

What is ignorance? It is not understanding or misunderstanding the truth of information in all things, events, phenomena, tuelinh, people, and animals.

Therefore, the ignorance of wisdom can be understood as follows:

- It is not understanding the information within oneself and all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe.

- It is the retention of quantity and quality of false information within oneself.

Intelligence is information stored in the intellectual wave code of the smallest energy particle. When an energy particle is produced, inside it holds the entire image of the interactive environment, sounds, language, emotions, thoughts, and actions of the subject that created that energy particle interacted and ended with action. Therefore, the energy particle is intelligence. From the smallest energy particles, they connect to form larger physical structures, creating all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. The process of existence and interaction of all things, events, phenomena, intelligence, people, and animals will reveal the wisdom of ignorance and enlightenment. Ignorant wisdom is not understanding or misunderstanding the true nature of information from the smallest particle of energy to all things, events, phenomena, and oneself. I am talking about combining the basic knowledge of the smallest energy particle with the knowledge of the two truths. Please receive and listen or read many times to understand. Because when you know it, the secret pieces about yourself and everything will be easily decoded in the following lessons.

Because humans are formed from a simple body and inner tuelinh, when talking about the wisdom of ignorance, I will analyze it, including the wisdom of ignorance of the tuelinh when not incarnated as a human; and the ignorant wisdom of the tuelinh when residing in human form is called the ignorant wisdom of humans.

1. The ignorant wisdom of the tuelinhs.

The ignorance of the tuelinh when not incarnating as a human means not understanding itself and other tuelinhs, not understanding all things in the universe, and not understanding the energy of destruction. Understanding failure is failure to understand the nature of information. Because they do not understand, they sink into suffering and are disintegrated by the energy of destruction.

2. The ignorant wisdom of the humans

The ignorant wisdom of humans includes the ignorant wisdom of tuelinh. Because the tuelinh resides in the human body, humans inherit the tuelinh's ignorance.

Because humans are composed of three elements: body, tuelinh and wisdom, and because they live in the practising environment of the human world; Therefore, human ignorance is revealed in manifestations that each person can perceive. Those manifestations result from the interaction and information reaction process between each person's external and internal environments. It can also be understood in another way. It results from the interaction process in four forms of human life: family form, social form, national form, and teacher-student form.

Through the journey of practice in many human generations, many lifetimes of each tuelinh, the information containing toxins - the wisdom of ignorance, has been revealed in countless manifestations. All of them are gathered into ten expressions of human ignorance: ignorance because of possession and non-possession; success in wishing and failure in wishing; love and hatred; possession of wisdom and non-possession of wisdom; action and inaction. The ten manifestations of the wisdom of ignorance are grouped into five pairs of categories, and they are toxins that are fully revealed in the root yin and yang embryo of each tuelinh.

Discussing ten manifestations of ignorant wisdom:

- The ignorant wisdom about possession. That is a group of ignorant wisdom because we do not understand ourselves: we do not understand the three elements that make up a human being: body, soul, and intellectual; the mission and origin of the soul; and the essence of the soul. Not understanding others is like not understanding yourself. Not understanding all things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe means not understanding the life forms, the purpose of their human incarnation, their nature and suffering, and not understanding the nature of the energy groups that make up the universe and the destructive energy. From that ignorance, the human mind is clung, bound to the forms of ownership that people have. At that time, people will not see the truth of life, the meaning of life, the nature of information, their toxins, the toxins of people and all things. They only know how to cling and be tied to the things they have to satisfy them. That leads to a person's life passing very quickly with satisfaction in the things people possess. They are unaware of the toxins in their souls; they are unaware of the hidden goodness and cannot activate them. They become people who do not help others, animals, and everything from that ignorance. They become even more cruel and cruel when they harm other people, animals and things to protect their possessions. We can see: there are girls who, because of ignorance about their beauty, take advantage of it to engage in prostitution, destroying the happiness of other families; There are people who have a lot of money and possessions, they indulge in enjoyment and debauchery, even satisfying dirty pleasures such as adultery or having many girls or boys other than their spouses; Some people, because they have positions and power, pass policies that benefit their interest groups without caring about people's lives; There are national leaders who see themselves as powerful nations, so they suppress the military and economy of other countries, and even invade to weaken other nations in order to protect their strength; There are sick people who think that they are sick so their relatives have to take care of them, they become angry and make their relatives suffer; On the contrary, there are people who, when their loved ones are sick, do not care about the ill person, and even scold and trample on the sick person. There are also countless manifestations of human ignorance in their lives.

- The ignorant wisdom about non-possession. That is another group of human ignorance, which is the opposite of possession. However, this ignorant wisdom also manifests the three things that each person does not understand: not understanding oneself and others, not understanding all things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe, and not understanding the energy of destruction. From there, people cling, become confused, and are bound to forms others possess that they do not have. The toxicity of this type of ignorance results from an exciting reaction process between the external environment and the internal environment. The external environment is the form that other people possess. The internal environment is the lack of specific forms that other people have. The process of information reaction between two environments leads to comparison in ignorance, and the result is the creation of ignorant wisdom because of non-possession. The result of this ignorant wisdom is that the nature of the information in the yin and yang embryo is released in combination with external toxic information containing toxins. We can see: there are beautiful girls, because they don't have wealth, while they see other girls, other people have wealth, so they use their bodies to become rich like prostitution, becoming the lover of a married person; There are rich people, they see other wealthy people have many beautiful girls by their side, so they also look for girls who are willing to become their mistresses for money, this leads to a decline in values morality and family happiness; There are poor people, they see others are rich, they also want to become rich, so they are willing to do illegal things to become rich; There are people with power and position who do not have wealth, so they accept bribes to sell their positions to others; There are people of low status, they see wealth and power in high positions, they immediately use money to buy titles; There are leaders of countries, they see that their country is poor in resources, they send troops to invade other countries to appropriate resources, resulting in countless deaths.

- The ignorant wisdom about success in wishing. That is also a product of needing to understand the three things every human being and the tuelinh faces. This group of ignorance is revealed and is a poison in the yin and yang embryo of each soul in the human body. It is a product of ignorance because of the lack of certain forms in life. When people do not possess what others have, they will become desperate to get it without their ability. It is the desire to have possession. Then, they will use every method to get it. It can be achieved through physical forms such as money, political power, sex and beauty, and threats. It can be through praying to God, Buddha, or the gods of their country. When they achieve that possession, they become ignorant and think they are truly talented and intelligent because they know how to get what they desire. At that time, they became increasingly clung, confused, and bound to different groups of ignorant wisdom. We can see that there are young couples who, for some reason, cannot have children, just because of the desire to have children, the husband's parents or one of the couple asks them to divorce to get married to other people and giving birth; Some people, because they want to be promoted to mandarins by using money to buy position, become arrogant and cause many consequences to the people because they do not have the qualities and ethics of an official; There are people who commit many crimes against animals and other people, but because of their religious views, they pray to heaven to be baptized, and as a result, they think they have God's forgiveness from God or Buddha. When they have achieved what they wished for, they will again be bound to the group of ignorance of possession. Besides, they will activate the poison of ignorance in having wisdom, loving and acting.

- The ignorant wisdom about the failure in wishing. This group of ignorance results from ignorance about not having a particular form. When people have used every method to hope for something, they are unable to do, and they fail. Then, poison is released from their souls, the ignorance of the failure in wishing. Those who do not achieve what they desire will become hateful towards the people whose help they hope to receive. Then, another type of ignorance is revealed: the ignorance of hatred. Some people resent and curse even God, Buddha, and other gods because they have offered many offerings to hope for something but have not been satisfied. Not only are different groups of ignorance revealed, but those people are also bound to the toxin of non-possession. This group of factors is also born from ignorance of the three things, like the above groups of ignorance.

- The ignorant wisdom about love. People develop another toxic love group from not understanding the three things and from ignorance of possession or non-possession. When everyone hears about love, they think it is good. However, we do not understand three things: about ourselves and others, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction. Therefore, people are immersed in love without recognizing their toxins when they arise, nor can they force them out and activate kindness. Immersion in love makes people miss their human lives to practice squeezing toxins and activating goodness. We can see some people are engrossed in loving and taking care of their own family but do not devote their time and intelligence to helping others; Some people control the person they love because of love between men and women; Some people are willing to kill others to protect the people they love; Some people are jealous and kill the person they love. That is love in ignorance because it does not bring good values to others, the family, the person you love, all things and all species. Once exposed and immersed in the poison of love, people will sink into the poison of resentment and the ignorance of possession and non-possession.

- The ignorant wisdom about resentment and hatred. Things you don't like about someone. Prejudices about other races, ethnicities, or religions. Resentments because someone makes you suffer. The animosity between people is because of the wars they cause. These toxins have been released in each soul's yin and yang embryo in the human body. That ignorance originates from the ignorance of the tuelinh, and it only breaks out when the tuelinh abides in a human body to practice in the human world. This ignorance group makes it impossible for the people releasing the toxins to realize that they are ignorant. It is similar to other groups of ignorance. As a result, it causes other groups of toxins to be revealed, and people are immersed in different groups of ignorance, such as ignorance of not having or failing in wishing.

- The ignorant wisdom about the possession of wisdom. That is a group of toxins deeply embedded in the negative intellectual wave code of the original yin and yang embryo in the tuelinh. It only fully manifests when people interact as teachers and students. In addition, it is common in all human interactions when it involves sharing and transmitting information. When this type of toxin breaks out, people will become ignorant when they think they are more intelligent than others because they have high degrees, are rich, and have status. They become arrogant, look down on others, and even hurt people. There are people with positions in the education sector who think they are more intelligent than others and promulgate policies that cause people and students to suffer. Some people think they understand religion, believe they are talented, and preach what they know without understanding the truth of that knowledge. Some people believe that they are more qualified than other students and even more capable than their teachers, and as a result, they are arrogant and insult teachers and classmates. Some people think they have status and talent, so they don't talk to lower-class people. From this group of ignorance, people will sink into the poison of having intellect, love and hatred.

- The ignorant wisdom about the non-possession of wisdom. The subjects of this toxic group outbreak are people who are not fully educated, the poor, and people in low social classes. Because they do not understand the three things like other groups of ignorance, they easily explode and become immersed in this group of ignorance. They feel apprehensive when communicating with wealthy and prestigious people. They are apprehensive and can endure humiliation and being trampled on by others. They can accept being enslaved and oppressed because of the ignorance they have. As a result, they have no motivation in life to cultivate intelligence to understand the worldview around them and the larger world. They even accept that their lives pass in waste and humiliation. They may be immersed in other ignorant groups, such as non-possession, failure in wishing, hatred and resentment.

- The ignorant wisdom about action. This ignorance group results from ignorance such as possessing, not having, loving, resenting and hating, having knowledge, not having wisdom, success in wishing, and failure in wishing. When the poison of any of the above groups of ignorant wisdom erupts in their soul, they will emit the toxins of action. These are actions to satisfy themselves with the forms in life, while they do not help, and even cause harm to other people, animals, all things and other tuelinhs. This ignorance group is also the product of needing to understand the three things like other ignorance groups.

- The ignorant wisdom about inaction. This ignorance group also originates from the lack of understanding of the three things and is also the product of other groups of toxins that have been breaking out. When different groups of ignorance break out, people will not take action to help others, all things, animals and other intelligent beings because of their selfishness and satisfaction.

Hey you. The ten groups of ignorance are toxins in the yin and yang embryo and the entire energy structure system of the tuelinh. The root reason that people have these ten groups of ignorance is that each person and their soul do not understand themselves and others; they do not understand all things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe; they do not understand the energy of destruction. Because people need to understand the above three things, they do not understand their origin and their tuelinh's mission in the human world. As a result, they are immersed in toxins unleashed to satisfy forms in all life interactions.

You should be happy because you have ignorance and have been immersed in ignorance. "Teacher, why do you tell us to be happy when immersed in ignorance?" A student interrupted the teacher. "Hey friend, don't tuelinhs incarnate into humans to have countless interactions from the four forms in life? It will help them release all the toxins. Those toxins are ignorance. Thus, the first goal of the path of practice in the human world has been completed. Isn't achieving the goal something to be happy about?" "So, what everyone will do next, teacher?" "Study and carefully recognize the toxins in the ten ignorance groups above. Then, control and destroy them. Next, learn to recognize the groups of enlightened wisdom and practice according to them. Learning and practicing according to enlightened wisdom groups is the best solution to eliminate toxins in the tuelinh, and help the tuelinh produce sustainable energy particles so that the tuelinh can mature and become a fully enlightened being." "Teacher, if we share the knowledge of the two truths and the wisdom of ignorance with others. Because they are immersed in life, they don't believe or listen, so what should I do? "You have done your job well, which is to practice spreading the value of true information to everyone to awaken them. However, when they do not believe or listen, let them experience what they must go through fully and completely. They awaken only when they experience suffering due to the effects of toxins. When they awaken, they will remember the information you shared with them. Then they will practice controlling toxins and activating kindness."

Chapter Twelve

The Enlightened Wisdom

"The opposite of ignorant wisdom is enlightened wisdom. Just like the wisdom of ignorance, to understand the wisdom of enlightenment, the tuelinhs must go through all interactive scenarios in human life. That interactive process will help activate the essence of information within the original yin and yang energy embryo. The nature of the information of the original positive particle is positive information, true information that demonstrates the ability to promote solidarity, spread, and sustainable development for ourselves and all things. It is the solution to control and remove the toxins of negative particles." "Teacher, it is challenging for people to recognize and understand the wisdom of ignorance as well as the wisdom of enlightenment. People have no standards to judge which information is ignorant and which is enlightened. People always follow the crowd mentality, traditional views passed down from previous generations, and the ideologies within each religion they follow. I hope you will show everyone the standard between the wisdom of ignorance and the wisdom of enlightenment, which brings invaluable benefits to humans."

"Hey, you. Your question is right. It is the question of many people. Different religions and philosophical views give their views and think they are the best for everyone to learn and practice. Besides, they try to refute other points of view. But the opinions they all give have no exact standards or references. That makes people confused with those views. However, knowledge of the two truths completely differs from other religious and philosophical views. The knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle is the standard, the exact reference for each person, each tuelinh to understand the truth of themselves and other people, all things and phenomena in the universe, and destructive energy. That is why the two truths appeared in the human world in this second great unification of humanity, and that is also why I am present in the human world. When you and everyone else learn all the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle, everyone will fully understand, not simply the wisdom of ignorance or enlightenment." "Teacher, thank you. I will study to understand the knowledge you are teaching fully."

The class was interrupted by a student's question for a few minutes. Afterwards, the teacher sat beside the table and sipped tea. Perhaps the hot tea got cold because he focused on imparting knowledge about the wisdom of ignorance for most of the class time. To complete the lecture on enlightenment wisdom during the class, the teacher stood up and continued to lecture.

"About the wisdom of ignorance, you already understand. Now is the time to understand the other side of knowledge, the wisdom of enlightenment.

What is enlightened wisdom? Intellectually, you already understand. So, what is enlightened wisdom? - Is understanding the truth of information in all things, events, phenomena, intelligence, people, animals, and the most comprehensive destructive energy. The next is controlling, forcing out harmful information, and activating positive information into positive actions.

When we talk about enlightened wisdom, we have to talk about people. Because Nalas Nalanda created humans and the human world to become a practice environment for the tuelinh life form. When tuelinhs live in heaven, because of the peaceful, pure, and magical living environment, they cannot understand themselves and other tuelinhs, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction. In other words, they live in ignorance. Only the first tuelinh has the most transcendent wisdom in the universe, but he is not yet an enlightened being. He only indeed became fully enlightened when he went through many lifetimes of practice in human form in the human world. The human form is not only a miracle for him, but also for all tuelinh life forms. Therefore, the enlightened wisdom of the tuelinh must pass through the human form to become fully enlightened.

Through the four forms in human life to create countless interaction scenarios, the tuelinhs residing in human form will reveal all of their informational nature. These are information containing toxins - the wisdom of ignorance and knowledge genuine for sustainable development - the understanding of enlightenment.

Through many generations of people, through countless lifetimes of practice in human form, and precious interactions, the manifestations of the nature of truth information in tuelinh are fully revealed. Negative information has been revealed, and information for sustainable development has been activated. That is enlightened wisdom. When we connect the knowledge of enlightened wisdom to understanding the smallest energy particle, we will see that positive information creates a sustainable transformation mechanism for all tuelinhs and all things in and outside the universe. On the contrary, ignorant wisdom establishes a mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction. Enlightened wisdom has countless manifestations in all interactive scenarios of human life. Those manifestations include ten groups: enlightened wisdom on possession and non-possession; love, hate and resentment; success in wishing and failure in wishing; having wisdom and not having wisdom; action and inaction. Ten groups of manifestations are grouped into five pairs of categories of expressions of enlightened wisdom. These are the manifestations of kindness in each soul, the tuelinh within the human being, which is released to the outside to create a sustainable transformation mechanism for that tuelinh itself, other tuelinhs, and all things inside and outside the universe.

Discussing ten manifestations of enlightened wisdom:

- The enlightened wisdom about possession. That is a group of expressions of enlightenment when people understand the truth of information of three things: understanding oneself and others understanding that humans are formed from three elements: body, soul, intellect; the soul inside the body; the root the origin of man; the mission of life; the cause and nature of the tuelinh incarnation of the human form. Understand all things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe. Understand the energy of destruction. When people understand the nature of harmful information and positive information within each subject and everyone's environment, they will practice it in human life. It is the practice of controlling, forcing out all ignorance in the soul, and constantly learning and activating all compassion. Through the manifestations of action in the interactions of the four life forms, each person will see images of their own and others' enlightenment. When people have understood everything, they know that the human body and the things they own are just tools for them to practice eliminating toxins and activating the compassion in their souls. Therefore, instead of indulging in the things they own for enjoyment and debauchery, they use them to activate the goodness within them. That is, they help and save people and animals, and they build sustainable development for all things with everything they have without the benefit of their bodies. Some rich people use their money to build schools, bridges, roads, and hospitals for poor neighbourhoods. There are people with positions where they do not embezzle or corrupt; instead, they work diligently and promulgate policies that benefit the people and the country. Some people in good health participate in activities to support and help others. Some people have beauty and fame and live according to humanistic moral values, taking advantage of their popularity to call for help from everyone, the poor and the sick. Some leaders of rich countries use their power to help poor countries and countries with natural disasters or disasters and many other cases. When this group of enlightened wisdom is activated, all other groups of enlightened wisdom are easily triggered.

- The enlightened wisdom about non-possession. That is the group of manifestations of enlightenment when people understand the truth of the three things, like the group of enlightened wisdom on possession. When people understand it all, they know that living in the human body and the human world is to have countless interaction scenarios. Then, they must identify the poison and goodness within themselves. Finally, they learn how to control and eliminate toxins and activate all the goodness in their soul. Therefore, when they do not possess the forms or things that others have, they understand that these are situations to help them understand the truth of information in their souls. At that time, they will not be bound by craving for things they do not have; instead, they cultivate knowledge with education and life experience, building their lives and careers with diligence and kindness. They constantly strive to develop their lives and help others, animals and all things towards sustainable development. We can see some people are not rich; they see others who are rich by doing illegal things and decide not to follow them. Instead, they work honestly and are willing to help others with their kind intelligence. Some people do not have high positions; they do not use money to get promoted; instead, they are dedicated to doing their job well and constantly studying to improve their intelligence and the qualities of officials to help people. Some people have beauty but little money; they do not lose their dignity because of wealth; they live and propagate moral qualities to everyone. Some leaders of countries do not have natural resources; they do not wage wars and invade other countries for appropriate resources; instead, they develop their different strengths to solve the problem of resource shortage. By activating this group of enlightened intelligence, people will easily activate other groups of enlightened intelligence.

- The enlightened wisdom about love. When this group of enlightened wisdom is manifested, it results from people understanding three things that every person living in the human world must know on their practising journey. From that understanding, each person understands that all interaction scenarios in life are for the information values in their soul to be fully revealed, including harmful information and information that is sustainable development. At that time, they must control and suppress dangerous information, learn how, and practice activating the enlightened intellect within them. Therefore, the group that exhibits enlightened wisdom about love always give genuine love to their loved ones. Besides, they dedicate their time, intelligence, and possessions to help or save other people, animals, and everything. It balances true love and sustainable development for themselves and others. We can see some spouses who are faithful, taking good care of their families, and still participating in activities to help others in need. There are couples of men and women who love each other; they help each other understand and balance love and practice enlightened wisdom towards those in difficulty or suffering. Some people understand the truth and build true love for a happy family. Some people understand enlightened wisdom; they do not control the person they love. Some parents understand so they do not force their children to study under pressure; instead, they help their children understand the truth to grow up in joy and worldview discovery. Some leaders love their people and humans; they help their country thrive so that other countries do not invade them and do not invade other countries. Different groups of enlightened wisdom are also activated from the manifestations of enlightened wisdom of this group.

- The enlightened wisdom about hatred and resentment. Because people understand the truth information of the three things, they quickly activate the enlightened wisdom on hatred and resentment. They know that all interaction scenarios, including their hatred towards someone and from that someone towards them, are all for them to understand their toxicity, kindness, and others. They then control and force out the toxins within themselves by eliminating their hatred and resentment. Next, activate their compassion towards all people, animals, and everything. We can see some couples resent each other, but after understanding, they heal, build love, and help others. There are people who, when they understand, let go of their hatred to help each other have a better life. There are people with racist ideologies and behaviours, and when understood, they become people who oppose that prejudice and build solidarity between people. Some people fear and hate venomous animals, but because of their understanding, they do not kill them and even help them stay safe when they are in danger.

- The enlightened wisdom about having wisdom. This group of enlightened wisdom is difficult to understand and control toxins and activate goodness. However, once one understands the three things that each person must understand, it is not difficult to trigger enlightenment in each person. At that time, people who thought they were more intellectual than people in the human world because of their academic degrees, degrees, high social status, and wealth found that their intelligence was bound and misunderstood. Next, they destroy their arrogant nature, open their minds to learn enlightened wisdom, and activate their compassion. They are willing to help, share their enlightened wisdom with others, and share life experiences and practical knowledge to help others understand and improve their lives. We can see people with high status, wealth, and degrees; when enlightened, they are not arrogant; instead, they always help and share their practical knowledge and enlightenment with others. When enlightened, religious people help people solve life's difficulties with enlightened understanding, not worship or deceive them. People with political status develop policies that help people and countries live in peace and prosperity. Those with enlightened wisdom enthusiastically share it with those still ignorant and suffering.

- The enlightened wisdom about non-possession of intellect. When people understand that the environment in the human world creates all interaction scenarios, including the scenario in which they were born and raised with a lack of knowledge, they will activate enlightened wisdom. Because of understanding the three things, everyone understands that no matter their situation, they must learn to understand themselves and all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, they do not feel apprehensive because of their low education level, because they were born in a typical class, or are poor. Instead, they constantly strive to study and diligently practice eliminating toxins and activating kindness in their soul. That diligence and perseverance help them become enlightened people, succeed in life, and continue to share valuable knowledge with others.

- The enlightened wisdom about success and failure in wishing. When people understand the three things that every tuelinh and human is searching for, they become peaceful and no longer suffer. Even though they do not possess the forms others have, they know how to let go of their desires when they cannot achieve them. They know how to let go of desires contrary to moral values and kindness. They understand interaction scenarios; what they need is for them to realize their nature. Therefore, when they know, they practice controlling and forcing out the toxins and activating the compassion within them. They become people who study and work honestly according to their abilities. Because they have become enlightened about this group, they become someone who shares the truth with others and helps them become enlightened. We can see when people understand; they do not ask God, Buddha, or the gods of their country to grant what they desire, instead they diligently do good deeds and do not do evil. Even though many couples do not have children, they love each other and live together forever when they understand. Those who seek the path of enlightenment, when they know it, practice the knowledge of enlightenment in life; they do not seek supernatural powers or miracles from the invisible world. Poor people, when they understand, they work honestly with effort, study and diligence. People of low status in politics, when they know they work enthusiastically and constantly study to develop their careers, do not use money to advance.

- The enlightened wisdom about action. This group of enlightened wisdom results from understanding all the accurate information of the three things. It is also the result of the enlightened wisdom entering the other groups of enlightened wisdom. At that time, each person will practice actions that force out the toxins within them, helping everyone, all things, and animals. They always know how to practice activating goodness within themselves to help themselves and other entities develop more sustainably. They always use each scenario they interact with to practice enlightened wisdom. It is helping others understand as they understand and helping each other practice bringing good values to people, animals and all things.

- The enlightened wisdom about inaction. As a result of understanding the three things and gaining enlightened intellect in the groups of enlightened knowledge such as possession, non-possession, love, resentment and hatred, success and failure in wishing, having wisdom and without wisdom, everyone will gain enlightenment about inaction. That is not taking action that causes harm to yourself, to others, to animals, and all things. That is the practice of forcing out toxins in the human soul.

Hey friends, the truth about the nature of information in intelligence and humans, the manifestations of the wisdom of ignorance and enlightenment, is not something I deduced and seduced you and everyone else to practice. All that knowledge is the nature of information, the operating mechanism of the smallest energy particle. The tuelinh in me has gone through many lifetimes of practice in the human world, observing the movements of all things, tuelinhs and people, thereby exposing the truth of everything. As I said, the wisdom of ignorance creates the mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction, and the understanding of enlightenment establishes the mechanism of sustainable change. That is the knowledge of the smallest energy particles that make up tuelinhs, people, and all things in and outside the universe. Therefore, it is the standard, the most reliable and accurate reference for all tuelinhs and humans to learn and practice.

The manifestations of the ignorant wisdom and enlightened wisdom of humans and tuelinhs are based on the results of understanding the knowledge of the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment. These two truths help humans and tuelinhs understand the truth of the three things through the smallest energy particle. That factual information is comprehensive and complete for everyone to study, comprehend, and practice to eliminate toxins and activate goodness within themselves. That is the most miraculous knowledge, the most wonderful path to help each tuelinh and human transform their yin and yang embryo into a perfect energy filter."

His class ended long ago, but he still sat and rested in class with the people who always accompanied him. After a day of continuously lecturing for many hours, plus drinking a lot of tea, his body was probably tired. The body feels tired because the teacher always stands to see all the students when teaching. It can be seen that the body is a great tool that Nalas Nalanda possesses. Also, a demonstration of enlightenment in possession, he used his body as a tool to share the knowledge of complete enlightenment with everyone and humanity. After many hours of rest, it was almost midnight outside, and he began to return home, where his family and children were.

Chapter Thirteen

The State of Ignorant Soul

He had an extraordinary class, one day a week, and six hours of lectures. The course lasted for seven months. Learners are of different ages, male and female, from under ten to over sixty years old; children are school-age, and adults have different jobs. Most of them were people with diseases that current medicine cannot cure, such as depression, schizophrenia, hallucinations, cancer, and many other diseases. The teacher's students come from all over the country; some have to take a plane the day before, some drive at night, and some rent a house near the classroom to get to class on time. Some people are seriously ill and have to have family members take them to class and study with them. All of them, whether far away or near the classroom, are nervous and wait until the weekend to go to class. Because when they immerse themselves in the classroom atmosphere, and the teacher's lectures, all suffering, all afflictions, and the pain of illness are dissipated. They can live in the warm lessons from the teacher. They feel close to the images and teachings and silently guide people to practice in the human world of the first tuelinh through his teachings. Students consider the classroom as their second home. Therefore, they always come to class early before the teacher arrives. They want to have more time to chat with classmates and the teacher. These can be exciting or magical experiences in which they apply the knowledge of two truths to solve during their learning process. Those may be the difficulties they have been facing. And they need encouragement and solutions from classmates or the teacher.

There is one thing that students cannot imagine: their teacher is just like them. He considers the classroom his second home. He wished each week would pass quickly so he could meet them again. He meticulously recorded information about the patient's illness and recovery process and continuously asked about them every week. Later, when the class ended, the brilliant result was that patients were cured just by receiving factual information from his lectures. He has announced the results; some people with late-stage metastatic cancer have recovered because they followed his instructions and did not use drugs or hospital treatment. People with mental illnesses have entirely recovered. However, he was sad because some of his students did not follow his instructions. They still doubted his knowledge and continued to treat their illnesses according to the hospital's prescriptions, so they did not recover. Two cancer patients died the following year because they gave up studying and continued treatment at the hospital. Some severe mental health patients have not recovered because they still take medicine under the pressure of their family members. He declared these patients' failures and gave reasons on the last day of class. The rest is a successful outcome for all patients with faith, perseverance and relatives to accompany them in the learning process, even though many have severe mental illnesses.

I was so engrossed and distracted by the memory of the last lesson of that class that I forgot what I wanted to say about him. He has had many courses lasting for many months over the years. Therefore, I join memories together and lectures so that readers can easily understand the value of knowledge of the two truths and the achievements that knowledge brings to everyone. Learning not only helps people understand the truth but also helps people have the most miraculous method to liberate suffering, especially by creating a new and highly miraculous healing method. It is a method of transmitting information about the truth of all things in the universe to heal diseases of the soul and the body. I want to say that he also comes to class very early and comes home late because he wants to spend time chatting and solving learners' problems. It isn't easy to describe his feelings about his students. I noticed that he constantly strives to find new ways to transform the knowledge of the two truths so that they are the most powerful, most effective, and easiest to understand for learners and patients to overcome suffering and illness. He even left his homeland and went to other countries to explore and find inspiration for transforming knowledge and spreading it to humanity.

A week passed very quickly after he finished his lecture on the wisdom of ignorance and enlightenment. As usual, he arrived at a class very early, but the students arrived earlier than him. It could be seen that the joy and anticipation were mixed, making the classroom atmosphere more magical than ever. When he lectured, that same deep voice was used when he asked everyone about their reactions the week after completing the intellectual lesson. The sharing from the students and his explanations and encouragement have helped everyone increasingly understand the knowledge of the two noble truths.

"When we have understood the wisdom of ignorance and the wisdom of enlightenment of tuelinh and humans. That is the fact that we have achieved the goal that each person has pursued and sought for countless lifetimes of practice in this human world. It is a great achievement when each tuelinh has had to go through countless interaction scenarios in the human body's suffering. Think about your soul and say, "Hey, tuelinh, I congratulate you on your great achievement in knowing the truth about yourself, people, other tuelinhs, all things. Be cheerful, be energetic. You can rest assured that your body and brain's intellect will always accompany you and help you transform the yin and yang embryos." Say it more than once. It is your encouragement to your soul after many lifetimes of being lost and forgetting my memories. The truth information from the previous lectures is the root cause of all the suffering and illness that you have been experiencing. When we understand the nature of everything, we will easily recognize and understand all reactions and expressions of ourselves, others, all things, and phenomena in life and the universe.

Today, I will analyze for you to understand the state of the soul. That is the state of the tuelinh within us.

First, we need to learn about the state of ignorance.

The tuelinh, when residing in the human body, is called the mind or the soul.

The state of the ignorant mind is a negative energy state generated from the wisdom wave code system in the yin and yang root embryo and the entire tuelinh structure. The negative energy state is the energy state of the negative energy particle system that vibrates out of control. That leads to the negative energy particle system that governs and controls the entire energy structure in the tuelinh.

The origin of the state of ignorance is the fact that people possess the wisdom of ignorance. People have the wisdom of ignorance because the tuelinh inside also contains the intellect of ignorance. The intelligence of ignorance is the root and the solid foundation to create and develop the state of ignorance of the mind. Therefore, the state of ignorance of the mind always breaks out from a mild level to a super strong level.

The state of ignorance of the mind includes three levels: the state of clinging mind, the state of furious mind, and the state of hatred. These states are also states where toxins in the mind are released.

1. The state of clinging mind

The clinging mind is the solid foundation, the deep root of ignorance. From a clinging soul, people quickly become angry or hateful.

The clinging mind is the product and crystallization of ignorant wisdom. Therefore, when talking about the clinging soul, we are talking about five pairs of categories of ignorant intellect. It includes the mind that clings to possession, non-possession, love, hatred and resentment, wisdom, not having intelligence, success in wishing, failure in wishing, action, and inaction. Therefore, when the mind clings, it creates oppression and binding of body, mind, and intellect to the ten forms of ignorant wisdom.

- The mind clings to possession. Because the soul is ignorant and does not understand the truth of three things: it does not understand itself and others. It is not understanding all things, events, and phenomena in the universe and not understanding the energy of destruction. Furthermore, humans do not know the two illuminating truths. Therefore, it causes the soul within to be attached and bound to the forms that its body possesses. It becomes selfish and does not want to share or help anyone with what it owns. It immerses and enjoys those things. It will become furious or have hatred for someone if they damage or take away what it has.

- The mind clings to non-possession. Because the intellect is ignorant of the three things and is not enlightened by the knowledge of the two truths, it causes the soul within to be bound to something it does not possess while others possess it. That makes it desirable to get them. It controls its body and does everything it can to have what it wants, even if it causes harm to everyone and everything. It will become furious and hateful of anyone who hinders or makes it unsatisfied.

- The mind clings to love. Because there is no wisdom of knowledge of the two truths and because of the wisdom of ignorance in not understanding the three things. Therefore, the soul inside humans is bound and clings to love. It is willing to do anything to harm everyone or the person it loves to satisfy its love in ignorance. It controls its body and clings tightly to the people and things it loves without understanding the truth to practice, forcing out toxins within itself and activating goodness to help people and those it loves. Next, it quickly becomes angry or hateful if someone hurts its love.

- The mind clings to hatred and resentment. Because the soul is ignorant and not enlightened by the two truths, it is bound and attached to the things and other people it hates and resents, even those who hate or resent it. It controls the body and acts to cause harm to those it hates and resents or those who hate and resent it. It quickly becomes angry and hateful when people feed into its hate and resentment.

- The mind clings to having wisdom. Wisdom is ignorant and does not believe in knowledge of the two truths. That leads the soul within to become arrogant to the wisdom it possesses. It is arrogant and looks down on those it believes are inferior in intelligence and understanding. It controls its body to act to hurt others. It does not help or save others or all things with its knowledge and understanding in its field. It becomes angry or hateful towards others when they insult or belittle its intelligence.

- The mind clings to the lack of wisdom. Not being able to encounter the knowledge of the two truths, one cannot understand the truth information of the three things. Therefore, it makes the soul inside become attached, bound to the intellectual or educational loss that it currently has. It doesn't have enough awareness or power to help anyone or even help or protect itself. Therefore, it also quickly becomes angry or hateful if people despise or insult it.

- The mind clings to the success in wishing. Humans are immersed in attachment and bondage to the forms they have obtained by praying to others or without their ability to create. That results from intellectual ignorance and not being illuminated by the light of knowledge of the two truths or not believing. It becomes arrogant, clingy, and attached to what it obtains through desire. That causes it not to carry out its mission in human life. In addition, it easily becomes angry or hateful towards those who harm it.

- The mind clings to the failure in wishing. It quickly becomes angry and hateful at people, Buddha, God, or their national gods when they do not help it satisfy their desires. It's painful and disappointing because it doesn't get what it wants. It is bound and clings to what it desires but cannot reach. Also, it gives rise to hatred towards people and the metaphysical world for not helping it.

- The mind clings to actions. When the human soul clings and is bound to forms such as possession, non-possession, love, hate and resentment, having wisdom, not having wisdom, success in wishing, and failure in wishing. That person inevitably continues to be bound and attached to actions. It acts to protect what it owns, activities to get what it desires, and arrogant actions because it thinks it has wisdom or doesn't. These things cause it to practice actions that hurt people, animals, and everything. The reason is that they need to gain the wisdom of knowledge of the two truths and understand the truth information of the three things that every human being must search for in human life.

- The mind clings to inaction. There is no knowledge of the two truths and no understanding of the truth of all three things. Therefore, other forms of ignorance immerse people in attachment and bondage. From there, the soul causes the body not to perform actions to help or save others. Instead, it sinks into the ten states of ignorance it possesses. It quickly becomes angry and hateful towards those who hurt it.

2. The state of furious mind

An angry mind is a state of losing control of the negative particle system in the entire energy structure of the tuelinh.

Anger is a higher level of clinging mind. Anger is formed and developed on the foundation and roots of the clinging soul. Therefore, when people have attachment, anger will flare up at any time. This makes it impossible for each person and others to know or predict it.

When people are immersed in the clinging mind, someone affects their ignorance and interests, and anger within them is like a deadly fire that will harm and kill all living things, animals, and humans and destroy all items.

Anger is also compared to firestorms, and it will burn everything in its path.

To eliminate anger, people must destroy the root and foundation of the clinging mind. To do that, they must destroy the wisdom of ignorance.

3. The state of hatred

Hatred is the highest level of ignorance. Hatred is considered like icebergs. People cannot perceive someone's hatred because it is hidden and hidden deep within the soul. It is different from anger because anger is like flames or firestorms, so people can easily see anger in themselves and others.

Hatred is born based on the clinging mind. When people are immersed in clinging souls, they feel hurt. As a result, they try to become furious to protect themselves. When they cannot become angry or are too weak, they will become hated.

Hatred is extremely dangerous because when it breaks out, it will destroy humans, animals, and all things on a large scale. It can be said that hatred can destroy the whole world.

Remember, the clinging mind is a solid foundation, the root that causes the mind to become angry and hateful. Anger is a state of mind that people can easily recognize and have plans to deal with when someone is angry. At that time, use your mind as a cool stream of compassion to neutralize it instead of becoming angry like them. Meanwhile, hatred is the most dangerous because it is hidden so people cannot know. The root of the state of ignorant mind is ignorant wisdom because there is no knowledge of the two truths, or knowing but not believing. Don't think you can eliminate the state of the ignorant mind through meditation. It is not possible. The cause of the mind of ignorance is that the system of intellectual wave code fibres in the tuelinh contains harmful and false information. Therefore, each person must receive accurate information to eliminate dangerous and incorrect information. That is the best solution to eradicate ignorance when one has attained enlightened wisdom."

During the lunch break, students with different illnesses shared with the teacher about symptoms such as body itching, bone pain, headaches, hallucinations, and loss of behavioural control when listening to lectures. They then became happy when the teacher explained that those manifestations were necessary to help them recover from their illness. Because toxic information is being released, toxins are being removed and eliminated from their souls and cells in their bodies.

Chapter Fourteen

The State of Enlightened Mind

"The opposite of the ignorant state of mind is the enlightened state. We continue with the state of enlightened mind.

The enlightened mind is a state of positive energy generated from the system of intellectual wave code fibres in the yin and yang root embryo and the entire tuelinh structure residing in the human being. The positive energy state is the state of the activated positive energy particle system, and they have the power to control the negative energy particle system.

The enlightened state of mind originates from the person's possession of enlightened wisdom. People have enlightened wisdom because the tuelinh within also possesses enlightened wisdom. Enlightened wisdom is the root, the solid foundation to create and develop into an enlightened state of mind. Therefore, the enlightened state of the soul is always activated to different degrees.

The enlightened state of mind includes three levels:

- The state of a compassionate mind.

- The state of delighted mind.
- The state of a peaceful mind.

These states are values that need to be activated from accurate information for sustainable development in the tuelinhs.

1. State of compassionate mind

Compassion is the solid foundation, the deep root of the enlightened state of mind. From a compassionate state of mind, people quickly become delighted and peaceful.

Compassion is the product and crystallization of enlightened wisdom. Therefore, we discuss five pairs of enlightened wisdom categories when discussing compassion. It includes compassion for possession, non-possession, love, hatred and resentment, wisdom, lack of knowledge, success in wishing, failure in hoping, action, and inaction. Therefore, when people have a compassionate mind, it creates peace and is not bound in body, mind, and intellect to the ten forms that wisdom has enlightened. In particular, it knows how to dedicate and give away the good values it creates from the enlightenment it has.

- The enlightened mind on possession. When people are enlightened by the light of knowledge of the two truths, they will understand the three things. It is understanding yourself and others. It is understanding all things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe and understanding the energy of destruction. Therefore, they know that all the scenarios they interact with in life are for them to force out toxins and activate goodness in their souls. They become enlightened by what they possess and use them as tools to activate their compassion and path to enlightenment. At that time, their minds become peaceful, not tied to anything and any form they possess. Those enlightened people are ready to help and save people and animals when they encounter difficulties with what they have. They will become delighted and peaceful when they experience any painful or difficult situation.

- The mind is enlightened about non-possession. The human understands the accurate information of the three things and is illuminated by the light of knowledge of the two truths. The tuelinh within humans is not bound or troubled by something they do not have. They become happy and constantly strive to cultivate valuable knowledge to upgrade themselves. They enthusiastically help and save everyone and all species with their abilities. They quickly become happy and peaceful when experiencing suffering or difficulties in life.

- The mind is enlightened in love. Because of having enlightened wisdom, the soul within humans becomes peaceful and is not bound by love in ignorance. They give respect and understanding to the people they love so that they can spread good values together. They know how to balance the love of family, husband and wife, and the nation to spread good values to everyone, animals, and everything without distinction between ethnicity or country. They quickly become happy and peaceful when experiencing difficulties or suffering in life.

- The mind is enlightened about hatred and resentment. When the inner soul is enlightened, they are always compassionate. They are not bound to those who hate or resent them. They no longer hate or resent anyone, even those who have hurt them. Because they understand that every interaction in life is to help them eliminate ignorance and become enlightened, they forgive everyone who hurts them. In addition, they always try and strive to help and save people and all species to develop more sustainably. They quickly become delighted and peaceful when they experience difficulties or ups and downs.

- The mind is enlightened about having wisdom. Everyone becomes compassionate and contributes the values of enlightened knowledge or knowledge in all areas of life to everyone. They are happy because they help people and the world around them become more sustainable. They are not attached and bound to their possession of wisdom when they possess the intellect of enlightenment. They are always happy and peaceful on the journey of spreading enlightened wisdom in the human world, even though they must endure hardships and difficulties.

- The mind is enlightened on the absence of wisdom. Because it is enlightened by enlightened wisdom, they understand everything. Therefore, they strive to study and cultivate enlightenment and knowledge in all areas of life. They become peaceful and are no longer attached or bound to their lack of wisdom. They become enthusiastic about helping and saving people, animals, and everything. They quickly become happy and peaceful when someone offends or hurts them.

- The enlightened mind about success and failure in wishing. When people understand the three things by the light of knowledge and the two truths, desire no longer exists in their minds and souls. They are content and happy with what they have. Furthermore, they strive to hone their intelligence and abilities to help and save people and all species. They are easily delighted and peaceful when experiencing suffering or difficulties in life.

- The enlightened mind about action. People are no longer attached or tied to any form because the soul is enlightened about possession, non-possession, love, hate and resentment, wisdom, lack of knowledge, success and failure in wishing. Therefore, they are always peaceful and strive to practice spreading helping and saving actions to everyone, all things, and animals. They act in peace. They become happy and know how to let go of the ignorant actions of others that cause them.

- The enlightened mind about inaction. The magical value of having enlightened wisdom is that each person will not practice ignorant actions towards people, animals, and all things in the human world. Any form in life no longer binds them. Instead, they accept their losses not to hurt anyone or any species in the natural world. They become happy and peaceful in all the harsh life situations they experience.

2. The state of the delighted mind

When each person has a compassionate state of mind through enlightened wisdom, it is a solid foundation to build and develop their minds into delightedness.

Delightedness always exists in a compassionate mind because, with peace and joy in enlightened wisdom, people can practice compassion within themselves by helping and saving others and all living beings.

However, the happiness mentioned here is a quality and level nobler than the level of compassion. That is when each person is practising solidarity, spreading the value of sustainable development knowledge to everyone and all species, but they encounter ignorant people. Ignorant people never stop hurting themselves. Instead of being troubled or giving up, they became happy and continued to practice their mission on the path of enlightenment they had chosen. In addition, when enlightened people experience difficulties and sufferings, they are always happy to face and overcome them.

Delightedness has a magical power to control one's and others' angry states of mind. From a happy mind comes control from the soul to the body into happy expressions and actions. A happy state of mind is like a stream of cool water to extinguish the fire and the firestorm of anger.

3. The state of peacefulness

The state of peacefulness always exists in the state of compassion. Because when people have enlightened wisdom, they know how to let go of their attachments of forms in life to activate goodness within them.

However, the peacefulness of the soul mentioned here is a nobler quality, a higher level than the state of compassion. That is when people encounter difficulties and suffering in life. They know how to let go of attachments by facing them to liberate all suffering through their compassionate mind. In addition, in the journey of uniting people to spread the values of enlightened knowledge to develop all things, to enlighten, and people to become sustainable, they face ignorant people. Those unaware people try to destroy their path, even harming them. Because they are enlightened people, compassion is always present in them; therefore, they continue to practice their mission in a state of delightedness and peacefulness. They do not cling to the unwholesome actions that ignorant people have been doing. They always stand tall in life with nothing but suffering in the human world to help people, all species, and themselves.

Peacefulness is the highest quality and level of the three states of enlightened mind.

When a person achieves complete enlightenment, they will possess all three states of the enlightened mind. Therefore, they will have no remnants of their ignorant state of mind. It means that when someone has the wisdom of perfect enlightenment, the knowledge of ignorance no longer exists in them, not even the smallest unit of any form.

When you understand the wisdom of ignorance and the wisdom of enlightenment, you will know that the state of the mind of ignorance and the enlightened soul are its manifestations. It means that the state of mind is born from wisdom. Intelligence is the system of intellectual wave code fibres in each tuelinh of each human being. It is the root of all state and emotional expressions. Also, from the intellectual wave code that controls the tuelinh, humans practice actions, be it ignorance or enlightenment.

If you want to destroy the state of ignorance, you must destroy the wisdom of ignorance. If you want to remove the knowledge of ignorance, you must have the intellect of enlightenment. The intelligence of enlightenment does not have by yourself, nor does it come to you by itself. Enlightened wisdom is crystallized from the movement tuelinhs, people, things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe that the first tuelinh observed and experienced many lifetimes of practice to obtain. If you want enlightened wisdom, you can learn it through the countless lives of suffering of your soul; another way is to understand the enlightened knowledge that the first tuelinh taught you. The two methods are different, and the results are also different. Experiencing and concluding for yourself is an endless journey. The risk of destroying tuelinhs by destructive energy is very high when tuelinhs have difficulty controlling the mechanism of producing negative particles. Learning enlightened knowledge and practising it is a concise path to transform one's tuelinh into a sustainable one; even if one goes through suffering and tribulations, each tuelinh will quickly overcome it with the information of knowledge stored in tuelinh."

When the class ended, a student asked the Teacher, "Teacher, I have seen many people in society suffering in their married life or at work. After they accessed religious knowledge, they decided to let go of everything to practice in a pure place. The things they let go of include their wives and children or husbands and children. So, is that called enlightened mind?" "What they do is let go. It is precisely running away and giving up in the face of suffering caused by their ignorant wisdom. You should always remember the four commandments of Nalas Nalanda when he organized the conference to gather humanity so as not to misunderstand because of the confusion of philosophical and religious views. The enlightened mind, as in the lecture, we must understand is letting go of our afflictions, attachments, anger, and hatred when it still exists or when it has just arisen. Besides, we must face to liberate all suffering with wisdom and an enlightened mind. If people leave their families, wives and children to practice in a pure place, they cut off the source of interaction so that the nature of the information inside the tuelinh cannot be revealed. Because nature is not revealed, how can people force out toxins and activate kindness? At that time, how can the tuelinh mature? Instead, the danger of destruction becomes present by the onslaught of the energy of destruction."

Another student immediately asked the Teacher, "Teacher, should everyone destroy the mind of ignorance first and then activate the mind of enlightenment?" "There is no before and no after. The mind of ignorance and enlightenment are the products of the wisdom of ignorance and the wisdom of enlightenment. Those intellectual natures are revealed and activated from the tuelinh by interactive scenarios in human life. When interacting, the nature of the information that is easily revealed within the tuelinh will be revealed first. Maybe it's poison, and maybe it's kindness. When nature is revealed first, everyone needs to practice suppressing poison if it is the wisdom of ignorance and activating it if it is the wisdom of enlightenment. Removing poison and activating kindness means eliminating the mind of ignorance and activating the mind of enlightenment. Both must be done simultaneously in each tuelinh's journey of practice in the human world. Knowing the two truths helps people understand all the information in and out of the universe. Therefore, it is comprehensive and magical."

It was a significant day of studying and answering many other questions related to the lecture on states of mind. Those are the words the students talked to each other when class ended.

Chapter Fifteen

Suffering and Methods of Liberation

The Teacher sipped a cup of hot tea while chatting with his students. That was when the Teacher's lecture was about to begin. Although the tea is bitter and hot when drinking, the sweetness is soon replaced. That's why many adult men enjoy tea to feel its particular taste. Not only that, tea also helps drinkers become alert to concentrate on work.

At that time, a student asked the Teacher, "Teacher, can you share your past lives for all class members to know? We are very curious and want to know about your practising journey in past lives." "A curious question. There are curious questions that will not be answered. However, there are questions that, when answered, will help everyone on their journey to overcome suffering to become more mature on the path of practice in the human world. I have many memories of past lives and many lives of practice in the human world. What do people want to know about?" "Teacher, can you share about the life in which you became an enlightened being? People want to hear about it."

After reflection, the Teacher began to speak, "Before teaching today's lesson, I will share some memories of my practising journey to achieve full enlightenment. This information and memories will help everyone when learning today's lesson.

In my previous life, in my human life, the tuelinh within me achieved complete enlightenment. In that life, I was a crown prince, the child of a king and queen. I was their only son. Our country was in South Asia, with a mountainous terrain. However, our capital was in a reasonably flat area surrounded by fields. Because I would become the king in the future, they let me learn everything to lead the country. I had to learn a lot of scriptures and martial arts. However, that father king seemed to know in advance that I would leave that kingdom to seek the path of enlightenment. He expanded the capital three times larger than the original to prevent me from leaving the capital. High walls were built and surrounded the entire capital. In addition, they made a temple so I could go there and study with the teachers. When I grew up, I had a wife and children. However, the boredom in my soul made me leave the capital to find my path to enlightenment. After four unsuccessful attempts to leave the capital from four directions, I finally escaped and headed southeast alone.

On my journey to find the path to enlightenment, I went through the process of studying with teachers. However, I did not achieve enlightenment through various meditation processes. Sufferings still exist in the mind when no longer resting in meditation. After that, I went through different practices to find enlightenment. A typical example was practising asceticism. That was not eating for a long time. That left my body with only skin and bones, and my body became weaker than ever. It was wrong to practice by not taking the body's form seriously. With that way of practice, I thought I had to leave my body behind in that life with failure on my journey to find the path to enlightenment.

One night when I entered meditation, a certain tuelinh used two metal tools and tapped each other three times. The first knock makes a deafening and hard-to-hear sound, the second knock makes an unclear sound, and the third knock makes a soft and easy-to-hear sound. At that moment, I knew that the tuelinh was trying to help me understand something on my practising journey to make the best choice for seeking enlightenment. From the suggested sounds, I understood that the loud sound is like the practice of being bound and taking body form seriously, and the results will be like that sound. The sound has no resonance; it is like the sound of death, like abandoning the body on the path of practice. Melodious sound is the balance between body, mind, and wisdom to create an excellent sound of results. A fragile path of enlightenment has been opened by the union of body, mind, and intellect to develop achievements that benefit everyone. When I understood that, I stopped meditating and rewarded myself with sleep. That night, I learned about the mission of the practising path, my origin and truth about myself, and my memories and achievements in past lives. There was a significant change in me at that time. I ate the next day again to ensure the health and vitality of my body. On the second night, after hearing the guiding sounds from a tuelinh while meditating. It was a whole moon night when the moon was high in the sky and almost midnight. I walked down to the river near where I meditated. In the bright moonlight, I floated in the river. My body floats on the water, sometimes floating, sometimes sinking. The cool water washed away all the ascetic practices in the past. A miraculous thing happened under the bright moonlight and with the cool water blending into the austere body at that time. Rays of silvery white light radiated from my body around me. At that time, my thoughts about the origin and tasks on practising practice in the human world that my tuelinh had to do were clear. Because of that, my tuelinh and body radiate the radiance of enlightenment about my mission and tasks.

After showering, I went ashore and looked at the river and the moon. The piecing together of past life memories and the tuelinh's mission made me reflect and think about it. Suddenly, two snakes appeared from two bushes in front and slithered towards where I was sitting. At the same time, two white doves flew down from the top of the tree and turned into two tuelinhs. Each of them used a bow created from magic and killed two snakes. Perhaps they were afraid that those two snakes would endanger me. Then I looked at the corpses of the two snakes and those two tuelinhs and said to them, "Why did you kill them? Do you know what they did in their past lives that caused them to live in such a daily body in this life? When I become fully enlightened, I will enlighten all of you." After that, the two tuelinhs said goodbye and continued their mission of following and protecting my body in that life. Under the bright moonlight at night, I fell asleep on the riverbank. It is a remarkable sleep when all the memories of the tuelinh are recreated and linked to the achievements in the practising journey of many lifetimes. That was the night I became fully enlightened. After achieving complete enlightenment, I took on my first students and taught them. People from all over come and become my students. I have travelled to many countries to preach complete enlightenment knowledge. While spreading the teachings of enlightenment, my wife and children also participated in studying and accompanying us on the path of spreading it.

Those are memories and moments of achieving enlightened wisdom in past lives. It is not attained by meditation. Those achievements are achieved in many previous lives linked together after a journey of ascetic practice to create a path to complete enlightenment. It's the same in my life. The achievements from past lives are linked with the mission of the tuelinh and the process of experiencing the path of suffering in the human world to create the most excellent enlightenment knowledge when there is knowledge of the smallest particle of energy accompany."

"Teacher, please teach everyone about the method of liberation from suffering in life as well as on the path of practice for everyone to practice."

"The previous lessons are all knowledge of enlightenment, and all the lectures are two truths. I told you that story because it is relevant to today's sermon.

In today's lesson, we will learn all about the types of suffering, the causes of suffering, the method, and the achievements after liberating all suffering. From the previous speeches, you have understood the origin, mission, nature of the tuelinh and state of the mind and human. Therefore, people will not feel pressured when they know the truth of suffering and the method of liberation from pain. Everyone will find it easy to apply that solution to achieve achievements in life.

When discussing human suffering, we also need to separate the suffering of the tuelinh when not incarnated in human form and when incarnated in human form. Such a division will help people clearly understand the nature of suffering and practice the most effective liberation from pain.

1. The suffering of the tuelinh

The suffering of the tuelinh is a state of information disorder within the energy particle structure system. It breaks the bond between positive and neutral particle groups when destructive energies attack the negative particle group. The attack of energies of destruction causes the tuelinh to become painful, leading to complete decomposition and destruction. The suffering of the tuelinh has only one type: disintegration and collapse.

There are three causes of suffering:

- Each tuelinh does not understand itself and other tuelinhs. That is not understanding the nature of truth within oneself and other tuelinhs. The nature of wisdom is encoded false information, called wisdom of ignorance, and encoded truth information, called enlightened wisdom.

- Tuelinhs do not understand the nature of all things, events, and phenomena in the universe. That is not understanding the toxins and goodness that exist within them.

- Tuelinhs do not understand the nature of destructive energy. That is not understanding toxins as well as the value of destructive energy.

The three causes of suffering for the tuelinh are closely linked in inseparability. When each tuelinh has from one to all three of the above causes, they will easily be disintegrated and destroyed by the energy of destruction. Being attacked by destructive energy causes them pain, and death will end their pain.

The method of liberating suffering for the tuelinh. Because we have understood the cause of the tuelinh's suffering and destruction, therefore, all tuelinhs must practice the path to liberation from suffering as follows:

- All tuelinhs must incarnate into humans to live in the human world in many lifetimes of practice.

- Tuelinhs must understand the toxins that are released from within oneself.

- Tuelinhs must understand the good values within themselves.

- Finally, tuelinhs must practice the mechanism to eliminate all toxins within themselves. At the same time, they must practice the mechanism to activate goodness within themselves. Eliminating poison and activating goodness is a mechanism of sustainable transformation.

Achievement after liberating the Suffering of tuelinhs: when they practice the sustainable transformation mechanism, they will produce countless positive and neutral energy particles with high strength and durability. Besides, negative energy particles are produced with enough power to do the job. Then, the tuelinhs mature and transform their yin and yang embryos into a sustainable energy filter. Finally, they can absorb destructive energy back to themselves to produce super-energy particles. Those super-energies help them become immortal and support all things in the universe to develop sustainably.

2. Human Suffering

When the tuelinh incarnates and abides in human form, human suffering includes the Suffering of the tuelinh. From the Suffering of the tuelinh, human suffering is manifested into many different types, and those sufferings become clear and easy to recognize.

First, we must understand what human suffering is. – Human suffering is the soul's binding, viciousness, and attachment to everything in life.

It can be seen that the object of human suffering is the soul.

Suffering is the best environment for the soul inside the human body to be experienced. From there, the toxic and kind natures are revealed. That is the perfect path for the existence and sustainable development of each tuelinh.

Types of Suffering of Humans: humans are made up of three elements: tuelinh, body form, and brain wisdom. Therefore, the manifestations of human suffering are richer than tuelinhs when they do not abide in human form. Human suffering is divided into two groups: suffering due to natural laws and suffering in each person's mind. Such a division of human suffering will help people easily identify, face, and practice liberation from all suffering.

Suffering due to natural laws:

- Types of Suffering due to natural laws: There are six types of suffering caused by natural laws to humans, including suffering due to birth, ageing, illness, death, suffering from living but having to separate from each other, and separation by death. Everyone knows and understands these sufferings are natural laws they must experience and live in. No one can escape any one of all types of suffering by the laws of nature. As follows:

+ Suffering due to being born. That is suffering in the mother's mind when she has to carry a constantly growing fetus. The sudden change in a mother's body when she is pregnant makes her think negatively about herself, her fetus, her husband, and her relatives. Hatred towards their loved ones may appear in their minds when their loved ones have had evil thoughts or actions towards them. Mothers become depressed, anxious, and fearful when their soul energy is depleted to separate and nurture the fetus. In addition to the confusion and suffering of the mind, the pain and discomfort of their bodies make them easily angry and disappointed in themselves and their loved ones. The fetus' body must also suffer the same suffering. The fetus suffers when squeezed into the cramped space inside the mother's womb. In addition, when the mother is suffering from negative thoughts, the negative energy from the mother's soul will nourish the cells of the fetus' body. It is part of the cause of diseases in the fetus' body after birth.

+ The suffering from getting old. When people are born, they face the passage of time that cannot be stopped. That makes people mature and grow old. Growing up is getting older. It is evidence of every cell in the human body constantly working hard and becoming exhausted of energy and life within. Growing up and getting older makes people worried, anxious, and even afraid because their bodies become increasingly weaker and no longer healthy. Many people look for certain medications or foods to prevent cell ageing. They want and desire to enjoy everything in a healthy body, so they hate the old age that already exists in their body.

+ The suffering due to illness. Illness for most people is the suffering of all kinds of suffering. Because they believe that when they have diseases, especially diseases that are deadly and cannot be cured, even if people have a lot of money or high status, they cannot escape the death of the disease. Illness makes people miserable, depressed, and clinging to everything they have. Poor people fear illness because they do not have money for treatment. Rich people fear death when they have diseases that cannot be cured. People with high status and wealth fear their loved ones will suffer from mental illnesses. They fear being judged and looked down upon by others. Illnesses include various physical and mental illnesses, immersing people in suffering and despair. Mild illnesses make people feel stuffy, tired, and uncomfortable. Serious diseases that cannot be cured make people suffer and despair, waiting for death to come to them.

+ The suffering from death. Death creates the most intense moment in a person's life. People see death as the end of everything. When death happens to them, they will lose everything, from money, status, their loved ones, and even their bodies rotting under the cold soil. Because of this, the moment after death, the soul of the dead becomes confused, frightened, regretful, and always cling to things they lost. The suffering caused by death makes people cling tightly to something they cannot take with their souls. Therefore, they quickly become attached, angry, and hateful toward someone who hurts them or causes their death. Anger and hatred reach the highest level in the souls of those who commit suicide. Because when they live, resentment towards the person they once loved, maybe because of oppression from someone, and perhaps also despair in life makes them commit suicide. They are immersed in the extreme suffering of all kinds of suffering because the suffering of the soul due to suicide is a combination of the suffering of death and other types of suffering created by the mind.

+ The suffering from separation. The frustrations in the heart, the memories, the regrets, the pain, and the hatred caused by separation while everyone is still alive are unpleasant types of suffering. The suffering of separation is such that parents have to separate from their children when they get married and no longer have the protection and protection of their parents. The suffering that lovers have to separate for many different reasons. The suffering and pain when parents witness their beloved children going to the battlefield to face life and death, whether defending the homeland or invading another country. Young children and wives had to say goodbye to their fathers and husbands when facing death on the battlefield. Couples separate because of conflicts and disagreements, leaving pain and hatred for each other and their children. The pain of separation is exceptionally fierce. It seems impossible to heal the wounds. Even the resentment from this type of suffering lasts many lifetimes because of the hatred.

+ The suffering from separation when a loved one dies. The suffering of death does not only exist and lasts for souls when they have to leave their bodies behind in the human world. Their relatives and loved ones become regretful and mournful in the agony of witnessing them no longer exist. Fathers, mothers, husbands, wives, and children when they witness their loved ones die from illness, accidents, suicide, murder, or old age. They were immersed in pity and pain. That pain makes them inconsolable when they witness their loved ones no longer on Earth when they were young, wives and husbands.

- The cause of suffering is due to natural laws. Natural laws create the above types of suffering. It means that everyone understands and realizes they cannot escape these sufferings. They don't know whether those sufferings will come to them sooner or later and precisely at what time in their lives. Because it is a natural law, there is no cause for each type of suffering in this group of natural laws. It is because the tuelinh made a great vow to incarnate as humans to experience all suffering. When experiencing grief, the nature of toxins and goodness in their souls is revealed and activated. That is the goal that tuelinh life form pursues, and when suffering is achieved, that is their success. Therefore, from the perspective of tuelinh, reaching the initial goals on the practising journey in human form is a joy.

- The method of liberation from suffering due to natural laws: Because understanding the origin of humanity, the nature of tuelinh, and each person's mission when carrying a soul within. Because each human life is very short, suffering by natural law always comes suddenly without warning. Therefore, to liberate the suffering of natural law, everyone must race against time, devoting their strength, intelligence, and time to help and save people, animals, and all species without discrimination. Besides, practice forcing out all the toxins in the mind when they break out. Doing those two solutions at the same time is the mechanism to eliminate toxins and activate kindness in each person's soul. It is also a sustainable transformation mechanism because sustainable energy particles are produced in the soul in large quantities. Racing against time is extremely necessary because people cannot know how many negative energy particles of karma are contained in their minds, so they do not understand when illness, accidents, and death will occur. Only when people diligently practice to eliminate toxins and activate compassion will their souls produce countless positive energy particles. At that time, positive energy is the key to liberation from suffering caused by illness and death. Racing against time helps the soul produce sustainable energy particles. That allows the tuelinh to mature quickly. Then, the soul will have the power to control and transform destructive energy into super-energy particles. That is the result of each tuelinh's journey of practice in the human world.

Suffering in the soul:

- There are ten types of suffering in mind, including suffering due to possession, non-possession, love, hatred, having wisdom, not having wisdom, success in wishing, failure in hoping, action, and inaction. These types of suffering result from information reaction processes in all interaction scenarios of each person in the four forms of human life in the human world. The four forms in human life include family form, social form, form between teacher and student, and national form. It is suffering in the mind because each person will not be able to know whether they have any toxins released when interacting in life or not. The toxins are the ignorance of the intellect, which then causes the mind to become ignorant. Ignorance is the suffering state of the mind.

+ The mind suffers because of possessions. People are clingy and vicious in being satisfied with everything they have, even hurting people and all species to protect the things they own. Things like money, status, fame, family, and possessions that they try to satisfy cause their souls to drown in their toxins. Therefore, their souls become miserable because they cannot eliminate those toxins due to not activating the goodness within them. Satisfaction with what they have in human life causes them to miss favourable conditions to practice activating kindness through helping actions, saving others and all species from what they have.

+ The mind suffers because of non-possession. People become attached and miserable because of things they do not have and cannot achieve while others have and enjoy them. The poisons of ignorance in the desire to be satisfied by something make them unaware of their toxins. Their souls are immersed in the suffering of ignorance and cannot take advantage of their circumstances to activate the goodness within them. Wasting human life on things they don't have makes them unaware of the preciousness of time to cultivate, study and practice dedication to help everyone and all species.

+ The soul suffers because of love. People are vicious, clinging to the love they possess, such as husband and wife, children, family, nation, homeland, and the love they do not have. That causes the soul inside them to suffer because of the satisfaction of that love. They become uncontrollable towards their loved ones when trying to control and protect that love. They cannot identify the poison of love being released from their souls. Therefore, they cannot balance love and dedication, helping and saving everyone and all creatures.

+ The mind suffers because of hatred. People become miserable in torment and resentful towards each other because of things they do not like or hurt each other. The toxins of ignorance of this kind of suffering cause them to wallow without transforming into virtuous actions. They are vicious and cling to people and things they hate. They do not realize the value of interactions in life that help them understand the toxins and goodness within them. So, they become a waste of human life immersed in this suffering.

+ The mind suffers because it has wisdom. Arrogance and contempt for others who do not have the same intelligence and education as themselves cause these people to sink into the suffering of having intelligence. They cling and linger in pride in the wisdom they possess. They are immersed in that ignorance and do not know how to take advantage of the intellectual values they have to help people, animals, and all species. They do not understand that when they leave their bodies behind in the human world, they will be forgotten, and no one will remember them when they fail to bring noble values to people and humanity. It is the enlightenment of wisdom without realizing it, so they are engrossed in the pride of the knowledge they have.

+ The mind suffers because it has no wisdom. Suffering is expressed as fear, low self-esteem, resentment, and self-torture when people see that they do not have the same understanding and knowledge as others. They suffer in accepting their lives as they are. They suffered under the oppression and domination of the higher classes, of those with intelligence and power. They do not realize that their life scenario is like this to awaken the goodness within them to rise to study and overcome that adversity.

+ The mind suffers because of the success in wishing. From suffering to hoping for things, people do not possess, their suffering increases by wishing. The attachments of desires to satisfy what they want to keep their souls cling to everything. When they achieve what they desire by begging from someone or the invisible world, they continue to be immersed in the suffering of possession and wisdom. They are bound to the idea that they are more intelligent than others to achieve things they cannot possess. These toxins cause people to be immersed in intellectual ignorance, and they cannot recognize the value of learning, cultivating enlightened knowledge, and activating the goodness within them.

+ The mind suffers due to failure in hope. The opposite of the suffering of success in wishing is the suffering of failure. When people fail in their wishes, they become miserable, suffering because of unsatisfied possessions and losses and trade-offs, and in the end, they still fail. Not only do they suffer from not achieving desires that they are unable to fulfil, but they also suffer from not having things and having low self-esteem about their intelligence. They are absorbed in this suffering and other related sufferings without realizing that they must cultivate enlightened wisdom to understand everything and practice to activate the goodness within them.

+ The mind suffers due to actions. That is when people are immersed in suffering due to attachment and ignorance of wisdom on things they own, do not possess, have knowledge, do not have wisdom, success and failure in their wishes, hatred, and love. They will practice actions in the suffering of crystallization from the above pains. Their actions not only hurt their souls by the negative energy produced but also hurt everyone and all species. When they act in pain and hurt everyone and all living things, it results from a mechanism that produces countless negative energy particles. These energy particles are the negative karma they create. That causes their souls to be more strongly decomposed by the attack of destructive energy.

+ The mind suffers because of inaction. Also, from the suffering of other human sufferings, they transform into the suffering of inactivity. It can be understood that, from other pains, people are bound and cling to the ignorance that their wisdom possesses. They become selfish to satisfy their ignorance in life without practising helping actions and saving people and all species. Failure to act to activate each person's goodness causes their souls to become weakened by an excess of negative energy within them, while positive energy is not produced. That causes the soul to suffer more and more because of the decay process within them.

- The cause of suffering in the mind is because people are immersed in the wisdom of ignorance and are not illuminated by the light of enlightened understanding. Therefore, human souls become miserable in all forms with which they interact in life. There are three specific causes as follows:

+ People do not understand themselves and others: they do not understand that there is a soul within them, the nature and mission of the soul when incarnated as a human. They do not understand the soul's origin and wish to reincarnate as a human being to live in suffering. They do not understand the value of suffering and what this life brings them. Therefore, people are immersed in the suffering of life and create countless harm to others and all living beings. Just as they do not know, they must practice kind actions towards everyone and all creatures to help their souls transform sustainably.

+ People do not understand everything, events, and phenomena in life and the universe. That is not understanding the nature of truth, including the toxins and goodness that exist within everything. Therefore, when people interact with them, they become clingy and attached to things. The toxins of people, things, events, and phenomena are linked together, causing people to sink deeply into suffering and disaster.

+ People do not understand the nature of destructive energy. That is not understanding the toxicity and value of destructive energy. That is not understanding the mechanism of action of destructive energy, so it is easy to be influenced and destroyed by them. When dominated, the soul becomes painful and loses control until permanently destroyed.

- Method of liberating suffering in the mind: when each person is enlightened by the intellectual light of the two truths, we will understand the truth of all types of suffering and the causes of suffering. Then, we have the most miraculous method of liberation from pain. We will no longer grope or be ignorant in liberating pain from any other solution. The magic way to liberate suffering is for each person to race against time, face and release all agony. As follows:

+ We have to race against time because the time of a human life passes very fast. Each person does not know when they will get sick and die. When people die, people no longer have the opportunity to understand and transform their souls in that human life. In addition, racing against time helps the soul produce countless sustainable energy particles for their development and become safe when attacked by destructive energy. Generating many positive energy particles will help neutralize the negative energy of negative karma, and then disasters and negative karma will be dissipated in the future. Other sufferings are also easily overcome.

+ We have to face all the sufferings and tribulations in the four forms of life with countless interacting scenarios. That means people should not run away when encountering suffering. Because the tuelinh vow to incarnate as a humans to experience suffering, thereby understanding the three things, it is not allowed to run away or avoid them. Each type of suffering is an ideal environment with enough pressure and maximum compression to help the toxins in each soul be released and activate the goodness within through that suffering.

+ The next is liberation from all sufferings and calamities. That is to practice the mechanism of forcing out and eliminating all toxins in your soul. At the same time, maximize the goodness within yourself. Doing this helps the inner soul to carry out the sustainable transformation mechanism. It means that the tuelinh is implementing the mechanism of producing positive energy particles in large quantities and negative energy particles in sufficient amounts for sustainable development. To practice this mechanism, each person must destroy the wisdom of ignorance and practice the knowledge of enlightenment. That is not harming any person or species and trying to practice helping actions, saving everyone and all species.

+ Finally, practice sharing the truths of enlightened knowledge with everyone to understand and practice. That is the most miraculous mechanism to help the inner tuelinh transform into a mature tuelinh and achieve an energy filter within the tuelinh.

Achievements achieved after liberation from suffering: When each person understands the knowledge of complete enlightenment and at the same time practices the mechanism of sustainable transformation through all interactive scenarios in life. Each person's inner tuelinh will mature quickly, from baby tuelinhs to mature tuelinhs. Internal toxins are eliminated, and good values are developed to produce countless sustainable energy particles with super intelligence stored inside each energy particle. When there is a sufficient quantity and quality of energy particles within the tuelinh structure, they will be supported by the first tuelinh to transform the yin and yang embryo inside into a perfect energy filter. The tuelinh can absorb destructive energy and produce super-energy particles at that time. These super-energy particles make that intelligence immortal and help everything in the universe develop sustainably. That is heaven, nirvana, compassion, bliss, happiness, joy in the mind, and wisdom. This achievement results from experiencing all the sufferings and tribulations during countless lives of practice in the human world."

When the Teacher finished the lecture, a student immediately said, "Teacher, your enlightened knowledge is completely different from all knowledge in religions or philosophical views. You show everyone the truth about all things inside and outside the universe, showing the path to liberation through the smallest actions in human life. Knowledge of the two truths does not allow anyone to abandon family, spouse, or children to seek enlightenment in some pure place. Do not allow people to harm each other or all living beings because that is the path to self-destruction. Everyone must practice helping and saving each other and all species because that is a sustainable transformation mechanism to save oneself and others. In particular, from the knowledge of the two truths, people should not ask for forgiveness from God or Buddha. Even if you ask, you won't get forgiveness. Because intelligence, souls, and humans have no faults. The first tuelinh took all tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to help them understand themselves, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction through suffering in human form. It is the boundless compassion and love that the Father of the universe helps us, silently guiding us to overcome all the sufferings of life to understand and grow. The fact that we can eliminate all toxins and activate the goodness within is immeasurable gratitude and thanks to the great Father of humanity and the universe. The Father is the fully enlightened being, and he is not only the Father but also the Teacher of humanity and the universe. Your lectures are extremely valuable and profound for everyone and humanity."

Another student immediately asked the Teacher, "Teacher, how can everyone, all tuelinhs, know that they have eliminated all the toxins within themselves?" "Your question is great. Types of suffering, causes of suffering, methods to eliminate suffering, practice of spreading enlightened knowledge, and achievements after liberating all suffering I preach. All of them are true information that is exposed so every human and tuelinh to know, learn, and practice. That is the only path to complete enlightenment: to save all tuelinhs, humans, animals, and everything. You have learned about the different types of suffering in the two groups of human suffering. These are the products of toxins released from the interactive scenarios in the four forms of life that Nalas Nalanda has built in the human world. When a type of toxin is released, that tuelinh will have to go through many similar scenarios to eliminate all the toxins of that type of poison. To do that, the five messengers of Nalas Nalanda will build and upgrade the most difficult and complex scenarios for each type of toxin. When the person and the tuelinh inside no longer have the smallest unit of poison, all the goodness from that poison must be activated to overcome that type of suffering completely. And, you know. There are countless sufferings in the two groups of suffering in the mind and suffering due to natural laws. To help all tuelinhs complete their missions, they will be incarnated as humans for many lifetimes of practice in the human world. Only by doing so can all toxins be eliminated, and all goodness can be activated within each tuelinh." "Master, it is truly a long and not easy journey to eliminate all toxins and activate the maximum goodness within each tuelinh. Thus, each tuelinh will have to reincarnate for countless lifetimes of practice before it can achieve full enlightenment and successfully transform the yin and yang embryo. That isn't easy to do for all souls and humans. Do you have the best method to shorten the reincarnation process and complete the mission of each tuelinh? I hope you can teach us more." "Yes, of course. Please relax and review the lectures you have heard, listen many times, read many times, and discuss together. That invaluable information will be stored in the yin and yang embryo of the soul inside each person and, of course, in each person's brain. I will explain that miraculous method in the following lectures."

When they heard the Teacher say that, the students in a worried mood suddenly became happy. They are worried because they realize that becoming an enlightened being is not easy; it is even too difficult for them. However, when they heard a lecture about the most miraculous method to become enlightened quickly, they became happy and radiant with a smile on their lips.

Chapter Sixteen

The Smallest Energy Particle

My memory suddenly recalls a dark time for humanity due to an extremely dangerous Covid-19 epidemic. That dangerous pandemic spread worldwide for many years and caused countless deaths. People worldwide were locked down and could not move between regions and countries. Death, poverty, decline and economic loss haunt all humanity. Many people became out of control in their thoughts and actions. Medicine calls it mental illness. After this deadly pandemic, mental health diseases have broken out in many age groups. The sequelae of that epidemic not only cause mental illnesses but also causes people to suffer from many other diseases. Through that epidemic, the truth of humanity is revealed more and more intensely. Those are the toxins in each person that are unleashed. Many people take advantage of the complicated epidemic situation to commit fraud and robbery, and some take advantage of their high positions to commit corruption and cause heavy losses for people and the country. Some people, for profit, produce fake and poor-quality drugs to profit during epidemics. Besides, people's kindness is also strongly activated. Many people do not care about danger to participate in helping the sick. Many people donate money and effort to help people. Many scientists are constantly trying to research and develop particular medicines to help patients. Doctors are not afraid of danger when coming into contact with patients carrying fiercely contagious diseases to cure patients. Society then became confused and scared. Many places worldwide were blocked, and people were not allowed to leave their homes and travel to other sites.

His classes also had to close for a year, which was the year when the epidemic was most intense and fierce in the country where he lived. The epidemic was like many continuous tsunamis, which worried the students and patients attending his classes. They were constantly in contact to stay informed about their health during that bad time. It was wonderful that none of his students were in danger during that pandemic, even though many were infected with that hazardous virus. The teacher and students all missed class; they all wanted the epidemic to end soon and to return to class to continue with great lectures.

When the government lifted the blockade order in the classroom area and the place where he lived, he went to the classroom to work every day. Besides, three of the teacher's most wonderful students also came to class every day. They were young men; two got wives, had children, and were siblings. And one man is not married yet. They have accompanied him for many years as he spread enlightened knowledge. They are always by his side when he has difficulties. Every time the teacher talks to them, he has new ideas for transforming the wisdom of the two truths to become superior. Those three students are among the teacher's outstanding students. They strongly believe in knowledge and enlightenment practices to help many people. Even though the epidemic was dangerous, those students still came to class daily. They chatted and sipped hot cups of tea with the teacher.

After that, a few mentally ill people regularly came to the classroom during many months of that epidemic year to listen to and receive treatment from the teacher. They got to class because they lived in the same city where the course was located and had limited travel within that city.

Also, while not teaching, he considered translating the sublime knowledge of the smallest energy particles into his new enlightened knowledge. Because many years ago, when he transformed the original yin and yang embryo in the tuelinh into a dual energy filter, he created a highly sublime amount of knowledge. It is the knowledge that people can hardly understand. But if understood, everyone will thoroughly understand everything in and out of the universe and themselves. The sick will miraculously recover, whether physically or mentally. The teacher has been thinking about it for many years because he wants to make that knowledge simple and understandable for everyone when they learn about it. Only the teacher can fully understand that sublime knowledge because it was created from his tuelinh, and he inherited it. He once told his students that no one would understand that knowledge and it would not be knowledge to teach people if he taught them the original sublime knowledge. However, He is not satisfied that only he understands that knowledge. Therefore, the teacher constantly tries to find solutions and transform that knowledge into knowledge that is easy to learn and understand while retaining its original value.

A year off from teaching and studying for the teacher and students was a valuable time for the teacher to transform that sublime knowledge into easy-to-learn and understand instructions. He began to talk little by little about the knowledge of the smallest energy particle to the sick people and his three excellent students. He drew pictures of the smallest energy particle and analyzed the details, problems, and secrets within the particle. Sometimes, students and patients could not understand the teacher's words because it was too strange and challenging for them. When he realized that, he continued to change and transform that knowledge in different directions of analysis and explanation. In teaching the knowledge of the smallest energy particles from that sublime knowledge to the three students and the sick, the teacher always observed their faces and expressions. Those subtle observations helped the teacher promptly adjust the difficulty level and ease of knowledge when teaching and treating them. That knowledge transformation process lasted for nearly a year. A year off from teaching due to the epidemic was of great value to him because he had a lot of time to transform sublime knowledge into magical teachings of the smallest energy particles. That is something that later when people listen to, learn or read, they will find it easy to understand and fully understand because there is knowledge of energy particles as a standard for understanding and practising the wisdom of the two truths.

After many months of listening to the teacher analyze and explain the smallest energy particles in detail, the three students quickly changed their understanding of enlightened knowledge. They have applied the knowledge of the smallest energy particle to explain all the secrets of humans, tuelinhs, all things, and human suffering. It is a great success when students can understand some of the sublime teachings the teacher has made simpler and easier to understand.

Besides, the teacher observed in detail the patients' expressions when listening to his lecture and analyzed that knowledge at different levels. Sometimes, the teacher only teaches them to comprehend the two truths without understanding the smallest energy particle. The teacher meticulously observed everything. He later told his students, "It's exciting. Every time I preach or talk about the knowledge of the smallest energy particle, the sick people become conflicted. But when I wasn't talking about energy particles, they had no conflicts or manifestations. It is inaccurate if we look at this to conclude that they are cured of mental illness. However, when I analyzed different levels, they had different heavy and light conflicts according to the lecture level. When talking about the secret information in the particles, the particles' reincarnation mechanisms, and their movements, sick people will erupt in extreme uncontrolled conflicts." One of the students immediately asked, "So, does the soul in them receive information from the knowledge of energy particles?" "Yes. Upon hearing the knowledge of the energy particles at different levels, the patient's severe and mild conflicting reactions proved that their souls received what I said. That shows the power of knowledge of the smallest energy particle in healing human diseases." "Teacher, when you analyze and talk about the information in the smallest particles, I always see a stream of energy being transmitted above my head. I feel tension in my head and forehead. When the teacher stopped teaching, I felt my head return to normal. The actual result is that you can use the knowledge of the smallest energy particle to decode everything in life." "So, transforming that special knowledge from difficult to easy has been successful. That's something I've wondered about for many years. Now it's done. So, a year of stopping teaching due to the epidemic was not in vain. I will combine that knowledge with the knowledge of the two truths to teach classes when the epidemic ends. It is the most wonderful enlightened knowledge for tuelinhs and humans."

Then, my memory took me to his other classroom after the pandemic ended. That was the class where the teacher taught his students the most understandable knowledge about the smallest energy particles. Even though he has converted it into knowledge that is easy to learn and understand, it is still not easy to know when this knowledge is so strange to everyone. Therefore, the teacher divided that enlightened wisdom into many parts to teach in different lessons. If the teacher talks a lot about that knowledge in a few lessons, his students will not be able to receive it because the soul inside them cannot accept and retain it in their yin and yang embryos.

The teacher said, "In past lives, I taught my students the knowledge of the two truths and spread it everywhere. At that time, human knowledge was limited by ideology and social development. Therefore, I could not preach knowledge about energy particles to them. Because of this, when students learned knowledge of the two truths through simple theories and explanations, they quickly understood and practised wrongly when moving through different living environments. It has become a complex problem to solve when each person's toxins explode strongly. Therefore, understanding and practising the correct value of knowledge of the two truths was a great challenge for everyone then. As a result, every time my tuelinh leaves the body behind to return, the students in the human world distort the knowledge of the two truths according to their incorrect understanding. This leads to subsequent generations of people learning false knowledge, and their practising path becomes more arduous. To solve that challenge in this human life, I must offer a particular type of knowledge combined with an enlightened understanding of the two truths as a standard for learners and practitioners. It will help learners and future generations avoid understanding and practising incorrectly. However, this knowledge is complicated, and people will only be able to understand it if I transform it into its simplest form. Because I was concerned about that issue for many years, until today, I began to preach that particular type of knowledge to you and everyone.

Please prepare yourself mentally, especially those with various medical conditions and mental illnesses. Because when you listen and receive information from this knowledge, you will have powerful manifestations of conflict in your body, mind, and intellect. People who are not sick will feel tension in the forehead and head and heat all over the body. People with the disease will have additional symptoms such as itching, nausea, headaches, bone and joint pain, red rashes on the skin, more frequent hallucinations, and even loss of control over the severe mental illness. Those of you who are sick, please understand that these symptoms are due to toxins being released from your soul, toxins being released from your body when your soul receives the information of the lecture through the brain.

In previous lessons, I have repeatedly mentioned the smallest energy particle so that you can get acquainted and understand its basic information. Today, I begin to analyse deeply knowledge about the smallest energy particle. It would be best to concentrate on listening and re-listen many times to understand quickly. When you understand, your soul will build a wonderful ideology to practice the mechanism of producing sustainable energy particles.

The Smallest Energy Particle

The Positive Energy Particle

For the smallest energy particle, please look closely at the simulation of a type of energy particle. It is the smallest positive energy particle. Please observe to remember it; it will help you build exceptional thinking compared to what you have learned.

The structure of the smallest energy particle consists of three parts: the shape of the particle, the intellectual wave code strand, and the internal energy state of the particle. As follows:

- First factor. That is the intellectual wave code in the particle, and it begins to form from point (1) to point (3). This intellectual wave code is the information storage part of the particle, also known as the particle's intelligence. The intellectual wave code is born first among the three elements of the smallest energy particle. It is generated by any physical structure formed from the original yin and yang energy embryo. People, animals, trees, vegetation, rocks, water, and planets can be seen. Next are physical structures that humans cannot see with their eyes, such as tuelinhs, human souls, animal souls, and souls residing in plants and rocks.

- The second factor. That is the shape of the smallest energy particle. The particle is oval, a transparent white membrane that protects the strand of the intellectual wave code and the energy state within. The particle's membrane is formed after the intellectual wave code fibre is born.

- Third factor. It is the energy state inside the particle. It can be called an electric wave state. The energy state is born from point (2) in the wisdom wave code. From point number 2, it forms negative, positive, or neutral energy particles. It is also the point that generates power for the energy particle.

Once the energy state is generated, it is stored inside the particle, and it has different colours depending on point (2) in the intellectual wave code strand. The energy state of the particle is also a symbol of the information quality of the intellectual wave code fibre. Therefore, through the colour of the particles, we can evaluate the information quality of different types of energy particles.

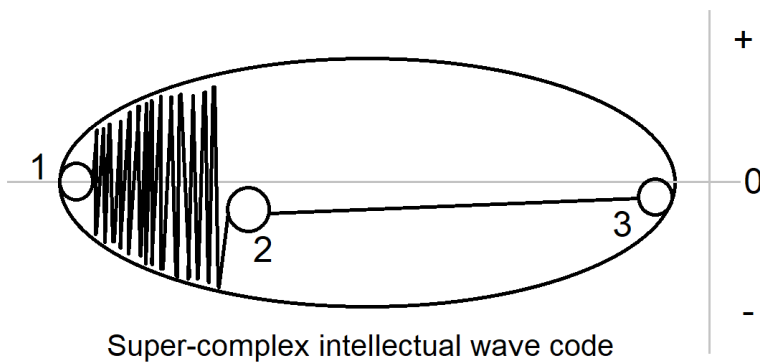

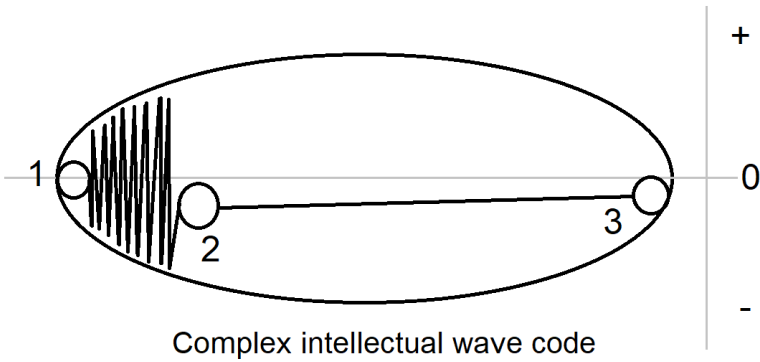

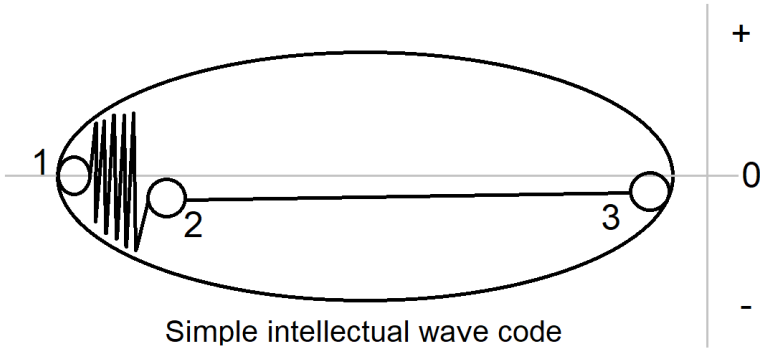

The three elements that make up the smallest energy particle cannot be separated from each other. If one of the three elements is missing, the energy particle will not exist. They are closely linked and protected each other. Then, from the smallest energy particles, they bond together to form larger physical structures.

Next, let's look at the simulation of the three types of intellectual wave codes of the smallest energy particle. The picture is a simulation of three kinds of intellectual wave codes in the type of negative energy particles. The same is true for neutral and positive particles. Please observe the intellectual wave code of all three types. The intellectual wave code is the segment from point (1) to point (3). In particular, the segment from point (1) to point (2) is the vibration wave code segment. The segment from point number (2) to point number (3) is the intellectual segment. The intellectual wave code fibres of all the smallest energy particles that make up all things in the universe are divided into three types:

- + Simple intellectual wave code.
- + Complex intellectual wave code.
- + Super-complex intellectual wave code.

As follows:

Three Types of Intellectual Wave Codes in The Smallest Particle

- Simple intellectual wave code fibre. This type of intellectual wave code fibre forms the smallest simple energy particle. Then, those particles bond to form simple physical structures such as plants, water, rocks, human bodies, animal bodies, solid matter, liquid matter, gas matter, planets, stars, and all the matter humans can see in the universe. It is called the simple intellectual wave code or simple energy particle because of the vibration code that creates it. It means that in the vibrating wave code of a simple energy particle, there is little information encoded, the amount and quality of data are simple, the vibrational wave beats between the negative and positive extremes are not many, and the speed of information vibration is the slowest compared to the other two groups of energy particles. So, when they join together to form larger physical structures, humans can see, touch, and feel those materials.

- Complex intellectual wave code fibre. This type of intellectual wave code fibre forms a complex energy particle. When those particles connect, they will create energy flows to nourish and operate the movement and existence of the universe. When they join the yin and yang particles, they will form the yin and yang energy embryos and become intelligent souls in rocks, trees, and animals. This type of particle is called a complex or complex intellectual wave code because the vibrating wave code creates that characteristic. It means that the vibrating wave code has a lot of encoded information, and the amount and quality of the encoded data are complex. The vibrational wave beats moving between the negative and positive extremes are very large, and the speed of information vibration is also very fast. Therefore, this type of matter has a quicker moving speed than the moving speed of simple matter. It is also why humans cannot see this matter with their eyes.

- Super-complex intellectual wave code fibre. It is called super-complex energy particle or super-complex intelligence wave code thread because its vibrational wave code forms that characteristic. The quantity and quality of information encoded in the vibration wave code is vast and super complex. The vibrational wave beats between the positive and negative extremes are many more than the groups of simple and complex particles. The speed of information vibration is super-fast. These yin and yang energy particles with super-complex intelligence wave codes connect and develop into tuelinh and tuelinh life forms. Because the vibration speed in the intellectual wave code is super-fast, humans cannot see them with their simple eyes.

Thus, the three most minor groups of energy particles with different intellectual wave codes constitute the three types of matter of the universe. Simple matter is made up of simple energy particles that form planets and the entire universe. Complex matter is complex energy particles residing in simple matter to help each other survive and develop. Super-matter is tuelinh formed from super-complex energy particles. They build and operate the life of the universe with their superior intelligence. They are the most intelligent life forms in the universe, so they are responsible for creating, protecting, and sustainably developing all forms of matter in and outside the universe. They control complex groups of matter linked with simple groups of matter to form magical orbits of all planets in the universe.

Three Characteristics of The Smallest Energy Particle

You continue to look at the picture depicting the three types of properties of the smallest energy particles. Observe the characteristics of each particle.

Each simple, complex, and super-complex energy particle they are divided into three different characteristics. It includes negative thermal properties, called negative energy particles; positive thermal properties, called positive energy particles; and neutral thermal properties, called neutral energy particles. Each type of particle characteristic has a different nature. As follows:

- Positive energy particles have the nature of radiating heat, transmitting information from the inside to the outside environment. Inside the particle is stored valuable information that is comprehensive and true. Positive energy particles can bond with negative energy particles to become yin and yang energy embryos, which then develop into larger physical structures. In addition, they connect to form aggregate positive energy particles to build their system to become stronger.

- Negative energy particles have the nature of absorbing heat and absorbing information from the outside environment into itself. Inside is stored valuable information that is missing or incorrect. Negative energy particles can bond with positive energy particles to become yin and yang energy embryos, which then develop into larger physical structures. In addition, they connect to form aggregate negative energy particles to establish their system to become stronger.

- Neutral energy particles are balanced in nature and become the linking material between positive particles synthesized together to develop a more robust physical structure.

The three types of energy particle properties have different natures, but they become perfect pieces of each other. They can be linked together to become physical structures more extensive than the smallest particle. That is why, from the smallest simple energy particles that cannot be seen with the human eye, they bond with countless particles to become physical structures that humans can see and touch. Of course, humans cannot see complex matter and super-matter with their eyes."

When the teacher finished the first lecture on the knowledge of the smallest energy particles, some students were interested, while others found it difficult to understand. The facial expressions show that.

Understanding that the teacher asked, "Is this knowledge difficult? Do you find it easy to understand?" "Teacher, when I listened to your lecture, I found it easy to understand and visualize because you simulated that knowledge with the image of the smallest energy particle. However, I still have not see the knowledge of the two truths in the smallest particle." The teacher laughed and said, "It is two truths because it is the truth, the nature of things, phenomena, tuelinhs, animals, humans, and everything in the universe. The knowledge about energy particles just learned is the basic foundation to enter into special thinking and special enlightened knowledge."

The teacher continued to ask, "Do you feel any expression or conflict when you hear this new knowledge?" "Teacher, I feel hot over my body and tightness on my head and forehead." Another student said, "I feel more pain and headache than in previous classes." "In the coming lessons, the informational value of knowledge will be much stronger, so the manifestations of conflicts between your body, mind, and brain will appear more strongly. You should not worry. Those manifestations are perfect because your soul can receive special information about that knowledge. This helps the mind to become enlightened quickly and thoroughly, and mental and physical illnesses will be cured faster."

After that class, his students often talked to each other about energy particles. A term for the smallest energy particle was born, spreading everywhere through his lectures and students. The enlightened knowledge of the two truths has been embedded in the smallest particle of energy, becoming increasingly popular as people learn and practice that knowledge.

Chapter Seventeen

The Truth of The Universe with the Knowledge of the Smallest Energy Particle

A week passed, and the teacher's students came to class early as a habit. Unlike previous weeks, this week is probably a special week for them. They look forward to the teacher's new lecture on enlightened knowledge associated with energy particles to help them gain a deep and thorough understanding of the knowledge of the two truths. Because the first lesson about the smallest energy particle is strange knowledge to everyone, the desire to discover more about that knowledge has made them more eager than ever. When the students heard the teacher say that special knowledge helped them build a special type of thinking, but they did not clearly understand how to apply it to problems in life, curiosity arose in them. Before the class started, some students asked each other, "Does anyone know about the special knowledge you mentioned to solve any problem?" An adult woman immediately answered the young girl's question, "What are you going to class to learn?" "I have suffered from hallucinations for many years. I have been treated at the hospital and through rituals, but it has not cured me. When I knew that people were suffering from different mental illnesses, they were cured after learning the teacher's knowledge. Therefore, I would like to ask the teacher to participate in this class to heal body, mind, and wisdom." The old woman immediately replied, "That's right, his knowledge and classes are to heal the sick body, mind, the ignorant wisdom of people, and the tuelinh. That is knowledge to help people and tuelinhs to liberate all suffering. Therefore, I think the special knowledge he discussed is to help us and everyone heal our body, mind, and intellect most thoroughly and effectively." "That would be great, sister. I hope to recover quickly. After many years of living with a mental illness that could not be cured, my intelligence worsened, and I always thought negatively about life. My relatives thought I was pretending to be sick, and they didn't believe what I said. They advised me to find good psychics to perform the ceremony and become a psychic to cure my illness. But when I had to pay a lot for the rituals, my illness did not improve or worsen, so I decided not to follow the psychics anymore." "Try and listen diligently to learn the teacher's knowledge for a long time, and you will be cured. I have witnessed several friends with mental illnesses of varying severity. They only studied and then practised according to the teacher's knowledge and were cured. They strictly follow the teacher's instructions and do not take psychiatric drugs. That's why they recovered quickly. When they studied, they did not learn special knowledge; they only learned theoretical knowledge from two truths. And we are now learning special knowledge. We and everyone together try to learn to recover from illness and gain enlightenment." Another student continued, "Healing the body, mind, and intellect with information is strange for everyone. Because people only think that knowledge or information helps people have more knowledge and better intellectual thinking. No one thinks that knowledge can cure the diseases of the body and the mind of the soul. His knowledge is a special kind of wisdom."

After enjoying a hot morning tea, the teacher started his new lecture. "You. Today's lesson will be more complicated than the lesson about the smallest energy particles in the previous lesson. In the last session, you only learned the basics of energy particles. Still, I will detail the internal nature of particles and how it is associated with the two truths. Because the knowledge of energy particles is challenging, I have to divide it into many different lessons so that everyone can easily understand and have a multi-dimensional and comprehensive view after learning the knowledge of the two truths. Today's lesson is the truth of the universe tied to the smallest particle of energy. That does not mean that the other lessons are not universal truths. It would be best if you remembered that all of my lectures are the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment. These two noble truths are analyzed and dissected in many environments, scenarios, situations, interactions, and lessons. You cannot study in one session or in a short time to receive a massive amount of knowledge of the two truths. If you try to force yourself to accept it like that, your soul will be overloaded and confused, leading to losing control of thoughts and actions. You can only receive and absorb enough information to make your soul comfortable and motivated for the long journey ahead. That also creates a lesson for parents, not forcing their children to study day and night. Because when you force them to learn a lot while their souls and young brains are incapable of receiving it, they become confused and lose control of their behaviour. Let them have fun and enjoy their childhood while playing and learning. You have no right to force your children to do what you want because your souls and those of your children are different. Each soul has different intellectual abilities; no one is the same, so you should not force your children to be as talented as you. Souls come to the human world to help each other practice and are not each other's property. Why do I say that? Because it is the essence of the truth of the universe. When I answer that, someone will ask me what I use as a standard to say that it is the truth of the universe. Do you find that question reasonable? It is very practical and precise. I'm sorry anyone asked me that question because I have standards for everything I say. The knowledge of two truths is standard and referenced by understanding the smallest energy particle.

When you understand the truth of the universe, you will understand and answer the three things that tuelinhs and humans are searching for to gain radical enlightenment. You will understand yourself and others, all things, events, phenomena in life and the universe, and the energy of destruction. You must know that destructive energy is not the energy that makes up groups of matter in the universe, but it is the fuel source for the existence and development of the universe. Its habitat is outside the universe, but it is also found in many places inside the universe. Regarding destructive energy, you should temporarily understand that. In other appropriate lectures, I will analyze destructive energy. You cannot use a simple theory of the truth of the universe to understand the three things that tuelinhs and humans are searching for answers to. That is impossible, and the failures of yourselves, of everyone, and my students in past lives are proof of that. Because pure theory will have no accurate reference and no standards to build a superior thinking system, at that time, humans and tuelinhs could not decipher the ultimate truth of all things in and out of the universe. For me, this human life is the most wonderful thing. I have found a unique reference and standard to help you decode and thoroughly understand tuelinhs, yourselves, and all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe.

First, I will analyze the theory of universal truth. You will see its limitations when no standard and magical reference to the smallest energy particle exists. But you will be surprised, even happy, when you know the magic value of knowledge in energy particles associated with the theory of universal truth after being analyzed by me. And now, you join me in discovering the truth of the universe with the smallest particle of energy.

The theory of the truth of the universe is all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe are not created by themselves, and they are not destroyed by themselves; suffering does not come by itself; it does not go by itself; all are cause and effect.

You will find it easy to remember and understand when you hear or read that reasoning about the truth of the universe. After a journey of study and research, you conclude, "Ah, that's cause and effect. It's like we plant a seed and later receive the fruit of the tree we planted. That is the natural law of all things, tuelinhs, and humans. I will choose to do good deeds and avoid evil deeds." That proves that learners and readers cannot understand further and cannot discover the truth of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. They only understand one simple thing: do good deeds and avoid evil deeds. But they need help understanding why they should do so. They cannot understand their true nature, their souls, and others. They are entirely incomprehensible.

Do you see that the theory of universal truth is good and beneficial to everyone? It is a good theory and valuable to everyone because it helps people have the mindset of doing good deeds and staying away from evil deeds because of cause and effect. They look at other people and things the same way. Everything is created by cause and effect, and nothing is natural. The same goes for their suffering, that of others, and all things. Thus, the theory of universal truth is excellent because it brings moral value to people so they can try to build according to that moral value. But people will need help understanding the three secrets that tuelinhs and humans are searching for. Only when finding the truth of those three things will tuelinhs and humans become enlightened beings. At that time, the tuelinh can transform the yin and yang embryo into a perfect energy filter. Only then is there immortality, nirvana, peace and freedom.

To thoroughly understand the three secrets, you must understand the secret information inside the smallest energy particle and its movement mechanism. To achieve such enlightened wisdom, combining the theory of universal truth and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle will solve that problem. The theory of the truth of the universe is valuable instruction for people to understand the smallest energy particle to all things in and outside the universe. Besides, the entire secret and truth of the smallest energy particle is the norm, the most accurate standard to help us understand all three secrets that humans and intelligence are searching for.

We must think in the following order to easily understand this special enlightened knowledge. That is a unique and magical way of thinking, different from everything you have ever learned. As follows:

1. Step 1: Standardize the truth of the universe into the smallest energy particles.

Standardization here is to reduce all people, tuelinhs, things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe into the smallest energy particles. Next, analyze the nature of information and the movement mechanisms through the smallest energy particles.

Why is it necessary to standardize all things in and out of the universe into energy particles to understand the three secrets? Because all things, events, phenomena, people, and tuelinhs in the universe are formed from the smallest particles of energy. The secret information in the smallest particle's intellectual wave code defines the particle's function and mission. As they undergo continuous production to form larger structures, they operate according to the informational conventions of the intellectual wave code. The mechanisms of sustainable or destructive transformation are also created from the secret of the intellectual wave code. From when humans were formed until now, everyone has only searched for excellent or bad manifestations, then found ways to eliminate bad expressions and follow good ones. In contrast, they do not search and cannot understand the ultimate secret of those manifestations. All the expressions and natures of all things in and outside the universe and of the smallest energy particles are determined by the quality and amount of information inside the smallest particle and form a movement mechanism. Therefore, decoding to understand the nature of data inside the smallest energy particle is the key to opening all the secret doors that tuelinhs and humans are searching for.

The truth of the universe is the nature of fact, of the information that exists inside and outside of the smallest energy particle to all matter inside and outside the universe.

From the intellectual wave code, the smallest energy particles are created, and from those energy particles, the physical structures that make up all things in the universe are created through connection and production. Material structures with yin and yang energy embryos inside continue to produce intellectual wave code fibres to form the smallest energy particles. That constant movement helps everything in the universe to develop more and more. That helps us standardize all things, including humans, animals, all species, and tuelinhs in the universe, into the smallest energy particles. Because everything is born from the yin and yang embryo, when the yin and yang embryo is formed from the connection between a negative energy particle and the smallest positive energy particle, they will move in the mechanism of producing and connecting the smallest energy particles. That process causes humans to be formed and developed, the tuelinhs to create and grow, including animals and everything.

Events are also particles of energy. That is obvious and the truth of all things in the universe. That is when humans interact with each other, animals interact with each other, tuelinhs interact with each other, or between them interact with each other. The smallest energy particles will be produced in their yin and yang embryos. They make the smallest particles of energy because they absorb and transmit information to each other during interactions. When the process of interaction and action absorbs enough information, energy particles will be produced from the yin and yang embryo. Those energy particles store the informational nature of each subject's internal and external environment that interacts and makes it. That's why it's important to standardize things into energy particles.

The phenomenon must also be standardized into the smallest energy particle. The phenomenon is similar to human, animal, and tuelinhs' interactions. Those are groups of energies that react with each other or abide in each other as the soul of complex matter abides in the simple matter, and the tuelinh resides in the human body. This process creates interacting phenomena and produces the smallest energy particles for each type of matter participating in that interaction and reaction. That is also why it is necessary to normalize the phenomenon into the smallest energy particle.

Everything, events, and phenomena are neither created nor destroyed by themselves; it depends on cause and effect. Creation and destruction are all reaction and interaction processes from the smallest energy particles to all matter in and outside the universe. The process of producing particles and linking in the direction of decay or sustainability is the cause and effect of each subject. You must understand more deeply that cause and effect is the smallest energy particle. When subjects practice the transformation mechanism, whether sustainable or decaying, new energy particles are produced and then linked to become new structures that are stable or decayed. Therefore, whether they are born or destroyed, they are all the smallest energy particles.

The suffering of all things, tuelinhs, and people does not come or go by itself; it is all cause and effect. The agony of all things is standardized into the suffering of the smallest energy particle when they encode incorrectly or lack accurate information within. Then, there will be an information disorder reaction, and they will practice the mechanism of destructive transformation. Suffering ends when the information stored is accurate and comprehensive; then, we practice the mechanism of sustainable change. When it becomes stable, grief will end.

Please standardize all events, phenomena, all things, yourself, others, and tuelinhs into energy particles when you want to understand yourself, others, and all things. That is the first step in building a unique enlightened mindset of combining the knowledge of the two truths with the wisdom of the smallest energy particle.

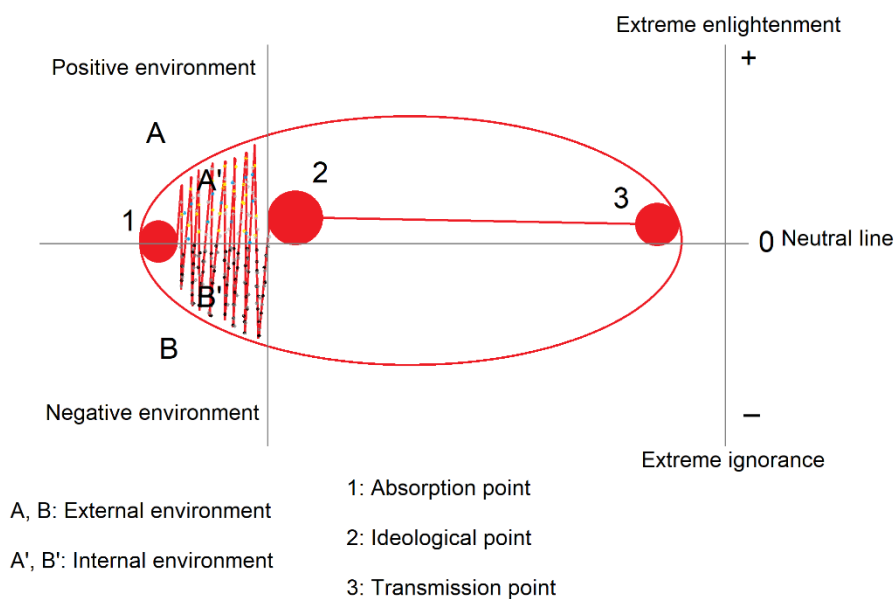

2. Step two: Discover the secret information inside the smallest energy particle.

In discovering and decoding the inner secrets of the smallest energy particles and their transformation mechanism, you will thoroughly understand the three secrets of everything in and out of the universe.

For the process of discovery and decoding to be successful and to gain a thorough understanding, you always standardize yourself, everyone, the tuelinhs, and all things in and outside the universe into the smallest energy particles. This process is not only in this lesson but also covers all other lessons in the knowledge of the two truths.

The Truth of The Universe with The Smallest Energy Particle

Please look closely at the image that simulates the knowledge of the truth of the universe with the smallest energy particle.

Next, you remember the images and words that Nalas Nalanda said to the tuelinhs at the conference, unifying the practising path of tuelinhs in human form in the human world. You remember the image of snakes slithering into a plate of white powder, and they hid inside it. The image of a big snake slithering into the bushes near where Nalas Nalanda sat, then of a small snake slithering behind into the bushes. Next came his words, "To save the tuelinhs and the universe, I will use the toxin to activate the toxin." After that, you remembered his four teachings during the conference gathering humanity. It helps you understand that the scenarios of human interaction with animals and tuelinhs in the human world through the four forms of human life are significant. It is the magical key for tuelinhs and humans to seek and understand the three secrets successfully.

Now, you relax before entering the journey of decoding the information secrets of the smallest energy particles and decoding yourself, others and everything. You will also understand your past, present, and future and everything.

To understand all three secrets, you first need to know that if you want to understand yourself, you must understand others and everything around you. On the contrary, if you're going to understand others and things around you, you must understand yourself. These two things always go together; they cannot be separated. Why? Because other people themselves are a mirror and an external environment. Any object itself is a mirror and an external environment. Yourself is a mirror and an internal environment. Within the energy particle is the internal environment, and everything outside each energy particle is the external environment. Interaction between matter, people, and tuelinhs with each other will help each person see the manifestations of each other, themselves, and all things. The expressions are the inner nature of each energy particle. The nature of the information encoded inside defines its functions and tasks. We consider ourselves a mirror so we can see ourselves, consider others as a mirror so we can see ourselves and them, and consider all things as mirrors so we can see ourselves and them. That creates magic in decoding the secrets of everything, ourselves, and everyone.

Please look at points A and B in the image of the smallest energy particle. That is the external environment, including the negative and positive environments. These two environments blend and exist together. We need to interact with each environment to understand its manifestations and nature. In the outside environment, it corresponds to the image of a huge poisonous snake and a small poisonous snake slithering into the bushes to hide. You can't recognize them if you don't go into the bushes to look for them.

Continue to look at points A' and B' inside the energy particle. It is the negative and positive environment inside each energy particle. It is goodness and poison inside. That is the image of poisonous snakes slithering into a plate of white powder and hiding inside. No one can see them. It means no one outside can see the toxins and goodness inside the particle. It cannot see it either. Tuelinhs and humans cannot also see themselves.

What will happen next so that the excellent and toxic values of the internal and external environments can emerge? Those are the reactions in different environments. For tuelinhs, it is the human environment. This environment gives them countless interactive scenarios in the four forms of life to help them understand themselves, others, and everything. That is the priceless value of the human incarnation journey of tuelinhs in the human world.

And now, you will accompany the analysis of the truth of the universe through the smallest energy particle. As follows:

- The smallest energy particle is not created by itself. For the smallest particle of energy to be born, the entity that made it must go through a highly complicated journey. The subject that produces the smallest energy particles is all physical structures with the original yin and yang embryo inside, including humans, animals, tuelinhs, and everything. As follows:

+ The process of acquiring information. The subject must go through a journey of interacting and reacting with other subjects in the external environment. The external environment includes negative and positive environments. The environment is the appearance of energy particles, all kinds of matter, people, animals, tuelinh, and everything. The external environment includes sounds, languages, ideologies, phenomena, and interactive actions. The subject's interaction process with the external environment creates a result called information collected from the outside. That external information is absorbed by point (1) in the yin particle of the original yin-yang embryo inside the subject. The root negative particle performs the information acquisition process because that is its function and task. The positive energy particles in the original yin and yang embryo support the analysis and selection of absorbed information.

+ Next, the subject appears to have the idea of converting the collected information into action. When the subject's interaction process has absorbed an amount of data accumulated at point (1) of the negative energy particle in the original yin and yang embryo, the positive energy particle in the yin and yang embryo begins to perform its function: to analyze the external information that has accumulated at point (1) of the yin particle.

+ The decoding and encoding of information occur at the vibration wave code of the two original negative and positive particles. The vibration wave code segment is from point (1) to point (2). This process is stressful, causing information conflicts between the original positive and negative particles. It is the process of comparing the internal information of yin and yang particles in the original embryo with the external data absorbed at point number (1), and the interaction process is ongoing. The information inside the two original yin and yang particles will conflict with each other to accept the reception of what kind of outside information is allowed to exist in them. This process stimulates the information values that have or have not been activated in the two intellectual wave code strands of the original yin and yang embryo to be released. This process results in the vibrating waves in both the original positive and negative particle's intellectual wave code vibrating to retain new information from the outside them.

+ Next, at point number (2), the ideological point of the intellectual wave code thread in the negative particle or both the original positive and negative particles vibrate. It then forms a new ideology, combining its new and old information.

At this stage, if the old ideology of the original negative particle wins, only the new negative particle will be produced from the intellectual wave code of the original negative particle. If the yang particle's original ideology wins, the new yin, yang, and neutral particles are produced from the original yin-yang embryo.

+ The action process produces energy particles. It is the segment from point (2) to point (3) in the intellectual wave code. After creating the ideology, the subject performs interactive actions with other things, other people, animals, or tuelinhs. At the end of the interaction, new strands of intellectual wave code are copied from the two original strands of intellectual wave code of the yin and yang embryo. Sometimes, it's just a negative intellectual wave code or full negative, positive, and neutral intelligence wave codes. The result depends on decoding and creating the ideology of the original yin and yang embryo.

- The smallest particle of energy does not disappear on its own. After the energy particle is generated by the interaction and information reaction process between the internal and external environment, it depends on what types of energy particles are produced, and they have different transformation mechanisms. From there, we will see their transformation. As follows:

+ If the toxins of the original negative particle win, it will aggregate into a harmful ideology and produce a negative particle. Only negative particles are made, while the subject does not have positive particles. From here, the entity and the born particles will create a transformation mechanism in the direction of decay and destruction.

+ If the original positive particle's accurate information can control the negative particle's toxicity. Positive and neutral particles will be produced, and the subject will also have enough negative particles to become a more sustainable structure according to the sustainable transformation mechanism.

Thus, the birth and death of the smallest energy particle to all things in the universe result from information reactions between the internal and external environment. The victory of one of the two ideologies within the original yin and yang embryo will determine the subject's sustainable or destructive transformation.

- The suffering of the smallest particle of energy does not come by itself, it does not go by itself, it is all due to itself:

+ Why is there suffering in energy particles? It is the information conflict of the smallest energy particle with outside information. When the subject's yin and yang embryo interact with any external data, whether negative or positive. The original information within the two intellectual wave code strands of the yin and yang embryo will react when they have similarities in information value. When negative data from the outside environment is absorbed, the harmful data in the original negative particle will vibrate and connect with the toxic information outside. They will bond tightly together to control the original positive particle. If successful, they will create negative energy particles after the subject's action ends. That is the mechanism that leads to the destruction of the entity. On the contrary, when the entity absorbs positive information, the accurate data of the positive particle will closely link to producing positive energy particles if it overcomes the obstruction from the toxins of the negative energy particles. Besides, the toxic process of the external environment and the toxins of the internal circumstance interact and activate each other to cause suffering for the subject. The struggle between the information of the two yin and yang particles in the original embryo causes suffering if they practice the mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction.

+ The suffering does not go away on its own. To avoid being decomposed and destroyed by negative ideologies and the destructive transformation mechanism. The information in the positive energy particle must have the power of truth in both quantity and quality to control and destroy the harmful information of the original negative particle. After that, the subject must create a positive ideology and practice generating positive energy particles, a sustainable transformation mechanism. Then, each agony will be freed from the poison of negative energy particles.

+ The suffering or liberation from suffering all comes from within each subject. That is the nature of the information within the intellectual wave code of the original yin and yang embryo. Please look at the vibrational wave code, including negative and positive extremes. The picture depicts the smallest energy particle with the truth of the universe as a single particle, not a yin and yang embryo; it is a positive energy particle used to describe you. You can see that in that positive particle's vibrational wave codes, there are positive and negative information values. Each stored information value is a secret that has been encoded due to the information reaction that the subject that created it made. Those information values are only revealed when they interact with the external environment that is similar information to their nature.

Now, you continue to relax; don't try to force yourself to understand what is analyzed in this lesson the first time you study and listen to it. To fully understand, you need to learn the following tasks. Each class will be a key among the keys to open the door to understanding the three secrets that humans and tuelinhs are searching for.

When you finish studying this lesson, reread it and listen to it many times. Then, you release the truth of the universe in the smallest particle of energy to become yourself. It means that you are a subject with a yin and yang embryo, and the universal truth of the production of energy particles in this lesson is the universal truth of your life. Whether you have produced negative or positive particles, try to understand them. You will continue to do the same thing as today in the lesson on the truth of enlightenment with the smallest particle of energy."

Chapter Eighteen

The Truth of Enlightenment with the Knowledge of the Smallest Energy Particle

"Teacher, I feel lucky to have learned the knowledge of your two truths over the years. In the early years, when he spread enlightened knowledge, he did not teach about understanding energy particles as he does now. At that time, I saw myself and many others misunderstanding enlightenment knowledge. People remembered very well what the teacher taught. Still, they mistook it even though the teacher reminded them that learning must go hand in hand with practice to understand knowledge accurately. People misunderstand and then spread the wrong understanding. When someone tells them about their misunderstanding, they become arrogant, that they are people with profound knowledge. That has caused conflicts between learners. I could not explain their mistakes at that time even though I understood that they thought and acted wrongly.

However, since I learned the knowledge of energy particles associated with the two truths, I have understood why you remind and warn of many problems that students easily fall into. The knowledge of energy particles has analyzed all the secrets and nature of humans and tuelinhs on their practising journey in the human world, especially the toxins of those who learn and practice enlightened knowledge. Before, when you reminded everyone, and everyone just thought and talked to each other, why did you remind them so much? However, attachment, jealousy, and superiority between people and between students are extremely dangerous.

When I apply the knowledge of the two truths with energy particles to analyze all the problems of myself and everyone else, I find it highly magical. Everything you have said so far is correct when explained in terms of the smallest particle of energy. I and some of my friends who have learned from you over the years feel highly excited about your current special knowledge. Nothing can describe my and everyone else's feelings about this knowledge, even though it is difficult to understand everything you teach." A student studying his knowledge confided in him during lunch break when he finished his lecture on the truth of everything with the smallest energy particle.

The private office is also the teacher's and some students' lunch break. When other students enjoyed a nap to stay awake in the afternoon for studying, the teacher and that student talked to each other just barely audible. At that time, the teacher replied, "I have said there are two ways to learn enlightenment knowledge; one is to learn it after going through the sufferings of life, and the other is to learn it from knowledge taught by Nalas Nalanda. When there are too many toxins in learners, they easily become disobedient, and they also easily become arrogant and complacent about the intelligence and supernatural powers they possess. Then, they try to deduce the teachings of enlightenment according to their ignorant wisdom, and they pass on their mistakes to others. When people listen, they have no standards or references to compare, so they easily follow the mistakes of those who transmit knowledge. That is a part of the reason for this life's mission to create the most transcendent type of enlightened knowledge. As for disobedient students, please return them to the flow of samsara and cause and effect. Practical lessons in suffering will help them eliminate toxins in them. At that time, they will destroy the poison of pride and concentrate on studying and practising according to the knowledge of the two truths."

When everyone in the afternoon class began to quiet down and wait for the teacher's new lecture, the teacher said in a deep voice, "This morning, you have discovered the truth of the universe with the smallest particle of energy. This afternoon, we continue the lesson about the truth of enlightenment in the smallest energy particle.

When you finish studying this lesson, you will be happy because you have almost understood two of the three secrets that tuelinhs and humans are searching for. After a few more classes, you will completely understand the two secrets and a bit about destructive energy. You will no longer worry because you fear misunderstanding and incorrectly practising what knowledge instructs. Instead, you become confident and strong in the practice of knowledge when you have the nature of energy particles as the standard and reference for enlightenment teachings.

The truth of enlightenment in the smallest energy particle includes two steps:

1. Step 1: Analyze the theory of the truth of enlightenment to understand its value for humans and tuelinhs.

The theory of the truth of enlightenment is: Ah, life is full of suffering! All tuelinhs, spiritual beings, and humans must face, become enlightened, and be liberated from all suffering.

"Ah, life is full of suffering!" Do you understand the meaning of this exclamation? How do you feel when you say that sentence with the feeling of enlightenment about the truth of suffering? You must know that the truth of enlightenment only exists when each person understands the truth of the universe. That is understanding the reality of human origin, tuelinh, oneself, and the task of practising in the human world in suffering through interactive scenarios to help one's soul mature and become enlightened. At that time, your emotions will burst and exclaim, "Ah, life is full of suffering!" in joy mixed with the hurt of suffering and tribulations in the human world. The fun and excitement are because you have learned the truth, and as a result, you are achieving initial achievements in your spiritual journey. Your achievement is suffering. However, you still have the hurt of suffering because of the ignorance that still exists in your wisdom and soul. On the contrary, people who do not understand the above truths, when they read that sentence, only feel more pain and resentment towards life because they feel that life is too unfair to them.

"All tuelinhs, spiritual beings, and humans must face all suffering." Why must it be all sentient beings, tuelinhs, and humans? Because all is equal, and all is formed from the smallest particles of energy from the universe's original yin and yang embryo - Nalas Nalanda. In addition, the practising practice environment on Earth was created by Nalas Nalanda to help tuelinhs live in human form; low-level souls live in the form of animals, plants, and rocks. All is equal. According to the transformation mechanism, low-level souls can upgrade to become tuelinhs and enlightened beings. Next, why face all the suffering? That's because the practising practice environment on Earth is created with full assurance of maximum pressure and compression to help tuelinhs and lower-level souls express their nature in a simple form. That nature is toxins and goodness. These natures are revealed only when sentient beings, tuelinhs, and humans live and interact in all the scenarios created by the four forms in life. Suffering is the toxins that vibrate and erupt from humans, tuelinhs, and sentient beings. Therefore, we conclude that we must have sufferings to recognize the toxins and then force them out of ourselves. That is one of the tasks on the practising journey, and if we run away or do not face suffering, we will never understand ourselves, everyone, and everything. As a result, our practising path has no destination, and the danger of destruction of tuelinhs and souls exists because of the energy of destruction.

"You must be enlightened and free from all suffering." When we know the truth about our origin and nature, humanity, and tuelinhs, and the mission of practising as human beings is to understand the three secrets that we are searching for in the suffering of life, we must complete that mission. We must learn and understand them through the truth of the universe in all suffering and tribulations. It is enlightenment. Next, we must liberate all agony. It is the practice of forcing out all the toxins and activating the goodness within us to transform the yin and yang embryo into an energy filter.

The Truth of Enlightenment with The Smallest Energy Particle

2. Step two: Analyze the truth of enlightenment in the smallest energy particle.

Please observe the image simulating the truth of enlightenment in energy particles. Compare the differences between the energy particle of ignorance (negative energy particle) and the energy particle of enlightenment (positive energy particle). In particular, look closely at the intellectual wave code of both energy particles from point (1) to point (3) because the secrets of energy particles and all things are encoded and stored in the intellectual wave code of the smallest particle.

To understand the enlightened knowledge in the smallest energy particle, you must read or listen to the universal truth in the smallest energy particle many times. Because the truth of enlightenment is part of the truth of the universe, it is the accurate knowledge of the smallest energy particle to all matter and life in the universe. However, I must separate it into a noble truth equal to the truth of the universe because it is the transformation mechanism of all things. When you clearly understand the truth of the universe, you will quickly understand and practice the truth of enlightenment.

In the image simulating two energy particles above, I divide each energy particle into two extremes, including the extreme of ignorance (yin) and the extreme of enlightenment (yang). Factors such as the internal environment, external environment, points (1), (2), and (3) in the intellectual wave code are all knowledge I analysed in the previous lesson. And now, I only speak two strands of intellectual wave code in the energy particles of ignorance and enlightenment, and you will understand the entire truth of enlightenment in the smallest energy particle.

The intellectual wave code fibre consists of two segments: the intellectual fibre segment from point (2) to number (3) and the vibration wave code segment from point (1) to number (2).

- The intellectual fibre segment: This is the intelligent fibre that manifests and performs the functions and tasks of the intelligence wave code in the smallest energy particle. The roles and functions of the intellectual fibre are conventionally defined at point (2), which is the ideological point. Intelligent fibres and point (3) always perform the correct functions and tasks specified in point (2). That means if point number (2) is created at the yang pole (enlightenment), the wisdom fibre and point number (3) are also formed at the enlightenment pole. On the contrary, if number (2) is formed at the negative extreme (ignorance), the wisdom fibre and number (3) are created at the extreme ignorance. Intellectual fibres are different as they are formed at two other extremes. As follows:

+ Intellectual fibres are created at the positive pole: Yang extreme, also known as the enlightenment pole, has different information values. Therefore, the functions and tasks of each positive intellectual fibre are also other when they are formed in different circumstances, at different times, and with varying information values. That constitutes the power and the manifestation of different functions and tasks among the positive energy particles. It is called the yang energy particle because the wisdom fibre is formed in the yang extreme, so it is also called the yang wisdom fibre. The positive intellectual fibre is the intelligent segment that stores and encodes accurate and comprehensive information values. Such information has value in promoting sustainable development for itself and the external environment.

+ Wisdom fibres are formed at the yin pole: The yin extreme, also known as the ignorant extreme, this extreme has different information values. Therefore, the functions and tasks of each yin intelligence fibre are also other when they are created in different circumstances, at different times, and with varying information values. That constitutes the power and the manifestations of different functions and tasks among the yin energy particles. It is called a negative energy particle because the wisdom fibre is created in the yin extreme, so it is also called the yin wisdom fibre. The negative intelligence fibre is the fibre that stores and encodes missing and false information values. That information causes damage to itself and the external environment when it exceeds the allowable error threshold.

- Vibrational wave code: This is the decoding segment, also known as the function and task convention segment for the intellectual fibre segment in the smallest particle. This decoding segment synthesises the vibration, activation, and connection process between the information in the vibrational wave code of the original yin and yang embryo and the information in the outside environment. This process takes place in tension, even conflict, between the information values of the original yin and yang embryo and the information values of the outside. As follows:

+ Vibrational wave code of the energy particle of ignorance: This vibrational wave code is the product of the process in which the original yin particle of the yin and yang embryo has too much false information, harmful information, or a lack of information. It's called toxic information, also known as toxicity. Because when the subject interacts with a negative environment, negative information is easily absorbed and closely linked to the poisonous information inside. Meanwhile, the accurate information of the original positive particle does not have enough heat and power to decode and control negative information from the outside. And it is not strong enough to handle the harmful information of the original yin particle itself in the yin and yang embryo. As a result, dangerous information links together and forms the ideology at point (2) at the extreme of ignorance. Because the vibrational wave code stores false and malicious information values, it adopts point (2) to form the function and task convention for the intellectual fibre that carries its nature.

+ Vibrational wave code of enlightened energy particle:
In contrast to the vibrational code of the energy particle of ignorance, the vibrational code of the energy particle of enlightenment results from the truth information values. When the original positive energy particle in the yin and yang embryo has accurate and comprehensive information values, it is powerful enough to control the toxic information values in the original yin particle. Therefore, when the subject interacts in any external environment, the power information of the primitive positive particle controls the harmful and false data of the original negative particle and the external environment. The subject only receives accurate information and has value in promoting sustainable development by absorbing information from the original negative particle. The interaction process between the two internal and external information environments under the effective control of the primitive positive particle has helped the newly produced energy particle to have the value of a positive particle. That means that the vibrational wave code of the new energy particle stores accurate information that carries the importance of sustainable development of the original yin and yang embryo and the outside. Therefore, those information values assign functions and tasks to the wisdom fibre of the positive energy particle that has the exact nature through the ideology at point (2) at the positive pole.

Negative energy particles result from the toxic outbreak in human intelligence, tuelinhs, and all things. Positive energy particles result from controlling toxins and activating goodness in human intelligence, tuelinhs, and all things.

The negative energy particle is suffering, forming the mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction. Positive energy particles are the enlightenment of suffering and create a sustainable transformation mechanism.

There are still many secrets in the vibrational wave code; I will continue to analyze it in other lectures. After today's lesson, please connect what you learned from the first lesson to this lesson, and apply the knowledge of the two truths associated with the smallest particle of energy to discover yourself, others, animals, tuelinhs, and everything. You will see the magic of this special enlightened knowledge."

A student immediately told him, "Teacher, from what I have learned from you until now, I understand that ignorance and enlightenment both create the smallest particles of energy through interaction and action of humans and tuelinhs. The practice environment in human form is ideal for understanding the three secrets through the two truths associated with the smallest energy particle. In particular, enlightenment and liberation from suffering create values that are positive energy particles with the characteristics of sustainable development. From the Teacher's knowledge values, everyone has accurate standards and references for what they learn and practice. Now, I want to scream loudly because of the overflowing emotions when I partly understand the values of the two truths you taught. It is the guideline, the solid foundation for everyone to practice the path of practice with nothing but suffering in peace to face and enlighten them."

The Teacher smiled and replied, "The secrets and wonderful values of the knowledge of the two truths and energy particles are still in other lessons. It is fascinating for you to explore and practice."

Chapter Nineteen

The Love Story and Mechanism of Destructive Transformation

It's raining outside. The rain signals the transition from autumn to winter. Everyone noticed that their bodies shivered from the cold mixed with falling raindrops when walking in the rain. The teacher made tea in his office to enjoy hot tea after walking in the freezing rain of early winter. He enjoys quiet moments with cups of tea when working alone. At that time, he was reflecting on his students and classes. They carry different diseases, making them think negatively and suffer. They are always worried and afraid of their illness, and they hope for knowledge and healing methods from the teacher. He understands everything they are thinking and going through. Therefore, he always encourages them whenever he meets them in or outside class. The words of encouragement and stories he told made the students feel that he was indeed a super-psychologist. The words the teacher said not only help their minds have a comprehensive understanding to solve the complex problems they encounter, but they are also profound words to awaken their souls to become solid and forceful.

While the teacher was thinking about the sick people, the door to the room suddenly opened slightly. The teacher's two brothers of students walked in and shivered from the cold of the winter raindrops. They came to the teacher's office when he didn't have a weekday class. The teacher named the older brother Truong Nalanda and the younger brother Duong Nalanda. The two cousins have followed him for many years, travelling with him to many places in different countries, and they have always accompanied him through difficulties. The teacher and students talked while sipping cups of hot tea together.

Afterwards, the teacher confided to the two students, "In the case of the mentally ill girl, it was a pity for that young girl when her parents gave up on treating their child. I told them from the beginning that to heal their daughter, she would have to let out conflicts to be completely cured. But when she broke out after years of being suppressed by daily doses of psychiatric medication, her parents became frightened and put her back on medication. Like other mental patients and hallucinations, that girl has had to take psychiatric medication for over ten years. Such sick people always see images that no one else sees and always hear words that no one hears. The words are sometimes gentle and affectionate, sometimes angry and insulting. The images are demons, sometimes images of people they love. It is very diverse in images and sounds in the patient's mind. However, their parents, relatives, and spouses do not understand that it is a disease of the soul. It is not a disease of the body or the brain. As in the case of that young girl, I explained to her parents the truth about mental illness and hallucinations and called it a disease of the soul. No medicine can cure the disease of the soul. Medicine can only cure physical illnesses. However, perhaps her parents deliberately did not understand when they said the words that showed their ignorance when they said their child was crazy. Perhaps out of pride and fear of people around them knowing their child had a mental illness when their daughter was in conflict, they decided to give her doses of medicine to suppress her brain. That makes the patient's body and brain weak and lifeless, like zombies without a soul inside." "Teacher, mentally ill people live in their world with images and language only they know and understand. They always see repeating images and hear conversations in their heads. Why does that happen? Can you explain that matter to me more?" A question from Duong. The teacher replied, "There are two problems in their souls: the transmutation mechanism and the information disorder in the energy particle system within them. Regarding information disorder, I will analyze it for everyone to hear in the next class. Now, I explain the transmutation mechanism that those mentally ill people and that girl practised in past lives. To help you understand the mechanism of destructive transformation, I will show you the process of what that girl's soul did in recent life.

You know, she is a beautiful and talented girl in this life. Such a girl is the pride of her parents. However, when that girl reached the age of love and began to have her heart moved by her first love, she lost control of her thoughts and actions. She thinks and talks about things that aren't true, sometimes screaming and hurting others. She saw images of a wonderful man, whom she always thought was her lover and husband.

Unusual expressions in her thoughts and actions made her parents believe demons possessed her. However, after many rituals to eliminate monsters, she never lost those phenomena. Her parents continued to take her to the hospital, and she was diagnosed with schizophrenia. She then took psychiatric medication every day. Drugs have controlled uncontrolled actions, but in the mind, there are always images of the man who is not accurate. The effects of the drug made her lose her vitality, and her body became like a living corpse without a soul.

Return to that girl's previous life, that was a man. He was a handsome and beautiful boy. He was born into a wealthy family, and his parents had a high societal position. When that boy grew up, his beauty made many men think he was a girl. His words and actions are gentle, like other beautiful girls. He always felt that inside his body was not a man but a woman. He did not share his questions about the differences in his body and emotions with anyone. He buried those secrets in his heart. His feelings changed when he met another beautiful boy. After chatting a few times, they knew each other's secrets, and the other boy was just like him. But because society at that time discriminated against people of the same sex loving and living together, they decided to hide the secret of their same-sex love. The boy became desperate and miserable when his parents arranged a wedding for him with another girl from a noble family. Because he could not disobey his parents, he married the girl and had two children. When the other boy heard that his lover was getting married, he became miserable and went to another place to live. Even though he was married and had two beautiful children, that man always missed his same-sex lover. Although he was with his wife and children, he could never forget the image of that man. Those sufferings tormented him for many years. After knowing where the other man was, he left his family behind, leaving his wife and children behind to go to the other man's side. When they met, they were delighted. Then they decided to go somewhere else together to live together. Those two men gave each other sincere love until the end of their lives. Meanwhile, the man's parents, wife, two children, and brother's family were miserable. The wife lived in loneliness and resentment towards her husband. The two young children lived and grew up in the care of their mother, grandparents, and brother's family."

"Teacher, why do those two men have feelings and love each other?" "Nothing is natural. In many previous lives, both of them gradually changed their erroneous thinking about gender. At first, it was just because they were betrayed in love between men and women; then, they didn't believe in love between men and women. Next, the bigger changes were that they thought they would be safe in same-sex love. And then, they came together and lived together as husband and wife. Sometimes, people's living environment causes them to imitate each other's wrong way of life, and false information causes them to change their thoughts and actions. The girl's case resulted in her suffering from mental illness in this life." "Teacher, the false information that girl's soul received over many lifetimes caused that soul to become out of control and form manifestations of mental illness." "Right. As follows:

Since that girl's tuelinh began to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world, that soul has gone through many lifetimes of practice. Because each tuelinh will have to live in four life forms, they will produce four main groups of energy particles. I will analyze this in detail in future lessons. In each group, there are many clusters of energetic particles. Each particle cluster has many aggregated positive energy particles linked together by aggregated neutral particles. The synthesized harmful energy particles will vibrate around the synthesized positive particles when they have the same information content. That girl's soul, like other tuelinhs, has a cluster of love particles in its structure. That means that thoughts and actions motivated by love will create energy particles that carry the information of love. The love particle cluster has many synthetic positive particles created during many lifetimes of practice as a human being.

You need to remember that when a man and a woman love each other and give each other true love to become husband and wife, positive love energy particles are produced in their souls. Anger, negative thoughts and actions will later produce harmful particles of love. Those energy particles create and make the soul more mature and more robust. However, when they are fed false information and then take actions that hurt each other, their souls will produce many negative particles of love. That's when that man left his wife and children to find happiness with a same-sex lover. That soul created a lot of harmful particles due to false information. Those negative particles gather around the few positive particles of love in the soul. That means the structure of that soul's love particle group is imbalanced. There are too many harmful particles surrounding one positive particle. In contrast, the balanced system has a 1:1 ratio between negative and positive particles.

As a result, in this life, that soul lives in a girl's body and suffers from mental illness with signs of hallucinations about the man from her previous life. The girl's illness broke out when she fell in love. When that girl thought about love because she reached the age of love, those thoughts activated information in the harmful particles of love created in the past. Because there are too many harmful particles of love, the positive particles cannot control them. As a result, images of the lover, sounds, language, and actions are stored in harmful particles transmitted to the girl's brain. That information controls all of the girl's thoughts and actions. That makes many people think demons possess them, and medicine cannot explain this disease."

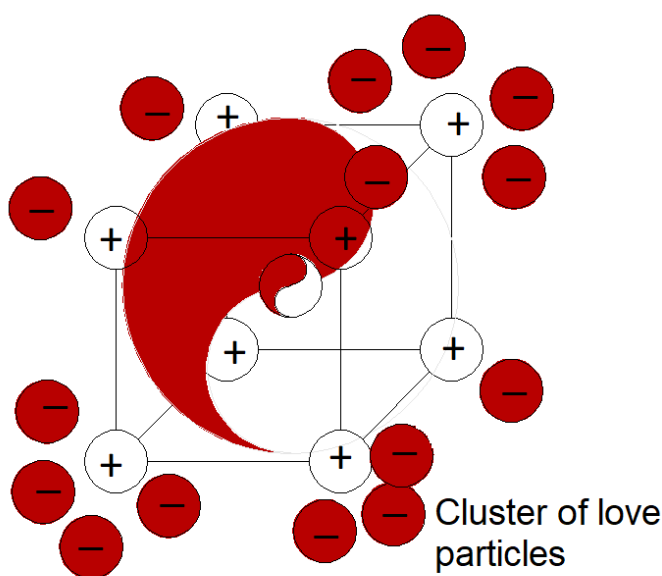

Truong Nalanda asked the teacher, "Teacher, please explain in more detail about the production of negative energy particles in the previous life when that girl was a man. After that, he left his family to live with his same-sex lover. Because many people think that it is impossible to produce negative energy particles if they are happy with the person they love." The teacher laughed and answered, "People who steal are happy after they take valuable things from others. Killers are happy because they kill others. People who slaughter animals are happy because they have a lot of money selling animal meat. Do they also produce positive energy particles because their emotions are satisfied and happy? You must analyze from the source that tuelinhs must incarnate as humans to practice in all interactive scenarios. The purpose is to release the toxin, eliminate it, and finally activate goodness.

Next, in the conference gathering humanity, Nalas Nalanda had four teachings. Even if we analyze and expand those four teachings, none allow people of the same sex to marry to become a family and birth children. It can be said that nature does not allow that to happen. God let tuelinhs incarnate into male or female bodies to help them eliminate toxins, then activate goodness. He does not put any soul in the wrong body. The cause is information disorder in souls because they absorb harmful information from the outside environment, and it transforms them. Although that man was happy with another man in his previous life, he abandoned his children, wife, and parents to satisfy the selfishness of same-sex love. He fails to bring the value of sustainable development to everyone around him and his own family. That soul has produced countless negative particles, from false information to actions that hurt people." "Teacher, I now understand the nature of that girl's case. If we don't analyze the nature of information and energy particles, I think people will misunderstand the nature of things and phenomena. As a result, people continued to wallow in ignorance."

Then the teacher continued, "If you want to thoroughly understand why people suffer from all kinds of mental illnesses, even many incurable diseases, you must understand the knowledge of the two truths in the smallest energy particle in previous lessons. When people have ignorant wisdom, their minds become ignorant, leading to evil actions. It interacts with other people, animals, and things to produce harmful energy particles. Producing negative energy particles is practising the mechanism of reincarnation, decay and destruction. The soul will not make any positive and neutral energy particles in one reaction when producing harmful energy particles. When no positive and neutral energy particles are created, those harmful particles will not have new positive energy particles to bond to form a new, stable structure. Therefore, harmful particles find positive particles already in the system with the same or similar information to connect. At that time, those positive particles lose heat and are unbalanced by the newly born harmful particles.

Negative Multiparticle Structure

Please look closely at the image simulating several clusters of harmful particles in a synthetic energy particle structure outside the yin and yang embryo of the soul to understand the mechanism of harmful particle production.

Each tuelinh or soul has countless clusters of energy particles outside the yin and yang embryo; each set has many positive energy particles with the same information group. When people release toxins in any interaction scenarios in human life, they will live ignorant of those interactions. Then, false information from the outside is absorbed and linked to the toxic information of the negative particle. They control the original positive particle, and people act ignorant because the toxins operate them. As a result, harmful particles are produced in abundance. It is made in any group of interaction scenarios where the poison is released. As a result, many clusters of harmful particles in the soul, meaning many negative particles vibrate around a positive particle. When a soul has negative multiparticle groups, that soul will have mental illness. If there are multiple clusters of negative multiparticles, they become uncontrolled and result in being disintegrated by destructive energy. I tell you a secret of destructive energy. The energy of destruction must move into an environment with negative heat and energy structures to discharge excess heat. The redundant heat of it is hazardous, and it will disintegrate the structure of matter when it enters. When tuelinhs, people, and all things in the universe vibrate due to losing control of excess harmful particles, the destructive particles will catch the signal and move. When they get rid of excess heat, they live longer. On the contrary, when exposed to their heat, the tuelinh, soul, and physical structures will break apart and disintegrate until complete destruction. Disconnection and decomposition cause all information systems in the tuelinh to become disordered. Depending on the level of confusion and decay, it manifests into different types of mental illnesses and dangerous pathologies.

Some people are only mentally ill because of a cluster of energy particles with many harmful particles. Some people have more severe mental illness when there are many clusters of energy particles with many harmful particles. Some people even have many groups of energy particles with many harmful particles. From there, the severity of the disease also varies.

When humans and tuelinhs practice producing harmful energy particles, they will become disintegrated by destructive energy. That is the mechanism of transmutation, decay and destruction. Diseases of the soul are manifestations of the process of decay.

Thus, you see the painful results of every tuelinh when they do not understand the three secrets through the two truths to reform themselves to become sustainable. The suffering in the souls of people with mental illnesses and dangerous diseases is part of the manifestation of grief when the tuelinhs are decomposed by destructive energy. That is why all tuelinhs desire to incarnate as humans to understand the three secrets. The next is the practice of forcing out toxins and activating kindness. That is practising the mechanism of sustainable transformation, also known as producing positive energy particles. I will analyze the transmutation mechanisms in detail in future lessons. Because if you explain those issues carefully at this stage, it will not be suitable for you and the learners."

The two students immediately replied, "Teacher, the more you explain energy particles, the more deeply we understand the truth of tuelinhs, people, things, and events. From the knowledge of the two truths associated with energy particles, learners will decode and understand everything. Teacher, it's amazing."

Chapter Twenty

A Symbol of Sustainable Transformation

In the following days, the winter weather became increasingly colder after the first rain of the season. People have put on thicker clothes to adapt to the change in temperature. The aroma of the hot cup of tea that the teacher and two students were sitting, enjoying, and chatting was emanating from the teacher's office. Cups of hot and fragrant tea and stories about people who effectively practised the knowledge of the two truths dispelled the cold outside. Their bodies and the space of the office became warm as the teacher told them about the wonderful people and souls who have devoted their time and values to help countless people. That is a remarkable thing about the nature of information. When people chat with each other because of toxic and harmful information, it will cause their minds to become confused and their bodies to become cold or tired quickly. On the contrary, when people tell each other about good deeds, stories where people help each other to bring sustainable development values, everyone's minds become happy, and their bodies become warm. That is the power of information. That power includes both good and bad values. The important thing is that each person chooses which values to listen to and practice.

Truong Nalanda said to the teacher, "Teacher, when people learn the knowledge of the two truths and understand it, for some reason, they do not practice the mechanism that produces positive energy particles. I understand that there will not be positive energy particles in their souls containing the true information of all things and the universe. It is also a pity for them not to be able to take advantage of valuable information to convert into actions to help people. Teacher, will that information remain in their souls if they only study but do not practice?" "Of course, not practising the production of positive energy particles is a pity for them. They will have to experience life in human form in the human world with many more human lives. However, because they have learned knowledge that contains valuable truth information, it will be easier for them to activate their compassion in their next life. That means that good information, valuable information for sustainable development, is still stored in their original yin and yang energy embryos. Thus, the fact that people learn and have faith in enlightened knowledge is a wonderful thing. Babies need to learn so that their souls have the power to overcome future mental illnesses if those souls have a lot of harmful information inside. All people of different ages should also learn the knowledge of the two truths to heal and prevent mental illness and disease. The power of true information and its value not only heals the sick but also helps everyone overcome suffering. From then on, everyone becomes healthy in wisdom, soul, and body." Duong Nalanda told the teacher, "Thus, having true information and sustainable development values is a prerequisite for every human being and every tuelinh to practice the path of sustainable transformation." "Yes. Information is all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. There is nothing that is not information."

Then, the teacher told the two students, "You already know Loi Nalanda. He is a symbol of the sustainable transmutation mechanism. The stories about him are very long, but I will discuss the main contents that demonstrate the sustainable transformation mechanism in his soul.

Currently, he is over sixty years old. His life can be considered fulfilling from family, business, social relationships, and spreading enlightened knowledge of the two truths to everyone. When he was born, the country was engulfed in war to protect the homeland of all people. The sufferings of poverty and death are present everywhere in the country. At that time, no one was not in poverty, not even able to go to school. Young men had to go to war, and countless people had to leave their bodies behind on the tragic battlefields. He was no exception and had to go to the battlefield when he grew up. However, as if by some miracle, he did not have to join combat. Instead, he joined the logistics and information transmission unit behind the combat units. Fortunately, he did not have to fire a bullet at the soldier on the other side of the front line. After many years in the army, both during the war and when the country was at peace, he left the military to return to the capital, where he was born, to build a career.

When he left the army and returned home, that was also the time when the country began to innovate. That creates many opportunities for economic development in production and trade for people. Realizing the opportunity to develop the economy and life when the country innovates, he decided to participate in trading essential goods for people's lives. Although he did not study at any university, his analytical ability and business thinking are very sharp. The predictions and appropriate decisions have helped him develop his career from strength to strength. So far, his business has created a lot of jobs for people. The career he built is the dream of countless people. That is having a happy family with mature and talented children and helping many people at work and in life.

As if something was compelling in his heart, he learned about Buddhism and admired the Buddha's compassionate wisdom. That was the beginning of his journey to research knowledge in Buddhism. After many years of studying and experiencing the research and practice of Buddhist teachings, he decided to learn and practice the understanding of the two truths." Truong Nalanda interrupted the teacher, "Teacher, I also know many stories about soldiers during wartime. They did not shoot any bullets at the people on the other side of the front line even though they participated in combat units; those were doctors. They even saved soldiers' lives on the other side of the battle line. As if, by some miracle, they were not killed by the harshness of war. Just like in the case of Loi Nalanda, can you explain why such people safely survived harsh wars?" "Nothing is natural. Inside them are wonderful souls. You must understand that when each tuelinh practices in the human world, they will have to go through all the scenarios of human life, including war. From those harsh interactions, the toxins and goodness of the tuelinh will be revealed and activated. Some people are satisfied with killing people when they release toxins from their souls. When kindness is activated, some people do not kill anyone; instead, they save everyone in need without discrimination. People have holy souls because, in their past lives, they have produced countless positive energy particles to help and save people, animals, and all living things. Those positive energies help their soul structure mature through a sustainable transformation mechanism. In their souls, they store and encode countless pieces of truthful information with sustainable development. Therefore, when they interact in extreme scenarios and compression, the good information in their souls will miraculously help them overcome suffering. That is their good karma enjoyed by the good deeds they have practised to help others in their past lives."

Truong Nalanda continued to ask the teacher, "Can you explain more about why he could become a talented person in business without going to any university?" The teacher said, "It is a matter of information being encoded and stored in the energy particle system of his soul. In many past lives, he was a talented and virtuous businessman. He was not only talented in business and production, but he had helped countless people when they were poor or encountered suffering. His actions of helping people with his wealth, wisdom, and compassion have helped his soul produce countless positive energy particles. Those positive energy particles connect to help the soul become mature. That is the uniform maturation of all groups of energy particles that have been produced. It includes manufacturing business, enlightened wisdom, compassion, family, love for people, and many other positive energy particles. Those energy particles encode and store information about all the processes in which the soul in the body interacts and completes actions. Because he had many lives as a talented businessman, the intellectual information of a talented businessman was stored in his soul. Even though this person did not attend any enrichment or business school, he still had plenty of intelligence to make business decisions and insight into market analysis. When encountering difficulties in work and business in this life, information from the soul will be transmitted to the brain to help him find the best solution to solve the difficulties. That valuable information was created by his experience solving difficulties in his previous life as a businessman."

Duong Nalanda immediately asked the teacher, "Teacher, people with no experience and no information about the production business in their past lives. In this life, they want to become talented and successful business people. What do they need to do to be successful in this life?" "First of all, don't try to get rich regardless. Everyone should study well in school when possible. Next, find talented people in business and production to work for them. Learn good qualities from them and what they practice to succeed at work. Then, practice business or production on a small scale. Maybe try a few times for that practice. If there are positive energy particles of business achievements in the soul in past lives, luck and success will come immediately. If they don't have luck or success, stop getting rich and continue cultivating knowledge from successful people by working for them. At that time, they should practise doing business on a tiny scale. If everyone tries to get rich at all costs and makes large investments, everyone will be mired in failure and suffering. The reason is that the soul has no experience because it has never been successful in business in a past life. Those with a lot of negative energy in their souls due to various types of mental illness do not desire to get rich. They should only work to care for their family and have a good life. When these people try to get rich, they fail. Because their negative energy contains harmful information that will control all positive energy, they are not smart enough to perceive right from wrong. That leads to actions that violate the law and sell harmful products to everyone and animals. Their decisions will always be wrong. Such people need to heal their mental illness, gradually cultivate their intelligence and practice business on a tiny scale. You should remember that life's purpose is not to get rich."

Truong Nalanda told the teacher, "What he has done from his past lives to this life are all wonderful things." The teacher smiled and said, "It is truly incredible. When you know what he did, you will admire and be proud of him. His practices of activating goodness symbolise the sustainable mechanism of transformation.

In many past lives, every time the tuelinh in me incarnated as a human to practice and carry out missions, his tuelinh also incarnated as a human and accompanied me. In particular, during the most challenging times on my practising journey, he was always present and helped me overcome them. He helps me solve difficulties and always strives to spread enlightened knowledge to everyone.

Especially in this life, I don't know how to thank him for what he has done for me. With that help, completing my mission of spreading knowledge to everyone would be easier. He helped to publish the book versions of the two truths and distribute them. In particular, the wisdom of the two truths can spread worldwide thanks to his help. In addition, he is still diligently sharing and helping people with the knowledge of the two truths. Therefore, he is a wonderful Nalanda and a great symbol of the sustainable transformation mechanism because, without him, people in the world would not be able to access the knowledge of the two truths. Besides, many other Nalandas have been trying to help and save people with the wisdom of the two truths. They are also great symbols of the mechanism of sustainable transmutation."

After listening to the teacher share the story about Loi Nalanda, the teacher and two students continued to enjoy the new pot of hot tea. The atmosphere in the room becomes hotter because of the positive information transmitted between people.

At that time, the teacher explained the mechanism of sustainable transformation to the two students, "When each person practices the mechanism of producing positive energy particles, it will help the soul inside to create negative and positive energy particles, and neutral fully. Positive energy particles have extreme and stable positive heat, neutral particles are durable, and harmful particles have just enough negative heat to do the job. That is the mechanism of sustainable transmutation. At this point, you and everyone will also wonder why only harmful particles are produced when producing energy particles according to the mechanism of destructive transformation. While producing energy particles according to the sustainable transmutation mechanism, are all three types of energy particles produced? The main differences are:

- When the tuelinh produces energy particles according to the mechanism of destructive transformation: This energy particle production mechanism involves the participation of both the original positive and negative energy particles in the yin and yang embryo. Harmful energy particles will absorb false or missing information, also known as external toxins, through point (1) in the intellectual wave code strand. Positive energy particles have the task of decoding the data absorbed. Because the nature of the positive energy particle is to radiate heat from itself, when the heat of the positive energy particle is weak or not strong enough, it cannot decode or prevent external information that the negative particle absorbs. It can be seen that the positive energy particle negates the value of the knowledge absorbed by the negative particle because its internal information does not match the external data. The positive energy particle may store some information from the outside environment. However, more is needed for its intellectual wave code strand to copy into a new intellectual wave code strand. The principle to copy a new intellectual wave code is enough information after the interaction process of the human subject. After that, the action process and completion follow the convention of point (2) in the intellectual wave code. Only the original negative energy particle accepts and stores toxic information from the outside, while the original positive energy particle does not accept the data stored by the negative particle. Therefore, only harmful energy particles are produced. While the original positive particle does not have good enough information, human actions are governed by the ideology of point (2) in the original negative particle, so no positive and neutral energy particles are produced.

- On the contrary, when the tuelinh produces energy particles according to the mechanism of sustainable transformation:

Balanced Structure Between Yin and Yang Particles

In this mechanism, both original yin and yang particles participate in producing energy particles. The original negative energy particle will absorb information from the outside environment in the control of the primitive positive energy particle. Because of the power of positive heat, the original positive energy particle controls the negative energy particle in selecting external information until that information is absorbed. Also, the initial positive energy particle can prevent the toxins of the original negative particle with its extreme heat. Because the positive particle participates in the process of selecting and controlling the external information absorbed by the negative particle, the absorbed information is stored in both the intellectual wave code fibres of the original negative and positive particles. That is accurate information that has value for sustainable development. Therefore, keeping that information in both strands of the original yin and yang wisdom wave code helps eliminate the toxins of the original yin particle and activate the goodness value in the yang particle. When the human subject completes the action, the tuelinh will produce a negative particle with a feeble harmful heat, a positive energy particle with extreme positive heat, and an additional neutral particle. All three types of precious energy particles are produced by the ideology at point (2) of the positive particle when it wins and controls all the internal and absorbed external information. Creating energy particles according to this mechanism during the practising journey in the human world has helped tuelinh have a balanced structure between yin and yang energy particles.

As shown in the image simulating the balanced structure of energy particles synthesized in the tuelinh structure, you will see: positive energy particles have extreme positive heat, neutral particles make a solid bond between positive particles, and harmful energy particles have feeble negative heat. This structure helps the tuelinh mature quickly and have the power to control the energy of destruction. The toxic energy particles vibrate weakly, and the destructive energy will not move much. Because the positive energy particle system has a highly positive heat, it is strong enough to detonate destructive energy particles that attack tuelinhs. At that time, the tuelinh absorbs the heat after the explosion of destructive energy into the original yin and yang embryo. That heat is precious; it helps the yin and yang embryo have the power of yang heat to squeeze out all the toxins in the original yin particle and create the ability to copy many positive, negative, and neutral energy particles in one reaction.

Therefore, when humans practice sustainable transformation, it means that the tuelinh is practising the mechanism of absorbing destructive energy, detonating it, and transforming it into producing many more powerful energy particles than the energy particles in the tuelinh that were born before. To operate and explode destructive energy, I will have profound lessons for everyone in the following classes."

The two students immediately said, "Teacher, then the process of eliminating the toxins of the yin particle, activating the goodness of the yang particle, and transforming the destructive energy is carried out at the sustainable producing mechanism of energy particles, right teacher?" "Right. It is the art of producing particles after tuelinhs and humans achieve enlightenment. If enlightened wisdom is not achieved, it will become a decay and destruction mechanism. Therefore, thoroughly understanding the wisdom of enlightenment in the two truths is a prerequisite for practising the sustainable mechanism of transmutation."

Chapter Twenty-One

Mind Dharma

It was the middle of the night outside. The streetlights made the entire capital shine brightly at night. On the roads in the city, people still have to travel at night to make a living. The sounds of the vehicles they were moving in dispelled the silence of the night. At that time, the teacher fell into a deep sleep. While sleeping, the tuelinh in the teacher left his body and returned to his homeland, a paradise filled with miracles due to the crystallization of energy groups. The master's tuelinh moves very quickly and in a hurry. When arriving at the temple, the teacher's place of work and teaching in heaven, several tuelinhs stood outside. After they greeted him, he immediately said to them, "You summon twenty-four mature tuelinhs into the temple for me." After receiving the request from the teacher, they immediately went to summon them back to the temple.

While I was sitting inside the temple and waiting for the tuelinhs to arrive, Chap and Giac came, and they entered the temple. They greeted the teacher and sat in front facing him. Giac immediately asked his teacher, "Father, you summoned us. Is there anything you want to teach us?" "Yes, I have an

After that, all twenty-four of the most mature tuelinhs were present inside the temple, and they appeared surprised to be summoned so suddenly. Then the teacher said, "I know you have questions because of this sudden summons. Among you, most reside in human form in the human world, and only a few tuelinhs are preparing to incarnate as humans. You are the most mature, wisest, and accomplished tuelinhs of all the tuelinhs. That is one of the reasons I summoned you and not other tuelinhs. In addition, after I completed the first mission in the human world, which was to upgrade the single energy filter to become a dual energy filter, I developed the enlightened knowledge of the two truths to become the most extraordinary enlightened wisdom. That is enlightened wisdom with a close combination of knowledge of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy. When I create that knowledge, it isn't easy for humans and tuelinhs to understand. However, after many years in the human world, I have researched and transformed them into knowledge that humans and souls can quickly and accurately understand. In particular, you are mature tuelinhs; you have almost achieved the ability to transform yin and yang energy embryos into single energy filters. The unique enlightened wisdom I have just created will help you achieve complete achievements in this human life. The final reason I summoned you from the human world here when your bodies were asleep was that through this particular knowledge, you would recognize me in the human world. Because there are many different religious, philosophical, and ideological views in the current human world, it is difficult for my children to recognize right from wrong and the value of that knowledge. Therefore, identifying me and my knowledge is a big challenge when you have to wear a body infected with different ideologies in the human world. Missing this unique knowledge and human life will cause you to lose the opportunity to transform your yin and yang energy embryo successfully. If you miss this life, you must wait for a long time. When I incarnate as a human, you will have the next chance.

When you listen to this particular lecture of mine, your yin and yang embryos will store and encode that unique information. Therefore, when you encounter that knowledge, and I am in the human world, the information within you will help awaken you to recognize and learn enlightened wisdom from me. Remember, my children, it is our duty for me to find you and for you to find me."

One of the tuelinhs immediately asked, "Father, do you teach this special knowledge in the human world?" Nalas Nalanda replied, "I will teach this knowledge in the human world. To make it easier for people to understand when learning, I have converted them into detailed lectures in the simplest language. You try to remember what I teach you today."

Then, he preached to the tuelinhs, "The special knowledge I teach you is the Mind Dharma. It is the super intelligence of expertise of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy. The mind dharma is the root of all dharmas; is the past, present, and future of all dharmas; is all the wisdom of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe; is the nature and operating mechanism of all things in and out of the universe; is the destruction or sustainable development of all things; and especially the miraculous path to becoming enlightened human beings and tuelinh beings. When I teach this knowledge in the human world, I call it information. Information is mind dharma and mind dharma is information.

When you understand this teaching of mind dharma, you will quickly and thoroughly understand the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy. At that time, you will thoroughly understand the three secrets that tuelinhs and humans are searching for. Next, your immeasurable power is to practice the sustainable transformation mechanism to achieve a dual energy filter in the yin and yang embryo.

It would be best if you remembered that practising in the human world is not about finding enlightened wisdom in meditation, it is not about looking for enlightenment by running away from suffering, and it is not about seeking magic and rituals. You must go through the suffering of all the interacting scenarios of the four forms of human life; then, you will understand the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment. To help you quickly achieve achievements on the path of practice, I give you the wisdom of the mind dharma. It is both easy to understand and complicated to understand; it is easy and complex to enlighten. You must know that just because you memorize this knowledge does not mean you understand and enlighten it. You comprehend and enlighten it through practising the sustainable transmutation mechanism in the human world.

Mind dharma includes, “dharma within dharma, dharma outside dharma, dharma unites dharma, and dharma denies dharma.” You must remember that sentence carefully. It is the key for you to understand the knowledge of the two truths in the smallest particle of energy and the three secrets. When you comprehend them and practice generating positive energy particles, you will become enlightened. At that time, you will unite your intelligence with everything in the universe to protect and sustainably develop yourself and everything in the universe."

Then, Nalas Nalanda used his magic to simulate the image of two strands of intellectual wave code in the positive and negative energy particles.

Mind Dharma

Positive intellectual wave code

Negative intellectual wave code

He asked the tuelinhs, "Look at the intellectual wave code of the negative and positive energy particles. Do you see the mind dharma in there?"

The tuelinhs stared intently at the two strands of the wisdom wave code for a long time, then they looked at each other with confusion and answered, "Father, we cannot recognize the mind dharma in those two strands of the wisdom wave code." "You continue to observe," the teacher continued.

When the tuelinhs were focusing on observing the two strands of the wisdom wave code, Nalas Nalanda continued to lecture, "The vibrational wave code from point (1) to point (2) in the positive and negative energy particles is stored and encodes a lot to an infinite number of information values. Each information value constitutes a tiny dot in the vibrational code, with countless small dots. Each information value stores a massive amount of information data, including new information outside and old information inside. External information is the images of things, images of interactions and reactions of things, sounds of things, language and emotions of things, ideology and actions of items. The internal data includes the subject's emotions, speech, sounds, images, ideologies, and encoded movements. Those two information environments constitute the new information value to create the intellectual wave code fibre and the smallest new energy particle after being born from the yin and yang energy embryo. Thus, each strand of intellectual wave code is a worldview with an amount of information encoded inside.

1. Dharma within dharma

Dharma within dharma means information within information. This dharma is to help humans and tuelinhs trace the past of all kinds of data stored in the intellectual wave code. This dharma will help you understand the origin and true nature of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe.

Method of finding dharma in dharma:

- The first step is to decode current information to understand past information:

- + Carefully observe tuelinhs, people, animals, and all things, events, or phenomena over a certain period or a long time. That helps my children understand the nature of the manifestations produced by their actions.

- + Classify the value of information just collected from the observation process. The information value can be harmful, causing decay and destruction, or it can be sustainable development.

- + Negative information value is negative energy particle, and positive information value is positive energy particle.

- + Decode the information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre of the energy particles that have been classified and identified. It includes information from the external environment and the original data of the yin and yang embryo.

- + Analyze each unit of information value. Each data unit contains images, languages, emotions, sounds, ideologies, subjects' actions and things stored in the intellectual wave code.

- The second time is to decode information of the past to understand its past:

- + Select some data with interactions and actions of information values decoded the first time and determine whether its value is positive or negative.

- + Convert negative information values into harmful energy particles and positive values into positive energy particles.

- + Continue to decode each unit of information value in the standardized energy particle. Each data unit includes images, languages, emotions, sounds, ideologies, subjects' actions and things stored in the intellectual wave code.

- The following decoding times are similar to the previous times.

For a specific situation: When you see a person showing strange signs, you should observe them for a period of time. Then, you can recognize the manifestations of that person, such as seeing God, Buddha, angels, demons, wild animals, and worship rituals. In addition, that person also hears words about performing rituals to worship Buddha, God or gods. There are even words that advise them to become psychics. Those images and sounds can only be heard and seen by that person. At this point, you will recognize that in that person's soul, there is harmful informational value, and it is stored in negative energy particles. You understand that what they see and hear is dangerous information transmitted from energy particles in their souls. Next, analyze the images and sounds they see and hear: those are actions the soul did in past lives, including killing animals to perform rituals to pray to Buddha or God. Because those acts are killing animals and taking advantage of religious beliefs to deceive people, they constitute harmful energy particles in their souls. At this point, the first step of searching for dharma within dharma is completed. The next time, you do the same as the first to understand why they practised such a harmful life.

2. Dharma outside dharma

Dharma outside dharma is information outside of information. This dharma helps you understand the future and current information values of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe.

Method of searching for dharma outside dharma:

- The first time is to encode future information of current information: That is, to encode information created by the end of the interactive action process between all things into energy particles in the present. Next, classify the data value and that energy particle: information with sustainable development is a positive energy particle, and information with decay is a negative energy particle. Those information values are linked to all things by new action processes and form new energy particles of all things and subjects. These are future information values created based on current information values.

- The second time is encoding future information: After new energy particles are produced, further information is encoded by subjects and things in the following reaction. At the end of that interaction process, new information value is created and encoded into new energy particles. That is future information of future information produced from current data.

- The following times are similar to the previous times.

A specific situation: When I teach enlightened knowledge to our students in the human world, the information values I guide them to help me produce positive energy particles and superparticles in me. That is my current information after each time I teach knowledge. When students learn that knowledge, they recognize that knowledge has value for sustainable development. Next, they absorb that knowledge and practice teaching it to others. Thus, my students' learning and practising expertise to produce positive energy particles in their souls is dharma outside dharma. Next, other people who study from my students continue to share it. Thus, they encode the information learned from my students to form positive energy particles in their souls. Those are the next rounds of external dharma.

3. Dharma unites dharma

Dharma unites dharma, which means that information is similar and consistent in nature and value between them. Therefore, when interacting, these information values will be accepted and linked.

Dharma unites dharma, which includes negative and positive information values:

- Negative information value: Negative information values in the subject's original yin and yang embryo will readily accept and associate with negative information values in the external environment. It is demonstrated when the negative information values of the external environment are stored and encoded at the negative pole of the vibrational wave code in the intellectual wave code fibre of the negative energy particle. This nature causes the toxins in the information of the original yin and yang embryo to become stronger and erupt more violently.

- Positive information value: Positive information values in each subject's internal environment will readily accept and associate with positive information values in the external environment. It is demonstrated when the positive information values of the external environment are stored and encoded at the positive pole of the vibrational wave code in the intellectual wave code fibre of the positive energy particle. This nature helps the sustainable development of the information of the original yin and yang embryo to be activated and become stronger.

This dharma makes the nature of information value within each subject with yin and yang embryos change according to the environment they move through. This transformation forms a decaying transmutation mechanism for negative information values and a sustainable transformation mechanism for positive information values.

4. Dharma denies dharma

This dharma is information that has disagreements and incompatibility in nature and value between them. Therefore, when interacting, these information values will negate each other. However, denying each other causes them to encode a small part of their information value.

Dharma denies dharma, which includes negative and positive informational values:

- Negative information value: Negative information values in the subject's original yin and yang embryo will negate positive information values in the external environment. However, they partially encode positive information in their yin and yang embryos. It is evidenced by the small amount of positive information stored and encoded at the positive pole of the vibrational wave code within the intellectual wave code strand of the negative energy particle. If the negative energy particle has strong to extreme negative heat, that positive information value will make it difficult for the negative information to change its nature into positive.

- Positive information value: Positive information values in the subject's original yin and yang embryo will negate negative information values in the external environment. However, they partially encode negative information in their yin and yang embryos. It is evidenced by the small amount of negative information encoded at the negative pole of the vibrational wave code within the intellectual wave code strand of the positive energy particle. If the positive energy particle has strong to extreme positive heat, the negative information value will hardly change the nature of the positive energy particle. Because the positive energy particle has powerful positive heat, it quickly understands and controls the negative information encoded.

Subjects are denied in nature as they interact and move into different information environments. However, partially encoding each other's opposing information will cause them to gradually change their nature over a long period of interaction in different circumstances.

You must keep the above four types of mind dharma thinking and decoding all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. The four types of mind dharma must be closely linked together into a unified whole of mind dharma. Mind Dharma is the key to understanding and operating the knowledge of the two truths associated with the smallest energy particle.

When the tuelinhs comprehend and have the thinking of the mind dharma, they will move in cosmic space through the information values stored in each other's energy particles. It is a jump through the smallest particle of energy. It is nothing short of magical because it's just movement. The miracle that mind dharma brings to you is understanding your own wisdom and all things in and outside the universe. From there, you will be able to practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production, and the achievement is to transform yin and yang embryos into energy filters.

It's time for you to return to your bodies. Concentrate on thinking about the body form and believe you are in that body. Immediately, you will stay in the body without needing other tuelinhs to take you back."

Immediately afterwards, the tuelinhs returned to their physical forms. In the temple, only Nalas Nalanda and some tuelinhs are left on duty in heaven. After a few conversations between him and the tuelinhs, he settled back into his body. When he returned to his physical form, it was also the time when the teacher woke up when it was almost dawn outside. The thoughts that followed made it impossible for him to continue sleeping. He woke up, went to the balcony and watched the streams of people rushing along the roads mixed with the dawn rays that were gradually appearing. The teacher's feelings at that time became happy when the unique knowledge he created would help people, and tuelinhs basked in it. That knowledge is like sunlight dispelling the darkness of ignorance; it illuminates the truth of everything for tuelinhs and humans to understand and practice.

Chapter Twenty-Two

Information Entanglement and Changing Nature of Information in Different Environments

Like every other weekend in the body, soul and wisdom therapy course, the teacher still comes to class early as usual. In the inside classroom, many students arrived earlier than the teacher, sitting and chatting together. When the teacher entered his office, an older woman sat inside. One student knew the teacher had arrived; she made a pot of tea for him. The woman in the office just greeted the teacher and said nothing. Maybe she waited for the teacher to finish enjoying his tea before talking. Understanding that, when he finished drinking tea, he asked her, "Is there anything wrong?" She immediately replied, "Teacher, you also know my daughter. We have been studying therapy from you for a while. Before studying therapy using the teacher's method, my daughter was diagnosed with schizophrenia by the hospital. My daughter has had to take psychiatric medication every day for many years. Before getting sick, she was a perfect child, polite and well-studied. But since she started working for a while, she got sick. Symptoms include laughing and talking to herself, occasionally screaming, holding her head with her hands and complaining of a headache. My child often loses control of her behaviour, bites me, and even screams and curses at my husband and me. The strange thing is that many times when she's awake, she tells me she doesn't want to be like that or hurt her parents, but she can't control what's inside her. After many years of treatment at the hospital, but her illness could not be cured, I took her to many places, such as temples, to ask people who could help her. They checked and said demons possessed her. Then, they performed rituals to worship and expel the demons from my daughter's body. However, I had to pay them a lot, but my daughter was not cured. I learned that your knowledge could help people with mental illness recover and return to normal life. At first, I didn't believe it. However, after observing sick people who have recovered from learning the teacher's knowledge, I strongly believe this is the only method to save my daughter. Therefore, my child and I have been studying your knowledge for a while now. Listening to the teacher's advice when starting listening to, I no longer let my child take psychiatric drugs. The teacher also explained that after quitting medicine, my daughter would show signs of losing control of her thoughts and behaviour, so parents must help her get through this difficult period. As the teacher said, my daughter developed behaviours such as hitting and biting me. She often badmouthed and scolded her parents." The teacher interrupted, "That is the correct treatment regimen. After the patient quits the psychiatric medication, receiving information through the lecture will stimulate all the negative energy particles in the soul to vibrate. When they shake, toxic information is released into manifestations so that relatives and the patient herself know that it is toxic. At that time, the true information of the lecture being heard catches the conflict signal in the clusters of energy particles in the soul, and they move to the clusters of many negative particles for healing. This process requires time and determination from relatives and the patient. The method of healing mental illness according to two truths is to feed in truthful and comprehensive information to balance and eliminate toxic information. Therefore, quickly recovering from illness depends on the effectiveness of listening and learning knowledge. For people with mental illness, they do not actively listen and receive information. Therefore, parents and relatives are decisive in their healing process. When patients lose control, they don't want to listen, but their parents and relatives have to let them listen all the time, even when they sleep. During the period when the patient suddenly loses control of their behaviour and thoughts during the treatment process, parents must always let them listen to lessons to help them recover quickly. Therefore, you and your family must help her as much as possible and with love." The woman continued, "Teacher, there is one more question I want to ask you. At this stage, my child lost control of her thoughts and behaviours. Whenever she saw me, she would bite and hit me. However, she has less conflict when in an environment with other people, and they help her listen to the teacher's knowledge. Could you please tell me why this is so?" "That question of yours is also the question of family members of other mental patients. That question is related to today's lesson, which is about information entanglement and the changing nature of information in different environments. You and everyone will hear detailed explanations in today's lesson."

After chatting and knowing what she was wondering about that the teacher would explain in today's lesson, she asked him for permission to enter the class to wait for his lecture. She is a devoted mother who has sacrificed for her children for years. Her pride and expectations of her daughter becoming a talented person evaporated during her daughter's illness. Now, that austere mother only hopes that her daughter will recover and return to how she was before she was sick. That is a great wish not only for her but also for her family and relatives.

Mental health diseases have no cure and cannot be cured by medicine from the past to the present because people and scientists do not understand the nature and causes of that disease. The development of medicine has cured body diseases by decoding the human body with its parts. However, when it comes to the soul, humans cannot dissect their structure. Only the teacher is the first person in the human world to examine the structure of the soul, pointing out the nature and causes of all soul problems, especially diseases of the soul. From there, he offers solutions to help people heal illnesses related to mental health. Many people with mental illness, from mild to severe, from newly diagnosed to having had it for over twenty years, have recovered and returned to everyday life like a miracle. They followed the teacher's advice during the process of studying therapy: that is, to quit psychiatric medication after a period of listening to the lesson when a large amount of valuable information has been loaded into the soul. At that time, their souls gain helpful information to deal with conflicts transmitted from the negative energy particle system. His remarkable achievements in applying the knowledge of the two truths over the years have created a firm trust in many patient families. That's why his class has many patients participating in learning and treatment.

When all the students arrived in class, and it was time to lecture, the teacher left the office and went inside the classroom.

The teacher said, "In the previous lessons, you have learned essential lessons for understanding the three secrets every spirit and human being is searching for. That knowledge has explained to you the nature and reasons why some humans and tuelinhs achieve full enlightenment. Besides, it also points out the nature and cause of why tuelinhs and people have mental illness.

Please do not discriminate or shun people with mental illness, whether they are mild or severe. The nature of that disease is due to information disorder in the energy particle structure of the soul. It is not an infectious disease. It does not make you or the patient's family ashamed of the patient. All humans and tuelinhs have varying degrees of severity of information disorder within their structures. If information disorder exceeds the threshold, people will lose control of their thoughts and behaviour. Humans call it mental health problems.

You must understand that, because of the wisdom of tuelinh and human ignorance, it leads to ignorance. When the mind is ignorant, it leads to actions in ignorance. As a result, harmful energy particles are produced according to the mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction. To heal all diseases of body, mind and intellect, you must be fully loaded with accurate information and the value of knowledge of the two truths. Loading in enough valuable information with positive energy will help your soul balance. At that time, you need to practice producing positive energy particles according to the mechanism of sustainable transmutation. It is the perfect process to heal and help the soul mature and become enlightened.

In today's lesson, I will explain the problem of information entanglement and the changing nature of information when moving through different environments of tuelinhs and humans. After this lesson, you will learn an invaluable lesson to apply to your life and appropriately and effectively educate your children and grandchildren.

1. Information entanglement

Please remember the image of the vibrating wave code from point (1) to point (2) of the intellectual wave code in the smallest positive and negative energy particles.

Information entanglement is the connection between negative information values in the original yin particle. It denies information between the original yin and yang embryo and knowledge in the outside environment. However, due to the process of interaction and reaction by actions, an amount of that opposing information was stored and encoded into the vibrational code of the energy particle.

Information entanglement includes negative information values encoded at the cathode in the vibrational code of positive energy particles; Positive information values are encoded at the anode in the vibrating wave code of the negative energy particle; and negative information values are encoded at the negative pole of the vibrational wave code in the negative energy particle.

The nature of each type of information disorder:

- Negative information in positive energy particles: this type of information entanglement is formed in an environment with negative information values. When people or subjects with original yin and yang energy embryos interact and react to harmful information, the negative information is still encoded into the yin pole of the vibrational code. The fact that the positive energy particle encodes malicious information is not that it is linked to external negative information. It is the yin and yang energy embryo process with the power of positive heat to comprehend the truth of all external environmental information. At that time, the harmful information is understood and successfully decoded. Therefore, the negative values of the external environment are transformed by the yin and yang embryo into the truth of the lesson and stored in the new positive particle produced after interacting in that environment. That is the information tangle of the sustainable transformation mechanism through the production of positive energy particles. This information disorder does not cause damage to the yin and yang embryo and tuelinh. In particular, such negative information stimulates the practice of compassion to practice actions to help and save people and animals in difficult and dangerous situations. This information entanglement is essential to help tuelinhs and people practice activating kindness and eliminating toxins in the original yin and yang embryo. When tuelinhs have such information entanglement with all tuelinhs and all things in and outside the universe, that tuelinh has the wisdom of all things. Because it results from understanding the knowledge of all things, including positive information values, to activate kindness and negative information values to become a lesson to force out one's toxins. You remember that when positive energy particles are produced, it results from victory at point (2) in the original positive particle. Therefore, the negative information values encoded at the negative pole of the vibrating wave code in the positive particle are no longer toxic. It is simply a lesson of compassion and understanding.

- Positive information in negative energy particles: this type of information entanglement is formed when humans or tuelinhs interact and react in positive environments. The toxins of the original yin energy particles dominate their yin and yang embryos. Therefore, the initial positive energy particle does not have the power to control the negative particle and connect and receive positive information values in the external positive environment. Those people interacting in an environment with positive information think that positive knowledge is not proper to their ideology and ideals. Even if those positive values have sustainable development, they always deny it. They negate it with the power of the poison in their original negative energy particle. When interacting and reacting to an excellent information environment, they argue and even get angry at the good information others try to convey to them. Although they objected, a portion of the positive information values were encoded into the anode of the vibrating wave code in their harmful energy particles after they were produced. This type of information entanglement is detrimental to humans and tuelinhs. It even creates an ideology of hatred towards people trying to convey positive information. The interaction and reaction process through which hostility occurs will worsen the information entanglement in their energy particles. However, from the perspective of the tuelinh's practising journey to eliminate toxins and activate goodness, this type of information entanglement is beneficial for each tuelinh. After those souls experience the suffering in human life, they will identify their toxins and gradually eliminate them. At that time, they will thank the people in the favourable environment who transmit positive information. In addition, that positive information will create strength to help them activate the goodness within them while eliminating toxins.

- Negative information in harmful energy particles: is a hazardous type of information entanglement. It is the path of transformation, decay and destruction for tuelinhs and humans. This type of information disorder results from the yin and yang embryo being controlled by the toxin of the yin energy particles. In contrast to the above kind of information entanglement, this type accelerates the destruction and decay of tuelinhs very quickly. When the toxins of harmful particles control people's ideology and intellect, they will deny the information values of sustainable development in a positive environment. Instead, they are drawn to unfavourable environments. When interacting and reacting to adverse environments, they easily harmonize and receive toxic information from the harmful external environment. When the two toxic types of external and internal information are closely linked and encoded at the negative pole of the vibration code in harmful energy particles, those people will produce a lot of yin energy particles. The toxic connection between negative people in a dangerous environment creates a connection between the harmful particles of the transformation, decay and destruction mechanism. The consequences those people cause to people, society, and animals are enormous. If people with toxins in their yin and yang embryos do not interact and live in an environment with positive information, they will quickly destroy themselves with destructive energy.

The solution to the problem of information entanglement:

- First, it is necessary to understand the objects related to information disorder, including all the tuelinhs and humans interacting and reacting in environments with each other.

- The only solution is for everyone to understand and practice the sustainable transmutation mechanism to produce positive energy particles with intense positive heat. That is to create ideologies and actions that oppose those implementing the mechanism of transformation, destruction and decay. The achievements and power of the light of wisdom will help people who are disordered in their information on the path of producing harmful energy particles to be enlightened and awakened. When experiencing the ultimate suffering caused by toxins, those who have harmful energy particles will awaken and rely on the enlightened wisdom of those who practice the mechanism of producing positive energy particles. Thus, the essence of this solution is to activate one's goodness to touch and help others eliminate their toxins through the suffering they have to go through.

A specific situation: when in a family, there is a spouse, parent or child with mental illness. That is the clearest sign of information disorder along the path of decomposition. Those family members have information entanglements, resulting in harmful energy particles being created in past or past lives. Through the structure of harmful energy particles in multiple negative particle clusters, information such as images, language, ideologies, and negative actions that hurt each other, people, and animals are in all family members. In particular, that harmful information is stored and encoded the most in people with mental illnesses. Because in their past lives, that person practised actions that hurt people, each other, and animals, their soul produced too many harmful particles. When negative particles are too much, it will cause information disorder in their soul structure system. As a result, this life breaks out into mental illness. Because family members are related to each other in past lives, they continue to be reincarnated and live together in the same family in the present life to help each other eliminate toxins and activate each other's goodness. When patients lose control of their thoughts and behaviour, they only see past images and sounds stored in harmful energy particles. Therefore, they see their wife or husband, parents or children as enemies or accomplices. At that time, they became out of control and attacked and even killed each other. But when they woke up, they regretted their inappropriate behaviour towards each other. In the patient's mind, there are many different living personalities. Family members must apply solutions to remove information disorder to help patients recover entirely during learning and treatment according to the knowledge of two truths. Those are relatives who must accompany the patient to study. The patient's relatives must understand the same knowledge as the patient. Next, their relatives must activate kindness by caring for the patient even if the patient scolds or fights back. When their loved one practice kind actions towards the sick person and others, the toxins in the sick person's soul will be forced out faster because kind actions are the opposite of removing information entanglement and touching the soul of the ill person after the suffering they have experienced. If the patient's relatives do not follow the above solution with sincere love, the patient will not recover. There are families where, when their children are sick, only one of the parents loves and helps them recover from the illness using the method of two truths. The other person didn't believe it and even wanted to bring their child to a mental hospital for treatment. In addition, that person also has words and actions that hurt the sick child. The poison grows more intense when the child's soul receives toxic information from their father or mother. As a result, they cannot recover from their illness. Because relatives do not practice the kindness activation mechanism to help the sick, it is complicated for the ill person to recover.

Another specific situation of healing mental illness with the knowledge of the two truths is an elderly mother in her eighties who has been taking care of her child in his fifties, who has had schizophrenia for more than twenty years. He was a talented working man who suddenly became mentally ill. During more than twenty years of illness, the patient could not speak, do personal activities, go to work, and take psychiatric medication every day. When the mother brought her child to the teacher's class to learn the knowledge of the two truths for a few months, the teacher gave the mother a book and advised her to read it to her child before and after sleep. The mother followed what the teacher instructed. She read the teacher's book of two truths to her child before and after sleep. As a result, after a few months of treatment, he recovered, talked again, could function independently, and returned to work. During treatment, he often lost control of his behaviour because he didn't take psychiatric medication, according to the teacher's advice. His recovery from mental illness shows the mother's immense love for helping her child heal from that illness. It demonstrates the act of activating kindness to help sick people eliminate toxins and recover from illness through learning the two truths to cure mental illness.

2. The nature of information is changed when moving through different environments

The environment in human life includes a favourable circumstance created by positive information values, a harmful environment created by negative information values, and negative and positive information.

When tuelinhs incarnate as humans and practice in the human world, they must simultaneously live and interact with all environments, negative, positive, and both, because every human being has an embryo of the original yin and yang energy of the inner tuelinh. Therefore, when interacting with different information environments, the poison in the root yin particle and the kindness in the root yang energy particle will have enough conditions to reveal their entire nature. At that time, people and their souls will identify and force out those toxins and activate the goodness within them. That is practising the mechanism of sustainable transformation.

Different types of environments bring different values to humans and souls. However, people do not understand that it is to improve themselves; instead, they blame their lives and even wallow in suffering because of the injuries caused to everyone. Because of this, you need to understand the value of interactive scenarios and environments in the human world.

You must understand how the information in yin and yang embryos will change when they move into different environments. From there, you will have a plan to create the best environment for yourself to eliminate all toxins and maximize kindness.

The environment changes the nature of information in the yin and yang embryo:

- Negative environment:

- + For yin and yang embryos controlled by the original yin energy particle: When these people move and live in an environment with negative information values, their original yin energy particle will readily accept and connect negative external information. As a result, the yin-yang embryo absorbs additional external toxins into itself. That makes the process of decomposition of the tuelinh of that person happen faster.

+ For yin and yang embryos controlled by the original yang energy particle: When these people move and live in environments with negative information values, the original yang energy particle can operate the original yin particle and harmful information outside. Therefore, they can easily recognize negative values to summarize them as lessons. They have the power to overcome toxic environments and practice the mechanism of generating positive energy particles.

- Positive environment:

+ For yin and yang embryos controlled by the original yin energy particle: These people move and live in a positive environment. Their original yin energy particle still wins and operates the yin and yang embryo to produce harmful energy particles. However, encoding positive information in a positive environment will help them gradually identify toxins and force out their toxins. If they experience enough suffering and live in a positive environment for a long time, their original negative energy particle will gradually change as the toxins are forced out.

+ For yin and yang embryos controlled by the original yang energy particle: These people move and live in a positive environment, and their yang energy particle becomes strong enough to squeeze out all remaining toxins in the original negative particle. They receive and closely associate with positive external information to promote the production of positive energy particles to become more effective. Such people will quickly transform yin and yang embryos into energy filters.

The nature of information in the yin and yang embryo will change when moving and living in different environments to help you answer questions about mentally ill people. You understand why when they live with kind-hearted people who have immense love, their illnesses will quickly be cured. On the contrary, when they live with people with negative multi-energy particle structures in their souls, negative people, and people without sincere love, they are easily agitated and ready to hurt negative people. That's extreme. All because information between environments changes the nature of information in the yin and yang embryos of humans and tuelinhs.

Thus, from the problem of information entanglement and the changing nature of information in different environments, you have learned more about the wonders of the human practice environment in the human world. You need to take advantage of those exciting things to create the best environment for yourself, your loved ones, and everyone around you to squeeze out toxins together and maximize kindness."

A student immediately told the teacher, "Teacher, you have given us the special enlightened knowledge of the two truths with the smallest energy particle. You also showed us clearly the mechanisms of transformation and how to create the best environment to practice eliminating toxins and activating kindness for ourselves and others. I believe that all those who learn and practice this enlightened knowledge will achieve great achievements in their practising journey in the human world."

The teacher replied, "To achieve great achievements on the practising journey, each tuelinh and each person must persevere and have the strength to overcome difficulties and obstacles. No achievement is easy; the greater every achievement, the greater the sacrifice. It is the dedication of intelligence and time to practice generating positive energy particles through helping and saving people and all species. Please try and persevere, and success will always be with you."

Chapter Twenty-Three

The Destructive Power of The Tuelinh While Decaying

Once again, my memories take me back to when a terrible epidemic killed countless people worldwide. It's the end of the year when everyone and every home is preparing to welcome the new year with hopes that the epidemic will end and all the luck will come to them in the new year. That year was the second year of the pandemic and a year in which people suffered the most from deaths and economic collapse. That year was also the year that the teacher could not open classes. However, it was a year of brilliant achievements for him as he created special enlightened knowledge to teach his students the following year.

The teacher doesn't seem to care about the preparations for the new year like every family and everyone. Like every year, this year, he only buys food and fruits to prepare for the new year. Therefore, he has a lot of time to build special enlightened knowledge by combining the two truths and the wisdom of the smallest energy particle. In addition, he also spends time researching and finding the most effective methods in applying that enlightened knowledge to treat people with mental and physical illnesses. The teacher often tells his students, "No one thinks and acts for me," and "Nothing comes itself if I don't think and act by myself." That is why he never stops trying to upgrade enlightened knowledge of the two truths and find the most effective methods to help people heal their mental and physical illnesses and overcome suffering in life fastest.

One night at the end of the year, when he was in a deep sleep, the tuelinh within him returned to heaven. At that time, he went into Giac and Chap's workplace. Seeing Nalas Nalanda return, they both immediately approached and greeted him. Then all three tuelinhs sat together and enjoyed glasses of water that could only be found in heaven. For Giac and Chap, the fact that Nalas Nalanda often returned to talk and teach them and the tuelinhs became familiar every time he incarnated as a human to practice or perform a task. They felt like he was still working there, not as if he had reincarnated as a human, like other tuelinhs.

After a few stories, Chap asked him, "Father, I know that when tuelinhs are disintegrated by the energy of destruction, they are extremely painful. From the pain within them, they become out of control. Especially when residing in human form, their actions cause harm to people, animals and everything around them. Father, can you tell us what damage they can cause?"

At that time, Nalas Nalanda raised his right hand before all three tuelinhs and pushed it to the right. His miracle created a moving picture in the air. As he spoke, different images were recreated in that painting. He said, "Look! Because of their many harmful particles, the souls of those boys and girls practice a lifestyle of playfulness and sensuality. They live and sleep together like a herd. They use stimulants to create excitement and satisfy pleasure. They spread diseases to each other. A life with no future ahead is the path they have chosen. Those children make their parents suffer.

That is the image of same-sex love. On the outside, they seem happy because they live with their passion, but their souls inside have lost control. The toxins and disconnections in their soul structure make them unaware of their thoughts and actions.

It is the image of impure love between boys and girls. They love each other to satisfy their lust, not to become husband and wife. That's why they don't appreciate each other. As a result, many girls abort their unborn babies when they accidentally become pregnant. It is a crime, and it causes the process of producing harmful energy particles and breaking connections in the soul to become faster.

Look, my kids. Because they loved each other, they became husband and wife. Yet, they still commit adultery with others. Harmful energy particles are produced from there.

Those are images of a husband who is addicted to alcohol and gambling and beats his wife and children. Not only that, they also sold all their valuable possessions and the house they lived in to pay off debt. They cause their wives and children to suffer both physically and mentally. Toxic energy particles are constantly being produced, and the decay process in their souls is also happening faster.

Image of a husband who is jealous and thinks his wife is unfaithful. They beat and even killed the wife when they discovered she was having an affair. Those resentments and actions caused them to produce harmful energy particles with extreme negative heat. They hurt each other, their children and their parents.

Those are images of divorce situations. Just because of the attachment and arrogance of both husband and wife, when disagreements and conflicts occur, they do not sympathize and get along with each other. Instead, they were impulsive and divorced. They cause suffering to their children and parents.

The sadness and suffering of women and wives when they do not have children. They are sad and miserable because their husbands decide to divorce just because they have no children. The wives' resentment and the husbands' cruelty make them walk the path of soul decay.

That image is the imposition and pressure that parents create on their children. Their parents want them to study well and become talented people in the future. They constantly force their children to learn day and night. Some children have committed suicide because of their parents' authoritarianism and mental and physical abuse. Those are bad parents who put their suffering and greed on their children. It is the lack of parental love that children must accept. Parents and children produce harmful energy particles.

Those are the images of husbands and wives who leave them to be with someone else when witnessing their husband or wife's illness. They make their spouses helpless due to poverty, loneliness, and the cruel diseases they have. Since then, there have been patients who resent their spouses. Both have produced harmful energy particles of decay.

Mentally ill people lose control of their thoughts and actions. They always think their relatives are enemies. They believe their spouse is having an affair outside. And acts of killing their loved ones in a loss of control occurred. The suffering and grief caused by disintegration and disconnection in their souls is happening too strongly.

Those are images because of disagreements and conflicts between parents and children. The children were murdered by their father. It is the cruelty and imperceptibility of parents because the toxins in them erupt.

Children abandon their parents in illness and poverty. Some children beat and kill their parents just to compete for property and land. Unfilial children cause their souls to produce countless harmful energy particles and accelerate decay.

Those are images of brothers and sisters fighting over land and property in a family. They sued each other in court. They fight and even kill each other. Greed and ignorance have plunged them into producing harmful energy particles.

Those are the images when people have their relatives and parents when they die. They went to psychics to ask for charms and cast spells on the graves of the dead. They believe that if their loved one dies at an inauspicious time, it will cause harm to their descendants and the living. Those are harmful energy particles of ignorance produced by inhumanity and no filial piety.

Those images are of healthy boys. Instead of honest labour, they became thieves and bandits. They are even killing those who oppose them. Harmful energy particles are produced, causing their souls to become disconnected and lose more control.

Those are images of beautiful girls. Instead of honest labour, they use their beauty to make money on their bodies. They become prostitutes or commit adultery for cash. That causes their souls to decay very quickly by toxins and harmful energy particles.

People who are married. Because of wealth, status, or lack of sexual satisfaction from their spouses. They look to other people outside to have relationships outside of marriage. They do not know that those actions cause their souls to become sick through decay.

Those are images where people take hunting animals and fishing as hobbies. They are happily harbouring the deaths of all species. They indulge in their cruelty. They show off their achievements to their friends and relatives.

People make a living and get rich by hunting, slaughtering, and selling animal meat. They did not know they had produced countless harmful energy particles of ignorance and killing. That caused their souls to produce numerous harmful energy particles of killing. Their souls are disconnected and decay very quickly.

That is the image of people who, for their benefit, produce fake and poor-quality products. They benefit enormously from those actions. Not only that, consumers are affected by the health effects of those products. Those people are being controlled by toxins and getting rich regardless, even endangering human health and life.

Those are pictures of famous people. They use that to earn profit from people through acts of charity and natural disasters.

Merchants. They use opportunities during epidemics and natural disasters to trade fake products. They cheat on people's lives. Those are people who release powerful toxins. Because the consequences they cause to humans are highly significant, their decay rate is high-speed.

These are healthy people but lazy to work and live daily. There are people from there who become robbers or become hired killers for others. They are destroying their souls without knowing it.

Those are the employers. They cursed and beat the workers. They think they have money and are the boss, so they have the right to do those things to their workers. That is the ignorant wisdom they have because of their toxins.

These are people who fight and even kill each other because of conflicts. From hatred, resentment, and those actions, they produce a lot of harmful energy particles. Their souls are, therefore, disconnected and increasingly disintegrate.

Those painful images are the suicidal actions of mothers when giving birth, even killing their children. They become depressed during pregnancy and after giving birth when they do not receive their husbands' and relatives' care and love. Their souls lost control because of panic and resentment. Those suicidal actions cause their souls to decay even more.

There are also acts of suicide, but they are because of failure in life, career, a lot of debt, and resentment towards each other. Those who commit suicide think that death will help them no longer have any responsibilities in life. But they don't know that it causes their souls to decay, and when reincarnated as humans in the next life, they will become more out of control and miserable.

These are people with status and power in the government apparatus. They take advantage of their positions for embezzlement and corruption. They despise and make things difficult for people. They even find ways to make money when the country has natural disasters and epidemics. People consider them inferior to animals and do not have officials' ethics. They directly and indirectly cause poverty and deaths in natural disasters and epidemics. The damage they made to the people was countless, so their souls produced numerous harmful energy particles.

Those are images of leaders of nations. They are ruthless when suppressing other countries' economies. In particular, they launch wars of invasion against other countries to satisfy their reasons. They massacred countless lives of the people of other countries and their soldiers. Their souls produce numerous harmful energy particles. Therefore, the soul's decay process happens very quickly.

Those images are of the leaders of the invaded countries. They need to be more knowledgeable and talented to help their country have economic and defence strength so that other countries do not dare to invade them. Their ignorance caused the people of their country to die on the battlefield and in poverty. Their souls also produce countless harmful energy particles. Both invaders and defenders of the territory are ignorant in thinking that the land and territory are theirs. They need to learn what the practice environment in the human world is for, and no region is theirs.

These are images of teachers in schools. They are the ones who teach knowledge to students, but they make their students need help with the scores to make money from them. Even teachers ask female students to exchange their lust for grades. Those teachers do not know how to appreciate their noble profession and walk on the path of transmutation and decay.

Teachers teach harmful knowledge to students. These actions are hazardous when toxic information values are spread to many students and society. This spread of ignorance causes countless people to become ignorant and disintegrate in their souls. Teachers who act like this only cause them to perish faster.

Images of students being arrogant because of the toxic outbreak and thinking they are more talented and intellectual than their classmates and teachers. That causes them to slide down the path of producing harmful energy particles.

People who take advantage of beliefs and religions to practice praying to gods, Buddhas, and God. They use people's beliefs to threaten them with poverty, disease, and death if they do not give them money to help pray to gods, Buddhas, and God. Those did not know they were producing a lot of harmful energy particles in their souls.

Teachers in religions. They are spreading false propaganda about the path of practice in the human world. They do not understand the origin and truth of exercise in human form in the human world, so they believe in praying to Buddha or God to return to heaven. They propagate ignorance to everyone and keep everyone immersed in ignorance. That causes people to become increasingly immersed in information chaos, and they do not know the truth and the path to liberation from suffering. These ignorances are spread widely in the human world and from life to life. People who spread false information and ignorance cause their souls to become the souls with the fastest decay rate.

Those are the ignorant teachers in religions. They propagate to their followers that their faith is the best. They criticize and insult other religions to attract followers to their religion. They must learn that Nalas Nalanda created beliefs and countless interactive scenarios to help souls reveal their entire nature. The next is identification to force out toxins and activate kindness. However, they are dominated by toxins, and they cause many of their followers to produce harmful energy particles and disintegrate souls like them.

And, there are many other damages that negative energy multiparticle tuelinhs cause in the human world. Every person who is practising the path of sustainable transformation in the human world sees those injuries."

Giac told his teacher, "Father, the poison of the tuelinhs is hazardous for themselves and everything around them. They do not easily control and eliminate their toxins. That leads to suffering and harm to people, animals, and themselves."

The teacher continued, "The negative energy multiparticle tuelinhs harm people, animals, and all living things are all children tuelinhs. They are small and immature. However, when their toxins explode at a strong level, they can destroy the entire human world while they live in the hands of humans. That proves to you the danger and destruction of every tuelinhs when practising the mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction."

Chap immediately asked his teacher, "Father, do you have any solution to help them?"

The teacher replied, "Of course I have a solution. That is to rebuild a practice environment that contains the true information values of the sustainable transmutation mechanism. Knowledge of the two truths will create an ideal environment to help those suffering souls from being infected with toxic information from different religious and philosophical perspectives. The two truths will exist long in the human world to help countless souls. After that, I will continue to let the practice environment become more complicated so that the tuelinhs can continue their journey of practice, forcing out toxins and activating their goodness. Remember that the earth's environment was created to help souls practice suffering and tribulation. Great rescues of tuelinhs and the rebuilding of humanity can only be accomplished when almost all tuelinhs are completely out of control, and there are tuelinhs ready to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. That is the time for the great salvation of humanity in the human world."

Giac and Chap immediately said, "We are excited to accompany you in the human world. We will strive to dedicate our lives to complete that mission with you."

Nalas Nalanda nodded and said, "That is the only path to grow and become an enlightened being. You must always keep the fire of dedication when incarnating as a human because a human life passes very quickly. I'm also racing against time to help learners release all toxins and force them out. Besides, I must help them speed up the process of producing positive energy particles. Tuelinhs in the human world are frozen in clusters of multi-negative energy particles. They only recognize them when they are mentally ill and cause harmful consequences to everyone. Therefore, they are unable to control and transform them. I will have to awaken their negative energy particle clusters so that they can awaken and practice the positive energy particle production mechanism. That is extremely important because if they do not awaken the frozen particle clusters, it will be difficult for them to identify the poison to suppress and the goodness to activate."

After chatting with the two messengers, the teacher returned to his physical form when it was almost dawn outside. In the following days, he planned lectures when classes resumed after the epidemic ended, including sermons that awakened all the memories of tuelinhs during many lifetimes of practice in the human world. Their memories were frozen and disconnected by the destructive energy controlling the negative energy multiparticle clusters.

Chapter Twenty-Four

The Unified Tao of the Universe

"To attain the unified Tao of the universe, tuelinhs must incarnate as humans and live in the four forms of human life. That is another saying that the first tuelinh said in the conference unifying the practising path of tuelinh life forms before they incarnated as humans."

A student interrupted the teacher, "Teacher, is there any difference between the Tao of the universe and the task of transforming the yin and yang energy embryo of tuelinhs into an energy filter?"

The teacher looked at all the students and said, "It's not that different. As follows:

- To transform the original yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter, the tuelinhs must live in human form for countless lives. They must live and fully interact with all scenarios in the four forms of human life. The purpose is to understand the three secrets, force out all toxins and activate the maximum goodness in the yin and yang energy embryo. When the production process of energy particles ensures sufficient quantity and quality, the yin and yang energy embryo is qualified to be transformed into an energy filter.

That is the mission of each tuelinh's practising journey in the human world.

- The result after transforming the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter is to attain the unified Tao of the universe.

Thus, when each tuelinh completes its practice, they officially attain the unified Tao of the universe. It is the practice process and the value of the results achieved after completing the task."

Another student immediately asked the teacher, "Teacher, in today's lesson, are you going to teach us new knowledge of the two truths?" The teacher replied, "It is both new and not new. It is new knowledge because I have been teaching you new knowledge from the past to the present. It is not new knowledge because I have already talked about it in the lesson of the conference to gather humanity. Do you remember what I said in that lesson?"

The students said together, "Teacher said that the image of the great gathering of humanity contains many secrets. And you said you would teach us in the next lessons."

The teacher smiled and said, "Your memory is excellent. In today's lesson, I will analyze those secrets so that you can understand the value of attaining the unified Tao of the universe through four forms in human life that each tuelinh must live and practice.

First, you need to remember the words of the first tuelinh: To attain the unified Tao of the universe, tuelinhs must incarnate as humans and live in the four forms of human life.

And now, we will discover the secret of the four forms of human life in the great gathering of humanity. In that gathering, the entire image and four teachings of Nalas Nalanda constitute four forms of human life. He spoke about the four forms of human life at the conference, unifying the path of practising practice before they incarnated as humans.

Four forms of human life are family, social, educational, and national. They are encoded as follows:

- Family form:

- + Family form is the relationship between husband and wife, parents to children, children to parents, siblings to each other, and living people to their ancestors.

- + The image encoded into the family form at the human conference is that each family has a father, mother, son, and daughter. Each gathering point has many households, and it is a symbol of family relationships in the human community. Each family has only one wife and one husband, a spouse relationship. The first tuelinh used this arrangement rule according to the standard 1:1 ratio of the bonding structure between negative and positive energy particles. The image of parents and two children is the relationship between parents and children. The image of two children is the relationship between siblings.

- + The language encoded into the family form is the teaching of the first tuelinh after he looked at the parents and said: "I assign you the task of marrying your children to each other so that they can form a new family and have children to build humanity." His teachings show that family relationships will grow and become complex as children are married to each other to form new households and produce children.

This process in the future will create countless generations of humans. That forms the relationship between the living and their ancestors.

- Social form:

+ Social form is the interactive relationships in each person's life. It includes the relationships between humans and humans and all species in different environments, social communities, and productive labour.

+ The image encoded into the social form is that households are gathered at each gathering point, and there are many gathering points of humanity. That image shapes the relationships between people within a group of people and between people and other groups. The image of tuelinh residing in human form and living in that form shows that they must work and survive in the human world. It is a code for relationships in productive labour for survival. Images of animals convened at the congress show the relationship between humans and animals.

+ The language encoded into social form is the teaching of the first tuelinh when he looked at all households and animals and said to them: "I give you the mission to tame the animals so that their souls can also become human and practice together." And his other commandment: "You will have to go through all the sufferings of life in many human lives..." These teachings are encoded into the social form of each tuelinh that must live in it when transformed into a human.

- Educational form:

+ The form of education is the relationship of transmitting knowledge and is called the relationship between teacher and student.

+ The image is encoded into the teacher-student relationship: the first is the teachings of the first tuelinh to the households and animals at the gathering points. That is the image of the first teacher-student relationship in the human world. The image of parents and small children is a family and teacher-student relationship. Parents' teachings to their children after the great gathering of humanity is the image of the second teacher-student relationship in the human world.

+ The language encoded into the teacher-student relationship is the four teachings of the first tuelinh in each conference gathering humanity. It is the first and most thorough knowledge on the practising journey of all tuelinhs in the human world in human form.

- National form:

+ National form is the relationship between all people and species within a territory.

+ The image encoded into the national form is that each gathering point of humanity has many households and animals participating. That image shapes every relationship between humans, animals and territory. In particular, at each gathering point, the first tuelinh plays the leading role in teaching all humans and animals to help each other on the journey of practice in the human world. This image shows that the leader teaches and cares for the people and their creatures. People and all species listen to the instructions of the leader. In addition, the image of many gathering points is the image of many countries, creating an interactive relationship between different national forms.

+ The language encoded into national relationships is the four teachings of the first tuelinh at each gathering point of humanity. It represents a harmonious relationship from top to bottom and helps each other develop sustainably.

The four forms of human life that each tuelinh must live in are encoded through the images and teachings of Nalas Nalanda in each gathering point of humanity. It is simple and not yet complicated in creating countless interaction scenarios like today's society, but it is a guideline and a core value for every soul to practice. From the sites of the great assembly of humanity, the four forms of human life constantly evolved to form countless interactive scenarios to this day. Although there are numerous interaction scenarios in modern society, it still carries within itself the core values of the four forms of human life encoded through his images and teachings at the great gathering of humanity."

A student immediately asked the teacher when he saw him sitting beside the table to enjoy warm tea, "Teacher. Thus, the rules are the four forms of human life that tuelinhs must live and interact with when incarnating as humans. Is that right, teacher?"

The teacher continued the lecture, "Your question is interesting. When you finish listening to this lecture, you will have a complete answer to that question and other questions related to the four forms of human life.

So, you have learned the secret of the conference gathering humanity. The images and teachings of the first tuelinh in that conference have been encoded into four forms of human life from that time to now and into the future. Those four life forms create countless interactive scenarios to help each tuelinh force out all the toxins within them and activate maximum goodness. In addition, four magical forms help each tuelinh transmute sustainably and obtain the energy filter in their yin and yang embryos. At that time, each tuelinh will attain the unified Tao of the universe.

From the close connection and value that the four forms of human life bring to the unified Tao of the universe, I call those four forms of life the four forms of the Tao. So, from now on, you have a new term: the four forms of the unified Tao of the universe. It includes the family Tao, the social Tao, the teacher and student Tao, and the national Tao. When each tuelinh incarnates into a human, they must live in the four forms of the Tao to attain the Tao that unifies the universe. That means that through the four Tao forms, each tuelinh will reach the value of the Tao mind. Achieving the mind of the Tao, the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle is the key for each tuelinh to practice the mechanism of sustainable transmutation in the four forms of the Tao.

The four forms of Way create four types of the mind of the Tao. The four types of the mind of the Tao form the unified Tao of the universe. The form and mind of the Tao must be closely linked together in inseparability. If separated, no tuelinh will attain the unified Way of the universe.

Before I analyze the value of the four types of the mind of the Tao, you need to clearly understand the value of tuelinh before incarnating as a human. Before incarnating as humans, all tuelinh are children. Except for the first tuelinh, because he was a mature tuelinh and had the most magical power in the universe. Tuelinhs are immature because there are only a small number of energy particles in their structure. Those few energy particles cannot help them become mature tuelinhs. Those few energy particles do not help tuelinh children have the intellectual power to understand all the secrets of themselves, other tuelinhs, everything in and outside the universe, including destructive energy. Because of paradise's pure and peaceful environment, they cannot grow up quickly. When immature, the meager energy particles in the structure of tuelinhs are incapable of connecting and operating the life of all physical forms in the universe. The energy of destruction even quickly destroys them. You can understand that baby tuelinhs do not yet have enough groups of energy particles encoded into functions within their structure. Therefore, baby tuelinhs are holy, innocent, and lovely when not yet incarnated as humans. There are good things because they were born and raised in the wonderful environment of paradise. However, it is also an obstacle that hinders growth and causes death to the tuelinh life form.

However, when tuelinh babies incarnate as humans and live in the four forms in the human world, they step on the path of sustainable transformation through all the scenarios of interaction in suffering. Through the process of forcing out toxins and activating goodness during countless lifetimes of practice in the human world, the souls have matured. They have produced numerous sustainable energy particles, all encoded into groups of particles with precise functions. That strengthens mature souls when their energy structure achieves full strength to promote sustainable development for themselves and all things in and outside the universe. Groups of energy particles are encoded into functions and tasks that are formed from the four forms of human life. We call it the Tao mind. The four types of the mind of the Tao form the unified Tao of the universe.

The value of four types of the Tao mind:

- Family Tao: Through all interactive scenarios in family relationships, souls force out all toxins and activate maximum goodness in the original yin and yang embryo. They then produce countless sustainable energy particles related to family relationships. Those excellent energy particles help the structure of the soul mature quickly. When the soul grows due to that large number of stable energy particles, that soul has a large number of intellectual wave code fibre systems that encode excellent information values within. It is encoded information about loving yourself and all other life forms in and out of the universe in non-discrimination. This group of energy particles that encode immeasurable love is only formed when each soul goes through all the scenarios in the family Tao form over many lifetimes of practice. Something that baby tuelinhs cannot have when they cannot live and interact in the family form.

- Social Tao: Through all interaction scenarios in social relationships, souls force out all toxins and activate maximum goodness in the yin and yang embryo. Sustainable energy particles are born to help the soul mature and become strong. This group of energy particles is encoded into functions and tasks to support the soul's magical power. It is a group of energy particles with closely linked values for the sustainable development of tuelinhs and all life forms in and outside the universe. When baby tuelinhs have not yet been incarnated as humans and have not yet experienced all the interaction scenarios in the social form, they will not have this group of energy particles that carry the power of cohesion and sustainable development.

- Teacher and student Tao: Through interactive scenarios in the relationship between teacher and student, such as in education, in religions, and the transmission of knowledge between people, the soul achieves growth into this group of energy particles. They learn how to force out all the toxins and maximize the goodness in the original yin and yang energy embryo. The form of teacher and student helps tuelinhs produce countless stable energy particles in each reaction. The durable energy particles of this group help souls have the power of wisdom, which is enlightened wisdom. The intellectual wave code system in this group of energy particles encodes the functions and tasks for the tuelinh that has the power to transmit knowledge for sustainable development to all other tuelinhs and other life forms inside and outside the universe. When tuelinhs have not yet transformed into humans, they cannot have this group of magical energy particles. This group of energy particles helps tuelinhs connect and operate all things in the universe when they transform yin and yang embryos into energy filters.

- National Tao: Through all interactive scenarios in the national Tao form, the souls gradually eliminate all toxins and maximize goodness. This group of energy particles produced will help the soul mature and have magical power because of the information values encoded inside their intellectual wave code fibre system. At that time, the mature tuelinh could unite all tuelinhs and other life forms. All combine under the guidance of the first tuelinh to protect and develop the tuelinh life form and make all things in and outside the universe sustainable. When the soul is not yet mature, it will not have this group of functional energy particles.

You need to remember that the form of family Tao helps develop the group of energy particles in the soul that carries the value of love in non-discrimination. The social Tao helps the soul develop a cohesive group of energy particles and develop sustainably. The Tao of teacher and student assists the soul in creating a group of energy particles that spread enlightened wisdom - wisdom that develops sustainably. Tao's national form helps the tuelinh generate a group of energy particles that carry the unified value in respect. To be qualified to transform yin and yang embryos into energy filters, they must produce sufficient quantity and quality for all four groups of functional energy particles in the four forms of the Tao.

When successfully transforming the original yin and yang embryo into an energy filter, the tuelinh officially attains the unified Tao of the universe. With the power of the four Tao minds, the intelligence of that tuelinh will integrate and unite with the intelligence of all things and all life forms in and outside the universe. At that time, that tuelinh had the power of immense love and solidarity in respect to spread enlightened wisdom and sustainable development values to all forms of life in and outside the universe."

A student said to the teacher, "Master, if everyone wants to complete the task on the path of practice in the human world and attain the unified Tao of the universe, they must produce sufficient quantity and quality of energy particles for all four forms of the Tao. If they have not completed it, they cannot return to their homeland."

The teacher laughed and replied, "It's true. The souls completed their practice by transforming the yin and yang embryos into energy filters. If not completed, they continue to reincarnate in the human world until completed. When they attain the unified Tao of the universe, they can incarnate as humans to perform tasks and save sentient beings. You must remember that if tuelinhs do not achieve the unified Way of the universe, they will still be easily destroyed by the energy of destruction. When certain tuelinh attains the unified Way of the universe, they have the power to absorb the energy of destruction and produce super-energy particles to help protect and develop the universe to become sustainable.

Another student said to the teacher, "Teacher. After studying this lesson, I have answered many questions about religious and philosophical perspectives. I have understood that God is a benevolent father and a teacher with perfectly enlightened wisdom. He silently guides all souls and humans on the journey of practice to attain the unified Way of the universe. He always worries, cares, and helps sentient beings, souls and people. Only humans do not understand him, while he understands everything."

The teacher said, "That's right. When you understand the knowledge of the two truths and the three secrets, race against time to practice the path of sustainable transformation. Don't wait for anything in the future. Practising correctly and bringing sustainable development value to yourself, everyone and all species is the most valuable gratitude to the first tuelinh. Instead of praying or praying to God, Buddha, or any other soul, practice good deeds. That is the path to attain the unified Tao of the universe."

Destroying Toxins in Learners

"Before this healing course of body, mind, and wisdom took place, the tuelinh within me returned to heaven and chatted with two messengers. We talked about the effects of toxins on each soul when they incarnate in human form and interact in different scenarios. The impacts of that toxin on everyone, all species and the soul itself are hazardous. Humans and souls are immersed in various interactive situations by toxins that cannot be easily recognized or eliminated. Even though they are just small souls, when the poison erupts, they can destroy the entire human world while they exist inside a human body. You also know that humans cannot receive sublime and difficult-to-understand knowledge. Therefore, to help each tuelinh and human being quickly identify and destroy all the toxins within them, I have transformed difficult-to-understand enlightened understanding into easy-to-understand. That is the knowledge that combines the knowledge of two truths with the smallest particle of energy. However, I felt secure because I analyzed all that knowledge in detail for souls and humans. It will be difficult for people to understand everything I teach because they are immersed and dominated by toxins and suffering. Therefore, I have built a lecture system to help you identify and eliminate all the toxins in yourself when interacting in all scenarios in human life.

The goal of each tuelinh when incarnating as a human is to eliminate all toxins and maximize goodness in the yin and yang energy embryo, then transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. Therefore, identifying and eliminating internal toxins is the first important task for you and everyone. Toxins are like icebergs, and they are freezing themselves and the goodness of each person. If you cannot break these ice blocks, you will not be able to achieve enlightened wisdom and practice a sustainable transmutation mechanism for your soul.

Whether you are a soul who has gone through many lifetimes or just a few lifetimes of practice in human form, those toxins always exist within you. It only differs in the level of development of the toxins in the interaction scenarios of the four forms of the Tao. Souls who experience many lifetimes of practice when practising the path of transformation are destruction. They have many clusters of multi-negative energy particles with many frozen toxins. Souls who have only practised for a few lifetimes have not yet developed many toxins, but those toxins are still frozen in the original yin and yang embryo.

In addition, after a long period of studying, you have understood the three secrets that tuelinhs and humans are searching for. Through knowledge of the two truths associated with the smallest energy particle, you have also understood the value of the interaction scenarios in the four forms of the Tao. With your understanding and enlightened wisdom, now is the ideal time to identify and destroy the toxins within you. Therefore, the series of lectures on eliminating toxins in the four forms of the Tao is essential for all of you, especially for those who develop diseases related to mental health. These teachings help you break the ice of toxins, awaken memories of past lives, and promote radical enlightenment through sustained energy particle generation.

In this series of lectures, I will associate each type of toxin with the suffering you and everyone else have been experiencing. Please share those experiences so that everyone can understand, and especially it helps you practice removing toxins from your soul." the teacher told everyone in the classroom.

Then, many students said, "We have a lot of suffering and toxins, teacher. Because this course is for people suffering from all kinds of illnesses, mental illnesses, and suffering, we have nothing but the truth of the suffering and toxins within us that have been emitted."

The teacher said, "So, we start from the role of a learner. In this series of lessons, you must immerse yourself in different positions in life. Each human part is a group of interactions in life, forming groups of energy particles with functions and tasks in your soul. When you understand all the toxins and remove them from your soul, you will understand the structure, duty and function of each group of energy particles associated with the interacting groups in the four forms of the Tao. As a result, it will create strength to help you activate goodness by producing positive energy particles in each interaction group of the four forms of the Way.

And now, please tell me about your painful experiences as a learner. That is, you learn knowledge in a school environment, in a social setting, in a religious and belief environment, or from someone. The learner is someone who receives information or applies someone's method to practice in life.

A female student shared, "Teacher. I have suffered from hallucinations for more than ten years. In my head, I always hear words, sometimes gentle and sometimes threatening. I always see images of demons, images of Buddhas, and spirits. Only I can hear and see those words and images. It has caused me insomnia and depression for over ten years. During my years of illness, I went to many places to meet fortune tellers to find out what was wrong with me. Then I met an excellent fortune teller who can know everything when someone comes to him for help. He has a wife and children, but for some reason, many girls still fall in love and have children with him. And I was no exception. I left home to serve him when he went bankrupt due to gambling and addiction. When I suffered extremely due to my illness and the months spent with him while he was avoiding debt, I accidentally learned about your knowledge of the two truths. After reading for a long time, I understood his nature and my illness. Miraculously, I enlightened, and my hallucinations and depression disappeared. I realized your knowledge was the only way to help me overcome suffering, so I studied day and night. After that, I returned to my parents and raised my children alone. While he continued to tell fortunes and take advantage of people's beliefs to practice rituals, he made a lot of money. I joined your course because I wanted to cure my disease and help others completely."

Another student said, "My story is also fascinating, teacher. Previously, I studied and gained a lot of knowledge in the beliefs of ancestor worship, gods, and Buddhism. During the years of studying and practising that knowledge, I saw teachers and students become increasingly greedy and angry, doing things that harm each other and taking advantage of religion to make money from people. Understanding those mistakes, I decided not to join those groups anymore. After knowing your knowledge, I learned and practised helping people very enthusiastically. Learning and practising the knowledge of the two truths in the early stages cannot avoid mistakes when I have studied negative knowledge for many years. But other classmates used those things to criticize me, even concluding that I intended to betray and harm you. I know you know that. You don't believe in those things. You even encouraged me to overcome those toxins and actively help people more. Until now, my intelligence and soul have changed and become much more complete after the experiences of negative interactions between learners and the achievements of helping people with the knowledge of the two truths."

The teacher said, "Thank you for your sharing. Those shares are evidence of the toxins erupting from learners' souls. Such painful experiences are a manifestation of the toxicity released in everyone's interactions as learners. It has also proven that when experiencing tribulation in interactive scenarios, you will recognize and eliminate toxins to gain enlightened wisdom. You must be grateful for all the suffering that has been, is, and will come to you in life. It is a miraculous material to help each soul understand the three secrets, followed by the power to practice the mechanism of sustainable transmutation. Therefore, you should not hate, criticize, or fear suffering in all interactive scenarios.

When I help you unfreeze each group of toxins in different human roles, you try to use the knowledge of the two truths associated with the smallest energy particles and the transformation mechanism to think and comprehend. That helps you encode unique enlightened wisdom into all scenarios in life to practice activating kindness for the best results.

When do you know you and everyone else are taking on the role of learners? - When you are a student studying at school. You are people who learn knowledge in religions. You are people who know or read understanding from books and philosophical ideologies. You are the one receiving knowledge from someone. And you practice according to a specific wisdom or method. At that time, you play the role of a learner.

Learner's toxins that you must recognize and eliminate when they appear and develop within yourself includes:

- The poison of being lazy to study. When you are a student studying at school, you are busy playing and not studying hard. That is a waste of money for parents. In particular, you cannot cultivate your intelligence to develop your career and future. When you do not have wisdom and understanding, you will not be aware of good and harmful values, so you can easily take actions that hurt yourself and others.

- The toxicity of the inability to perceive whether the knowledge you learn is good or harmful. That is, when you know wisdom from religions, beliefs, perspectives, philosophical ideologies, and books, you cannot recognize the value of that knowledge. You are influenced by the psychology of the crowd, by tradition that you believe and apply to life. For example, you see a festival of killing animals to worship the gods. It is a good action because the ritual is traditional and is passed down from generation to generation. You have received a toxic amount of information that you think is the beauty of culture. That is the poison of ignorance that cannot distinguish its value. You must understand that the act of killing animals is an act that produces harmful energy particles, and it is never a kind act. In particular, no gods encourage such actions of humans because souls must practice to improve their yin and yang embryos. Therefore, there is no way the gods will punish humans. Another example is when you participate in religious activities because the knowledge you learn is from the scriptures, and you ultimately believe in what you learn. Then, you practice without knowing that wisdom is causing you to produce harmful energy particles. You think that rituals to pray to God and Buddhas will escape the sins you have caused to people and animals. You even spread that knowledge to everyone. That means you are spreading ignorant wisdom that is harmful to everyone. Because you do not understand the origin and task of practice in the human world, you cannot perceive the value of the knowledge you learn, whether good or harmful.

- The toxicity of being jealous, superior or inferior to your classmates. It is a hazardous toxin because learning knowledge will help people better understand their worldview and intelligence. However, when you become jealous, superior or inferior to your classmates, or even think you are more talented than your classmates, your mind will be controlled by this toxin. You will not be aware of right and wrong in thoughts and actions. Therefore, you will change the value of the knowledge you have learned from the teacher to show that you are more talented than other students without knowing that the knowledge you change will harm yourself and everyone else. Jealousy and being superior or inferior to your classmates will lead to hatred of each other. Finally, some actions offend and hurt each other. They can kill each other to satisfy their hatred.

- The poison of jealousy and superiority over teachers. This type of poison is hazardous. When students think they are more intellectual than their teacher, they become contemptuous and disrespectful of their teacher. Such students will quickly change the teacher's knowledge, even insult and kill the teacher. Because when controlled by this poison, those students will have their entire minds controlled by intellectual arrogance. Learners who cannot control and eliminate this type of poison quickly develop other kinds of toxins in their interactive scenarios.

Those types of toxins will cause you to produce harmful energy particles. When negative energy particles are produced, you are practising the path of transmutation, decay and destruction.

The best solution to help you identify and eliminate all toxins when you play the role of a learner is to apply the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle to understand all those toxins. It is about analyzing all the scenarios in the role of the learner to see what kind of energy particles will be produced. If it is a negative energy particle, it is poison; if a positive energy particle is produced, it is kindness. That is the mechanism that generates negative or positive energy particles.

When you understand the valuable information about the truth of toxins as a learner through the two truths and the types of energy particles produced, you will appreciate the toxins group in the form of the Tao of teacher and student. Next, you need to eliminate that toxin if it is present or if it begins to appear in your thoughts. This toxicity can only be completely eliminated when you activate all the values of kindness as a learner.

Now, please follow me to unfreeze this toxin in the multiparticle clusters of negative energy in your souls. Because you have gone through many lives in the human world, this type of toxin has thrived and caused the soul to produce many harmful energy particles. Those negative energy particles cause you ignorant illness, mental health problems, and physical illnesses. It would be best to unfreeze them so that the toxic information in the particle clusters can vibrate. When those harmful energy particles vibrate, the data from the lessons of the two truths will move in and neutralize the toxic information. Therefore, for everyone, this method of breaking the ice of toxins is highly magical to remove the toxins and activate goodness in you. Even if you are new to practicing in the human world, this method will also help you gain valuable information to eliminate toxins when they appear and develop. You must remember that the toxins of each type of interaction can only be eliminated when you practice activating the maximum kindness for that type of interaction.

You focus and think about the soul inside your body. Then read aloud after me: Hey, tuelinh, please be happy because we have attained enlightenment. Joy because you are no longer alone in your quest to understand the three secrets. In this human life, at this moment, we have achieved unity by body, wisdom, and soul. In particular, we have understood the three secrets you have searched for in countless human lives and the sufferings you have endured. The loneliness and hurts of past lives you have suffered from have been rewarded now. We have regained the memory of the origin, the truth of the suffering of the tuelinh life form, and the great vow to transform into a human in suffering to seek liberation. Our achievements through knowledge of the two truths and the transformation mechanism of energy particles have helped us understand ourselves and other tuelinhs; understand all things, events, and phenomena in the universe, and understand destructive energy. We and other souls all contain toxins inside, which are only revealed and eliminated when we interact with each other to create tribulation and suffering. Even though those sufferings are not pleasant, we have helped each other recognize and gradually eliminate toxins in the role of learners. Now, we understand not only ourselves and each other but also the nature of destructive energy. Destructive energy will invade and disintegrate us as the toxins within us erupt and develop.

They make us lose control and hurt each other. We have been jealous, superior, and harmful to our fellow students and teachers. Hey, tuelinh, you can cry. Let the tears of happiness fall on my face. I am so happy to have helped you comprehend the knowledge of the two truths. I will help you get rid of all those toxins. We will work together to squeeze out the toxins and activate the goodness in you. Dear Tuelinh, awaken all clusters of energy particles related to your role as a learner within you. Wake them up and awaken all the positive, negative, and neutral energy particles involved in the group interacting as learners. Let them awaken so that the positive energy particles of will and power can receive the power of knowledge of the two truths. Let the harmful energy particles be shaken one last time before our enlightened wisdom and the positive energy particles take control of them. Dear Tuelinh, do not be afraid or ashamed when you see harmful information transmitted from negative energy particles. It is not your fault. It is in you because this poison exists in all souls and people. Forgive yourself because those toxins have hurt your fellow students and teachers. And please forgive the hurt that your fellow students have caused you. Our enlightenment is our most sincere gratitude to them. When we become enlightened, they also know it and congratulate us. Therefore, you must be energetic and robust to unite with me and practice squeezing out all other toxins. Next, we dedicate this life to practising helping and saving everyone and all species. Those are words of deep gratitude to the first tuelinh and all our friends who have accompanied us in countless lives of practice. In particular, they are waiting for us to help them achieve enlightenment like us.

Hey, tuelinh, you and we will achieve success on the path of sustainable transmutation.

When you complete this method, mentally ill people will see intense conflicts from the soul. Those are emotions, images, and sounds from harmful energy particles transmitted to your brain. It would be best not to worry about those phenomena because they are toxins released after a long period of freezing. When they erupt, you continue to read and listen to understand the knowledge of the two truths so that the information of the knowledge moves into those clusters of harmful energy particles and neutralizes them. Your illness of intellectual ignorance, disease of mind, and pathology will disappear.”

A few students immediately told the teacher, “Teacher, it is as you said. When I listen to the teacher, I focus my thoughts on the soul inside my body. Images from past lives appeared clearly in my mind. If it were normal, I would have been frightened by those hallucinations, but you told me beforehand, so I was happy and observed those images. Those are negative images, teacher.”

The teacher said, “Once the negative energy particles are unfrozen, toxic information will be released through the vibration of the negative energy particles. Then, the valuable information of the knowledge of the two truths catches the signal and moves into them to balance. Defrosting all groups of toxins will miraculously help you overcome diseases of ignorance of wisdom, the soul, and the body.”

Chapter Twenty-Six

Eliminating Toxins in The Role of Wisdom Spreaders

"We continue to eliminate the toxins of the other interacting group in the teacher-student form. That is the poison of those who spread wisdom." After a few minutes of rest, the teacher continued to lecture to enjoy a cup of tea.

While teaching the lesson on eliminating toxins in the role of a learner, the teacher noticed intense conflicts within the learner's soul. That shows that the teacher creating a series of lectures to help students and everyone destroy toxins is valuable and useful to them. He just gave his first lecture, but it is an excellent source of inspiration for him because of the values it brings to learners.

He looked at everyone and said, "You continue to share your painful experiences of the interactive script group as a wisdom spreader."

A male student sitting beside his mentally ill wife stood up and said, "Teacher, my wife has been mentally ill for over two years. In the early stages of the disease, my wife was still conscious. At that time, she said that she often saw images of God and Buddha. They often pat her head and talk to her. After she lost control of her behaviour, she showed signs like saying she was God or Buddha. There are even sayings as if she is blessing everyone around her. My wife had stronger conflicts than before while participating in the teacher's class. I have understood the knowledge you taught about the conflicts that must arise when patients participate in learning. From your previous lectures, I guess that my wife's past life was also someone who taught knowledge that was not true and caused harm to many others. Therefore, her soul produced negative energy particles that encoded images of using God or Buddha to spread negative knowledge to everyone. Her soul had too many negative energy particles related to her role as a transmitter of knowledge, and poisonous information controlled her entire mind. As a result, she has had mental illness for over two years. Am I correct in analyzing the cause of my wife's illness?"

The teacher replied, "You are such a wonderful husband. When your wife is sick, you always love and accompany her. Your love will miraculously remove the information disorder problem in her soul, and your wife will recover quickly. Your analysis is accurate through the categories of expression and essence. The nature of the problem will be decoded through repetitive expressions. That shows that you are someone who can understand the two truths very quickly."

Another student continued, "Teacher, I have had experiences of participating in lectures on knowledge from different religions and beliefs. I noticed that those who teach and spread knowledge promote their faith; their views are the best in the world. They constantly criticize and defame other religions and beliefs in front of their followers. Even in a religion with many different branches, there are conflicts and slander among the branches to attract followers to follow their unit. These things make it impossible for learners to distinguish between good and harmful values to learn and apply. They make their students and followers afraid to receive knowledge from other religions and beliefs. They even use sermons in scriptures to instil fear in their students when they violate the words of the leader or the god they are worshipping. When I learned the knowledge of the two truths, I understood that they had faith but did not understand anything about the first tuelinh, the origin and the task of practice in the human world.

"Those are your wonderful experiences. Those experiences have helped you see the magic of the first tuelinh in creating many religions and beliefs to help tuelinhs in the human world have full interactive scenarios in the form of teacher and student. Souls will live and practice the knowledge of different religions and beliefs for many lifetimes. However, they will not be able to remember their past life memories. That is the ideal condition and environment for souls to emerge and eliminate toxins when they experience all suffering and calamities in the interactive scenarios of teacher-disciple form. Therefore, we should not criticize or discriminate against any religion or belief. We need to help people see the truth of origin, the task of the practising path to achieve enlightenment, and the immense love of the first tuelinh." The teacher explained.

Another student continued, "Teacher, not everyone in the world believes in the origin of humanity, the soul, cause and effect, and reincarnation. They believe that each person has only one life, and when they die, it's over. Therefore, they are willing to create actions that hurt each other and all species to satisfy their greed and ignorance."

The teacher replied, "Everything that happened, is happening, and will happen is the truth of the universe because it is the truth of the poison released when souls practice in human form in the human world. You should be happy that the world has people who do not believe in cause and effect, reincarnation, the life forms, and God or Buddha. It would be best if you were not sad about that because when each soul fully experiences suffering and tribulations, they will believe and practice according to enlightened knowledge. Your past lives were just like them. You also did not believe in cause and effect or reincarnation and the world of the soul. As a result, you now have your answer. When experiencing suffering, your soul will achieve enlightenment and understanding, and you completely believe in those things. You need to understand that the truth is not changed by one person's beliefs, a group of people, or even humanity. Someone who does not believe in reincarnation does not believe in cause and effect. That is just a belief in a lack of enlightened information. That belief cannot change that their souls still have to reincarnate through many lives to force out toxins and produce sustainable energy particles for their growth."

After that, the teacher continued to lecture, "When will you and everyone live in the role of spreading knowledge? –

When you are a teacher teaching at school. You are the ones who are teaching a specific type of knowledge to your students. You practice religions and beliefs, then preach the knowledge you understand to believers and everyone. You are the one who spreads the knowledge or methods learned from books or someone to everyone. You practice rituals to pray for everyone. In particular, it is all of your actions in life because everyone sees those actions and receives information from them, whether good or harmful.

Types of toxins that you need to recognize and eliminate as a knowledge spreader:

- Teachers who teach in schools: they take advantage of their position to profit from students by controlling scores. They use grades or other benefits to satisfy the lust of students.

- Those who teach ignorant knowledge about liberation from suffering through leaving home to practice, practising rituals to pray to Buddha or God to be born in heaven after death. That knowledge makes people ignorant and unaware of the truth about humanity's origins and the mission of practice in the human world.

- People who spread knowledge, methods, and spells to satisfy the desire for wealth status and neutralize lousy karma.

- People who practice fortune-telling and worship rituals to God, Buddha, and gods.

- Those who teach knowledge cause people not to practice good deeds but instead practice actions that are harmful to others and all living things.

- People in religion incite followers or people to war and kill each other.

- Religious people propagate and criticize other religions and beliefs.

- Teachers spread toxic ideas and wisdom to students. That is the knowledge that does not bring sustainable development to humans and all things and is the knowledge that destroys the incredible solidarity of people and humanity.

- Teachers who insult, beat and kill students.

- Teachers who commit adultery with students and learners.

- All actions that harm oneself, others, and all species are toxins of the person who spreads wisdom to everyone. For example, when parents conflict leading to divorce, children will receive harmful information from their parents' toxins. They accept those toxins and merge with the toxins inside them to believe that divorce is typical for husband and wife when they are not compatible. As a result, when they grow up and have families, they easily divorce when they feel incompatible. That shows that each person's negative actions make them the ones who spread toxic knowledge to others.

Please use the two truths and the smallest particle of energy to understand all the thoughts and behaviours of yourself and everyone in your interactions as a knowledge spreader. It is any thought or action that causes people not to know the truth of the three secrets the tuelinhs are searching for, which is spreading human poison. If harmful energy particles have been, are, and will be produced from thoughts to actions, they are toxins. Those thoughts and actions satisfy one's interests but cause harm and injury to people, animals, and all species.

When you understand the manifestations containing toxins in each soul when they spread wisdom, you will be enlightened about that type of toxicity. It would help if you stopped spreading wisdom that contains poisons that you have enlightened to. Next, you need to eliminate those toxins in your soul through kind actions as a person teaching knowledge. Only compassionate activities in the role of teachers will help you remove those toxins from your soul. When those toxic thoughts appear in your mind, you need to eliminate them immediately. Always remember about yin and yang energy particles to understand why they are produced. You will easily control and eliminate toxins from there as a wisdom spreader.

Please note that this toxin erupts strongly in every human being and soul. In particular, when you have gone through countless lifetimes of practice, the harmful energy particles containing this type of poison in the structure of your soul are numerous. It controls your entire mind. It makes your soul unable to grow. That toxin causes you to produce countless harmful energy particles at the end of a reaction in your interaction as a teacher. So, the consequences are enormous. The reason is that knowledge has the characteristic of spreading everywhere and from generation to generation. Therefore, the form of teacher and disciple is the knot that prevents the tuelinhs from growing up. To untie this knot and produce sustainable energy particles for the soul, you must use the two truths and the transformation mechanism of energy particles as a guideline for enlightenment and practice.

Before practising the toxin-breaking method as a wisdom spreader, those with mental or physical illnesses should not be afraid because there will be a lot of information containing toxins that will be transmitted to your brain from harmful energy particles. You will see many images related to Buddha, God, the devil, sweet words, and negative words, and they play like movies in your mind. Be happy to let them shake and then be balanced by the valuable information of knowledge of the two truths.

And now, please focus and think on the soul within you. Read aloud after me: Hey, tuelinh! I congratulate you. Congratulations on your enlightenment and understanding of the three secrets all tuelinhs are searching for after countless lifetimes of practice. You have understood yourself and other souls, everything in the universe, and the energy of destruction. You have been lonely because of a long journey searching for those three secrets through suffering and tribulation. It would be best if you were happy because we have unity between wisdom, body and soul. It is our great power that in this life, at this moment, we can understand our toxins and those of other souls in our role as teachers and spreaders of knowledge. We already have the intellectual light of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy illuminating us. We are enlightened. Dear tuelinh, awaken all groups of energy particles composed of all interaction scenarios when you act as a teacher and spread knowledge to others. Awaken all the positive energy particles of generous and intellectual power and the associated neutral energy particles. In particular, awaken all the harmful energy particles created in your practice when you are a teacher, a religious person, a believer, a person who spreads knowledge and methods that hurt everyone and all species. Be strong, and don't be afraid when you see the memories of suffering and hurt that you have caused to everyone and all creatures. Let's wake them all up so that the value of the knowledge of the two truths empowers the system of positive energy particles and neutralizes the toxins in the negative energy particles. Let the harmful energy particles be shaken and arrogant one last time before the wisdom of the two truths and the power of the positive energy particle system take control of them. Hey, tuelinh, you are so happy because you have a physical body and a brain that helps you understand the knowledge of the two truths. Therefore, forget the suffering and hurt of everyone stored in the harmful energy particles that make up a part of you. This toxin is not unique to you; it exists in all tuelinhs and inhibits our growth. Forgive yourself for the mistakes those toxins made that have dominated and controlled you in past lives. When you forgive yourself, you will force out all those toxins. Next, we dedicate this human life together to help and save everyone and all species. Those will be sincere apologies and gratitude to all the friends who have accompanied you in past lives. They have vowed to practice with you in the human world and help each other eliminate toxins to transform tuelinh into maturity. Let's be strong; we will succeed on the journey to eliminate toxins and maximize kindness to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. We must help our friends who are still immersed in toxicity and suffering within other human bodies. They are waiting for us to help them. They will be happy to know that we have achieved great success by having enlightened wisdom and understanding the three secrets. When you grow up and practice the sustainable transformation mechanism, it is deeply grateful to the first tuelinh and all tuelinhs and humans. So, please don't give up; add strength to me so I can help you practice dedication to everyone and all creatures. Besides, I also vow to sacrifice this body to help you complete your practising mission. We must also force out the toxins in other forms and maximize our goodness. We will achieve the task soon.

After helping his students break through the toxic ice in his role as a teacher and spreading knowledge, he noticed a fierce conflict within them. Because the teacher knows that the types of poison in the form of teachers' and students' relationships are highly numerous and dangerous. It inhibits the growth of tuelinhs in the human world. It is easier for souls to destroy all poisons with the teacher's presence in the human world. Therefore, for each tuelinh or person in this life, receiving and practising the knowledge from the teacher is a blessing to oneself.

Then he told his students, "Unfreezing this poison will cause your souls to clash violently. Please relax and rest before leaving class."

Destroying Toxins of People Practicing Meditation and Worship Rituals

When everyone in the classroom became quiet, the teacher started a new lecture after a week as usual. The teacher asked the students, "You have experienced breaking the toxic ice in two interacting groups: learners and wisdom spreaders. Those two groups of interactions cover all the toxins in the teacher-disciple form. Their amount of toxins is tremendous because it is stored in the original negative energy particle and the negative energy particle system of the soul. When you practised the poisoning removal method in the role of wisdom spreaders, I saw you have violent conflicts in your souls. Especially in people with mental health problems and serious medical conditions."

A woman with terminal cancer said, "Teacher, starting from the first toxin removal lesson until today, I have had severe bone pain for two weeks. It hurts all day, and at night, it hurts worse. Are toxins being released from my soul? That's why I'm in such pain."

The teacher replied, "In principle, it is true. When toxins in the soul are released, depending on the level of toxins and the disease problem each person faces, there are different manifestations. The results of your gene sequencing show that genetic factors do not cause your cancer. That's because there are groups of toxic negative energy particles in the soul that bombard cells and cause them to transform into cancer cells. When you learn knowledge containing true information and sustainable development values, those toxins will escape all of your cells. As a result, you have reactions such as sharp pain in your joints and bones. It would help if you went to the hospital for a bone scan and tests to see how the disease has metastasized. However, as I have analyzed from the first class sessions, expressions of intense conflict will help you heal your illness most effectively. Therefore, there is nothing to worry about. Be peaceful and happy; never fear that you will die. When you fear you will die, death will come to you very quickly. On the contrary, death will leave you when you do not fear death and instead practice activating kindness to help and save people. You will enjoy life until you die of old age."

Another student told the teacher, "Teacher, I had an extreme conflict last class. Even when I listen to your lecture again at home, I still have a conflict. I felt cold, saw images of ghosts, my heart beat fast, and I felt nervous when reading the method of forcing out toxins. But when it ended, my body became warm, and I felt like my mental illness was almost completely recovered, teacher."

A female student confided, "Teacher, I have bone and joint pain due to an accident. I had treatment at the hospital and acupuncture, but it didn't help. However, after many days of studying, according to the teacher's knowledge, I found that my illness was almost completely cured. I did not use medication when participating in therapy. Now I can stand for a long time and run."

The teacher said, "That is the power of information that contains actual value and has sustainable development. When the soul and cells in the human body are information disorder and coded incorrectly, the valuable knowledge of the two truths will help neutralize and restructure the function of each group of energy particles in the soul and cell groups in the body.

You need to know that when you understand the three secrets, you will no longer be subject to information disorder in the direction of decay and destruction. At that time, toxins will be eliminated from your soul and body. As a result, you will not have illness. If you have a previous disease, you will recover very quickly."

"Teacher, I still wonder why your knowledge is so powerful in treating diseases related to mental illness and disease. In my case, I often had the phenomenon of having my body possessed by demons, and sometimes my ancestors possessed me. Then, I can know and say many things related to everyone. I've had that issue for nearly twenty years. In the early stages, I learned the teacher's knowledge through books but never felt cured. When I asked you why I was still not cured. After sharing with you, you told me to stop meditating and checking for ghosts in houses and instead focus on reading the two truths seriously. Miraculously, after a short time, I no longer had those phenomena. I feel like my body has become healthy and no longer gets sick. Did I recover from my illness because I understood the nature of the problem related to my illness?" A woman in the classroom asked the teacher.

The teacher replied, "That's true. That is the essence of receiving enough valuable information for sustainable development. Then, that information will help neutralize clusters of negative energy particles and information entanglement in the soul. That's why I advise you to read books and stop practising meditation seriously."

After a moment of reflection, the teacher continued to lecture, "The poison of the form of the Tao of teachers and students has been unfrozen in the previous two lessons. However, it is still insufficient to help you eliminate the toxins in that form. Do you know why? Because people have difficulty thinking deeply about destroying all the toxins inside the soul, healing will be difficult. During the practising journey of souls in the human world, some too many souls practice meditation to achieve enlightenment or supernatural powers, and others practice worship rituals. The amount of harmful energy particles produced is tremendous when they are practised for many lifetimes. As a result, it causes people to suffer from all kinds of mental illnesses, such as being able to tell fortunes, having magical powers, hallucinations, and demons controlling the body. If you do not thoroughly understand these issues, your disease cannot be cured. However, when you know and practice what I say, you will recover very quickly.

Did you know? The first few years on the journey to spread knowledge of two truths. Then, I had yet to transform the understanding associated with the smallest energy particle. I have guided some students in meditation to help them realize heaven, hell, and some secrets in the universe. Before they practised meditation, I warned them carefully about the messengers of the first tuelinh. The messengers will lie to cause the meditator to develop poison through greed for magical powers, intellectual arrogance, and attachment to the dharma and supernatural powers they learned from the five messengers. I warned them not to learn anything from Buddha or God when meditating people met them because people will not meet Buddha or God. Instead, there will be five messengers who transform and pretend to be Buddha or God when the meditator thinks of the desire to meet them. The five messengers' mission is to help practitioners eliminate toxins and activate goodness. As a result, those students did not obey me. They learned magic from Buddha and God during meditation without knowing they were messengers pretending to. After that, they no longer listened to me because they thought they had magic and supernatural powers, while the teacher did not. Why do they feel like that? Such is the poison of intellectual arrogance and the mission of the five messengers. The messengers told them they had more magic and wisdom than their teacher. Of course, they believe it. That is true in all my practice lives in the human world during the first stage of spreading enlightened wisdom. After witnessing my students' loss of control with that toxin, I stopped teaching meditation to everyone. It is perfect and valuable for the practitioner if a person understands the knowledge and follows the instructions to practice meditation. On the contrary, if the meditator does not understand knowledge and does not listen to education, they will be unable to control the poison in the form of teacher and student when it breaks out.

You need to know the level of toxins in people who practice meditation and worship rituals and their consequences. As follows:

- People who practice meditation:

- + People who practice meditation to achieve calmness and peace in life. The purpose sounds excellent and valuable, but it is an ignorant purpose because the souls live in human form to have suffering and tribulation. The next is to identify and force out the toxins in them. Finally, practice producing positive energy particles to help the tuelinhs mature and transform the yin and yang energy embryo to become sustainable. They do not understand that true happiness and peace can only come when people act kindly to help and save everyone and all living things. Therefore, practising meditation to gain peace and happiness is the poison of ignorance. In addition, it also inhibits the journey and time to practice sustainable energy particle production.

- + People who practice meditation to achieve enlightened wisdom and become enlightened beings. This level of toxin is potent in controlling the human mind. They will never gain enlightened knowledge and become enlightened beings through meditation practice. Meditating to know about life forms in the universe does not help them produce sustainable energy particles for the soul's growth. If meditation led to enlightenment, tuelinhs would not need to incarnate into humans to practice. You need to understand that meditators can know something in the universe through meditation within the understanding of their soul before incarnating as a human. Therefore, re-knowing things they already know that have no value in helping them grow is meaningless. As a result, these people believe that they have become enlightened and have become enlightened beings. They do not practice awareness to force out toxins and produce positive energy particles in the human world's four forms of the Tao. As a result, their souls increasingly encode incorrect information on their practising journey in the human world because of their experience and supernatural abilities. That makes it easier for them in their next lives in the human world to open their third eye, and they will continue to immerse themselves in meditation because that type of toxin has dominated them.

+ People who practice meditation to gain supernatural powers and magic. They quickly lose control of their behaviour by the magical powers or mantras they learn during meditation. They can communicate with the spiritual life form through meditation, which is the result of their many lifetimes of practising meditation. However, for every tuelinh that has not yet transformed into a human, it is normal. There is nothing talented or accomplished on the path of practice. It's like an adult chicken wanting to turn into an egg to understand the world inside the eggshell. They do not understand that the things they see and know through meditation are things their soul knew before incarnating as humans. As a result, they were immersed in meditation when they learned many magic spells and mantras from five messengers pretending to be Buddha or God. They think they are more talented than other practitioners. Therefore, instead of forcing out toxins and activating goodness in suffering and calamities, they apply magical powers and mantras to suppress demons and help people achieve their desires in prayer rituals. Those actions cause their souls to become uncontrolled by the poison of that ignorance. They produce many harmful energy particles through the ignorant activities of thinking that their magical powers and mantras will help people overcome suffering. And they also naively believe that they have achieved outstanding achievements in their spiritual path. When the amount of harmful energy particles in their souls is too much, they will become mentally ill people with images of Buddha, God, and demons in their minds. When they are still conscious and have not lost control of their behaviour, they always see Buddha, God, and monsters everywhere, whether they are meditating or not.

- People who practice worship rituals:

- + People who practice worship because of suffering, the desire for wealth or status, and the desire to neutralize negative karma. These are rituals to pray to Buddha, God, or gods. When practising rituals, they killed animals to make offerings for worship. They believe that prayer and offerings of animal bodies, God, Buddha or gods will help them neutralize bad karma, overcome suffering, and gain wealth and status. The toxins of the ritual practice of supplication are dominating these people. They became ignorant and killed the animals. They ignorantly think that God, Buddha, or other gods will assist in their brutal actions. And they also believe that they will get help from those praying rituals. They did not know that the actions of killing animals combined with praying rituals caused their souls to produce a lot of harmful energy particles. When these harmful energy particles become abundant in their souls, they will suffer from mental illnesses or serious illnesses. They will even encounter more misfortunes in life. The toxic energy particles in their souls hold images of gods, Buddha, God, and animal deaths. That is why many people have their bodies taken over by demonic phenomena. The truth is that no devil is taking over their bodies. The toxic information in their souls controls their minds when they have many harmful energy particles.

+ People whose profession is a shaman. They may have learned worship methods from their teachers. They may have practised meditation for a long time and have ways to practice worship and use supernatural powers. It is possible that people naturally can make offerings - in fact, in past lives, they practised the profession of offerings. These people lose control of their thoughts and behaviour because of the toxins inside their souls. They think that when they worship, they help others by helping people pray to Buddha, God, or gods. They are ignorant because of toxins' influence and do not understand the truth about their origin and practising mission. That makes them increasingly practice the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles of the toxin that is the spreader of toxic intelligence. To perform the rituals, they asked people to slaughter many types of animals as offerings. In directing the killing of animals and spreading superstition based on taking advantage of people's belief in Buddha, God, and gods, their souls produce countless toxic energy particles. That is the reason why many shamanic teachers suffer sudden death while they are alive. The reason is that when they direct the killing of many animals, those animal souls resent the teacher and will follow that teacher. When the negative energy in the teacher is too much, it will cause the teacher to die suddenly. In particular, when the souls of these teachers are reincarnated as new life, in mild cases, they are controlled by phenomena such as demons, and in severe cases, they have mental illness.

You have witnessed many people suffering from mental problems related to meditation and prayer rituals. But they think they get that blessing from Buddha, God, and gods to help people through worship. You all know what their consequences are. Among you in this class are also people who meditate with miraculous powers and practice worship rituals in past and present lives.

Have you understood why, when you read and learn the two truths, all mental and physical illnesses will be cured? It is especially good for someone who has phenomena such as being possessed by demons or abilities such as telling fortunes for others. No demons possess your body, nor can you neutralize or pray for anyone through rituals and supernatural powers. It's all about the operation of the energy particle structure inside each soul, and the practising journey must include suffering to help the tuelinhs mature and achieve enlightenment. You will be cured immediately when you understand everything and the nature of the disease problem. That is why many people, after seriously reading and learning the two truths, no longer have the phenomenon of demons possessing their bodies and are no longer able to tell fortunes. In particular, people with severe mental illness also recover.

Now, please focus on the soul inside your body to eliminate this toxin. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! It is magnificent that we have known and learned the two truths. I congratulate you because you have finally achieved this outstanding achievement after a journey of practice in human form for many lifetimes. The two truths have helped us understand the three secrets all tuelinhs search for. We know about ourselves and other tuelinhs that we all have evil and good within us. Poison and goodness can only be revealed through the suffering of the tribulation that we have vowed to incarnate as humans to practice. We have a great mission with other friends to create interactive scenarios in each life and help each other. We helped each other to identify and eliminate toxins and then activate kindness. On the journey of practice in human lives, toxins have been discovered and removed from the soul in addition to activated good deeds. Although you have lost control due to the toxicity of the teacher-disciple form in your meditation practices and worship rituals, you have now achieved great success. Hey, tuelinh, please rejoice and cry for this happiness. Because now we understand all things and the energy of destruction. From understanding ourselves and other souls, we have realised that when the toxins within us control the entire positive energy particle system, destructive energy will enter us through the excess harmful energy particles. That leads to the destruction of countless tuelinhs. Dear Tuelinh, we have found the cause and understood everything through knowing the two truths. We have the power from that knowledge to force out all the toxins in the original yin and yang energy embryo. Therefore, awaken all energy particle clusters with informational content related to meditation practice and rituals. Awaken the positive and neutral energy particles so that they have more truth power from knowing the two truths. In particular, awakening harmful energy particles involves information that you practised meditation and rituals in past life without understanding that those actions were detrimental to animals, people, and yourself. Awaken them so they can receive robust information from the wisdom of the two truths. They will be neutralised and become more stable energy particles thanks to the knowledge of the two truths and the positive energy particle system. Hey, tuelinh, don't be afraid or ashamed when you see the harmful information you have caused to animals, others, and yourself. This type of toxin exists in all souls, and all have been helping each other recognise and remove it from their souls. There is nothing to be afraid or ashamed of because we are living in a human environment to perform a noble mission. Therefore, each soul's achievements are a worthy result after a journey full of suffering and tribulation. Hey, tuelinh, be strong, and join me in uniting body, wisdom and soul into a person with the power of knowing the two truths. We must eliminate all the toxins in the teacher-disciple Tao and other Tao forms. Next, we must help people and other souls understand the three secrets to transform yin and yang embryos into energy filters. Our attainment of enlightened wisdom is the joy of all souls and even those tuelinhs who suffered from us in past lives. Forgive yourself to have the strength to help them. Let us dedicate this human life to helping and saving everyone by practising the mechanism of sustainable transformation. Those are genuine apologies to all people and tuelinhs. Besides, it is also a deep gratitude to the first tuelinh for his silent help to all of us. We will achieve outstanding achievements in this human life. Therefore, I vow to dedicate my body to you to practice the path of generating positive energy particles."

After a few minutes for the students to relax after finishing the toxin-breaking method in the role of people practising meditation and worship rituals, the teacher asked, "How do you feel?"

Some students answered, "I saw images of killing animals and demons. I see images like Buddha and God. I shook my whole body, then my body became warm." "You see, if you touch any group of toxic information in your soul, you will immediately have intense conflicts. Therefore, to eliminate toxins, you must read and re-listen to each lecture many times. The goal is for your soul to absorb the most accurate and valuable information fully. Then, you will practice the most effective production of sustainable energy particles." The teacher answered.

Chapter Twenty-Eight

Eliminating Toxins as a National Leader

When the teacher entered the classroom and prepared for a new lecture, several students said, "Teacher, your lectures on removing toxins from the soul have great power. Every time I listen and practice eliminating toxins at home, my body has strong reactions. But it's great, sir. After the past few days, my illness has decreased a lot. The health of body and mind is getting better and better."

After enjoying a cup of hot tea, the teacher said, "The interaction scenarios in the form of teacher and student contain the most toxins on the growth journey of each tuelinh. If each person quickly squeezes out that type of toxin, other toxins will also be easily eliminated, and the soul will mature very quickly. On the contrary, if the pressing of toxins in the form of teacher and disciple is slow, other toxins will be very difficult to press; as a result, the soul will become sick and have difficulty growing up. The reason is that the form of teacher and student helps each soul develop intellectually and cognitively. Therefore, the toxins of this type of interaction are a bottleneck that inhibits each soul's growth and prevents the elimination of other types of toxins. On the contrary, if you can squeeze out the toxins and activate the goodness of the interacting groups through teacher and student, it is the magical key to motivating each soul to produce sustainable energy particles.

Awareness and understanding are big problems for every person in the human world. It is also a big problem for all tuelinh life forms that they need help understanding the three secrets. Therefore, when it comes to the issue of awareness, wisdom, and ignorance, you should not think those statements are not polite to everyone and all souls.

Because of the prevalence and danger of toxins in the form of teachers and students, your souls have produced countless harmful energy particles during your practice lives. That causes your soul to be immersed in other toxins and unable to mature. Therefore, when implementing the method of loading knowledge of the truth and the value of sustainable development of the two truths, you have harsh reactions in your soul and body. Because of the nature of this type of toxin, I repeatedly remind students to study seriously and diligently to understand knowledge. If learners accurately understand the two truths, everyone will practice correctly. When practised incorrectly, it means people are spreading false wisdom to others. In addition, in many therapy courses, I always remind patients to listen to me when studying and practising. Listen to me to learn and practice the knowledge accurately to make the treatment most effective. The truth has proven that anyone who does not listen to my advice will not recover from their illness, will not overcome suffering, and cannot help their soul grow.

Today, you continue to eliminate toxins in the national form. In the interaction groups of this Tao form, there will not be many people with harsh reactions in their souls and bodies like the teacher and disciple form. However, if someone has many types of toxins and harmful energy particles associated with these types of toxins, they will still have severe reactions. Therefore, when you see harmful images and information about the national Way transmitted from the soul to the brain, observe them as if watching a short movie. Don't be afraid or worried about that toxic information in your soul. Because every tuelinh has all kinds of toxins in the four forms of the Tao, there may be a difference in the level of each type of poison."

A male student immediately said, "Teacher, I asked you to participate in this therapy course because I have been depressed for more than a year. I have phenomena such as fear and anxiety when alone at home. I always think that someone is watching and killing me. When I went to the hospital, the doctors concluded that I had depression and a fast heartbeat. For more than a year, I have had to take heart medication and depression medication. However, my illness became more and more serious. Listening to the teacher, from the first days of attending class, I no longer took heart and depression medications. As a result, after two months of studying, I no longer have heart palpitations, and the symptoms of anxiety and fear when staying at home alone are still there. When I have such phenomena, I listen to the teacher's lecture without worrying or fearing. I had the same dreams many times; I was a general and ordered the killing of many people. When I have dreams like that, I often wake up in the middle of the night, then I feel scared, and my body is freezing. I want to ask you, sir, are those toxins and negative energy particles in the national form? Because the teacher once said that if the patients understand their problem and the illness they suffer from, then the illness and the problem will disappear."

The teacher said, "It is true that I said when you understand the truth, all diseases and problems will disappear. In addition, you must remember that diseases of the wisdom, soul, and body caused by any type of toxin must be healed with that information. If a killer toxin causes your intellectual and mental illness, you must eliminate that toxin and act kindly in saving people. You cannot use not killing animals to heal the toxic group of murderous acts. The information in healing body, mind, and wisdom must be accurate to help you recover from illness, and your soul will mature quickly. You cannot know about past lives that you lost control of your behaviour and caused harm to people and species in interacting groups. Therefore, I must provide you with complete information. That is why you must practice recognizing and eliminating all toxins in each form of the Way. When you have mild to severe reactions in each interaction group, that is a sign that you recognize that this type of toxin has thrived in your soul.

Like the story the man just shared, your illness and the recurring images in your dreams are toxic information in the form of the national Tao. It has been encoded in the harmful energy particles of the soul from past lives. That information bombards and begins to control the brain, which is a sign of mental illness. Anxiety, fear, and depression are just the first stages of the disease. However, receiving valuable information helps neutralize those toxins. I congratulate you on your initial achievements in healing your illness."

After sipping a cup of hot tea, the teacher continued his lecture, "We will eliminate toxins together as leaders of the nation this morning.

Do you know who the national leaders are? When it comes to the phrase national leader, you will likely think of it as the header of a country. However, we need to understand more fully: national leaders are representatives of the people to protect the rights and interests of the people within the scope of their management and leadership from the local level up to the highest level within a national unit. That is:

- The heads of operations and general management of a country.

- The leaders manage different areas of a country.

- Heads of regions and territories within the country.

- Those who enforce and manage the law at all levels and fields.

- Executives and managers in the armed forces.

- Managers and executives at grassroots levels.

- People in leadership roles can be generally understood as those who perform tasks to serve the rights and interests of the people, and they receive salaries from tax contributions from the people. That is the most complete understanding.

Next, you need to identify and understand the types of toxins in the interaction scenarios of each tuelinh when they play the role of national leaders. As follows:

- Leaders embezzle and corrupt money from the state budget and the people.

- Incompetent leaders cause people to live in poverty, without prosperity and development.

- Leaders collude with traders or businesses to get rich from destroying the country's natural resources. That is cutting down forests, exploiting soil, stone, and water resources, causing damage to the ecosystem of all species and humans.

- Leaders issue policies that benefit a particular group of people while causing negative consequences for the people.

- Leaders take advantage of beliefs and religion to fool people. That makes it easy for leaders to rule and exploit the people.

- The leader appropriates people's wealth and land.

- Leaders issue tax policies that force people to live in a situation of paying many taxes and penalties.

- Leaders let people die in epidemics and natural disasters.

- Leaders collude with merchants and businesses to get rich from natural disasters and epidemics of the people.

- Leaders oppress, beat, and kill people.

- The leader propagates racial and ethnic discrimination and incites hatred between nations.

- Leaders incite and oppress the economies of other countries, causing their people to live in poverty.

- The leader incites and invades another country. That causes soldiers to die on the battlefield and people of other countries to die.

- Leaders are ignorant in developing their country to become strong, so other countries invade them. As a result, they caused soldiers and people to die on the battlefield, and people's lives sank into poverty and suffering.

Among the leader's toxins, the toxins that cause war, including being invaded and going to invade, are the most dangerous toxins humans experience when interacting as leaders. The poisons of that ignorant intelligence caused countless soldiers and people of their own and other countries to die.

The toxicity of interactive scenarios as a leader causes a lot of harm to people and all species. It stands behind the poison of the teacher-disciple form. When this type of poison in the form of a national Way breaks out and develops, it will hurt many people and even kill countless people. They do not understand that they are incarnated as humans and have the advantage of being leaders to force out toxins and activate goodness within their souls. That is a considerable advantage when everyone understands the truth of the three secrets humans and tuelinhs are searching for. They can use this to produce countless positive, stable neutral and negative energy particles to help their souls mature quickly. Through position and power, policies are promulgated to help people develop sustainably, and the country live in peace and prosperity. That is to build policies of solidarity and harmony between countries so that war does not occur. Those advantages are rare and not available to countless souls to promote the practice of sustainable energy particle production."

A student interrupted the teacher, "Teacher, can all souls live as national leaders while undergoing spiritual practice in the human world?"

The Master replied, "All tuelinhs must go through life as leaders. However, depending on cultivating wisdom and understanding during spiritual practice, each soul can take on leadership roles at different levels and powers. For example, a tuelinh, during the practice in past lives, achieved the wisdom to lead and govern people at a basic level. In their current life, they can only lead and manage people at an equivalent level, and if they are in a higher position, they must cultivate a huge amount of knowledge. However, if they try to achieve a higher position than their soul is capable of by using money or connections to get it, the consequence is that they will easily die suddenly or have to go to prison because of a lack of intelligence to overcome the toxins of greed and ignorance. That is the cause and effect of toxic out-of-control behaviour as a leader."

Another student immediately said, "Teacher, that is why in the lesson on wisdom and the enlightened mind, you said not to use the money to buy status as an official, but instead to cultivate wisdom and dedicate intelligence to help the people. Thus, a leader's talent and power position depend on the informational values each soul has retained from past lives and the effort to cultivate the wisdom of the present life. Suppose a person does not have valuable information about management and administration experience to help the country prosper and prosper. In that case, they use money and connections to become the country's top leaders, and they will easily cause harm to the country. Even because no positive energy is involved in benefiting the people from their past lives to protect them, they are easily killed by power struggles or live in prison for embezzlement and corruption. Is that right, teacher?"

The teacher replied, "That's true. The ignorance and out-of-control toxins in the role of a leader cause countless souls not to recognize or even believe in their origin and mission in the human world. They are immersed in stealing money from the people and the country's budget. They even guide their relatives and acquaintances together to become greedy and intellectually ignorant officials."

Another student asked the teacher, "Teacher, in the history of countries worldwide, their people worshipped generals and leaders as saints because they helped people destroy enemies when their country was invaded. I wonder if those saints are true saints and achieved enlightenment?"

The teacher said, "There is a reason why people of all countries worship them as saints. Because they sacrificed their lives to unite the people against the invasion and killing of soldiers from other countries, they are the great heroes of their people, so they are revered by the people and canonized as saints. However, from the truth of the three secrets, from the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle, and through the mechanism of energy particle production, you will see the nature of those things. The leaders uniting to protect the lives of their people from invasion and killing from other countries are their actions that produce positive energy particles. However, they led the people to activate the toxin of hatred for the enemy. They killed the soldiers on the other side of the front line, which was producing harmful energy particles. Because of killing humans, a lot of toxic energy particles are produced. It causes their soul structure to be disconnected, and destructive energy will attack, causing decay within them by the vibration of excess harmful energy particles. It is also unfortunate for each person to witness the situation of relatives and family being killed by soldiers of another country or from the other side of the front line. They need a journey of many more lives to transform the negative energy particle structure in their souls.

You need to know that a saint and an enlightened being as a leader must bring peace and prosperity to the people. It includes the people of their own country and the people of other countries. They do not cause wars to invade other countries or let other countries invade their country. That is the true saint and enlightened person in his role as a national leader.

It would be best to remember that the territory and resources such as sea, water, and land on Earth do not belong to any country, anyone, or dominant group. It belonged to the universe and was born from the yin and yang embryo of the first tuelinh. He has been protecting and developing it. He created the Earth so that all tuelinhs have an environment to practice, not so that humans can fight over it and kill each other.

Now, please focus on your inner soul to eliminate the toxins in your role as a leader. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh. Do you know? The path of leading and ruling a country or people is more challenging than what people and tuelinhs think. It is complicated because we quickly lose control due to the toxins in the root harmful energy particles and the negative energy particle system that dominates and controls our minds. It isn't effortless because we do not have enough intelligence and understanding to practice activating the goodness that a leader must do. Those things are one of the reasons why you and all other souls must incarnate as practitioners for many lifetimes in the human world. Hey, tuelinh! It would help if you were happy because we have understood the three secrets that you and other tuelinhs have made great vows to incarnate as humans for many lifetimes of practice to search for. In this life, at this moment, we have understood those three secrets through the knowledge of two noble truths. We have understood the poison and goodness within ourselves and other tuelinhs. We understand the nature of everything in the universe and the energy of destruction. Therefore, rejoice; it is the joy of success on a path full of suffering due to a journey with countless lives of practice you have gone through. Hey, tuelinh, join me in uniting body, wisdom and soul to receive the power of enlightened wisdom from knowing the two truths. The light of enlightenment helps us understand the three secrets and the sustainable path of transformation to become an enlightened being. Therefore, at this time, we must remove the poison as a leader within you after many lifetimes of you losing control due to this poison. Dear Tuelinh, please awaken all groups of energy particles, including positive, neutral, and negative particles related to the information content when you were a leader in past lives.

Awaken them, let the positive energy particles of love for the people be empowered by the knowledge of the two truths. Let the harmful energy particles of ignorance and greed as a leader awaken. Let them be shaken one last time by the arrogance that poisons them. Because then they will be neutralized by the power of positive energy particles and enlightened wisdom from the two truths. Hey, tuelinh, don't be afraid or worried when you see harmful information as a leader from the negative energy particles transmitted because those toxins exist in all souls. Please observe them so we can have more strength for a sustainable transmutation process by activating our goodness. You should feel happy because, in this life, you have my vow to dedicate this human life to eliminating all toxins and practising the path of sustainable transformation in all forms. Let's practice the production of sustainable energy particles together out of love and responsibility to all people and creatures. Those are the deepest apologies and gratitude to everyone in the past and the first tuelinh. Hey, tuelinh, please forgive yourself for the mistakes you made to everyone and all species in past lives when you were a leader. Only by forgiving yourself will you have the strength to force out all the toxins and activate the goodness within yourself. Outstanding achievements are waiting for you ahead. Therefore, please join me in determining to complete the mission of practising to mature and become an enlightened being. Let's work together to help everyone and all species transform along the path of producing sustainable energy particles through enlightened knowledge of the two truths.

You should perform this toxin removal method multiple times for each toxin type. It is beneficial in activating the soul's compassion to have the power to eliminate toxins through practical actions of helping and saving people and all species. Remember, you must practice helping and rescuing others in all interaction scenarios in the four forms of the Tao. Toxins can be thoroughly eliminated only when practising the mechanism of producing positive energy particles. Otherwise, learning and understanding the knowledge of the two truths will become meaningless."

Chapter Twenty-Nine

Destroying Toxins as Citizens for the Nation

After a few hours of lunch break, when the lecture on eliminating toxins as a leader ended, the students were fully present in the classroom. Everyone's stories disappeared and were replaced by silence when they saw the teacher had entered the classroom. The teacher started the lecture after enjoying the first cup of tea.

When the teacher was preparing to lecture, a student said, "Teacher, I thought that when I practised removing toxins as a leader, I would not react to my soul. Yet phenomena such as difficulty breathing, headaches and a little fear appeared in my body. After that, my body sweated a lot. In my past life, I took actions that hurt people when I experienced situations as a leader. Maybe the amount of negative energy particles produced from that scenario hasn't caused me to have a mental illness. However, suppose that toxin is not eliminated while the body and mind are alert. In that case, it can still easily break out into mental illness when other groups of negative energy particles are increased. From my experience, it is precious to recognize and eliminate toxins in all interacting groups in the four forms. In addition to helping people heal from illness, it also helps people of all ages prevent illnesses from coming to them in the future. I conclude that learning the wisdom of the two truths is an essential job for everyone, whether they are children or the elderly."

The teacher said, "It is true, the value of knowledge of the two truths not only helps each tuelinh attain the unified Way of the universe; It also has the power to heal everyone's intellect, soul, and body.

This afternoon, we continue the remaining toxic group of national form. That is recognizing and eliminating toxins as citizens of the nation.

When do we stand as people of the nation? – We are born and live in the community of a country. That is when we belong to a nation by laws and traditions. That is when we live and work in compliance with the law, our rights, and our obligations to the country.

All those who play leadership roles at all levels and sectors of a country are also people of the nation. You need to understand that the leader is not the master of the people. They are just people who have the trust and confidence of the people because of their intelligence and morality to help the entire people unite and develop in happiness and prosperity.

However, I want to separate the two roles so that we can identify the toxins for each position. From there, it will be easier to eliminate toxins in the soul. That means don't think that if you are the leaders, then you are not the people of the nation. If you understand that, you're mistaken. Even though you are a leader in this life, you are also a person's role. You are not anyone's master. You are the only person with the prestige and trust of the people to manage and develop the country to prosper. Therefore, the role of a citizen includes everyone living in a country.

Toxins that need to be recognized and eliminated as a citizen:

- It includes all the toxins of a leader.

- People are too lazy to work. When this type of poison develops, it will make people's lives poor and their intelligence stupid. Their country is at risk of invasion from other countries when it has too many poor and ignorant people.

- People live in deception, fraud, harm, and theft from each other. These people put the country at risk of riots and the breakdown of great national unity. The threat of intervention and invasion from richer and stronger countries is vast.

- People live in poverty because they do not learn by themselves to develop intellectually and economically. It is poison to the responsibility of a citizen.

- People live and work in violation of the law, such as stealing, trading and producing products that are prohibited by law, tax evasion, trading and trading in products that are harmful to humans and all species. That is the poison of profit that harms everyone.

- People receive and propagate harmful information that divides the great unity of the people from the leader. That creates the risk of violence and sabotage interference from forces outside the country. The consequences can cause war, poverty and death for the people.

- People incite discrimination between people within the same country, racism and hatred towards other nations.

- People incite conflicts and kill each other.

- People incited civil wars and invaded other countries.

Those are toxins that each person, as a citizen, must know and eliminate. You can see leaders have to have greater concentration to recognize toxins and remove them from their souls. Because they simultaneously play two roles as people and leaders when they are trusted and trusted by the people to be entrusted with national management and development.

In previous courses, I analyzed the types of toxins in all forms so that people can know and eliminate them when they appear. Some students have said, "If they don't do everything to satisfy themselves in life, then what is life meaning anymore?" Do you think they are right? You already have the answer right from the lessons about wisdom and mind. It would be best to remember that practising in the human world does not satisfy any of the ten forms. Those ten forms always exist in all interaction scenarios of the four forms of the Tao in each person's life. There are many souls who, because of selfishly satisfying their interests in the four forms of the Way, have caused harm to people and all creatures from past lives. Therefore, in this life, they have to endure countless sufferings and disasters, such as mental illness and severe illness. That is the consequence of practising a harmful lifestyle because the toxins in them appear and develop.

When you put yourself into each role to understand, you will gain enlightened wisdom to transform your soul to become more mature. I give you the following example: in your previous life, you despised black people, even forcing them to be your slaves. You beat and killed them because you thought you were a class of people superior to them, so you had the right. That is your ignorant wisdom when you do not understand the origin of humanity and the practising mission of the tuelinh life form. Because you lost control of the toxins when interacting as a citizen with other citizens, many negative energy particles were produced. As a result of this human life, the wisdom council will be based on the results you have done in past lives to arrange for you to be born and raised in an environment where you are black. Then, you will suffer from racism and poverty. When your soul experiences all the different roles, it will recognize the toxins within you, and you will be able to eliminate them faster in the subsequent lives of practice. Therefore, to help the tuelinhs eliminate all toxins as quickly as possible and activate the maximum goodness when interacting in all scenarios, the knowledge system of the two truths has been built and spread to humanity. That will help the tuelinhs quickly successfully transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters to return to their homeland and continue with the first tuelinh on the journey to protect and develop the universe to become better and more sustainable.

Now, please focus and think on your souls to eliminate toxins as people of the nation. Please read aloud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! Congratulations on your achievements after many lifetimes of practice in the human world through suffering and tribulation. At this moment, you have achieved an outstanding achievement: to learn the wisdom of enlightenment from the knowledge of the two truths. Through that transcendent wisdom, we have understood the origin and mission of each tuelinh in human form. In particular, we have understood the three secrets every tuelinh has been searching for. We have understood the nature of ourselves and other souls: we have both poison and goodness within the original yin and yang embryo. We know all things in the universe: they have both toxin and compassion within them. We finally understand the nature of destructive energies: they will penetrate the tuelinh life form and all things to remove their excess heat through the vibration of the negative energy particle system. From the toxicity of each soul and all things, the energy of destruction has caused countless tuelinhs and all things to decompose and die. Therefore, we have reincarnated countless lives practising in the human world to seek an understanding of those three secrets. Hey, tuelinh, what happiness after a long journey of numerous lifetimes of practice! We now understand those secrets. We must be grateful for the sufferings and tribulations because, through them, we have understood the toxins of ourselves and all things when living in the four forms of life in the human world. Now, we live in the intellectual light of knowledge of the two truths. We understand the toxins and goodness in the soul through each group of interactive scenarios in human life. Hey, tuelinh, enjoy this happy moment. Receive the power of that unique knowledge to help the entire positive energy particle system have the power of truth and sustainable development. Dear Tuelinh, please awaken all the clusters of energy particles in you, which are clusters of energy particles made up of the content of interactions in your role as a citizen in past lives. Awaken all types of positive, negative, and neutral energy particles. Let the positive energy particle system be empowered by the knowledge of the two truths so that they have the power to control and neutralize the toxins in the harmful energy particles. Let those negative energy particles be shaken before they are neutralized by knowing the two truths and the positive energy particles. Those are harmful energy particles of sin that you have committed against yourself, everyone, all species and nations. Those are the toxic energy particles of laziness, theft, cheating, killing, inciting conflicts, racial and ethnic discrimination, law violations, violence, hurting people, agitation and war. Those are toxins that not only you have, but they exist in all souls. Hey, tuelinh, don't be afraid or worried when you see toxic information transmitted from harmful energy particles. Because we have achieved enlightenment and understood the three secrets, we have the power of wisdom to destroy those toxins. Therefore, forgive your mistakes in the past to have the strength to force all those toxins out of you. Next, let's practice together the mechanism of generating positive energy particles so that you can become mature and attain the unified Way of the universe. Please rest assured you always have my companionship, and I am always willing to dedicate my life to help you complete your mission. Only success is the reward, deep gratitude and apology to all the soul friends who have practised with you for countless lifetimes. They suffered because you couldn't control your toxins, so you caused them. Hey, tuelinh, be strong to practice squeezing out all the toxins and activating the maximum goodness in all forms. We must succeed in helping everyone and all species.

That is the best way to pay tribute to the first tuelinh, because he always silently guides us on our practising journey in the human world.

So, you have completed eliminating toxins in the form of national Tao. A close connection and resonance exist between the interacting groups in the four forms. Therefore, when you identify all the toxins for each interacting group in the four forms, you can easily squeeze them out of the original yin and yang embryo. Next, don't forget and don't be lazy in practising kindness to help and save everyone and all living things."

Some students said, "Teacher, I still feel severe reactions in my body. Images of killing animals appeared in my mind. There were also images of killing each other by war, and it passed before my eyes. My body became shaking. I feel tight, and my head goes blank when I practice squeezing out toxins." "That's very nice! Because when I merge my mind with yours, I also feel the emptiness in my mind. I see freedom and purity within me. Perhaps that is different from your feelings."

Chapter Thirty

Eliminate Toxins in Love between Men and Women

After listening to the teacher talk about the content of today's lesson, which is to recognize and eliminate toxins in love between men and women, a student immediately asked the teacher. "Teacher, can same-sex love be called wrong love? Because I see many countries in the world support same-sex love. However, there are many countries where they follow the rules of their religion and prohibit same-sex love."

The teacher said, "To accurately understand the nature of all things, events, and phenomena in life and the universe, you must understand the nature and mechanism of small energy particles. After finishing the lectures on eliminating toxins in your souls, I will teach you that knowledge. However, the issue of same-sex love is one of the toxins in male-female love, so in this lecture, I will help you understand this issue in detail.

First, please remember the lecture about the gathering of humanity by the first tuelinh. You pay attention to the family model that Nalas Nalanda arranged to build the human world. Each family has a male husband, a female wife, a son, and a daughter. He did not put any families with couples of the same sex. He arranges to help humanity develop through the natural reproductive mechanism between men and women. He has encoded the bodies of men and women into different functions and tasks by using five simple groups of energy gathered into each tuelinh to form a human being. From then until now, the missions and tasks in the body of each man and woman have always followed what he created. That is a matter of rules in building and developing humanity and all things in the universe.

Next, you need to know why the first tuelinh created humans with gender differences between male and female and then became a married couple. That is, the woman can receive and store the man's sperm in their eggs, and the man can release the sperm from them. He created humans with different genders, while all tuelinhs are genderless for two reasons. As follows:

- Nalas Nalanda wants to carefully study the nature of the movement of each type of yin and yang energy embryo of the tuelinh and all things. Each original yin and yang energy embryo is formed from a positive energy particle and the smallest negative particle. When two yin and yang energy particles join together to form a yin and yang embryo, it will create a new movement mechanism and reveal its nature. However, because the environment in heaven is too pure and peaceful, the tuelinhs cannot mature and are easily destroyed by the energy of destruction. That's why he simulated a negative energy particle through the symbol of a woman and a positive energy particle through the symbol of a man. Man and woman represent the two smallest energy particles that form the yin and yang embryo to produce other small energy particles. Therefore, by simulating the nature of man and woman, they become a family when they fall in love and get married. Tuelinhs living in the form of men and women will reveal their nature when they live in an environment filled with nothing but suffering in the human world. That is the value of the love structure between man and woman and the family that the first tuelinh created.

- The nature of harmful energy particles is to absorb information values from the outside environment into it. Meanwhile, the nature of positive energy particles is to radiate heat and information from within it to the external environment. When these two smallest particles of yin and yang energy connect, they will change their nature through movement. That semi-quality change leads to different transformation mechanisms, including decay to destruction and sustainable development. Also, because of the nature of the two types of yin and yang energy particles to create all things and life forms in the universe, the first tuelinh built humanity according to the characteristics of yin and yang energy embryos to decode the truth of all things.

You can understand why he created male and female genders for humans from the above two reasons. It is based on the characteristics of yin and yang energy particle embryos to simulate the love between men and women and a couple in detail. Each yin and yang energy embryo can produce new particles to grow into larger structures. That is simulated into couples of different genders to both promote the process of reproduction and human development and to see the nature of each tuelinh through the symbol of wife and husband.

You know, two positive energy particles cannot produce new energy particles when they connect. The same goes for two harmful energy particles, which cannot create new energy particles when they join. New energy particles are only produced from yin and yang energy particle embryos. Therefore, you need to understand that each couple symbolises each embryo of yin and yang energy. In the lecture on married couples, I will further analyse this issue."

Another student asked the teacher, "So, is same-sex love wrong and a violation, teacher?"

The teacher said, "There is no wrong or right on the journey of practice in this human world. Same-sex love is the same, neither wrong nor right. The practice environment created by the first tuelinh is to help all tuelinhs live and reveal their entire nature. Different toxic and benevolent values were emitted from their original yin and yang energy embryos. Depending on the poisonous or good worths in the victorious yin and yang energy embryo, the nature and behaviour of each tuelinh are different. If the toxins control the yin and yang embryo, the soul and the person will be loaded with more toxic information. As a result, they produce many harmful energy particles, and the destructive energy quickly destroys them. That is, they practice the mechanism of transformation, decay and destruction.

On the contrary, if the positive energy particle has the power to control the yin and yang embryo. That soul and that person do not absorb harmful information from the outside environment. As a result, they produce many positive energy particles on the journey of sustainable transmutation. They will not be disintegrated by destructive energy; instead, they have the power to absorb destructive energy and detonate it to produce super energy.

You need to understand that people who have same-sex love because the harmful energy particles in the original energy embryo of their soul win. Therefore, they have absorbed a lot of dangerous information in the outside environment related to same-sex love. Because there is a combination of internal toxins and toxic information from the external environment, it causes them to produce harmful energy particles related to same-sex love issues. When the amounts of poisonous particles are massive enough, it causes their souls to lose control and be immersed in same-sex love.

It would be best if you did not discriminate against them. Instead, let them know the true value of the information so they can understand and gradually force out the toxins in their souls. Truthful information that has the value of sustainable transformation will help them and all souls mature through sustainable change.

From the poison in same-sex love, please teach your children about this truth so that their souls and wisdom are controlled by positive energy. That is the path of sustainable development for each person and the tuelinh."

Another student asked the teacher, "Teacher, I know a few cases where there are girls and boys. When they start having a lover, they immediately lose control of their thoughts and behaviour. Some people are afraid and suspect their lover will betray them, so they don't dare to continue loving. One's illness worsened, and the hospital concluded he had a mental illness. That person occasionally sees friends of the opposite sex and will approach them and commit sexual harassment. They have no control over their behaviour. Are these phenomena the toxins of male-female love?

The teacher said, "Those phenomena are toxins from their negative energy particles related to love between men and women from past lives. When those negative energy particles are too abundant in the energy particle structures, that toxic information will bombard the brain and control the entire human mind. Because those negative energy particles were produced in love between men and women in previous lives; in this life, when they enter into love between men and women, those negative particles catch information signals from the brain, then they vibrate and bombard the brain with toxins." "Teacher, so in each soul, there are always clusters of energy particles with excess negative particles. Therefore, no one knows what kind of disease they will develop." The master replied, "That is why there is a series of lectures to remove toxins in all interaction scenarios of the four forms of the Way and the knowledge of the two truths to help everyone and all souls."

After a few minutes of silence, as the teacher sipped his cup of tea, he continued his lecture. "Love between a man and a woman is a pure and noble symbol. In addition, it is also a symbol of growth and proliferation. Man and woman represent the smallest particles of yin and yang energy.

Before the two smallest particles of yin and yang energy join to become a yin and yang embryo, they receive and transmit information. Positive energy particles send data, and harmful energy particles receive information. They will link together to form a yin and yang embryo when they have similar data and the same intellectual wave code group. Before the yin and yang embryos are linked, those yin and yang energy particles do not have a trial bond or bond and then separate to bond with other energy particles. They only connect once to become yin and yang embryos after realizing the similarity of information and vibrations between them. That is a standard for identifying the toxins of male-female love in humans.

The toxins that need to be recognized and eliminated in love between men and women are:

- Homosexual love between men and men and between women and women. That is a poison from the original harmful energy particles inside the soul. This type of poison is not found in all tuelinhs. Same-sex love results from toxins inside the yin particle of the yin-yang embryo and toxic information about same-sex love from the outside. At that time, this toxin thrives and causes the soul to become out of control, leading to a very rapid path of decay. Same-sex love is considered a type of poison in tuelinhs because they must live in male and female bodies to form a couple with two precise functions in each person's body. Only when living according to the nature of husband and wife created from male and female the yin and yang embryo of both souls will have the conditions to suppress poison and activate goodness. However, living with same-sex love will cause the soul to be loaded with more toxic information. As a result, they will not have the opportunity to force out the toxins and activate goodness. That causes their souls to decompose and perish quickly.

- Men and women have sex with other people before marriage. That causes their souls to absorb toxic information from lust and greed. This process will cause internal toxins to thrive because of the poisonous information of impure desire. The consequences of unhealthy relationships before marriage will cause their souls to produce harmful energy particles due to greedy and depraved acts of lust. In addition, their bodies are also at risk of diseases that lead to infertility. The production of harmful energy particles from relationships between men and women that are not aimed at building a true family is why many people have mental illnesses when they reach the age of love.

- A man or woman who practices a depraved lifestyle such as prostitution.

- Men and women use each other to satisfy their desires without the purpose of building true love towards marrying them.

- Men and women commit adultery with married people.

- Men insult, trample on dignity, beat, and even kill women.

- Men or women lead each other to commit suicide when their love is hindered.

Thus, you will see that the poisons of love between men and women develop and develop when men and women do not appreciate each other in love to become a family.

You must know that the poison of love is the most common poison that causes tuelinhs to produce many

When you recognize the toxins in love, apply them to your life to build genuine love and create a family if you are unmarried. In addition, please teach your children and grandchildren to understand it to eliminate this toxin and not let it break out or develop. This type of poison caused the souls to lose control and suffer due to the decay of the energy of destruction. Therefore, people should be aware of this type of toxin. Build yourself from eyes to words and actions to be kind, sincere, and responsible in love.

Now, please focus on your inner soul to eliminate the toxins in love between men and women. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! Do you know? The poison of love has caused countless souls to disintegrate and destroy. This toxin is easy to recognize but difficult to remove from every soul and person. Toxins in love, as well as other toxins and kindness in each soul's yin and yang embryo, is why you must reincarnate in human form for many lives in the human world. Because the tuelinh life form does not understand the three secrets, it does not understand itself and other tuelinhs, it does not understand all things in the universe, and it does not understand the energy of destruction. Because they do not understand, the tuelinhs are easily penetrated and disintegrated by the energy of destruction. Even though you live in the most beautiful paradise, that is the only suffering of souls. Hey, tuelinh, for that reason, you have vowed to incarnate as a human to practice in the suffering of the human world with the mission of seeking to understand the three secrets. I know you have endured countless sufferings and tribulations in your reincarnation journey. I appreciate your suffering in all the interaction scenarios in the four forms, especially in love. However, in this life, and now, be joyful. Do you know the reason? Because you and I have unified into the power of one human being with enlightened wisdom, a devoted body, and an austere soul that is you. We have gained enlightened wisdom from knowledge of the two truths. The light of enlightened wisdom helps tuelinhs, humans, and us understand the truth of the three secrets. We have understood all the toxins and goodness in each of us, all things, and the energy of destruction. We suffer from the disconnection caused by destructive energy entering our negative energy particle system. Dear Tuelinh, please remember all the enlightened wisdom I help you absorb through my brain. It is super-intelligence to help you eliminate all toxins and activate the mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Please awaken all clusters of energy particles related to love between men and women. Awaken all negative, positive, and neutral energy particles. Let the positive energy particles gain strength from the wisdom of the two truths. That power will neutralize toxins and control the vibrations of harmful energy particles. Hey, tuelinh, don't be afraid or worried when you see dangerous information in love between men and women when they are transmitted from harmful energy particles. Because you have me and enlightened wisdom to save you, be strong and confident to force out all the toxins related to love between men and women. To squeeze out that poison and activate kindness in love between men and women, forgive yourself. Forgive your actions that caused suffering to your lover in past lives. Those actions could exploit passion to satisfy lust or some other benefit. Those could be sexual abuses on people of the opposite sex. Maybe it was love in trampling, insulting and killing the lover. Perhaps it was the resentment that you or your lover caused each other. The hatred is caused by exploitation, betrayal, and killing each other. Hey, tuelinh, only when you forgive yourself and the people you love if they have hurt you in past lives will you have the strength to remove this poison from you. Please be peaceful and happy because I am with you. I have vowed to dedicate this human life to help you practice the mechanism of sustainable transformation. Be strong, and join me in living a life of kindness to help and save everyone. We will achieve brilliant achievements when we practice according to the enlightened knowledge of the two truths. The achievements are profound apologies and thanks to all the tuelinhs who have accompanied you in your practice lives in the human world. That is also a deep gratitude to the first tuelinh, as he always guides us on this path of practice.

Please teach and analyze this toxin for young people, your children and grandchildren. That not only helps you squeeze out the love toxins inside your soul but also helps everyone remove those toxins from their souls. This magical method eliminates toxins and activates goodness related to the interaction scenario in love between men and women. That should be similarly practised in other types of situations."

Chapter Thirty-One

Destroying Toxins in the Spouse Relationship

Before the afternoon lecture on Sunday began, the teacher asked his students, "Do you have any questions about the toxins in love between men and women in the morning lesson?" A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, if a person has undergone gender reassignment surgery from male to female or female to male when they learn the knowledge of the two truths and understand the nature of toxins that exist in their souls and the path of sustainable transmutation. How should they force out the toxins and practice producing positive energy particles?"

The teacher replied, "Your question already has an answer in it. That is practising the path of sustainable transformation by producing positive energy particles. The issue of activating and producing positive energy particles for each interacting group is in another lecture series. However, through the truth about the three secrets, the tuelinh mission and the particle production mechanism, you can give yourself the correct answer. As in the case you asked, transgender people want to force toxins and practice sustainable transformation after understanding the knowledge of the two truths. That is not difficult. It's easy because of the principle of not living a same-sex love life anymore, instead spending time sharing experiences of same-sex life so that young people can understand the truth of that issue. Share and help other young people appreciate the body they were born with and understand the toxins inside them in same-sex love. Those are actions to spread enlightened wisdom for young people to build genuine love between men and women to form a true family. Those actions are to force poison and activate goodness in them. This process requires the elimination of the lust for same-sex love. They must have exemplary lives to help everyone. Doing so will make their souls more mature, and their future practising journey will achieve more achievements."

The teacher continued, "This afternoon, we continue eliminating toxins in the relationship between husband and wife. You can share the sufferings and experiences in your married life to make recognising and eliminating those toxins easier."

At that time, a woman said, "Teacher, I have been living in misery with a husband addicted to gambling. We all work in state agencies. Before we got married, he didn't gamble. However, a few years later, he began to get addicted to gambling. Many times, he went out overnight at places where gambling was organised. The creditor notifies each debt from that game to our family and parents. I felt disappointed then because I didn't think my husband was like that. After repaying her husband's debt, even both parents paid the debt for him, but he still indulged in gambling. I was disappointed and asked him many times to sign the divorce papers, but he did not agree to the divorce. The pressure of life and raising children makes me feel miserable when my husband is like that. Right now, I don't know what to do or why I must marry such a husband?"

The teacher asked, "When you got married, was it because of love, or did someone force it?" "We got married because of love, not because anyone forced us." The teacher continued asking, "So why do you love him?" "I don't understand why. I felt moved, and love grew into husband and wife." The teacher laughed and said, "It is ignorance that people do not understand the three secrets. From that, they do not understand the great vow and mission of reincarnating as a human. As a result, you will not be able to explain why you love and marry that person. Then, when marital conflict occurs because of dissatisfaction, you complain that you don't understand why you married them. Continuing is the act of divorce to end that marital relationship. It's all dominated by the wisdom of ignorance, also known as the internal poison that governs and controls people. You can solve and eliminate this type of poison when you know the two truths. Therefore, please be happy to learn the knowledge of enlightenment, and the light of wisdom will help you overcome that tribulation."

Another student told the teacher, "Teacher, I see too many divorced couples in today's society. They think that it is freedom and a modern way of life. When they are not compatible, they can liberate each other. Many people, after divorce, find happiness with someone new, and they think they made the right decision to divorce to find happiness with someone new. Is that also a poison in marriage?"

The teacher said, "What you said is toxic in the relationship between husband and wife. When people do not have the enlightened wisdom of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy to illuminate, they will not see the greatness of the interaction group in the husband-and-wife relationship.

You seem surprised to hear me talk about the greatness of the husband-and-wife relationship. It is genuinely a great symbol. It is also the key to understanding the toxic and good nature of the yin and yang embryo of each tuelinh. So, today, you continue to learn a significant term. That is, husband and wife are both a key and an excellent symbol for each tuelinh to attain the unifying Tao of the universe on the journey of understanding the three secrets. Therefore, before helping you identify all the toxins in the husband-wife relationship, I will analyse the great symbol of the connection on the practising journey in the human world.

- Each couple represents each original yin and yang energy embryo within the tuelinh. The negative energy particle represents the wife, and the positive energy particle represents the husband. Tuelinhs are sometimes incarnated as men. Other times, they are incarnated as women during their practising journey in human lives. They must transform into men and women in different lives to understand the toxins and goodness in their original yin and yang embryos.

- Through the role of a wife, the soul can understand its original yin and yang embryo. That is:

+ If the wife develops one or all of the toxins in the four forms of the Tao. That means that the original negative energy particle of the wife's soul is toxic and has not been eliminated. Those toxins are closely linked to other interacting groups in the four forms of the Tao. When the poison in the wife breaks out, it will cause the wife to control and hinder the development and practice of the husband's sustainable transformation mechanism in the four forms of the Way.

+ If the wives can control the toxins and activate goodness in their souls. That means that the positive energy particles of the wife's soul have the power and control over the toxins of the harmful energy particles and toxic information from the outside environment. As a result, they are faithful wives, an effective supporter, and, together with their husbands, build a great career in sustainable transformation.

- Through the husband's role, tuelinhs can understand the nature of their original yin and yang energy embryo. As follows:

+ If the wife dominates the husband and loses control due to the toxins of both, they produce harmful energy particles. That proves that the toxins in the original harmful energy particles of the husband's soul are breaking out and losing control.

+ If the husband can build a happy and faithful family life, the wife becomes a solid foundation for the husband to practice the path of sustainable transformation in the four forms of the Tao. That proves that the husband's soul can activate the excellent power of the original positive energy particle and control the toxins of the external environment and the original negative particle.

- To help tuelinhs through the symbol of the husband-and-wife relationship to thoroughly understand their yin and yang embryo, the first tuelinh increases the complexity and pressure in married life for people. As follows:

+ The interaction group in the husband-and-wife relationship is closely linked to all interaction groups in other forms of the Tao. Such a connection will create toxic and good resonances in each soul's yin and yang energy embryo. That creates maximum compression and pressure in identifying and forcing poison, activating kindness. For example, when the husband has a high position in the national power apparatus. Everyone considers the husband to be a person who works for the people, and everyone loves the husband for his intelligence and morality. However, the husband could not control his wife's greed. Knowing this, the wife's relatives pressured the wife to ask her husband to help them get a high position in the government. Subordinates also use money to bribe the wife and ask for promotion to higher ranks. Because his wife dominated him, the husband developed his poison in the form of the national Tao and helped untalented people lead the country.

+ The pressure and compression of the relationship between husband and wife will increase in each life of practice. In this life, if the husband and wife live in harmony, the wife acts as a solid support for the husband so that the husband can contribute his wisdom to help everyone in the interactions of the four forms of the Tao. It successfully forced poison and activated goodness on a simple level. To help them eliminate toxins in the original yin and yang embryo, the tuelinh council will arrange their next life with more pressure and compression to see if they are still there. It may be a scenario to test the couple's fidelity. It could be illness or hardship. It could be status and wealth. If that pair of souls does not develop toxins in their marital relationship for many lifetimes, the tuelinh council will replace other souls to unite as husband and wife in the human world. The change is to increase pressure and compression to help the tuelinhs have adequate conditions and environments to force out all toxins and activate goodness in all suffering scenarios. For example, in this life, the husband is paired with a wife containing many toxins to create an ideal environment to test whether the husband's soul still has toxins. Because of his past lives, they built a faithful and happy married life to practice and help others. However, in this life, having to live with a greedy and unfaithful wife is a new environment to test whether the husband's soul is still toxic. If the husband divorces, commits adultery or marries another wife, the husband's toxins have emerged. On the contrary, the husband forgives his wife to devote his life to doing good deeds to help others and practice the path of sustainable transformation. That means the husband's soul has squeezed out all the toxins in the marital interaction.

Thus, you can see that the husband-and-wife relationship is closely linked to comprehending the nature of wisdom in the yin and yang embryo of each tuelinh. Because of the importance and greatness of the husband and wife symbol, the husband-and-wife relationship must increase in complexity and difficulty in different lifetimes and be associated with the four forms of the Tao. The purpose is to squeeze out all the toxins and check whether the toxins are still in the original yin and yang embryo. That shows you that the four forms of the Tao are closely tied to the relationship between husband and wife on the journey of sustainable transformation to attain the unified Tao of the universe. It is the principle of using poison to activate poison. After the toxins are fully activated, the tuelinhs can know and eliminate them. Finally, practice sustainable energy particle production to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

Toxins in the marital relationship that you need to identify and remove from your soul:

- Husband and wife are jealous and suspicious of each other.

- Husband and wife lie to each other.

- Husband and wife hate and resent each other.

- Spouses commit adultery and live unfaithfully with each other.

- One of the two people hurts each other by trampling on dignity, insulting, and cursing at each other.

- One of the two is mentally violent and beats the other.

- Husband and wife do not care, help, or cure each other when sick.

- The couple divorced. That is the consequence of the poison having grown strong and the soul losing control.

- Marry more than one spouse. It is the poison of greed and satisfaction caused by losing control of each person's original negative energy particle.

- Husband and wife kill each other.

Those are the toxins in married life for everyone to know and remove them from their souls and wisdom."

A student interrupted the teacher, "Teacher, I don't understand why divorce is considered toxic. In many cases, husband and wife living together are unhappy because of conflicts or other reasons. But when they divorce, each person's life is happier when they have a new family."

The teacher replied, "For the perception of human intelligence, many divorce cases are happy. But they do not realize the truth of the spouse scenario. As I have explained, the husband-and-wife relationship is a great symbol of the practising journey in the human world to understand all three secrets. Even to help each tuelinh squeeze out all the toxins, the tuelinh council will increase complexity and maximum compression in their marital relationship in the next lives. Therefore, when the husband and wife divorce because of incompatibility or for some other reason, it is because they have a huge amount of toxins in their yin and yang embryos that break out and grow strong. At that time, that toxin dominates and controls the soul, leading to the breakdown of family happiness. Therefore, divorce is a failure to control the toxins inside each soul. Instead of divorce, both husband and wife should understand each other and help each other understand the truth, then eliminate each other's toxins with respect and love for each other. When a husband and wife break down in their marriage, they suffer from information disorder between the two souls in the marital scenario. In their next life, they continued to become husband and wife to understand and eliminate that toxin together. They will even be husband and wife for many lifetimes to understand each other and squeeze out all the toxins released in their relationship. Toxins that are not forced out early will cause them to accumulate and become dangerous. Then they will be immersed in a more miserable scenario in their married life." "Teacher, I now understand the nature of that problem," the student replied.

The teacher continued to preach, "Now, please focus on the soul inside your body to force out the toxins in the relationship between husband and wife. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! You have finally achieved outstanding achievements in your practising journey in the human world. I congratulate you because you have discovered the truth of the three secrets. That is a worthy achievement after a trip of practice in suffering with tuelinhs who have vowed to transform into humans for many lifetimes. Now we have understood the truth about ourselves and other tuelinhs: we have poisonous and good. These toxins cause us to produce harmful energy particles, and we are disintegrated by destructive energy when they pick up the signal from the vibration of harmful particles. We have understood the nature of all things and the energy of destruction. Hey, tuelinh, please be robust to continue to force out the toxins in your marital relationship that have caused you to lose control in many lifetimes. Those are the toxins of jealousy and suspicion. It is the poison of the hurt you have generated for your wife or husband. These are insults, trampling, beating or killing each other. Or it is a breakdown in marriage or infidelity in married life. Dear tuelinh, please awaken the clusters of energy particles in your marital life relationship. Awaken the positive energy particles of spouse love so they can receive more strength from the enlightened knowledge of the two truths. In particular, please awaken harmful energy particles produced by toxins in married life. Awaken them to shake one last time before they are neutralized by the power of enlightened knowledge of the two truths and the power of the positive energy particle system. Hey, tuelinh, don't be afraid or worried when you see those toxins from your harmful particles. Because those toxins exist in all tuelinhs, you should observe them again to turn them into valuable lessons. That is the lesson of not letting those toxins appear and grow in you. You should be happy and excited because we have the union between body, wisdom and soul to receive the transcendent wisdom of enlightenment from the two truths. Turn them to your advantage and strength to squeeze out all the toxins in your married life in past lives. In particular, transform them into power to practice a virtuous life with your current wife or husband in this life. Don't let those toxins appear; instead, help each other understand the value of married life. From there, build a happy family. In addition, we must help everyone understand the importance of married life so that everyone can eliminate toxins and enable married life to become happy. That is the path of sustainable reincarnation in the interaction group of married life. Dear Tuelinh, please become strong to help me suppress all other poisons and continue to practice producing sustainable energy particles in all four forms of the Tao. That is the most profound apology to those with you as husband and wife in past lives. Forgive yourself to help you become strong and take action to spread enlightened wisdom to everyone. The achievements on your practising path in the human world will be gratitude to the first

It would be best if you remembered that to force out all the toxins in your married life, you must practice it in your own married life. You should help each other understand the truth and value of interactive scenarios in married life. Your sincerity and actions that show love will help you resolve the suffering and conflicts in your married life in the present life. Please release all the toxins and build a happy love with your husband and wife. Remember to spread enlightened wisdom in interactive scenarios for married life to everyone. It is the most unique method to produce positive energy particles of love between husband and wife, and it is also the power to force out all the toxins in your soul.

You need to know that the soul looks together to live. That means, even though you don't say what you think, the soul of your wife or husband understands what you think and responds accordingly. Therefore, you must be the first to change yourself, that is, to force out the toxins and activate your kindness first. Those changes will cause your spouse's soul to change as well. And remember, all suffering in married life and the scenarios in the four forms of the Tao are to help you identify toxins. The next is to force out toxins and activate goodness by producing sustainable energy particles."

Chapter Thirty-Two

Eliminating Toxins in the Relationship Between Parents and Children

"Parents have the right to decide on their children's education, career, future, and life. Do you think so?" Questions that the teacher has for the students in the classroom. A student immediately replied, "From your lectures, I think parents have no right to decide on their children's education, career, future, and lives. Because each person has an independent soul inside, everyone is equal. They wish to live in a family to help each other create the best environment for eliminating toxins and activating kindness. Therefore, they must help each other but do not have the right to decide each other's problems."

The teacher continued, "Equality because each person has a soul inside. Your saying is excellent. So, does anyone see any inequalities in the relationship between parents and children? Observe your own family and the families around you. Please try to find the toxins in the inequality in the relationship between parents and children."

A student said, "A few months ago, next to the area where I live. A child living in an apartment jumped to the ground to commit suicide. Before that child committed suicide, he wrote a suicide note. In that letter, the child talked about the suffering of being forced by her parents to study to become a good student. That child was forced to study until late at night. Pressure from parents' words and actions causes the child to be hurt and lose control of thoughts and actions. In the letter, he wrote that he felt sorry for his younger brother because his parents would continue to pressure him to study. I see it as a kind of poison from parents to their children."

"Young people have sex before marriage and get pregnant. They fear for their future, so they have an abortion. There are couples who, because of difficult economic conditions, have an abortion when they discover that the wife is pregnant. In addition, there are many cases of abortion for many different reasons. I think it's a type of toxin from the act of murder. That is also an inequality, teacher." Another student said.

One student said, "Teacher, parents not taking care of their children to go to school to develop their intelligence is also poisonous. They give birth to children without creating a good environment to help their children cultivate their intelligence and have a better future. Instead, they complain that they do not have the economic conditions to give their children a full education. Therefore, children have to drop out of school to work to earn money while they are of school age. I think that such parents are terrible. They should not intend to have them if they feel they cannot care for their children to have a good education."

"I once witnessed a family with many children. They are a wealthy family, but their parents discriminate between their children. That is clearly shown through their preferential division of land and property. The children they love receive more assets. Because of such discrimination by their parents, children who receive little property hate their parents. Therefore, they do not care about their parents. Even when their parents get sick and die, they don't care or see them. I see those toxins are present in both parents and children." Another student confided.

After hearing everyone's sharing, the teacher said, "The things you share are toxic in the relationship between parents and children. The outbreak and development of toxins have caused everyone in the parent-child relationship to live in physical and mental agony. The sufferings of this interacting group are valuable scenarios to help each soul understand its nature.

Do you know what the relationship between parents and children symbolises? As in the previous lesson, you know that love between men and women symbolises pure love between the smallest particles of yin and yang energy. The husband-and-wife relationship is a symbol of the yin and yang energy embryo and the most significant symbol of the practising path to attain the unified Tao of the universe. So, what is the symbol of the relationship between parents and children?" Seeing that the students were confused and had no answer, the teacher continued teaching. "Parents and children are symbols between the smallest energy particles born and the yin and yang energy embryo that gives birth to them.

Parents are symbolised by yin and yang embryos, and children are symbols of the smallest energy particles born from yin and yang embryos. Through the symbolism of the relationship between parent and child, each tuelinh will see specific natures of their own. As follows:

- Through their children, parents understand themselves:

- + When children are cared for with all their parents' love, they grow up and become good people who know how to help and save others. That shows that parents have the wisdom to teach their children to understand and create the best environment to help them grow up and become good people. In addition, when children become good people through their parents' love and teachings, parents realise the excellent values they have created for their children. That shows that children are a mirror for parents to reflect on themselves the wisdom and actions they have taught their children.

- + When children do not get enough education, they love to play and become bad people. These children grow up in a toxic environment, absorbing negative information to create negative actions towards everyone and all species. That shows that their parents do not create a suitable environment for them to study and cannot teach them to become good people. Because children are a reflection of their parents, when children become corrupt and do many evil things to everyone and all species, parents will see the toxins in themselves. It is toxic in the relationship between parents and children.

- Through parents, children understand themselves:

+ When children see their parents sacrificing everything to give them love, care, and upbringing, they grow up and become good people. The good values their parents have given them are recognised and understood by them. Consequently, they learn good worths from their parents to apply. They continue to become good parents who love and care for their children as their parents care for them. In addition, they are also kind people in repaying and giving good things to their parents. It can be seen that through the excellent example of their parents, the children understand the value of goodness in themselves and eliminate toxic values when they appear.

+ When parents do not love and care for their children or are even cruel to them, children will notice those toxins in their parents. Some children will absorb that toxin and activate their poison. As a result, children become people whose behaviour hurts everyone. They even hurt their parents. Because the dirty mirror is the parents, they turn the child into an out-of-control person due to the toxins in them. On the contrary, some children gain power from the souls within them to recognize their parents' toxins. Therefore, they learn their parents' toxic lessons without practising the same behaviours as their parents. Instead, they practice virtuous actions because suffering helps them attain enlightenment.

So, you have seen that the relationship between parents and children is as meaningful as the relationship between the original yin and yang energy embryo and the smallest energy particles produced. Everyone through each other to understand themselves and each other. Therefore, from the relationship between parents and children, all tuelinhs and humans will be aware of their toxins.

Toxins to recognize and eliminate as a parent:

- Parents abort the fetus. That is the toxin of murder when parents decide to take the life of a life about to be born. It is a sin of murder, and it cannot be excused for any reason. Even though someone argued that they had to abort the fetus because their lover refused to marry them. Even if someone makes excuses that they don't have enough economic or medical conditions to raise them when they are born, the reason is unacceptable because these actions are an escape from suffering during the practising journey due to the outbreak of toxins. These actions cause their souls to produce more negative energy particles and decompose more and more.

- Parents throw away or do not raise their children when they are born. Although this toxin is not as potent as the toxin of abortion, its toxicity is still extreme. That causes their souls to produce solid harmful energy particles to cause their souls to decay faster.

- Parents do not let their children study, instead forcing them to work to earn a living when they are of school age. There is no reason to justify this behaviour. Even in different social stages, educating children can be done in many ways. Educate them at school or from someone. Studying is to cultivate intelligence and become a good person. Learning is not just to become rich or have a position in society.

- Parents do not love, care, and take care of their children. That means not creating love and happiness for your children.

- Parents pressure, discriminate, insult and beat their children.

- Parents abandon their children when they are sick. Even if the reason is not having money to cure their children, it is also the poison of parents towards their children.

- Parents kill their children. That is the same toxin as the toxin of abortion.

Toxins to recognize and eliminate as children:

- Children are engrossed in playing without listening to their parents to study hard.

- Children practice a lifestyle of play, gambling, addiction to stimulants, theft, robbery, and harm to everyone and all species.

- Children practice acts of fornication, paedophilia, rape with members of the opposite sex, and practice same-sex love life. These behaviours cause parents to suffer.

- Children compete for property or land from their parents.

- Children leave their parents to live in illness without treatment.

- Children insult, curse, beat, and kill their parents.

- Children become people who practice a life that does not bring good values to everyone. The giant poison children have for their parents is causing harm to everyone and all species, specifically launching wars to invade other countries, leaving people immersed in fighting and killing. Or spread the wisdom of ignorance to everyone and humanity.

When you understand the value of the relationship between parents and children, understand the toxins in the role of parent and child; please practice changing your thoughts and actions to eliminate toxins and activate kindness within you. The transcendent knowledge of the two truths helps you practice that; therefore, understanding and practising the wisdom of the two truths is the only path to assist your soul in growing and attaining enlightenment.

Now, focus your thoughts on your inner soul to eliminate the toxins in the parent-child relationship in past lives. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! Let go of your painful memories of parent-child relationships in past lives. I know you are sinking into those painful memories when I am attentively reading and listening to the enlightening knowledge of the two truths about toxins in parents and children. I can feel your emotions because you are within me, and we have united wisdom, body, and soul. Dear Tuelinh, please be strong; don't be miserable and sad anymore. I need your strength so that I have the power to help you release all the suffering and toxins within you. I can't help you if your negative emotions dominate and control my body and brain. I understand you have had to endure countless lifetimes of practice in suffering and tribulation. Sufferings that neither you nor everyone else understands the reason for. Because you do not understand the reason, you and the tuelinhs have made a great vow to incarnate as humans to search for the truth of all the secrets during many lifetimes of practice in the human world. Hey, tuelinh, remember the heroic memory when you and the other tuelinhs made a vow to transform into humans. Those are the will, energy and determination to live in suffering and tribulation in human form. However, because the toxins in all interactive scenarios erupt and control your mind, you have practised the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles. That causes you to be more strongly disintegrated by the destructive energy. As a result, you are immersed in the suffering caused by the toxins of excess harmful energy particles without being able to escape. Hey, tuelinh, please cry to let go of the pain of the past; cry to live in joy and bursting happiness. That is happiness because we have gained enlightened wisdom from knowing the two truths and the smallest energy particle. From this special enlightened knowledge, we have understood the three secrets all souls have been searching for. We have understood the nature of ourselves and other tuelinh, the nature of all things in the universe, and the nature of destructive energy. Since then, we have been enlightened on how to practice producing sustainable energy particles. That is the only way to force out all toxins and maximize goodness to become an enlightened being. We must thank all the interactive scenarios in the human world's four forms of the Tao. It contains all the interaction scenarios in the relationship between parents and children. From the four Tao forms, we will attain the unified Tao of the universe when we squeeze out all the toxins and practice the mechanism of producing positive energy particles well. Hey, tuelinh, outstanding achievements are waiting for us ahead. We're almost at our destination. Therefore, be strong and give me the power from positive energy particles of immense love in solidarity to spread enlightened wisdom to everyone. I need your strength and knowledge to help you squeeze out toxins and practice the maximum production of positive energy particles. Hey, tuelinh, please awaken all the energy particles related to the information content in the relationship between parents and children. Let the positive energy particles gain strength from the enlightened wisdom of the two truths. Let the harmful energy particles be shaken one last time before the power of your enlightened knowledge and positive energy eliminates their toxins. Please don't be worried or scared when you see toxic information about the relationship between parents and children transmitted from harmful energy particles. That poison is present in all tuelinhs. Therefore, please take it as a lesson to force out all the toxins and maximize the kindness within you. Achievements are profound thanks to everyone in the past, and gratitude to the first tuelinh as he always guides us through all suffering and tribulations on our practising journey. Let's be determined, and we will achieve great success ahead. We can do it.

You listened and studied from everyone's sharing; next came an analysis of the value of interactive groups, then identification to eliminate toxins. It is the process of loading valuable information for sustainable development to help the original yin and yang energy embryo of the soul re-encode the data. Re-encoding information is eliminating toxins and creating a mechanism to activate goodness in you. Reading aloud to eliminate toxins is the method of awakening the power in your soul. Therefore, reading and listening carefully to every smallest unit in knowing the two truths can help your soul thoroughly understand the truth of everything inside and outside the universe. That allows the yin and yang embryos in your soul to eliminate toxins and re-encode information for sustainable development. Finally, practising the mechanism of sustainable transmutation will become easy."

Chapter Thirty-Three

Destroying the Toxins in Sibling Relationships

"There continues to be another symbol. It is a symbol of the relationship of siblings. Can you guess what it is?" the teacher asked the student. A student replied, "Teacher, is that a symbol for the yin and yang energy embryos?" Another friend said, "Is it between tuelinhs and each other?"

The teacher replied, "It is neither between tuelinhs nor yin and yang energy embryos. These are synthetic energy particles linked together in the structure of tuelinh. Thus, the symbol of the sibling relationship in a family symbolizes the connection between the aggregate energy particles in the system of the tuelinh.

Please remember the image of a mature yin and yang energy embryo with a structure of synthetic energy particles on the outside. Synthetic positive energy particles bond together through synthetic neutral particles. One or more synthetic harmful energy particles rotate around each composite positive energy particle.

You try to remember all three types of synthetic energy particles with the following task:

- Neutral energy particles are a transmission line for information to move between clusters of positive energy particles.

- Positive energy particles have two tasks: ensuring information's reliability, accuracy, and sustainable development value as data moves through it. Next, it creates a thrust to transmit moving information to another cluster of positive energy particles when information moves to it.

- Negative energy particles have the task of vibrating to create information signals for information value to move to their cluster of positive and negative energy particles.

From the three types of energy particles above, information from the original yin and yang embryo will circulate through all clusters of yang energy particles in the tuelinh. The movement of information throughout the particle structure of the tuelinh will help the tuelinh produce warmth. Warm heat will help the soul develop its intelligence and speed of movement and transform destructive energy. That is, the warm heat generated from the soul will have the power to detonate the energy of destruction. That helps the soul prevent being decomposed by the destructive energies. That is complex knowledge, and I will analyze it for you in the following lectures. For now, try to understand the basics of the three types of synthetic energy particles and the effects of information from the yin and yang embryo circulating through all clusters of yin and yang energy particles. If data cannot run to generate heat, the tuelinh can easily be disintegrated by destructive energy. Information cannot move because many harmful particles are orbiting one positive energy particle in each cluster of negative and positive energy particles. At those points, destructive energy has penetrated and broken the transmission line of neutral particles. Therefore, information is trapped and cannot be moved. When data cannot move, toxins from harmful energy particles will bombard and spread to the brain when the tuelinh is incarnated in human form. That leads mentally ill people to have hallucinations, depression, anxiety disorders, and schizophrenia. Those phenomena are easily seen. However, when the soul has not yet released its strong poison, people can only observe and recognize humans' ignorant wisdom and minds. That ignorance is due to the inability of information to circulate in the structure of the soul.

So, how do the synthetic yin and yang energy particles symbolize the relationship between siblings in a family? That is:

- Positive energy particles symbolize siblings in the family:

- + Is a kind and intellectual person who understands the truth.

- + Is a person who always has the power to spread informational values for sustainable development to everyone and everything.

- + Someone who can give away their values to help and save everyone.

- + A person who does not compete for wealth, land, money, and position from his brothers.

+ Is someone who does not let their siblings control and dominate them in performing their functions and tasks, ensuring the heat spreads valuable information for sustainable development to everyone. That means that a person does not harm the sustainable development values of data for the sake of their brothers when they are responsible for transmitting it. The obstructive brothers represent the harmful energy particles of the ignorant mind because the dominant toxin makes them greedy and absorbs everything about them.

- Negative energy particles symbolize siblings in the family:

+ Is a person who is eager to learn and receive information from outside if the toxins have not yet broken out.

+ Is someone who knows how to listen if the toxins have not yet broken out.

+ Is selfish and only wants benefits for himself when toxins break out.

+ Is the person who absorbs toxic information from the outside environment when toxins break out and thrive.

+ Being jealous, greedy, competitive, and losing with your brothers when toxins are potent.

+ Someone who hinders and destroys the transmission of valuable information for the sustainable development of brothers and sisters. This toxin thrives in harmful energy particles.

In a family, there are brothers and sisters. Depending on each person's wisdom and behaviour, they act as negative or positive energy particles. There is no one fixed role as a negative energy particle or a positive energy particle. To recognize which of you plays the role of yin or yang, through the level of toxins in the yin and kindness in the yang, everyone will see what information values they are operating with. When receiving information, it is a symbol of a negative particle. When the information received is controlled and has sustainable development value, it is a positive particle. When data is spread to everyone with value for sustainable development, it is a positive particle with the power of positive heat. When information is disordered and hindered from being transmitted to everyone, it is a negative particle emitting a potent toxin."

A student interrupted the teacher, "Teacher, I don't understand why a person with the role of a positive energy particle to transmit valuable information cannot let the siblings control. Could you please explain and give us an example so we can understand?"

The teacher answered, "The value of information for sustainable development completely differs from values such as money, property and land. Those assets are not informational values of sustainable development. Valuable information is enlightened knowledge, methods to help humanity, or tuelinhs and the universe develop sustainably. The symbol of two synthetic yin and yang energy particles helps people understand the value of a person with enlightened wisdom and ignorant wisdom when they are brothers and sisters in one family. This interaction group was built by the first tuelinh to help the tuelinhs recognize and eliminate toxins and then to activate maximum kindness to help everyone do the same. The tuelinhs are arranged to practice in a family to create reactions from simple to extremely complex levels. Simple is family wealth, complex is status, and super complex is information value or wisdom. As the tuelinhs live in each scenario, they must force out toxins and activate goodness to its maximum extent. Let me give you an example from the history of Buddhism: when Prince Siddhartha became a Buddha, he went to spread his enlightenment in many countries. Before he went on a multi-year quest for enlightenment, he was a crown prince and future king. However, he did not care about the throne; instead, he left it to his cousins. While spreading his religion, his family members, even his wife and children, followed him to practice the path of enlightenment. However, among those brothers was one person, Devadatta, who was good at supernatural powers but was jealous and often attempted to kill the Buddha. The attempt to kill the Buddha was because that person asked the Buddha to cede the leadership position of the Buddha's Sangha to him. That is not allowed because Buddha has to teach knowledge to his students. Because he was not accepted, Devadatta attempted to kill the Buddha many times but failed. Buddha's life shows that he gave up his throne and fortune to find the path of enlightenment and then spread it. He was a great man who sacrificed everything to spread enlightened wisdom to humanity. However, Buddha could not give up the leadership position of his Sangha to his brother when he did not have enlightened wisdom in addition to supernatural abilities. Buddha understood that if he gave up his leadership position to that brother, his enlightened knowledge would be destroyed at that moment. Many people will be caught up in learning magical powers instead of enlightened knowledge. That will cause great disaster for those who practice in the Sangha at that time and in the future. Those are the answers and examples from human history to help you understand the problem you are wondering about."

That student answered the teacher, "Teacher, for a long time, I only thought that brothers in the family only fought for wealth, land and the throne. I didn't expect there to be an intellectual rivalry as well. If I do not understand the history of the world, my intelligence will be minimal. Thank you for analyzing it for me and everyone to understand."

The teacher said, "Receiving and transmitting information value is the nature of the synthetic yin and yang energy particles in the soul structure. Through the practice environment in the human world, the first tuelinh created a full set of scenarios, and each scenario will help him analyze different values in tuelinh and all things in the universe. The four forms of the Tao helped him analyze and decipher all the truths about the nature, laws, and mechanisms of movement from the smallest energy particles to yin and yang embryos, synthetic particles, and life forms, such as soul, people, all things, and phenomena in and outside the universe. That is also something for everyone to understand why the four forms of the Tao make people always suffer when interacting with them. Because only through suffering can each soul and the first tuelinh understand everything. Understanding everything is enlightenment. When enlightened, we will find a sustainable transformation mechanism for the tuelinh life form and all life in the universe."

After he enjoyed a cup of hot tea, he continued to lecture, "When you study the history of countries and the living environment around you, you will see the toxins in relationships with siblings in a family. Those toxins are all toxic information stored in the root negative energy particle of the yin and yang embryo and the negative energy particle system of each tuelinh. It will develop and be recognized through sufferings and tribulations in their interactive scenarios. To achieve an accurate understanding, you must understand the values and symbols of the interaction group in the sibling relationship in the family.

Toxins that need to be recognized and eliminated in sibling relationships include:

- Siblings are jealous and compete with each other in life.
- Siblings insult and trample on each other's dignity.
- Siblings compete for land, money, and property from their parents or each other.
- Siblings beat and kill each other because of conflict.
- Siblings kill each other to usurp positions in life, such as business leaders, corporations, or kings.
- Brothers and sisters hinder, sabotage, and kill each other on the journey to practice the mechanism of sustainable transformation. That sabotages the path to spread enlightened wisdom to everyone and humanity.

There are few toxic manifestations of the sibling relationship, but their toxicity is extreme. Because this relationship symbolizes the structure of the synthetic yin and yang energy particles in the tuelinh, the toxin's severity, when released, is extremely dangerous. You can see in the history of many countries many people killed their brothers to gain the throne. Many people kill each other just because they compete for a small piece of land or property from their parents. In particular, the outbreak of toxins is so strong that it competes for knowledge like the story of Buddha. Therefore, you should be careful when these toxins break out in sibling relationships. Apply the wisdom of the two truths with the understanding of the three secrets to let go of money, land or property, and gain or loss. That's how to eliminate toxins and prevent them from appearing in you. However, you must protect and fulfil your mission if you have enlightened wisdom and spread it to everyone and humanity. You have unleashed the most dangerous poison if you give up your duties just because of your siblings' influence. You cause countless people, from generation to generation, to live in intellectual ignorance. That leads to the destruction of the tuelinhs when they do not have enough time to change to become more sustainable.

Now, focus on your souls to remove the toxins in your sibling relationship. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! Right now, I don't know how to awaken your strength anymore because the sufferings are too much in each group of interactions in the four forms of the Tao. We have received enlightened wisdom together over the past time. We understand everything we have learned and are learning from the two truths. In particular, there are many toxins we identify and eliminate in you. Should I continue to encourage you now, or should you inspire me? Would you happen to know why? Because I feel you and I are entirely united intellectually and emotionally. I feel and understand your intellect and mood. Therefore, I also feel miserable and in the same mood as you when we learn to recognize and eliminate each group of toxins in life. That is not easy for me as my brief experience of one human life with the brain cannot be compared to the experiences of many lifetimes of your practice. I have suffered and been saddened by feeling the toxins in your interactions in the four forms of the Way for many lifetimes. Those toxins make me unable to adapt to what already exists in my body, which is you. Hey, tuelinh, I have no intention of blaming you. On the contrary, I have a responsibility to help you understand the wisdom of enlightenment and rely on it to squeeze out all the toxins and then activate goodness. If I do not help you, you will not be able to reform yourself in this life, and I also understand that if you leave your body, I will no longer have a life. We are a complete union of intellect, body and soul. So instead of just me helping you, you must help me too. Please transmit to me the power of your positive energy particle system. Please awaken all the positive energy particles in you to help us have the power of will and determination. In addition, please awaken harmful energy particles containing information related to your sibling relationship. Awaken them so that the enlightened wisdom I have learned and the positive energy particle system within you can eliminate those toxins. Let them shake one last time before the incredible power of enlightened understanding takes control and re-encodes them. Dear Tuelinh, please be happy because I am always with you. I have vowed to dedicate this human life to helping you practice sustainable energy production. Please receive all the information in the lesson on eliminating toxins in sibling relationships. When your original yin and yang embryo re-encodes valuable information for sustainable development, toxins will be eliminated, and negative energy particles will be controlled. Next, we will have the power to produce positive energy particles when we practice spreading enlightened wisdom to everyone. It is a profound gratitude to all tuelinh and the first tuelinh. Success is waiting for us ahead. Dear Tuelinh, now we will read and listen to this lecture again. Therefore, you should receive each unit of information in your yin and yang energy embryo. If you haven't fully comprehended it, let me know your feelings. I will read and listen to it to help you fully encode the information. We can do that.

Removing toxins in the soul is difficult after hearing and learning knowledge once. You need to read or listen many times to understand each unit of information. You will see a different comprehension of enlightened knowledge after each reading. Therefore, reading to re-encode information in the original yin and yang energy embryo. As a result, the tuelinh will be empowered by the warmth generated from the amount of data that has the value of sustainable development to practice the mechanism of generating positive energy particles in all interaction scenarios of the four forms of the Tao."

Chapter Thirty-Four

Eliminating Toxins in the Relationship Between Employer and Employee

While the teacher was sitting and drinking tea, a student asked him a question before the lecture started. "Teacher, I see there is a huge difference between your courses. In previous courses, your lectures contained simple arguments and did not analyze the information in energy particles. However, this body, wisdom, and mind healing course contains much information within the energy particle. In addition, the teacher analyzed very carefully the toxins and causes of producing negative energy particles that every human and tuelinh has been doing. That is the cause of all kinds of diseases for the wisdom, soul, and body. Everyone realizes the power and reactions of the soul within the body when listening to the lectures of this course. It was much stronger than the previous courses because I had taken the previous course but didn't feel as responsive and strong as this one. Teacher, let me ask: Does knowledge's power differ between courses? Strong reactions will help learners recover faster, right?"

The teacher replied, "It is true that intellectual values between courses differ. In previous classes, I only used simple reasoning to analyze problems. However, those theories cannot fully decipher the nature and truth of tuelinh, events, phenomena, and all things in the universe. Therefore, learners will easily misunderstand or reason incorrectly according to each person's understanding. In addition, in previous courses, because complete information was not provided, learners did not feel the strength and strong reaction in the soul. Therefore, even though those arguments are correct, it has little power to help people thoroughly understand all the secrets of everything, tuelinhs, and people.

Because of the limitations of theories without reference and standards to help students understand accurately, I had to build special enlightened knowledge that combines the wisdom of two truths and knowledge of the smallest energy particle. However, to prove the truth about the smallest energy particles, no one no scientist has discovered them. It was a complex problem for me to convert into lectures when no machine in the world could capture or measure this type of particle. Therefore, during a year when everyone had to take a break due to the pandemic, I researched and transformed the knowledge of energy particles into lectures for this course. In this course, I analyze all the truths, nature, and mechanisms of action from the smallest particle of energy to all life forms in and beyond the universe. In particular, the value of each energy particle is the information encoded inside. Understanding the nature and secrets of the information encoded inside energy particles is the most magical power to help learners achieve enlightened wisdom.

Patients will recover quickly, even if they have had schizophrenia for many years or those with incurable diseases.

In addition, the information encoded in energy particles is massive knowledge and contains super-power. Therefore, when the learner receives data, they will feel great power, and the patients will have powerful reactions in the soul and brain. That is due to the information gap inside each soul and the enormous amount of information in each lecture. People whose souls have little knowledge and many toxins will react strongly when listening to and studying lessons. People with a lot of information in their souls and a few toxins do not respond to their souls but feel the power of knowledge from those lectures.

I had to think for many years to transform special enlightened knowledge into knowledge that combines the two truths with the smallest particle of energy. These are easy-to-understand lectures to help learners accurately understand the truth of tuelinh, people, and all things. When everyone has an accurate standard of the smallest energy particle, you will accurately and effectively practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production. Understanding and practising correctly is the most effective method of growing enlightened wisdom and the most miraculous way of healing mental and physical illnesses."

Another student said, "Teacher, we need to congratulate patients when they react strongly during the learning and therapy. Because that eliminates toxins and heals their diseases most effectively, is that right, teacher?" The teacher smiled and replied. "The congratulations to the patient, who is eliminating toxins to recover quickly from the disease, is also a good thing to do. However, it is necessary to encourage patients and their relatives to persevere in helping patients overcome difficult times when they lose control of their behaviour and thoughts."

After answering his students' questions, the teacher continued enjoying his hot tea. A few minutes later, the teacher started a new lecture. "In today's lesson, we will explore toxins in the relationship between employers and employees. That is a group of interactive scenarios in the form of social Tao.

It would help if you remembered that the form of the social Tao allows each tuelinh to eliminate toxins and build sustainable development structures for the universe. Enlightened wisdom and research bring sustainable development to all life forms in and outside the universe. Therefore, each group interacting in the social Tao has immense value and power.

First, we need to understand the value in the relationship between employer and employee brings to tuelinh:

- Through the role of an employee, each tuelinh will learn the process of creating values that the employer makes. The tuelinhs gradually learn how to build relationships to create values. When the values that souls have learned reach sufficient quantity and quality, they can become employers to develop new worths.

- Through their role as an employer, each tuelinh will practice the values they have accumulated to create new worths. In addition, each tuelinh will learn how to build, organize, and connect tuelinhs to promote sustainable development for the tuelinh life form and all things in the universe.

You need to understand that, for each tuelinh to become an employer when incarnating as a human, they must go through many lives to accumulate value as a worker. If they do not collect enough informational value through their role as employees, they will not be able to practice their role as employers.

Social practice shows that the division of labour, or class division, results from accumulating values in each soul when they reincarnate in humans. That indicates that it is not natural for people to be born into a low class of society, and it is not natural to be born into a high class. It's also not natural that there are talented people and not-so-talented people. Many people possess many values in life, and many have no or few values. That is the process of producing energy particles in past lives to form the characteristics of social life. We can also call it the result of making causal energy particles. The causal energy particle is the smallest. Positive energy particles are good karma, and harmful energy particles are negative karma. Based on the cause and effect of each tuelinh during practising in the human world, they will have to be born in different roles in each human life. This process of difference only occurs after the first few lifetimes of the practice of each tuelinh in the human world. The first incarnations are initially receiving information and then reacting to the data to create different energy particles. It is the beginning of the differentiation process of cause and effect in the next lives."

A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, so someone is a king or a leader of a country, someone is rich, a boss, and someone is poor; it is all their karma. Is that right, teacher?" "Right. They can become a country's leaders and rich people or bosses because of the informational values associated with those interactions in past lives. They all store in the energy particle system in their souls. On the contrary, poor people, workers, and people who have no ability in life because their souls have no or little information value in interacting groups. Therefore, it is difficult for them to succeed without diligent cultivation and study in their present life." The teacher replied.

Another student continued to ask the teacher, "In human history and social practice, there has been much oppression and exploitation of workers by employers. They exploit labour at the expense of the lives and spirits of workers. Since then, the exploited working classes have risen to fight against the domination and exploitation of the owners and exploiting classes. They even create wars between classes. War from one region spreads across the world. That causes everyone to live in the suffering of killing and poverty. Teacher, whose fault are those crimes and which class's fault?

The teacher replied, "Your question is very fantastic. To conclude that sin belongs to any class or group of people, it seems unfair when the environment of the human world is for practice for tuelinhs. Through this environment, each tuelinh must learn to recognize its toxins as it develops and how to eliminate toxins in suffering and life. Finally, practice the mechanism of sustainable transformation by producing positive energy particles. Therefore, tracing and drawing conclusions about whose fault it is not advisable. Instead, we conclude that it is due to the toxins within each soul as they interact in the four forms of the Tao. If each person does not have the enlightened wisdom to understand and then practice forcing out the toxins and activating kindness, they will cause harm to each other. The consequence was repression and exploitation by the owners and the ruling classes, followed by murderous struggles between classes. However, if each person understands what roles they are taking on in a human life, they will change their thoughts and actions in treating each other. Then, their process of recognizing and eliminating toxins will happen faster, and as a result, they will practice producing sustainable energy particles more effectively. That's great for employees and employers as they interact in this role.

Toxins that need to be recognized and eliminated in the relationship between employer and employee:

- As an employer, toxins include:

- + The employer exploits the working time and labour of the employee. That is, salaries and bonuses are not worth workers' time and work. In addition, the value of wages and extras makes it impossible for workers to cover their family's living needs and regenerate their labour power.

- + The employer reduces the employee's worth, such as wages, bonuses, and penalties to the employee.

- + The employer scolds, insults, and tramples on the employee's dignity.

- + The employer beats and kills the worker.

- As a worker, toxins include:

- + Workers are lazy and irresponsible at work.
- + Employees do not have the spirit of cooperation with each other during work performance.
- + Workers are jealous and harm each other.
- + The employee steals the employer's property.
- + Employees destroy the means of production and the employer's property.
- + The employee insults and tramples on the dignity of the employer.
- + Workers beat and kill the employer.

Toxins in the relationship between employer and employee will appear and develop when they do not satisfy each other's needs and desires. Therefore, an effective solution to eliminate these toxins is for both partners to understand the enlightened wisdom of knowing the two truths. Then, they help each other for mutual benefit. That means that the employer gains benefits through the employee, whereas the employee gains benefits from work to have the best physical and mental life. By doing this, each person can activate kindness and eliminate toxins within the soul.

Now, please focus on your inner soul to eliminate toxins in the relationship between employer and employee. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! We have gone through a long journey of learning enlightened knowledge from the two truths. We have also understood and practised eliminating the toxins in the three forms of the Tao. It is a trip with the efforts of both you and me. It is something to be proud of, and it is fantastic for us when we together receive knowledge and practice to achieve enlightenment. Hey, tuelinh, I am so proud of you for continuously transmitting the positive energy of inspiration to help your brain stay alert to receive the most accurate units of enlightened knowledge. It is the power to help us achieve many achievements in learning and practising in recent times. And, at this time, together, we continue the task of eliminating the toxins in your employer-employee relationship. It is a group interacting in the form of social Tao. Through this group of interactions in all your human lives, you have produced countless particles of energy as both worker and employer. These are the results of the process of accumulating information values that have sustainable development and information values that are destructive. Either way, it's part of your body. Therefore, you do not have to fear or worry about the toxic information in the harmful energy particles created by the employer and employee relationship. Please be confident and happy so that together, we can remove those toxins from you through receiving the information of enlightened wisdom into your yin and yang embryo. Let go of the painful memories you have experienced in past lives when interacting in that group of scenarios. Dear Tuelinh, please awaken all clusters of energy particles containing information related to the employer and employee. Awaken all positive, neutral, and negative energy particles. Let the positive energy particles be empowered with enlightened wisdom from the two truths. Let that power suppress and eliminate the toxins in the harmful energy particles as they vibrate for the last time. Consider the negative images, sounds, and language transmitted from the negative energy particle system to the brain as a short movie.

Please take it as a valuable lesson for activating the goodness within you in your journey to produce positive energy particles. Please be alert and receive each unit of information in this lecture as I re-read and listened to it many times. Because that is the method of re-encoding valuable information for sustainable development in your yin and yang embryo, this process will cause toxins to be eliminated from you. We can do this because of our experience and seriousness in learning enlightenment wisdom. The fact that we eliminate toxins and practice sharing enlightened knowledge with everyone is the mechanism that produces sustainable energy particles. This process helps you mature, and when you make enough quantity and quality of sustainable energy particles, that is your opportunity to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. The achievement is a profound gratitude to the first tuelinh and all tuelinhs. Because everything has helped you achieve accomplishments on your journey of practice in the human world, even though each other's toxins hurt you or everyone else, hey, tuelinh, forgive yourself and everyone for having the strength to carry out a sustainable path of transformation.

Just like eliminating toxins in other interactive groups, please read or listen many times so that the informational values of the two truths are encoded in the yin and yang embryo. When you have enough valuable information, you can practice correctly and effectively in producing sustainable energy particles. And remember to race against time to share and help everyone understand and practice eliminating toxins. At the same time, practice the mechanism of producing sustainable energy particles in relationships in life."

A student said to the teacher, "Teacher, your lectures on eliminating toxins always create strong reactions in the soul and brain." The teacher replied, "The reactions in the lectures on eliminating toxins are not the strongest in the enlightened knowledge system. These lectures are to help your inner soul restore and increase positive heat to have the strength to receive knowledge about energy particles in the following lectures. Lectures on energy particles will create powerful reactions in your soul when your soul has to receive difficult and voluminous knowledge. Step by step, you will reach enlightenment and complete understanding. The learning process always goes hand in hand with practice to create the most magical power for you."

Chapter Thirty-Five

Destroying Toxins as a Researcher and Inventor

"Each group of interactions in the four Tao forms creates values to help the tuelinh mature and reach enlightenment after eliminating toxins and practising sustainable energy particle production. Therefore, each person needs to appreciate all the scenarios in life, everything that comes and goes in life, and cherish their and everyone else's lives. Learn valuable lessons from all things, events, phenomena, and people. Please learn lessons from those who have been spreading toxins through actions that are harmful to everyone and everything: understand the value of toxins so we don't practice the same things they do. On the contrary, let us learn lessons from everyone practising helping and saving people and all species: understanding the values of kindness and practising as they do. Suppose you have not experienced suffering or practised the mechanism of generating sustainable energy particles. In that case, it will be difficult for you to understand the enlightened wisdom of the two truths and the smallest energy particle. Therefore, be happy to face and liberate all suffering; that is what I taught you in the lesson on suffering and the method to liberate it. Please remember and apply them to every scenario in life." The teacher started a new lecture.

A student said, "Teacher, life in the human world is exceptionally harsh. People are always caught up in all life forms from the moment they are born until they die. Only some people can understand the values of each interaction scenario and the four forms of the Tao. Therefore, the journey of each person being born, growing up, ageing, getting sick, and dying repeatedly makes each soul feel too tired. Everyone is immersed in their own and each other's ignorance. They live only to satisfy life's forms without a living goal for the soul. That is because people need to learn the truth about the origin and mission of each tuelinh. When people suffer and despair, they search for liberation in vain and have no reference or standard for their methods. Thus, they continue to be caught up in other sufferings. Teacher, thinking about this, I feel the extreme human suffering. I understand that those sufferings help each tuelinh force out toxins and activate goodness to grow and attain the unified Tao of the universe. However, achieving that success takes work, and it requires extraordinary determination and effort to practice in the enchanting environment of the human world.

The teacher replied, "When you think the path to achieving success is difficult and arduous, it will be difficult and extremely arduous for you. When you stand at the foot of a high mountain, you think you can't climb to the top and will never get there. You cannot move forward to achieve success because you have a mindset of suffering and failure. You need to understand that this life is nothing but suffering. You have only one path for your practising journey in the human world: to squeeze out all the toxins and practice the production of sustainable energy particles through suffering and tribulations. When you have learned the enlightened knowledge of the two truths, you have a guideline and the strength of your origin and mission to move forward. Every step you take forward is every step more mature, every step closer to your destination. When you don't think about the suffering and obstacles you will encounter, you will speed up and reach your destination faster. The wisdom of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle are super-powers that help you achieve the most complete achievements on your practising journey in the human world. Therefore, practice and practice. That helps you become peaceful, and suffering no longer clings to your thoughts." "Yes, teacher, when I listen to your lectures, I become more peaceful and overcome life's sufferings. That is something I could not have done without learning your knowledge. I see that my wisdom and soul are much better than the first lesson. That's a miracle for me. I will always try to remember and apply your teachings in life." The student responded to the teacher's words.

The teacher continued to preach, "Do you know how valuable human inventions and research are to tuelinh? That is the content of today's lesson on eliminating toxins as an inventor and researcher."

After a few minutes, no student responded, so the teacher continued teaching. "Like other interacting groups in the four forms of the Tao, interacting groups as researchers and inventors bring essential values. In addition to helping each tuelinh eliminate toxins and activate kindness, this interactive group helps tuelinhs find worth to promote sustainable development.

Values gained from the group interactions as researchers and inventors include:

- Help tuelinhs develop their thinking ability and search for new values.

- Help the tuelinhs find and invent methods and knowledge applicable to the development of life.

- Helps the souls to constantly search and research for better values than those invented or discovered before.

- Finally, help the tuelinh create a sustainable path of transformation by finding the way to full enlightenment. That is the ultimate goal of the way of practice in the human world when each tuelinh must live in the four forms of the Tao to experience suffering. From suffering, people research and discover methods and the ultimate intellectual values.

Research and inventions in human life include:

- Research and inventions in the agricultural field, such as creating production tools, methods, and high-yield plant varieties that can withstand harsh climate and weather conditions.

- Research methods to tame wild animals into good animals so that they can serve humans in production.

- Research and invent machines and technologies for industrial production. From there, we create the best product values to serve human life.

- Research drugs and vaccines to help people treat diseases and improve their resistance to epidemics and diseases.

- Research knowledge and subjects to help people improve their intelligence and improve their lives for the better.

- Researching technologies to help people discover and understand the world outside the earth and inside the human body.

- Research and find enlightened knowledge to help people understand the truth about their origin and complete the mission of the tuelinh in the human world.

Those are the values and research that humans have achieved to bring benefits to humans and tuelinh. However, the toxins of each soul are also revealed and strongly developed through the group's interactions as inventors and researchers.

Toxins that need to be identified and eliminated as a researcher and inventor include:

- Research and invent equipment and methods for killing animals and species in agriculture.

- Research and invent various types of poisons and stimulants that harm the health of humans and animals.

- Researching and inventing products and medicine that have no value in helping patients while enchanting people about their worth.

- Research and invent weapons and poisons to kill people through wars to compete for territory and invade each other.

- Jealous researchers and inventors kill each other to compete and appropriate the results.

- Researching and inventing toxic knowledge makes people live in ignorance. This type of invention and research is hazardous because it causes humanity to be immersed in that harmful knowledge from generation to generation. It causes the yin and yang embryo of tuelinh to absorb many toxins, and the decomposition process occurs fastest. We can see the thoughts, the knowledge of worship and sacrifice, the wisdom of enlightenment by leaving home to practice, or the understanding of praying to God or Buddha to achieve liberation from suffering after death. All are toxic knowledge invented by humans.

You must know that every research or invention created is the product of the poison or kindness of each tuelinh in the role of researcher or inventor. That means we should not criticize or blame anyone because of the injuries of humans and all species. Instead, let us recognize the toxic and benevolent values of the values of invention and research. From there, we do not create and apply harmful values in life; instead, we must actively make and use kind values. That is a lesson for every tuelinh through the human form. Especially as a researcher or inventor, you should think and create good values that bring sustainable development to people, animals and all species. The light of enlightened wisdom of the two truths and energy particles illuminates and lets us know that.

Now, please focus on your inner soul to increase your power in eliminating elemental elements as a researcher and inventor. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! What did I think when I started listening to the teacher talk about the title of this lesson? Perhaps you have never been a researcher or an inventor since your incarnation as a human until now. However, when the teacher analyzed the speech in depth, I suddenly realized I was thinking wrong. Do you know why? Because you and all souls, when incarnated as humans, go through interactive scenarios as researchers and inventors in each human life. It's just the difference in the value of inventions and research. Inventions in agricultural production and animal hunting are something that all tuelinhs practice. Only great inventions such as machinery and knowledge can only be created by certain tuelinhs. That shows that all souls live in an interactive scenario as researchers and inventors. Therefore, we have unleashed toxicity and kindness in those interaction scenarios. Hey, tuelinh, we need to recognize and eliminate the toxins in this group of interactions. You should not be worried or afraid of this toxin because it is present in all souls. That is also why all tuelinhs must incarnate as humans to eliminate all toxins in suffering and tribulation. Please be joyful because we have been achieving outstanding achievements in learning and understanding the wisdom of enlightenment from knowing the two truths and the smallest energy particle. That enlightened wisdom has helped us learn the three secrets all souls have been searching for. We understand the origin of humanity and the mission of the practising journey in the human world. In particular, we are equipped with a sustainable path of transformation that the teacher's enlightened knowledge has given us. That is why you or any other tuelinh does not have to be sad or worried about the toxins that have affected people and creatures in the past.

All the suffering of toxins are valuable lessons that help us understand ourselves and each other. The next is to motivate us to practice the production of sustainable energy particles to mature and achieve the goal of our practising path in the human world.

Hey, tuelinh, please awaken all clusters of energy particles within you with content related to invention and research in past lives. Awaken the positive energy particles of kindness of what you have created to help people and all species. Let enlightened wisdom give those energy particles more power to jointly control and eliminate the toxins in the harmful energy particles. Let the negative energy particles be shaken before they are re-encoded with information from enlightened wisdom. Hey, tuelinh, don't fear the toxic information from harmful energy particles. Consider it a short film to make it a driving force for the practice of sustainable energy particle production. Please rely on me because you and I have achieved a union to receive enlightened wisdom and practice the mechanism of sustainable transmutation. Therefore, please focus on receiving each unit of knowledge in this lecture as I read and listened to it many times. Stay focused so that recoding information in the yin and yang embryo is most effective. I believe we can do it. Success is near us; let's try to achieve that outstanding achievement. That is a deep gratitude to the first tuelinh because he always silently guides us on our practising journey. And especially, the practice of sharing enlightened wisdom with everyone is to help the tuelinhs in the human world because all are your brothers and friends."

When the teacher stopped teaching, a student asked, "Teacher, I have never seen you give this lecture before. When I started the lecture, I didn't think that I had any value that had been invented or researched in the past. However, after listening to this sermon, I realized I had reactions in my soul. Also, I feel the energy transmitted to my forehead, making my head tense. Is that information encoded into the soul and eliminating toxins?"

The teacher replied, "There are many lectures you have yet to hear in previous classes because this is a particular class to treat diseases of the mind, body and wisdom. Therefore, I have transformed the secret information within the smallest energy particle system to help the learner heal the three diseases most effectively. These are diseases of ignorant intellect, the soul, and pathology. You must know that the soul causes illness of the body; the ignorant intellect causes disease of the soul. Mental illness only breaks out when the multiple clusters of harmful energy particles go out of control, and pathology breaks out when the tuelinh has an excess of harmful energy particles but has not yet lost control due to destructive energy. Ignorant intellect is the deficiency and distortion of information stored within the energy particle. Therefore, to heal all three diseases, learners need to load enough quantity and quality of data with sustainable development value to re-encode the original yin and yang energy embryo. After that, each tuelinh will have the power to practice the mechanism of generating positive energy particles. In addition, because toxins are difficult to force out of the soul, I must create teachings that ensure that no toxins are left out within each soul.

It is usual for you to react because it proves that the toxin exists in your soul. In addition, the learner feels energy being transmitted to the forehead and sees a compressive force on the forehead because information is transmitted through that point. That is the intellectual transceiver station of the tuelinh within. When you receive valuable information, it will make you feel pressure on your forehead, and you will feel your body warm afterwards. That's great."

Chapter Thirty-Six

Eliminating Toxins as a Businessman and Producer

When the class was full of students, the teacher entered the class and started a new lesson. He said, "Do the lectures on identifying and eliminating toxins in the four forms of the Tao make you bored? Because we have a few more lessons to finish this series of lectures. Then we will explore knowledge about the smallest energetic particles in and out of the universe."

Many students responded, "Teacher, these lectures are wonderful because of the true and valuable information you provide us. We have a deeper understanding of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy. Earlier, when we had not learned knowledge of the smallest energy particles, applying the two truths to explain all things and events caused us many difficulties. However, the teacher's lectures in this course, especially recognizing and eliminating toxins, have helped us deeply understand good and harmful actions. Without energy particle knowledge for reference, it will be difficult for practitioners to determine in which direction they are implementing the transformation mechanism. When we understand the path of practice in the human world after understanding the three secrets, we must eliminate toxins and practice sustainable energy particle production. Therefore, lessons on recognizing and eliminating toxins are fundamental. The evidence is that the learners had strong reactions during the learning process, and their illnesses were greatly reduced afterwards."

The teacher smiled and replied, "Course lectures on identifying and eliminating toxins are essential for all learners. I mean because many of the same lectures about eliminating toxins will make you feel bored. However, it's great that you don't feel bored. We all understand that life is nothing but suffering, so learning many lessons that have the same task of eliminating toxins in the interacting groups of the four forms will not make people lose their enjoyment in learning the two truths."

The teacher took the opportunity to sip a cup of hot tea before continuing the lecture. Then, the teacher lectured, "In today's lesson, we will identify and eliminate toxins as producers and businesses. This group interacts as the social Tao when each person practices the values accumulated in the soul to create new profits and values. This interaction group is entirely different from the interaction group in the relationship between employer and employee, which is the relationship of two groups of roles. As for production and business, they are the practices of those who act as employers.

I have a question for you. Because I am teaching you enlightened knowledge, is it my role as a producer and business person?"

One student replied, "No, sir. Because you don't have products that are goods, and you don't make any profit from teaching this knowledge. If the teacher's classes collect student tuition, the teacher is a business person. But because you do not collect student tuition, you are not a business person."

The teacher laughed and replied, "Your answer is completely wrong. I am a person participating in the production and business processes. I have produced goods of great value and am in the process of distributing them to humanity. They are the stable energy particles in my tuelinh. My tuelinh has an energy filter, which produces countless super-energy particles when I practice preaching the knowledge of the two truths to everyone. So, I have a factory, and I am practising production. My products are super-energy particles containing comprehensive information values and sustainable development for intelligence and humans. That is a special type of good. In addition, I am also a business person because when I teach knowledge, I am distributing products to people. People consume my products when they accept my knowledge to understand the three secrets. Next, when people practice the sustainable transmutation mechanism, they become secondary factories to produce energy particles like I have been practising. Thus, I am both a manufacturer, a product distributor, and a technology transferor so that everyone can have the same abilities as me. You should know that I earn super profits from my production and business. Those profits have helped the tuelinh within me have the power to unite with all things in the universe and have the power to produce many types of super-energy to help my tuelinh and all things become sustainable. In addition, many other souls who followed the practice succeeded on their journey to becoming enlightened beings."

A student immediately said, "You produce and provide super-energy particles. Your factory is an energy filter in tuelinh, and the product is super-energy particles. I hope you can transfer the technology of that factory to us so we can do the same as you."

The teacher smiled and replied, "Of course. I am helping you understand and gradually build a super-energy particle manufacturing and trading factory through enlightened knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle. That's why I'm here to help you. When you eliminate all toxins through achieving thoroughly enlightened wisdom, each preaching of your enlightened wisdom to everyone will help them understand and practice the mechanism of sustainable reincarnation, the production of super-energy particles. Therefore, please try your best to study well to eliminate all toxins and practice the mechanism of sustainable transformation.

Now, you can share your painful experiences in business and production with me and the class. From there, I will help you recognize and eliminate that toxin more efficiently."

A male student shared, "Teacher, my mental health problems are almost completely cured now. Before joining your course, I suffered from phenomena such as seeing demons, God, and Buddha. They told me they would bless me to make me rich if I took the trouble to worship them. I thought I was lucky when God and Buddha bestowed blessings on me. Therefore, I borrowed money to invest in business. I spent a lot of money renting business premises and hiring workers. However, after a while, I suffered losses and had a huge debt. After that, I became miserable and blamed God and Buddha for why they deceived me like that. Why do they cause me to lose business when they say they will bless me? Those sufferings and questions were completely answered when I attended your class. There is a question I would like to ask you: can I be successful if I do business or produce a certain product?"

The teacher replied, "Do you understand why you have mental health problems? Why did you hear words from God or Buddhas about them bestowing favours on you to do business? And why did you fail? All of these are toxic information stored in harmful energy particles in your soul. That is information disorders in your negative energy particle system. No God or Buddha will give you wealth or success in business and production. The things you heard are all negative information you have practised and encoded in harmful energy particles in your past lives. In this life, when you think about business and production, that dangerous information will be transmitted to your brain. Then, you have mental problems. In your past life, you were not successful in business and production. Instead, you performed many rituals to pray to Buddha or God to gain wealth. Even to get money, you harmed people and animals. Those actions create harmful energy particles that make up a part of your soul. Because you have little good information value in production and business in your soul, it will be difficult for you to succeed when you want to become a business and production person. It would be best not to aspire to become an employer or get rich through business and production. Instead, it would help if you learned much about production and trade and then practised business on a tiny scale. Try to make sure you have enough to eat and educate your children. Don't dream of getting rich because you will never get rich quickly or suddenly. The reason is that there is no positive energy particle system in your soul related to the achievements of production and business to support you. The best solution is to work for someone else to help your family and improve your intelligence.

That is why people suffering from various mental illnesses should not try to be employers or practice business and production on a large scale. Get hired or practice being your employer and only do small business after knowing about the products you want to sell."

Another student asked the teacher, "Teacher, nowadays, there are many courses on how to get rich. Many young people have taken those courses to get rich quickly. However, many people fail, and many of them have mental health problems. Can you explain more about that issue so we can understand?

The teacher said, "To become a successful person in any field, including production and business, the soul within must have many positive energy particles of kindness that have content related to that field. That means that for a person to be successful in getting rich, that person's soul must have positive energy particles that benefit everyone and all beings involved in getting rich in past lives. If they have a large amount of that valuable, sustainable development information, they can quickly become rich without taking enrichment courses. On the contrary, if the soul contains harmful information that harmed people and all species in production and business in past lives, they will fail to get rich even if they take many courses. You need to understand that learning and cultivating current wisdom to help you succeed in any field is considered the top fruit of a tree. Meanwhile, information with sustainable development stored in the soul from past lives is regarded as the roots and trunk of a tree. If the tree's roots and trunk are healthy, it is evident that there will be sweet fruit. On the contrary, if the roots and trunk of the tree are infected with pests, there will be no fruit for everyone to harvest.

And above all, you must understand that practising in the human world is not to get rich by any means. Through a group of interactive scenarios in production and business roles to help each tuelinh understand himself. From there, learn how to eliminate toxins and activate kindness in production and business."

Some students said, "Teacher, we understand tht what you said about getting rich in production and business roles must be based on the relevant information accumulated in the soul. However, because humans interact in the human world with comparison and competition, the desire to become rich is inevitable, teacher."

The Master replied, "That is the ideal environment for each tuelinh to understand himself and practice sustainable change after experiencing all the suffering in each interacting group of the four forms of the Tao.

Before you can identify and eliminate toxins in your business and production interaction group, you need to understand the value of this group to the tuelinh.

So, what is the value of the business and production role for tuelinh? It includes:

- Help souls practice the values they have accumulated while practising and learning in the human world.

- It helps tuelinhs verify whether their accumulated value is good or harmful through success and failure in production and business. Success is bringing sustainable development value to everyone and all species. Loss is detrimental to everyone and all species.

- It helps tuelinhs complete their practice in the human world if they transform from the production and trading of simple physical products into products that are super-energy particles. That is to preach enlightened wisdom to everyone. If successful, it will help each tuelinh quickly practice the most effective production of sustainable energy particles.

Thus, you can see that through a group of interactive scenarios in production and business, each soul will build a method to produce sustainable energy particles through the production model of teaching enlightened knowledge to everyone. To do that, everyone must understand and eliminate toxins as producers and traders. If you can do this, even if you don't become rich in money and simple materials, your souls will become wealthy in sustainable energy particles. That is the goal the group interacting as businessmen and producers bring to the tuelinhs.

Toxins that need to be identified and eliminated as a producer and trader include:

- Producing and trading products that harm the lives of animals and all species.

- Production and business are based on destroying land, water, forests, and other earth's resources.

- Producing and trading products that harm human health and life.

- Producing and trading counterfeit goods that do not ensure quality.

- Producing and trading in stimulants and addictive substances that affect human health.

- Producing and trading in poisons and weapons that make people kill each other.

- Producing and trading products that violate the laws of the country where people live.

- Acts of smuggling, tax evasion, and trading in poor quality counterfeit goods.

- Killing and trading in animal meat products.

- Trafficking in children and women, trafficking and forcing people into slavery.

- Trading or brokering prostitution.

- Acts that harm each other in production and business.

- Practice professions such as worshipping and fortune-telling for people or houses.

- Teaching harmful knowledge to people: that is the knowledge that immerses people in superstition, hurting and killing each other, not understanding the truth about the origin and mission of practice in the human world of the tuelinh.

The fact that you do not practice production and business activities that cause harm and destruction to all people and all species means that you have eliminated and not allowed this type of poison to appear and develop in your souls.

Now, please focus on your soul to eliminate toxins as a producer and businessperson. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! It's great that we've been eliminating the last toxins in you. I am proud because we have received the enlightened wisdom of the two truths and the smallest energy particle. That helps us gain the power of unity between soul, intellect and body. Therefore, you should focus on receiving the informational value of sustainable development from knowing two truths in your role as a producer and businessperson. That is the group of interactions you have practised in each life of practice in the human world. You have produced many positive, neutral, and negative energy particles from this group of interactions. Please join me in charging enlightened wisdom to re-encode the original yin and yang energy embryo within you. For this work to be most effective, you must concentrate as I re-read and listened to this lecture many times. Hey, tuelinh, awaken all the negative, positive, and neutral energy particles related to the production and business content of your human lives in the human world. Let the positive energy particles receive more strength from the enlightened wisdom of the two truths. That power will destroy and re-encode harmful information in negative energy particles with the same information content. Don't be afraid or worried when toxic information is transmitted from harmful particles. Consider it a valuable lesson to create motivation for producing sustainable energy particles. That poison is present in every soul, so you should be peaceful and happy because we have understood all the truths of the origin and practice mission in the human world of the tuelinh life form. Dear Tuelinh, we are approaching outstanding achievements after many lifetimes of practising suffering in the human world. Therefore, together, we fully receive this magical enlightened knowledge to eliminate all toxins and maximize the goodness within you. That is the path of sustainable transformation that we must practice. When we succeed, it is a profound thank you to all the souls and people who have suffered because of you in your practice and past lives. That is also a deep gratitude to the first tuelinh when he silently guided us on our practising journey in the human world. We will achieve complete achievement soon.

After that, please often focus on reading and listening to this lecture. That helps the yin and yang energy in your souls to re-encode valuable information for sustainable development and remove toxins from your souls. This miraculous method is to heal each person's body, soul, and intellect."

A student said, "Teacher, today's lecture was wonderful. It helps us understand many things in the production and business interaction group. I understand that we live not to get rich, but through an interactive scenario to get rich for our souls by producing sustainable energy particles."

Chapter Thirty-Seven

Destroying Toxins in Relationships with Animals and All Species

"Do you remember Nalas Nalanda's teachings about animals to the first humans in the great gathering of humanity?" The teacher asked the student.

Everyone replied, "I assign all of you the task of taming animals so that their souls can also become humans to practise, teacher."

The teacher continued, "Exactly so. That is the mission of tuelinhs when they incarnate into humans. Taming animals is to help their souls transform sustainably. When a ferocious animal becomes a gentle animal, it is a testament to every person and tuelinh that they can entirely successfully transform their yin and yang energy embryos.

Thus, among the four commandments of the first tuelinh, there is one thing about animals. That shows the importance of animals compared to the remaining three commandments on the tuelinhs' practising journey to successfully transform their yin and yang energy embryos in the human world. That is why there are interaction scenarios between humans, animals, and all species.

Today's lesson will explore human interaction scenarios with animals and all species. From there, you will identify and eliminate toxins when treating them.

You already know about animals. They include flying animals, animals that live on the ground, and animals in the water. As for all species, do you know which species they are?" The student replied, "Plants, rocks, vegetation, insects, and life smaller than insects, teacher."

The teacher said, "All the species you mentioned are just simple groups of matter. Before you learned about the knowledge of the two truths, you only knew people, animals, plants and vegetation systems, but you did not know what was inside them. But when you understand the knowledge of the two truths, you will learn: inside humans is the tuelinh, also known as the soul; inside animals is the soul; inside plants and trees is the soul; inside the soil and stones are the souls, inside insects and more petite than them are complex energy structures. Since humans cannot see complex and super-complex energy structures with their eyes, humans cannot fully see and know species. Thus, all species include all life forms and matter, from simple to complex and super complex.

Please continue to share your suffering experiences or those of people around you regarding the treatment of animals and all species. From there, you will quickly understand and eliminate toxins in scenarios for treating animals and all species."

A woman shared, "Teacher, my family bought a big mountain to exploit and process stone into products for construction. Besides the economic benefits my family has received, my family also had many incidents. My child and I used to suffer from problems related to mental health, but after learning the teacher's knowledge in previous courses, we have recovered. After consulting with you, my family decided to sell that mountain. During my years of illness, I suffered from hallucinations, such as seeing images of snakes and tigers. They always appear in my dreams, trying to chase and harm me. Before knowing your knowledge, I asked the psychics to see it. They all thought I had to worship gods and become a psychic like them. I didn't follow what they said because I saw people who are psychics not having good results for themselves or their families. Instead, I looked for another solution and was fortunate to learn from the teacher's knowledge. As a result, my child and I have overcome mental health problems. From your lectures, I understood that the negative energy particles we had produced in our past lives were the main cause of mental health problems. And the direct cause of the present life is production and business based on blasting mountains to exploit stone. I understand that many species suddenly lost their place to live in the mountains and were even injured. In the souls of those who destroyed the mountains, they continued to produce negative energy particles. My family has moved to another job to do business, so I feel happy and no longer worried like before. I would like you to explain more to me and everyone about the species that humans cannot see when they exist in trees and rocks?"

The teacher said, "It was a good decision for everyone in the family and all the creatures living on that mountain. The species that live in that mountain are not just animals, trees, and rocks. It also has the souls of animals, the souls of trees, and the souls of rocks and soil. Beast souls will become angry when their bodies are killed, and then they will find ways to avenge those who killed them or those living nearby. Why do their souls take revenge? Because they have no enlightened wisdom and no compassion, they will hate and take revenge when they lose the opportunity to practice in a simple physical form. They have to wait for the next reincarnation journey. Thus, destroying mountains eliminates the living environment of many animals and plants, even causing them to die during exploitation.

In addition, the souls in trees and rocks also lost their practice environment to become sustainable. You must know that plants, trees, rocks, and soil all have complex energy structures existing inside. They maintain the existence of simple matter, and through the simple matter of grass, trees and rocks, they will grow in number of energy particles and intelligence. When you destroy their environment and simple physical structure, they will lose the opportunity to practice. Therefore, actions to exploit the earth's resources will have enormous consequences for all species. In future lectures, I will have in-depth lessons for the transformation journey of living forms for you to understand more deeply."

Another student told the teacher, "Teacher, during my mental illness, I always saw images of ferocious animals, such as snakes, tigers, and dogs, chasing me and wanting to kill me. Even in my sleep, I see them. When I met the psychics, they all thought it was my fate to worship the gods and become a psychic like them. They also said that if I didn't do what they said, I would go crazy and not be able to live. But when I learned your knowledge, I recovered and understood why I had a mental illness related to hallucinations of wild animals. In my past lives, I practised or had acts of killing many animals for trade or to practice worship rituals. Those images are stored in negative energy particles in my soul. In this life, that harmful information bombards my brain and causes me mental illness with hallucinations related to animals."

Another student continued, "Teacher, in the city we live in, there used to be several neighbourhoods that specialized in slaughtering dogs and processing their meat into dishes. The slaughterhouse owners were initially very wealthy, but many of their children and families died suddenly, and much suffering came to them. Somehow, they understood that killing animals for the restaurant business would cause them severe consequences, so they stopped slaughtering and trading in animal meat. The consequences of suffering were direct lessons for them to recognize their cruel behaviour, and then they changed their behaviour."

The teacher said, "There are always consequences for evil actions. It comes when the amount of harmful energy particles in the soul is enough to create a tribulation for each person. It can come in the next life through mental illnesses and other calamities. And, it comes during the practice of cruel acts when their amount of harmful energy particles is enough in the present life.

Actions that hurt animals and all species, such as destroying the practice environment and killing them, are all due to people not understanding the truth about the origin and mission of practice in the human world. Of course, it includes not knowing the commandments of the first tuelinh. That's why people do not see the value of the relationship between humans and animals, and all species bring wisdom to the tuelinhs. Thus, they do not recognize the toxins in their souls.

Do you know what values the tuelinhs have in human interaction scenarios with animals and all species? That may be a difficult question for you. Those values include:

- The most excellent value is that each tuelinh will learn love for other life forms besides the tuelinhs. If souls learn to love all living beings in a practice environment, they have wisdom and love for all life forms in and outside the universe. The tuelinhs want to attain the unified Tao of the universe; they must connect their intellect with all matter in and outside the universe. Therefore, if the tuelinhs do not have that love, their path to maturity and enlightenment is still very far.

- Through treating and helping animals and all species, the tuelinhs can practice protecting and developing all forms of life in and outside the universe to become sustainable. That is the mission of each tuelinh after successfully converting the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter.

So, you have understood the value of the interaction scenarios between humans and animals and all species in the human practice environment. That is to build a love for all creatures and practice methods to protect and develop all things in and out of the universe to become sustainable.

Next, we need to recognize and eliminate the soul's toxins through humans' actions towards animals and all species. It includes:

- Destroying water resources and polluting water sources in rivers, streams, ponds, lakes, seas, and underground water.

- Destroying forests and vegetation systems.

- Destroying and exploiting soil and rock in the mountains and underground.

- Other underground resource exploitation activities.

- Imprisoning and beating animals. That is different from taming animals.

- Hunting animals underwater, on the ground, and in the air.

- Practicing the business of trading and slaughtering animals.

- Actions that hurt animals and all species.

When people have faith in the origin of humanity and the practising mission of the tuelinhs in the human world, they will stop acts that hurt animals and all species. However, having many benefits, such as economics, wealth, food, and pleasure, makes it difficult for people to give up cruel acts towards animals and all species. Therefore, people must endure extreme suffering and disasters to help them change their thoughts and actions.

When you take my courses, most of you have experienced suffering from mental illness and physical illness. Those sufferings and tribulations are ideal conditions for seeking understanding and liberation from suffering. It is also the material that helps you change your thinking and actions to eliminate all toxins and maximize the goodness in your soul. Therefore, please practice eliminating toxins and maximize the kindness within you when dealing with animals and all species.

Now, please focus within to transmit the enlightened wisdom to your soul to have strength and eliminate toxins. Read out loud after me:

Hey, tuelinh! Do you know? Perhaps you must remember your mission of taming animals since you started incarnating as a human. As a result, you cannot avoid causing harm to animals and all living beings during many lifetimes of practice in the human world. That is the type of poison in the form of the social Tao that every tuelinh has, and he loses control of himself because of it. I also understand why you and the tuelinhs cannot recognize and control that or any type of poison because all do not have enlightened wisdom. Because of that, we all hurt animals and all species, while we think we have the right to do it. We believe that killing animals is to ensure food needs for humans, and exploiting the earth's resources is to serve economic development for people and countries. We always think we have the right to decide on everything, animals and all species. It is a wrong and cruel ideology that we do not know that all are equal. Hey, tuelinh, I know you have endured countless sufferings and tribulations during your practising journey in the human world. Your toxins have caused suffering to many species and animals. As a result, harmful energy particles that form a part of you are produced. That is evidence of the toxins that have emerged and developed in you through your treatment of animals and all species.

Dear Tuelinh, let go of your fears and worries about what you have done to animals and all species in past lives. Instead, focus on receiving each unit of enlightened wisdom as we study and listen to the teacher's teachings. This unique enlightened wisdom will help you eliminate all toxins and activate maximum goodness. Please be happy and excited because we have understood the wisdom of enlightenment from the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle. At the same time, many people have yet to access this special knowledge. Please forgive the mistakes you have made towards animals and all species in the past and past lives to have the strength to practice sustainable transformation on your practising journey in the human world. Please awaken all negative, positive, and neutral energy particles related to treating animals and all species. Let the positive energy particles be empowered by the enlightened wisdom of the two truths. That power will control and eliminate all toxins in the negative energy particle system to re-encode their information. Then, they will function properly and perform their duties. Don't be afraid when you see toxic information from harmful energy particles bombarded. Instead, consider it a short film to help you have a lesson in activating kindness in this group of scenarios. Hey, tuelinh, please accept each unit of information as I read and listened to this lecture many times. It will magically help you re-encode information in yin and yang energy embryos. We must race against time to practice eliminating toxins and activating goodness through sharing enlightened wisdom with everyone. That is the fastest way to help you produce sustainable energy particles to convert yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. Only success is the best result to pay tribute to the first tuelinh and all life forms in and outside the universe. We can do it when the destination is very close to us.

Please read and re-listen to this lecture many times to maximize the effectiveness of encoding information. When the yin and yang energy embryo and the energy particle system in the soul are encoded with data for sustainable development, you will have magical power in practising sustainable energy particle production. Receiving valuable information for sustainable development will help you change your ideology. It is to transform into a positive ideology to always practice kindness towards all beings and in all interactive scenarios of the four forms of the Tao. That is the power of enlightened knowledge when you learn and practice."

Some students said, "Teacher, the reactions and images of demons and animals still appear in my mind when practising forcing out toxins in this group of scenarios. However, because the previous lesson on forcing out toxins also had content related to animals, this lesson had a milder reaction level. My mental illness has almost been cured, and the symptoms of my illness before attending the course have almost disappeared, teacher. Indeed, receiving enlightened wisdom creates miraculous power, sir."

Chapter Thirty-Eight

Eliminate Toxins in Treating Yourself and Others

When the teacher entered the classroom and prepared to lecture, the woman sitting near the teacher spoke to him. "Teacher, until today, I still have sharp pain in my bones. However, I have good news. Yesterday, I got the results of the bone scan and cancer cell tests. As a result, the bones show no signs of metastasis, cancer indicators have decreased to the safe zone, and tumours and lymph nodes are almost disappearing. It was miraculous that stage III breast cancer was almost cured without taking medication or hospital treatment after a few months of studying your therapy class. Thus, the sharp pain in my bones and joints is due to the process of eliminating toxins from my soul and body cells. However, my bones and joints hurt so much all day and night, teacher."

The teacher replied, "That's good. When your soul is loaded with valuable information for sustainable development, the yin and yang energy embryo and the energy particle system in the soul structure will eliminate toxins. The process of encoding information causes sharp pain in the body. That is the phenomenon of cancer patients and other patients who also have sharp pain at the site of the disease. Try to practice helping people with other diseases and sufferings; help them understand and overcome the suffering you have been overcoming. Doing so helps the soul produce positive energy particles to make the healing process faster."

That woman was one of three metastatic cancer patients who recovered from late-stage cancer after finishing the course. Five cancer patients participated in the treatment, while two cancer patients, one only learned half the course, and one did not follow the teacher's method correctly. They continued treatment at the hospital, so they did not survive.

After that woman's sharing, many students shared their illness with everyone and the teacher. Many mentally ill people have almost completely recovered. In addition, patients with other types of diseases also miraculously recover without taking medication. The patients and students of that course witnessed the miracle of healing mental and physical illness through the healing of intellectual ignorance. It is a method of recharging information with sustainable development to restructure the energy in the soul to generate warm heat. The warm heat generated will radiate to all cells in the body to heal all types of diseases. When the energy structure in the soul has been restructured, the patient's mental illnesses are also cured. The recovered patients proved that the teacher's words were accurate when the class began its first session. That is, "If the patient wants to be cured, he or she must listen to me and practice my method correctly."

People shared their joy and happiness when their illnesses had decreased and were almost completely cured when the course had just passed one-third. It is indescribable happiness when sick people think they cannot be cured after being treated by hospitals and many different methods.

I remember that when the course of wisdom, soul, and body healing ended, people sank into feelings of happiness as almost everyone recovered from their illnesses. That is from depression, hallucinations, anxiety disorders, epilepsy, schizophrenia, other diseases, and especially three patients with late-stage metastatic cancer. Sick people and non-sick students celebrated the last class together and said goodbye to the teacher because they would no longer be able to attend any of his courses in Vietnam. At the first session of this healing course, the teacher swore before all his students and all life forms in the universe, "If this healing course is not successful, I will never teach enlightened wisdom again. If I succeed and you recover from your illness by listening to me, I will devote my life to spreading the enlightened wisdom of the two truths worldwide. Regardless of success or failure, I will not hold any future classes in Vietnam again." As a result, he has succeeded in applying enlightened wisdom and knowledge of the smallest energy particle to treat pathology, mental illness, and ignorance. That is unquestionably valuable evidence of the teacher's knowledge. That's why, during the teacher's farewell party, everyone couldn't hide their sadness at having to leave him after the course ended. However, everyone promised themselves that they would try to practice and spread the teacher's enlightened wisdom to everyone so that together, they could complete the task of practising in the human world.

Returning to the memory of the toxin removal lecture series in the interactive scenarios in the four forms of the Tao, that was the last lecture. The teacher began the class after everyone shared joy about their excellent health.

He said, "In today's lesson, we will eliminate the last toxins in each soul as each person behaves towards themselves and others. You need to know that the information content groups in eliminating toxins are linked. When removing toxins in a particular interaction group, it simultaneously eliminates toxins in other interaction groups. Therefore, releasing toxins through the information content in the four forms of the Tao is extremely valuable for you. In addition, you must remember that eliminating harmful information is the process of reading and learning enlightened wisdom from the two truths and smallest energy particles. You must understand enlightenment knowledge to help the yin and yang embryo re-encode information and then practice producing positive energy particles. You cannot just listen or read my lectures a few times and think you have eliminated the toxins in your soul and are cured. It is not possible. Learning and practising must go hand in hand. It is a mechanism to practice sustainable transformation: eliminating toxins and producing sustainable energy particles by helping and saving people, animals, and all species.

This lesson on eliminating toxins differs from the previous lessons on removing toxins. Therefore, you concentrate on receiving each unit of information into your soul so that the elimination of toxins and the encoding of enlightened wisdom are maximally effective. This lecture will help you eliminate toxins and activate kindness from your thoughts to your behaviour towards yourself and others.

1. "Humans do not have the right to kill themselves and others."

When people encounter suffering, events, difficulties, pressure, illness or any problems in life, they commit suicide to end their lives. They think they have the right to decide their death to be liberated when they encounter the above problems. Their actions are murder. They kill their parents' children, the husband's wife, the wife's husband, the father or mother of the children, and the lover's lover. That is a severe crime because it does not respect life as a human being. When they decided to commit suicide, they did not know that to be reincarnated as a human, that soul had to make a vow and ask the first tuelinh to be reincarnated. They do not learn that, for them to be born, to study and to grow up, how much their parents had to care for and love them. The act of not respecting one's own life causes the soul inside to suffer an extremely fierce punishment. After that person dies, the soul will not be transferred to any planet, nor reincarnated immediately into the next human life, and exceptionally not returned to heaven. That soul must be damned and live in a place where they commit suicide for many years, even hundreds of years to thousands of years. It was a fitting punishment for not appreciating that soul's opportunity to be human. That soul will have to witness the people living nearby in love and happiness. Only when these souls realize the cruel actions they have committed and help people living in that area have faith in the world after people die can those souls return somewhere else to balance energy before being reincarnated as a human in a new life. If people live on the land where they died, they have enlightened wisdom and practice saving that soul. That soul can return to another place to balance its energy before being reincarnated as a human being. Therefore, people do not have the right to kill themselves for any reason. Each life of practice in the human world is precious because if one does not successfully transform the yin and yang energy embryo, each tuelinh will be in danger of being destroyed very quickly. Therefore, we must cherish human life to practice and overcome suffering and calamities to produce sustainable energy particles.

Besides, people do not have the right to kill others. When people interact in the four forms of the Tao, they quickly break out and develop toxins in their souls. They become clinging, angry, and hateful, eventually losing control of their minds, leading to acts of killing each other. That is, parents kill their children, mothers have abortions, mothers hug their children to commit suicide together, kill lovers, kill due to conflicts and clashes in society, kill due to rivalry and jealousy, and kill harm each other for any reason. It is an act of murder and hinders humans' practising journey. The soul of the murderer will receive extremely harsh punishments after death. They will not be reincarnated immediately; they will have to wait long. When reincarnated as a new person, they must endure being killed due to accidents or conflicts with people. That is a punishment to create a lesson for that soul to eliminate toxins in relationships with others when the toxins cannot be controlled and kill others.

Killing yourself or killing others results from losing control of the mind due to toxins in the soul. It makes the practising journey of these souls more dire. Therefore, understand the wisdom of enlightenment from the two truths to eliminate thoughts of suicide or killing others. Control your thoughts, words and actions to avoid harming yourself or others.

2. "Everyone has poisonous snakes inside, so don't try to make them angry."

The toxin is always present in each person's soul and will explode when it encounters the right environment to activate it. Activating other people's toxins will cause everyone's toxins to explode and grow stronger. As a result, people will fall into suffering and disaster. Therefore, people need to control their thoughts and behaviours in relationships, not provoke other people's toxins.

Some examples of provoking toxicity in others and yourself:

- When you have a family, at work or in certain interactive relationships, from your thoughts, you have flirtatious looks and words with the opposite sex. That is, you have activated your toxin first and that toxin is activating the poison of the opposite sex. When someone of the opposite sex receives a lot of flirting from you, that person's toxicity can flare up. When both people's toxins break out, you and that person will have an affair. As a result, you and that person produce harmful energy particles that make the path of disease and destruction of the souls go faster. In addition, the consequences of adultery will seriously damage everyone's family, children, and career.

- When you have social relationships, if for some reason you say bad words, curse and assault others. That means you have activated everyone's toxins with your toxins. It will create conflicts, fights, and even killing each other. As a result, both souls make many harmful energy particles for the decay process to happen faster. In addition, it is possible that through that conflict, someone gets hurt, someone dies, and everyone's career and morality are seriously impaired.

- When you accidentally collide with someone in life, you should not get angry, curse or assault them. Because if you cannot control your thoughts and actions, you and that person can fight and kill each other. Because when you activate your toxins, you also activate other people's toxins. As a result, your soul, wisdom, and body suffer damage. The cause of injury is your ignorance.

You know that the practice environment in the human world is through interactive scenarios to force out toxins and activate goodness. However, it would be best if you did not use the wisdom of ignorance to say that each other's intentional actions of activating toxins are to help each other identify and remove toxins. That is naive and ignorant thinking. There are two sources of learning to identify and force out toxins and then activate goodness: learning through the sufferings and tribulations of the interactive scenarios in the four forms of the Tao and learning through enlightened wisdom of the two truths. Learning through enlightened understanding is the safest way to eliminate toxins and activate goodness for each tuelinh. On the contrary, learning through suffering and tribulations activates other people's and your toxins. Learning this path causes the soul to produce many harmful energy particles, and the risk of destruction is very high. Thus, learning and practicing according to enlightened wisdom will help tuelinhs complete the path of practice and attain enlightenment as quickly as possible. Meanwhile, activating one's own and others' toxins is the fastest path to destruction for the soul.

3. "Everyone is a mirror. Clean your mirror, and don't try to clean other people's mirrors."

Each person is a mirror to look back at themselves. It is reviewing what you have thought and the actions you have taken in each moment and each day. Looking at yourself is to help each person recognize whether their toxins have emerged and developed. If you detect a toxin, eliminate your thoughts and stop uncontrolled actions caused by that toxin. Try to practice kindness to bring good values to everyone. Eliminate toxic thoughts, control hurtful actions, and instead practice kind activities; it is to wipe your mirror clean. Cleaning one's mirror should be done moment by moment and day by day. It helps each person control themselves and not provoke other people's toxins.

If everyone likes to clean other people's mirrors because they think they see toxins from others, that is wrong. The act of washing someone else's mirror is activating another person's toxins with your own. People should not criticize or speak ill of someone, thinking these actions help them improve. Because of those actions, people are using their toxins to smear the example of others. Therefore, do not try to clean someone else's mirror. Instead, cleaning your mirror would help so that your goodness and morality can shine. Then, when others look at that moral and intellectual example, they will recognize the toxins and know how to remove them from their souls. It is through those actions that our moral example shines. At that time, everyone around them will notice their poisonous mirror through our mirror so they can clean their mirror.

It would be best to remember that the toxins of jealousy, narcissism, and conservatism are easy to erupt and grow strongly to activate all other types of toxins in the soul. Therefore, each person's thoughts and actions must be considered to avoid triggering other people's toxins.

4. "All things, events, phenomena, and everyone are our teachers. Therefore, learners should learn everything well and respect them."

You already know that all souls incarnate as humans to practice in the human world to search for the three secrets through the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment in suffering. That means you must learn everything from all things, phenomena, events, and people to find the two truths to liberate misery. That is the content of one of the four teachings of the first tuelinh.

When you learn any lesson from all things, events, phenomena and people, you must consider them as your teachers. Whether good or bad, humans are all teachers; all are the truth of the universe because people can see the good and evil nature of each person, soul, and everything. So, what do you learn from them? That is:

- Through people who have toxins, learn lessons about identifying and eliminating those toxins. It's about understanding the hurtful thoughts and actions of those experiencing toxicity so that you don't think and practice like them.

- Through those who practice kindness, learn those lessons to activate your compassion. That is learning to recognize good values, practice helping actions, and save people, animals, and all species.

- Through children to learn lessons of holiness and honesty from them. Each person should understand children's honest and holy nature to help train the soul to achieve balance through holy thoughts and actions.

- Through teachers to learn the lessons of dedication and sacrifice they make for their students. In addition, through teachers, each person will gain wisdom in the fastest and most effective way. Teachers are the repository of knowledge in each field and possibly enlightenment knowledge. Therefore, the teacher is always the most respected person in each person's life on the journey of intellectual development.

- Through the wife, learn the lessons of love, care and nurturing everything for family happiness.

- Through the husband, learn the lesson of resilience and determination to overcome all difficulties and pressures to build a career.

- Through parents, learn the lesson of love for children, tolerance and sacrificing everything for children.

- Through brothers and sisters, we can learn solidarity and protect each other.

- Through friends, you can learn sincere values and intimate friendship to help each other overcome difficulties and tribulations in life.

- Through national leaders, learn the lessons of fairness, intelligence, and time dedication to the nation. In addition, you also learn lessons about not letting their relatives affect protecting the survival and prosperity of the country.

- Through the sages and enlightened beings to learn and practice according to their transcendent wisdom.

- Through everyone: we learn toxic lessons from them, so we don't follow them; we learn the lessons of kindness and practice according to them. We should not let someone or something constrain us to learn and practice according to their toxins. For example, many people look down on young children and do not learn from their honest qualities. In order to defend the wrongs of their brothers and relatives, many people practice those wrongs. Because they listen to their wives, many husbands only know how to cultivate happiness for their family but do not help and save people, animals, and all species.

- Through animals to learn about their toxins and goodness. From there, practice according to good deeds and do not practice according to their toxic actions.

- Through the incident, learn lessons of toxicity and kindness from everyone participating in the interaction in that incident. It helps us understand ourselves and others.

- Through phenomena to understand their nature. Phenomena are manifestations of nature. Therefore, to understand nature, observing phenomena over a long time is necessary to obtain high reliability.

- Understanding when their toxins and goodness are revealed and activated through all things. Understand how they are linked and valuable to human life. From there, it helps us identify and eliminate toxins and activate kindness more effectively.

Because everything is everyone's teacher, so everyone needs to respect them. Respect to control and eliminate your toxins and not activate the toxins of others. Even if they are cruel people, they are also their teachers when they show lessons to not practice like them. Learn to respect and practice according to people and teachers who help you gain insight in all areas of life and enlightenment. Because they are the teachers who help people practice the path of sustainable transformation, everyone must appreciate them even more.

5. "No one is anyone else's teacher. Therefore, teachers should not be arrogant and look down on learners."

No one is anyone's teacher, only those who teach knowledge in various fields, those who teach knowledge to everyone, and those who transmit enlightened wisdom to others. That is the way to control and eliminate toxins as a teacher. If teachers think they are everyone's teacher, they can quickly become arrogant. It causes toxins to control their minds, and they will commit actions that hurt people.

You must remember that this way of controlling toxins is only for your role as a teacher. Please do not underestimate and disrespect the teacher who taught you the wisdom of life and the wisdom of enlightenment because all is everyone's teacher.

6. "No one can help or save anyone. Therefore, those who help and save people should not think that they have helped and saved people."

This way helps those who practice helping and saving people, animals and all living things to learn how to control their toxins. That is not being boastful or arrogant but thinking you can help people with illness, accidents, difficulties or tribulations. Everyone's helping and saving are always respected and appreciated by others. Besides, positive energy particles are produced in the souls of those who practice good deeds. However, considering ourselves unable to save anyone helps everyone eliminate the toxins of pride and attachment when helping and saving people, animals and everything. That is because, in reality, if you can help and save someone, that is not protecting their inner soul. To save their inner soul, you must eliminate toxins and practice helping them gain enlightened wisdom. Because only enlightened knowledge can help people's souls re-encode information and practice sustainable transformation mechanisms. When they do so, their karma will change positively, and they will succeed on their practising journey.

This method is not for those who are helped and saved. Therefore, when supported and protected, you must know how to thank and respect the person who helped you. Take that as a lesson to help and save others. Because of ignorance, you should not think that no one can help and save you after being helped and saved.

Please often focus on reading and listening to this lecture so that this valuable enlightening information is re-encoded in the yin and yang energy embryo. That's the best way to treat yourself and others. We must build a shining moral example to spread the values of sustainable development of enlightened wisdom and knowledge of the smallest energy particle. You must always look at yourself as the mirror every moment and every day to eliminate toxins and activate maximum kindness."

Thus, I wrote a series of unique lectures by him in the course on healing physical diseases, mental illness and ignorance of people in this book. In the following books, we continue to receive and explore the magical enlightenment knowledge and knowledge about energy particles from his other lectures.
