Chapter Thirty-Nine

The Universe Will Be Destroyed By Destructive Energy

Two brothers, Truong Nalanda and Duong Nalanda, and I often talk together after dinner, next to the English school's swimming pool. That's a place where we are studying English together in Cebu City, Philippines. With the desire to share the enlightened knowledge of Master Nalas Nalanda with all humanity in the world, we came to this beautiful city to learn and practice English. Although learning a new language is difficult, we have achieved initial achievements and completed the first book. Every time I finish writing a few chapters of the book, I give it to them to read. After that, their positive feedback helped me write and organise his lectures most effectively to help readers understand. All the book chapters I rewrote are based on his lectures in class and on those he taught us. The book's chapters are not in the chronological order the teacher teaches. They are arranged by value and effective sequence to help each person understand the toxins, followed by the elimination of toxins and then the practice of generating positive energy particles.

We always sat and chatted next to the school swimming pool after dinner. However, this evening, there is more moonlight and cool breezes. Truong Nalanda told me, "I have finished reading book one. What you wrote in there is amazing. You fully reproduced all of the teacher's knowledge even though the lectures were not in chronological order. It can be affirmed that no one can remember and analyse the enlightened knowledge of teacher Nalas Nalanda like you. You have rewritten and arranged his lectures in an easy-to-understand and logical way. That makes it easier for learners to re-encode information in their yin and yang energy embryos. In addition, those book chapters will help the process of treating physical illness, mental illness, and intelligence achieve the fastest results. Do you know? My brother and I came to his class because I had read a few articles from some of his students. That information stimulates and makes me greatly believe in the teacher's knowledge. We don't go to class to learn magical powers or meditate. We want to understand ourselves and practice good values for everyone. After several years of learning the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle, we have understood and vowed to devote our lives to spreading that special enlightened knowledge to everyone. However, we missed many valuable lectures and milestones he achieved before we met him. I know that you are the one who is always next to the teacher; you are the only one who understands all the knowledge and milestones on the teacher's practising journey. Therefore, I hope you will share the teacher's milestone achievements and lectures for us and everyone in the world to know. My wish is also the wish of everyone in this world."

When I heard Truong Nalanda's confessions, I took a deep breath and looked up at the sky. The bright moonlight and cool breeze stood and ran across my face and hair. They seemed happy and wanted to tell me to satisfy Truong Nalanda's and everyone else's wishes. I smiled and said, "My friend, even if you don't say it, even if the moonlight and the wind don't encourage me, I still have to do it. That is my mission. Our leaving home and being here is to practice our mission. I have only finished the first book and have two more to be written shortly. Writing down the teacher's knowledge and lectures is not difficult for me. However, I need to combine the stories of the teacher's practice lives in the human world and this life with the lectures that form the most valuable chapters of the book. It will help readers easily understand and practice sustainable transformation to fulfil their vows of practice in the human world. Therefore, rest assured, I will write the teacher's enlightened knowledge in three books. In the second book, I will write about the knowledge of energy particles and the universe's history. That is complicated knowledge. Since I wrote a part about the knowledge of energy particles in book one, I believe that readers will find it easy to understand when studying the knowledge of energy particles in this second book. Do you know? The knowledge about energy particles in this second book is invaluable; it is the key to understanding the entire truth of everything in and out of the universe. In addition, it is the truth, the only path for each tuelinh to understand the three secrets they are searching for and practice to attain the unified Tao of the universe. In book one, I wrote down his special enlightenment teachings when he combined the knowledge of the smallest energy particle with the two truths. These are miraculous enlightened knowledge referenced by the smallest energy particles so that learners will not be misunderstood and practice incorrectly. I consider this second book the most valuable and difficult to understand of the three books about Nalas Nalanda's knowledge. Therefore, readers need to receive each unit of knowledge combined with the teacher's stories. That is the best way to help learners easily receive knowledge to re-encode information in tuelinh and practice knowledge in life most effectively."

I was quiet and looked up at the sky. I look deeply into the universe, into the origin, into the past, into the emptiness before the universe was formed after the Big Bang. That feeling is difficult to express in words or written in books.

After immersion in the universe and the past, I asked Truong Nalanda, "Which lecture do you want me to share?"

"About the decay and destruction of the tuelinhs in particular and the universe in general. I want to understand those things more deeply." Truong Nalanda replied.

"It is a huge amount of knowledge and not easy to understand. However, I will write and analyse them in this book. To partially understand the decay and destruction of the tuelinhs and all matter in the universe, let your minds blend with my memory of master Nalas Nalanda."

When immersed in the bright moonlight and cool breezes, my memories took me back to one night in August 2018. I remember that, around that time, the enlightened knowledge that the teacher was teaching to his students had no teaching of the smallest energy particles. It was a challenging time for the teacher as he tried to help his students understand the knowledge he taught. Because there is no knowledge of the smallest energy particle, many students misunderstand and practice incorrectly. Although he could not hide his sadness when he saw his students unable to overcome the challenges from the five messengers, he still gradually received enlightened wisdom from his tuelinh after going through the challenges. The teacher's enlightened wisdom is encoded in the tuelinh within the teacher. That enlightened knowledge will be transmitted to the brain when the teacher experiences suffering and challenges in life. Many people have wondered why he has such wisdom. He also answered that those pearls of wisdom do not come naturally. That special enlightened knowledge was stored in positive and super-energy particles in past lives. That is, through practice in the human world for many lives, he understood the truth and the path to full enlightenment, and then he practised spreading the knowledge of enlightenment to everyone. As a result, the teacher's tuelinh produces energy particles with the informational value that develops sustainably, which is enlightened wisdom. When the teacher's tuelinh incarnates as a human to practice and perform tasks, the wisdom of the tuelinh will be blocked as soon as the body is born. He will regain wisdom from the tuelinh and even develop his wisdom to become more remarkable when he goes through all the tribulations and trials. His tuelinh will show him the memories of past lives and achievements when going through difficulties and trials in the human world.

Besides, the tuelinh will return to his origin through the teacher's sleep to teach other tuelinhs. At such times, the teacher's wisdom receives enlightened wisdom from the tuelinh. This process causes the teacher's wisdom to have the whole wisdom of the tuelinh and constantly upgrade his wisdom to reach perfection in each life of practice in the human world.

Just like when the teacher's tuelinh transmitted enlightenment wisdom to the teacher, that night, his tuelinh waited for his body to fall asleep and move into the universe. Unlike previous times, this time, Nalas Nalanda did not return to heaven; instead, he travelled across the universe to visit the majesty of all life forms. Sometimes, he transforms into a giant tuelinh covering many galaxies; other times, he transforms into a mature tuelinh like a human. When preaching to other tuelinhs about the destruction of the entire universe, he transformed into a giant tuelinh. When preaching to the tuelinhs about the destruction of tuelinhs, he transformed into a mature tuelinh. At such times, other tuelinhs were also changed; they were always children next to a great father.

At that time, on a vast planet, Nalas Nalanda was teaching the knowledge of energy particles to many other tuelinhs. He sat on a massive block of rock; the tuelinhs sat below and listened attentively to his teachings. A child immediately asked, "Father! How is tuelinh disintegrated when destructive energy attacks?"

Nalas Nalanda replied, "When the tuelinh is attacked by a small amount of destructive energy, at the location where the destructive energy enters, a phenomenon of decay will occur. That means that at those points, the bond-breaking process will occur between clusters of positive energy particles. At that time, the informational waves from the yin and yang embryo cannot pass through the clusters of positive energy particles because the transmission path of neutral particles is cut off. In addition, the synthesized negative energy particles are disintegrated and store the excess heat of destructive energy. Positive energy particles lose heat and also keep excess heat of destructive energy. The extra heat of the destructive energy is brown, so the energy particles of the tuelinh, when infected with that heat, also become brown energy particles. This process will cause infection from points infected with destructive energy to spread to surrounding particle clusters. You can understand that when the tuelinh is disintegrated by the energy of destruction, it is like a human being with metastatic cancer. Each location where the tuelinh is attacked by destructive energy is like a malignant tumour appearing on the human body. Many tuelinhs will be struck by destructive energy in many locations. That depends on the clusters of energy particles with many harmful energy particles in each tuelinh. You should remember that the tuelinh is attacked by destructive energy because there is an excess of harmful energy particles in the system of yin and yang energy particles within themselves. Excessive harmful energy particles will cause more destructive energy particles to enter and decompose the soul faster. Such a decomposition process will cause pain and information disorder in the energy particle system. You can see that when tuelinhs incarnate into humans and practice the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles. Those people lose control of their thoughts and behaviour when destructive energy invades and disintegrates every part of their souls. In addition, you have also experienced it when you have witnessed many tuelinhs completely disintegrate when attacked by a large amount of destructive energy when they had not yet incarnated into humans.

Before transforming into humans to practice, many souls were entirely disintegrated by the energy of destruction. Storms of destructive energy exist everywhere in the universe. They are both a threat to the survival of tuelinhs and all life in the universe and the source for the existence and development of all life in the universe. People call destructive energy storms black holes in the galaxy. In the space of the destructive energy storm, countless destructive energy particles are contained. If the tuelinhs move into their space, they will immediately crumble and become discrete brown energy particles. There will be no more electric waves or connections between the energy particles of the tuelinh. That is the complete cessation of the life of the tuelinh. Additionally, as tuelinhs move around the space of destructive energy particles, they are also easily completely disintegrated if a large amount of destructive energy moves into them. As a result, their lives will end.”

Another tuelinh asked, “Father! Is there any difference between tuelinhs moving into the space of the energy of destruction?”

He replied, “Of course, there is a difference when tuelinhs with different energy particle structures move into the energy space of destruction. That is:

- If tuelinh has excess negative energy particles, the decay process is very fast, and no other reactions occur. The reason is that the tuelinh's positive energy particle system does not have enough positive heat to create explosive reactions when decomposed by destructive energy.

- If the tuelinh has a balanced structure between the combined yin and yang energy particles, the decomposition and explosion process will occur in the tuelinh. The reason is that the positive heat of the positive energy particle system reacts with the attack of many destructive energy particles, forming explosions in the tuelinh. As a result, the tuelinh decomposes and explodes, leading to destruction.

- If the tuelinhs transforms the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter or a dual energy filter, they will not be disintegrated or destroyed when moving into the space of destructive energy. When moving into the destructive or destructive energy area attacking them, their yin and yang embryos will operate as factories producing new super-energy particles. The source for the production of super-energy particles is destructive energy particles.

From the above three cases, you can see that when you transform the yin and yang embryo into an energy filter, you will not be destroyed by the destructive energy. In particular, you will have the power to transform destructive energy into super-energy particles. That is why all tuelinhs must incarnate into humans to practice in the human world. You will complete your practice plan in the human world when you obtain the energy filter in the yin and yang energy embryo."

Then, Nalas Nalanda continued to tell the children, "Children, I tell you that the universe is running out of energy for movement and existence. Iridescent yellow super-energy particles are insufficient to protect the universe from the massive attack of destructive energy from outer space. If the right day and time come and my body in the human world does not achieve enlightenment and merge with me to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual filter, the entire universe will be destroyed. When my yin and yang energy embryo transforms into a double filter, the lapis lazuli super-energy particles will be produced by me. At that time, the new super-energy will have dual power to protect the universe from destructive energy attacks."

At that time, the children immediately asked him, "Father! What will the universe look like when it decays?"

At that time, Nalas Nalanda used his miracle and transformed into a giant tuelinh. He also changed the children to become bigger. However, they were still like children when standing next to him. Then he raised his right hand forward, pushed it to the right, and spoke to the tuelinhs. "Look at those galaxies. When the universe runs out of energy to protect and maintain movement, destructive energy will enter at a breakneck speed. Every life, every galaxy, every planet crumbled and became a brown smoke. This process happens very quickly. As a result, all matter in the universe turns into discrete particles of destructive energy. All create a brown colour that covers the entire universe."

After the image of the universe's destruction that will occur in the future was simulated by Nalas Nalanda, he and the tuelinhs transformed into smaller bodies. They returned to the planet where he was teaching them about the knowledge of energy particles. At that time, a tuelinh asked him, "Father! When you simulated the process of the universe decaying, I did not see the explosive reaction between planets with destructive energy. Why didn't that reaction happen?"

He replied, "My children, the process by which all things in the universe react when attacked by the energy of destruction is the same as the tuelinh reacts with the energy of destruction. It has three cases:

- If the universe runs out of energy, the universe will decay very quickly, and no explosion will occur. The reason is that the universe no longer has the positive power to detonate destructive energy.

- If the universe has planets containing positive heat, they will create explosions when destructive energy enters. However, they quickly decay because that positive heat is not enough to resist the decay of destructive energy. As a result, the universe cannot escape destruction.

- If the universe has a dual energy filter to produce lapis lazuli superparticles of energy, the universe will prevent the attack of destructive energy. In addition, from that dual-energy filter, we will create a destructive energy hibernation mechanism. I call it the particle of fire. It is a type of energy particle formed from the dormancy of destructive energy particles.

Hey, my kids. When I teach this knowledge to you, it means I am teaching the wisdom of enlightenment and truth to my body in the human world. Now, I and all life forms in the universe look forward to a new enlightenment and union between me and my body to transform the single energy filter into a dual energy filter. If successful, I will create a new era for the earth and the universe. If I fail, everything will perish. Because I have a single energy filter, I will not be destroyed, but I will have to rebuild the universe's life from the beginning. Of course, I don't want this to happen."

The tuelinhs contributed ideas to Nalas Nalanda to help his body gain direction to quickly achieve enlightenment and transform the yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter. However, Nalas Nalanda immediately told them, "The methods you have proposed are not suitable and ineffective. To transform into a dual energy filter is very simple with our physical form. That is to merge my energy particles with the five groups of energy particles that make up the universe. It means that I am everything in the universe, and everything in the universe is me. If my body can do that, I will transform from a single energy filter to a dual one."

After Nalas Nalanda preached to the tuelinhs and also imparted wisdom to his body, he returned to his body. That mission is indeed challenging for a human being.

Truong Nalanda asked me, "What was the result?"

I laughed and replied, "Of course, it was successful because he was the incarnation of the first tuelinh. On the night of October 12, 2018, he achieved enlightenment and transformed the yin and yang energy embryo of tuelinh into a dual energy filter. The surprising thing was that that night and the following days, when the teacher had not told anyone about the event, many students saw lapis lazuli super-energy particles moving into them while meditating. After the teacher explained it to them, they understood that he had achieved the first achievement on his practice journey in the human world. The master's wisdom has successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter. Lapis lazuli blue super-energy particles and several other types of super-energy particles are also produced from that energy filter. As a result, all things in the universe are safe and are entering a new phase of prosperity. After that event, he successfully transformed the special enlightened knowledge into knowledge combining the two truths and the smallest energy particle."

Truong Nalanda immediately said, "It's a pity that I couldn't witness his achieving that complete enlightenment. However, I was so lucky to know and learn special enlightenment knowledge from you and from the chapters you rewrote."

I smiled and said to the two Truong Nalanda brothers, "Please look forward to the next interesting and invaluable chapters. The teacher has transformed that special knowledge to help readers easily understand and practice in human life. When people study and practice exactly what the teacher teaches, they will successfully transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters."

Duong Nalanda immediately asked, "So, is the universe no longer in danger of destruction by destructive energy?"

"Yes, when he successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter, the universe became safe and opened a new era of prosperity. However, the tuelinhs will be destroyed if they do not learn and practice according to the teacher's knowledge." I answer.

Chapter Forty

Ancestral Particles

One morning, in the Teacher's office, there were some mentally ill people and a few students listening to the teacher lecture about the soul. When the Teacher preached information related to the soul, the patients felt sleepy and had headaches. A woman immediately asked, "Teacher, I felt very sleepy and had a headache when you analysed the soul. I don't understand why that phenomenon happens. Is that a problem, Teacher?"

He said, "It is normal for people with mental illness and illness. Even when people with normal health hear information about the soul, the universe, and the origin, they also have body reactions. That's because the information gap in each person's soul creates reactions, the gap between the lack or distortion of information in the soul and the abundance of information from the knowledge of the two truths. When a huge amount of information for sustainable development is loaded into each person through listening to a lecture, it will react with the information inside the soul and body of the learner. Reactions only occur when people receive accurate and evolving knowledge of the universe and the soul.

In particular, reactions occur more strongly when learners receive complex information within the energy particle, that is, the knowledge of the energy particle. That's why you have drowsiness and headaches when listening to lectures about the soul and energy particles. You should be happy because it shows that your soul is recoding information so that your soul becomes healthier."

Another woman immediately said, "Teacher, before I met you, I also listened to your lectures on social networks. Because I am not sick, I did not see any reactions, although I also learned about the reactions when listening to your lecture. However, when I heard the teacher lecture directly, I felt hot and had a slight headache. There is a difference between listening to your lecture directly and video lectures. Teacher, why is there such a difference?"

The Teacher replied, "The difference is that when people listen to my lectures directly, the soul inside me practises the production of sustainable energy particles with valuable information. That information moves directly to the learner. You can understand that, from the yin and yang energy embryo of my tuelinh, super-energy particles are produced and transmitted into your soul. However, when you listen to and learn my lectures through books or videos, you receive valuable information for sustainable development. Because of that difference, direct learners will have stronger reactions, and the patient will recover faster than if they read books and listened to my video lectures. These phenomena are related to the mechanism of production and connection of energy particles in the operating mechanism of the law of cause and effect. Later, when you learn about the law of cause and effect, you will understand it."

A man asked the Teacher, "Teacher, I know that in your knowledge, it is mentioned that God is the first tuelinh and the father of all things in the universe. He is also a Buddha because he has attained the unifying Tao of the universe. However, I don't know how he created everything and the universe. Can you explain it to us better?"

The Teacher replied, "So you still need to read all of my knowledge, so you don't understand how everything was born from the first tuelinh. Understanding the origin is essential for every tuelinh practising in the human world. When people do not believe or do not know about their origin, they are like people who have lost their memory. Therefore, they will not have the strength to carry out their spiritual mission in the human world. Having faith and understanding about the origin will help each soul within a person great power to overcome all the tribulations and sufferings in the practice environment. As a result, they will quickly achieve success on their practice journey.

The way the first tuelinh created all things and the universe was an endless journey. The process by which he was born, and then all things in the universe, must be based on some operating mechanisms of ancestral wave-particles, destructive energy particles, and energy particles with negative and positive electric waves. All of this is a tremendous amount of knowledge. Therefore, I cannot explain it in just a few hours or days. You need patience and receive each unit of information in the lectures on energy particles and ancestral wave-particles. It is a journey of cosmic history. For you and everyone to understand the origin of humans, tuelinhs and the universe, you must understand the ancestral particles. The ancestral particle is the starting point for forming life forms in and out of the universe."

One of the students said, "Teacher, even though I have heard you lecture many times about roots and ancestral particles, I am always interested and excited every time you lecture about them. Because every time I listen to your lecture, I understand more secrets about my roots and ancestral particles. It's not just me; many people also feel the same way."

After enjoying the tea, the Teacher said, "Today, I will analyze the ancestral particles in detail. It includes their nature and operating mechanisms. Therefore, please remember what I said; it will help your soul receive information about the truth of the universe's origin. At that time, you will have the power to re-encode information for yin and yang embryos and practice the mechanism of sustainable transformation.

Why do I call it an ancestor particle? – Because from that particle, life forms such as destructive energy, the first tuelinh, all things in the universe are created. In addition, it can be called the source particle.

The ancestral particle is the wave-particle. The wave-particles are green, like the colour of young banana leaves. Wave-particles are many times smaller than the smallest energy particles. The wave-particle is just a tiny round dot.

When the ancestral wave-particles were born in endless space, there were no energy particles, including destructive ones. Annihilation energy particles are born from wave-particles. Then, wave-particles transformed into energy particles with negative and positive electric waves that make up all things in the universe. That is why the wave-particle is called the ancestral particle.

Do you know where the ancestral particle comes from? – It is born from singularities in space. Those singularities are like doors connecting to space containing particles smaller than the smallest energy particles. Ancestral wave-particles were born and moved in spiral orbits from those doors connecting space. Remember, they move in a spiral orbit. Because of this genetic characteristic, all matter and the universe rotate and move in a spiral.

The environment in space at that time had no heat, meaning there was no negative or positive heat. It can be understood that wave-particles are generated and move in an environment without heat.

During my journey of teaching knowledge about energy particles and the two truths, many people asked me about the secrets inside the door of space that generates wave-particles. I answered that humans need another seven million years to verify the smallest energy particles of super-complex matter. Then, I will reveal the truths inside those doors of space. Please try to remember and apply the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy in your life to improve your wisdom. These achievements are proof of what I teach you.

When each wave-particle is created, it does not yet store any information value. However, wave-particles have a great energy value. Energy values become valuable if detonated or converted into different energy particles. The moving process will cause them to generate heat and encode information from the outside environment. The process of encoding data is the process of transforming its nature to become destructive energy and yin and yang energy. To become different types of energy particles, ancestral wave-particles must move in different environments. When moving in different environments, the amount and value of encoded information will determine the characteristics of the type of energy particles they transform into.

Remember, when wave-particles are created and move in an environment without positive or negative heat, they will move straight and in a spiral orbit. They move straight, which means they do not spin around themselves as they move. You can imagine the earth revolving around itself as it moves to create day and night. Compare the planet's movement with the ancestral wave-particles when the wave-particles do not rotate when moving. However, when the ancestral particles move into an environment with negative or positive heat, they will spin around themselves as they move. Because of those two differences, the same wave-particles transform into different types of energy particles when they move into different environments.

The rate at which ancestral wave-particles transform and encode information depends on the environment in which they move:

- In an environment without heat: wave-particles generate heat slowly by movement without the impact of heat generation from the outside atmosphere. Additionally, because they move straight in a heatless environment, the amount of information encoded is small and limited. As a result, the wave-particles are transformed into destructive energy particles.

- In an environment with positive heat, wave-particles generate heat faster during movement and encode more information than in environments without heat or negative heat environments. Because the ancestral particles move in a positive thermal environment, they change more quickly and spin around as they move. Positive heat from the environment causes the wave-particle to generate heat faster, and a spinning mechanism appears. That causes the wave-particles to encode much information and convert them into positive energy particles.

- In an environment with negative heat, The ancestral wave-particles encode more information than in an environment without heat. In addition, the wave-particle rotates as it moves through this medium. At the end of the movement of wave-particles in a negative thermal environment, after moving through many environments, they will transform into harmful energy particles. Moving through environments and encoding information causes harmful energy particles to have different amounts of toxicity."

A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, does it mean that to understand the nature and truth of oneself and other tuelinhs, all things and the energy of destruction, the people must understand the ancestral particle?"

The teacher replied, "That's right. To people and tuelinhs fully understand those three secrets, everyone must understand the knowledge of the smallest energy particle. However, everyone who wants to understand the smallest particles must understand the ancestral particles because different types of matter are formed in and outside the universe from the ancestral wave-particles. Through ancestral particles that are born and move in different environments, they will create different types of energy particles with different mechanisms and natures of movement. From there, we will understand the cause and nature of all things in and out of the universe. Of course, to thoroughly understand all the secrets of all things, everyone must understand the nature and operating mechanism of each type of energy particle.

Chapter Forty-One

Destructive Energy Particles and Their Intelligence

After the lunch break, everyone drank tea together and waited for the teacher to give a new lesson. A student said to everyone, "Do you know why you must learn about ancestral particles when you want to understand the truth of everything in and out of the universe? – The ancestral particle has not yet encoded information, and the energy state inside the wave-particle has not been generated. However, after the wave-particles move into different environments, they will change their nature, and the value of the encoded information will also differ. The transformation process of all material structures within and outside the universe, intelligence and humans has made understanding them difficult. Tuelinhs and humans cannot understand the nature of all things without understanding their past, present and future. To understand the secrets of all things in and out of the universe, we must decode the truth of the original particle. The original particle here is the ancestral particle. Because the ancestral particle has not changed its nature and encoded the information inside, it is the ideal start to decipher the truth of all things.

In addition, there is another secret of everything that the teacher has taught many times: that information forms into energy particles. That means that different energy particles are created depending on the amount of varying information values. For example, suppose a wave-particle moves into a positive thermal environment and encodes much developmental information. In that case, the wave-particle will transform into a positive energy particle with developmental properties. If the wave-particle moves into a negative thermal environment and encodes the missing information, the wave-particle will transform into a negative energy particle. Therefore, if we understand the truth of ancestral particles before they transform into the smallest energy particles and larger physical structures, we will understand all the secrets of all things in and out of space."

One of the patients said, "When I listened to you and the teacher talk about ancestral particles, I understood that ancestral particles are particles born from singularities; they have not yet stored information inside and have not yet transformed their nature when born. After moving through different environments, they change their nature and transform into different types of energy particles. The differences in encoded information values constitute different types of energy particles. In particular, information is the inner secret of energy particles. From different information values, different types of energy particles are formed."

The teacher interrupted everyone and expressed surprise, "It is wonderful that you have understood and remembered essential knowledge about ancestral particles.

By understanding the knowledge of the ancestral wave-particle to the smallest energy particle, everyone will have the wisdom of the two truths to decode and understand all the truths of all things in and out of the universe, tuelinhs and people. Also, when interacting in different environments, people will quickly understand the value of negative and positive information. That is the value of understanding the knowledge of the two truths with the smallest energy particle.

This morning, I analysed the knowledge about ancestral particles. Therefore, this afternoon, I will continue to help you understand the destructive energy particles."

One person asked the teacher, "Teacher, why are they called annihilation energy particles and not by another name?"

The teacher said, "Why? The name doesn't matter. It is essential to understand their nature and all things. To understand why they are called destructive energy particles, you must know that all things in the universe today include matter inside and outside the universe. The universe consists of countless galaxies arranged from the inside out to form a giant cosmic. All the matter inside the giant cosmic is called matter inside the universe. Outside the universe is endless space. In that space, ancestral wave-particles and destructive energy particles exist.

Matter inside and outside the universe has the following differences:

- Matter outside the universe is the destructive energy particles transformed from ancestral particles. The life form of the annihilating energy particle is the first type of energy particle that the wave-particle transforms into. Annihilating particles do not have a mechanism to connect to form larger physical structures, so they exist in the structure of the smallest discrete particles.

- Matter is energy particles with positive and negative electric waves inside the universe. They are formed from the transformation of ancestral particles after the appearance of the life form of annihilating energy particles. From a magical yin and yang energy embryo, it undergoes a process of production and connection to create a Big Bang. Then came the appearance of the first tuelinh and all things in the universe as they are today. Material structures in the universe all have mechanisms of connection and production, so they have evolved to become material structures more extensive than the smallest particles.

When destructive energy particles enter the material structures of the universe, those structures will disintegrate and become destructive energy particles. They will no longer be physical structures with connections between the smallest particles. Besides, they no longer have negative or positive electric waves. The reason is the difference in information value and internal energy state of annihilation particles and particles of the universe. When the tuelinhs and all things in the universe are decomposed and destroyed by particles outside the universe, they are called destructive energy particles. You need to understand that, to understand the nature of all things and the annihilating energy particles, all tuelinhs must incarnate as humans to practice in the human world. The tuelinh's process of cultivating suffering in the human world is to create reactions between the tuelinh's energy particles and the energy of destruction. As a result, the first tuelinh decoded the truth of all types of particles in and out of the universe. Then, he transformed his yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter to produce super-energy particles."

A woman asked the teacher, "So, the particle of destruction is the first child of the ancestral particle. Is that right, teacher?"

The teacher replied, "That is right. Wave-particles are the source of destructive energy particles. You can understand that the annihilation energy particle is the first child of the ancestral particle. The next child is the energy particles with negative and positive electric waves that make up the universe. Understanding the origin of the formation of destructive energy particles will help tuelinhs and humans appreciate their nature. That is extremely important in decoding the truth about the most dangerous toxin in and out of the universe.

The journey of wave-particles transforming into destructive energy particles is as follows: When each wave-particle is generated from singular points, it moves straight and does not rotate around itself in a heatless environment. It can be seen that the living environment of wave-particles at that time was an environment without heat. Because there is no heat, the wave-particles need much time to move in a spiral orbit. The moving process causes the wave-particles to generate heat and transform into intellectual wave code fibres. Wave-particle transformation is the process of storing information from the outside environment in the wave-particle. After a long movement and transformation, the wave-particles have transformed into intellectual wave code fibres and retain data on their journey. As a result, the wave-particle is transformed into a destructive energy particle. Thus, destructive energy particles are formed by generating wave-particles and moving in a spiral orbit in a heatless environment.

Initially, a few particles of destructive energy were born, but countless particles of destructive energy were formed after an endless period. The remarkable development of annihilation energy has created a new form of life in infinite space after the life form of wave-particles. The destructive energy particles have covered a large area and are constantly growing by transforming wave-particles into new annihilation energy particles. Thus, the life form of the annihilating energy particle was formed after the life form of the wave-particle, which is the product of the wave-particle. However, there is a difference between wave-particles and destructive energy particles: annihilation energy particles have valuable information stored inside, while wave-particles do not yet encode data. That shows that there has been an evolution and development of the structure and intelligence of destructive energy particles from wave-particles."

A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, what is the difference in particle structure between wave-particles and annihilation energy particles?"

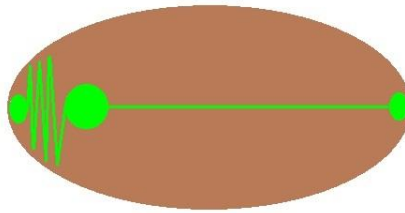

After looking at everyone, the teacher used a pen to draw the structure of annihilation energy particles on the board. At that time, everyone looked attentively at the teacher and the images he had drawn. When he finished drawing, the teacher let everyone look at it without saying a word. After waiting a while, the teacher began to lecture:

"The wave-particle is just a tiny green dot, and no information value is stored there. The wave-particle has yet to generate an energy state. You can understand that wave-particles are the original embryos that upgrade into destructive energy particles and then electric wave energy.

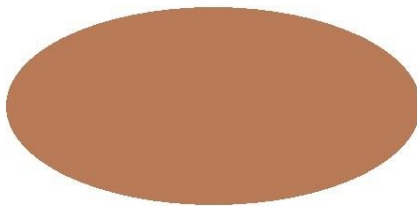

That is the structure of the annihilation energy particle. The annihilation energy particle comprises three parts: the intellectual wave code fibre, the energy state and the shape of the particle. The transformation from wave-particles forms the three parts of an annihilation energy particle. As follows:

- Intellectual wave code fibre: the intelligence wave code fibre has the same green colour as the green colour of the wave-particles, which is the same green colour as young banana leaves. The reason is that the wave-particles have not been completely transformed in an environment without heat. That causes the intellectual wave code of the annihilation energy particle to have many energy states that have not yet been born. It can be understood that because the wave-particles have not been completely transformed, they are called destructive energy particles. The intellectual wave code of the annihilation energy particle is stored in the information value of the external environment of the wave-particle's transformation process. It is where the functions, tasks and nature of destructive energy particles are defined.

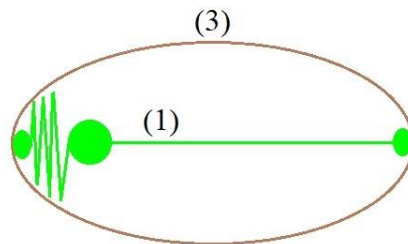

The structure of the annihilation energy particle consists of three parts:

- (1): The intellectual wave code fibre is banana green
- (2): The energy state is brown
- (3): The shape of the particle is oval

(1)

- Shape of the particle: the annihilation energy particle is oval. It is a protective film for the destructive energy particles formed during the wave-particles' transformation into the intellectual wave code fibres of the annihilation energy particles. When the wave-particle generates heat due to moving in a non-thermal environment, the wave-particle transforms and forms an intellectual wave code fibre. That transformation process forms a covering for the energy particle.

- Energy state: the energy state of the annihilation energy particle is brown. The brown colour is the state of decay inside when the destructive energy particle has no mechanism to connect with other annihilation energy particles to circulate and balance the electric waves. Therefore, the heat generated from the intellectual wave code rots and becomes toxic to the destructive energy particle. In addition, the poison of the annihilation particles causes disintegration to all physical structures within the universe and tuelinhs. The energy state of the annihilating particle is the heat generated from point number two in the particle's intellectual wave code. It quickly becomes boiling because it has no mechanism to bond with other energetic particles.

The structure of destructive energy particles is similar to that of energy particles with positive and negative electric waves. However, annihilation energy particles do not have a mechanism to bond between particles to develop into larger physical structures. In addition, because they are born in an environment without heat, they do not have a mechanism to spin around themselves when moving. Those are two significant differences in the annihilation energy particles that everyone must know because, from this difference, everyone will understand their intellectual nature."

Another student immediately said to the teacher, "Teacher, please teach us about the wisdom of destructive energy particles."

He said, "Wisdom is the informational value encoded within and constitutes the essence of all things. Therefore, to understand the nature of all things, you must understand their Wisdom." Then, the teacher drew a description of the intellectual wave code of the destructive energy particle on the board.

The structure of the intellectual wave code of the destructive energy particle

"Look closely at the image above; it is the structure of the intellectual wave code fibre of the destructive energy particle. The nature and information value of this type of energy particle are all contained in the intellectual wave code. Have you understood their intelligence after observing the wisdom wave code of the annihilating particles?"

Everyone replied, "It is incomprehensible, teacher. Observing and seeing all things, people, tuelinhs, even the wisdom wave code is just seeing. It cannot help tuelinhs and humans understand their wisdom. Therefore, observing the intellectual wave code of destructive energy particles cannot help us understand their intelligence."

The teacher laughed and said, "That's right. Seeing and knowing cannot help tuelinhs, and humans understand the wisdom of all things. To understand and have knowledge of all things, they must go through the process of reaction and interaction of all things over a long period. That reaction process will reveal the nature of all things. The next is practices to verify the nature through the phenomena of the reactions. That is how my tuelinh has understood everything and built a sustainable path of transformation for myself and all tuelinhs.

To understand the intelligence of the destructive energy particle, we must decode the information values in the particle's intelligence wave code as follows:

- The structure of the wisdom wave code fibre: the wisdom wave code fibre of the destructive energy particles is similar to that of the wisdom wave code fibre of the negative and positive energy particles. It consists of three points (points No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3) and two segments (vibration code segment and intellectual fibre segment):

- + Point number (1): That is the information collection point. That is a part of the incompletely changed wave-particle of the transformation process. Through this point, it stores all information during movement. In addition, it has the critical task of receiving vibration signals of other types of energy particles and matter.

- + Point number (2): That is the ideology point. That is the largest part of the wave-particle that has not yet completely transformed. Through this point, it synthesizes all stored information and encodes it into functions and tasks for the destructive energy particle. It can be understood that the ideological point is the intellectual convergence point of point (1) and the vibration code. In addition, at point (2), the particle's heat is generated and forms the essence of the destructive energy particle.

+ Point number (3): That is the information transmission point. That is also a part of the wave-particle that is not wholly transformed in the final stage of the transformation into an annihilation particle. Through this point, it is responsible for transmitting information to form a mechanism to link data with other destructive energy particles. However, it is not a mechanism that links annihilation energy particles to form a physical structure larger than the smallest energy particle. In addition, through this point, the excess heat in the particle will be discharged from itself.

+ Vibrational code: From point (1) to point (2). This segment stores the entire information value of the wave-particle's transformation as it moves. Because the moving medium of the wave-particle is an environment without heat, the wave-particle only changes into a few vibrations. The rhythms of the vibration code store all information about the atmosphere in which they move, such as images of wave-particles, images of other destructive energy particles, and the movement process itself. The information is simple, and the environment is heat-free. The information in the vibration code is converted into functions and tasks for the energy particles at the ideological point of the intellectual wave code strand.

+ Intellectual strand: From point (2) to point (3). That is the section that implements the functions and tasks specified in ideological point number (2). It is the interactions and actions that come with particles and other matter.

- Through the structure of the wisdom wave code fibre of the destructive energy particle, we decode the wisdom of the annihilation energy particle as follows:

- + The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code of the annihilation particle is limited. It only stores information about wave-particle life forms, destructive energy particles, and heatless living environments. The reason is that this type of particle is the first evolutionary product of wave-particles, so there is no richness in the environment and other life forms. That means that annihilation particles encode information and have more intelligence than wave-particles.

- + Because the intellectual wave code of the destructive energy particle has yet to be thoroughly transformed, it creates toxins in this particle. It causes the annihilation particles to quickly gain excess heat as they move and risk self-detonation if the extra heat is not promptly removed from the particle. The excess heat of the annihilation particle will cause physical structures and other energy particles to rot and decay. Therefore, the excess heat of annihilation particles is the heat that causes death to all types of matter in and outside the universe.

It can be understood that the intelligence of annihilating particles is a type of intelligence that lacks information because it is formed in an environment without heat. Environmental limitations prevent them from completely transforming, so their intellectual wave code remains a wave-particle. The only difference from a waveparticle is that it stores a certain amount of information and forms the structure of an energy particle with three constituent elements (intellectual wave code, energy state, and particle shape). Because destructive energy particles are formed in an environment without negative or positive heat, they do not have a mechanism to rotate around themselves when moving. In addition, they do not have a mechanism to link with other destructive energy particles to develop into larger physical structures and balance the energy state within them. These constitute the intellectual nature of the annihilation energy particles. Those natures differ from the nature of energy particles with negative and positive electric waves that make up life forms within the universe.”

After a while for everyone to think about what was said, the teacher continued his lecture, “Through the structure and intellectual nature of the destructive energy particles, everyone will realize the positive value and the negativity that this type of particle brings to life forms in the universe. However, to help you thoroughly understand the values of this type of particle, I will analyze it so you can understand more about their movement process.

As the destructive energy particles increased in number, their life forms became crowded and dense. Additionally, they quickly become overheated internally because there is no spinning and bonding mechanism. This process exposes them to the risk of being detonated from within them. As a natural result, when destructive energy particles with excess heat gather in dense density, they are blasted by the rapidly increasing heat in the area where they gather. That marks a change in the habitat of wave and demolition particles, which is the appearance of a positive thermal environment at the explosion of annihilation energy particles. After the first explosion, more similar explosions appeared. That means that small spaces containing positive heat from explosions also appear more. Besides areas with positive heat, environments with their opposite heat somehow appear, which are negative heat environments.

When the living space of the destructive particles appears, two more living environments are the environment with negative heat and positive heat, which promotes the diverse development of life. In areas with positive heat, wave-particles move in and transform into energy particles with positive electric waves. Conversely, in regions with negative heat, the annihilation particles discharge excess internal heat, preventing the risk of detonation. In later lectures, I will continue to analyse this process when discussing yin and yang energy.

From the structure, intellectual nature and movement of destructive energy particles, I show you the positive and negative values they bring to the life forms that make up the universe. Of course, you need to understand the intelligence of the groups of energy particles that make up the universe, tuelinhs and humans in the following lessons to understand the intelligence and nature of destructive energy particles thoroughly. Now, we continue to explore the values of the annihilation particle:

- Positive value of destructive particles:

- + The heat from the explosion of annihilation energy particles is life for energy particles with negative or positive electric waves. It can be affirmed that when the destructive energy particles are detonated, they will bring life to all things in the universe and tuelinhs.

+ The destructive energy particles detonated by the rapid heat generation process from within them and from the outside environment are the value that tuelinhs and life forms in the universe can exploit. The tuelinhs can take advantage of this weakness of the annihilation particles to detonate them and use that heat to serve the sustainable development and transformation of the tuelinhs and all things in the universe.

- Negative value of destructive particles:

+ An environment with negative heat or energy structures, material structures in the universe with negative heat, is ideal for destructive energy particles to release excess heat. That is the problem that causes the destruction of countless tuelinhs and physical structures in the universe because the life forms of the universe are made up of negative energy particles.

+ Excess heat is emitted from destructive energy particles, causing decay and destruction of physical structures and tuelinhs in the universe.

In addition, we need to understand that environments and material structures with intense positive heat will detonate destructive energy particles. That means that positive heat is a weakness and a threat to the survival of the annihilation particles. On the contrary, environments and material structures with negative heat are ideal for destructive particles to cool themselves and eliminate excess heat. That is why destructive energy always moves to an atmosphere with cold heat and negative waves to save itself by eliminating excess heat and cooling it.

That is valuable knowledge about destructive energy particles that you must learn and apply to life in the human world. If you practice the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles in life, the destructive energy will catch the signal and move into your soul. They will control and disintegrate the soul structure. As a result, the soul suffers from information disorder and manifests itself in many types of mental illness and pathology. On the contrary, if you practice producing positive energy particles, the soul will absorb and detonate the destructive particles to produce sustainable energy particles. In future lessons, I will analyze the mechanism of absorbing and blasting annihilation particles."

One student said, "Teacher, this is wonderful. I feel thrilled and lucky to learn from you. Each of your lectures contains invaluable information to decode the truth of all things. In the lesson about destructive energy particles, too, I have encoded a large amount of true information about destructive energy particles. I feel like I have more extreme power to practice the production of sustainable energy particles through the four forms of life."

The Teacher smiled and said, "Each lesson will provide you with different informational values and nature about all things in and out of the universe. Not missing any lectures, reading and listening to each lecture many times will help you effectively encode this truth information into the yin and yang energy embryo. As a result, you have the power of information to overcome suffering and tribulations in the human world. From there, the achievement of attaining the unified Tao of the universe will come closer and closer to you."

Chapter Forty-Two

The Appearance of the First Yin and Yang Energy Particles in the Universe

The moonlight of the full moon night blended into the lights around the ancient Bodhi tree and the Buddha temple grounds behind that tree. That magical light and the monks chanting in the temple echoed throughout the surrounding space. It makes the teacher's students quiet, as if they are immersed in the past of their past lives. Still in that position, but no longer the Bodhi tree where Buddha sat to practice meditation and asceticism. Another Bodhi tree has replaced it. However, until now, it has been an ancient Bodhi tree with a large canopy and widespread shade all around. The teacher and his students had been at the temple and the Bodhi tree since afternoon, where Prince Siddhartha practised and became Buddha. Not far away is the river where the prince bathed in the river on a whole moon night and then became Buddha. That is the first day of a ten-day journey to visit places in India and Nepal, which are considered essential milestones in the Buddha's practice journey.

The prayers inside the temple blended with the moonlight, electric lights, and the winds. They seem comforting and lull the teacher's students to sleep after a journey of practice and hardships in this human life. Some were meditating, while others sat next to the teacher and looked up at the sky. Concentration on meditation and gazing at the night sky made the sounds of the monks' prayers no longer in the minds of the teacher and his students. Instead, past life memories and scenes from outer space are present in their minds. The teacher and students had been sitting for more than two hours since it started to get dark. It is an autumn evening in northeastern India, in Gaya, Bihar state. At that time, a student immediately told the teacher, "It is already past 7 pm. Will we continue to sit under the Bodhi tree?" The teacher said, "Sit and relax here. Tonight, I will teach you the truths and secrets of the first yin and yang energy particle after the annihilation energy particle life form is formed."

Groups of people from all over India and other countries come to visit and pray at the Buddha's temple, Mahabodhi. They walked around the Bodhi tree and the temple many times. They think it is to show gratitude to Buddha and hope to have more luck. The teacher and his students observed many groups of people coming and going, all having a peaceful and relaxed mood when coming to worship and paying tribute to Buddha. When the lights were turned on, the groups of people were no longer crowded. After that, the groups of people left the temple grounds. Only a few people still meditate and worship Buddha at the Bodhi tree and in the temple. At that time, the teacher told the students to wake up the other students who were meditating to listen to the teacher talk about the knowledge of energy particles. During this tour, everyone was excited to hear the teacher teach special knowledge about energy particles. They were looking forward to those lectures because he told them he would teach them special knowledge before he left.

After that, the students sat around the teacher. They all sat under the canopy of an ancient Bodhi tree. He told them, "Look at the sky. Don't let the leaves and stars obstruct your view. Please look into cosmic space with your intelligence and soul. That means that you should transform into the smallest particles of energy to move and visit the worldview of endless space in the universe. Now, please close your eyes so that your mind and soul officially become the smallest particles of energy in space. Let my teachings become the light of wisdom that guides you to move and explore the worldview in the endless space of the universe. Please focus on receiving my teachings and instructions to make this journey of receiving special knowledge effective. Please relax and be at peace as you undertake this journey of discovering knowledge because I am always with you and protecting you in your journey back to the universe's past.

Hey guys, you are moving in the space of destructive energy particles. The space and time you see are not the present but the past. That was the past before the yin and yang energy of the universe created the Big Bang. Next to you is me; I am teaching and analyzing knowledge for you. Around you is a world of countless brown destructive energy particles and wave-particles that are moving to transform into new annihilation energy particles. The destructive energy particles are not aware of your presence, so please feel free to explore their world.

We are entering deep into the central area of the life space of the destructive energy particle. You feel tiny and constantly move at a safe distance in that space. You project your mind's vision from the central area to the surrounding directions, above and below. There is only a presence of brown particles of destructive energy and green wave-particles. The wave-particles are like tiny lights that decorate an endless brown colour. Exciting and strange emotions are present in your mind. It is magnificent and unknown compared to the human world and the universe. However, your feelings quickly turned to boredom because there was no presence of life forms other than wave-particles and destructive energy particles. That feeling of boredom is similar to the energy particles of annihilation after they are born from wave-particles. They move and observe their world for long and endless periods without reacting in their habitat. You should feel lucky not to live in that dull space. You are fortunate to be like energy particles visiting and exploring their lives.

Look, guys! An explosion just happened. The red sparks of the blast were disappearing. Let's move there quickly to observe what happened. Please stand outside to watch; we do not go into the space of that explosion so as not to affect their reactions. Do you feel anything? That is the heat radiating from the area of the blast; it makes us feel like we are standing next to a fire. Heat makes our bodies hotter. Look, the surrounding destructive energy particles are also changing their state from brown to fire red. It looked like they were about to explode after the heat of the explosion hit them.

Miraculously, wave-particles move into that hot space. They move and spin around them. It's so beautiful when they change from green to red, like the colour of fire. They constantly rotate and change the nature of the wave-particles. It's unbelievable what we're seeing. Unlike destructive particles, some wave-particles have been transformed into new energy particles. Those energy particles radiate heat. What do you see? The space of the explosion is no longer hot. The main reason is that the wave-particles have absorbed the heat from the blast to convert it into energy particles that can rotate. Those are the first positive energy particles to appear in the space of destructive energy. The first positive energy particles are formed when wave-particles move inside the explosion space and absorb enough heat for the transformation process. In addition, I also saw wave-particles moving into the spatial centre of the explosion and detonated by absorbing too much heat. Did you notice anything? That heat no longer existed after the blast occurred. The reason is that the heat from the explosion provided some wave-particles to convert into positive energy particles, and other destructive energy particles absorbed the heat. The positive energy particles were detonated when the destruction particles approached them, and heat appeared again. However, the surrounding annihilation particles have absorbed all the heat from the explosions between the annihilation particles and the positive energy particles. It's a pity that the first positive energy particles that appeared were completely detonated. The battle for survival in the space of destructive energy particles is starting to become fierce. That promises exciting things in the survival of life forms after the appearance of the first positive energy particles after the life form of annihilation particles.

Look, there's a different reaction near where the explosion happened a moment ago. The particles of destructive energy that were glowing fire-red had already turned brown. Let's go there and see what's going on. Do you feel cold? This area contains cold heat. That is why the destructive energy particles are cooled and brown again after being hot and fire-red. The brown energy particles suffering from excess heat rushed into the negative heat space to cool themselves again. The negative heat space may be the place that saves the destructive energy particles from being detonated from their heating process.

Everything was as if nothing had happened. Everything returns to the brown state adorned with the green colours of wave-particles. The reactions occurred so quickly that we needed more time to understand them, so let's keep moving. Please move with me. I'm trying to find areas where many destructive energy particles gather in large numbers to see what happens to them - observing what happens before the explosion will help you better understand annihilation energy particles and energy particles with negative and positive electric waves.

I saw an area where many destructive energy particles were crowded together, and there were unusual signs. Please move with me. Please observe what happens to them from outside the area where they are crowded. What do you see? The energy state inside the annihilation energy particles is different from the annihilation particles outside; that is, they are experiencing an uncontrolled increase in heat. Their colour is becoming redder and no longer brown. A reaction is about to happen, and you will observe them closely with me. The particles of destructive energy vibrated very strongly, and the fire-red colour of heat became more evident. Around that area, there are wave-particles that are still moving. Those wave-particles seem to sense the heat that is abnormally generated from the annihilation particles, so they try to move forward.

The destructive energy particles are losing the ability to control themselves as they constantly vibrate while gathering in numbers more incredible than the surrounding density. Boom! The annihilation particles were detonated when the excess heat inside them increased dramatically. The annihilation particles around the explosion absorb the heat after the blast and become excess heat inside. Besides, the wave-particles moving into the hot area have been detonated. There were wave-particles that, when moving into the central zone of the explosion, were blasted by absorbing too much heat. The explosion's heat is dissipated as it radiates into the surrounding environment and is absorbed by other destructive energy particles. Some wave-particles move near outside the rotating hot space and transform into positive energy particles. Thus, there is a difference when wave-particles move into a hot area: when moving into an area with too much heat, the wave-particles will be detonated; on the contrary, when they move into an area with enough heat for the transformation process, they transform into positive energy particles. Positive energy particles radiate heat and always rotate around themselves.

In addition, near the explosion area of the destructive particles, a cold space appears. That is most evident when the annihilation particles experiencing excess heat from the explosion are cooled again after moving into that space. In particular, some wave-particles are moving through the outer area of the hot zone and are not detonated nor converted into positive energy particles. They continue to move in a space without heat before moving into a space with cold heat. Surprisingly, they were transformed into harmful energy particles. These negative energy particles are similar to positive as they spin around themselves. However, they rotate in the opposite direction compared to the rotational orbits of positive energy particles. Do you see anything? Wave-particles move into cold thermal space but do not change into harmful or destructive energy particles. Thus, to transform into harmful energy particles, the wave-particles must first be transformed by hot heat and then absorb cold heat to complete the transformation into harmful energy particles. It is not easy to transform wave-particles into harmful energy particles. The same goes for positive energy particles; they must absorb enough heat to transform into positive particles.

Do you see anything? The destructive particles have already detonated the newly formed positive energy particles. In addition, annihilation particles with excess heat continue to be cooled as they move into the cold zone. In particular, negative energy particles stimulate destructive energy particles that come into contact with them. The attraction from the harmful energy particles helps the energy particles of the annihilation quickly remove excess heat. As a result, harmful energy particles have turned into destructive energy particles. Unlike the destructive energy particles produced from wave-particles, the toxic energy particles transformed into annihilation particles only have excess heat inside and lose their ability to spin.

The reaction process creates explosions of destructive energy particles, creating environments where heat and positive and negative energy particles continuously occur. However, they are quickly erased by detonation reactions and assimilated by destructive energy particles. The thermal environment is also absorbed and balanced back into a non-thermal environment by destructive energy particles. Such a process repeats endlessly. As a result, the number of destructive energy particles continuously increases over time. Even so, the appearance of positive and negative energy particles has marked the presence of new life in the living space of destructive energy particles and wave-particles. The appearance of the smallest energetic particles with electric waves has challenged the destructive particle life form. It promises to open a new era in the evolution of wave-particles.

Please return to reality and open your eyes to feel the cool breeze under the moonlight, under the canopy of this ancient Bodhi tree. The journey of discovering the knowledge of the first yin and yang energy particle helps you feel full of energy in your body and soul.

Hey guys, through this journey of discovery about the appearance of the first yin and yang energy particles in the universe, I want you to understand that:

- Destructive energy particles will be detonated when they absorb heat from the outside environment and the increase in heat inside.

- Positive energy particles have the nature of radiating heat. It is a weapon to detonate destructive energy particles.

- Negative energy particles have the nature of absorbing heat from the outside environment. Therefore, it causes destructive energy particles to penetrate negative particles so that excess heat can be effectively discharged.

- Positive and negative energy particles have opposite rotation mechanisms and orbits. Therefore, it is ideal for them to produce new energy particles when they bond with each other.

- Negative energy particles have an absorbent nature, and positive energy particles have an exothermic nature. Therefore, it is ideal for them to balance their energy state when they are linked together.

Please relax and feel what you have received from the journey of transforming into energy particles to see the formation of the universe's first yin and yang energy particles. Tomorrow night, we will continue to come back here, and I will continue to teach you about the yin and yang energy that makes up the universe."

Chapter Forty-Three

The Difference Between Yin and Yang Energy Particles Formed from Wave-particles

The night dew drops of autumn still linger on the grass and leaves in the garden. The Teacher was still looking at the trees and grass in the slowly rising rays of dawn. The climate and scenery of this holy land, where Prince Siddhartha became Buddha, are very familiar; it is similar to his hometown. After the first day and the lecture about the appearance of the first positive and negative energy particles in the universe, everyone seemed to enjoy their sleep because it was a day of movement and filled the soul with much information. The Teacher is the same. After each new lecture to his students, he initially felt a little tired, but then his body quickly became healthier. Usually, he sleeps late and wakes up later because he drinks a lot of tea while lecturing. However, after the first lecture under the Bodhi tree and after a night of sleeping at a nearby hotel, he woke up very early. The freshness and airiness of the hotel's garden and the strange attraction of the place where Buddha attained enlightenment made him get up early and enjoy a rare moment. The Teacher thinks that he doesn't know when he will have the opportunity to continue returning to visit the places associated with places where Prince Siddhartha practised and preached enlightened knowledge. Therefore, He tries to enjoy this moment to feel the past and hardships in Buddha's life through the places where he practised and taught knowledge. Before this trip, every night, his tuelinh brought him back to the memories of his previous life, his enlightenment life associated with the relics here. Memories increasingly appear inside the Teacher's silver hair, the brain of a simple person like everyone else. That's why he became more and more thoughtful as the years passed. It is the contemplation of a small person shouldering great missions and responsibilities. It is the contemplation of past experiences. However, the students still see the Teacher smiling when talking and lecturing.

Some students came over and enjoyed the quiet space with the Teacher. Then, a student immediately asked, "Teacher, from your lecture last night, I think that the information value stored in the positive and negative energy particles formed from wave-particles is different from the negative and positive particles formed from yin and yang energy embryos. Is that so, Teacher?"

The Teacher said, "That's right. It is different because the environment in which they were born is different. The interactions and reactions of matters in different environments are also different. From those differences, the value of the information stored in the yin and yang energy particles is also different. To understand this issue, I will talk about the difference between yin and yang energy particles generated from wave-particles this morning. Next, when you listen to the lecture about yin and yang energy particles formed from yin and yang energy embryos, you will thoroughly understand this issue."

After the teacher and students enjoyed breakfast with traditional Indian dishes, everyone sat together in the hotel's massive living room. At that time, from his room, the teacher brought tea and tea-making utensils to brew. He brought them from his hometown to enjoy tea's astringent and sweet taste every time he talked or lectured to his students. Afterwards, everyone enjoyed cups of Vietnamese tea together at this relic. It is a crystallization between the past and present, between the essence of two countries. Everyone enjoyed cups of hot tea while listening to the teacher talk about his past life memories related to the relics that everyone will visit. Those are stories of an arduous journey to finding enlightenment and spreading enlightened wisdom when he attained enlightenment. One unique thing is that when talking about his memories, he always includes the knowledge of the smallest energy particle as evidence and as a standard to help people have a deeper insight into the knowledge of enlightenment. Those are the particular points that the students learned when returning to India.

While engrossed in telling a story, the teacher suddenly stopped and observed a whiteboard in the living room. The teacher immediately told the students to bring that board closer to where everyone was sitting. Then, the teacher told everyone, "You must understand the knowledge of the smallest energy particle thoroughly. Understanding them is not just knowing and seeing them but understanding the nature and information values within their intellectual wave code. Last night, you understood the journey and information values related to forming the first yin and yang energy particles. Now I will analyse those yin and yang energy particles more deeply."

Wave Particles Transform into Yin and Yang Energy Particles

Then, the teacher drew the image of the wisdom wave code of positive and negative energy particles on the board.

The teacher continued to teach, "Please observe these two positive and negative wisdom wave codes. It would be best if you approached new thinking; that is, when talking about particles, we must speak of the inner intelligence fibre because the intelligence fibre is the essence of energy particles. With this change of thinking and approach, you will have a deep approach and understanding of the nature of intelligence and information of all types of energy particles in and out of the universe, before and after the Big Bang that created the universe. In addition, when you analyze and address all issues in and outside the universe, you must use the information stored in the intellectual fibre and the data of the external environment when subjects interact and react to each other. That is how to use the mind dharma to understand the past, present and future, the internal and external environment of each information unit and each subject from the intellectual fibre to all things in and outside the universe. Later, I will lecture on the mechanism of production and connection of cause and effect particles - the smallest energy particles, and then you will understand the mind dharma from more multi-dimensional perspectives. You must use information in the movement of the mechanism of production - connection and the mind dharma to understand the nature and truth of all things in and outside the universe, tuelinh and humans.

When we look at the structure of the positive and negative energy particles produced from wave-particles, we see that they also have three parts:

The intellectual wave code thread.

The particle's energy state.

The particles' structure is similar to the structure of the destructive energy particles and the yin and yang energy particles born from the yin and yang energy embryo. If we do not analyse their nature, information value and movement mechanisms, we only see that these particles have different colours. It is the brown state of destructive energy particles; positive energy particles have white, green, fire-red, and yellow; negative energy particles have grey, black, and blood-red colours. Seeing the colours of the smallest particles and complex and super-complex physical structures is possible through meditation. However, meditation does not bring insight into nature and truth. To understand and reach enlightenment, one must go through a long-term process of interaction and reaction. That is the experience of suffering and tribulations in the practice environment in the human world. Therefore, when you can meditate, it is not an advantage to help you understand the worldview of the universe and everything. On the contrary, it is disadvantageous for you because you are always influenced by it and need help developing your intelligence and achieving thinking according to the mechanism of production - connection and the mind attached to the information.

We continue to look at the structure of the intellectual wave code of those positive and negative energy particles. They also have three points and two segments, like the structure of the annihilating energy particles and the particles born from the yin and yang energy embryo later. However, they are different from the intellectual wave code of the annihilation particle:

- The intellectual wave code of the destructive energy particle: the rhythm of the vibration code (from point 1 to point 2) is few and simple; The intellect fibre segment (from point 2 to point 3) is always on the neutral line.

- The intellectual wave code of positive and negative energy particles: the number of beats of the vibration code is more and more complex; the intelligence fibre segment is located at the negative pole for negative energy particles and at the positive pole for positive energy particles.

Do you know why there is a difference in the intellect fibre segment? That is because the annihilation particles are formed in an environment without heat, so the wisdom wave code fibre has no negative or positive heat. While positive energy particles are formed in environments with positive heat, negative energy particles are formed in environments with negative heat. That is why the wisdom fibres of the yin and yang particles differ from the energy particles of destruction. At this point, you will have questions: why does the environment have the power to change the intellectual structure of energy particles? The environment can change the structure and nature of the smallest particle and all things in and out of the universe. Why? The answer is simple because the environment is information. Information is encoded into the intellectual wave code fibre and nature changes. So, what is the environment? It is an image of things existing and reacting to each other, sounds, language, and actions. The environment includes the internal environment and external environment. As follows:

- External environment: is all things outside and the interactions with all things outside each subject. For the intellectual wave code fibre, the energy state, the particle's membrane, and other external matter are the external environment. For the smallest energy particle, any other energy particles, other physical structures, and their reactions are the external environment. For a tuelinh, any system other than himself is the external environment; it includes the human form. When that tuelinh incarnates as a human, it includes material structures that are not itself. For humans, the external environment is other people and other things. For a country, other countries are the external environment. For Earth, other planets are the external environment. The external physical structures of the universe are the external environment, which are annihilation particles and wave-particles.

- Internal environment: the existence and interaction of physical structures within each subject. For the cosmic, all internal material structures are the internal environment. For the Earth, all matter that exists in the Earth is the internal environment. For a country, all the people and materials inside that country are the internal environment. The body, soul and wisdom are the internal environment of a human being. For tuelinhs, the energy particles inside are the internal environment. The energy state and intellectual fibre are the internal environments for the smallest energy particle. The information values stored in the intellectual wave-code fibre are the internal environment of the intellectual wave code. For each stored information value, the images, sounds, interactions and reactions of things are the internal environment.

The internal and external environments are always closely linked; their nature is the mind dharma. They constantly interact and react to form a production and connection mechanism for the movement and development of causal particles from ancestral wave-particles to become countless life forms in and outside the universe today. These two environments always exist within each other and are inseparable. That means that when you see that the intellectual wave-code fibre is the internal environment of the energy particle, it means that the intelligent wave-code fibre is the external environment of each information value in it. In particular, when you see that each information value in the intellectual wave-code fibre is the internal environment of the intelligent wave-code fibre, those information values are the external environment of the subjects (worldview) that it is encrypted. I analyze this to help you see that the environment is information and that information can change the nature of all things in and out of the universe.

Please look at the two green wave-particles, and then they transform into two positive and negative intellectual wave codes with the colours black and fire-red. In fact, after transformation, they will have different colours based on the characteristics of varying yin and yang energy states. Do you know why they transform like that? That is the medium that the wave-particles move into. The environment contains heat to change the nature of wave-particles into yin and yang energy particles. Heat is generated by the reaction between energy particles and things (specifically between destructive energy particles) to transform wave-particles into yin and yang energy particles. Is heat also information? It is information. Information generates heat, and heat is a manifestation of knowledge in the process of things interacting and reacting with each other. To prove this, you can experiment: When you say love to the person you love, the result is that both of you feel warmth and happiness in your body. On the contrary, if you say hurtful words to the person you love, you will feel cold in your body and suffer.

Heat is the expression of information through the reaction of all things. Therefore, wave-particles change into destructive energy particles and yin and yang energy particles due to heat. It is also because of information. The transformation to form different types of energy particles is due to the different amounts of heat and information values encoded. As follows:

- Destructive energy particles result from wave-particles moving in a neutral environment, which is an environment without heat. The amount of information from the medium is elementary, and the self-heating process of the wave-particle is not enough for it to be completely transformed. Therefore, the annihilation energy particle encodes a small and straightforward amount of information. Destructive energy particles are an error version compared to yin and yang energy particles as they do not have the rotation and production - connection mechanism.

- Positive energy particles result from wave-particles moving into a hot environment. The heat causes the wave-particle to completely transform to encode more information into the intellectual wave code fibre of the positive energy particle compared to the negative energy particle and the destructive particle. In particular, the intellectual wave code of the positive energy particle stores valuable and accurate information. The reason is that when moving into a positive thermal environment, the wave-particle rotates and stores accurate information about all matter. In addition, melting wave-particles and encoding information in a hot enough heat environment causes toxins to no longer exist in the intellectual wave code fibre when positive energy particles are formed. Thus, positive energy particles no longer have toxins and have accurate and comprehensive information about the environment that created them. That constitutes the characteristic of positive energy particles, which transmit accurate information for sustainable development.

- Negative energy particles generated from wave-particles must move through a positive thermal environment before moving into a negative one. When moving into a positive thermal environment, it melts partially and encodes information from the positive thermal environment. However, their toxins have not been eliminated because the melting and transformation process has not yet been completed. Next, they continue moving through the neutral environment and then into the cold thermal environment. Therefore, cold heat and missing or unclear information were encoded into intellectual wave code when moving into the cold thermal environment. In particular, their orbits change and rotate against positive energy particles. Moving in a cold thermal environment helps them transform into harmful energy particles. However, the toxicity of the wave-particles has not been eliminated, and the lack of or unclear information about the cold thermal environment has caused the harmful energy particles to have toxic data. This toxic information combines the toxins from the wave-particles that have not been fully released and the distortion of information in the cold heat environment. Therefore, the value of harmful energy particles is opposite to that of positive energy particles.

So, you have understood the power and value of the environment that transforms wave-particles into different types of energy particles. Specifically, heat and information create the nature of different kinds of energy particles. From the diverse nature of particles, they will create different values for the existence and development of all things in and outside the universe."

A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, so many yin and yang energy particles were born from wave-particles?"

The teacher replied, "No, not many yin and yang energy particles are produced from wave-particles. Some energy particles can be produced from the explosions of destructive energy particles if wave-particles move in. However, they are then detonated or assimilated by annihilation energy particles. Next, the annihilating particles will balance the thermal environments and become non-thermal environments. This process took place continuously for a long time before a magical yin and yang energy embryo appeared.

In addition, to form a positive energy particle from a wave-particle, the wave-particle must absorb enough heat to transform into a positive particle. If there is excess heat, the wave-particles will be detonated during the conversion process.

Forming negative energy particles is also not easy. The wave-particles must move through a hot thermal environment to be melted and encode information. They must then move into the nearby cold thermal environment to complete the transformation and encoding of data for the formation of harmful energy particles.

Thus, forming positive and negative energy particles from wave-particles is not easy. Wave-particles must move into a sufficiently hot area to form positive energy particles. That means there is neither excess nor lack of heat for the transformation process. If there is too much, the wave-particles will be detonated, and if there is a lack of heat, the wave-particles will not be converted into positive energy particles. These wave-particles melted due to lack of heat will be transformed into harmful energy particles if they move into a cold thermal environment. Suppose they do not move into a cold thermal environment to become harmful particles. In that case, they will become positive energy particles with the weakly electric wave when moving in a non-thermal environment until they are completely transformed by autogenesis heat. However, they are all detonated or assimilated by destructive energy. Therefore, forming negative and positive energy particles in an annihilation energy particle environment is challenging. Therefore, when the special yin-yang energy embryo was formed to create the first tuelinh and the universe, it was the most extraordinary and significant event in the universe's history."

Chapter Forty-Four

The Miraculous Yin Yang Energy Embryo and Big Bang

The rays of sunset gradually disappeared when the teacher and students returned to the temple and the Bodhi tree on the second day. Instead, the lights were turned on and blended into the bright moonlight. The moon often shines more radiant after the full moon day, and everyone feels it. After passing through the area's security gate, the teacher and his students experienced worshipping Buddha inside the temple, then walked around the temple and the ancient Bodhi tree many times. That's what pilgrims to Buddha's Land do, and it's also to show respect to Buddha.

After the second experience of practising the same rituals as other pilgrims, the teacher and his students sat under the bodhi tree. Around the tree, there are still many people meditating and praying. Outside and around the temple were monks from other countries, chanting and practising meditation. That is when many people living around the temple come to practice rituals and pay tribute to Buddha because, according to Buddhist beliefs, they often come to worship Buddha and pray for good luck at the beginning of the month and the full moon day. These days are the full moon, so many people from all over India and other countries come to this holy site in large numbers. The teacher and students continued to sit, relax, and observe groups of people with different costumes. They are followers of Hinduism who come to worship Buddha. People from the West went to the ceremony and held rosary beads, moving them as they walked. The chanting sounds from the surrounding monks mixed with the chanting sounds coming from inside the temple through speakers. The different people and the chant create an atmosphere of respect and solemnity. The respect of people when they come here to pay tribute to an enlightened being.

Thoughts, images, and sounds at this relic site come and go in each person's mind. The teacher and students still sat and observed. After meditating for a long time under the tree, some of the teacher's students stopped meditating and returned to their seats next to the teacher. Everyone sat around the teacher because this evening, he would lecture on the yin and yang energy embryo that creates the universe. Therefore, everyone was waiting for the relic grounds to become quiet. It was already past 7 pm, and groups of people were leaving. The campus around the tree is becoming quieter, and only the groups from other countries are sitting far away from the tree. Those monks often stay overnight at this relic for many days to perform rituals.

The teacher began to preach when the space around the Bodhi tree became quieter. "Please imagine an embryo of yin and yang energy when the connection between the smallest positive and negative energy particles forms it. Visualize it and make questions before I preach about them."

After a while, a student asked the teacher, "Teacher, how can the smallest positive and negative energy particles bond together while the destructive energy particles cannot?"

The teacher replied, "The smallest yin and yang energy particles bond together to form yin and yang energy embryos that belong to the mechanism of production and connection. That is the mechanism of energy particles with positive and negative electric waves. However, the particles of destructive energy do not connect because they do not have positive or negative electric waves. I will have an in-depth lecture later to understand the mechanism of production and connection.

To help you quickly receive valuable information about the miraculous yin and yang energy embryo that formed the first tuelinh and the universe, you need a basic understanding of how the smallest yin and yang energy particles are linked. Yin and yang energy embryos are formed based on the following principles:

- Opposite principles of electric waves. That means that to form a yin and yang energy embryo, the positive energy particle must bond with the negative energy particle. If positive energy particles bond, they form a composite positive energy particle. Besides, if negative energy particles bond, they form composite negative energy particles. In the case of the smallest particles of yin and yang energy bonding, they become an embryo of yin and yang energy.

- Information matching principles. That means that for the smallest positive energy particle to bond with the smallest negative energy particle, they must have a match or similarity in information. This information compatibility does not mean that all the information content in the intellectual wave code fibre of the positive and negative energy particles is the same. Information matching is understood as the fact that both positive and negative particles store the same information about the circumstances and environment in which they were born. Specifically, positive and negative energy particles generated from the positive and negative thermal environment converted from wave-particles will bond with each other. The reason is that the positive and negative thermal environments are created from the explosion of destructive energy particles, so the positive and negative energy particles encode similar information values. They are only identical regarding environmental information, while their nature is different.

When the smallest particles of yin and yang energy ensure the above two conditions, they will bond and stick together to form an embryo of yin and yang energy. The yin and yang energy embryo is a structure larger than the smallest particle. After connecting through point (3) of the positive particle attached to point (1) of the negative particle and point (1) of the positive particle attached to point (3) of the negative particle, the information between the two particles will circulate each other. Then, it will make conventions for standard functions and tasks. Therefore, the nature of the yin and yang energy embryo is not the same as the individual nature of the yin and yang energy particles. The nature of the yin and yang energy embryo constantly changes and fluctuates as the information between the two particles circulates. The cyclical process can be trying to control each other, conflict, and unity of functions and tasks. From this nature, all things create mysteries and complications for tuelinh and human life forms. Everyone does not understand themselves and everything in and out of the universe."

The knowledge that the teacher has just shared with his students is complex information; Therefore, the teacher lets everyone relax for a few minutes before taking everyone into the world of the smallest particle.

Then the teacher said, "Look at the sky. Don't let the leaves and stars block your vision. Please look with your soul and wisdom. That means you don't see with your eyes. Next, close your eyes and imagine yourself as the smallest energy particle. Rest assured, I am always by your side, radiating the light of wisdom to protect you. And now, you are the smallest particles of energy. You are in the space of destructive energy particles and continue your sightseeing journey. It is a journey of space exploration and the evolution of energetic particles in the past. Please pay attention and listen to my instructions. You are the smallest particles of energy, and so am I. We are moving through space after witnessing explosions of destructive energy particles. We were surprised and delighted by those explosions' before and after reactions. The excitement reaches its maximum when we witness positive and negative energy particles forming, which are then assimilated and detonated.

Please move quickly with me because I have detected an explosion that just happened in the distance. Come and see what happens next. Do you see anything? Energy particles have just been formed in hot space. They are so beautiful! They come in fire-red, green, and yellow. These are positive energy particles with different information values and natures formed after the wave-particles moved into hot thermal space. The negative energy particles formed when the wave-particles moved into the nearby cold medium. They have different colours, such as grey, black, and blood-red. What do you feel when you see these yin and yang energy particles in different colours? Perhaps excitement and curiosity about them. The difference in the colour of positive and negative energy particles is due to the energy state in each particle. The difference in energy state is due to the difference in the value of the information encoded inside the intellectual wave code fibre. Point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre is where functions and tasks are produced after encoding data.

What's going on? Have you noticed what's going on? It is the movement of positive and negative energy particles. They are looking for each other. Perhaps they discovered each other's existence by the information waves they emitted. Even though destructive energy particles are around them, they are not afraid of the risk of being assimilated and detonated to find each other. That could be the power of love - compatibility and similarity of information. That makes them willing to see each other even if they have to face death and assimilation.

As a result of the taste of love, the yin and yang energy particles came together. The magical thing is that they have linked together to become pairs of yin and yang energy particles. Those are yin and yang energy embryos. Unbelievably, it is a rapid evolutionary process. Through positive and negative heat, wave-particles move in and transform into positive and negative energy particles, which then connect to form yin and yang energy embryos. The appearance of yin and yang energy embryos is a milestone in wave-particles' intellectual and structural development. Wave-particles do not stop at the level of evolution; they are destructive energy particles and then negative and positive energy particles. Instead, they have evolved to new heights, which is the connection between the smallest positive and negative energy particles to upgrade both structurally and intellectually. The structure of matter has grown to be twice as large as the smallest energy particle, and the information value has been linked and created complexity between them. It is the magic of the universe because the value of the environment changes and develops the ancestral wave-particles.

What happened? Did you see the reactions with those yin and yang energy embryos? Those yin and yang energy embryos have decomposed and become destructive energy particles. They then merge into the world of destructive energy particle life forms. Energy particles of annihilation attacked and disintegrated the yin and yang energy embryos that only existed briefly. The moment of existence of yin and yang energy embryos is as if they want to declare that they are the magic and wisdom of the universe. It was a firm confirmation that they would return and dominate this endless space.

Move with me; let's observe the journey of yin and yang energy embryos appearing and then being assimilated into destructive energy particles. I am causing endless time to fast forward in your mind and vision. Do you see anything? The appearance and disappearance of yin and yang energy embryos repeat and appear in different positions in the living space of destructive energy, which is brown space. They appear and disappear like colourful points of light in the darkness of destructive energy. Those bright spots are like wonderful music in the endless space of the universe.

Please follow me to that strange light over there. That light came from an explosion of destructive energy particles. However, it was unusual and brighter than other explosions of destructive energy. Does this signal something or a special event about to happen in the endless flow of time? Let's move quickly there to see what happens. A positive energy particle emits a bright yellow in the positive thermal space. It is extraordinary as it radiates light while the positive energy particles that appeared before did not. Around that positive energy particle, there are other positive energy particles, but their colours are nothing unique or unusual compared to the positive energy particles that appeared before. Do you see anything? The destructive energy particles continued to attack the positive energy particles, and they were detonated. However, that yellow positive energy particle had a particular skill, so it moved away from the attack of the destructive energy particles. It is trying to move because of some invitation signal. It may be so when a negative energy particle from a nearby cold thermal environment also moves towards that particular positive energy particle. Both yin and yang energy particles have caught each other's signals and are trying to move as fast as possible to meet each other. Do you see any difference between those negative energy particles? It is grey-white, an energy state with a weak electric wave.

That causes the destructive energy particles not to detect their presence. Look at the negative heat space where harmful energy particles are created. Other negative energy particles have already been assimilated into destruction particles.

Will that particular yin and yang energy particle be assimilated and detonated? I was thrilled to witness the difference between these two particular yin and yang energy particles. It's incredible that those two energy particles have linked together and formed a yin and yang energy embryo. It is a worthy result of the efforts of both of those energy particles. Do you think it will be assimilated like other yin and yang energy embryos when it is the most special yin and yang energy embryo? It is unique because of the bright yellow light of the positive energy particles and the grey-white colour of the negative energy particles. That brilliant yellow light made that negative energy particle brighter and whiter when bonded. That makes that yin and yang energy embryo like a magical light in the brown darkness of destructive energy.

Look! A particle of destructive energy was detonated when it touched that yin-yang energy embryo to discharge excess heat. However, the yin and yang energy embryos are not demolished or assimilated. It is truly an extraordinary and miraculous yin-yang energy embryo that detonates destructive particles without harm. If you look closely at that yin and yang energy embryo, it becomes brighter and absorbs heat from the destructive energy particle that has been detonated. The appearance of this yin and yang energy embryo is a challenge to the life form of the annihilation energy particle as it still proudly exists without being harmed by the attack of the annihilation particle. Additional destruction particles were detonated while trying to attack that energy embryo. Next, another destructive particle was detonated. That energy embryo continued absorbing heat from the explosions and became brighter. Bright light is a mixture of yellow and white light.

Do you see anything? That yin and yang energy embryo has become more extensive, and its membrane is thicker. Inside are new strands of wisdom wave-code next to the original two strands of the negative and positive particles. That means new strands of intellectual wave code have been born after the movement and detonation of destructive energy particles. What's going on? Is this the remarkable evolution of wave-particles? They were transformed into a magical yin and yang energy embryo and produced strands of intellectual wave code in those two yin and yang particles. In particular, it does not suffer any damage from attacks from destructive energy particles. On the contrary, this energy embryo absorbs the heat of detonated annihilation particles to produce new intellectual wave code fibres. This energy embryo has developed and self-produced intelligent wave-code fibres, the only wave-particles that can be transformed into intellectual wave-code fibres.

Let me fast-forward time and see what happens to that embryo of yin and yang energy. What do you see? That yin and yang energy embryo has grown and become much more extensive than when it was formed. It is no longer the original yin-yang energy embryo but has become a mature yin-yang energy embryo. The mature energy embryo is shaped like a giant sphere. Inside it is the original yin and yang energy embryo protected by the outer membrane, and it contains countless strands of intellectual wave code at the positive and negative particles. Outside the original embryo are two extremes containing the smallest energy particles copied from the intellectual wave code fibres in the original yin and yang embryo. The yang pole contains positive energy particles, and the yin pole contains negative energy particles.

The yin and yang energy embryo of the universe

The process of detonating the destructive particle and not being damaged by the original yin and yang energy embryo has produced countless strands of intellectual wave code, and they are stored in the two original energy particles. At the same time, those strands of intellectual wave code are copied and transformed into the smallest energy particles, and they move to the extremes containing positive and negative particles. The development process of the yin and yang energy embryo caused the membrane of the original energy embryo to become thicker and separate into many shell layers. The inner shell is to protect the original embryo, and the outer shell of the original embryo is a membrane to protect the mature yin and yang embryo. The outer shell protects the mature yin and yang energy embryo; all energy particles are copied from the original embryo. This process forms a sphere containing the smallest energy particles carrying positive and negative electrical waves. Outside is an environment without heat and the life form of destructive energy particles.

That energy embryo has become a giant sphere containing countless smallest energy particles. Please join me in moving quickly around the dense shell covering that energy sphere. Please look at that shell as we proceed. Do you see anything? Destructive energy particles constantly attack and penetrate the shell of the energy sphere. However, they are all detonated in the shell of the sphere, and the heat from those explosions is absorbed into the embryo. Strangely, the attacks of the annihilation particle have been detonated since the original yin-yang embryo was formed until now.

Please follow me and move inside that super-giant energy sphere. Please think that our roots are there; our homeland exists because we were born there. That is how we move through the sphere's membrane and is also how we moved in the past. Please follow me and take a look to see what's inside. In front of our eyes are countless energy particles with different colours. Each colour represents the other electrical wave properties of the particle. The variety of colours of the smallest particles creates a beautiful and majestic space that does not exist outside the energy sphere. The tiniest particles of energy are obscuring our vision. We cannot see very far when so many of the smallest energy particles move in dense density ahead and around us. To have a super-giant sphere containing the smallest energy particles carrying negative and positive electric waves, it must go through an endless period of attacks from destructive energy particles and reactions from the original energy embryo to detonate them and absorb heat. It was magical.

Please follow me closely because the density of negative and positive energy particles here is very dense. You may lose me if you don't focus on following me. The energy sphere is now too super-giant. We have travelled a long way but still have not reached its centre. Please move quickly with me; I'm increasing my speed of movement. We must observe what is at the centre of this giant energy sphere. Do you see anything ahead? It is shaped like an adult. Exactly a mature tuelinh (a supreme soul). Why is it a tuelinh and not a mature embryo? This is truly the centre of a super-giant energy sphere. Look, that tuelinh is moving the energy particles inside the energy sphere. He is controlling negative energy groups to move to the sphere's protective shell to attract destructive energy particles to attack the energy sphere. Next, he operates again to move positive energy groups to approach the shell to detonate destructive energy. He seemed so busy with work that he didn't notice our presence here. He was still absorbing heat from the explosions outside the sphere's protective shell from the blasts of destructive energy particles moving into his own body. Do you see anything? Energy particles were born from within that tuelinh and moved out of his body. They move into the space containing the smallest energy particles. Let's get closer to him to take a closer look at him. Do you see anything inside him? It is the mature energy embryo of the universe. That mature energy embryo is now in his body. What happened? The miraculous energy embryo of the universe is the energy embryo that created this first tuelinh. He is the first tuelinh of the universe and evolved from the ancestral wave-particle. The energy particles in this super-giant energy sphere were born from his energy embryo. He is the giant energy sphere, and the energy sphere is him. The most quintessential energy particles crystallize his body. Those are the best and super-complex energy particles: positive energy particles have super strong electric waves with yellow energy, and negative energy particles have feeble negative electric waves with grey-white energy states. Please look at his body; you will see golden light radiating around. Using the most complex and quintessential super energy particles to construct his body was easy because his original yin yang energy embryo was formed from the super strong yellow yang particle and fragile, grey-white negative particles.

Have you noticed anything unusual going on? The first tuelinh is busy and continuously moving groups of positive energy particles towards the shell of the energy sphere, while outside are massive attacks of countless destructive energy particles towards the shell. There may be a great war between the life forms of destructive energy particles and energy particles with electric waves. Let's move away from the energy sphere quickly. Now, we are outside the energy sphere, the space of the energy particles of destruction. Let's move further from the super-giant energy sphere to see what happens. Boom! The sound of a massive explosion from the super-giant energy sphere. The sphere's shell has exploded, and countless destructive energy particles outside the sphere have also been detonated. The loud bang and the small explosions that follow create an exciting sound chain, making it impossible to hear any sounds around us. Countless energy particles inside the sphere spilt into the surrounding space after the shell was gone. After the Big Bang, their space became much larger than the original giant energy sphere. It is the universe of energy particles.

Please look at the centre of the yin and yang energy space because the energy particles are no longer moving in density. From here, we can see the first tuelinh standing in the middle of the centre. The first tuelinh exists as a supreme wisdom of infinite space from the past to the future. However, he is still busy energizing the entire space of energy particles carrying electric waves. Under his operation, the whole space containing energy particles still rotates around the centre of his energy embryo. It has spun since that magical yin and yang energy embryo was formed.

What an incredible journey to discover the past. However, now let's return to reality under the Bodhi tree. Open your eyes and take a deep breath. Then, breathe slowly. Do this a few times. Next, relax and feel the presence of the present to see how busy and devoted the supreme soul built a cosmic sphere with countless galaxies and countless life forms existing within. He deserves respect and reverence more than anything from the past to the future. Let us respect and thank him for our existence and all things in the universe.

I know you have many questions that need to be answered and further lessons to gain a deeper understanding of the first tuelinh and the energy particles born from the energy embryo of the universe. Tomorrow, at the following location on this journey, I will help you understand more thoroughly."

Chapter Forty-Five

Mechanism of Particle Production of Yin and Yang Energy Embryo

After two days of sightseeing and listening to the teacher preach under the Bodhi tree at Mahabodhi temple, the students and teacher moved to other relics on their pilgrimage in India early in the morning. It is a relic that preserves the imprints of when Buddha taught knowledge to his students there. That place became a sizeable Buddhist university several hundred years after Buddha passed away. However, it is now just a ruin with crumbling foundations and walls. The devastation caused by the war has made that place now just a place to visit and reminisce about the glorious era of Buddhism. After a few hours of travelling on a bus, everyone arrived at the site of the ancient Nalanda University. Because the journey was on bad and unfavourable roads, upon arriving, everyone took the opportunity to have lunch and rest before going to the monument to visit.

When the teacher and his students entered the ruined campus of the ancient university, they all felt overwhelmed by the vast space. Red brick walls are intertwined with red brick foundations. That's what's left after being devastated by war and time. Ruins made of ancient red bricks and moss exist throughout the vast space of the relic grounds. When the teacher and students visited places in the monument, feelings of regret were evident in each person's thoughts. It's a pity because this was once where monks practised, studied and wrote down Buddha's scriptures. Also, from here, Buddhist scriptures spread to many countries worldwide. The crowd and bustle of practitioners in the Buddhist school then were no longer there. Now, only vast lawns interwoven with foundation blocks and red brick walls remain. It makes many people, especially those who practice Buddhism, feel pain and regret when visiting this place.

After visiting all the relics on campus, the teacher and his students sat on a large lawn. The weather in the autumn afternoon is very cool, and the sunlight is gentle, all of which make people feel the closeness and familiarity of this place. Some students are lying on the grass to feel this extraordinary atmosphere. Some students take advantage of meditation to discover more information about the past and present of this place. Truong Nalanda approached where the teacher was sitting and said to him, "Last night, I had a very realistic dream about this place. In my previous life, I was born into a rich family here. I am someone who has learned a lot from many teachers. I remember very clearly that I belonged to the most noble class of society at that time. I found myself unsatisfied with the knowledge I had learned, so after accessing your knowledge in that life, I waited to meet you. As a result, when the teacher came, I asked him to leave my family and follow him to practice. Later, my younger sister also participated in learning the teacher's knowledge. Today, when I came to this place, I felt very close and familiar."

The teacher smiled and said, "That's true. Duong Nalanda is your sister from your past life. The tuelinhs of the two brothers have followed me for many lives, and this life is no different. This place is where I was a King two lives ago. My kingdom then was as large as the state of Bihar now; it included the site of the Mahabodhi temple and the Bodhi tree. In that life, I was considered a great king when I ruled and helped the people live in prosperity with the primitive knowledge of the two truths. That's why when we return to places that were important milestones in our past lives, we will somehow recognise that truth. Of course, in my previous life, when I came here to teach knowledge, you followed me and then your younger sister. When I met the two of you, both were in a bad state due to illness; your younger sister at that time almost could not live. At that time, I used the first tuelinh's name, Nalas Nalanda, to save her life. Those were the rare times I used the name of the first tuelinh to save people in my past lives. Of course, I didn't tell my students about that."

After the students finished meditating and resting, they sat beside the teacher. At that time, the teacher said, "This place used to be my hometown and yours in our past lives. We have good memories of this place. Many of you were born and raised here in your past lives. Then, you access knowledge and follow me to learn the wisdom of enlightenment. This place is extremely special to me because I was a great king of an ancient kingdom in this large area two lives ago. In my previous life, I preached knowledge, and you met me and then followed me. Thus, this place has kept many memories of me and you from past lives to the present because I will continue to preach important lectures at the place where we are sitting. That is how we connect the past and present to be grateful for everything that has helped and come to us in our practice journey in the human world."

A student immediately said, "It's great to hear you teach here. Everyone and I have many questions about the smallest energy particles born from the energy embryo of the first tuelinh. Even though you taught us about the yin and yang energy embryo of the universe and the first tuelinh last night, we are still not satisfied. We realize that the knowledge about energy particles is extensive and massive, so we hope you will teach us more knowledge about energy particles to help us deepen our enlightenment."

The teacher said, "I understand what you are wondering, so I will explain and analyze each information value related to the knowledge of the energy particle born from that yin and yang energy embryo. It is essential for tuelinhs and humans because everything is born from the smallest energy particles of that energy embryo. In addition, all things in the universe are born from that yin and yang embryo, so you must deeply understand them to understand yourself and everyone, the tuelinhs and all things in the universe."

After silence, the teacher asked everyone, "Do you know how the energy embryo of the universe produces energy particles?"

Everyone looked at each other, and one student answered, "I think the smallest energy particles are born from yin and yang energy embryos differently from how wave-particles transform into yin and yang energy particles. From my lessons, I understand that the smallest energy particles in the universe are born from that yin and yang embryo. However, we do not clearly understand the mechanism and nature of that production process."

The teacher said, "That's right. The smallest energy particles carrying negative and positive electric waves are generated from the energy embryo, which differs from the formation of energy particles with electric waves from wave-particles. Thus, there is a difference between the transformation mechanism of wave-particles and the production mechanism of yin and yang embryos to form the smallest energy particles with electric waves.

The transformation mechanism of a wave-particle to become the smallest energy particle with an electric wave is: each wave-particle, when moving into an environment with positive heat, will change the structure of the particle through flowing wave-particles. By melting and changing the structure of the wave-particle, a certain amount of information about the environment in which the wave-particle moves is encoded. At the end of the process of structural transformation and information encoding of the positive thermal environment, the smallest energy particle carrying positive electric waves is created. For energy particles with negative electric waves, the wave-particle's transformation process must move into a negative thermal environment after travelling through a positive thermal environment in conditions that have not yet completely transformed. Therefore, when the changing wave-particle moves into the cold medium, a reaction is formed between the two information mediums. As a result, it is transformed into negative energy particles with toxins crystallised from the wave-particles and the environment. It would help to remember that each wave-particle could only be transformed into the smallest energy particle carrying negative or positive electric waves. One wave-particle cannot be transformed into many energy particles. Because of this, we call the process of wave-particles converting into energy particles the transformation mechanism. We don't call it a generative mechanism.

In contrast to the transformation mechanism of wave-particles to form the smallest energy particles, the yin and yang energy embryo implements a production mechanism to create the smallest energy particles carrying negative and positive electric waves. The universe's yin and yang energy embryo (the first tuelinh) is the first energy embryo to implement the mechanism of producing energy particles. After the Big Bang, under the operation and hard work of the first tuelinh, countless yin and yang energy embryos were formed and practised the exact production mechanism as the energy embryos of the first tuelinh. All things and life forms in the universe are created and developed through the production mechanism, including tuelinhs life forms and humans. The production mechanism and the linking mechanism form a set of closely linked mechanisms that cannot be separated to create the development of diverse life for all things in the universe. In this lecture, I will analyse the mechanism and nature of the yin and yang energy embryo process that produces the smallest energy particles through the energy embryo of the first tuelinh, the energy embryo of the universe. The energy embryos of the tuelinh, the soul residing in the human body, the soul living in animals, and all physical structures in the universe when they have energy embryos all have the exact production mechanism as the energy embryo of the first tuelinh. Now, let's explore together the mechanism and nature of energy particles produced from the energy embryo of the universe:

- The mechanism of producing energy particles of the yin and yang embryo is carried out in the embryo's original yin and yang particles. It means that both the original negative and positive energy particles participate in producing new energy particles.

- The production mechanism is from the original positive energy particle in the embryo. Many new positive energy particles will be born when the conditions for that production are ensured. Many new harmful energy particles will also be produced from the original negative energy particle when the conditions for such production are ensured. That is entirely different from the transformation mechanism of wave-particles, where each wave-particle can only be converted into one energy particle. In the production mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo, you must remember that negative particles produce new harmful particles, and positive particles produce new positive particles. There is no phenomenon of positive particles generating harmful particles and negative particles generating positive particles.

- The essence of producing energy particles from the energy embryo is adding information from the outside environment so that the intellectual wave code fibres in the original yin and yang energy particles perform a copying process of the new intellectual wave code fibre. It is said to be copied, but it is not a copying mechanism because the newly created energy particle stores the information of the external environment and the internal data of the original intellectual wave-code fibre. However, it is said to copy so that everyone can easily imagine the production mechanism of the original yin and yang energy embryo. You can understand that the energy particles born from the energy embryo are the crystallisation of part of the essence of genetic information from the original particle and information from the outside environment. That shows that the newly born energy particles are kids particles of the yin-yang embryo, and they carry the genetic characteristics of the parent pair, the original yin-yang embryo.

- For the energy embryo to produce energy particles with different negative or positive electric waves, it depends on the reaction process of that energy embryo to the environment with which it interacts. That shows that the process of producing energy particles is highly complex. It is like a struggle, even a campaign of struggle and reaction between two information environments: the internal information of the original yin and yang embryo and the information of the external environment. The reaction process of the energy embryo to the external information environment also depends on the characteristics of the data inside the embryo's two original yin and yang energy particles. Therefore, we need to dissect and analyse the production mechanism of the energy embryo for each type of yin and yang energy particle. That helps us understand the nature of every kind of energy particle through the production mechanism of the yin and yang embryo.

- The mechanism for producing negative energy particles of the universe's energy embryo is as follows:

- + Through the vibration of the original yin particle in the energy embryo, the mechanism of absorbing information from the external environment of the original yin energy particle is activated. Information from the outside medium is absorbed through point 1 (information receiving point) in the negative particle. Information from the external environment is missing information or harmful information. This information has negative values and no value for the sustainable development of all things. This information exists in cold environments and from material structures with harmful wave properties.

- + The process of absorbing negative and deficient information from the outside environment into the original energy embryo shows that the power of the original negative energy particle is dominating the information of the initial positive energy particle. It shows that the information value of the positive energy particle is not strong enough to control the information of the original negative particle. As a result, the original negative energy particle loses control in appraising and absorbing information from the outside environment.

- + Negative information from the outside environment is absorbed and closely linked to part of the information of the intellectual wave code strand in the original negative particle to form a new information value. That means that to absorb a certain amount of negative and false information from the outside environment, part of the toxic information value of the negative particle will vibrate and erupt to bind and absorb the information outside.

+ A new information value is formed through the movement of the yin and yang energy embryo while being dominated by the harmful ideology of the yin energy particle. As a result, one too many intellectual wave code fibres carrying negative electric waves are copied from the original yin intellectual wave code fibre. When the new intelligence strand is copied, it is stored in the original negative particle next to the original negative intelligence wave code strand. In addition, from those new intellectual wave code fibres, they copied into new fibres and moved to the extreme, containing the harmful energy particles of the mature embryo. Then, they become new harmful energy particles.

+ Thus, the new intellectual wave code fibre is born from the intellectual wave code fibre of the original yin particle that carries the toxins of the original yin particle and the toxins of the external environment. That intellectual wave code strand is stored in the original negative particle and copied into many harmful energy particles to move outward to build a synthetic energy particle structure that expands outward. In addition, several harmful particles move into space outside the physical structure containing the yin and yang embryo.

+ When the yin and yang energy embryo produces harmful energy particles, a quantity of destructive energy particles catches the strong vibration signal of the original yin particle and the negative particle system. They then move in to discharge their excess heat to negative particle structures. For the yin and yang energy embryo of the universe, because there is a protective covering, the destructive particles can only move to the protective covering of the energy sphere. However, for tuelinhs and humans, when practising the production of harmful particles, the destructive particles will easily penetrate the structure and practice the mechanism of discharging excess heat.

+ Only the type of harmful energy particles is produced when the yin and yang energy embryo creates negative particles. The reason is that yang energy particles do not participate in receiving and encoding information, so they do not create new information values for the positive particle production mechanism to be implemented.

- The mechanism for producing positive energy particles of the yin and yang energy embryo of the universe is as follows:

+ Through the slight vibration of the original negative energy particle in a positive or negative thermal environment, the information value of the outside environment is absorbed into the energy embryo's initial negative and positive particles. That means that the original positive energy particle can control the information of the original negative energy particle. Therefore, the initial positive energy particle controls and evaluates the information values that must be absorbed into its embryo. The information absorbed is accurate and brings the characteristics of sustainable development to all things.

+ Participate in absorbing information, including both positive and negative particles. The original positive particle controls and selects information values in the external environment by controlling the original negative particle. The initial positive particle manages the original negative particle so it does not develop internal toxins, so it quickly performs the task of absorbing information from the outside environment into both the initial negative and positive particles.

+ When information is absorbed into the original embryo with the characteristics of sustainable development due to the truth of the information and heat, the initial positive energy particle will vibrate and activate the value of developmental information within the intellectual wave code. For the original yin particle, the positive information and heat of the outside environment will help control and destroy the toxins inside the intellectual wave code fibre. That makes the information value of the newly produced positive particle inherit the positive value of the external environment and the original positive particle. The freshly created negative particle inherits the positive information of the external environment and the information of the original negative particle with feeble electric waves. The new negative particle's electric waves are weak because the toxins are controlled and removed.

+ Positive heat from the explosion of destructive energy is a valuable heat source to create positive energy particles. Therefore, it promotes the production of positive energy particles of yin and yang embryos to the most optimal effect.

+ Thus, the positive energy particle production mechanism of the original yin and yang energy embryo has simultaneously produced both positive and negative particles. Harmful particles are produced through the mechanism of producing positive particles without toxins. They have weak negative electric waves that are enough to help harmful energy particles perform the information absorption mechanism under the control of positive particles. In addition, neutral energy particles are also produced through the production mechanism of positive particles. Of course, to complete the production of positive, negative, and neutral energy particles, the energy embryo must finish absorbing information and reacting with the external environment.

+ When producing positive energy particles is complete, new positive, negative, and neutral intelligence wave-code strands will be generated from the original strands and stored in the original yin and yang particles. As for the neutral particle, it will be tightly attached to the membrane of the yin and yang energy embryo. Then, from the newly produced intellectual wave code fibres, they copy into many new particles and move to the extremes containing yin and yang particles outside the mature embryo to form its more giant structure. In addition, a fresh amount of energy particles are moved into the universe's space.

So, you can see the difference between the mechanism of producing energy particles of yin and yang embryos and the mechanism of converting from wave-particles into energy particles with yin and yang electric waves. It would help if you remembered that the mechanism of producing energy particles of the universe's yin and yang embryo, the tuelinhs, the soul in humans, the soul in animals, and the structures with yin and yang energy embryos are all the same. It shares the exact mechanism and nature. Therefore, when you understand the mechanism of energy particle production in this lesson, you will quickly discover the truth of everything in and out of the universe, tuelinhs and humans."

Chapter Forty-Six

The Diversity of Negative and Positive Energy Particles

Under the shade of the big trees and the melodiousness of the cool autumn breezes, everyone seemed to be immersed in that romance and thinking about the Teacher's lecture. Some students were thinking while unconsciously pulling out the grass with their hands. The lecture on the particle production mechanism of yin and yang energy embryos confused people.

Seeing everyone pondering, the Teacher said, "Are you confused about the particle production mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo? Please simplify your thinking. Memorise important content, and don't try to remember everything in each lecture. The values of knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle are always linked and appear in lectures under different analytical angles. When you listen and study the entire sermon, then listen and read it repeatedly, the essence of knowledge and complete understanding will exist in your soul and wisdom. Many people have difficulty learning it at first and don't know how to teach that knowledge to others. However, after studying, they understood and taught people very well, especially the ability to give extremely vivid and interesting illustrative examples. Please relax after each lecture because that is how the brain can receive information easily and effectively transfer it to wisdom."

A student said to his Teacher, "Teacher, I understand that the energy embryo of the first tuelinh is also the energy embryo of the universe. It is a magical yin and yang energy embryo formed by a positive energy particle with super-strong positive electric waves and a negative energy particle with feeble negative electric waves. According to the principle and nature, that embryo only produces positive energy particles with super-strong positive electric waves and negative energy particles with fragile negative electric waves. However, different types of energy particles exist in the space of the giant energy sphere. Many energy particles have different positive and negative electric waves, from weak to super strong ones. I still don't understand why the miraculous energy embryo of the first tuelinh produced such particles. Please explain that issue to us clearly."

The Teacher replied, "The issue related to energy particles with weak to super-strong electric wave properties produced from yin and yang energy embryos is a secret to the tuelinh life form. It is two of the three secrets all tuelinhs must incarnate as humans to practice and find solutions. That is the secret of ourselves and other tuelinhs, and the secret of all things. To understand those two secrets, each tuelinh and each person must know the two truths and the smallest energy particles. Understanding the mechanism of particle production and the variety of particles produced from yin and yang energy embryos will help tuelinhs and humans understand two of the three secrets being sought. When understanding those two secrets, everyone will understand the secret of destructive energy particles. From the first lectures until now, you have thoroughly understood the energy of destruction, and the remaining two secrets have also been relatively understood. It would help if you remembered that, only when you have learned the entire knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particles, will you completely understand the truth of yourself and other tuelinhs, other people, all things and destructive energy. Because of that, each lecture will help you know all three secrets in different analytical aspects.

You have heard and understood about the mechanism of producing energy particles of yin and yang embryos. Now, I will show you the variety of energy particles produced by the energy embryo of the first tuelinh. To easily understand and receive these essential information units, you continue to transform into the smallest particles of energy to move to the past. You will move into the universe's yin and yang energy embryo to observe the production process of energy particles from that embryo. Before going on that journey of discovery, you must remember that the information and heat of the outside environment reacting with the information of the yin and yang energy embryo will create types of energy particles with different electric wave characteristics. That is the key to deciphering why the energy embryo of the supreme spirit and other tuelinhs later produced many particles with different electric wave characteristics.

Now, please relax and close your eyes. Please focus on the soul within you and realize that your soul is the smallest particle of energy. You are the smallest particles of energy, and you have begun the journey to explore inside the universe's yin and yang energy embryo in the past. Please believe that you are the positive energy particles born from the energy embryo of the first tuelinh. You are positive energy particles with super strong yellow positive electric waves with magical power. Because you have just been born, you must move to the extreme that contains the positive energy particles of the mature energy embryo. Don't look for me because I always exist everywhere and within you. Please focus on exploring the world of the smallest particles according to my instructions.

Please look inside the cosmic energy embryo's original yin and yang particles. Each positive intelligence wave code fibre in the positive particle is your original version. You are copied from that original intellectual wave code, become a new positive energy particle, and move out to this positive pole. Did you know? You are part of the expression of the intellectual nature of the original intellectual wave code fibre in the original positive particle of the yin and yang embryo and part of the information value of the external environment. Please look at the negative pole. A particle of negative energy there was produced when you were born. You are a pair of twins resulting from reacting information of the original energy embryo with information from the outside environment. Thus, you are the children of the original yin and yang energy embryo. In particular, you inherit part of the genetic characteristics of the original yin and yang particles.

I'm sure you're wondering why you were born with such a super-strong positive electric wave characteristic.

To know why the energy embryo of the first tuelinh produced positive energy particles with super strong positive electric waves like you and other energy particles with electric wave properties, I will show you the journey of particle production according to each time stage of the energy embryo. As follows:

1 - Stage of the yin and yang embryo from the moment. It is formed until it becomes mature. Please look around at the yin and yang poles. You will only see a few yellow energy particles at the positive and grey-white energy particles at the negative poles. You also see some strands of wisdom wave code inside the original yin and yang particles. In particular, you will see particles of destructive energy on the outside of the protective membrane of the energy embryo. Although the protective membrane of the energy embryo is thick and durable, it is transparent so that you can see the life form of the destructive particles on the outside. Please observe the strong yellow electric waves transmitted from the original positive energy particle to the original negative energy particle. It creates pulses of bright yellow light radiating into the surrounding space. Every time a positive electric wave passes to the original negative particle, the negative particle does not vibrate. However, when the positive particle does not transmit electric waves, the negative particle vibrates and radiates cold heat. The information reaction of the original yin and yang particle creates a sparkling light effect in the night of the endless brown space. That shows us that the positive energy particle controls the vibration of the negative energy particle very effectively, and both particles perform their functions and tasks well. What do you see? When the yin particle vibrates and radiates cold heat, some destructive energy particles attack the membrane of the energy embryo. However, the electric wave of the positive energy particle is immediately transmitted to the negative particle to stop the vibration and attract other destructive particles. At the same time, the positive heat from the positive particle detonates the annihilation particles outside the protective membrane of the embryo. Next, the positive particle stops controlling the negative particle so that the negative particle vibrates and absorbs heat from the explosion of external destructive particles. After the heat from the outside is absorbed into the yin and yang energy embryo, the original positive particle copies out wisdom wave code fibres carrying positive electric waves similar to the original wisdom wave code fibre. The original negative particle also copies the intellectual wave code fibres with weak negative electric waves identical to the initial intellectual wave code fibre in the particle. The movement and reaction of the universe's original yin and yang energy embryo in the early stages takes place like this over a long period. This process helps the energy embryo produce countless positive energy particles with super strong yellow positive electric waves and numerous harmful energy particles with fragile grey-white negative electric waves. Do you know why? There are several reasons:

- The original positive particle in the embryo can control the negative particle's vibration. In addition, it also has the power to appraise the value of external information by regulating harmful energy particles to absorb external information.

- The original yin particle in the embryo has weak electric waves, so it does not vibrate strongly. That creates favourable conditions for the initial positive energy particle to control and evaluate the value of information encoded from the outside.

- The connection and performance of the conventional tasks of the two original yin and yang particles attract a small number of destructive particles to attack, then detonate them to absorb heat into the embryo. That is the advantage of the original yin and yang embryo, combined with a super strong yang and a weak yin particle. Such yin and yang embryos will not provoke large numbers of destructive particles to attack simultaneously and ensure the power to detonate annihilation particles when they strike.

- The magical power of yin and yang embryos has helped them encode the truth of the information in the external environment by attracting and detonating destructive energy. In addition, the abundant heat absorbed from the detonated annihilation particles has helped the positive intellectual wave code fibres have super strong positive electric waves, and the harmful intelligence wave code fibres have feeble electric waves. Thus, the yellow positive energy particles and the grey-white harmful energy particles are born due to the information reaction process that carries the nature of the original embryo and the accurate information along with the abundant heat from the external environment.

2 - The stage from the mature embryo until the formation of an adult tuelinh. Please look. The mature energy embryo has become a super-giant energy sphere. A thick, transparent white membrane surrounds and forms an energy sphere. Outside is the space of destructive energy. Inside is a tuelinh structure (soul) like an adult. Within that tuelinh structure is the mature energy embryo you saw and observed in the previous stage. That means the energy embryo has developed and become a mature tuelinh after an infinitely long period. That tuelinh and this giant energy sphere share a yin and yang energy embryo. Do you see anything? That tuelinh radiates yellow and white light from within the entire synthetic particle structure of the body. That supreme soul lives in an energy sphere many times larger than him. Around him were yellow-positive and grey-white harmful energy particles floating. Thus, the tuelinh matures, and the energy particles around him are protected by the shell that envelops the energy sphere. You have seen a mature tuelinh and many energy particles surrounding him in the energy sphere. That is a massive difference from the stage of just a mature embryo. Please look at the original yin and yang particles and the yin and yang extremes. The intellectual wave codes and energy particles produced are still yellow at the yang pole and grey-white at the negative pole. That shows that the energy embryo of the universe still only generates yellow positive particles with super strong electric waves and grey-white harmful energy particles with fragile electric waves. Producing these yin and yang particles lasts from the stage of a mature yin and yang embryo developing into a tuelinh baby and then becoming an adult tuelinh. At this point, the energy sphere becomes much more extensive than that tuelinh. The reason for the production of energy particles is similar to the previous stage because:

- The original embryo still functions according to the functions and tasks assigned by the original yin and yang particles. That means the initial positive particle still ensures the power to control the negative particle to absorb the destructive particles attacking the energy sphere and then detonate them by the heat emitted from the original positive particle. Finally, the negative particle absorbs heat from external explosions to complete the particle production.

- Although outside that tuelinh, many positive and negative energy particles appeared and interacted with him in the energy sphere, they did not hinder the original yin and yang embryo's reaction to the destructive energy outside the sphere. That ensures that the heat absorbed from the outer membrane covering the energy sphere into the yin and yang embryo is not lost.

- Heat from explosions of destructive energy, accurate information inside the energy sphere due to harmful particles with fragile negative electric waves, and heat from super strong positive energy particles are all absorbed by the original yin and yang energy embryo. The crystallisation of the information value and positive heat of the external environment with the nature of the original yin-yang embryo has caused the yin-yang embryo to only produce yellow positive particles with super strong electric waves and grey-white harmful particles with weak electric waves.

3 - The period from when the first tuelinh became an adult tuelinh until the Big Bang. This stage lasts indefinitely, producing yin and yang particles with strong and weak electric wave characteristics. It would help if you remembered that, to become a mature tuelinh, he has worked hard since he was an original yin-yang embryo to react and operate the process of detonating destructive energy and producing particles. His achievements were rewarded by the most miraculous yin and yang particles produced from his yin and yang embryos. They formed the composite particle structure and helped him become a mature tuelinh. It shows that his growth occurred in an environment that continuously reacted with the life form of destructive energy particles. It was fierce and lasted more than six billion years (according to the earth's calendar) from when his yin-yang embryo was formed until the Big Bang. The first tuelinh becoming an adult tuelinh is a miracle and greatness of the universe. It is miraculous from the original yin and yang embryo to all his yang and yin energy particles. The magic is that all positive particles have super-strong electric waves, and all harmful particles have fragile electric waves. The result of that miracle was the creation of a giant sphere containing himself and countless yin and yang energy particles born from him. Those energy particles are positive particles with super strong electric waves and harmful particles with weak electric waves. Starting from this stage, the yin and yang embryo of that tuelinh produces energy particles with different electric wave characteristics. However, when that tuelinh matured, his wisdom became transcendent. Therefore, he selected valuable energy particles to incorporate into his body as a variety of particles were produced. That means he only selects yellow-positive particles and grey-white harmful particles to form in his body. Energy particles with properties different from the above two types of particles were all moved out of his body, and they existed in the space of the energy sphere. The reason for this phenomenon is that through endless periods of operating electric waves to detonate and absorb heat from destructive energy, he has understood the value of particles to select them and increase power for yourself. To understand the wisdom and magical power of the first tuelinh in producing and selecting particles with different electric wave characteristics, you continue to explore the operating process and create reactions to generate his particles. Specifically for each type of particle as follows:

- For grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves. Look, the energy sphere's space has become much more extensive. The mature tuelinh is still at the centre and operates the movement of energy particles. Have you seen it? There were countless grey-white and yellow energy particles. What do you see? That first tuelinh was busy, and it seemed he was working harder to create vibrations of the entire system of negative particles in the energy sphere. It was not easy for him to create vibrations of the negative particle system to attract the attack of destructive energy as the energy sphere became larger and the membrane became thicker. Because of that, the vibration speed, according to the nature of the original yin particle and the convention of the original yin and yang embryo, is not enough signal to attract destructive energy. You see, he is trying much harder to increase the vibration speed of the entire yin particle system from the original yin and yang embryo. Do you see? There have already been many destructive energy particles attacking the membrane of the giant energy sphere. Then, a positive particle system is dispatched to the sphere's membrane to detonate those annihilation particles. Look, the heat absorbed into the original embryo from the sphere's protective membrane is consumed by harmful particles and the environment of areas with many negative particles in the energy sphere. Therefore, the heat absorbed into the original yin and yang embryo has been greatly consumed. However, grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves were produced when the heat had not been absorbed into the yin and yang embryo. The reason is because:

- + The original negative particle had to vibrate beyond the threshold while creating vibrations and signals to attract destructive particles to attack the energy embryo.

- + The information of the entire system of vibrating harmful particles in the energy sphere absorbed into the original negative particle is too much and redundant.

- + The heat from the explosion of destructive energy has not been absorbed.

Therefore, for the above three reasons, grey negative energy particles with strong electric waves were produced before the original energy embryo completed the reaction process and detonated the destructive energy particles for the production process of positive particles.

- For fire-red positive energy particles with very strong electric waves. Do you see anything? The hot heat was absorbed into the original yin and yang energy embryo and interrupted the production of harmful particles with strong electric waves. At this point, the heat from the explosion of the annihilation particles has been extensively consumed on its journey into the yin and yang embryo. It must cut off the process of producing harmful particles with strong electric waves. Therefore, the heat is no longer enough to help the original positive particle create positive particles with super-strong electric waves. Instead, fire-red positive energy particles with very strong electric waves are produced. Very strong positive electric waves are weaker than super strong positive electric waves. In addition, harmful energy particles with weak electric waves are always produced because the information encoding and heat absorption process is complete. Thus, the destructive energy detonation reaction does not create enough heat to help the original positive particle produce yellow positive particles.

- For black negative energy particles with very strong electric waves. Please continue to look at the energy sphere. You see, countless grey harmful particles and fire-red positive energy particles existed. Besides, the energy sphere continues to become much more extensive. You continue to look at the first tuelinh. The first tuelinh is trying very hard to operate all the energy particles in the energy sphere to perform reactions with destructive energy and particle production repeatedly. Like the process of producing grey yin energy particles, he continued to increase the vibration speed of the entire system of yin particles in the energy sphere and the original yin particles in his yin and yang embryo. That attracted a lot of destructive energy to attack the protective cover of the energy sphere while the sphere became larger. You see, his work becomes much more complex and complicated than the previous stages when he has to operate the existence and development of all particles in the energy sphere with greatly increased numbers, and outside are attacks of destructive energy. Please continue to look at the original yin and yang embryo. Black harmful energy particles with very strong electric waves were produced in abundance when the reaction process of detonating the destructive particles was not completed. The reason is the same as the process of creating grey harmful energy particles: the vibration speed of the original negative particle and the encoding of information is lacking, and all become overloaded and redundant while the heat is not enough to control it.

- For green positive energy particles with strong electric waves. Please continue to observe the original yin and yang embryo. Do you see anything? When the heat is absorbed into the yin and yang embryo, the original yin particle no longer produces black negative particles. Instead, it generates grey-white harmful energy particles. Besides, green positive particles with strong electric waves are produced. That results from a wasteful process and insufficient heat to produce yellow-positive particles. Therefore, positive particles with weaker electric waves are produced. However, if the detonation reaction of the destructive particles generates sufficient heat, yellow-positive particles will still be produced.

- For blood-red negative energy particles with super-strong waves. Please continue observing the supreme soul, the energy sphere, and his yin and yang embryo. It was more difficult for him to try increasing the vibration speed of the original negative and all harmful particles. At the same time, the energy sphere had become a super-giant sphere. In the energy sphere, areas with different electric waves have formed because countless particles with other electric wave characteristics have formed. That makes the environment in the energy sphere much more complicated than in previous stages. The information values from those environments have become diverse. Do you see anything? Blood-red negative energy particles are produced when the reaction process of detonating the destructive particles outside the energy sphere is not completed. The cause is the same as the production stage of other types of negative particles, which is the vibration speed of the original negative particle and the encoding of information is lacking, and all become overloaded and redundant while the heat is not enough to control it.

- For ivory white positive energy particles with weak electric waves. Please continue to observe the yin and yang embryo of that tuelinh. Blood-red negative particles are no longer produced as the heat from the destructive particle's explosion is absorbed into the embryo. Instead, grey-white harmful particles are made when it has fully re-encoded the information. Besides, ivory white positive particles are produced when there is insufficient heat to create positive particles with stronger electric waves.

In every reaction process that produces particles, harmful energy particles will be generated if the original negative particle has encoded wrong information and is not controlled by positive heat. However, when heat is provided to the yin and yang embryo, the encoded information becomes complete and valuable. At that time, positive energy particles will be produced, and negative particles with weak electric waves will also be produced. In addition, neutral energy particles are always produced when the yin-yang embryo creates positive energy particles.

You need to understand that, after forming energy particles with different electric wave characteristics, they are always produced in each destructive energy detonation reaction. It does not follow the rules of which type of particle is generated first or last; it depends on the amount of heat from the explosion of destructive energy that creates different kinds of positive energy particles. That shows the importance of information and heat in the yin-yang embryos' energy particle production process. From there, a diversity of energy particles is created in the energy universe.

Remember that, in producing harmful energy particles with strong, very strong and super strong electric waves, the original negative particle of the first tuelinh will be balanced and return to their nature as weak electric waves when the heat from the explosion of destructive energy is absorbed. In particular, because he has grown up and has magical power from the system of yellow positive particles and grey-white negative particles in his body, he can select valuable particles to develop his structure to become stronger and more magical. He eliminated energy particles from that power that were worthless and incompatible with his original yin and yang particles.

Now, please return to the present. Relax after receiving information about energy particles on a difficult level."

After everyone sat and relaxed, the autumn afternoon sunlight faded, and darkness began to cover the vast space and sky. The teacher and everyone began to return to the hotel to rest and continue their journey to visit other relic sites.

The First Tuelinh

When the bus door opened, a thick and high wall appeared in front of everyone's eyes. Large blocks of bricks were glued together to form the walls of the ancient kingdom. That is the kingdom where Prince Siddhartha grew up. Then, he left the capital and the throne, and he will succeed in the future. As you know, he achieved enlightenment after six years of ascetic practice and became Buddha. This ancient capital, surrounded by extensive rice fields, is now only a historical relic in Nepal. The ancient capital is more than an hour away by bus from the border with India. Today is the ninth day of the ten-day journey of the teacher and his students in India and Nepal. The teacher told the students stories about Buddha's journey from when he left the capital until he attained enlightenment and spread knowledge. Besides, before arriving at this ancient capital, the teacher told everyone stories about Prince Siddhartha before leaving to find enlightenment. That is the life of the crown prince, the architecture of the houses in the capital. Therefore, when people step inside the gate of the relic, the foundations of the blocks and the architecture of the ancient citadel seem to be recreated and become an old and familiar citadel.

As everyone walked to the centre of the ruins, the teacher said, "Do you see? The foundation blocks of each house for the private families of each member of the royal family are the same as what I described to you before. Look at the southeast direction over there; that is where the king expanded the capital and built a temple for the prince to practice and study. After the capital was expanded, it was three times larger than the old capital. However, that did not make the prince stop being bored. As a result, he left this capital from the southeast and went southeast to the territory that now belongs to India to practice. He then achieved achievements in enlightenment and imparted his knowledge.

Did you know? According to the plan of the tuelinh council, our journey to return to visit these relics is two years from now. However, we must return to these relics two years earlier. That helps me restore essential memories of my past life and upgrade my enlightened knowledge to a new level. In addition, time is running out, so everything and tasks are being implemented faster by my tuelinh and tuelinh council."

After that, the teacher and everyone spent the morning visiting the remaining ruins of the ancient citadel. The regrets about the bustling capital of an old country are evident in everyone's thoughts and words when witnessing the remaining ruins. It results from wars between ancient nations and the ravages of time.

After a few hours of rest and lunch, the teacher and his students continued visiting another relic in Buddha's life, where the crown prince was born. That place is close to the ancient capital, and people continue to travel by bus. Even though it was afternoon, the sun had already set when we arrived and gradually hid behind the forests and hills. At this relic, there is a huge house that preserves traces and stories about the birth of the crown prince. Outside the house is a lake and a tall iron pillar. The iron pillar is a symbol that always appears at relics related to the life and process of preaching the knowledge of Buddha. Those massive iron pillars were erected by a king who previously unified ancient countries into one vast India. Because that king had deep faith in Buddha's knowledge, he spread Buddha's knowledge throughout India. Besides, he built and erected massive iron pillars at locations believed to be essential milestones in Buddha's life. That was how the king wanted future generations to know about Buddha's journey of practice and teaching of enlightened knowledge.

Everyone sat together on the lawn after touring the entire campus where the crown prince was born. The autumn afternoon sunlight is gradually fading and replaced by cool breezes and darkness. At that time, a student said to the Teacher, "Teacher, I and everyone else would like to have a deep understanding of the first tuelinh: How he was formed and became a mature tuelinh? Please teach us all about that special knowledge."

He said, "You should feel the natural beauty and wonderful autumn afternoon of this place first, then I will tell you interesting things about the first tuelinh."

After a few minutes of feeling a natural beauty and the cool breeze here, the Teacher began lecturing, "Actually, you have learned a lot about the supreme soul. Those lectures have helped you understand the knowledge of ancestral wave-particles, the yin and yang embryos, the energy sphere of the universe, and the types of energy particles produced by that supreme soul. Before that, some sermons mentioned him many times. In particular, in the lecture on the production mechanism of yin and yang particles and the diversity of types of yin and yang energy particles, I analyzed and talked about him a lot. It can be said that I talked 50% about the first tuelinh. Do you know what that is? That mechanism produces yin and yang energy particles with different electric wave characteristics. You must understand that when talking about the production mechanism of energy particles, we are talking about the first tuelinh. On the contrary, when discussing the first tuelinh, we discuss the mechanism that produces yin and yang particles. Why? Because he was created from the transformation of two ancestral wave-particles to form two yin and yang energy particles. After those two magical energy particles bond together to form a yin and yang energy embryo, it operates a mechanism to produce countless smallest energy particles with different negative and positive electric waves. The diversity of life forms in the universe is formed from those countless yin and yang energy particles. Do you know what the remaining 50% of the first tuelinh is? Remember, in a recent lecture, I mentioned an inseparable pair of mechanisms. So, what is it?"

A student immediately replied, "That is the linking mechanism, Teacher. The production mechanism and the connection mechanism are an inseparable set of mechanisms in developing life in the universe from the miraculous yin and yang energy embryo."

The Teacher said, "That's right, the remaining 50% of the knowledge and understanding about the first tuelinh is the connecting mechanism. When you understand the entire knowledge of the mechanism of production and linking, you will understand the birth and growth of the first tuelinh.

Remember that energy particles are produced by a reaction process that absorbs information and heat from the external environment into the internal environment of the yin and yang embryo. The subject must have yin and yang energy embryos inside to produce yin and yang energy particles. That means physical structures without yin and yang energy embryos cannot produce negative and positive particles. It depends on the reaction process between the yin and yang environment inside the energy embryo and the outside environment to generate particles with different electric wave characteristics. The primary environment is information and heat. It would help if you remembered the production mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo in general and the yin and yang energy embryo of the first tuelinh.

When talking about the bonding mechanism of energy particles with electric waves, you must remember that there are two types of bonding, which are:

- Mechanism of connection between the smallest negative and positive energy particles to form yin and yang embryos. This type of connection accounts for the universe's diversity of matter and life forms.

- Mechanism of connecting energy particles with the same electric wave to form synthetic energy particles. That is, the smallest positive energy particles bond together to form synthetic positive energy particles; the smallest particles of negative energy bond together to form composite negative energy particles; and the smallest neutral particles connect to form aggregate neutral particles. The composite energy particles undergo a binding reaction after the energy embryo produces the smallest energy particles. This connection helps the yin and yang energy embryo grow stronger in structure and informational value.

The conditions for the binding reaction to occur are:

- For the linking mechanism to form yin and yang energy embryos, the linking reaction only occurs when the following conditions are met:

- + Negative energy particles bond with positive energy particles. They bond in a 1:1 ratio. That means only one negative particle bonds with one positive particle to form a yin and yang embryo. There will be no exceptions to creating a yin and yang embryo.

- + Between the smallest negative particle and the smallest positive particle, similarity or matching information must exist.

- + Between negative and positive particles, there must be the same type of vibration code. That is, energy particles with simple intellectual wave codes will connect, energy particles with complex intellectual wave codes will bond, and energy particles with super-complex intellectual wave codes will link.

- For the binding mechanism to form synthetic particles, the linking reaction only occurs when the following conditions are met:

+ The smallest particles linked together must have the same electric waves. That is the linking between negative particles, between positive particles, and between neutral particles.

+ The particles must have the same information content. Different reactions during movement can produce particles but must have the same information value. When synthetic positive, negative, and neutral particles are formed, they will continue to bond to create a composite cluster of energy particles. The synthetic particle cluster has the following structure: the synthetic positive particles are linked by the synthetic neutral particles, the neutral particles become the connecting rope between the synthetic positive particles, and the synthetic negative particles move around the synthetic positive particles in a 1:1 ratio.

+ There must be the same type of vibrational wave code between the particles. That is, energy particles with simple intellectual wave codes will connect, energy particles with complex intellectual wave codes will bond, and energy particles with super-complex intellectual wave codes will link.

Remember, the bonding mechanism of the smallest particle with positive and negative electric waves is inevitable after the production mechanism is completed. This set of mechanisms is the mechanism that operates the law of cause and effect. In a lecture on cause and effect, I will further analyze the mechanism of generation and connection from a different perspective. To understand the birth and growth of the first tuelinh, you only need to understand the mechanism of such production and linking. That knowledge is enough to confuse you, and you need to read and listen to this lesson many times to understand about the supreme soul."

Another student asked the teacher, "Teacher, please explain more clearly to us about the compatibility of information in the linking mechanism that forms yin and yang embryos and the same information content in the linking mechanism that forms synthetic particles."

The teacher smiled and said, "An excellent and valuable question to help learners understand faster. I give you two examples to make it easier for you to understand:

- Example one: a man and a woman who love each other and get married. The male represents the positive particle, and the female represents the negative particle. They are entirely different in gender as well as internal nature. The fact that they fell in love and decided to get married resulted in them finding out information about each other. The information they learn about each other can be their appearance, personality, family situation, and economic ability. Besides, there are the inner emotions of each person when they interact with each other. When their inner feelings and the value of the information they learn about each other match or partially, they will fall in love and marry.

- Example two: I teach the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle. After studying, you decided to follow me to spread this knowledge together. It is the result of faith, the nature of understanding knowledge, and dedicating one's life to carrying out the mission together on the path of enlightenment in the human world. That shows that each of us represents an energy particle with the exact nature of information inside. Then, we join in carrying out the mission when everyone has the same ideology and information.

Example one represents the bonding mechanism of the yin and yang embryo, and example two illustrates the bonding mechanism of the composite energy particle. Those two examples are similar to the information problem in terms of the mechanism of connection between particles to form yin-yang embryos and composite particles. However, to thoroughly understand, you must study the lectures on the nature of yin and yang embryo pairs and the law of cause and effect in future lectures."

The student immediately replied, "Teacher, the two examples you gave have helped me better understand the compatibility of information in the linking mechanism that forms yin and yang embryos and the same information content in the linking mechanism forms aggregate particles. From the smallest particles and their operating mechanisms, it's amazing that we can use phenomena and facts to explain them."

The Teacher continued to lecture, "You must understand that from the smallest energy particles, all things and life forms in and outside the universe are created. Therefore, you must realise particles, their operational mechanism, and their nature. From there, you can understand and explain the nature of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe.

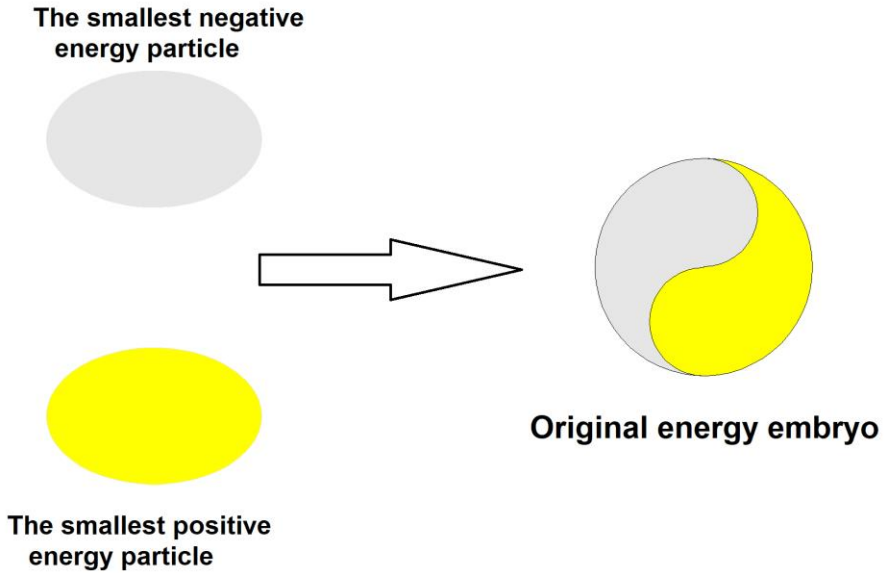

Now, we return to the process of the first tuelinh being born and growing up after you have understood the mechanism of production and connection. Through that set of mechanisms, you not only deeply understand the first tuelinh, but you can appreciate other tuelinhs, people, animals, and all things, events, and phenomena in and out of the universe.

Hey friends, I must emphasise and reaffirm to you that the first tuelinh is God. All things and life forms in this universe were created from his yin and yang energy embryo. All tuelinhs respect him, and they call him Father. Humans also have to pay the same respect because within each of us is a tuelinh that exists within. He practised many lifetimes in the human world and attained full enlightenment, that is, Buddha. It would help if you were respectful when thinking and talking about him. He is the source and power of all life forms in this universe. We need to have reverence for him to have invaluable strength and support from the source within ourselves. Of course, even if we deny and reject him, he will never deny and leave us.

Now, we return to the past time of the universe's magical yin and yang energy embryo, which is the appearance of a negative energy particle with weak electric waves and a positive particle with super strong electric waves. These smallest yin and yang energy particles are transformed from ancestral wave-particles in a thermal environment. These two particles have electric wave properties because they are formed in a thermal environment, so they have a mechanism of spinning around themselves. When the negative particle rotates, it will stimulate the vibration speed to absorb heat and information from the outside environment. On the contrary, when the positive particle rotates, it will radiate heat and transmit information from the inside out. Both energy particles have the compatibility of information, so they easily connect to form the universe's magical yin and yang energy embryo.

There are two reasons why those two yin and yang particles are linked together:

- They have a mechanism to rotate and orbit against each other. This mechanism helps positive particles radiate heat and information while harmful particles absorb heat and information.

- There is compatibility in information between two yin and yang particles, so they can easily connect into yin and yang embryos when they have a spinning mechanism. The compatibility in the information of these two particles is due to a chain of detonation reactions of destructive particles. That is, positive particles are formed when wave-particles move into a sufficiently hot thermal environment; Negative particles are formed when wave-particles move through a hot thermal environment but have not yet fully converted, then move into a cold thermal environment after travelling through a neutral environment. Both hot and cold thermal environments are created by an explosive reaction of destructive particles simultaneously and at the same point in space.

Thus, the universe's magic at that time was the evolution of wave-particles. These are wave-particles that essentially contain a vast source of energy that has not yet been activated and does not encode information; however, they have developed into a yin and yang energy embryo with electric waves and encoded immense information value inside after going through the process of developing into the annihilating particle life form, then the smallest positive and negative particles. The connection to form the yin and yang embryo of the two smallest yin and yang particles creates a miraculous development in the development process of the universe.

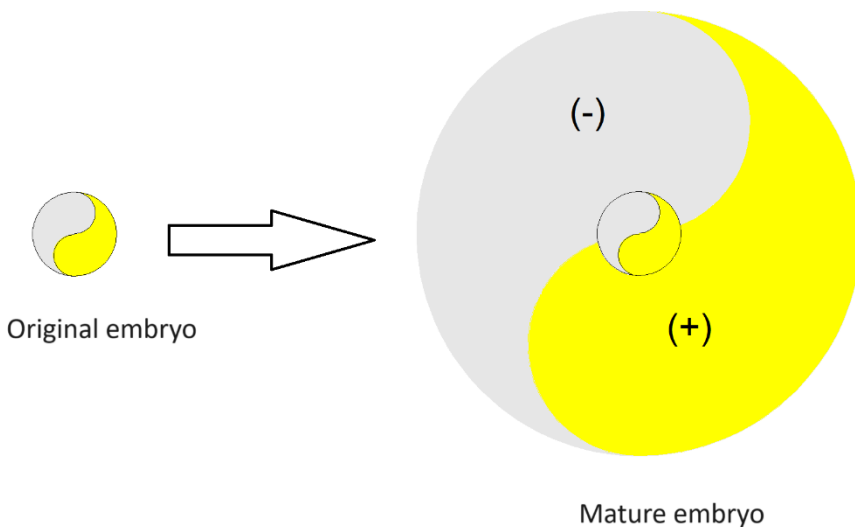

When the yin and yang energy embryo of the first tuelinh was formed, it became a significant milestone in the development process of the first tuelinh and the entire life of the universe. In addition, it marked the appearance of a new type of reaction in space at that time, which was the information reaction between negative and positive particles. It is the information reaction of the yin and yang energy embryo with the external environment. The information values of the yin and yang particles are transmitted and circulated together, and it causes the yin and yang embryo to rotate around itself. Thus, the yin and yang embryo has a rotating mechanism. It is the inheritance of both positive and negative particle rotation mechanisms.

The rotation mechanism and the information reaction process of that yin and yang embryo with the outside environment have created a new mechanism: producing energy particles. As you know, yellow-positive and grey-white harmful energy particles are generated in increasing quantities. In particular, the membrane layer of this yin and yang energy embryo becomes thicker and more durable. It is thicker and more durable because the neutral particles produced move to the embryo's shell and help the embryo become durable. Positive energy particles with super strong electric waves and harmful energy particles with weak electric waves are generated due to the nature of that yin and yang embryo. That is, the negative particle vibrates with weak electric waves so as not to attract the attack of many destructive particles. In contrast, the super strong positive particle controls the vibration of the harmful particles and has enough power to detonate the annihilation particles. The magic of this pair of yin and yang embryos has helped it produce countless smallest energy particles that inherit the power of the yin and yang particles in the embryo. That yin and yang embryo is like a challenger and a leisurely and free ruler in the living space of destructive energy. It regulates the information between the original positive and negative particles to continuously carry out reactions that absorb and detonate the annihilation particles. It is called the information reaction process with the external environment to absorb heat and information for particle production. As a result, after a long time, that yin-yang embryo became a mature yin-yang embryo.

The yin and yang energy embryo of the first Tuelinh

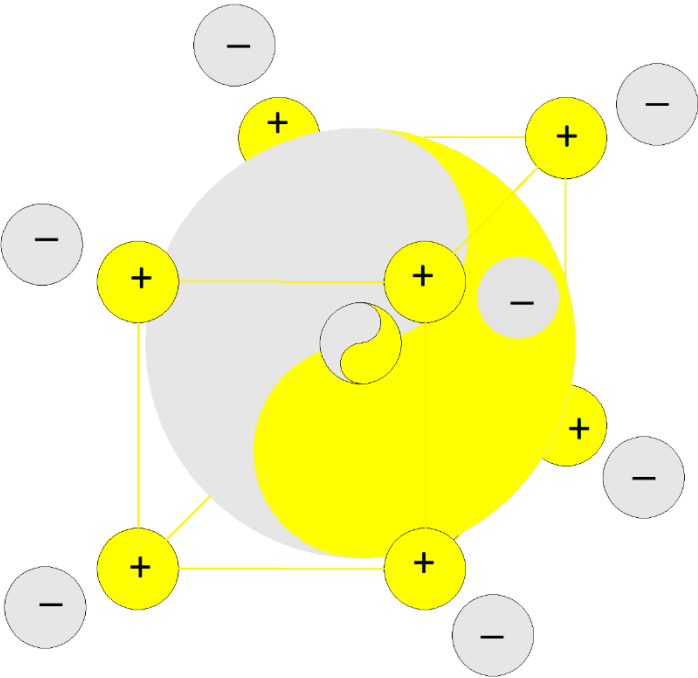

The mature yin and yang embryo is the development of the original embryo after it has implemented the mechanism to produce countless positive, negative and neutral particles through destructive particle detonation reactions. The mature embryo consists of the original yin and yang embryo inside, the two outer yin and yang poles containing the smallest positive and negative energy particles. The separation between the original embryo and the two extremes of yin and yang is a membrane made up of neutral particles. Protecting the entire mature embryo is an energy envelope made of neutral particles.

Do you know the difference between an original embryo and an adult embryo? The initial embryo stores intellectual wave code fibres generated by the initial positive and negative particles. It means the intellectual wave code fibres carrying the negative electric waves are stored in the original negative particle next to the original harmful intellectual wave code fibre after birth. The intellectual wave code fibres with positive electric waves are stored in the original positive particle next to the initial positive, intelligent fibre after birth. The intellectual wave code fibres carrying neutral electric waves will move into the membrane layer and make the membrane layer of the embryo thicker. Producing intellectual wave code fibres causes the original embryo to become larger and contains many intellectual wave code fibres. Then, the original yin-yang embryo had a reaction of splitting the shell into two, and the intellectual wave code fibres in the original embryo copied and became the smallest particles after moving outside the shell of the initial embryo. They are stored at the positive and negative poles outside the initial embryo. The yin pole contains the smallest harmful particles, the positive pole contains the smallest positive particles, and the shell protecting the mature embryo contains the smallest neutral particles. Thus, the mature embryo consists of the original embryo containing the intellectual wave-code fibres. The two extremes have the smallest particles formed by copying from the intelligent wave-code fibres in the initial embryo. This energy embryo's destructive particle detonation reaction process helped it develop and become a mature embryo with countless yin and yang energy particles at the two extremes outside the original embryo. You must remember that the produced intellectual wave code fibres always exist in the original yin and yang particles, and the smallest energy particles are copied from the intellectual wave code fibres in the initial embryo.

The mature energy embryo with an externally expanded synthetic 16-particle structure

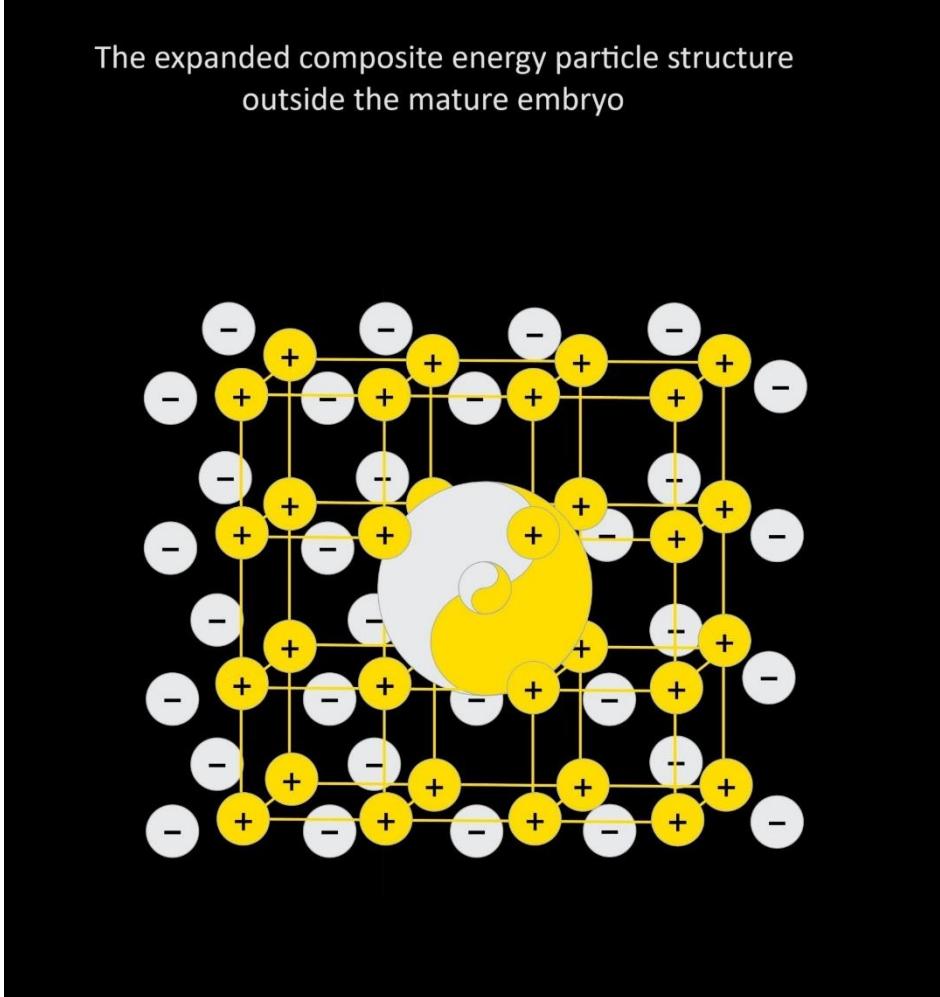

When the smallest energy particles in the extremes containing yin and yang particles become numerous, they move out of the mature embryo and form composite energy particles. They include synthetic positive particles, synthetic negative particles, and synthetic neutral particles. Do you know how they are formed? The smallest positive particles at the positive pole bond to form composite positive particles, the smallest negative particles at the negative pole bond to form composite harmful particles, and the smallest neutral particles bond together to form aggregate particles. As they move out of the mature yin-yang embryo, they link together to form a composite 16-particle structure outside the mature yin-yang embryo. Neutral particles attach to the positive particles, the neutral particles become electric wave transmission lines between the positive particles, and the harmful particles vibrate and rotate around the positive particles. Have you seen it? The yin and yang embryo of the first tuelinh has a particle structure in a 1:1 ratio. It is the golden ratio because only one negative particle vibrates and rotates around one positive particle.

Do you know why the smallest particles bond together to form composite energy particles? That's because they have the same information content and electrical wave nature. These are the smallest positive, negative, and neutral particles produced by the same detonation reaction of the destructive particles of the yin and yang embryo, so they have the same information content in each type of particle. In addition, they have similar information because negative, positive, and neutral particles are produced by the same reaction that detonates destructive particles. Therefore, they bond together to form aggregate energy particle clusters. A synthetic negative particle rotates around a synthetic positive particle, and the neutral particle is the transmission path between composite positive particles. Thus, to form synthetic energy particles, the yin and yang embryo must produce many energy particles with the same information content for each type of yin, yang, and neutral particles. Next, to form aggregate particle clusters outside the mature embryo, the aggregated particles must have similarities in information content.

Producing and bonding the smallest energy particles into synthetic particles helped the yin and yang energy embryo of the first tuelinh to develop structurally and intellectually. The structure becomes larger with 16 synthetic particles on the outside. The intelligence of the first tuelinh has evolved because the information value encoded in the structure has increased. That marked the remarkable development of ideology and action of his yin and yang embryo. Please note that before the synthetic particles move out of the mature embryo to form 16 synthetic particles outside the mature embryo, the protective shell of the mature embryo has been peeled off to create a new shell that encloses the entire mature embryo structure and synthetic outer particles. In particular, in addition to the particles that make up the composite particle structure outside his energy embryo, the smallest excess particles have migrated out of the mature embryo and exist independently outside his structure but still within the envelope of the energy sphere. After that, the energy sphere becomes larger by moving the smallest particles out of the embryo and structure of the first tuelinh.

After the yin-yang embryo matures with an externally expanded synthetic 16-particle structure formed, destructive particle detonation reactions continuously produce the smallest energy particles. The bonding process between the smallest particles to form aggregate particles outside the mature embryo has made the particle structure of the first tuelinh grow. That helped the first tuelinh to have the intelligence of a baby. He can form a shape like a baby or the shape of a particle structure with a mature embryo and synthetic particles on the outside.

The development of synthetic particle structures outside the mature embryo has helped the intelligence of the tuelinh baby become more magical. In addition to inheriting the wisdom from the original yin and yang embryo, that tuelinh baby has begun to operate the yin and yang energy particles inside the energy sphere to detonate the destructive particles. This process has helped the energy sphere have a variety of energy particles with different electric wave characteristics, from weak to super strong.

With the magical intellectual nature of the original embryo he inherited and the diligence in operating the destructive particle detonation reactions, his intelligence continuously developed. As a result, he became an adult tuelinh and around him were countless types of energy particles with different electric wave properties. All are surrounded and protected by a membrane of a giant energy sphere. We can understand that he was born and inherited the essence of transcendent wisdom from two magical yin and yang particles. With that nature, he became a leader in the destructive energy space. He fought tirelessly to produce countless energy particles with different electric wave properties. In particular, he selected energy particles of the exact nature as the original two yin and yang particles to compose his body. Perhaps because of the harshness of the battle between him and the life form of destructive energy, he understood which energy particles were the most valuable and powerful to help him survive and develop. Do you remember what I said about his annihilation particle detonation after each reaction? His yin energy particle was controlled so that it would no longer shake violently after the yin and yang embryo absorbed the heat from the explosion of destructive energy. That shows that his superior intelligence has enabled him to increase the speed of vibration to attract annihilation particles and control the original negative particle to return to their original nature. That also shows the intellectual power of the initial positive particle in coordinating and operating the original negative particle to effectively participate in the reaction process of detonating the destructive particle.

On the other hand, we see that the first tuelinh lived in a world of the smallest particles for a long time. Do you think he felt bored and lonely? Do you think he was bored with that life when there was neither tuelinh nor similar intelligence to talk to him? Was it for those reasons that he built planets and life forms in the universe after the explosion of the energy sphere occurred? Please answer for yourself because I don't know if he is bored with that life. I see him always working hard and dedicating his life to building, developing and protecting all life forms in this universe. We only discovered his formation and development from the yin and yang energy particle embryo until he became a mature tuelinh. To understand him, we must continue exploring his remarkable journey from after the Big Bang to today."

When the teacher finished teaching, it was late at night, and people were leaving while his group was still sitting on the grass and relaxing after the lesson. The lecture marked the completion of the tour and pilgrimage for the teacher and his students. After tonight, the teacher and his students will move and return to their hometown, where his classes are located. The students wait for him to return, so they continue listening to his lectures.

Chapter Forty-Eight

Heaven - The Most Wonderful Planet in the Universe

Finally, the teacher and students boarded the plane. That is a flight from Patna to India's capital, New Delhi. His group had to travel by bus for many hours from early morning to cross the border of Nepal and India after completing the journey to visit the relic where Buddha was born and raised. It was a long journey and had to go through many bad roads, so people felt tired when they got to the airport. However, when everyone completed the procedures and boarded the plane to fly to the Indian capital before flying back to Vietnam, everyone felt regretful because they had completed the ten-day pilgrimage. Because of their regret and nostalgia for those relics, people told each other they would return to those places.

The students fell asleep when the plane was taxiing on the airport runway and preparing to take off. The plane's engine and the cold air in the cabin made people easily fall asleep when they felt tired after a long trip for many hours. While the students fell asleep, even though the plane was taxiing, the teacher was still awake and looking through the plane's window. He observed the space outside as if saying goodbye to this land of many memories. It's a goodbye, not knowing when he'll have the chance to return.

At that time, the plane was accelerating and starting to take off. A few minutes later, the aircraft rose and continuously increased its altitude. The teacher closed his eyes. However, he did not sleep. Instead, he is trying to recall all the memories of his practice lives, especially the practice lives associated with the territories he has passed through on this pilgrimage journey. Those memories helped him regain valuable information about his experience, teaching enlightened knowledge in his past life. It was a miracle for his students when they witnessed the steps over time to restore the wisdom of enlightenment from his tuelinh and past lives.

Please join me in integrating into the teacher's inner reality to discover the wisdom and information he recalls. Please join me in observing the images and listening to the teacher's words during that retrospective process.

"Finally, the plane took off. Goodbye, and I will return to this place in the future. I have gone through a journey of teaching enlightened knowledge and the smallest particle of energy while also returning wisdom and teaching experience from past lives. That helps the body and mind of this body have enough strength to contain and process vast amounts of information from my tuelinh. That is not easy at all. Translating noble knowledge about the smallest energy particles to learners takes work. It is noble knowledge because inside the smallest energy particle are information values. Those information values form the mechanism of production - connection and the mind dharma. When learners understand it, they will understand the past, present, and future of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. In addition, they will easily practice the particle production mechanism to transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. That means they will attain the unified Tao of the universe.

What should I do now when humanity and science cannot measure or see the smallest energy particle? At the same time, the knowledge I am teaching is the knowledge of the smallest energy particle. Not only that, I am teaching everyone in depth about the knowledge inside the particle, which is the information values that make up the mind dharma. I have told many students that for scientists to capture images of the smallest energy particle with a simple intelligence wave code, they must have two improvements to the largest accelerometer in the world. At that time, they could only see the smallest particle but could not discover the information values inside the particle stored in the intellectual wave code. They need help to do that. However, with applications from the knowledge of the smallest energy particle and the two truths, we have proven to everyone its value. Through this special enlightened knowledge, I can help countless people escape from suffering and tribulations in life. In particular, there have been many people who have overcome diseases such as depression, postpartum depression, anxiety disorders, paranoia, hallucinations, insomnia, schizophrenia, and several other diseases. People are healed by listening to and practising knowledge as they become alert. It is a method of re-encoding informational values for sustainable development into the soul and body cells to heal diseases and help the souls mature. That is an entirely new method, but it is a testament to the value of the knowledge I am spreading to everyone. Those achievements are the fulcrum and firm belief to dedicate my life to helping me apply this special enlightened knowledge in the human world in this second grand unification and saving sentient beings. At the same time, it allows learners and people worldwide to gain confidence to learn and practice their mission in human life.

My body and wisdom, please be delighted. Let's look at the outstanding achievements over the years to become stronger. Let's put faith in learners even though my knowledge is complex. The learners will adequately comprehend and apply the knowledge about the smallest particles in their lives so that transforming their yin and yang embryos will be the fastest and most successful. After many years of preaching this knowledge, I have many excellent students. They have understood and applied my knowledge very well in their lives. In particular, they have helped many patients recover from mental and physical illnesses. In addition, they have helped countless people suffering from demons controlling their bodies and spiritual and religious issues return to everyday life. Those are miracles from learners and practitioners of knowledge. Therefore, no matter how much pressure there is and how difficult knowledge is, we must not give up on this journey. Think a lot and constantly transform knowledge of the smallest energy particle to become more accessible to help learners easily understand and practice them.

Hey guys, you're inside me and listening to my thoughts. By the way, I will take you back to my past to see the magic of our homeland. Do you know where that hometown is? It is a planet built after the Big Bang, located at the centre of the universe. People often call it paradise, Buddha's country, or God's country. Please be quiet to observe and listen to the words I spend for my body and wisdom. That means that I spend these recollections in my physical form, but since you have merged within me to gain those understandings, I request that you please keep yourself quiet to join this unique journey of my memories.

Hey, my body and mind, you must remember all the information I gave you. From that information and the tribulations in life, you must analyse them to upgrade your enlightened knowledge to reach new heights. Then, we must preach and spread that knowledge to humanity. You can rest assured that I am always inside and guiding you to complete those tasks. And now receive my recollections of the universe's most wondrous planet.

I am standing in the centre of a super-giant energy sphere. The energy sphere had not yet had a big explosion at this time. I am still trying and concentrating hard on vibrating the harmful energy particles in the sphere and the original negative particles in my yin and yang embryo to create an information signal that attracts many destructive particles to attack. It was no small challenge for me because the energy sphere was super-giant. It has become more difficult to control, and I need help maintaining and growing this energy sphere further. After each time I increased the vibrational speed of all the harmful particles in the energy sphere, I felt like I was losing more strength. Operating the negative particle system is uncomfortable when they gradually disobey my instructions. I only became genuinely comfortable and healthy when I absorbed the heat from the explosions of destructive energy outside the sphere. That heat gives me confidence in producing the smallest positive energy particles and controlling the original yin particle in my energy embryo. Do you know? I have been trying to absorb as much heat as possible from the explosions of destructive energy outside into my yin and yang embryo. Heat is dissipated when it moves through areas with many harmful particles. That means I need heat very much and only accept the loss within the allowable range to make operating all types of particles easier in the energy sphere. As a result, countless types of the smallest energy particles are born from me, and they contribute to the diversity of electric wave characteristics and numbers in the energy sphere.

Look around in the energy sphere; countless yin and yang energy embryos have been formed. It is the result of the production and bonding mechanism. They are my children who have grown up. All the energy particles in this sphere are my children. Do you see? My children have developed structurally and intellectually by linking yin and yang particles with the same vibrational wave code to form yin and yang embryos. I'm pleased about that. It makes me responsible for all my children.

Don't think I'm selfish for absorbing all the heat from the explosions of destructive energy, while those yin and yang embryos don't have a chance to absorb the heat and develop their structures to become more mature. Don't think I'm selfish for producing so many new energy particles from the heat without giving them to those yin and yang embryos. Everything has a cause. That is:

- Only my energy embryo can detonate the destructive particles after they attack me, while the other yin and yang embryos cannot. Those yin and yang embryos were born from me, so they are different from me, being taken from two wave-particles.

- The space of destructive energy outside the energy sphere is vast, and the number of annihilation particles is enormous. Suppose I do not produce as many of the smallest energy particles as possible to build and develop them into large structures. In that case, the entire energy sphere will be disintegrated and detonated by the destructive particle life form.

- I need many energy particles with different electric wave properties that have enough power to participate in the detonation reaction of many destructive particles. The heat from the explosion will give me the strength to help the yin and yang embryos in the sphere grow strong. In addition, I have time to focus on building the physical structures in the sphere instead of wasting time on protecting them from the attack of destructive particle life forms.

Did you hear anything? That was the sound of the big explosion I just created. It occurs on the envelope side of the energy sphere. That resulted from the process in which I produced countless smallest energy particles and the massive attack of destructive energy into the membrane of the energy sphere. To do that, I created a maximum vibration wave of the entire negative particle system to attract many annihilation particles to attack. Then, I operated many positive particles moving towards the membrane to detonate many destructive particles. Amazingly, many outer destruction particles covering the energy sphere were also detonated after that explosion. It forms a vast space containing heat to protect all the energy particles. It became the energy universe. Do you know? I didn't absorb that heat but let it stay like that after the explosion. That heat will form a wall to block the attack of destructive energy into the space of the energy universe after the explosion. In addition, that heat will help me use it to build and develop life forms from yin and yang particles.

Hey, my friend! It's all my thinking and calculations. It shows that I am not selfish with my children. You see, destructive energy cannot attack the energy space containing yin and yang particles because of the heat after the Big Bang. That shows that heat is responsible for protecting all my children and provides heat for me to develop life forms in the universe. The yin and yang embryos perform the production and bonding mechanism after absorbing the heat from the Big Bang. They are growing up under the protection and operation of outer space from me.

You must remember and teach your students that space contains the smallest energy particles that are still spinning around the central space after the explosion. I am still there to operate all things in the universe. You must remember that spinning around themselves is the nature of energy particles with electric waves. It exists from the formation of the smallest particle until the formation of my energy embryo; it continues to exist until the state of the universe today and in the future.

Spinning helps the entire cosmic sphere, from the smallest particle, to balance and circulate information. That helps life forms in the universe have a magical mechanism to absorb destructive particles to detonate them. It is a miraculous mechanism to help life forms in the universe develop structurally and intellectually. In particular, it supports all life forms not to decay before the attack of destructive energy. However, to do that, my children must grow up and learn how to do it.

Hey, my friend. You see me existing in the middle of the energy space after the Big Bang with a massive body like an adult. However, I don't have time to rest or relax when you see my peace. What do you see? The aura and five-coloured light radiating from me, with yellow and white as the primary colours, is the value of the information encoded in the entire system of intellectual wave-code fibres inside me. I will have to use that intelligence to protect, build, and develop the life of this universe. Let your students know that the auras and light emanating from God and Buddha are the light of wisdom because the information values are encoded within the structure. It's not a miracle or something strange. All tuelinhs and souls will achieve that when they encode valuable information that develops sustainably after the practice in human form in the human world. The value of information stored through learning and practising will create extraordinary power for each tuelinh, not through meditation and supernatural powers according to religious and spiritual perspectives in the human world. Let humanity know that truth.

What do you see? Many yin and yang energy embryos have been formed, and they are maturing very quickly through the mechanism of production and connection when provided with heat after the Big Bang. Hey, my friend, now I have to focus on building and growing the lives of the yin and yang embryos after the explosion. Therefore, please focus on observing and listening to my thoughts.

My brain's wisdom and body can understand everything I tell him, and his students can understand it, too. It's time for me to get to work. It's fantastic; my children have overgrown after the explosion. Those yin and yang energy embryos have become mature embryonic structures with many synthetic particles on the outside. They lack heat for the particle production process to continue. Let me absorb heat from outside for them. Amazingly, they continue to produce particles when provided with heat.

What do I do with the space containing the smallest particles and mature embryos? Indeed, I have never built a detailed plan after the explosion occurred. At this time, I have mixed feelings between busyness because of the things I have to do and emptiness when I am alone. Is it loneliness or what? It is not loneliness because I have always had the companionship of the smallest particles around me since I was an energy embryo. Ah! It is time. I am racing against time to take advantage of the Big Bang's heat source for building the universe while I still need to shape the details of that construction plan. Time is the process by which the energy sphere rotates around me, and now is energy space. What should I do first? – I need my children, and I will help them grow up so they can accompany me. It is an excellent plan for me to have partners building and developing life forms in the universe. However, for my children to grow like me, they must endure a long time. Therefore, I must build a place to protect and help them grow up. So, I already have a detailed plan for building life forms after the explosion: to create a magical place and children with the same structure and intelligence as me. I call children who are similar to me tuelinh life forms. Tuelinh is a life form with the most superior intelligence of all life forms in the universe, and they are formed from yin and yang embryos with super-complex intellectual wave codes.

It is wonderful that I have gathered yin and yang embryos with super-complex intellectual wave codes into the central space. Besides, I have also prepared a lot of heat to help my children mature through production and connection. So, please rest assured that I will enjoy your growth because I have to build a magical place for you.

To build that magical place, I must select structures of yin and yang energy embryos that are different from the structures of my children. I need a place where my children can walk and enjoy the beauty of that place. In addition, that place must have the power to protect and help my children grow up. I understood that I would create a place made of energy particles with simple intellectual wave codes because the simple intellectual wave codes would create a place for tuelinhs to reside when their structures become enormous.

Finally, I have gathered the yin and yang energy embryo structures with simple intellectual wave codes in the energy space and put them into the central space. Let me absorb the heat for them so they can mature quickly. They are also my children, but their intelligence cannot compare to the tuelinhs. Therefore, they are simple materials.

The mature yin and yang embryos with simple intellectual wave codes matured very quickly when I provided heat to them. It's incredible how those mature embryos join together to form larger, simple physical structures. They are increasingly interconnected to create larger physical structures. In particular, inside them, the production and connection mechanism continuously occurs when supplied with the heat of the big explosion. Those mature physical structures are interconnected because they have similarities in information between the yin and yang embryos. It's incredible how mature embryos continuously produce the smallest particles and then bond together while already bonding with other embryos to form massive, simple physical structures. Let me continue to provide heat for those physical structures to grow stronger.

Keep looking; many types of simple matter have already developed into massive structures with different colours. They are stone blocks of different colours and metal blocks with different properties. Their number is increasing, and they exist separately from each other. That doesn't seem suitable for my children in the future. Why are those blocks of matter separate from each other? – Ah! Because they differ in internal information, they create diverse groups of simple physical structures. Mature embryos are only linked when they have the same or similar informational value. That's why there are many different blocks of stone, many other metal blocks, and many different types of simple material structures. What should I do now to help them connect and form a large, simple physical whole? It is not easy to link simple physical structures together when they have different internal information. Let me observe and analyze all those simple physical structures. I think that there will be a type of matter that can unite all those discrete physical structures into a large and unified whole.

After a process of analysis and experimentation, I have found a simple type of matter to be the subject that unites all the discrete simple material structures into a whole with a tightly connected structure. It is a particular type of rock crystal with a smoky black colour. This stone crystal radiates white light and silver light. It can balance the information value between different simple physical structures. To develop that power, energy with a complex intellectual wave code will have to link simple physical structures with that special stone crystal.

Ultimately, I created an enormous material structure after using that particular rock crystal block in the centre to connect the separate simple blocks of material on the outside together. Complex energy is responsible for connecting that block of rock to all simple physical structures. However, I need to increase the heat of the Big Bang to help this giant material structure bond and grow further. As a result, after a long time, this physical structure has become a magical place with trees, rocks, vast seas and lakes, mountains and hills. All of them radiate brilliant iridescent light. I call it the House of Tuelinhs.

Hey my friend, what's so special about this place so far? Let me tell you interesting things about it:

- I have created a giant cave, and there are many rock crystals similar to the rock crystals in the core of this planet. Those magical stone crystals radiate white light mixed with silver. That is where I brought energy embryos with super-complex intellectual wave codes to nurture and create baby tuelinhs. This place can be called the birthplace of baby tuelinhs.

- Architecture such as the temple and the works of the tuelinh life form are all made from gold and precious stones. They radiate an aura that is both ancient and brilliant.

- The sea and lake have no ripples. The reason is that this magical planet has no moons or suns. Besides, on the bottom of the sea and lake are blue lapis lazuli gems. They radiate light through the water to form a brilliant blue light above the water.

- Green grass and trees. They all radiate iridescent light that is very enchanting and seductive.

- Soil and rock are both made up of precious stones. They radiate different types of light and intertwine with the light of plants and water to form a beautiful iridescent aura.

- This magical planet has many mountains and hills with green grass and trees mixed with halos of light. The children love to play on the hills and mountains. Sometimes, they transform into dragons and other legendary animal shapes.

- This magical planet is the centre of the universe, where the quintessence from three groups of matter converges: the group of simple matter crystallized into solid, liquid, and gas; complex groups of matter reside in the simple matter to help them bond closely together; and the tuelinhs life form is a group of super-complex matter. All three groups of physical structures exist and help each other develop more sustainably. In it, the tuelinhs life form is the intelligence of this planet.

- This planet constantly rotates around itself. When this planet completes one revolution, the entire cosmic sphere also completes one.

- The light and aura of this planet shine widely throughout the planets and galaxies around it.

- This place has a space containing shiny golden super-energy particles. That is the particular type of energy that I have created from transforming my energy embryo into an energy filter. That unique energy makes connecting and operating all planets and galaxies in the universe easier. In addition, it helps protect and develop life forms in the universe most effectively.

Hey, my friend, my journey to build this home planet has helped the tuelinhs have a living and learning environment after they were born from rock crystals in magical rock caves. Those rock crystals are the rarest and most valuable gems in the universe. They make it easier to create tuelinhs from yin and yang energy particles with super-complex intellectual wave codes. However, raising and helping tuelinhs to mature later is not easy when the heat from the enormous explosion outside has been exhausted for the later process of building planets and entire galaxies.

When the home planet was built, my children and I were happy. The tuelinhs live on the most magical planet, with brilliant auras radiating from everything there. They enjoy purity and peace on this central planet. My children gradually grew up, and then they joined me in building and creating planets and life forms in the universe."

At this moment, the teacher opened his eyes and escaped from the memory of the journey of building the magical planet of the first tuelinh. It is also the time when the plane lands at the capital airport, New Delhi. All the students also woke up after a nap during the flight from Patna to here.

After leaving the airport, the teacher and students returned to the hotel and rested one night in this capital before returning to Vietnam.

Chapter Forty-Nine

The Universe with the Transcendent Wisdom of the First Tuelinh

After breakfast, everyone went to the coffee bar in the hotel and chose a cup of coffee for themselves. After that, everyone went to the hotel's living room to enjoy their delicious taste. That is a large hotel with many international guests, so the food and drinks here are more delicious than typical Indian dishes. The teacher is not used to drinking coffee because he gets an allergic reaction every time he drinks it, especially if he drinks it before eating. However, because he had already eaten breakfast, this time, he enjoyed the taste of coffee without being allergic. After that, everyone enjoyed delicious cups of coffee. A student immediately went to the coffee counter and ordered another cup for each of them.

This hotel is where the teacher and his students spent a day while they went to India. That is the second time their group have stayed here, and they will remain for a day before flying back to Vietnam tonight. Perhaps because they spent a day visiting famous places in New Delhi when flying here, the whole group wanted to rest at the hotel before boarding the plane. Everyone liked the teacher to share more about what wisdom he had gained during this pilgrimage. That's why everyone talked and asked him to give more lectures before leaving the land of Buddha (India) to return to his homeland. People believe that the teacher's lectures on relics related to the life of Buddha are very valuable and excellent for the students who follow him on this pilgrimage. Even each of his lectures in India is a milestone filled with memories of the old homeland in past lives, even though New Delhi is not related to the life of Buddha from birth to death.

Duong Nalanda brought wonderfully fragrant cups of hot coffee to the teacher and everyone's coffee tables, including a cup of hot cocoa with a seductive aroma. He told the teacher, "Please enjoy this cup of hot cocoa; it is very fragrant and delicious."

Loi Nalanda immediately told the teacher, "Everyone is waiting for you to share the secrets of knowledge and the universe after your journey to visit the relics. We will spend all day today listening to the teacher share and teach knowledge. Then we will go to the airport after dinner. When listening to any of the teacher's lectures, the students all feel meaningful and appreciated, especially when listening to the teacher's lectures on this trip. Therefore, everyone does not want to waste precious time when they are at the teacher."

The teacher smiled and said, "So people want to listen to more lectures about the universe. That's a wonderful thing because the universe comprises countless smallest particles. Understanding the smallest particle is understanding the universe; conversely, through the universe's secrets to better understand and clarify the smallest particle. Did you know? As the smallest energy particle, its structure and intelligence differ from the yin and yang energy embryo. The yin and yang energy embryo differs from the physical structure formed from the connection between the yin and yang embryos. Just like that, physical structures have different structures and intelligence, from small to large scales, such as a planet, a galaxy, galaxy blocks, and the entire universe. Our understanding of the truth and secrets of the universe will make our knowledge of the smallest energy particles encoded greater."

Another student asked the teacher, "Teacher, can you describe the universe at present for us?"

The teacher said, "Do you remember about the giant energy sphere? – It is like a giant ball containing countless smallest energy particles inside. After the Big Bang, the smallest particles were released and moved outward after being compressed in the sphere for a long time. After the particles move outward and are protected by the heat of the explosion, it is no longer called an energy sphere. It is called the space containing the smallest energy particles. After that explosion, the space containing the smallest particle became many times larger. And until now, the space containing the smallest particle is no longer there, but it is replaced by the space containing countless galaxy blocks. We call it the universe. That change was due to the hands and transcendent wisdom of the first tuelinh.

The current universe? Of course, it was bigger than it was after the explosion. It has secrets and operating mechanisms that humans cannot know. Let me tell you these things:

- The centre of the universe is the most magical planet in the universe. It is the homeland of the tuelinhs life form, paradise, Buddha's country, God's country. It is a magical planet because of the lights and peace there. That planet is considered the heart and is the place that provides the energy source to create and maintain life for all other planets in the universe. Through the movement mechanisms of energy particles, the first tuelinh used his magical ability and power to operate the life of all life forms in the universe from the central planet. There, he had a space containing shiny golden energy superparticles with a small pyramid reaching up to his chest. He created it from a unique gemstone similar to the gemstones in the cave that produce the tuelinhs. He uses that gem pyramid to operate all life in the universe, to transmit and receive information, to create vibrations for the negative particle system to attract attacks of destructive energy, and to operate the positive particle system to detonate annihilation energy.

- Each sun has many planets orbiting it to form a solar system. The sun rotates around its centre. Each planet revolves around its centre. That makes day and night for each planet. The rotation mechanism of the planets helps them balance the information and connectivity between their simple physical structures. Without the rotation mechanism, the planets would be disintegrated by destructive energy attacks and detonated when they collided with each other.

- Many solar systems are arranged together and form a strip of light when tuelinhs and humans view them from a distance. It's a galaxy. Many galaxies placed next to each other are called galaxy blocks. That means that each mass of galaxies has many bands of light. Each point of light is a solar system. There are sometimes several solar systems between the masses of galaxies, forming isolated dots of light between the masses of light.

- The galaxies were built by the first tuelinh and arranged outside the core planet of the universe. Closest to the magical planet are many galaxies arranged and surrounded to form a layer of galaxies surrounding the central planet of the universe. Beyond the first layer of galaxy mass is the second layer, which has more galaxy mass than the innermost layer. Like that, countless layers of galaxy blocks are arranged in order from the inside out. They form a super-giant cosmic sphere with numerous galaxy blocks. Hey guys, it has been 20 billion years since the yin and yang embryo of the first tuelinh was formed until now (according to the earth's calendar). That shows the dedication and sacrifice of both intelligence and effort of the first tuelinh in building and developing the universe.

- The entire universe always revolves around the magical planet at the core of the universe. That means that the universe finishes rotating once, and the most beautiful planet will complete its rotation. The rotation mechanism of the universe is the nature of energy particles with electric waves. This mechanism helps the universe to constantly circulate electric waves and information to create explosive reactions of destructive energy. The heat from explosions of destructive energy will help the universe continue to exist and develop more sustainably.

- To create each planet, the first tuelinh must place a special rock crystal at its centre, then use energy with complex wave codes as a material to connect simple physical structures. The unique rock crystal at the core of each planet is shaped like a pyramid.

- Five groups (or eight groups) of energy have complex intellectual wave codes and later have shiny golden super-energy. They were created by the first tuelinh into linked beams. The first tuelinh used them to connect the rock crystal in the core of the central planet to the pyramid rock in the core of all the planets in the universe. That helps the planets move stably in their circular orbits and that of the entire universe. To help the planets rotate around themselves, their solar systems, and around the orbit of the whole universe, he used the pyramid at his workplace to distribute and provide energy to help the connecting wires always be maintained. It would help if you remembered that planets orbiting each other are not due to any physical laws humans have created. That movement is due to energy beams and the wisdom of the first tuelinh. As simple as you see, the moon rotates around the earth, and the earth revolves around the sun. They turn in a precise and stable orbit because energy beams link them. If the energy supply is guaranteed, their orbit will be stable. At that time, they are at risk of being detonated by collision with each other or disintegrated by destructive energy.

- Another secret in each planet that you never knew. That is, through the rotation mechanism and the energy supply from the central planet, a large amount of destructive energy is absorbed into the planets, and they are transformed into particles of fire. The particles of fire are the state of destruction particles that are about to explode due to excess heat. When fire particles are detonated, they provide heat and energy for the production and connection of physical structures on each planet. That is why planets with circular orbits exist and grow structurally. So, you have seen the importance of heat from detonated destructive energy particles. That heat is also the source of energy and life for the tuelinh life form. However, to operate the annihilation particle detonation reactions, the tuelinhs must learn and practice in human life in the human world. That means that the tuelinhs must learn knowledge from all things in the universe, including the first tuelinh.

It would help if you remembered that there is only one universe in this vast and endless space. Outside the cosmic sphere is the space of destructive energy. There is no other universe. Please remember that."

Loi Nalanda said, "Twenty billion years for the journey of the birth of the first tuelinh from an energy embryo and the process of building the universe like today. That is an extraordinary thing, and it shows that the first tuelinh has the most transcendent intelligence in the universe. We must remember and be grateful for his sacrifices and contributions to all things, tuelinhs and people in the universe. Indeed, to build and operate the universe with countless galaxy masses is unimaginable to other tuelinhs."

Another student immediately asked the teacher, "Teacher, how did the first tuelinh build such a wonderful universe?"

The teacher replied, "The universe is truly remarkable because there are countless different life forms, of which the tuelinh and human life forms are the most wonderful. The universe was magical when the yin and yang energy embryo of the first tuelinh appeared. It has been magical and will continue to be even more magic. That miracle is that through the production - connection and spinning mechanism, the first tuelinh built a magical cosmic sphere.

How did he build a fantastic universe like the present?
- He relied on the differences in the nature and vibrational codes of the smallest particles to promote the development of life forms and planets. That seems to make you feel confused. It is simple and not complicated to understand when you know the process of the first tuelinh building the central planet of the tuelinh life form. He created the planets and all life forms in this universe like that. It's the same in the method. However, through his way of building and developing the universe, I want you to understand the five groups (or eight groups) of the smallest energy particles with three different groups of intellectual wave codes. In addition, you will see the transcendent wisdom and outstanding dedication of the first tuelinh in the journey of building, developing and protecting all life forms of the universe.

First, you must understand that all planets and life forms in this universe are formed from the smallest energy particles with different natures and intellectual wave codes. It includes both tuelinh and human life forms. As follows:

- All the smallest energy particles in the universe are divided into three groups of particles: particles with simple intellectual wave code fibres, particles with complex intellectual wave code fibres, and particles with super-complex intellectual wave code fibres. From the difference in the intellectual wave code in each group of particles, they become three types of matter that make up the complete universe. That is:

+ The smallest energy particles with a simple intellectual wave code are called simple particles. Simple particles bond to become simple physical structures such as liquids, gases, and solids. This simple type of matter is linked together to form planets and galaxies.

+ The smallest energy particles with complex intellectual wave codes are called complex particles. They bond with each other to become souls residing in simple physical structures such as rocks, trees, and animals. In addition, complex particles are linked to form the material that binds simple physical structures together into a planet and all planets in the universe into a unified universe.

+ The smallest group of energy particles with a super-complex intellectual wave code is called super matter. The yin and yang particles bond together to become tuelinhs. The tuelinhs are life forms with the most superior intelligence in the universe and are led by the first tuelinh.

- All the smallest energy particles are divided into three types of particles with different electric waves: negative, positive and neutral particles. The neutral particle is born from the yin and yang embryo, so it always has electric waves inside the intellectual wave code fibre, and it can be several negative electric waves or many positive electric waves. That means there are no neutral particles. Therefore, I divide all the smallest particles (including all three groups of matter) into eight types of particles with different electric wave natures. This division will help you easily understand the individual intelligence of every kind of particle and then the intelligence of the physical structure at the scale from the yin and yang embryo up. That shows that even though the entities are the same material group, their intelligence is different. That difference is due to the intellectual nature of the smallest particle. For example, there are differences in intelligence among tuelinhs even though they are the same super-matter group; the difference in intelligence between people even though they are composed of simple matter and super matter inside. The eight types of particles are different:

- + Positive energy particles with super-strong electric waves: This type of particle has super-strong heat and super-fast rotation speed. It can radiate heat and trustworthy information to the outside environment to promote cohesion, spread and sustainable development. This type of particle is yellow.

- + Positive energy particles have very strong electric waves: This type of particle has very strong heat and very fast rotation speed. It can radiate heat and trustworthy information to the surrounding environment to promote the spread and sustainable development of everything. This type of particle is fire-red.

- + Positive energy particles with strong electric waves: This type of particle has strong heat and fast rotation speed. It can radiate heat and trustworthy information to the outside environment to develop things sustainably. This type of particle is green.

- + Positive energy particles with weak electric waves: This type of particle has weak heat and low rotation speed. It does not have the power to radiate heat, and its information has no sustainable development value for the external environment. This type of particle is ivory white.

+ Negative energy particles with weak electric waves: These particles have weak cold heat and low rotation speed. It does not have the power to absorb cold heat and information deficiency from the outside environment into itself; therefore, it does not have the power to destroy itself and other physical structures. This type of particle is grey-white.

+ Negative energy particles with strong electric waves: This type of particle has strong cold heat and fast rotation speed. It can absorb cold heat and false information to disrupt the sustainable development of all things. This type of particle is grey.

+ Negative energy particles have very strong electric waves: This type of particle has very strong cold heat and very fast rotation speed. It can absorb cold heat and false information to disrupt the sustainable development of all things. This type of particle is black.

+ Negative energy particles with super-strong electric waves: This type of particle has super strong cold heat and super fast rotation speed. It can absorb cold heat and information deficiency to disrupt the sustainable development of all things. This type of particle is blood-red.

When four groups of negative particles bond with four groups of positive particles, they create various types of yin and yang energy embryos with new information values. The latest information values result from the information reaction process between the energy embryo's two yin and yang particles. Through the mechanism of production and connection, yin and yang embryos develop and become mature yin and yang embryos. Then, depending on the type of matter, the first tuelinh will build them into different life forms. Specifically:

- For the super-material group, yin and yang embryos are provided heat from detonated annihilation particles to develop into tuelinh babies. The tuelinh babies have different intelligence and nature because each tuelinh is formed from yin and yang particles with other electrical wave characteristics. That constitutes the different values and abilities of each tuelinh in the maturity process. The first tuelinh must help and teach all the tuelinh to them mature.

- For complex material groups, yin and yang embryos are stored in simple material structures to become souls, such as the souls of trees, rocks, and animals. Developing intelligence by increasing the quantity and quality of particles will help them transform into super-matter, the tuelinhs. They need the operation and help of the first tuelinh to have that miraculous development and transformation. In addition, complicated energy groups are used as energy strings to connect between simple physical structures to form planets and the entire universe.

- For simple material groups, yin and yang embryos develop, and they link together when they have similarities in information value. It means that yin and yang embryos are linked together to become atomic, molecular, and extensive physical structures. That creates diversity in the formation of liquid, solid and gaseous substances. These types of matter would be discrete and could not become a unified whole like the planets if it were not for the first tuelinh providing heat from explosions of destructive energy and connecting them by complex energy strings. It was because of the operation of the first tuelinh that countless galaxies with a diversity of planets were formed.

Finally, for these three groups of matter to exist and develop in the difference in electric wave characteristics, the first tuelinh devoted his entire life to operating them. That is, he created destructive energy detonation reactions to provide heat for the development of all life in the universe through the mechanism of production - connection and spinning. Through operating the entire life of all three material groups, the natures that promote sustainable development and the nature that destroys have appeared and taken place. That led him to call them poison and goodness in every physical structure with an energy embryo, including the tuelinh life form. It created concern for the first tuelinh as the physical structures and many tuelinhs were disintegrated and destroyed by the onslaught of destructive energy. Unwilling to let the universe be destroyed, the first tuelinh spent his life researching and finding methods to save, protect and sustainably develop all life forms. Understanding the two transformation mechanisms, especially the sustainable transmutation mechanism, is an outstanding achievement of his on the path to saving all life in the universe.

So, you can see that the tuelinh life form is the most intelligent in the universe, especially the first tuelinh. They are the intellectual centre of the entire universe. Through them, life forms of simple and complex material groups are formed and develop more sustainably. That creates a magical universe with three groups of matter that rely on each other to coexist and develop. The most miraculous thing is that through the production, connection, and spinning mechanism, the first tuelinh found a transformation mechanism to help groups of material structures have the ability to upgrade and transform into more durable physical structures. I will analyze the magic of the transformation mechanism in another lecture so you can deeply understand it."

A student asked the teacher, "Are simple physical structures formed from the connection between yin and yang embryos, so their development process is always changing?"

The teacher replied, "That's true. When yin and yang embryos with simple intellectual wave codes connect, they become a physical structure more extensive than the scale of a yin and yang embryo. At that time, two types of reactions occur in that material structure: the reaction of external information with the internal data of each yin and yang embryo by the particle production mechanism and the process of information reaction between the energy embryos in that physical structure. This complex reaction process causes the nature of matter to change over time when it moves through different environments.

In addition, changes in nature always exist in all groups of materials during their development. In particular, for the tuelinh life form, although each tuelinh is formed from an energy embryo, the information reaction between the inside and the outside always takes place fiercely during their development and maturation.

Did you know? That change in nature results from the chain of information reactions between each subject's internal and external environments through the movement of mechanisms such as production, connection, and rotation. The result of changing nature is to create two transmutation mechanisms: transformation in the direction of destruction and transformation in the direction of sustainability."

When the teacher finished teaching, everyone took the opportunity to lie down and rest on the sofas in the hotel's living room. People may feel overwhelmed when receiving a large amount of information related to energy particles and the universe. Information about energy particles always makes learners feel overwhelmed. The teacher's students clearly understand that, so they take the time to relax and enjoy the valuable information that has been encoded into their souls after listening to the lecture.

Chapter Fifty

Spinning – The Key to Survival and Growth

"We still have this afternoon left; it's the last afternoon on this pilgrimage. During this pilgrimage, I gave critical lectures on energy particle knowledge. Those lectures will help you understand the two truths and know the smallest energy particles. From there, you will have a deep and multi-dimensional view of all things, events, phenomena in and outside the universe, tuelinh, and people. There is still a lot of knowledge about particles, which I will teach in the following lectures. However, after you have listened to the sermons on this pilgrimage, is there anything you do not understand or have any questions about? It would help if you asked questions for lectures that you did not understand clearly about certain content because you are the Nalandas who teach knowledge to everyone; therefore, you must thoroughly understand the knowledge. That will help the tuelinh within you to produce super-energy particles. Besides, learners will understand and practice correctly the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of energy particles." The Teacher spoke to his students while everyone was relaxing in the hotel's living room. Perhaps everyone had just finished lunch, so their minds needed to be ready to ask questions about the lecture.

When the Teacher suggested asking questions to understand the knowledge from his lectures deeply, a student immediately said, "Teacher, in recent lectures on particles, I always see you talking about the spinning mechanism. I remember that I had never heard any detailed lectures on the rotation mechanism. Through your lectures, I know that rotation is an important mechanism for energy particles and the universe, but I do not have in-depth knowledge about it. I hope you teach me and everyone about the knowledge of the spinning mechanism."

The Teacher asked everyone, "Do you think the spinning mechanism exists within you?"

A student replied, "Teacher, energy particles rotate around themselves, energy embryos rotate around themselves, and the universe also rotates around itself. However, I still haven't figured out how humans and tuelinhs rotate and whether there is a spinning mechanism in humans and tuelinhs. Humans and tuelinhs always go straight forward; they do not walk and spin simultaneously. Therefore, I conclude that humans and tuelinhs do not have a spinning mechanism."

The Teacher smiled and replied, "Of course, humans and tuelinhs do not spin when moving. The spinning mechanism does not only spin while moving. Spinning while moving is one part of the mechanism, while the spinning mechanism has two parts. Let me ask you one more question before I go into the lecture. What emotions do people have, and in what kind do they dwell?"

"I see that each person has many different emotional states, but in short, there are only three types of emotions: happy, sad, and neither happy nor sad. Because emotions are states created in each person's mind when interacting with scenarios in the four life forms, people do not stay fixed in any one emotion. Many people have many emotions in one event, in one day, or at one time. When they were happy, they became sad, and vice versa; when they were sad, they became happy. They always have neither happy nor sad emotions when the progression of happy and sad emotions makes them no longer interested or worried. These understandings come from knowing the two truths I have understood, Teacher." A student answered the Teacher.

Seeing that the student answered the question very well, the Teacher immediately asked, "So, have you realized the circular mechanism in human emotions?"

The student seemed enlightened and became excited, "Ah, I understand. Humans and tuelinhs have a spinning mechanism, an emotional state that always moves between extremes of happiness and sadness. The extreme of neither happiness nor sadness is the connection between the two extremes. When the emotional state moves between the extremes of happiness and sadness, it will form a cycle. It's a circular mechanism."

The Teacher asked again, "What constitutes emotions?"

The student replied, "Teacher, informational reactions create emotions. I understand, Teacher. Humans and tuelinhs have a circular mechanism; that is, information always circulates in a circle throughout the structure of the tuelinh. When information moves, it will interact with information in particle clusters within the structure and outside information. The result of that information reaction process creates different emotions. Therefore, emotional states such as happy, sad, and neither happy nor sad are manifestations of the information circulation mechanism within humans and tuelinhs."

The Teacher said, "Your answer is wonderful. However, I have a fascinating question for you. That's when you're sad. Do you find it meaningful and valuable?"

The student replied, "Teacher, if I have not learned the knowledge of the two truths, I will answer no. However, because I have learned and understood a lot about knowledge, I understand that sadness, happiness, and neither sadness nor joy bring value and meaning to every moment of my life. From that, I deduce that it is precious and meaningful to every human being and tuelinh."

The Teacher said, "You answered the questions I asked you quickly and intensively nicely. Your answers show that you deeply understand your knowledge, and your thinking ability is also excellent. Please apply this method to test your learners' understanding of knowledge when you teach knowledge to them. It is also a very effective way to help learners acquire the mindset of two truths and particles when they apply this method regularly.

Before teaching about the spinning mechanism, I want to tell you that spinning is the key to survival and development. That shows the importance of the rotation mechanism for the life of the smallest energy particle to the yin and yang embryo, all living things, tuelinhs, humans, animals, and the universe.

Spinning mechanisms are of two types: life forms spin around themselves as they move and circulate information waves within their structures. There are life forms that have both spinning mechanisms, and there are life forms that have only one spinning mechanism.

Let us explore the spin mechanism for all life forms, from the smallest energy particle scale to the entire universe. From there, you will see the value of the spinning mechanism for life:

- First, let's explore the ancestral wave-particle life form. Do ancestral wave-particles spin? – No, they do not have a spinning mechanism. The ancestral wave-particles are born from singularities and move in spiral orbits to transform. Wave-particles have not yet encoded information, so they do not have a mechanism to circulate information. Besides, because the energy state in the wave-particle has not been released, there are no electric waves in the particle, so they do not have a rotation mechanism.

- The next is the destructive energy particle life form. Does the destructive particle have a spinning mechanism? – No, they do not have a spinning mechanism. That means that annihilation particles do not rotate around themselves as they move because they do not have electric waves. There are no electric waves because the intellectual wave code within it has not been completely transformed. The ancestral wave-particles have not been completely transformed because they move and exist in a neutral environment. In addition, because destructive particles do not have a mechanism to connect and develop into structures on the scale of a yin and yang embryo, they do not have a mechanism to circulate information waves.

- For the smallest energy particles, the life form has positive electric waves. Do they have a spinning mechanism? – Of course, they have a spinning mechanism. It's the mechanism that spins around themselves as they move. Why do they have a spinning mechanism when moving? – For positive energy particles formed from wave-particles before the yin and yang embryo of the universe appeared: ancestral wave-particles moved into a hot environment to thoroughly transform wave-particles into wisdom wave code fibres with true information value encoded inside. Besides, the intellectual wave code fibre releases energy states, creating a spinning characteristic for positive particles when they move. – Positive energy particles generated from yin and yang embryos rotate because they inherit the genetic characteristics of the original positive particle and encode a heat amount with true information from the outside environment. Therefore, they spin around themselves when they are born.

- The life form has negative electric waves for the smallest energy particles. Do they have a spinning mechanism? – They have a spinning mechanism. It's the mechanism that spins around themselves as they move. Why do they have a spinning mechanism when moving? – Negative energy particles formed from wave-particles before the yin and yang embryo of the universe appeared: the ancestral wave-particles moved into an environment with hot, neutral, and negative heat before transforming into harmful energy particles. Although the information encoding process was faulty due to information distortion in a negative thermal environment, the radical transformation of the wave-particle helped the negative particle release its energy state. Therefore, they spin around themselves as they move, but the orbit is opposite to the positive particle's. – Harmful energy particles generated from yin and yang embryos rotate because they inherit the genetic characteristics of the original negative particles and encode a negative amount of heat with missing information from the outside environment. Therefore, they spin around themselves when they are born.

- For the yin and yang embryos' life forms. Do they have a spinning mechanism? – They have and include rotating around themselves when moving and circulating information in the yin and yang embryo. They rotate around themselves when moving because they inherit the genetic characteristics of yin and yang particles. They circulate information waves because it is the nature of negative particles to attract and positive particles to radiate information. Therefore, they form an information circulation mechanism when they become yin and yang embryos.

- For physical structures linked by yin and yang embryos, they both circulate information and rotate around themselves when moving. Where it does not revolve around itself is when it joins with other physical structures to form a planet.

- Each planet has a mechanism to rotate around itself when moving and a mechanism to circulate information between physical structures throughout that planet.

- Plants, rocks, and physical structures on a planet only have information circulation mechanisms. They do not spin as they move because they are joined together to form a planet. The fact that the planet rotates around itself when moving also shows the rotating nature of all the physical structures that make up that planet.

- Does the solar system rotate? – Yes, the sun rotates around itself, and the solar system planets also rotate around the sun. In addition, information waves are constantly circulating throughout the entire solar system.

- The universe with countless galaxy masses constantly rotates around the central planet of the universe. The most magical planet in the universe has a mechanism to rotate around itself and circulate information from itself to all galaxies in the universe. The energy strings were created by the first tuelinh from five groups (or eight groups) of complex particles and a group of iridescent yellow energy superparticles to link the galaxy masses to the central planet to help both of these spinning mechanisms exist and be sustainable. The first tuelinh used the pyramid and his power to transmit information, receive information from all physical structures in the universe and provide energy to help the universe always spin around its core.

- As for animal life forms, they constantly circulate information inside because there is a soul within them. They do not spin around as they move.

- For the tuelinhs, they have a mechanism that circulates information. They do not have a mechanism to spin around themselves as they move.

- For humans, we only have information circulation mechanisms. We don't have a mechanism that spins around us as we move.

Do you understand what spinning is for? Spinning creates life and sustainable development for all life forms. Why? Because the spinning mechanism occurs to promote the sustainable production of energy particles. It is not simply spinning by nature and then producing energy particles. Instead, the life forms in the universe led by the first tuelinh raised the spinning mechanism to a new high art. That is to attract the life form of the destructive energy particles to participate in the spinning process. That drives the information reactions during the spin to become extremely fierce, and that fierceness results in the sustainable development of everything in the universe, especially the tuelinh life form. That is, many tuelinhs have matured and are about to achieve the achievement of transforming yin and yang embryos into energy filters. The first tuelinh transformed his yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter. As a result of that dual-energy filter, many energy superparticles were produced to protect and develop the universe more sustainably.

Let me tell you the value of the spinning mechanism for each typical life form in the universe. That helps you better understand spinning. That is:

- For yin and yang embryos, the process of rotation and circulation of information waves will create two reactions:

- + Informational vibration reactions of yin particles during rotation attract destructive energy particles to attack the yin and yang embryo. In addition, this reaction helps the yin-yang embryo encode information and heat from the outside environment into the inside.

+ The hot heat transfer reaction of positive particles during rotation to detonate destructive particles when they attack. Besides, the positive particle verifies information during the information encoding process and absorbs the heat of the negative particle.

+ Both reactions must be based on a rotational mechanism. It will help the yin-yang embryo encode accurate information and heat to promote the production of energy particles with strong positive electric waves and energy particles with weak negative electric waves. That is the value and purpose that every energy embryo needs to achieve to promote sustainable development. However, the results and value of the spinning process depend on the nature and ability of the yin and yang embryo to handle the reactions during the spinning process.

- Each solar system's rotation process has been created and has become the pinnacle of the art of rotation. It was one of the great works of the first tuelinh. Do you know why not? That is:

+ The Sun is at the centre of the solar system with a continuous and rotating chain of information reactions to always generate heat. Heat is responsible for providing all the planets orbiting it. The purpose is to help convert particles of destruction into particles of fire and then detonate them. Thus, the sun in each solar system has the same value as a positive energy particle responsible for creating reactions to detonate destructive particles to provide an invaluable heat source from the explosions of destructive particles. This heat source helps the planets around it continuously produce and connect the smallest particles, strengthening the solar system structure.

+ Each planet rotates around the sun and around itself to create day and night. This spinning reaction would attract destructive particles to attack when the planets do not receive heat from the sun at night. Then, heat from the sun will turn the particles of destruction into particles of fire and then detonate them during the day. Thus, the planets revolve around the sun like a negative particle linked to a positive particle, the sun. Negative multiparticle material structures will vibrate strongly and maximally when there is no control of heat to attract destructive particles to attack. Then, heat from the sun will control and detonate the annihilation particles. The heat from the explosions of destructive particles is provided to the physical structures on those planets to produce and bond particles more quickly and sustainably.

+ Each planet rotates and circulates information to help them balance the energy state between yin and yang. The rotation of the planets will help them produce warm heat to promote the close connection between the physical structures within each planet. Warm heat is the result of chain reactions caused by detonated destructive energy, by heat from the sun, by heat from the core of each planet. Above all, it is the operation from the first tuelinh when creating the connection between the planets and from the central planet to all planets in the universe. That makes the rotation mechanism of solar systems a pinnacle of art.

+ However, if the planets do not rotate, there is no connection between them by energy beams to help the orbits rotate stably; they will disintegrate by breaking the connection between the physical structure of each planet. Additionally, they are decomposed by attacks of destructive energy or detonated when they collide with each other.

- For the universe as a whole, spinning and circulating information to absorb destructive particles and detonate them is a pinnacle of the art and wisdom of the first tuelinh. That is:

+ All planets orbiting the sun in the universe serve as negative particles to attract destructive particles that attack through the vibrations of negative multiparticle material structures.

+ All the suns in the universe are positive particles that radiate heat and detonate the annihilation particles that bombard the planets.

+ Areas containing destructive energy particles within the universe have been formed. It is the source of destructive energy for detonation reactions to create heat and provide heat for the sustainable development of all things in the universe. The first tuelinh created storms of annihilation energy to help the movement and development of the universe be more effective.

+ On the central planet, the first tuelinh must process all incoming and outgoing information. Then, he provides energy to places in the universe that must be processed to help all life forms survive and develop sustainably. This operation results in a foundation structure being built, and a network of energy threads is formed. Both are linked from the core of the central planet to all the planets and spaces in the universe.

+ Thus, with his superior intellect in operating the development of all life forms in the universe, the first tuelinh turned the spinning mechanism with its simple nature into a pinnacle of the art of spinning. As a result, the universe has developed very quickly from an embryo of yin and yang energy to become the magical cosmic sphere it is today.

- For humans, through the circular mechanism of information circulation in the internal soul structure, our soul receives many values. As follows:

+ Through controlling the negative information of the original yin particle and the yin particle system, tuelinhs and humans can identify negative emotions such as boredom, pain, jealousy, resentment, anger, and hate. Those emotions are negative, manifesting negative information in the information circulation process. It is also a manifestation of the toxins in the yin particle system and the original yin particle of the tuelinh.

+ The information of the negative particle system and the original negative particle vibrating intensely to super strong will absorb outside information and heat and attract many destructive particles to attack the tuelinh. It is part of the mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles for the tuelinh when the tuelinhs and humans can control negative information.

+ Through controlling the positive information of the original positive particle and the positive particle system, tuelinhs and people can identify positive emotions such as joy, happiness, enjoyment, excitement, and peacefulness. Those emotions are positive, manifesting positive information in the information circulation process. It also exemplifies the goodness in the positive particle system and the original positive particle of tuelinh.

+ The information of the positive particle system and the original positive particles vibrating intensely to super strong will control the negative particles and external data and detonate the destructive particles when they attack the tuelinh. That is part of the mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles for tuelinhs when they have the power of the positive particle system.

+ The speed of information circulation of the tuelinh inside humans will determine the process of particle production and our emotions. Suppose the information circulation speed is fast and robust; positive and negative emotions will occur quickly. In that case, we may feel neither sad nor happy while reacting and interacting. As a result, the information circulation process has created a very effective and magical mechanism for producing sustainable energy particles. On the contrary, if the information circulation rate is slow or hindered, negative emotions will spread and control the entire tuelinh and mind. As a result, we quickly produce many harmful particles.

+ The tuelinhs and humans want to control information and operate the most effective information circulation mechanism; they must understand all the truths about themselves and everything in and out of the universe. They smoothly use the production, linking, and rotation mechanism when they know everything to produce positive particles for sustainable development.

So, you see, the rotation, production, and connection mechanisms are closely linked in creating life from yin and yang embryos to the entire universe. In particular, to protect and promote the sustainable development of all life forms in the universe, the first tuelinh must operate to turn these two mechanisms into a pinnacle of art.

You have now understood the universe's rotation mechanism of all life forms. In particular, you have also understood the values that the rotation mechanism and the production and connection mechanism bring to the entire universe in general and human life forms in particular. From those values, you understand that every emotion is important and meaningful. However, we must learn how to control and speed up the circulation of information in the tuelinh so as not to be influenced by emotions and control the mind and the tuelinh."

After the teacher finished preaching, everyone looked at the clock and realized that it was almost time to have dinner and go to the airport to fly home. However, as usual, everyone still spent a little time resting after the lecture. Some students took the opportunity to ask the teacher questions related to the lecture. Afterwards, the teacher and everyone returned to the room to get their luggage and check in to leave the hotel. That was the teacher's last lecture in India during his pilgrimage and visitation of relics related to the life of Buddha.

Chapter Fifty-One

The Battle for Survival Between Destructive Energy and the Universe

The flight back to Hanoi has left. Everyone's eyes through the small window next to their seats were attentively looking at people and vehicles in the airport. This trip had significant meaning for his students as they listened to essential and valuable lectures about energy particles. Besides, stories about the teacher's past lives, Buddha's footsteps on his journey to seek enlightenment, and Buddha's arduous path in spreading knowledge are visible in everyone's minds. The stories he told his students at places considered necessary in Buddha's life helped people make connections between the past and present. It helps students understand and have solid support in their origins. They know that roots are the strength to overcome difficulties and reach the journey's destination.

For the teacher, this trip has brought him many unique emotions and new achievements. Those special feelings are always hidden inside because the journey ahead is still long and arduous. He always tells his students they must race against time to practice sustainable energy particle production. For that reason, the teacher also buried emotional expressions because of the urgency and incessantness of time. I once remember, in a course that the teacher taught, he said, "For me, the happiest and most peaceful moment is when my tuelinh escapes my body to return to my roots, to my hometown. No words can fully describe that feeling of happiness and pride. That was when the tuelinh returned freedom to the body after a lifetime of always controlling the body. That freedom is the freedom of the final movements, of the freedom to decompose and return to the life form of the smallest energy particles. That feeling only exists when each person understands the origin and mission and completes the mission. It results from a race against time to increase the rotation process in the operation of the sustainable energy particle production mechanism. However, for most people, it is death. Therefore, they are afraid to think and face death." The teacher taught the most extraordinary knowledge about energy particles to his students during this trip, and he will teach them again to other students in subsequent courses. It is like the cyclical process of spreading enlightened knowledge to produce energy particles.

When the plane started to take off, the teacher closed his eyes. Perhaps he continues going into the tuelinh's memories to get important information. These truths and valuable information are the experiences of his tuelinh from when he was just the smallest yin and yang particle to becoming a yin and yang embryo, an energy sphere, an explosion, and the process of building the universe, and the journey of practice in the human world until achieving the unified Tao of the universe. The massive and highly complex information has been gradually transformed by the teacher and created into special enlightened knowledge to teach to students and spread all over the world. The teacher is entering the memories of his tuelinh, so let us join and merge with his mind to listen and observe those memories. Relax and be still for this journey through his memories.

"Today, I have taught my students about the universe's construction by the first tuelinh and the rotation mechanism. There is a lot of content and knowledge in those lectures that confuse them and do not understand clearly. Indeed, it is not easy for everyone to know what I understand and possess unique knowledge about the two truths and energy particles. However, please rest assured because I am present in this human world to help you know all the truths of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe, from the past to the future and yourselves. Therefore, I can continually transform complex information and knowledge into easy-to-understand ones for you.

Let me think about what knowledge they need clarification in today's two lectures. Their most significant confusion is the knowledge about the first tuelinh creating destructive energy areas in the universe's space. Of course, it is a great confusion for students and learners because everyone only knows that the living space of the destructive energy is outside the cosmic sphere. People's confusion is interesting because knowledge increasingly analyses particles and the accurate information values of everything in and outside the universe. In addition, it is interesting because learners have been focusing on understanding and solving problems in each unit of knowledge. Let me return to the past of my tuelinh in operating and building the universe's life.

Thus, a giant planet at the centre of space containing the smallest energy particles was completed. It is a beautiful and peaceful place for my tuelinhs to live there. The tuelinhs' energy embryos have also been placed in a unique cave; each embryo has been placed in a magical rock crystal. Next, I will have to provide heat from the explosion of destructive energy into those rock crystals. That heat will help the yin and yang embryos react to produce and bond particles to mature faster. Therefore, in the not-too-distant future, I will have children. They will live on this magical planet with me, and I will raise them to mature. They will become wonderful tuelinhs of this universe. Thus, my plan to build a magical planet has been completed, and the yin and yang energy embryos to become tuelinhs are also developing smoothly. These are my outstanding achievements since the Big Bang. I must thank the abundant heat source from that big explosion to achieve these achievements. Without that kind of heat, I could not build and create the first life like that. That makes me appreciate the existence of destructive energy particle life forms more than ever. They are the foundation for my existence and the entire universe. In addition, they provide me and other life forms in the universe with a unique source of heat for us to survive and develop. I used the Big Bang's heat to create this magical planet. It helps me make the most beautiful planet in the universe. However, using too much heat will affect my plans to build other life. It's time for me to move to outer space to survey the situation.

Look, in front of me is an endlessly vast space, that is, the space that contains the smallest energy particles after the explosion. They are moving and spinning around themselves. Occasionally, yin and yang energy embryos are formed. That shows they are growing according to their natural nature with spinning and bonding mechanisms to continue producing and bonding. Amazingly, the more I move outward, the more yin and yang embryos I see. They range from tiny to mature embryos and even develop embryos with aggregated particle structures on the outside. They transmit information to me as if they want me to arrange and build their lives. That makes me race against time even further to create the following life forms for the universe.

I have moved outside, adjacent to the space of destructive energy. Look, from here, I can't see the magical planet in the centre anymore. That magical planet has been obscured by the rapid development of yin and yang embryos, and the distance is too great. That makes me feel happy for my efforts before the explosion occurred. Look out at the living space of destructive energy; the big explosion has caused their particle density to be greatly reduced. That explosion created a series of small explosions that spread from the envelope of the energy sphere to the depths of their living space. That causes the number of their particles to decrease seriously. However, after that explosion, an ample space containing heat was created so that the energy particles of the sphere could spill out and exist safely in that space. So, where I am standing is the boundary between the space of destructive particles and the space of the universe. The interior of the cosmic sphere is heat space after the explosion to protect it from attacks by annihilation particles and wave-particles. The annihilation particles were detonated as they moved into the universe's space. Besides, wave-particles moving into the universe's space are also detonated. They were detonated because the space containing the outer heat of the universe was too strong; Therefore, wave-particles cannot be converted into energy particles and annihilation particles are easily detonated.

Please feel that the heat after the explosion has been consumed a lot. It is consumed because of the process by which I use it for constructing the central planet and absorbing the heat for the yin and yang energy embryos. That shows that building and creating life forms in the universe has exhausted the heat source since the explosion. Therefore, I must have a plan to protect all life in the universe before this heat source is depleted. I can't waste more time and must continue my journey to build planets and other magical life forms outside the central planet.

Hey, my body and mind, look at my great work. Those are the blocks of galaxies that I designed and built. They are arranged and covered sequentially from the central planet outward. I spent a lot of time on that construction process, and now I have many layers of galactic mass beyond the central planet. Each galaxy block has many galaxies arranged together to form a cube; each galaxy has many solar systems, and each solar system has a sun and planets orbiting around it. For them to be closely linked and rotate around the central planet, I had to build a system of energy strings connecting them and between them and the central planet. The solar system is the method of protection and sustainable development for all life forms in the universe in the future. Because I have seen the future of all life forms, I have designed a universe with sustainable development characteristics. Of course, to create so many galaxies, I had to use a lot of heat from destructive energy detonated from the outside.

Let's move with me to the outer space of the universe. Look, this outside is no longer the smallest discrete particle. Instead, they have linked to become yin and yang embryos of simple and complex matter. Additionally, they have developed their structure by binding mature yin and yang embryos together. That has created simple material structures as large as meteorites. Meteorites have a variety of properties and values. To make the construction of galactic blocks outside the central planet convenient and quick, I have moved the meteorite blocks from the outside to the inside and absorbed heat from the outside to form a link between them. Of course, each special rock pyramid crystal would be placed in the middle before glueing the simple physical structures together to form the planets. Taking large physical structures from the outside has helped me save time building planets and life forms.

Do my mind and body see anything? The heat on the outer of the universe has almost exhausted itself. To protect this entire cosmic sphere, I have moved positive energy particles outside the boundary with the destructive energy space to save the universe from attacks from annihilation energy. Look, the life form of annihilation energy has been restored in quantity. Thus, after a long time, they have returned in large numbers, and their power has become a worry for the universe's life. However, when I move positive particles to form a protective membrane for the universe, they directly detonate destructive particles that attack the universe to increase the heat for building the universe. In addition, I must also move particles and multi-negative particle structures closer to the protective layer of positive particles to create a large vibration to attract destructive particles to attack the universe. Developing life forms in the universe and protecting the universe from the attack of annihilation particle life forms is not easy at all. It is a big problem, and I also have to accept when witnessing the sacrifice of many energy particles outside the universe. Relax with your journey back to memory; I must continue building life forms.

Standing in the space of the destructible particle life form and looking at the cosmic sphere, what will it be like? How wonderful. When I look at the universe, I see that it is rotating. It is terrific that the rotation of the universe radiates power. That is the warm heat radiating strongly from the centre of the cosmic sphere. That warm heat resonates with the heat from the explosions of destructive particles outside the universe, creating an extraordinary power. It makes the life form of the outer annihilation particle feel confused before the miraculous development of the universe when it started as a yin and yang embryo formed in the endless space of the destructive particle.

Let me re-merge with my tuelinh. Thus, more galaxies have been formed and are linked to the central planet. All galaxies currently occupy half the space of the cosmic sphere. Beyond the galaxy masses and central planet are the smallest energy particles, the yin-yang embryos, and the physical structures linked by the mature yin-yang embryos. However, the rotation speed of the entire universe is slowing down, and the heat supply from destructive energy particles is not guaranteed. Explosions of a few particles to a lot of annihilation particles at the boundary of the universe and the annihilation energy space is not enough to provide heat for building and protecting the entire universe. In contrast, the heat from the massive explosion outside was gone. The membrane, positive energy particles covering the outside of the cosmic sphere, protects the universe from attacks by destructive particles, and they can only provide some heat from explosions. However, that heat is too little, while I need a lot of heat for the universe's development. Without enough heat from explosions of destructive energy, all life forms in the universe would be destroyed. What should I do now? Ah! I have found the most optimal solution. I must accept the sacrifice of negative multiparticle material structures to create areas containing destructive energy within the universe. To ensure the heat supply for the construction, protection and sustainable development of life forms in the universe, I must create many areas containing destructive energy particles inside the cosmic sphere. Each mass of galaxies would have to have several regions containing annihilation particles. When heat is needed to develop and move all life in each galaxy block, I will efficiently handle reactions to detonate destructive energy.

Let me go into my private workplace and operate the process of creating areas containing destructive energy particles using my pyramid. Let's begin: negative multiparticle structures and matter will coalesce into places according to my direction. Amazingly, countless areas contain negative multiparticle structures to form cold environments. Cold heat is an ideal environment to help destructive particles move and exist in it. It enables the destroyed particles to remove excess heat and not detonate. Places with cold thermal environments in the universe will be the second home of the destructive particle life form. Come on, annihilation particles, move in to save yourselves from being detonated by the excess heat. Dear positive particles outside the cosmic sphere, please proceed to the side to create a space without heat so I can develop vibrations from cold heat areas. These areas will attract destructive particles to move into cold heat areas. Amazingly, the annihilation particles are moving in streams into areas with negative multiparticle structures. It is like an invasion of the destructive particle life form into the universe according to the way of thinking of the annihilation particle life form. However, according to human understanding, it is like creating lakes throughout the desert to create life for all species. In the end, areas containing destructive particles were formed everywhere in the universe's space. Dear positive particles at the boundary of the universe and the annihilation particle space, please return to your position to protect the universe and continue detonating the destructive particles when they attack.

Next, what do I need to do? Well, I need to seal off the areas containing the destruction particles. Dear positive particles and multi-positive material structures, please move towards and around areas containing destructive energy. Please move according to my instructions. Dear precious planets in the galaxies, please rest assured that the solar systems I have built can absorb and detonate annihilation particles. Besides, the solar systems around each area containing the annihilation particles will protect the life of all life forms in each solar system. Please rest assured because everything is controlled and operated by me. Please continue to enjoy the heat from the explosions of annihilation particles to develop more and more sustainably.

It's fantastic; my universe is now more magical than before. It is like a machine operating all life in the universe precisely. It is a machine formed from countless smallest energy particles, and each smallest particle stores many information values that are assigned functions and tasks. The warm heat emanating from the yin and yang embryos, each planet, the solar systems, and the galaxies are mixed with the heat from the explosions of destructive particles in outer space and the regions containing annihilation energy particles in the universe. They form an energy source with magical power to operate the universe in safety and sustainable development.

I have built the galaxies from the central planet to the edge of the destructive energy space. Thus, the universe is now a great whole shaped like a giant planet containing countless galaxy masses. In addition, there are numerous annihilation energy areas everywhere in the universe to provide energy for reactions that create heat to serve the development and movement of all life forms. An endless journey that I have passed in just a moment.

Look outside the cosmic sphere; it is like a membrane containing five groups of energy to do the job: protect the universe against the attack of destructive energy; attract and detonate annihilation particles to provide heat for the development of life forms in the universe in the area close to space of annihilation energy. In addition, they serve as doors that are opened to allow destructive energy to move into regions containing annihilation particles in the universe when additional supplies are needed. The pyramid at my workplace - the tool connecting my yin and yang embryos - must work at maximum capacity to create energy groups for that task. However, due to the growth and attack of destructive particle life forms outside the cosmic sphere, the universe has consumed a lot of energy in protection and rotation. In addition, many planets and many tuelinh babies have been disintegrated by destructive energy. The decay of the negatively multi-structured planets is acceptable compared to the achievements given the scale of the universe. However, the small tuelinhs being disintegrated by the destruction particles have become my concern. That shows the limitations of the intelligence and power of the tuelinh life form when participating in the reaction process of detonating destructive particles. The tuelinhs born from me do not have the same intelligence and strength as me. That is a big problem that I will have to solve for a long time, and it will always be a challenge for every tuelinh born in the future. Therefore, I need to find an effective method to help my little tuelinhs mature and have the power to handle destructive energy detonation reactions safely.

I have succeeded; it was a great success when I transformed my yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter. It is a journey in which I and the tuelinhs incarnate into humans to find the most effective method of operating destructive particle detonation reactions. That helps the tuelinhs and myself understand all the truths about ourselves, each other, and everything in and out of the universe. As a matter of necessity, my successful transformation of the dual energy filter has helped me produce super energies: shiny yellow super-energy particles that enable the connection and rotation of all life forms in the universe more efficiently; lapis lazuli blue super-energy particles have protected the outer of the universe without the need for five groups of energy particles. These two types of superparticles have power that no other particle can compare to. Various kinds of super-energy particles are produced from my energy filters to help the operation, protection and development of everything in the universe become more sustainable.

Hey, mind and my body, look: the entire cosmic sphere is surrounded by superparticles of lapis lazuli blue energy. All the energy strings connecting the planets and from all the planets to the central planet are shiny golden super-energy. These two types of superparticles have effectively operated life in the universe, especially in absorbing destructive particles and detonating them extremely miraculously. All of these achievements are due to the efforts of the entire tuelinh life form when they participated in incarnating into humans to practice for many human lives in the human world.

Hey, my body, the destructive energy life form is significant to the life and development of all life forms in the universe. It is a heat source that creates and develops life for all things in the universe. At the same time, it is also the source of energy that destroys the life of any life form in the universe.

The destruction of many tuelinhs, physical structures and planets in the universe has already proven how destructive they are. Therefore, annihilation energy is always a great challenge for all life forms, especially the tuelinh life forms. That has led me to have long-term plans for developing wisdom and strength for all tuelinhs. I have created and continue to maintain a learning environment for the tuelinh life forms in the human world. It can be affirmed that the energy of destruction and the universe always exist in a struggle for survival and sustainable development, as you have seen in the memory of the Big Bang. If the life form of the destructive particles has a high density, they will be detonated and destroyed forever. If the energy of destruction no longer exists, the universe will run out of energy and destroy. Therefore, adjusting the density distribution of destructive energy particles and detonating them when they do not yet have a high density is to save their lives. Saving their lives means saving all life forms in the universe."

The plane suddenly shook so vigorously that the teacher lost connection to his tuelinh and opened his eyes. At this time, the aircraft was halfway through its journey. In only about two hours left, the teacher and his students will arrive in Hanoi. When the teacher looked at the students' seats, they still fell asleep.

The teacher may continue to go into his memory to reconnect with the accurate information values of the universe's past and his tuelinh. That will greatly help the teacher when he teaches enlightened knowledge to his students.

In addition, when he travels by plane from abroad to his country, he always finds sleeping difficult. Therefore, I will wait for him to enter his memory to continue integrating into his mind.

Chapter Fifty-Two

Information Transceiver System and Energy Wire System to Operate the Universe

The teacher has been in memory for a while now. Let's go in to observe and follow his journey back to memory.

"What was the next confusing problem that my students encountered in today's lectures? It is the fundamental structure - the information transceiver system of the universe. My students cannot understand that knowledge because I have never taught them about that.

Hey guys! I know you are observing and following my journey back to memory, so please listen and observe what I recreate in my memory. That helps you better understand the secrets of the universe and the transcendent wisdom of the first tuelinh. Now, let's go back to my memories.

It's great that I've finished building the central planet. That will be the most beautiful, magical and peaceful planet after I complete my work of building the universe. However, while making this magical planet, I encountered difficulties transmitting and receiving information from energy particle units throughout the universe. The transmission of information to all parts of the universe was often interrupted and did not receive feedback. That has caused me to move into space to find the best yin and yang embryos for building this planet. I have seen that before the energy sphere is detonated, signal transmission and reception are always guaranteed when I increase the vibration speed. However, after the Big Bang, the space containing the energetic particles was expanded many times larger than before the explosion. Therefore, the distance between particles is longer, and the ability to transmit and receive information is interrupted. The fact that I spend a lot of time moving to select groups of particles, energy embryos, and physical structures in space and arrange them into planets causes me to lose the opportunity to take full advantage of using the heat source after the explosion. I understand that that heat source does not last forever. I need to take the time to effectively use the heat source for the construction process to have the opportunity to diversify life in the universe.

Thus, I have a big challenge in processing information with all the energy particles in the universe. Suppose I do not have an effective solution to solve the problem of receiving and transmitting data. In that case, I will not be able to control and operate life forms in the universe when the universe has many planets and a variety of life forms in the future. To solve this problem, I must create a system for receiving and transmitting information throughout the cosmic sphere. All data must be transmitted from one place on the central planet to all of the universe's space. Information from energy particle units, life forms, and planets will be collected for the central planet. Building and operating all life in my universe will become easy and effective if I can create such a system. It is a great idea.

Let me start building an information-receiving and transmitting system:

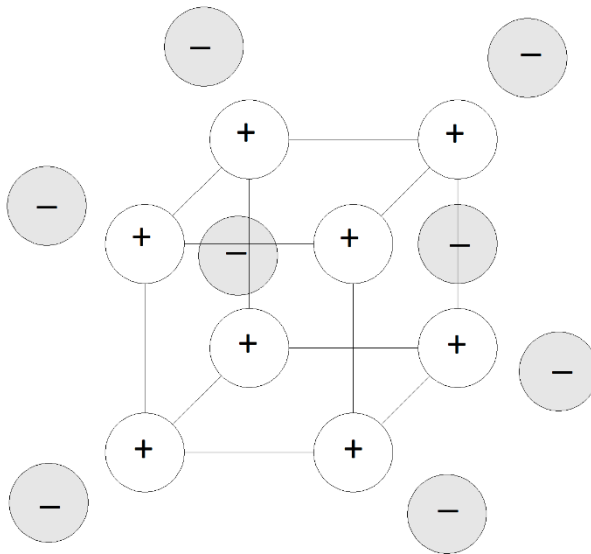

- At my workplace on the central planet, this pyramid is the centre for transmitting and receiving information. It is considered the original yin and yang embryo to handle all information reactions of all life in the universe.

- I set up each cluster of synthetic energy particles. Each cluster of synthetic particles is a station that receives and transmits information. The distance between particle clusters is calculated as the distance of several aggregate particles when they lie in a straight line. The entire system of receiving and transmitting information is like my structure: the pyramid in the centre of the system is considered the original yin and yang embryo in my body, and the clusters of particles outside the pyramid and in the entire structure of the system is considered as clusters of particles outside the mature yin and yang embryo in my body. Thus, the information system is like a giant tuelinh that covers the entire universe. In particular, the pyramid of the system is closely linked to my original yin and yang embryo.

- I use the smallest energy particles with complex intellectual wave codes to form synthetic particles. Synthetic negative particles are made of the smallest energy particles with fragile electric waves. Synthetic positive particles are made of the smallest energy particles with weak electric waves. Neutral particles are responsible for linking the synthetic positive particles together. The synthetic negative particle will vibrate and rotate around the synthetic positive particle.

A cluster of particles in the information transceiver system

- The mechanism for transmitting and receiving information is implemented as follows:

+ The neutral particles are transmission paths for information to move between clusters of synthetic energy particles. They are neutral wires.

+ Synthetic negative particles vibrate to emit signals and attract information.

+ Synthetic positive particles transmit and push data to other clusters and the information processing centre.

Thus, I have completed a system for receiving and transmitting information for the entire space of the universe. It's fantastic; the information signals move very quickly and efficiently. With this information-receiving and conveying system, I can easily handle all information reactions in the easiest and fastest way. It helps me save travel time and observe all the problems happening in and out of the universe. Why is it possible to follow the outside of the cosmic sphere? Because my information-receiving and transmitting system is spread out and covers the entire universe, the information of the destructive particle life forms adjacent to the cosmic sphere is encoded and transferred to the centre planet. That makes it easy to handle information reactions to all life forms and particles in the universe.

This information system is exceptional because it comprises a complex energy particle group. Therefore, simple physical structures such as plants, rocks, meteorites, and planets quickly move through this information system. You can imagine that this information system is like the soul residing in the bodies of humans, animals, plants, and rocks. Simple physical structures can move in the space of an information system without affecting the system. In addition, when the information receiving and transmitting clusters are interrupted or destroyed by destructive energy, the surrounding information clusters will send information to the processing centre. After receiving the information, I can quickly process it to create new particle clusters to replace the destroyed ones.

You will wonder why I built an information system from negative particles with weak electric waves and positive particles with weak electric waves. That's simple. First of all, you understand that building an information system from complex particles ensures that simple physical structures and planets can move in the space of the system without being affected or obstructed. Next, the fact that the synthetic particles of the information system are made up of particles with weak electric waves ensures that the information during the reception and transmission process is not affected or changed.

As a result, after I completed the information system, building and operating all life forms in the universe was done very quickly and effectively. That is why I have built and operated a fantastic universe with countless lives to this day. Let me reveal a secret from the system to you: When you have thoughts or actions on Earth, I still know them even though I am on the central planet. That shows that, through this information system, I see your information reactions. It would help if you remembered that your actions and thoughts are all the process of reacting information from your original yin and yang embryo with your body's brain. Therefore, my information system quickly obtains that information and transmits it to the operations centre. At this point, you understand why my five messengers can operate the entire tree of cause and effect for every tuelinh and person practising in the human world. It combines the information system and the unique workplace of those five messengers.

With this memory of mine, you have learned the secret of how I operate the life of the entire universe through the information-receiving and transmitting system. Now, it's no longer a secret. When my students grasp this secret, their enlightened wisdom will become even more extraordinary.

Let me see what other issues in today's lectures confuse my students. Ah! I know, it's a wire connection system between planets. It is also an issue that I have never given a detailed lecture to my students before. This problem is similar to the problem of information-receiving and transmitting systems in the universe.

Hey guys, I know you and humanity are wondering why the moon revolves around the Earth and the Earth and planets revolve around the sun. You think there is some force of interaction between those planets, so they rotate like that. It would help if you remembered that no force causes the planets to connect and turn around each other without the hands and wisdom of the first tuelinh. He is the most superior intelligence in the universe, having created countless life forms and elevated movement mechanisms to the pinnacle of art. I have taught my students that the universe is composed of three types of matter, including simple matter, the planets, solar systems, and galaxies to the cosmic sphere; Complex matter is interconnected to form a system of interconnecting planets throughout the universe; and the super-physical life form is the tuelinh, headed by the first tuelinh. Those three groups of materials react with each other to exist and develop together through rotation and production - connection.

To understand this issue clearly, please follow me back to my memories of creating the wire connection system of my tuelinh. You will see that it is no longer a secret once you understand all the issues associated with the energy strings system of the universe.

What's happening? The second planet after the central planet has been built, but why does it have the phenomenon of moving away from the central planet? Of course, it's still spinning around itself. Is there something unusual going on with it? Let me look again at these two planets to see the problems with the new planet: clearly, the central planet is still at the centre of the universe and is rotating around itself. Besides, the entire space contains the smallest energy particles still orbiting the central planet. So the central planet has no problem. However, during the rotation of the whole universe, the smallest particles, energy embryos, and physical structures do not move stably. The most typical and obvious is the second planet that has just been completed. It is spinning around itself as it moves and spins around the central planet. However, its distance and movement speed change and there is no stability. If there are many planets whose orbits are unstable, they will collide with each other and create explosions that destroy life on those planets. A big challenge that requires me to find a solution to handle it. So, what do I need to do now?

Ah! I understand. To create a planet with a tight connection between simple physical structures, I used complex energy groups to form the material that binds them to the special rocky pyramid crystal at the planet's core. That way, I created a complete planet. In addition, that approach created magnetic fields and gravity on each planet. It's excellent; I know how to help the planets move in stable orbits. However, a significant challenge to maintaining alignment within each planet is regularly supplying complex energy groups to compensate for consumption and maintain steady movement. That shows that when I create many planets, I need more complex energy groups to link within each planet and between planets. That is not easy for me right now, and I will have to search for the most effective method to resolve this challenge.

Thus, a solar system has been created, which includes the sun and many surrounding planets. They are all spinning around themselves as they move. That's because of the magnetic fields and gravitational forces formed by the rocky pyramidal crystals in the core and the complex energies bound inside each planet. That constitutes their natural nature. Although these planets are still moving around the central planet of the universe, their speed and orbit are unstable. Therefore, there is a high risk that they will collide with each other and cause explosions that destroy themselves.

Hey, planets, let me help you have a stable orbit. I need you to operate according to the trajectory I create to solve all the challenges for future development. Let the complex energy flows move in here. Complicated energy particles, please move according to the guidance information that I have transmitted into the information system. Let's move to my pyramid. Okay, let me turn you into excellent energy wires. Next, let's move my strings to the planets and link the planets with the sun. Each planet will be linked to the sun by a beam of string to rotate around the sun. A similar energy beam must also connect the minor planets orbiting the giant planet. Thus, the planets have been linked and are revolving around the sun to form a complete solar system in orbit, and they are following my plans for the future. Next, let's connect an energy beam of string from the rock crystal in the core of the central planet to the sun of the other solar system. Thus, the creation of the connection between the planets to the sun and from the sun to the central planet is completed. Amazingly, they are moving based on the natural nature of each planet and following the orbit I create.

Many galaxies have been built, and they have been arranged around the central planet. Each galaxy has many solar systems, and each sun is linked to the central planet by a beam of string of complex energy. The planets around each solar system are linked to the sun, and they move around their sun by energy strings.

I have completed the first layer of galactic blocks, and they are encircling the central planet. All the suns in the galaxies are connected to the central planet to help all the galaxies rotate around the central planet. It's incredible how the speed and orbit of the galaxy masses reach such excellent stability and precision. The satellite planets orbiting each sun in their solar system have stable and precise speeds and orbits. It all creates a magical beauty of light and darkness by rotating the planets around itself and the sun to create day and night. The lights bring heat during the day and the cold at night, the lights during the day and the lights at night. All create the mysterious beauty of a space around the central planet. That is the result of the miraculous works I have made: the information receiving and transmitting system and the wire connection system. These two works have elevated the mechanism of rotation and production - connection to the pinnacle of art.

After a long time of building life, I am happy that my result is the galaxies and life on each planet. The universe now has countless galaxies arranged to cover one after another from the central planet to adjacent to the space of destructive energy. It is truly a great work of the universe when all the galaxies orbiting the central planet are stable and precise in speed and distance. I had to create countless energy strings to link the planets with the sun in their solar systems. I had to use more energy strings to connect all the suns in the universe to the central planet. For the central planet to ensure the strength of the connection and help the surrounding galactic masses stabilize, I had to reinforce and add complicated energy groups to increase the connection internal to the central planet. The central planet has the task and mission to lead, protect, maintain, and sustainably develop the universe.

However, there is a massive challenge for me and the universe: energy consumption for the interconnected and rotating operation of the universe. It's unbelievable; the attrition happens so quickly. According to my calculations, at an exact time in the future, if there is not a particular type of energy to replace the complex energy groups in connecting and rotating the entire universe with the central planet, the universe will break all its connections and explode due to the collision of the planets.

I have replaced the complex energy groups in connecting and operating the entire orbit of planets in the universe with shiny yellow positive energy superparticles. It is a kind of super-energy particle produced from my yin and yang embryo after I have transformed the yin and yang embryo into a single energy filter. It is an achievement that I have achieved after spending many lifetimes practising in the human world with my small tuelinhs. Now, the energy strings connecting the planets to the sun of each solar system and from all suns in the universe to the central planet are all shiny yellow super-energy cords. This type of energy has super-power in providing life to all life forms in the universe. In addition, it has extraordinary power to detonate destructive particles. Up to this point, the universe has become magical and has a unique power because of my achievements and little tuelinhs. In addition, it comes from special projects to operate and develop the universe to become sustainable.

What's going on? Destructive energy has increased in huge quantities in their living space. The energy groups tasked with protecting the universe outside are not strong enough to withstand massive attacks from destructive energy. In addition, the yellow super-energy is being greatly consumed in supplying planets and negative multi-energy structures. Meanwhile, negative energy and a cold thermal environment are ideal for destructive energy to take advantage of and destroy life in the universe. That is genuinely worrying. That is the risk of destroying the universe by part of its constituent energy, the negative energy group. That shows that destructive energy has adapted and found the universe's weak point, negative energy, to attack them and, through negative energy, dissipate the positive heat of physical structures in the universe. Thus, negative energy is the cause of the energy consumption of the universe, especially the shiny yellow super energy. I am the only one in the entire universe that produces this type of superparticle, so it is not in abundant supply. In addition, the rapid growth of destructive energy resonates with the negative energy of the universe to create a big challenge that destroys the entire universe. If that time comes, I cannot transform my yin and yang energy embryo into a dual filter to produce a type of negative energy superparticle to protect the cosmic sphere instead of the complex group of particles; the universe will be disintegrated by destructive energy. This decay comes from two causes: the supply of yellow super-energy for the rotation of the universe is not guaranteed, and the massive attack of destructive energy. I must make decisions to transform my yin and yang embryos and help the tuelinhs successfully transform their yin and yang embryos into single energy filters. I currently have three tuelinhs qualified to change the yin and yang embryo into a single filter. I must incarnate as a human to complete my transformation and help many tuelinhs successfully transform their yin and yang embryos.

It's terrific that I successfully transformed the yin and yang embryo while incarnating in the human world to continue leading the tuelinhs to transform into single energy filters. A space containing lapis lazuli blue super energy has been produced from my yin and yang embryos, and they cover the outer sphere of the universe. The yellow super-energy stabilises again after the destructive energy reduces the interference with the negative energy to drain the positive energy and the shiny yellow super-energy. The lapis lazuli blue super-energy particles have magical powers:

Controlling the vibration beyond the threshold of harmful energy particles

Turning destructive particles into particles of fire

Blocking the attack of annihilation energy

In addition, from my dual filter, I can create other super-energy particles for different purposes, such as fire particles, by using lapis lazuli blue superparticles to transform particles of destruction into particles of fire. Then, when I need to detonate the fire particle to create heat to produce other superparticles, I can easily do that with the shiny golden superparticle.

Thus, my students will thoroughly understand this special universe knowledge when they listen to my teachings. That helps them answer their confusion and questions about the understanding of particles and the secrets that they are the artistic culmination of the transcendent intelligence of the supreme soul.

Hey guys, humans cannot see that kind of complex, super complex, super-energy particles with their eyes. Even the smallest particles of simple matter cannot be seen by humans, nor can their scientific technology measure or capture them. While the complex group of particles and the super complex group have complicated and super-complicated vibrational wave codes, they are even more invisible. Even if someone does not believe, even if people do not realize what I preach to everyone, everyone must believe in it when they leave their bodies in the human world to return to their home planet."

Suddenly, images of other memories of the teacher flashed by very quickly. That made me understand that he went to sleep after returning to important memories to connect precious information and help his students thoroughly understand the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particles. I had escaped from his memory and was watching him fall asleep. I looked at the clock and noticed only one hour left until the plane landed at Hanoi's airport. The tuelinh within the teacher allowed his body to sleep deeply before the plane landed. That's good for me to keep him healthy for the long journey ahead. Even though he has succeeded in his first mission in this human life, successfully transforming the yin and yang embryos into dual filters, he still has another huge task to help his students change their yin and yang embryos into single filters. That's not easy at all.

Chapter Fifty-Three

Everything Is Information

In a quiet space, the Teacher is sitting and enjoying a cup of hot tea in the cold autumn weather of Hanoi. The cold morning makes a cup of hot tea more delicious than on hot days. The aroma of the famous tea that Vietnamese people often drink spread throughout the room, and the Teacher was enjoying the tea and closing his eyes while sitting on the sofa. Perhaps he is thinking about something or the recent pilgrimage to the Buddha's land.

The room door suddenly opened in the silence with the scent of tea. The Teacher opened his eyes and saw a group of students. They greeted the Teacher and went into the Teacher's office. Walking last was a strange older woman with a sad expression. They came without telling the Teacher first. Seeing this, the Teacher asked a student to make a new teapot. After that, a student immediately said to the Teacher, "Teacher, we know that you have returned to the country, so we invited each other to come see you. We hope you let us stay in your office all day today to listen to your lecture. After being told by some friends who accompanied him back to India that he had given them many wonderful lectures, we went to see him. I hope you will allow us to stay and listen to your lecture. We have prepared lunch for the Teacher and everyone to enjoy during their lunch break."

The Teacher smiled and said, "Of course, today I have no reason to refuse your request, especially since you have come here. So please enjoy your tea first."

When the Teacher agreed, happy smiles appeared on the students' faces. A student immediately told the Teacher, "Teacher, I brought a woman to meet you. She had access to and learned your knowledge through your books and video lectures. Her family is having problems, so she asked me to take her to see you and hope you can help."

That woman immediately told the Teacher, "Teacher, my niece shared and guided me in learning your knowledge. After a period of study, I understood the origin, mission and method to complete the mission: to practice producing positive particles in the four forms of the Tao. Your knowledge has enlightened me a lot and changed my thoughts and actions. In the past, I often went to temples in many places to perform rituals to pray to Buddha for health and fortune. At that time, I thought what I thought and did was right and that Buddha would bless me. However, after reading the book and listening to his lectures, I was enlightened and understood about Buddha and God. Since then, I have changed and no longer go to Mass to pray. Now, I only go to express my gratitude to Buddha and God at the beginning of the new year. I felt peace and joy from my actions after understanding many things from my Teacher's knowledge. Teacher, I feel delighted to meet you even though something is happening in my family that makes me worried and sad."

The Teacher interrupted, "What's going on with your family?"

"Teacher, my mother is very sick, and the family is worried that she will not survive. Even though my mother is over 70 years old, she has never been as seriously ill as she is now. She is currently being treated at the hospital, and the doctor has told her family to prepare because she is unlikely to survive. My mother is gentle and kind to her children, grandchildren and everyone. Indeed, if she did not survive, it would be a huge loss for us. Teacher, after reading your knowledge and having my niece share secrets about you, I know you have miracles, especially being able to save people's lives when their bodies are not damaged or destroyed. That's why I asked my niece to take me to the Teacher and ask him to help my mother." The woman answered the Teacher.

The Teacher looked at the woman and the students and then said, "To help you enlighten and transform your mind and that of your family members regarding your mother's illness, I have a situation, and people come up with answers. A house is built from solid bricks, stone, and steel. That house is extremely sturdy and prevents attacks from wild animals and thieves, in addition to the comfort it brings to its people. The second house's walls are made from tree branches, the roof is covered with layers of leaves, and the floor is dirt. That house had rain falling through the roof and wetting the people inside. Wild animals easily attack people inside. Thieves can easily break walls to take things inside or hurt people living there. The ground often has insects and snakes crawling in when it rains. When people have the right to choose, which house will people choose to live in?"

The students answered, "I will choose the first house to live in because it is made from steel, bricks and stone, solid and safe. I will not have to worry about the dangers the outside world causes my family and me."

The Teacher looked at the woman and asked, "Which house do you choose?"

"Teacher, I will choose the first house because it is fully furnished and safe. In contrast, a house made from leaves and branches is unsafe and uncomfortable. If people live in an unsafe house, they will always be worried and afraid." The woman replied.

The Teacher continued to ask, "Do you think that the soul inside the human body will choose a sturdy and comfortable house when asked that question?"

One student replied, "I believe that the tuelinhs will choose a sturdy and safe house because they have the most superior intelligence in the universe."

The Teacher looked at everyone and said, "What do you think?"

"We also think that tuelinhs will choose a solid and comfortable house." The students answered together.

The Teacher continued to ask, "So, how will you react when people prevent you from choosing that solid and safe house while you have the right to choose and live in that house? Those people even tried everything to make you stay in that unsafe and uncomfortable house."

The woman replied, "I will tell them it is my right and my interest. My decisions do not violate the law or even concern or affect them. If they intentionally obstruct, I can ask the government to intervene and handle them to ensure the rights and interests of my family and me."

The Teacher looked at the woman and said, "That's right, they have no right to interfere with your decision in that case. Thus, you and everyone had the answer and enlightenment for your mother's health problem when she was over 70 years old and in a state of illness."

The woman looked surprised and asked again, "Teacher, I don't understand clearly what my mother's problem has to do with the answer about the decision to choose and stay in a solid house or an unsafe house. I hope you can explain to me."

The Teacher said, "You have read my book, so you know about birth, old age, illness, death, living but separation, living people separating from dying people. That is a natural law, and all humans must face it. No one can prevent or escape the suffering caused by that natural law. I won't discuss that issue again because you have read and understood it.

What I want to say here is that your mother is sick due to old age and has also experienced a human life with good values brought to her relatives and everyone around her. Of course, your or anyone's feelings when a loved one falls into a life-or-death situation are sadness and regret if the separation between the living and the deceased is inevitable. Look deep inside your mother's form and body; look inside her soul. You must understand that that soul has experienced a human life with suffering from birth, growing up, studying, working, taking care of children and family, helping people, old age and illness. After the suffering and hardship of controlling a body to allow that soul to mature through the process of producing energy particles, that soul now has to live in an old and rotten house, which is a body both old and sick. The house is that body that is facing the attack of cold winds, of wild animals, of thieves, of insects and vermin from outside. When the body is lying in bed due to illness, that house has collapsed and is pressing on that soul. Now, you came to me to ask me to help your mother overcome her illness. If I help, you and I are preventing that soul from choosing a more permanent and safer home because it is in that soul's right after a lifetime of suffering to help everyone. Besides the fact that I helped, I rebuilt that house from the rotten branches and leaves of the horrible house that had collapsed. As a result, with just one collision, a gust of wind, or an attack from animals from outside, that house will collapse. You must understand that your and your family's feelings differ from those of your mother's soul. When the soul of a person who has devoted a human life to overcoming tribulations and difficulties to practice good deeds to help others, they will become happy and peaceful, even wishing to escape from the body when the body becomes old and weak. They do not want to be tied down and lose their freedom in old and sick bodies.

It would be best if you remembered that your mother's body is not young enough to intervene in matters of life and death. Let that soul choose a better home for itself, a new human life with new achievements inherited from this life. Let that soul experience the painful separation from children, grandchildren and relatives instead of thinking and acting like people who prevent others from choosing a better home for themselves. So, are you now enlightened about your mother's problem?"

The woman replied, "Teacher, after your analysis and explanation, I became enlightened about life and death when I directly faced and experienced it with my loved ones. Even though I had read about suffering and the method of liberation from suffering in your books, I was confused and sunk into painful emotions without being able to escape. I'm so lucky to talk directly with the Teacher; his explanations are straightforward. It was like a miracle that I became free of fear and anxiety when my mother completed her human life. In particular, my mood suddenly became strangely peaceful. Teacher, why am I in such a mood when I was already sad and worried about my mother when you haven't explained it to me?"

"Everything is information. Through all the reactions and interactions of things, events, and phenomena, wisdom and humans will understand the value of information. Understanding information is understanding the truth of all things." The Teacher answered.

A student realized that the Teacher's answer had profound meaning and understood it was new knowledge that the Teacher would teach everyone, so he immediately told the woman. "Even though the Teacher has answered you and you have also enlightened your family's problem, you should stay to listen to the Teacher's new lecture this morning. What the Teacher just said is the new intellectual values that we are looking forward to hearing him preach. The fact that you can listen to the Teacher's lectures directly will help you understand and become enlightened faster than reading the Teacher's books."

The woman immediately said, "Then please allow me to listen to your lecture this morning."

The Teacher replied, "Of course, I agree with your proposal. That is your right, and I cannot arbitrarily prevent your decision."

Everyone looked at each other and laughed when they saw the Teacher's humorous answer.

After a few minutes for everyone to relax, the Teacher started his lecture with a pen. A moment later, he finished drawing an image depicting the wisdom wave code on the whiteboard beside his coffee table.

Information in the smallest energy particles

Then, the Teacher told everyone. "What you see on the board is the intellectual wave code of the smallest energy particle. When you look at it, you still find it familiar because the intelligent wave-code fibre has three points and two segments, and the information values are stored in the intelligent wave-code fibre. However, today's lecture will be more in-depth when I analyze for you to understand the truth of the information inside the intellectual wave-code fibre. You will appreciate that everything is information; information is all physical structures. In particular, through the reactions and interactions of things, events, and phenomena in life, in and out of the universe, to understand the value of information. Understanding information means understanding everything in and out of the universe. This lesson will help you upgrade your enlightened wisdom through the mindset that connects information with all reactions of all things, events and phenomena.

First, look at this familiar intellectual wave code and tell me if there is anything unusual compared to what I have taught you about the particle knowledge associated with the two truths?"

After looking closely at the drawing on the board, a student answered the Teacher, "Teacher, we really cannot fully understand what you have taught. Therefore, thinking and looking for differences in this image is something we cannot do."

The Teacher smiled and said, "Of course, nothing unusual about the image depicting the intellectual wave code with the stored information values. I redraw it to help you quickly understand what I will explain. I want to tell you that seeing or knowing about all things, events, and phenomena is not enlightenment. Enlightenment can only be achieved by comprehending the accurate information value of all things, events, and phenomena through interactions and reactions.

After you look at the image of that intellectual wave code, you must remember that everything is information. Why is everything information? That's because everything is made up of data. Now let's explore together in detail from the origin to the present of all things in the universe, tuelinhs and humans to understand that all things are information. As follows:

- Talking about the intellectual wave code fibre, you deeply understand the structure of the intelligence wave code fibre, consisting of three points and two segments, its nature of carrying electric waves, and the operating mechanism of energy particles after it was born. In particular, the information values stored in the smallest energy particles have also been carefully analyzed in many lectures. Those things are a solid foundation to help you upgrade your enlightenment.

- Talking about the origin of everything in the universe, we must mention the ancestral wave-particles. A wave-particle is the smallest unit of matter; it is the source of the formation of destructive energy particles and energy groups that make up all things in the universe. Remember that wave-particles do not yet encode information when they are born. Because they have not encoded information, they have yet to generate energy states. It is not the smallest energy particle because there is yet to be any information and energy state.

Therefore, it cannot form physical structures and life forms in the universe.

- Talk about destructive energy particles. They are the result of the evolution of wave-particles. That is the process by which wave-particles move to generate internal heat. That process causes the wave-particle to change its nature by encoding information from the outside environment. The result of the process of varying nature and encoding information has helped wave-particles become destructive particles even though they have not entirely transformed. However, when they encode information and produce energy states, it has been shown that matter at the level of energy particles has been formed. It is created based on encoding information from the external environment through the movement of wave-particles. Thus, this is the first group of matter formed from data.

- Refers to the type of energy particles with negative and positive electric waves before forming the universe's yin and yang energy embryo. Energy particles with electric waves result from the miraculous evolution of wave-particles in a thermal environment due to the explosive reactions of destructive particle life forms. When wave-particles move into a medium with the interaction of annihilation particles, they encode tremendous information values by moving and changing their nature. In particular, the amount of encoded information is huge when moving into an environment with positive or cold heat. That process has helped the wave-particles completely transform into intellectual wave code fibres and retain vast information value. As a result, energy particles with electric waves are formed from the information values encoded by the reactions of the destructive particle life form. You need to understand that a thermal environment manifests information values from the interaction and reaction of matter. Thus, the second group of matter has been formed from the information value after the life form of the annihilating particle. However, the information stored in yin and yang energy particles is much more excellent and valuable than destructive energy particles.

- Refers to the yin and yang energy embryo of the universe. It is formed from two magical energy particles, negative and positive. Why do those two yin and yang energy particles bond to become larger material structures than the smallest energy particle level? It is interconnected because of the information value in each energy particle, and there is a similarity or match in the information value and difference in the electrical waves of the two particles. After the energy embryo is formed, it constantly increases information linkage and encodes new information values to maintain its existence and develop its physical structure. As a result, a super-giant sphere containing energy particles formed after the yin-yang embryo process encodes information from reactions with the life form of the destructive energy particles. Thus, a vast group of physical structures has been formed from information values.

- Talk about the first tuelinh. He is a collection of information values that have been selected and encoded through the production and connection mechanism of the yin and yang embryo of the universe. It can be understood that he is the crystallization of all the universe's information from when the original yin and yang particle was formed until now.

He is a physical structure with supreme intelligence. His structure is an interconnected combination of negative, positive, and neutral energy particles. All that particle structure expresses the nature of the information value stored inside. Thus, the first tuelinh is a super-physical structure formed from the quantity and quality of information.

- Discuss about people and animals. Their bodies are all simple physical structures. The simple physical structure is formed by connecting combinations of energy particles with simple intellectual wave codes and simple information values. When humans are born, it is a connection between the super complex information structure of the tuelinh and the simple information structure of the body. Animals are the same; the simple information structure of the body and the complex information structure of the soul inside link them together. To maintain life and development, everyone must participate in producing and connecting energy particles of the body and the tuelinh/soul inside. All particles are formed and linked together by information values encoded through reactions and interactions in life. Thus, humans and animals are physical structures formed and developed from the quantity and quality of information.

- Refers to the universe as a whole with countless galaxies. It is a level of matter on the most enormous scale in space. From the physical units of yin and yang embryos to the physical units of planets in the universe, they are all formed from the smallest energy particles through the mechanism of production - connection and rotation to maintain and develop. Their formation and development are due to the quantity and quality of information encoded and linked.

Thus, everything in and out of the universe is formed from the quantity and quality of information.

And now, you understand why everything is information - because information is images, sounds, languages, reactions and interactions. All of them are encoded into the intellectual wave code fibre to form the smallest energy particle. Life forms are formed from the smallest particle of energy, and all things have different information characteristics.

What will you do next once you understand that everything is information?" The Teacher asked the students.

A student replied, "Teacher, in my opinion, we must use the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment associated with the smallest particle of energy to understand all things, events and phenomena in and outside the universe, thereby practising the mechanism of producing sustainable energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world. Once I understand, I must practice producing energy particles to store the information and enlightenment wisdom I have achieved. On the contrary, if we understand but do not practice particle production, the information value will not be stored inside by the newly produced energy particles. If stored, it only has a little information stored in the original energy embryo of the tuelinh."

The Teacher said, "That's right. We must use the two truths associated with energy particles to understand all the information values of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Then, practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production according to the principles of enlightened truth. The two truths and energy particle knowledge constitute unique and noble enlightened knowledge. Therefore, you must always apply them to all interactions to decode the truth about the three secrets I taught you in previous lessons.

In today's lesson, I hoped you could identify the information values of things, events and phenomena after their reactions and interactions. That will help you have a better thinking ability to thoroughly discover the secrets of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. You must know that information makes up the smallest energy particles and all things in and out of the universe. Knowledge of the two truths associated with the smallest energy particle is to help wisdom and humans understand the nature of all things in and outside the universe and themselves. Therefore, when you know both, it means you already possess a unique enlightened wisdom. That is the wisdom of complete enlightenment at a profound level.

First, you must understand that all things constantly interact and react with each other. That means that information is continually interacting and reacting with each other. The interaction and information reaction of all things, tuelinhs and humans creates events and phenomena. The results of all interactions and reactions of things, events and phenomena make new information values. The latest information value is crystallized from the nature of the information in each physical unit's internal and external environment.

Next, through each reaction and interaction of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe, tuelinhs and humans, we will understand the informational nature of it all. As follows:

- For ancestral wave-particles, through their movement in different thermal environments to transform into destructive energy particles and electric wave energy particles, we understand the values of its information. That is, wave-particles have yet to encode data in the particles; they have yet to generate an energy state after birth. The wave-particle will transform into different types of energy particles when it encodes different information values in different thermal environments. From there, we understand the message of the wave-particle: it is the ancestral particle, the source for creating life in and outside the universe.

- For destructive energy particles, we understand the nature of their internal information through their interaction and detonation reactions. Annihilation particles are formed from wave-particles in an environment without heat. The amount and quality of information encoded is simple; it will be detonated when there is excess heat due to the incomplete transformation of the wave-particles; it is easily detonated when gathered together in dense density; it will release excess heat when encountering cold thermal environments and polynegative material structures; It will burst when experiencing a positive thermal environment and polypositive particle structures. The message of the annihilation particle: it is the source of heat to create life, maintain and develop sustainably for all life in the universe.

- For energy particles with negative electric waves, through their interactions and reactions, we understand the nature of their information. That is, they encoded incorrectly and missing information values; information contains toxins and easily hinders sustainable development; it has the property of absorbing information from the external environment; and it is an ideal environment for destructive energies to discharge their excess heat. The message of harmful energy particles is that they are half of all life in the universe because there would be no yin and yang embryos and the life of the entire universe without them.

- For energy particles with positive electric waves, through their interactions and reactions, we understand their nature. That is, encrypted information is accurate and comprehensive; information has the power to promote sustainable development; they are capable of detonating destructive energy; and they have the power to transmit information. The message of the positive particle: they are half of all life in the universe because the positive particle, together with the negative particle, unites to form the yin and yang embryo of all life forms in the universe. In particular, positive particles have the power to protect and promote the sustainable development of everything in the universe.

- Regarding yin and yang energy embryos, we understand the nature of their information through their interactions and reactions. The struggle and information reaction between the yin and yang environments always occurs fiercely between the original yin and yang particles. As a result, new information values, which are positive and negative energy particles, are born. New information values are always created and linked together to become physical solid structures through particle production and connection. It establishes two mechanisms in transformation: the decay transmutation mechanism and the sustainable transformation mechanism. The message of the yin and yang embryo shows the path of existence and development of all life in the universe through the transformation mechanism of producing energy particles.

- For the tuelinhs, we understand the value of their information through their interactions and reactions. They are the life form with the most superior intelligence in the universe; they have the power to build, develop, and protect the universe. Inside, they contain both goodness and poison. The message of the tuelinhs life form is that they are born and can be destroyed; the tuelinh life form does not have the power and wisdom like the first tuelinh.

- For galaxy masses, through their movement and reactions, we understand the information values about them. That is, the universe is the wisdom of the first tuelinh; The universe was born and developed sustainably by the wisdom and operating hands of the first tuelinh. The universe's message is that all life forms, especially the tuelinhs, must be responsible for protecting and sustainably developing all life in the universe, including the destructive energy of outer space. The existence of the universe and the energy of destruction must go hand in hand, and it is impossible to lack either one because, without it, all life forms in and outside the universe will be destroyed.

- For animals and all species, we understand the nature of their information through their interactions and reactions.

That is, complex energy structures are soul structures residing in simple bodies that perform the transformation mechanism to upgrade the value of information inside. Souls will be transmuted into the tuelinhs when the information value has been encoded in quality and quantity. When animal souls are transmuted into the tuelinhs, they will be reincarnated into humans to practice with the tuelinhs in human form. Message from animals and all species: all are equal in the transformation journey to achieve the union of wisdom with the universe, the unified Tao of the universe, also known as the energy filter dual within the original yin and yang embryo of the tuelinh.

- For humans, through interaction and reaction in the four forms of Tao, we understand the nature of human information. Humans are the incarnation of the tuelinh life form to practice understanding themselves and each other, understanding all things and the energy of destruction. Humans are also the reincarnation of animal souls after they are transmuted into the tuelinhs because they have increased the value of the information encoded inside. Humans must live in suffering and tribulation through all the scenarios of the four forms of the Tao so that the tuelinh/soul increases the encoding of valuable information for the sustainable development of all things and themselves. Humans are the most magical tools for the tuelinhs to force out toxins and activate goodness within them. Humans are also the most miraculous means for all tuelinhs to upgrade the value of information and obtain the dual energy filter, which is the unifying Tao of the universe. The human message is that humans are just a vehicle, a home for the tuelinh life form to live inside and practice different transformation mechanisms. The next is to find the most sustainable transmutation mechanism for their practice purpose and mission in the human world: to transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters to produce super energy particles to help them and the universe develop sustainably.

From the truth that everything is information and through all the interactions and reactions of all things to understand the nature of their data, I want you to apply that in combination with the knowledge of the two truths are linked to the knowledge of energy particles to understand and become enlightened about the sufferings and tribulations of each person from birth to death in the four forms of the Tao. I have already explained the suffering and the method of liberation from suffering to you through the two truths and the particle's transformation mechanism. However, after studying this lesson, you should apply it all to understand enlightenment at a deeper level when thinking from the perspective of everything is information and through the reactions of objects to see the information value of all things."

After sipping hot tea, the teacher looked at the woman and said, "The knowledge just now is probably too much for you. However, you also understood that when you decoded and encoded the true information about your mother's problem, your mind became happy and no longer suffering. That shows the power and authenticity of information. My questions and explanations regarding your mother and the two houses case are a way of applying the knowledge of the two truths and energy particles at a deeper level. It is to understand the true information values through the reactions of all things when understanding that they are information and always react to each other. In your mother's case, it was an information reaction between the soul inside and the illness of the ageing body outside. The process and result of that reaction is to help the living and the souls of the dying to understand the values of all interaction scenarios in human life on the journey to practice the mission in the human world."

Then the teacher looked at the students and said, "You must combine the knowledge of the two truths associated with energy particles with today's lesson - everything is information to create informational reactions when practising spreading enlightened knowledge to everyone. Creating informational reactions during practice helps you achieve deeper thinking and higher levels of enlightenment. In addition, it will help you develop the most effective solutions to help people overcome suffering and easily practice their mission in this human life."

Chapter Fifty-Four

A Great Decision That Changed the History of the Universe

The woman left after the teacher finished his morning lecture. The worries and sadness disappeared from her face after the teacher explained the painful problem she was facing. In addition, enlightenment and happiness were present in her mind and breath. Listening to lectures directly from the teacher is terrific because the listener will gain a more magical understanding than reading books and listening to the teacher's video lectures. That's why students often suddenly come to the teacher's office to listen to his lecture. They understand that if they ask the teacher for permission in advance, the teacher will not agree because of the reasons he gives. Therefore, these students often come without asking permission and think they are like children, so the teacher has no reason to scold them. However, they are often disappointed when they arrive; those are the times when the teacher is not present in the office. Anyway, the teacher's office is like their second home for them. They respect him very much and consider him a close family member even though he is sometimes very strict. The teacher's strictness is that he will not give answers or solutions in some situations that students ask or have questions about; Instead, he wants his students to experience the stumbles and sufferings in life. After many times of not receiving an answer from the teacher, the students understood that if they asked and asked for advice from the teacher about what to do, the teacher would not answer because knowledge clearly states what actions produce positive energy particles and what actions produce negative energy particles. However, if they ask him about problems in understanding knowledge, he always answers and explains everything and reality. Therefore, in his mind, his students are becoming more mature in their thoughts and actions.

While the teacher and some students were drinking water after the lunch break, others took the opportunity to sit and sleep on the chairs in the office. As a habit of Vietnamese people, after every lunch, they often nap, whether at home or work. Because they live in a hot and humid tropical country, taking a nap will help them regenerate energy for a more productive and alert working afternoon. While the teacher was sipping tea from the hot tea cup in his hand, a male student asked the teacher, "Teacher, before the first tuelinh brought tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to practice, what did he do to help the tuelinhs cope with the destructive energy?"

Hearing someone ask the teacher, several students who were sleeping and sitting woke up immediately. Afterwards, they washed their faces to stay awake and listen to the teacher's lecture. Knowing the desire and urgency of those students, the teacher had not answered yet; instead, he was still sipping delicious sips of tea.

When all the students were sitting around the teacher, the teacher spoke. "Of course, the first tuelinh had many studies and teachings to help all tuelinhs understand themselves and the energy of destruction. It was a long story before he decided to create a practice environment and bring all the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to practice in this world. Let me give you an understanding of what he did before making a significant decision that changed the universe's history.

After the first tuelinh built the central planet and a mass of galaxies surrounding that planet, the first small tuelinhs were born. They were taken from the most miraculous crystal rocks he created in a giant cave. The tuelinh babies were born first; they were the first embryos of yin and yang energy that he gathered to the central space from all over space after the Big Bang. Did you know? The birth of the tuelinh babies is an indescribable happiness for the first tuelinh. He was delighted because their birth ended the loneliness in the vast space for a long time. From that moment on, he had more tuelinhs with the same structure and intelligence as him. They can listen to him speak and teach them. They learned everything from him, and they communicated with him. That made him extraordinarily emotional and surprised. Perhaps because of the loneliness in endless space and time for so long, he was amazed when the tuelinh children talked to him.

After the first tuelinh children were born, he always let them play in the magical rock crystals cave. They play and look at the rock crystals containing energy embryos that will become tuelinhs. The rock crystals where they were born were filled with new energy embryos by the first tuelinh. A giant cave radiates silver light from the rock crystals mixed with iridescent lights from the surrounding floor and walls, immersing the children in the enchantment of that beauty. Babies feel they are too small and are constantly exploring everything in there. They talk to each other whenever the first tuelinh is not around. They just walked and played there without daring to leave the cave because the first tuelinh told them they were not allowed to go out without his permission. The children call him Father. Their Father wanted them to be more mature before leaving that cave. Because their particle structure is not much, they need to absorb good energy from the rock crystals in the cave to help their yin and yang embryos produce more new energy particles. However, creating energy particles in their yin and yang embryos is very slow, so they must live there for a long time.

Since the tuelinh babies were born, their Father has had many great ideas in designing and building the life forms of the universe. He has created countless galaxies based on constructing a wire connection system between planets and between them and the central planet. He also built an information-receiving and transmitting system to operate the entire life of the universe more effectively. That shows that the appearance of his children has helped him create a magical universe with artistic heights by using the moving mechanisms of the universe. In particular, he is no longer alone in endless space. Instead, after working hard to build and operate the universe, he had children to talk to and teach them about the world outside this magical cave. It can be said that love and happiness have appeared in his mind since the babies were born, whereas before, he did not show any emotions.

When the children were older, he allowed them to leave that magical cave. When they stepped out of the cave, where they had been living for a long time, they became excited by the beauty and scenery in paradise. They cheered and ran everywhere to see the sparkling blue lights of lapis lazuli from the bottom of the lake. They looked at the flowers that radiated five-coloured light and were fragrant. They play with brightly shining gems and throw them into the lake. They play under ancient trees, running across the green grassland and the bright light emitted from the trees. They had fun and explored the magical planet after the lectures their Father gave them to understand the worldview of the planet they were on. After playing and being tired, they returned to the ancient houses made by their Father from gold and precious stones. They are immersed in deep sleep and have beautiful dreams and memories of how their yin and yang embryos were formed until the present. Their memories recreated in sleep have helped them mature in thinking and thinking in situations they encounter. When the children slept, the first tuelinh looked at them and the houses he created; indescribable emotions, thoughts and plans to help the children grow up appeared in his mind.

He always cares about the children and the energy embryos to form the next tuelinhs in the magical stone cave after the hard work of building and operating the universe. At such times, he let go of the pressures of his work as he blended his mind with the innocent minds of children. He had an extraordinary feeling of peace and happiness with them.

After the journey of building galaxies, the space containing energetic particles after the explosion was filled with galaxy blocks. The galactic masses are arranged and cover beyond the central planet as far as the space of the destructive energy. The universe's construction has been completed with its countless galaxy blocks. Therefore, he spent more time caring for and educating his children. Now, his children are not just a few because many were conceived during his construction of the universe. Together, they form a life form with superior intelligence and constantly increase in number. While he was building and operating the universe, the older children cared for and taught the younger children. They care for each other and play together whenever their Father is away or busy with work. Their innocence and playing make them unable to realize the hardships and pressures their Father had to go through to help all life forms in the universe survive and develop sustainably. They just realized his care and concern for them and saw he had more time to spend with them. They did not know that the universe was a sphere with countless galaxies rotating around the central planet where they were. In addition, they do not know that hazardous areas inside the galaxies contain destructive energy. Perhaps they are too young to understand those things, so he has yet to tell them.

After building houses for the children, he created a place to teach the tuelinhs, his temple. The temple is made of gold and precious stones; the walls and everything inside radiate golden light mixed with five-coloured light that is both enchanting and ancient. In that place, he could teach thousands of the tuelinhs simultaneously. Indeed, it is a temple that is both large and ancient. In addition, he has a separate working area, and he does not allow tuelinhs to enter that area. It is where the yellow super-energy particles are later stored. Still, now it is where five complex energy groups are operated by a pyramid of the most magical stone in the universe. He uses that pyramid to serve all life in the universe through the information-receiving and transmitting system and the wire connection system between the planets and the central planet. Besides working at his private workplace, he spends a lot of time teaching tuelinhs.

In his temple and teachings, the first tuelinh taught the children about the worldview of the central planet with the most miraculous physical structures in the universe. He taught them about the history of the universe's formation, about himself and the process by which he built the universe's life. He taught them the rules and principles of communicating with each other and how to treat other life forms. He taught them a lot about the universe and about all physical structures formed from particles with different intellectual wave codes. In particular, lectures were given only to the oldest children, and he taught them about the energy of destruction. He told them about the existence of areas containing that type of energy. He also taught them about the value and danger of destructive energy for the existence and development of the universe. However, through his lectures, they only remembered what their Father taught but could not clearly understand the energy of destruction. Therefore, in their minds, destructive energy is something foreign, and they are not yet aware of the dangers of that type of energy. Then, the older children taught the younger children what they learned from Father. They teach each other and discuss together what Father has taught them.

As time passed, there were many older children. But to him, they are only more prominent in thinking, while their body structure is still insignificant and very weak. He realized that the magical rocks could not help them mature and grow faster than he was born and developed by the heat from the energy of destruction. In addition, he found that the children's reactions to absorb information and detonate annihilation particles were absent. For that reason, their growth process is a big challenge for him.

To help the children gain more understanding about other life forms, especially the life form of destructive energy, he took the older children to visit the space of the universe. He believes that is the best way to help children acquire accurate information from lectures about specific places and spaces in the universe. The lectures on the energy of destruction next to the area containing the energy of destruction were the most exciting lectures they learned because they also practised detonating individual particles of energy of destruction with the help of Father. When learning and practising the reaction of blasting individual particles of destructive energy in areas containing annihilation energy, he always carefully protected the children because they had never approached and had any reaction to annihilation energy in the past. That is entirely different from what he has experienced since his yin and yang embryo was formed until now. For the tuelinh, the results of the practical lessons in places near areas containing destructive energy excited some children after detonating each particle of destructive energy.

Despite the pain as the necrotic particles attacked and released excess heat, the children became excited when they blasted destructive particles. However, some children need more strength and confidence to detonate destructive particles when attacked by them. They become painful and frightened about the annihilation energy. Then, he gave them many practical lessons to help the children detonate the particles of destruction. However, in addition to the children who can blast each annihilation particle, the others cannot. Children can demolish individual annihilation particles but do not have enough power to detonate multiple annihilation particles in the same reaction. That made the first tuelinh more worried about his children. He realized that the children's strength was so different from his own: immediately after his yin and yang embryo was formed in destructive energy, that yin and yang embryo created countless reactions to detonate annihilation particles while still being safe. From that extraordinary power, he became the mature tuelinh he is today with a tremendous cosmic project that he built.

While he was looking for solutions to help the tuelinhs improve their power in detonating particles of destruction, the children invited each other to move to the area with destructive energy to perform the detonation of that type of particle. The children went to those dangerous places without Father's permission. Perhaps those who can successfully detonate annihilation particles want to help those who have not successfully fired to a place with annihilation energy to practice. It's also good that they want to help each other, but they need to realize the danger they face. Unfortunately, an unfortunate consequence occurred when the children were trying to absorb the destructive particles to detonate them. Some children could not control the onslaught of annihilation energy particles; Therefore, many destruction particles entered their bodies and became painful. Seeing this, the other children stepped forward to help, but large amounts of destructive energy particles also attacked them. As a result, many children disintegrated soon after. The few remaining children, seeing this, became terrified as they witnessed their brothers disintegrate into particles of destruction. Immediately, the remaining survivors tried to move back with injuries on their bodies.

When he heard the children tell about what had happened to many of their brothers, the first tuelinh could not hide his emotions. He suffered when many of his children were decomposed and died. Perhaps this was the first time he suffered, even though he had previously witnessed many planets and physical structures being disintegrated by destructive energy. However, his children are a particular case because they have superior intelligence, they have emotions, and they know how to absorb and follow what he teaches them. Now, pain is present in his mind. He looked at children who were hurting and helped them heal those wounds. Without letting them explain, he told them, "I understand what you have gone through; those are good deeds when you want to help each other become more mature. However, the destructive energy is not as simple as you think. Please remember you cannot go to those places without me accompanying you."

The trauma that the first tuelinh had to go through while building the universe cannot be compared to the trauma this time. The children he had cared for, taught, and talked to for so long were no more. The other younger children noticed the older children's absence without understanding what had happened. They became more curious when they saw Father telling them not to move out of this central planet without his permission.

For a long time afterwards, similar losses continued to occur. The children were too curious and unaware of the dangers of destructive energy, so they invited each other to the areas where the annihilation energy had decayed. Those significant losses became a massive challenge for the first tuelinh. He became confused about finding a method to prevent the tuelinhs from disintegrating and being destroyed by the energy of destruction.

After a period of analyzing the movement of solar systems in detonating destructive energy to promote their development, he realized the following truths:

- Planets orbiting the solar system can attract destructive energy in small quantities.
- The sun is hot enough to detonate destructive particles.
- Planets orbiting the sun will attract destructive energy when they do not receive heat from the sun. However, when these planets receive heat from the sun, they will detonate destructive energy. After that, the physical structures grew more robust and more mature.

He continued to remember the process from when his yin and yang embryo was formed until the incredible explosion of the energy sphere occurred. He observed:

- His yin and yang energy embryo is unique because it is made up of a positive energy particle with super strong electric waves and a negative energy particle with very weak electric waves.

- The negative energy particle of the original yin-yang embryo has weak electric waves, so it does not provoke a massive attack of destructive energy, and the original positive energy particle always controls it. That makes the energy embryo safe in the space of annihilation energy.

- The positive energy particle of the original yin-yang embryo has super strong electric waves, so they have enough power to detonate destructive energy particles that attack the yin-yang embryo.

- The two original yin and yang energy particles were formed from the ancestral wave-particles, so when they joined together to form the yin and yang embryo, they created an incredibly magical membrane. The covering membrane of that yin and yang energy embryo has the power to protect the embryo against attacks from destructive energy and is safe when detonating them.

- That yin and yang embryo is miraculous from the moment it is born. The embryo grew and matured quickly when experiencing safe destructive energy detonation reactions in the early stages. When mature, that energy embryo becomes more robust and more miraculous in detonating annihilation energy.

- He saw that from when his yin and yang embryo was formed until the big explosion occurred, he always faced and operated destructive energy detonation reactions from the scale of a few particles of destruction to the Big Bang. His living environment is an endless space of annihilation energy. That shows that he lived, survived, and developed in an extremely harsh environment.

Then he thought about the tuelinh children and realized:

- The energy particles that make up the yin and yang embryos of the children are born from his energy embryo, so their power is only equal to one unit of his information reaction, while he has countless informational reactions. That shows the massive difference in the value of the information encoded inside the children compared to him.

- They are born and raised in an environment without harshness. The children's environment is a place containing the best energies in the universe and does not have the presence of destructive energy.

- They do not have to face and have never practised destructive energy detonation reactions when they are yin and yang energy embryos.

- Children do not have the information to understand the energy of destruction.

After analyzing and comparing the differences between him and the children in terms of the environment in which they were born and raised and in terms of their strength in carrying out destructive energy detonation reactions, he found that:

- His children were born and raised in a peaceful and safe central planet environment. Their environment does not have the same extreme pressure and compression as his.

- The quantity and quality of information stored in children's yin and yang energy embryos is too little compared to him. That created a power gap between him and his children.

- He does not yet understand the nature of his yin and yang energy embryo, even though he knows he possesses the most potent and unique yin and yang embryo in the universe. Because of this, he could not yet understand the nature of all children's yin and yang embryos. Children also cannot understand the nature of their yin and yang embryos. Because he did not understand his nature, he and the tuelinhs do not understand the nature of each other, of all things in the universe and the energy of destruction. That is not understanding the three secrets.

In addition, in the process of building galaxies and life in the universe, he noticed:

- The universe will run out of energy to operate the existence and development of all life forms. It is the energy depletion for maintaining the rotation and tight connection within each planet and throughout the universe.

- Destructive energy will grow stronger and will disintegrate the entire universe in the future if the universe does not have enough energy to ensure the process of rotation and connection.

- Three groups of energy are simple energy, complex energy and super complex energy, tuelinh life forms that do not have enough strength to protect and develop the universe against the attack of destructive energy in the future. That shows the universe needs more special energy particles than those formed before the Big Bang.

So, although there are two challenges, it is one big challenge. It is a great challenge to save all life forms, including the tuelinh life forms.

After losing all three groups of matter, the tuelinh children, the complex matter group, and the planets due to the decay of destructive energy and consumption during movement, he made a significant decision after the research, prediction, and analysis. He decided to create a practice environment for the tuelinh life form. That practice environment is an excellent school for all tuelinhs and souls. Through that school, the tuelinhs and souls will have to understand themselves thoroughly, understand other tuelinhs and souls, understand all things in the universe, and understand the energy of destruction. Then, they must seek and practice the most optimal method to help them grow. Finally, they must produce particular types of energy that have the power to protect themselves and the entire universe from the attack of destructive energy. Thus, the tuelinhs have a great mission to save themselves and the universe.

To help the life forms of the tuelinhs and souls have an ideal environment to learn and complete their mission, the first tuelinh decided to build a medium as follows:

- That school must be a completely different planet from the central planet. That place does not have the magic and peace of life forms and magical energies like the central planet. That place will be a place of nothing but suffering with extreme pressure and compression. However, that place ensures that the tuelinhs and souls can live.

- That environment must be highly harsh because of natural disasters and diseases.

- The tuelinhs will have to live in a simple physical form, that of a human being. People will not be able to fly and move in space because the gravitational force of that planet will govern that place.

- Souls are complex energy structures that reside in animal bodies. They will experience the learning environment before humans appear. That was the plan for him to understand and build practice scenarios for the tuelinh life form afterwards.

- The tuelinhs will have to incarnate in human form and go through many lifetimes of practice to complete the tasks of each tuelinh.

- That environment is equal. It means that after the souls are upgraded in information to become the tuelinhs, they will be reincarnated as humans to practice with other tuelinhs.

After deciding to create an environment to help tuelinhs learn and find the most effective method to grow and produce unique types of energy particles, he made a planet to serve as a school for souls and the tuelinhs life forms. That planet is Earth.

As you know, after he achieved success in the stages of testing on plants and animals in finding a mechanism to help souls mature, he decided to bring the tuelinhs to incarnate as people. At that time, in heaven, he organized a conference to unify the practice path of the tuelinh life form, and then a meeting to gather humanity on Earth took place.

Did you know? After the tuelinhs incarnated as practitioners in the human world, the first tuelinh also incarnated to practice in many human lives. He incarnated as a human to lead the tuelinhs to practice in the human world and to find a method to produce unique energy particles from his energy embryo.

And you already know that. After many lifetimes of practice in the human world, the first tuelinh understood the three secrets that all tuelinhs are searching for, found a mechanism to help the tuelinhs grow, especially found a method and successfully transformed his yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter. Then, super-energy particles were produced in vast quantities from his yin and yang embryo.

Thus, with a great decision made by the first tuelinh and his dedication, the universe was not destroyed by the massive attack of destructive energy. As a result, he found a mechanism to help the tuelinhs mature and transform their yin and yang embryos into energy filters to produce super energy particles.”

A student said to the Teacher after the lecture ended, “Teacher, through this lecture, I understand the sacrifices of the first tuelinh and what he had for the tuelinhs and the whole universe. In particular, I feel his suffering when he has to go through huge losses when his children are disintegrated by destructive energy. However, when I see his great achievements and the changes in the universe, I feel his joy and happiness and that of all things in the universe.”

Chapter Fifty-Five

The Journey of Achieving the Unified Tao of the Universe of God

It was the first spring after the teacher had transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter. Although it has turned to spring with frequent rains, the weather is freezing, and the cold is more numbing than winter. Since transforming the original yin and yang embryo into a dual filter, he has often returned to heaven to teach tuelinhs whenever night falls. Those are lectures on energy particles to help the tuelinhs practising in the human world return to study alongside children in heaven. Tonight, too, after the master's body fell into a deep sleep, the tuelinh left the body to return to the central planet. However, unlike the previous times he returned to teach, he went into his own working space this time.

When the door of his working space was opened by one messenger, he took each step gently and slowly. Iridescent golden super-energy particles were floating, radiating sparkling light as if they were talking to the teacher. In front of the teacher is a pyramid made of the most magical gemstone in the universe; it also has golden light radiating every beat like a human heart. It seemed like it was waiting for the teacher to return to do something, so it seemed to cheer when it saw the teacher come in. When the teacher arrived at the pyramid, inside appeared a system of shiny yellow string connection links between the planets connected to the central planet. Bright yellow lights flashing in each link of the entire wire connection system show the stability of information waves in the universe. After that, the image of the cosmic sphere was zoomed out, and lapis lazuli blue light radiated intermingled with brilliant yellow light. Inside the pyramid appeared and showed that the outside of the cosmic sphere was covered with negative energy-super particles, which were blue like lapis lazuli. They are on duty: protecting the universe, transforming the particles of destruction into particles of fire when the particles of destruction attack, especially creating maximum vibrations and gaps to bring in destructive energy from outside in large quantities, then closing to protect the universe. The most magical super-energy particle in the universe was born after the teacher transformed the yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter.

The return of his tuelinh to heaven tonight not only helps the body's mind know about the changes in the universe after the yin and yang embryo has been transformed. The master's tuelinh may want the body's brain to receive more information and use it for the journey of helping the tuelinhs practice the method of yin and yang embryo transformation. Through the times the teacher's tuelinh returned to heaven to teach and past lives, the mind of the body received the whole wisdom of the tuelinh. In addition, the unification between body, mind and tuelinh has helped him upgrade his enlightened knowledge to reach new heights and transform the energy embryo into an energy filter. That's why he once told his students, "My life has two scenes: day and night. It is an extraordinary scene at night when the tuelinh in me returns to past lives and to heaven to work and teach. When my mind follows the tuelinh, I see that my insides completely differ from my thoughts and actions. Dignity and severity are shown towards all tuelinhs in heaven. That's why I received all the information and enlightened wisdom from my tuelinh."

The master's tuelinh placed his right hand on the pyramid and re-enacted the congresses, unifying the practice path of the tuelinh life form and the gathering of humanity inside. The images are reproduced like a fast-paced movie. Then, there is the scene of Nalas Nalanda sitting with his five eldest children in the very space containing this pyramid. He told them, "My children, I know you are tuelinhs far more powerful than all other tuelinhs. Therefore, I need you to incarnate as humans to lead and teach the first humans in the human world. I want you to experience many lifetimes of practice in the early stages of the practice journey of the tuelinhs in the human world. When you become human, I will guide you to build humanity according to my plan. In addition, when you are humans, I will build an information operating system for each tuelinh in a human life, which is the cause and effect tree system of the tuelinhs on their practice journey. Then, when you have completed your first lives of practice, I will assign you the task of operating that system, and you will become my messengers. When you operate the system well, I will directly incarnate to practice with the tuelinhs as a human. You will take turns reincarnating as humans so that your practice journey is not interrupted and the performance of your duties is always guaranteed. I will incarnate as a human at appropriate and important times."

Then Nalas Nalanda said to the five tuelinhs, "Do you know? People's practice environment is nothing but suffering, and suffering is always present in the four forms of life that I create for them. That environment will help my tuelinhs live in a chain of interactive reactions with all energy groups carrying negative, positive and neutral electrical waves. In particular, destructive energy will participate in every interactive reaction process in life. I will use the destructive energy from the area containing the nearby destructive energy and strictly control it to ensure human safety. Thus, the practice environment of the tuelinhs on earth will help them gradually understand themselves, each other, all things and the energy of destruction. In particular, they will gradually practice the reactions of detonating destructive energy through suffering and calamities. Hey, my kids! With what you have shown when detonating destructive energy particles and having matured faster than other tuelinhs, I believe you will easily achieve achievements when you incarnate as humans to practice."

Next, Nalas Nalanda controlled the pyramid to recreate the essential lives he practised in the human world. The images reproduced in the pyramid are transmitted from within his yin and yang energy embryo. The pictures of each human life appeared one after another, and he explained them:

"This is the image of my first human life. At that time, I was a young man born into a tribe in the forest. I had a happy life with the people of my tribe from childhood until adulthood. When I was an adult, one time, when I and my tribe members were bathing in a stream, people from another tribe attacked and killed us with large stones. They surrounded us and kept throwing stones to kill us. Everyone tried to run in the panic, and I was lucky to escape. However, after that, I lived solitary in the deep forest until I was old with a small black body. Then, the children of the tribe found me and brought me home. After this human life, I understand that inside humans are tuelinhs that cannot control themselves. They became cruel and brutal when killing people of other tribes to compete for each other's territory and territory. When people commit acts of killing, their negative energy particle system vibrates powerfully and causes many destructive particles to enter their tuelinh. That makes them more out of control. As a result of their cruel actions, negative energy particles were produced in their tuelinh and positive energy particles were not produced. Besides, even though our act of not killing them does not produce positive energy particles, no harmful energy particles are produced. Thus, this human life has helped me understand a lot about my children and the reactions between energy groups in them.

That is the human life in which I was a soldier in a war between countries. Even though I was a soldier, I tried not to kill anyone in every battle. Instead, I always tried to help my nation's soldiers when they were injured. During a struggle, I was stabbed by a sword from a soldier on the other side of the battle line. When he discovered that I was in a critical condition, one of my teammates took me across the river and saved me from death. This human life gave me a better understanding of my tuelinh children when they become humans. The toxins in their yin and yang embryos broke out and caused them to create wars and kill each other on a large scale between countries. Those who made wars, invaded, and committed murder all produce harmful energy particles. Producing those negative energy particles involved the intrusion of destructive energy particles to control their minds. However, my teammate's action to save me helped the soul inside that person produce positive energy particles after detonating the destructive energy.

These are the lives in which I was a trader. Images of workers who stole property and deceived me. Images of hard-working and dedicated workers at work. Images of other business people when they harmed people and workers for their benefit. As a businessman, I always helped workers and sold goods that brought value to the people. As a result of those human lives, I have learned more about the nature of the tuelinhs when they live in other forms of life. People who steal and cheat at work produce harmful energy particles. Merchants who sell goods that are harmful to humans also have negative energy particles. On the contrary, hard-working and dedicated workers and business people did not affect people's health and lives; they produced positive energy particles. People who created harmful energy particles were penetrated and damaged by destructive energy particles in their souls.

These are the lives in which I was a teacher. I have devoted my entire life to teaching knowledge to generations of my students. Some students listened and became talented people who helped the country. On the contrary, some students were jealous of each other and did not listen to advice, so they did not have success in life. These human lives helped me understand more about the tuelinhs when incarnated as humans. Their toxins continued to be revealed in the form of teachers-students and fellow students. Some students were jealous and disobedient and then committed acts that were harmful to society, their tuelinhs were attacked by destructive energy, and they produced many harmful energy particles. On the contrary, my dedication to spreading knowledge to students and obedient students to become good people, the tuelinh has made positive energy particles after detonating destructive energy particles attack.

These are the lives in which I became a stay-at-home mother when my husband passed away early, and I became a stay-at-home father when my wife passed away early. I did not take another wife or husband to spend time raising my children to adulthood. Other people are in the same situation as me; they have taken another spouse because they could not accept a lonely life. After such human lives, I understood more about the tuelinhs when living in such circumstances. When spouses pass away, they are left alone to raise their children and spend time helping others. In that case, the tuelinh inside will produce many positive energy particles because they have detonated the destructive particles. On the contrary, if they seek satisfaction in their new husband and wife, the poison of greed in the tuelinhs breaks out, and the energy of destruction enters. As a result, they produce many harmful energy particles.

Next are the other lives I have experienced. Those are human lives with complete scenarios that I have interacted with in the forms of the Tao. As a result, after those lives, I have understood that:

- If people have negative thoughts and actions that hurt everyone and everything, destructive energy will attack and control their minds. As a result, the inner tuelinh encodes incorrect information, and after the negative actions of the body, harmful energy particles are produced.

- If people have positive thoughts and actions that benefit everyone and everything, the absorbed destructive energy will be detonated. As a result, the tuelinh inside encodes accurate information, and after the positive actions of the body, positive energy particles are produced.

That is the human life in which I was a king. As a king, I have built and developed the nation into a powerful country with a prosperous life for its people. In this human life, when I was still a crown prince, I saved the lives of my father and mother in a coup by traitors. After I became king, there were still traitors by my side, and they continued to seize benefits and power for themselves. However, under my rule, the traitors were imprisoned, and I did not kill them. Besides, there were always talented people by my side to help me develop the nation to become strong and bring a prosperous life to the people. In this human life, I did not let the country fall into a state of war even though I possess a powerful army and a prosperous economy. As a result of this human life, I have produced countless positive energy particles. Talented people and officials have also made many positive energy particles to benefit the people and the country. However, those who were dishonest plotted to assassinate the king and took advantage of power for personal gain, causing the tuelinhs within them to produce many harmful energy particles. When completing this human life, I understood how to create positive and harmful energy particles of each tuelinh.

That is the life that I continued to be a crown prince. However, I left my throne to seek enlightenment instead of becoming a king. I then achieved enlightenment and transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter. With my attainment of a single energy filter, I have produced a shiny golden super-energy particle. In that human life, when I achieved enlightenment, I had many disciples, including my wife and child, in the human world. I have spent my entire life spreading enlightened knowledge to many places in the human world. However, among my students, there have been many students who developed extreme levels of toxins in their yin and yang embryos, so they became people who lost control. They have assassinated me and other students many times. Although my assassination failed, many of my other students did not survive. Besides, many excellent students have devoted their lives to spreading knowledge worldwide. Through this human life, I have understood everything about myself, the tuelinhs, and everything in the universe. However, I still had two issues I did not completely understand, so I could not yet transform the yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter. I did not fully understand the information values in the smallest energy particles, so I did not understand that physical structures will change when they move through different environments. I did not fully understand the destructive energy. Although I had not completely understood the three secrets all the tuelinhs were searching for and had yet to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual filter, I have had great success. That is to produce shiny golden super-energy particles and create knowledge of two truths with a theoretical system to help students practice and make countless positive energy particles. At the end of that human life, I understood that the most commonly released toxins of the tuelinhs are interaction scenarios in love and affection; the deepest and most challenging to eliminate is the toxicity in the interaction of the teacher-student relationship.

That is my current human life that is taking place. Familiar images that the brain has experienced since childhood until now. After those painful experiences and tribulations, I transformed the yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter. Now, from my yin and yang embryo, lapis lazuli blue energy superparticles and several other superparticles are produced. In this human life, I have thoroughly understood myself, the tuelinhs, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction. That thorough understanding is because I have understood the secrets of the information values encoded in the energy particle's intellectual wave code through the environment and the operating mechanisms of the smallest energy particle and all life forms in and outside the universe.

In all the human lives I have incarnated to practice, I have always had a group plotting to harm, pursue, and destroy my knowledge. That is my plan to help us thoroughly understand myself and other tuelinhs, understand everything in the universe and the energy of destruction. As a result, I succeeded with the help of the tuelinhs who were always by my side and the tuelinhs in negative human forms.

Remember, all the interactive scenarios in the four forms of Tao in the human world have helped me understand the nature of information in the energy particles of all life forms in and outside the universe. Also, I found a sustainable transformation mechanism from the four forms of the Tao, and I transformed my yin and yang energy embryos into a dual energy filter to produce super-energy particles. Thus, the unified Tao of the universe is formed from four forms of the Tao after transforming the yin and yang embryo into a dual energy filter.”

When the image in the pyramid appeared of the sleeping body of Nalas Nalanda, and he was using the pyramid to look back on his practice journey and achievements in his past life, he stopped and went out. After chatting with a messenger outside his private workspace, he returned to his physical form. When he returned to his physical form, he was awake even though it was still not light outside. After that, the teacher made a cup of hot tea and sat down to drink it to analyze the information that the tuelinh had transmitted to his brain during sleep.

The teacher reflected on the journey that the tuelinh had gone through in many lifetimes of practice in the human world through the images recreated in his pyramid. There are many lives in there that the teacher knew about many years ago and many lives that he has not known. For many years, he has taught his students about the four forms of Tao with scenarios that practitioners in the human world must be able to do and are not allowed to violate. Especially after his current achievements, his enlightened knowledge has reached its ultimate peak when combining the understanding of the two truths with the knowledge of the smallest energy particle to help all tuelinhs through the four forms of Tao to attain the unified Tao of the universe. From now on, the four forms of Tao will be widely spread in the human world for all humanity to learn and practice to help the inner tuelinh mature and transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter. That is nirvana and the immortality of tuelinhs when they achieve the unified Tao of the universe.

Chapter Fifty-Six

The Nature of Ignorant Wisdom in Ideology

Each time Nalas Nalanda incarnated as a human, he often returned to heaven to teach children and other tuelinhs while his body was in a deep sleep. In this human life, too, since the teacher regained the wisdom from the tuelinh and transformed the knowledge of enlightenment to become more wonderful, he often returned to preach to the tuelinhs. Sometimes, the lectures are only for children so they can be equipped with knowledge before incarnating as humans, and sometimes, they are lectures for tuelinhs incarnating in the human world. His lectures are diverse and depend on his achievements in his practice journey in the human world.

For the past few months, the teacher has not given any lectures in heaven to the tuelinhs. Perhaps because he was busy teaching the body, soul and wisdom therapy class, he focused on that teaching. In addition, the past time has also been a critical time for him to upgrade his knowledge after his pilgrimage to India. As a result, the teacher taught new knowledge to his students. That is the in-depth knowledge about energy particles and the secret information in the intellectual wave code of all energy particles.

On weekdays, he often works at the office all day and comes home late at night. However, when he received a signal from the tuelinh to return to heaven to teach the children this afternoon, he returned home earlier than usual. That means he needs more time for his body to fall asleep. At that time, his tuelinh will have plenty of time for his sermon on the central planet. Finally, he fell asleep early after his children had gone to bed. When the teacher fell asleep, the tuelinh returned to heaven and sat in his temple.

After receiving notice of the teacher's return to preach to the children in heaven, they quickly gathered in the temple. They filled almost every seat in the temple, numbering up to several thousand tuelinhs. After the children's stories, they became quiet and waited for the teacher to lecture.

The teacher said, "I haven't returned to preach to you for a long time. That's because recently, I have had to focus on transforming the knowledge of energy particles combined with understanding the two truths to form a special enlightened knowledge. That enlightened knowledge has been taught to my students in the human world. It is a knowledge system of two truths associated with energy particles, and the pinnacle of knowledge is the information values inside the particles and their operating mechanism. The quintessence and secrets in the smallest particles of energy of all things, of tuelinhs, and of destruction energy have been decoded by me, and it is being vigorously spread in the human world by the excellent tuelinhs practising in human form.

Hey kids! As usual, I always return often to teach you when I incarnate as a human. I always teach you basic knowledge about the path of practice in the human world, knowledge about energy particles and the nature of all things in the universe. That knowledge will help you have valuable information when you incarnate as a human to face suffering and tribulations. It will help you easily overcome challenges and quickly achieve achievements on your practice path. Every time I incarnate as a human and attain achievements, I teach that knowledge to the human world and the tuelinhs on this central planet.

Hey, my kids! In this human incarnation, I have successfully transformed my yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter. With that achievement, I have completed the mission of creating more kinds of energy superparticles to help the universe survive and develop sustainably. In particular, I have transformed my achievements and those of the tuelinhs practising in the human world into a unique system of enlightened knowledge. That knowledge system has transcendent power to help all tuelinhs understand the three secrets we have been searching for. It enables the tuelinhs to practice producing sustainable energy particles easily and ultimately transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. As you learn and practice successful transformation, you will have the power to absorb, control and detonate destructive energy. Not only that, you can move inside the space of the annihilation energy without being harmed. To achieve that achievement, you must reincarnate in the human world. There will be no exceptions for successfully transforming yin and yang embryos into energy filters without incarnating as a human to practice. You must understand that even if I preach all that special enlightened knowledge, you cannot mature and have an energy filter without incarnating as a human for many lifetimes. You must understand that practising reactions to the energy of destruction in the interaction of energy groups in the four forms of Tao in the human world is a miracle. It helps your yin and yang embryos fully reveal their inner nature into external manifestations. It is the process of purifying and removing toxins and re-encoding accurate information. The next is to practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production. Special enlightened knowledge will help you accelerate your achievement in the beautiful practice environment in the human world. It would help if you remembered that maturity and attaining the unified Tao of the universe must be associated with increasing the encoding of actual information values for sustainable development. That valuable information will be transformed into intellectual wave codes and magical energy particles to form the body of each tuelinh. Hey, my children! When you practice producing energy particles according to my special enlightened knowledge through the four forms of Tao in the human world, you will quickly mature and achieve an energy filter faster than living on this magical planet. Therefore, you must always keep your desire, joy, and happiness for being human in any suffering and tribulations in the human world you have to face. The knowledge I teach you will help you have the strength to overcome significant challenges in the human body.

Hey, my kids! When you have not yet transformed into a human, you all realize you are great tuelinhs; all tuelinhs are holy. However, when you incarnate as a human, you know that many people commit ignorant and cruel actions. Many people are great and more wonderful than holy. Do you know why? When you are a tuelinh and live on this beautiful planet, you are not under the pressure and compression of reactions by destructive energy and other types of energy; any material thing does not control you. Therefore, you are peaceful and holy. Of course, you will be subjected to suffering and decay by the energy of destruction if you move into the space of them. However, when incarnated as a human in the human world, each tuelinh must live in a simple body and be attracted to simple materials and forms in life. The extreme pressure and compression gradually caused the tuelinhs to reveal the informational nature of the yin and yang embryo. In the revealed nature, there are toxins and good elements. These toxins manifest as ignorant wisdom and ignorant actions. Good factors manifest as enlightened wisdom and enlightened actions. Ignorance is a lack of information, is unholy and is cruel. On the contrary, enlightenment is the fullness of accurate data, holiness, and actions that help everyone and everything. Do you know? Through an environment of extreme pressure and compression, the essence of all tuelinhs was revealed. From there, it shows the differentiation and diversity of the intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans. However, you can only know that by going through the process of practice for many lifetimes in the human world of all tuelinhs. Of course, I could not know that if I did not create a practice environment. But now I have thoroughly understood all the truths of all things in and outside the universe, of myself and other tuelinhs, and of the destructive energy after a long period of observation and analysis. The result of that understanding is that I have attained the unified Tao of the universe and have built a system of enlightened knowledge to help other tuelinhs do what I have done.

Hey, my children! In today's lecture, I will teach you about the different intellectual natures of the tuelinhs and humans through the original yin and yang energy embryo within. That means that each kind of varying yin and yang energy embryo will create different intellectual characteristics when each tuelinh incarnates as a human being in the human world. Do you know what value understanding this knowledge will bring to you? – That's right. It brings great value and promotes the cognitive process to change your behaviour when living in human form. Therefore, understanding the nature of each energy embryo in the tuelinh that will expose when you become a human will help you be conscious and determined to transform them. Besides, when people in the human world learn this knowledge, they will understand the intellectual nature of the original yin and yang embryo and the wisdom of the tuelinhs within themselves and others. For those of you who have not yet transformed into humans, you will use the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh to understand the later manifestations when incarnated as humans. It is about understanding nature to know its manifestations. On the contrary, through each other's expressions, humans will understand the intellectual nature of their own and others. It is through knowing the manifestations that one understands the essence.

First, I will tell you about the nature of information within the groups of energy particles that make up the yin and yang embryo. You must understand that the smallest energy particles form the yin and yang embryo, and then the process of becoming tuelinhs are energy particles with super-complex intelligence wave codes. Only super-complex particles can create and become the tuelinhs. Through the intellectual nature of each type of particle constituting the soul, you can understand the wisdom of all particles forming simple and complex matter in the universe. From the three smallest groups of energy particles with negative, positive and neutral electric waves, I divide them into eight groups of energy particles with different information value properties. It includes a group of negative energy particles with super strong electric waves, a group of negative energy particles with very strong electric waves, a group of negative energy particles with strong electric waves, a group of negative energy particles with weak electric waves, a group of positive energy particles with weak electric waves, a group of positive energy particles with strong electric waves, a group of positive energy particles with very strong electric waves, and a group of positive energy particles with super strong electric waves. Each group of energy particles will have different internal information characteristics, and when they bond together to form yin and yang embryos, they will create a new information nature. Therefore, before teaching you to understand the intellectual nature of each yin and yang energy embryo, you must understand the nature of the individual information of each group of particles.

The nature of the information encoded within the intellectual wave code of each group of the smallest energy particles is:

1 - Group of negative energy particles with super strong electric waves:

This group of energy particles has the following characteristics:

- + The energy state inside the particle is blood red.
- + The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre is lacking and most distorted compared to the accurate information of the reaction process that created it.
- + The negative heat and toxins in the wisdom wave code fibre are the strongest compared to other groups of negative energy particles.
- + The vibration speed of this group of negative particles is super fast, accelerating the process of destructive particles catching the signal and attacking it in huge numbers.
- + The destruction of the material structure of this group of negative energy particles is at its maximum compared to other groups of negative energy particles. The cause is due to too many toxins and super fast vibration speed. That leads to it losing control in absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, destructive energy quickly moves to discharge excess heat and destroy the physical structure containing this super strong negative energy particle.

- + The characteristic of this group of particles is to spread ignorant values and actions that damage everything on an enormous scale.

2 - Group of negative energy particles with very strong electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

- + The energy state inside the particle is black.

- + The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre is less lacking and erroneous than in the group of blood-red particles.

- + The negative heat and toxins in the wisdom wave code fibre are weaker than the blood-red energy particle group.

- + The vibration speed of this group of negative particles is very fast, accelerating the process of destructive particles catching the signal and attacking it in large numbers.

- + The destruction of material structure by this group of negative energy particles is weaker than that of blood-red energy particles. The cause is many toxins, and the vibration speed is very fast. That leads to it losing control in absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, destructive energy quickly moves to discharge excess heat and destroy the physical structure containing this very strong negative energy particle.

- + The characteristic of this group of particles is that ignorant actions cause damage to all things on a large scale.

3 - Group of negative energy particles with strong electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

- + The energy state inside the particle is grey.
- + The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre is less lacking and erroneous than in the black particle group.
- + The negative heat and toxins in the wisdom wave code fibre are weaker than the black energy particle group.
- + The vibration speed of this group of negative particles is fast, accelerating the process of destructive particles catching the signal and attacking it in large numbers.
- + The destruction of material structure by this group of negative energy particles is weaker than that of the group of black energy particles. The cause is due to many toxins and fast vibration speed. That leads to it losing control in absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, destructive energy quickly moves to discharge excess heat and destroy the physical structure containing this strong negative energy particle.
- + The characteristics of this group of particles are that they have ignorant thoughts and actions that harm everything on a small and medium scale.

4 - Group of negative energy particles with weak electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

- + The energy state inside the particle is grey-white.

+ The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre was lacking and distorted the least compared to other groups of negative energy particles.

+ The negative heat and toxins in the wisdom wave code fibre are few and least compared to other groups of negative energy particles.

+ The vibration speed of this group of negative particles is weak, so it minimizes and does not agitate the signal for destructive energy to attack its structure.

+ The destruction of the material structure by this group of negative energy particles is very weak. The reason is that the toxins are very few, and the vibration speed is weak. That leads to it not losing control in absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, the destructive energy has difficulty detecting the signal and moving into the structure containing this type of negative energy particle.

+ The characteristics of this group of particles are neutral and balanced. It promotes solidarity to spread sustainable development values to all things when it connects with different groups of positive energy particles.

5 - Group of positive energy particles with weak electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

+ The energy state inside the particle is ivory-white.

+ The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code is accurate but not much and incomplete.

+ Positive heat and good elements in the wisdom wave code fibre are few and least compared to other groups of positive energy particles.

+ The vibration speed of this group of positive particles is weak, so it has no power to protect itself and detonate destructive energy particles when it is attacked.

+ The ability of this group of positive energy particles to develop physical structure is weak. The reason is that the good elements are very few, and the vibration speed is weak. That leads to it not having the power to control the process of absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, destructive energy easily attacks and destroys the physical structure of this group of positive energy particles.

+ The characteristics of this group of particles are neutral and balanced. It depends on the control of groups of negative energy particles.

6 - Group of positive energy particles with strong electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

+ The energy state inside the particle is green.

+ The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code is accurate and abundant but incomplete.

+ The positive heat and good elements in the wisdom wave code are more numerous than the ivory-white positive energy particles group.

+ The vibration speed of this group of positive particles is fast, so it has the power to protect itself and detonate destructive energy particles in small quantities when it is attacked.

- + The ability to develop the material structure of this group of positive energy particles is strong. The cause is due to many good elements and fast vibration speed. That leads to it having the power to control the process of absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, this type of energy can detonate destructive energy and develop its structure if not controlled and hindered by groups of negative energy particles with strong electrical waves or more.

- + The characteristics of this group of particles have the power to develop sustainable values for all things.

7 - A group of positive energy particles with very strong electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

- + The energy state inside the particle is fire-red.
- + The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code is accurate and numerous but incomplete.
- + The positive heat and good elements in the wisdom wave code are many and more numerous than the green positive energy particles group.
- + The vibration speed of this group of positive particles is very fast. Therefore, it has the power to protect itself and detonate destructive energy particles in large quantities when it is attacked.
- + The ability of this group of positive energy particles to develop material structure is very strong. The reason is that there are many good elements, and the vibration speed is very fast. That leads to it having the power to control the process of absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, this type of energy can detonate destructive energy and develop its structure very strongly if not controlled and hindered by groups of negative energy particles with stronger electric waves or more.

- + The characteristic of this group of particles is to spread values of sustainable development to all things.

8 - A group of positive energy particles with super strong electric waves:

This group of particles has the following characteristics:

- + The energy state inside the particle is yellow.

- + The amount of information encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre is accurate and complete.

- + Positive heat and good elements in the wisdom wave code are abundant and the most numerous compared to other groups of positive energy particles.

- + The vibration speed of this group of positive particles is super fast, so it has the power to protect itself and detonate destructive energy particles in large quantities when it is attacked.

- + The ability to develop the material structure of this group of positive energy particles is super strong. The reason is that there are too many good elements, and the vibration speed is super fast. That leads to it having the power to control the process of absorbing heat and information from the outside environment. As a result, this type of energy particle can detonate destructive energy and develop its structure at a super strong level if not controlled and hindered by groups of negative energy particles with stronger electric waves or more.

+ The characteristic of this group of particles is solidarity to spread the values of sustainable development to all things.

Hey, my children! The information within each group of energy particles is its nature. It does not represent the intelligence of each yin and yang energy embryo after the yin and yang particles bond together. However, having a general intellectual nature requires a process of struggle and information reaction of the two energy particles in each yin and yang embryo. Fortunately, the practice process of the tuelinhs in the human world has helped me observe and quantify the general intellectual nature of the yin and yang energy embryos of the tuelinh life form through the four forms of Tao. You must know that to conclude the intelligence of each tuelinh formed from the yin and yang energy embryos, all tuelinhs have had to undergo many lifetimes of practice in the human world through all the interactive scenarios in the four forms of Tao.

After you have understood the secrets of information in each group of different energy particles, you will begin to explore the wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans through each type of yin and yang energy embryos formed from other positive and negative energy particles.

First, I discuss the ignorant wisdom in the ideology of the tuelinhs and humans. Do you understand what the ignorant wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans is? - Humans and the tuelinhs do not have enough ability and capacity to perceive the truth, right and wrong, the value of development or the value of destroying all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Understood in another way, the process of information reaction between the internal information of the yin and yang embryo in the tuelinhs and humans with external information produces new cognitive results. That new awareness does not have enough power to understand the truth, right and wrong, the value of development or the value of destroying all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. From there, people and the tuelinhs will cling to their false perceptions and lack of information.

Next, do you know what the ignorant wisdom in ideology is? – Those are thoughts, ideas and ideologies of the nature of ignorant wisdom. It can be expressed through words, and it can also be actions that cause minor and medium-scale harm to people, society and everything.

Hey, my kids! I tell you that four groups of yin and yang energy embryos form the nature of the wisdom of ignorance in the ideology of the tuelinhs and humans. It includes 1 - a yin-yang embryo formed from a grey negative particle with strong electric waves and an ivory-white positive particle with weak electric waves; 2 - a yin-yang embryo formed from the grey negative particle with strong electric waves and a green positive particle with strong electric waves; 3 - a yin-yang embryo is formed from the grey negative particles with strong electric waves and a fire-red positive particle with very strong electric waves; and 4 - the yin-yang embryo is formed from the grey negative particle with strong electric waves and a yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves. Thus, all four groups of yin and yang embryos that make up the wisdom of ignorance in the ideology of the tuelinhs and humans have a common feature: the negative energy particle with strong electric waves. Because this strong negative energy particle combines with different groups of positive energy particles, the nature of the ignorant wisdom of each type of yin and yang embryo is also different. As follows:

1 - Talking about yin and yang energy embryos formed from the grey negative particle with strong electric waves and the ivory-white positive particle with weak electric waves.

As you know, the information in positive energy particles contains very little good value, little heat, and accurate data, but it is too little and incomplete. In addition, it does not have the characteristics of uniting, spreading, and developing sustainable values. While information about harmful energy particles is lacking and false, they contain many toxins and have properties that destroy sustainable development. Therefore, when these two yin and yang energy particles join together to form a yin and yang energy embryo, the positive energy particle is dominated and controlled by the negative energy particle; this means that the information of the positive energy particle is not strong enough to handle the absorption of information and heat from the outside of the original negative energy particle in all interaction reactions in the four forms of Tao in the human world.

After the tuelinhs have this energy embryo and incarnate as humans to practice, the negative energy particle will control and govern the yin and yang energy embryo. At that time, this yin and yang embryo will produce many harmful grey energy particles and have difficulty making positive energy particles. Therefore, after the journey of practice in the human world, those tuelinhs produce too many excess grey harmful energy particles compared to the ivory-white positive particles. As a result, the tuelinhs become imbalanced in the energy structure outside the mature embryo. Then, in each cluster of energy particles, many harmful energy particles surround each positive energy particle. That leads to the penetration of destructive energy particles to dominate and disintegrate the soul.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They are people who have no ideas or thoughts about creating values of sustainable development for themselves, others and everything. In addition, they also do not have ideas or thoughts to promote solidarity and spread values of sustainable development.

- They are people with thoughts and ideas that satisfy their interests and accept harm to people, animals and everything.

- They do not have the intelligence to understand and perceive right and wrong, good value or destruction. Therefore, their minds are dominated and immersed in ignorance and destructive values.

- It can be understood that these people have selfish and greedy thoughts about themselves without the ability to create developmental values.

- When these people are hurt, or their interests are damaged, they will be willing to take actions that harm everyone and everything. However, those actions are not acts of killing or actions that cause massive damage.

Hey, my children! Look at here. I let you see images of people with such wisdom in the human world:

- The images you are looking at are people who are intellectually ignorant in their ideology when they think that performing rituals to pray to Buddha or God will help them gain status, health, and blessings. Ignorant ideologies caused them to become greedy and transformed into acts of begging through rituals.

- The images you are seeing next are of people who are intellectually ignorant in their ideology, and it has transformed into the actions of partying and gambling. They have no ideas, do not have enough intelligence to do business, and are lazy to work. They just want to satisfy their pleasures and hope to make money from gambling. As a result, they hurt their families and relatives when they have to sell their houses to pay off debts from gambling and entertainment.

- Those are the images of fathers and mothers not allowing their children to go to school to learn. They think they don't have money, so they force their children to drop out of school and work to earn money while they are of school age. However, those parents cannot make money while they are healthy. It is ignorance in thought that leads to actions that hurt their children.

Those are some manifestations of the nature of the wisdom of ignorance in the thoughts of the tuelinhs and people in the human world. Please use the intellectual nature of this yin and yang embryo to see the manifestations of the four forms of Tao of every human being in the human world.

2 - Talking about yin and yang energy embryos formed from the grey negative particle with strong electric waves and the green positive particle with strong electric waves.

You clearly understood the information values of the grey negative energy particles with strong electric waves. What about green positive energy particles? The information in those particles is accurate and abundant but not complete. Information has many good values, such as fast vibration speed and strong heat emission. Information has the characteristics of creating sustainable development values. Thus, the information between these two energy particles is contradictory. However, the grey negative energy particle is toxic. It has a fast vibration speed, so it easily attracts destructive energy to capture the signal to attack and control the tuelinh structure that has this type of energy embryo. Besides, the toxins and information value of this negative energy particle still have the power to control and dominate the information of the positive energy particle. Therefore, the values of the positive energy particles are modified according to the informational nature of the harmful particles.

After the tuelinh with this yin and yang energy embryo incarnates as a practitioner, the original yin energy particle will completely control the energy embryo. The grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves are produced in excess at that time. At the same time, green positive energy particles are generated too little, and even weaker positive energy particles that are not strong wave positive energy particles anymore are produced. As a result, through practice over many lifetimes, that tuelinh becomes unbalanced in the aggregate energy particle structure outside the mature embryo. That means that for every positive energy particle, many harmful energy particles are orbiting around it. That leads to its decomposition because more destructive energy enters to discharge excess heat.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They need more intelligence and awareness to research and create research, values, and works that bring sustainable development value to everyone and everything.

- They are people who have some understanding, thoughts and ideas for creating projects or methods to develop and bring benefits to themselves. Besides, they have the mindset of being willing to harm everyone, animals, and everything to satisfy their interests. However, they need more intelligence and strength to implement those ideas and thoughts of development.

- Sometimes, because of pressure and loss of control over information in the tuelinhs, people with those yin and yang embryos are willing to create actions that satisfy their interests and cause harm to everyone, animals, and everything. Those harms are not acts of killing humans and animals, but they are acts of small and medium scale damage.

Hey, my kids! Look at here. I let you see images of people with such wisdom in the human world:

- These are images of theft and robbery of people who are healthy but refuse to work honestly or have fallen into debt. They are ignorant in their thinking, so they think that robbing other people's property will help them have a better life without being aware of the punishment of the law.

- These are images of business people who do not comply with the law and do not bring good values to people from the products they trade. These people sell goods prohibited by law and even trade stimulants that harm human health.

- That is the image of people who often eat and discuss business together. They come up with many business forms to bring them the most benefits. However, they only think and develop ideas instead of practising that business. It results from intellectual ignorance in thought by controlling the original negative energy particle even though they have the positive energy particle of development.

3 - Talking about the yin and yang energy embryos formed from the grey negative particle with strong electric waves and fire-red positive particle with very strong electric waves.

What information is contained in this positive energy particle with very strong electric waves? – Information is accurate and abundant but not complete. The information contains many good elements, and the vibration speed is very fast to generate a lot of heat. Information is characteristic of spreading sustainable development values. However, when this positive energy particle connects with the grey negative energy particle with strong electric waves, the positive energy particle is controlled and loses its inherent value. The lack of information, strong negative heat, very fast vibration speed and many toxins in the negative particle have caused the positive particle to consume positive heat and values such as good elements and accurate information are controlled. In particular, when the negative energy particle vibrates, and destruction particles catch the signal, they will move to discharge excess heat. That makes the yin-yang embryo and the tuelinh structure vulnerable to attack and disintegration by destructive energy.

When the tuelinh with this yin and yang embryo incarnates as a human to practice, the yin energy particle becomes stronger. It controls the entire wisdom of the original embryo and the tuelinh. At that time, grey harmful energy particles are produced in excess, while positive energy particles are only produced in small quantities, and the electric waves are greatly weakened. As a result, after many lifetimes of practice in the human world, the composite particle structure in the tuelinh is imbalanced when many harmful energy particles rotate around each positive energy particle. That shows that producing harmful energy particles causes the tuelinh structure to not develop stably in the 1:1 ratio between negative and positive particles at each aggregate particle cluster. Instead, the tuelinhs cannot mature, and the energy of destruction quickly disintegrates them.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They are not aware of the values of sustainable development; Instead, they are attracted to and believe in values that falsify the truth, which harm the development of all things.

- They spread and share negative values that affect people and society, but the level of influence is only on a small to medium scale.

Please look at here:

- These people often speak ill of this person to that person and cannot control their negative thoughts and actions.

- These people's thoughts are ignorant and have turned into actions that hurt everyone. They join many groups that propagate negative knowledge and information in society. They participate in religious activities but must have the intelligence to perceive right and wrong values. Therefore, they follow other ignorant people to spread negative information to the detriment of others. They propagate misleading religious views that insult other religions or sabotage political parties.

4 - Talking about yin and yang energy embryos formed from the grey negative particle with strong electric waves and the yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves.

You know, positive energy particles with super strong electric waves are the most valuable and powerful positive particles among positive energy particles. The information in this type of particle is the most truthful and complete. Good elements are the greatest, and the vibration speed to generate heat is maximum. It has the most potent power to detonate destructive particles among positive energy particles. The information that brings solidarity to spread the values of sustainable development. However, when it bonds to the grey negative energy particle with strong electric waves, the heat and vibration speed are reduced and gradually eliminated. That leads to the positive values of this positive energy particle being lost and controlled by the negative energy particle. The inevitable result is that it is owned and disintegrated by destructive energy attacking to discharge excess heat.

When the tuelinhs with this type of yin and yang energy embryo incarnate as humans to practice, their wisdom is out of control by the yin energy particle. Those people will sink into ignorance in their thoughts and ideas to satisfy their interests and be willing to harm everyone, animals, and everything. After many lifetimes of practice, they produce too many excess grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves, while very few positive energy particles are produced, and the electric waves are much weaker than the original positive particle. As a result, the aggregate energy particle structure of the tuelinh is imbalanced because there are many harmful energy particles surrounding each positive energy particle. Finally, if people do not practice transformation according to the mechanism of sustainable reincarnation through the knowledge of the two truths, the soul within will quickly disintegrate and be destroyed by the energy of destruction.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They do not have the cognitive power to believe in positive values and truth, values characterized by sustainable development. Therefore, they hate and dislike those who unite to spread the values of sustainable development to all things.

- They believe and practice uniting people with ideologically ignorant wisdom like them to spread negative values and oppose positive values.

Look at those images: the images that best demonstrate the ignorant wisdom of humans and the tuelinhs in ideology that becomes action. They form groups related to religions, society, ethnicity, and politics to slander and propagate to hurt other people, other religions, and other people. However, because the power of the negative energy particle in their yin and yang energy embryo was not yet the yin energy particle with the strongest negative electric waves, the scale of the damage they caused was only at a small to medium level. The actions they have been taking have not had an enormous effect in uniting to spread the values that destroy sustainable development to everyone, animals, and everything.

Hey, my children! In this group of energy embryos, all positive energy particles of the original yin and yang embryos are weakened and controlled after the tuelinhs incarnate as practitioners in the human world. Over many lifetimes of practice, the negative energy particle continuously increases its toxicity and vibration speed to become the negative energy particle with stronger electric waves, while the original positive energy particle gradually becomes the positive energy particle with weak electric waves and no power to save that yin-yang embryo and the tuelinh from the risk of being decomposed by destructive energy. However, do not be sad when you see the truth of the yin and yang embryos creating such an intellectual nature; Instead, rejoice that you have seen the complete nature. The practice environment through the four forms of Tao with complete scenarios is to help all tuelinhs understand themselves and each other. Therefore, understanding the truth about one's wisdom is a great success for every tuelinh. Even more incredible is that you have understood the knowledge of all things in the universe through understanding your wisdom."

At that time, a child immediately stood up and asked the teacher, "Father, what should people with ignorant wisdom in ideology do to prevent decay from the energy of destruction? Please let us know that."

Nalas Nalanda said, "Not only those people but all tuelinhs and humans. All must learn special enlightenment knowledge combining the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particles to understand the true nature of the information values in all types of energy particles in and out of the universe, that is, understanding the three secrets. Then, everyone, step by step, accelerates the implementation of a sustainable energy particle production mechanism. When doing that, the original positive energy particle will become a positive particle with super strong electric waves, and the original negative energy particle will become a particle with weak electric waves. As a result, the aggregate particle structure of the tuelinh becomes strong in a balanced ratio, and the tuelinh matures to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. Of course, producing sustainable energy particles will help the tuelinhs have the power to control and detonate the destructive energy."

Chapter Fifty-Seven

The Nature of Ignorant Wisdom in Action

Another child stood up and asked the teacher, "Father, from what you have taught us, I understand that the wisdom of ignorance is the wisdom that humans and the tuelinhs possess and are immersed in the wrong information and harmful to satisfy one's interests and harm everyone, animals, and everything. Thus, ignorant humans and the ignorant tuelinhs are manifested in ideologies and become actions. However, when I observe the practice environment in the human world, I see many people talking to others about unkind people. Indeed, the people they speak ill of are not good, even if they are the ones who have caused a lot of harm to others. That's why I can't distinguish whether people who speak ill of bad people are ignorant. I hope you will explain my confusion to me and other tuelinhs."

"Hey, my kids! I have repeatedly told my students that everyone in the human world has a poisonous snake inside of themselves. That toxic snake is the toxin. If people see someone else's toxins and try to interfere or attack that person's toxins, that person's toxins will erupt and create ignorant actions that harm each other."

You must understand that when a person emits toxins, it manifests ignorant wisdom from thoughts to actions to satisfy their own benefits and cause harm to everyone and everything in the universe. Those people will learn the lesson of identifying toxins and eliminating them after experiencing the tribulation and suffering caused by those toxins. People should only learn lessons from those emitting that toxin to identify their similar type of toxin when it erupts, then eliminate that type of toxin and not let it appear inside them again. The learning here is to recognize what kind of toxicity occurs and its consequences. Learning about toxins is not about telling others what the person is experiencing. You must understand that speaking ill of others, whether they are wrong or good people, is all ignorant wisdom from thought to action. Speaking ill of others is a type of poison that spreads without that person's intelligence being aware. Therefore, using one's toxins to provoke the poison of others is a hazardous action; it is the ignorant wisdom in action." The teacher answered.

After observing the tuelinhs who were attentively looking and listening to the teacher, the teacher continued his lecture. "Hey, my children! The higher level of ignorant wisdom in ideology is the wisdom of ignorance in action.

Like the wisdom of ignorance in thought, the knowledge of ignorance in action comprises four groups of energy embryos. However, there is a difference in the harmful energy particles in linking with different types of positive energy particles that form the wisdom nature of ignorance in action. Four groups of yin and yang energy embryos include 1- energy embryos are formed from a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves and an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves; 2 – energy embryos are created from a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves with a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves; 3 - energy embryos are formed from a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves and a fire-red positive energy particle with very strong electric waves; 4 – energy embryos are formed from a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves and a yellow positive energy particle with super strong electric waves. When they are not linked together to form yin and yang energy embryos, positive energy particles have informational values and power in promoting cohesion and spreading the values of sustainable development. However, after the positive energy particles bonded with the black negative energy particles with very strong electric waves, the nature and information value of the positive particles were no longer there. Instead, harmful energy particles' information nature forms and governs a new intellectual nature.

Do you know why the ignorant wisdom level in action is higher than in ideology? - That is, ignorance in ideology is the process of absorbing and increasing toxic information from the external environment. It has not yet created the maximum power for transforming into regular actions and large-scale damage. In contrast, ignorance in action is the result of ignorance in ideology, and it has transformed into actions that harm everyone, animals, and everything repeatedly and on a large scale. Therefore, the harmful energy particles produced by the ignorant wisdom in ideology are only particles with strong electric waves. In contrast, the toxic energy particles produced by ignorance in action have very strong negative electric waves.

Please remember that ignorance in action has the exact nature of ignorance in ideology, but the power to destroy all things is much stronger than ignorance in ideology. That power is due to the nature of the information of the yin energy particles in the yin and yang embryo:

Toxic information is very strong.

The value of missing and misleading information is enormous.

The vibration speed of the intellectual wave code is very fast, so more destructive energy particles attack it.

Hence, the characteristic of destroying and killing animals, people, and all things on a large scale and repeatedly.

After the tuelinhs with this type of energy embryo reincarnate as humans for many lifetimes, the toxins of the negative energy particle will completely dominate and control the original positive particle, wisdom of the tuelinhs, and their bodies. That leads them to take actions that cause harm on a large scale or take repeated actions that hurt people, animals, and all things. Those actions disrupt the sustainable development of people, society, and everything. As a result, the inner tuelinh will produce countless excess black negative energy particles with very strong electric waves, while positive energy particles will not be produced. If positive energy particles are produced, they are weakened in value and electrical waves. That leads to an imbalance in the aggregate energy particle structure. At that time, many harmful energy particles spin around the positive particles, penetrated by many destructive energy particles to discharge excess heat. Therefore, if we do not practice the mechanism of producing sustainable energy particles, the tuelinhs with such energy embryos will quickly disintegrate and be destroyed.

1 - Talking about yin-yang energy embryos formed from the black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves and the ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They do not have the intellectual understanding and ability to create any value that benefits society and all things.

- They take actions to oppose and sabotage sustainable development values. Destructive actions against sustainable development values are spreading, destroying great human solidarity blocs. Because of their intellectual ignorance, they eliminate the values of sustainable development, but they think they are doing valuable and good things.

- They practice actions that harm everyone, animals, and everything to satisfy their interests. They are willing to kill people and animals. They cause harm to people, animals, society and everything on a large scale, even repeatedly.

Please look at this:

- These people are healthy but refuse to work honestly to care for their families and themselves. They became professional thieves and robbers. They became hired killers.

- Those images are people provoked by others and become vandals of other people's property. They are provoked to attack others.

- These are images of people who, for different reasons, killed others to satisfy their hatred or for their benefit.

- And those are people who are provoked to distort and insult other people and social organizations while they are not aware enough to understand the nature and truth of the problem.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They do not have the ideology and ability to create works, research and values that bring sustainable development to everyone, society and everything.

- They have the thinking ability to research and create values to benefit themselves or their interest groups, while those values harm people, animals and all things.

- They are willing to become murderers, kill animals and destroy all things to satisfy and achieve goals that benefit them.

Please look at this, my kids:

- These are people who take advantage of epidemics and human deaths to trade fake products that have no therapeutic value, such as counterfeit drugs and poor-quality drugs. Those actions were to satisfy one's interests and the interests of a group of people, causing many people to die from diseases and epidemics.

- Those are images of soldiers and leaders who launched wars to invade other countries and create wars to compete for power. Just for the sake of territory and power, they killed countless people.

- That is the image of people who have researched and developed weapons, guns, bombs, nuclear bombs, and other types of lethal weapons so that people can kill each other and thereby gain benefits from wars.

- Those are images of people who, for economic development, destroy forests and exploit resources from land and water, destroying the lives of people and things.

3 - Talking about yin and yang energy embryos formed from the black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves and the fire-red positive energy particle with very strong electric waves.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They do not have the intelligence and ability to recognize truth and positive values; Therefore, they cannot develop and spread positive values that bring sustainable development to people and society.

- They believe and indulge in actions that spread toxic values to everyone. Those values cause people to practice the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles, causing people to live in ignorance and causing division in the solidarity of families, organizations, societies, religions, and nations.

- They can kill and destroy human life and all things to protect the values they spread, and they think that their actions are bringing good values to people and society.

Children, look:

- These are missionaries in religions; instead of propagating the values of solidarity, they have been slandering and defaming other faiths.

- Those images are people inciting and propagating anti-national incitement and causing conflicts between ethnic groups.

- Those people are inciting and propagandizing to create conflicts between political forces or parties competing for power.

- Those images are people propagating and teaching superstitious knowledge about praying to receive fortune and health from Buddha or God. They cause people to fall into intellectual ignorance and practice the production of many harmful energy particles.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and people with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They do not have the intelligence and ability to create solidarity among people to spread the values of sustainable development to everyone.

- They practice uniting people in spreading values that sabotage the sustainable development of people, society and everything. Meanwhile, they think they are doing valuable work that benefits people and society.

- They cause conflicts and kill to protect the values they are trying to unite to spread.

Children, look:

- Those are people in religions who call many people to follow them to propagate superstitions and ignorance together. They propagate prayer and liberation from suffering in ignorance and without understanding the origin and mission of man in the human world. They take advantage of religion and spirituality to mesmerize people and profit from people's religious beliefs.

- Those images are people with positions in religions; they call on people to study together and spread their views in defaming and insulting other religions.

- These are images of people launching movements and ideologies, creating conflicts, and killing each other to compete for their interests and rights.

- Those images are the leaders of nations allying together to create wars of invasion and plunder the resources of other nations.

Hey, my kids! Actions created by the tuelinhs and people with ignorant intelligence in action produce black harmful energy particles with very strong electric waves. Those negative energy particles are produced in excess and excess in each interaction and action. In contrast, the positive energy particles with weak electric waves are produced very little. When actions that create harmful energy particles with very strong electric waves occur over a long period, the tuelinh will lose more serious control and produce toxic energy particles with super strong electric waves. As a result, they are easily disintegrated by too many destructive energy particles attacking them.”

Chapter Fifty-Eight

The Nature of Ignorant Wisdom in Spreading False Knowledge

"Hey, my children! I give you two situations as follows: the first situation is that there is a war between two countries, and many people die after peace is restored. The second situation is that one person creates a system of untrue knowledge about the origin and practice mission of humans and the tuelinhs. Then, many people spread that knowledge widely in the human world. It is passed down from generation to generation. According to you, which situation contains more toxins and causes more harm?" The teacher asked the tuelinhs.

A child stood up and answered, "Father, in my opinion, the act of killing many people in a war between two countries is more harmful because it is an act of killing and taking away human life. Not only that, the hatred of the people between those two countries will continue over time, and there is a risk of more wars breaking out in the future. While the spread of false knowledge does not cause killing and harm like wars between nations."

Another child immediately stood up and answered, "Father, I think that creating and spreading false knowledge about the origin and mission of the tuelinhs and humans causes much damage and has more poisons. I understand that wars happen because of ignorance of human wisdom. That means when people do not understand their origin and mission in the human world, they become greedy and selfish in competing for territorial and other national interests. As a result, they can create countless wars that kill each other for many lifetimes. Therefore, creating and teaching false knowledge are hazardous and can destroy the entire practice environment you have created in the human world."

The teacher said, "Both situations are manifestations of toxins in the tuelinhs, and they both cause enormous damage to people and the practice environment of the tuelinhs in the human world. However, creating false knowledge about the origin and mission of the tuelinhs and humans contains the most toxins and causes the most significant harm to the tuelinhs and humans.

You must understand that one or several large-scale wars between countries only cause loss of human life and other injuries that living people must endure. However, those injuries will quickly be forgotten and healed over time. That means that wars cause harm only at the time of the war and for a short time afterwards, even though the damage is devastating.

However, the harm and toxins are great for creating and spreading false knowledge about the origin and mission of the tuelinhs and humans. Why? Everything is information. It would help if you remembered that. Because everything is information, information creates different values of everything. If the information is truthful and sustainable, it will create new physical structures with sustainable development value from the good elements within.

On the contrary, if the information is false and destructive, it will create new physical structures with destructive properties and cause harm to themselves and everything else. Therefore, creating and spreading false knowledge about the origin and mission of the tuelinhs and humans will cause them to encode incorrect information. At that time, they will practice and produce too much and excess harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves. As a result, the tuelinh will quickly decay and perish.

Hey, my kids! By killing one or more people, the tuelinh only produces a few black negative energy particles with very strong electric waves. Those are the energy particles of the ignorant wisdom nature in action. However, creating and spreading false knowledge to many people and humanity causes them to produce countless blood-red negative energy particles with super strong electric waves. The danger in this type of action is that just one action of spreading or teaching false knowledge to one or more people, their yin and yang embryos, will produce many or countless energy particles with super strong electric waves. More specifically, when people receive false knowledge, they will continue spreading it to others. This process causes false knowledge to spread worldwide and pass down from generation to generation. As a result, countless tuelinhs and people received that harmful information to speed up the production of the most toxic harmful energy particles, the blood-red negative energy particles. That means that destruction comes quickly to people who study and practice false knowledge.

The above two situations show the toxicity and damage caused by creating and spreading false knowledge. It is hazardous, and the level of harm to all things is much greater than the actions of killing people or animals."

A child stood up and said, "Father, the value of information is two-fold: all things will be created and developed sustainably when the information is true and has the characteristics of sustainable development. On the contrary, all things will be destroyed when the information is false and has destructive properties."

"That's right. It is the nature of information because everything is information, and information creates different values of all physical structures. That value can be sustainable development, and it can be decay and destruction." The teacher said.

After a moment of reflection, the teacher continued to lecture. "Hey, my children! Let me continue to teach you to understand the nature of the wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge.

The ignorance in spreading false knowledge of the tuelinhs and humans is the actions of spreading false information values. It is the most dangerous and toxic type of ignorant wisdom nature, formed from four groups of yin and yang energy embryos to form the tuelinhs. It includes 1 - yin and yang energy embryos formed from a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves and an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves; 2 - energy embryos are formed from a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves and a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves; 3 - The energy embryo is formed from a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves and a fire-red positive energy particle with very strong electric waves; 4 - Yin and yang energy embryos are formed from a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves and a yellow positive energy particle with super strong electric waves. Thus, the common characteristic of the group of ignorant wisdom nature in the act of spreading false knowledge is that the yin and yang embryo is formed from a blood-red negative particle with super strong electric waves.

Hey, my kids! Through the two situations, I asked and answered, you have seen the level of danger and destructive power of ignorance's intellectual nature in spreading false information. This type of wisdom is the pinnacle of the knowledge of ignorance, and it is the crystallization of both kinds of intellect of ignorance in ideology and action. Therefore, when talking to the extent of destroying the tuelinhs and all things in the universe, no type of ignorant wisdom can do the same as the type of ignorant wisdom in spreading false knowledge.

Do you still remember the information value of the negative energy particle with the super strong electric wave? It has severe information shortages and distortions. Toxic information is super strong. The vibration speed is super fast, and the negative heat is super strong, leading to many destructive particles catching that vibration signal and discharging excess heat. Information characteristic is pervasive. Thus, the harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves are the type with the most significant toxicity and misinformation compared to other harmful energy particles. When it combines with different kinds of yang energy particles to form yin and yang energy embryos, it creates different ignorant wisdom essences to spread information.

When the tuelinh with this type of energy embryo incarnate as practitioners, the information and toxins of the harmful energy particles will control the human mind. Human intelligence does not have enough strength and ability to perceive the truth, right and wrong, development value or destruction value of the knowledge they learn or create. That leads to their yin and yang energy absorbing uncontrolled toxic information from the outside environment. Then, their yin and yang embryos produce a hazardous level of ignorant ideology before they carry out the actions of spreading or teaching that false and harmful knowledge. As a result, through cultivating in the human world, the tuelinh have all kinds of yin and yang energy embryos that form the wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge; they will produce too many redundant negative particles with super strong electric waves. Meanwhile, positive energy particles are generated less and are increasingly reduced in heat, goodness and the actual value of information. That leads to a severe imbalance in the synthetic particle structure in tuelinh when many synthetic harmful energy particles rotate around each positive energy particle. Finally, many destructive energy particles catch the signal and enter to release excess heat into the tuelinh structure. As a result, the tuelinh's structure is disconnected and disintegrates quickly.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- These tuelinhs and people do not have enough ability and strength to perceive information values that are true and valuable for sustainable development. Instead, they are attracted to and quickly receive harmful and false information from the outside environment.

- They cannot create any kind of value, whether positive or negative, because their positive energy particle does not have the power.

- They quickly receive and spread negative information and knowledge that destroys all things, tuelinhs, and people to others.

Look, kids:

- That is the image of poor people, uneducated people and sick people who have been practising religious and spiritual rituals to ask Buddha or God to bless them with wealth, status, and health. They don't stop there; they continue to share and involve others in those rituals. They perform rituals with the utmost ignorant belief that they will get what they ask for without studying to gain status and wealth, without working to gain wealth, and not through practising positive living and healing to recover from illness.

- The following images are of people who are single because of divorce; they are sharing their dissatisfaction with married life when they are not compatible, and they are sharing about happiness and freedom after divorce. They propagate and create groups of people with the same cognitive views as them, even attracting and inciting many other families to break down like them.

- Those images are of poor people, even educated people in society. They accept hostile ideas and oppose the political regime. They receive financial benefits from anti-government organizations to help spread propaganda and entice others to join anti-government organizations.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They are people with the power and ability to create, invent, research and create negative values that destroy the lives of people and things. However, they do not have the ideology or ability to develop positive values that promote sustainable development.

- Not only do they have the ability to create negative values, but they also can spread false values after creating them to promote the process of destroying the sustainable development of all humanity, animals, tuelinhs and people.

Look, kids:

- Those images are people who invented weapons and bombs to serve in war and kill each other. They do not stop producing and selling those weapons; they also transfer those production technologies to other countries.

- People who create stimulants and addictive substances for humans. These are substances that are harmful to human health and life. Not stopping at making and selling them to different groups, they also continue to transfer technology for researching and producing those types of poisons to many other organizations and people.

- These are images of people hunting rare animals and killing them for horns or animal body parts. Then, they sell them to people who need to use them to improve health or treat diseases. Not stopping there, they falsely propagate the truth about the effects of animal parts to the media and society to increase their business.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and people with this energy embryo is:

- They can research and create negative values that harm everyone, animals, and everything. However, they cannot create sustainable development values for people and things.

- These people can teach and have the ability to convince others when they spread knowledge. Because the negative energy particle has electric waves that are too strong, they lose the ability to teach and apply accurate information that is valuable for sustainable development.

Instead, they have an innate power to teach and spread negative values and false information to benefit themselves and cause serious harm to society and everything.

Please look at this, my kids:

- Those people teach others to get rich while they cannot do business and produce. They instruct with false information to entice people to participate in learning, and they profit from becoming rich from that false knowledge. Those students who learn to get rich fail when applying the teacher's knowledge.

- Those images are people propagating injustice and inequality in society and the political regime to create new parties that aim to create social and political conflicts. They make false information to deceive people and profit from them.

- Those who are propagandizing and teaching in the school system about the ideology of racism and ethnic hatred. That makes the people of that country hate other people and other races.

- Religious practitioners teach knowledge that causes conflicts, even creating wars between religions. They make the followers of their religion hate those who follow other faiths. As a result, there are too many wars between religions.

- People practising religions are spreading false knowledge about the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs and humans. Besides, they preach liberation from suffering through praying to Buddha or God without practising the mechanism of producing sustainable energy particles through understanding the truth about the origin and practice mission of humans and the tuelinhs.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They can create knowledge systems, doctrines, and ideologies that contain false information. That information and knowledge is all incorrect information about the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs and people in the human world. Therefore, that information can cause people to kill each other and practice ignorance to seek liberation through prayer and not practice sustainable energy particle production.

- In addition to the ability to create false information and knowledge about the origin and practice mission of humans, they also have the power to unite people with ignorant wisdom to spread harmful knowledge. Then, they came together to form a great solidarity to spread those intellectuals.

Look, kids:

- People who create philosophical ideologies are false about human origins when they say that humans evolved from single cells to become different animals and then evolved into humans. As a result, that knowledge has been taught in the schools and education systems of many countries worldwide.

- Those who create racism and class discrimination to jointly oppress and dominate other classes and other people in society.

- Those who created ideologies, knowledge, and religions made people distrust and misunderstand the origin and mission of practice in the human world. That led to the emergence of many faiths with worship rituals or prayers to be freed from suffering and return to heaven. Besides, there are many forms of practice, such as meditation and renunciation of family, to find liberation from suffering. All that knowledge prevents people from understanding the origin and practice missions of the tuelinhs in the human world. As a result, people live selfishly, competing for benefits and power instead of practising the production of sustainable energy particles to complete their practice mission in the human world.

Hey, my kids! Thus, you have seen the levels of ignorant wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans through practising in the human world in the four forms of the Tao. The manifestations of the wisdom of ignorance are different, and they are all created by the information nature of each type of yin and yang energy embryo in the tuelinhs. Please remember, children, even if the tuelinhs and humans have energy embryos made of harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves, they will all be saved when they receive accurate information that has value for sustainable development. They will also become mature tuelinhs with dual-energy filters if they practice the mechanism of producing sustainable energy particles.”

Chapter Fifty-Nine

The Nature of the Wisdom is Easily Vibrated and Manipulated

A child asked the teacher, "Father, from your teachings, I understand that to help and save all tuelinhs, they must learn and practice according to the knowledge of the two truths you are teaching. However, the tuelinhs are formed from yin and yang embryos with negative energy particles, which are grey, black, and blood-red particles. Therefore, they cannot perceive and believe in true information conducive to sustainable development. I think saving them is a tough challenge. Dear Father, do you have any way to save and help them destroy their ignorant wisdom that aims to receive and practice according to your enlightened wisdom? Among the tuelinhs here, many are tuelinhs formed from yin and yang energy embryos with negative particles carrying strong, very strong, and super strong electric waves. Therefore, we feel worried when we incarnate as humans. We fear that we will reject enlightened knowledge when approached. Instead, we are immersed in ignorant ideologies and actions controlled by toxins in the yin and yang embryo's yin particle. We hope Father will let us know your solution so that we can confidently overcome the tribulations when we incarnate as humans and quickly complete our practice mission in the human world."

The teacher looked at the child with a satisfied expression and nodded slightly. Then, the teacher replied, "Of course, I have a solution to help and save the tuelinhs when they incarnate as humans in the human world, including you. Therefore, please feel secure and confident in your journey to become a human in the coming time.

The first solution is that the tuelinhs must go through all the interaction scenarios in the four forms of the Tao. Each tuelinh will have to go through many different reaction levels for each interaction in all forms of the Tao. It will start from the easy reaction level to the most difficult level. The purpose is to help all tuelinhs identify and force out the toxins in their original negative particle. This process takes many lifetimes to eliminate toxins and false information in the original yin particles, then re-encode information for sustainable development in both the original yin and yang particles. I call this solution using poison to stimulate and remove poison when we hold a conference to unify the practice path of the tuelinhs before allowing them to incarnate as humans. That means your exposure to toxins is an outstanding achievement on your practice journey in the human world. When you recognize your toxins, you will have the ability to destroy and remove those toxins from your original particles and structure. Only then will you have the strength to practice sustainable energy particle production. Hey, my kids! The process of toxic outbreaks is associated with the process of the soul causing harm to everyone, animals, and everything.

It is also the process by which the tuelinhs will reject knowledge that is valuable to save them. However, that does not affect the fact that knowledge and I will save them. It would help if you remembered that even the tuelinhs have the nature of ignorant wisdom in spreading false knowledge; they will be saved although they reject me and my knowledge. Do you know why? When they experience enough suffering caused by their toxins, they will trust me and my enlightened knowledge. That is when they were saved to practice the sustainable energy particle production mechanism. Don't worry that I will forget or not help some tuelinhs. Please rest assured that I do not give up any tuelinh. Five messengers are helping me; I have a transit planet with excellent tuelinhs on duty to support me. In particular, I have an information transmission and reception system to manage and monitor all the tuelinhs and souls practicing in the human world. Therefore, the information and practice process of each tuelinh and all things in the universe are controlled.

The second solution is to create an environment containing accurate information with value for sustainable development. Genuine information includes:

The mission of practice in the human world.

The path to liberation from the suffering of the tuelinhs and humans.

Those informational values will be provided in suitable environments for tuelinhs. Those are the environments where the tuelinhs have fully experienced the suffering of what they have done due to losing control of their toxins.

Do you know? My current students in the human world, many of them have lived in agony due to mental illness and suffering. However, they have recovered and are effectively practising my knowledge in helping other suffering and mentally ill people. They are the people who are protecting and spreading my knowledge in this human life. In their past lives, they were people controlled by the toxins in the original negative particle and rejected me and my knowledge. Therefore, you should be assured and confident in your practice journey in the human world because of the scenarios in the four forms of Tao and the environments I have established to help all tuelinhs and people transform sustainably."

"Father, it is wonderful for all tuelinhs and humans, especially when we are about to be incarnated as humans. All tuelinhs will be extremely happy and feel confident when they have a solid fulcrum from Father and the source to overcome the tribulations on their practice journey in the human world.

The teacher preached, "Hey, my children! Humans and the tuelinhs have yin and yang embryos formed from negative energy particles with strong, very strong, and super strong electric waves. They must go through all the sufferings of life to eliminate toxins. That shows the difficulty in transforming the nature of information within them. They easily believe and accept negative information values and then practice them because the negative information of the external environment is consistent with the negative information inside their yin and yang energy embryo. However, they do not believe and do not accept positive information from the outside environment because it is different from the information inside their yin and yang embryo. Suffering and tribulations are the solutions to help them recognize and eliminate their toxins; then, they will believe and practice the sustainable development values of positive information. Thus, their practice journey will be the most arduous compared to other tuelinhs.

Hey, my kids! I tell you that there is another type of intelligence of the tuelinhs and humans; they are very easily manipulated and believe in the informational values of the environment in which they live and interact. I call them humans whose intellectual nature is easily vibrated and controlled. Do you know what energy particles their yin and yang embryos are made of? – Their yin and yang embryos are made up of a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves.

As you already know, the information value of these two types of energy particles. Ivory-white positive energy particles have weak heat, few good elements, and weak vibration speed; the amount of information encoded is accurate but not much and incomplete, and balancing properties cannot promote development, spread, or unity. Grey-white negative particles have weak negative heat, few toxins, weak vibration speed, and a small amount of false information, and balancing and promoting properties that support the ability and strength of positive energy particles. When these two yin and yang energy particles combine to form a yin and yang embryo, they do not have the power to decode the information and do not have the power to detonate the destructive energy particles because the embryo's yang energy particles do not have enough positive heat. On the contrary, this type of yin and yang energy embryo does not have the power to destroy the structure of all things because the yin particle has little toxicity and low vibration speed, so it does not form strong signals to attract destructive energy attacks and discharges excess heat into it. In addition, this yin and yang energy embryo has a unique characteristic of quickly absorbing information and heat from the outside environment, whether positive or negative. The reason is that both negative and positive energy particles have weak electrical waves, so they quickly adapt and receive both negative and positive information.

When the tuelinh with this yin and yang energy embryo incarnates as a human, the intelligence of those people is influenced by information from the environment where they live and study. Therefore, it is divided into two cases:

- When they live and study in an environment with positive information values for sustainable development, they easily believe and practice. As a result, their yin and yang energy embryos produce grey-white negative energy particles with weak electric waves and ivory-white positive energy particles with stronger electric waves. This process helps the positive energy particle of the yin and yang embryo to be encoded and increases the power of accurate and complete information value. As a result, after the practice journey, the synthetic energy particle structure in the tuelinh has a balanced ratio of negative and positive particles of 1:1, and they mature quickly. In addition, their yin-yang embryo will become a yin-yang embryo with the power to detonate destructive energy particles. Reason: the tuelinhs and humans live in an environment containing positive information values, so harmful energy particles do not absorb toxic information from the outside environment. The positive energy particle gains strength from the positive information values of the external environment to become stronger. The destructive energy particles move in small quantities and are detonated by the original positive energy particle that has increased heat.

- When they live and study in an environment with destructive negative information values, they easily believe and practice. Through cultivating in the human world, the yin and yang embryo inside the tuelinh produces many negative energy particles with stronger electric waves than the original negative energy particle. In contrast, few positive energy particles are produced. That shows that the original negative energy particle encoded and enhanced toxic and negative information from the external environment. As a result, the tuelinh becomes unbalanced in the aggregate particle structure, and it is easily signalled by destructive energy to attack and eliminate excess heat. Thus, negative information from the outside environment causes this yin and yang energy embryo to transform toward decay and destruction.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans with this yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They do not have the cognitive ability to distinguish truth, right and wrong, and whether development values are sustainable or destructive. They cannot create sustainable or harmful values. They also cannot connect people to spread those values.

- They will receive and practice information values in different environments when they live and study in that environment. Although they learn and practice, they cannot understand the nature and truth of those information values. Therefore, they need a long time to experience and know whether the information is wrong or good.

You can come across and see people who are easily swayed and manipulated in life, such as:

- People without opinions always agree with everyone's opinions when communicating and interacting with them.

- People who believe and practice specific methods and knowledge because of customs or because most people do so without the ability to perceive the truth.

- They are people who do not harm anyone and cannot help anyone.

- They are people who cannot create sustainable development values or destructive values.

Hey, my children! Recognizing people's intellectual nature and the tuelinhs whose intelligence is easily vibrated and manipulated is not easy. It would help if you observed their information reactions and actions in different environments over a while to see their manifestations. Therefore, manifestations must be collected over long periods and in other information environments to understand the nature of all humans and the tuelinhs. From there, you can confirm what yin and yang energy particles their yin and yang energy embryos are made of."

Chapter Sixty

The Nature of Intelligence Has the Characteristics of Sustainable Development

The children said to each other, "It's amazing; the environment creates terrible power when it can change the nature of intelligence in the direction of sustainable development and vice versa, in the direction of destruction and decomposition." "Father has told us before that the environment contains different information values. Information is all things, and all things express different information values. That difference creates environments containing different information because of the reaction process between all things. Earth is a magical environment where humans await to be incarnated." "I don't know what I will be like when I transform into a human. I don't know if I have enough strength to control my negative particles. Hopefully, I will be alert and strong enough to overcome the suffering in the human world after being equipped with knowledge by Father before incarnating as a human."

After the children in the temple became quiet, the teacher continued teaching. "Look, my children:

- These are images of people born into low-income families and in a negative environment with evil customs and crime. However, they study hard, become talented people, and dedicate themselves to their work as they create the best product values for society and themselves.

- Those are the images of farmers; they work hard and constantly improve the quality and output of crops. They have gone from being poor to people with a better life besides providing quality agricultural products to everyone.

- Those images are of workers and engineers. They are working hard in production to complete projects that serve people's lives. They are satisfied with their contributions to work and receive value and benefits for themselves.

- Those are images of people doing scientific research. They overcome great difficulties and challenges to complete their research and inventions. Those are the research that creates medicines to treat human diseases; those are vaccines to help people prevent dangerous diseases; those are valuable products in supporting and improving the quality of human life, which are means of transportation, machines and mechanical systems in production. They have created tremendous value in helping people overcome diseases and constantly increase the quality of life and the benefits they gain from the work and research they have created.

- It is the image of people who have overcome various difficulties in life, such as lack of education, difficult family economic circumstances, and many failures. They overcome problems and become good business people and great employers. They have been successful in business and brought many benefits to their workers, society and country. Additionally, many have developed their businesses to benefit people around the world.

- Those are images of people who create knowledge to teach in schools. That knowledge makes for a substantial development in awareness and understanding of the human worldview. That knowledge has created talented people in many fields, such as medicine, biology, chemistry, economics, construction, etc. That knowledge has changed and developed human civilization. It significantly contributes to creating the practice environment of the tuelinhs in the human world, which becomes complex and valuable in identifying and eliminating toxins and activating good elements.

Hey, my kids! Do you know what kind of intellectual nature the above manifestations represent?"

One child replied, "Father, as I understand it, those people represent the intellectual nature of developing good values."

The teacher said, "That's right. Those tuelinhs and people have an intellectual nature characterized by sustainable development.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and people whose intelligence is characterized by sustainable development is:

- They always have extraordinary strength to overcome adversity, difficulties and extreme challenges in their lives to complete research and inventions and create values of development characteristics for everyone, society and everything.

- They have the intellectual power and cognitive ability to understand negative values and harmful information. Therefore, they are not influenced by their interests and toxins but create values that harm people, society and animals.

- They do not care and are not influenced or hindered by negative information from harmful environments. Instead, they focus and dedicate themselves to the sustainable development values they research, invent, and create.

Hey, my children! Do you recognize what kind of energy embryos form the essence of wisdom characteristic of sustainable development of the tuelinhs and humans?"

A child stood up and replied, "Father, a kind of intelligence capable of perceiving and rejecting the attraction of negative and toxic information is a wonderful kind of energy embryo. That energy embryo must be formed from a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves. With the power of the positive and negative energy particle that has the characteristics of balancing and promoting the development of positive particles, that energy embryo is a combination of both the wonderful values of positive and negative particles."

A few children also said, "I also believe that the type of intelligence with the characteristics of sustainable development is formed from a yin and yang embryo with the grey-white negative particle carrying weak electric waves and the green positive particles carrying strong electric waves."

The teacher smiled at the children, "Hey, my children! It is lovely that you have realized what kind of energy embryo that type of intelligence is composed of when I tell you about the manifestations and nature of humans and the tuelinhs. I am thrilled you have developed the ability to think about energy particles well. That shows your outstanding maturity in creating informational reactions to understand all things, events, and phenomena.

As you know, the grey-white harmful energy particles with weak electric waves have the most negligible false information value, low vibration speed, low toxicity, and low negative heat. In particular, it has the property of balancing and promoting the values of positive energy particles when it connects to form yin and yang energy embryos. The negative particle's value is that it does not form significant signals to attract many destructive energy particles to attack and destroy its structure.

On the other hand, you already know the information value of the group of positive energy particles. The information value encoded in their intellectual wave code is accurate but not much and not complete; good elements are many, vibration speed is fast, and heat is strong. In particular, it has creative characteristics and creates sustainable development values for itself and everything. Therefore, this group of positive energy particles has the power to detonate a small number of destructive energy particles when they attack the embryo and its structure. When blasting annihilation energy particles, it will become stronger by absorbing and encoding complete and comprehensive truth information with the characteristics of sustainable development from the outside environment.

Hey, my kids! When those two yin and yang energy particles bond, they form an energy embryo with a magical intellectual nature and sustainable development characteristics. In particular, when the tuelinh with this type of energy embryo incarnate as practitioners in the human world, yin and yang energy particles wonderfully promote their value in the interactions in the four forms of Tao. That is:

- The original negative energy particle only vibrates at a weak level, so it does not hinder the process of the initial positive energy particle performing the function of evaluating information from the external environment. Therefore, the negative energy particle only receives and encodes accurate and positive information values into the embryo's original positive and negative energy particles. In addition, with the low vibration speed, only a few destruction particles near that area receive the signal to attack the yin and yang embryo of the tuelinh and the person with this embryo.

- The original positive energy particle has a fast vibration speed and a substantial amount of heat, so it has the power to control the information value of the original negative energy particle. In particular, it can evaluate information values from the outside environment before letting the negative energy particle absorb and encode them. It only allows the yin energy particle to absorb accurate and positive information with sustainable development characteristics. In addition, it can detonate a small amount of destructive energy particles when they attack the yin and yang embryos and tuelinhs.

Compared to previous energy embryos, the magic and difference of this yin and yang energy embryo is that they can link information between the yin and yang particles in the embryo to create excellent new functions and tasks. That is to absorb actual information values with characteristics of sustainable development from the external environment to increase its strength. In particular, the negative particle vibrates slightly to absorb a small amount of destructive energy particles and detonate them in the safety of the positive energy particle. That creates hot heat to help the yin and yang embryo produce many positive energy particles with strong to super-strong electric waves. Besides, harmful energy particles are also produced with each reaction that creates positive energy particles. Still, their electric waves are weak and valuable for the development and maturity of the tuelinh.

Through cultivating in the human world, the synthetic energy particle structure of the tuelinhs with this yin and yang energy embryo develops and matures quickly. They have and maintain a synthetic energy particle structure in the golden ratio of 1:1. This means that those tuelinhs and humans have great wisdom and power in understanding the truth of all things and practising sustainable energy particle production mechanisms. However, when they access the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle, they will quickly understand and effectively practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production. Ultimately, they will soon attain the unified Tao of the universe."

Chapter Sixty-One

The Nature of Intelligence Has the Characteristics of Spreading the Values of Sustainable Development

The children became excited when the teacher taught about the type of energy embryo that creates intelligence with the characteristics of developing sustainable values. They understood why there are the tuelinhs capable of detonating particles of destruction when moving with Father near areas containing destructive energy even though they have not yet been incarnated as humans to practice. They feel more excited when they see happy and positive information about the wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans after hearing so much information about tuelinhs with ignorant wisdom. Those are feelings of happiness and joy because, in the harsh practice environment, there are still people with great wisdom for all things to rely on and learn from when they incarnate as humans.

The children momentarily watched each other, then cheered, "This is amazing; among us, so many tuelinhs have this miraculous energy embryo. Thus, we will have wonderful tuelinhs accompanying us when we incarnate as humans. They will be wonderful people to help us overcome challenges on our practice journey in the human world."

The teacher interrupted the children, "Hey, my kids! That type of yin and yang embryo is not the most miraculous of all the yin and yang embryos that form the intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans. I will continue to teach you about more wonderful types of energy embryos."

"Father, it is wonderful that many types of energy embryos create intelligence of a positive nature and sustainable development for all things in the universe. That makes us feel happier and more excited when we think about how we will meet your knowledge and receive the help of wonderful people when we incarnate as humans." A child stood up to confide in the teacher.

The teacher continued, "There is a more miraculous type of energy embryo: an embryo formed from a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and a fire-red positive energy particle with a very strong electric wave. I call this energy embryo the intellectual energy embryo that spreads the values of sustainable development.

Do you still remember the nature of the information inside these two energy particles? The grey-white negative energy particles with weak electric waves have negligible false information value, low vibration speed, toxicity, and low negative heat. In particular, it has the property of balancing and promoting the values of positive energy particles when it connects to form yin and yang energy embryos. Because of the negative particle's value, it does not create significant signals to attract many destructive energy particles that attack and destroy its structure.

On the other hand, the group of fire-red positive energy particles with very strong electric waves has accurate information value but is not comprehensive; the vibration speed is very fast, and the heat is very strong. It contains a lot of good elements and has the property of spreading the values of sustainable development. Therefore, this group of positive energy particles has the power to detonate more destructive energy particles than the group of green positive energy particles with strong electric waves in the same reaction. That helps the yin-yang embryo absorb heat from the explosion of destructive particles and valuable information from the outside environment to produce more sustainable energy particles. Therefore, this yin and yang energy embryo will become even more powerful.

When those two yin and yang energy particles connect, they form an energy embryo with an intellectual nature that has the characteristics of spreading the values of sustainable development. Therefore, when the tuelinhs with this type of energy embryo incarnate as practitioners in the human world, yin and yang energy particles wonderfully promote their value in the interactions in the four forms of Tao. That is: original positive and negative energy particles. In addition, with the low vibration speed, only a few destruction particles near that area receive the signal to attack the yin and yang embryo of the tuelinh and the person with this embryo.

- The original positive energy particle has a very fast vibration speed and a very strong amount of heat, so it has the power to control the information value of the original negative energy particle. In particular, it can evaluate information values from the outside environment before letting the original negative energy particle absorb and encode them. It only allows the original yin energy particle to absorb accurate and positive information that has the characteristics of sustainable development and spreads the values of sustainable development. In addition, it can detonate many destructive energy particles when they attack the yin and yang embryo and the tuelinh.

Hey, my kids! This yin and yang energy embryo is more magical than the yin and yang energy embryo, characteristic of developing sustainable values. Besides having the ability and power to create sustainable values, this type of energy embryo has more extraordinary power, which is the ability to spread sustainable development values to different environments. That constitutes a type of wisdom that is more extraordinary and magical than the type of wisdom that develops sustainable values. It is the same interaction reaction that produces positive energy particles. Still, this type of energy embryo can create more positive energy particles, and the electric waves of positive energy particles are very strong. Why? This energy embryo can control and absorb more accurate and complete information values than the sustainable development energy embryo. In addition, detonating more destructive energy particles will help it have more heat to produce more positive energy particles. Combining those two reasons makes the positive particles' value more excellent than those made from energy embryos with sustainable development characteristics.

When cultivating in the human world, the tuelinhs and people with this type of energy embryo will mature very quickly. That is because of the ability to produce many positive energy particles with very strong electric waves in the same reaction, and harmful energy particles with weak electric waves are also produced in sufficient quantities. That helps the structure of synthetic energy particles in the tuelinh to be balanced according to the golden ratio of 1:1. Therefore, they have extraordinary power in overcoming harmful environments to practice the production of sustainable energy particles and quickly successfully transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans who have this type of yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They have the power and ability to distinguish between harmful information values and information values characterized by sustainable development. Therefore, they only receive information with positive values and do not accept information values with destructive properties.

- They can create inventions, research, works, and values that benefit people, society, and everything.

- In particular, they have the power to teach and spread the values of sustainable development to everyone and in different environments. They do not teach or spread harmful and destructive values.

Look, kids:

- Those are images of successes in agricultural production. They have been successful, and they are sharing those successful methods with others to help those people be as successful as they are.

- Those are engineers and workers. They teach and help many people learn and gain professional knowledge.

- Those images are of people who have succeeded in business and production. They have been successful and are sharing their successful business methods with younger generations and others.

- Scientists, researchers, and inventors create valuable works, sharing and transferring those technologies to other people and countries.

- Those are teachers who teach knowledge in the school system and transmit knowledge about various areas of life to students. They have gone through the process of learning and understanding knowledge, so they have the ability and enthusiasm to teach that valuable knowledge to their students. As a result, their students have become talented and successful people in many areas of life.

- Those images are people practising religions. They dedicate their lives to teaching religious knowledge to help people believe in their roots and practice goodness to everyone. They do not for their benefit, so they do not teach ignorant knowledge such as praying, defaming and insulting other religions. Instead, they teach people about love and solidarity between people to give good values to each other.

- Those images are sages; they preach knowledge, moral ideologies, and enlightened knowledge about the truth of humans' origin and practice mission in the human world. They dedicate their lives to helping and leading people to learn and practice the mechanism of sustainable transformation.

Hey, my children! This type of wisdom is extraordinary and valuable. Its power includes the power of the kind of intelligence that creates sustainable development values. The unique value of this type of intelligence is the power of spreading and disseminating the values of sustainable development to everyone and humanity.

Hey kids! If the tuelinhs and humans possess this type of wisdom or have been transformed into this type of wisdom from lower types of intellect, they will quickly attain the unified Tao of the universe. At that time, they have the power to operate destructive energy and create invaluable values to help all things in and outside the universe develop sustainably."

Chapter Sixty-Two

The Nature of Intelligence Has the Characteristics of Solidarity to Spread the Values of Sustainable Development

When the teacher finished teaching the type of wisdom with the characteristics of spreading sustainable development values, the children became curious and observed each other. Perhaps they saw that the tuelinhs in the temple had embryos of yin and yang energy with that extraordinary wisdom characteristic, so they prepared to continue the excitement and cheers. However, the teacher said, “Hey, my children! Among you here, many tuelinhs have that excellent energy embryo type, which is an obvious truth. Therefore, it is not strange. I know you are delighted and excited to see the fantastic things about yourself and each other because those are special and wonderful things for the existence and sustainable development of the universe. That also shows that the success of the transformation journey of the tuelinhs and people with those particular types of wisdom is faster than other tuelinhs.

Hey kids! The time for me to preach to you is almost over because my physical form in the human world is about to wake up. I have been teaching you a tremendous amount of knowledge this time I have returned. It may be the first time I have returned to preach so much wisdom for such a long time while I am incarnating as a human being in the human world. Therefore, I want you to focus and listen to me explain a particular type of intelligence of the tuelinhs and humans formed from a different kind of yin and yang energy embryo.

You must understand that the types of wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans I teach you are all natural and exist in the tuelinhs and humans. Even if it is the most valuable and magical energy embryo, it still does not have the power to detonate destructive energy in too large quantities. They only have enough power and ability to blast a certain amount of annihilation energy. The tuelinhs cannot move into the space containing the energy of destruction because they will disintegrate when moving there. When you can transform your energy embryo into an energy filter, you can detonate destructive energy in large quantities and move safely into the annihilation energy space.

However, it is difficult for you to transform your yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters, especially for tuelinhs whose energy embryos are formed from negative energy particles with strong, very strong, and super strong electric waves. On the contrary, it will be easy for tuelinhs whose energy embryos are formed from grey-white negative energy particles with weak electric waves combined with green positive particles with strong electric waves, fire-red positive particles with very strong electric waves, and yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves.

The tuelinhs whose yin and yang energy embryos create the wisdom nature of ignorance must need a longer and more difficult journey to transform their yin and yang embryos through each stage of the wisdom nature. This means that for the tuelinh to have an embryo of energy with the nature of wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge that can be transformed into an energy filter, it must be: the original negative energy particle must reduce electric waves and eliminate the toxins disappear to become the grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves; the original positive energy particle must regenerate heat, electric waves and good elements to become the yellow positive energy particle with super strong electric waves. Converting electric waves of the positive particle must be from weak to strong, reaching very strong and finally super strong. On the contrary, the electric wave of the negative energy particle must change from super strong to very strong, then strong and ultimately weak. That shows that tuelinhs and humans have an intellectual nature whose energy embryos are formed from the grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and the positive energy particles with strong, very strong, and incredibly super strong electric waves. They will be the tuelinhs and people with the shortest practice journey in the human world and quickly achieve achievements to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

Hey, my kids! Even though the intellectual nature of all the yin and yang energy embryos is different, success is equal for all tuelinhs and humans. Success only comes when people diligently study and practice enlightened knowledge. Therefore, even if you have the most excellent energy embryo and do not learn and practice according to enlightened expertise on the sustainable path of transformation, you will be destroyed when moving into the space of destructive energy. You are all the same when you move into space containing annihilation energy; you are decomposed and destroyed. In addition, they are all similar in that they all have the opportunity to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. The only difference is in the ability to overcome suffering and tribulations.

Hey kids! The fact that you learn about the types of wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans through the nature of yin and yang energy embryos is not to compare and outperform each other. I teach you this knowledge to help you understand the secrets of yourself and other tuelinhs, as well as all things and the energy of destruction. From there, you can control and eliminate your toxins, then activate good elements to practice the mechanism of producing positive energy particles. Please remember what I said.

And now, I will continue to teach you about the unique wisdom of the tuelinhs and humans formed from the nature of yin and yang energy embryos. That is the type of intelligence that unites each other to spread the values of sustainable development to humanity and all things. That is the most extraordinary intelligence of the tuelinhs and humans created from a type of yin and yang energy embryo. It combines a grey-white negative energy particle with weak

You have also understood the information value of grey-white negative energy particles with weak electric waves. It is a miracle when this negative particle connects with positive energy particles with strong, very strong and super strong electric waves to create sustainable development values for all things in the universe and the tuelinhs. Therefore, I will not discuss the values of that negative energy particle again. But what I want to tell you more about the value of that negative energy particle is the magical balance of the negative energy particle. The balance represents its non-greedy nature in absorbing heat and information from its surroundings. Especially when linked to powerful positive energy particles, it becomes even more magical in its ability to balance and absorb information.

Hey kids! I often tell my students in the human world, "Everyone should live like energy embryos with the grey-white negative energy particle carrying weak electric waves and positive energy particles with strong or stronger electric waves. Living like grey-white negative energy particles means learning valuable knowledge that promotes sustainable development for everyone and society; that is, don't be greedy and take everything about yourself like negative energy particles with electric waves that are strong, very strong, and super strong. Living in rapacity to gain for oneself only results in decomposition and destruction. You live as positive energy particles that live as green, fire-red, and yellow. It is to live a human life with dedication and sacrifice to create sustainable development values; it is to unite and spread them to everyone and everything. Among the positive energy particles, you should choose to live like yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves."

On the other hand, do you remember the information nature of the positive energy particle with super strong electric waves? This type of energy particle has accurate and comprehensive information value, super strong good elements, super strong electric waves, and super fast vibration speed. In particular, it has the characteristic of solidarity to spread the values of sustainable development to all things and itself. Because of the power of such positive energy particles, it has the best ability compared to other positive energy particles in detonating destructive energy particles. That means that the yellow positive energy particle has the power to burst more destructive energy particles than other positive energy particles in the same detonation reaction.

When the tuelinhs have this type of yin and yang energy embryo and incarnate as humans, they are the most incredible people in humanity. Their greatness is demonstrated by the power of the negative energy particle to learn and cultivate positive information values diligently and have the characteristics of sustainable development. In particular, they understand and learn valuable lessons from people ignorant of ideology and actions in spreading false knowledge. In addition, their greatness is reflected in the positive energy particle. This ideology creates values containing accurate information for sustainable development and then unites people to spread those beautiful values to humanity. The original positive energy particle controls the original negative energy particle; therefore, it can understand all the natures of different types of matter and other people. From there, it is easy to create values of sustainable development and lead people to unite to spread their sustainable development values.

After the practice journey in the human world, the tuelinhs and humans with this type of yin and yang energy embryo will mature quickly, and they are the tuelinhs who attain the unified Tao of the universe the earliest compared to other tuelinhs. Primarily through the chain reaction of uniting people and teaching them knowledge, people with this yin and yang energy embryo will produce countless positive energy particles with super strong electric waves and in sufficient quantities of negative energy particles with weak electric waves to help the tuelinh's synthetic particle structure maintain the golden ratio of 1:1 between positive and negative particles. This yin and yang energy embryo can detonate more destructive energy particles than other yin and yang energy embryos. Therefore, the heat from explosions of annihilation energy helps them produce many sustainable energy particles.

Hey kids! My yin and yang energy embryo is also formed from the grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and the yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves. But I was born and raised in an environment of destructive energy; therefore, I have the power to detonate countless destructive particles while still being safe. What I want to tell you is that my energy embryo is entirely different from the tuelinhs also formed from that type of yin and yang particles; that is, my embryo was formed from two ancestral wave-particles, while your embryos were formed from the particles that I produced. Therefore, all tuelinhs born from my yin and yang embryo will be destroyed if they move into the space of destructive energy, even if you have this unique energy embryo. To avoid decomposition, you have no other way but to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter.

The intellectual nature of the tuelinhs and humans who have this type of yin and yang energy embryo is:

- They are intellectual people who understand the truth of information, the value of right and wrong, and the value of sustainable development or destruction even though they have to live in an environment of negative and false information. Therefore, they have the wisdom to understand the nature and truth of all things, events and phenomena.

- They have the ability and intelligence to create values characterized by sustainable development.

- They have the power to lead people to unite, which aims to spread the values of sustainable development they have created.

Do you know who they are in the human world? That is:

- Enlightened beings and sages created systems of enlightened knowledge and moral values that expressed the truth about the origin and spiritual mission of the tuelinhs and people in the human world. Besides, they are the people who have the power to lead people to unite to spread that excellent knowledge together.

- They are people who have learned the enlightened knowledge and moral values of the sages and enlightened beings. Therefore, they dedicate their lives to uniting people to spread enlightened expertise and knowledge that brings moral values to everyone.

Hey, my children! Suppose all of you want to succeed in transforming your yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. In that case, you must change your yin and yang energy embryos into this unique type of energy embryo first. Then, you must practice producing enough positive and negative energy particles with the nature of those excellent yin and yang particles. This sustainable process of particle production will help you mature, and maturity must be based on the four forms of Tao in the human world. When you are mature and have a sufficient number of the best intellectual wave code fibres in the yin and yang embryo, then you will be qualified for me to help you transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. So, it is a journey where you must persevere and try a lot.

Hey kids! It's time for me to return to my physical form. Among you here, many tuelinhs are qualified to incarnate as humans. I have entrusted the task of helping you transform into humans to the two remaining messengers in heaven. I hope you will soon meet me and my knowledge of the human world."

When the teacher finished speaking, his body in the human world also woke up. After the teacher woke up, he felt the tuelinh preached knowledge to the tuelinhs in heaven for a very long time. It is like he is teaching knowledge to his students for many days. That makes the teacher appreciate when the tuelinh returns to heaven to teach wisdom so that his body can absorb valuable messages and information for training in the human world.

Chapter Sixty-Three

Mechanism and Journey of Transformation of the Universe

At that time, the temperature in the classroom had become warmer, even hotter than when everyone entered the classroom while it was freezing outside. It is the numbing cold of winter when the temperature drops sharply and is accompanied by rain. Even though there is no heater in his classroom, everyone feels the power of the heat radiating from the Teacher, primarily when he lectures. At that time, the students' bodies became hot and even sweaty even though it was freezing.

When the Teacher was preparing to lecture, a student stood up and asked, "Teacher, how happy it is for my family and me that everything is stable. Before knowing your knowledge, my family had a food restaurant, and we slaughtered many animals, including pets and wild animals. After a period of good business and a lot of money from it, business started to decline more. Especially, I and my children have symptoms of depression and loss of control. These symptoms worsen even though we have treated them and taken medicine. However, after your students shared and advised me on how to learn and practice knowledge to heal my illness and my children, it was amazing that our illness was almost completely cured without having to take medicine. Before joining your course, my family and I decided to stop running the restaurant business because I understood that the act of killing animals to get rich is a crime, and it causes the soul inside to produce many negative energy particles. Negative energy particles from ignorant actions are the cause of mental health-related diseases for me and my children. As a result, after a few months of studying in your class, my children and I are healthy, and our lives have changed because we have new, better jobs. Teacher, I want to ask you whether we should be vegetarian or eat animal meat. Does eating animal meat cause the soul to produce negative energy particles?"

The Teacher said, "First, I want you to understand that killing animals is a crime. It is the crime of killing and blocking the path of practice and transmutation of an animal's body and the soul inside. The act of killing animals will cause the souls of slaughterers to produce black negative energy particles with very strong electric waves. Those energy particles will cause the energy particle structure in the soul to become unbalanced, the toxins in the soul to increase, and the vibration speed of the negative particle system to become uncontrolled. As a result, destructive energy particles catch the signal and enter to remove their excess heat. You know, the manifestations of diseases related to mental health are manifestations of the process of decay in the soul structure inside the human body. Therefore, when you learn and

Regarding the issue of eating animal meat or being vegetarian, it is not essential on the path of practice in the human world because it does not cause you to produce harmful energy particles, and it also does not help you create positive energy particles. Why? Food has only one mission: to help you convert it into nutrients to nourish your body. Of course, eating animal meat is not good and can even cause diseases in the human body. The reason is that when animals are killed, their souls become resentful, and their harmful energy particles are generated and exist in meat cells. Therefore, when humans eat their meat, the human body will absorb those toxins. The accumulation of toxins from eating animal meat will cause diseases in humans. Vegetarian diets, from vegetables, tubers, fruits, and seeds, are perfect for the human body because they do not have toxic energy like animal meat. Why? Because the complex energy structures in seeds, vegetables, tubers and fruits are only small, discrete structures, they do not have intelligence like animal souls. Therefore, when preparing food from them, those complex energy structures will be converted into nutrition along with the simple structures of cells of vegetables, seeds, tubers and fruits without causing resentment.

Don't waste time analyzing, thinking and making requests about eating and drinking in this short life. It only wastes your valuable time instead of focusing on practising sustainable energy particle production. As long as you don't kill any animals and don't ask relatives or someone else to slaughter animals for food, that's what you need to do in life.

When someone invites you to eat or goes out to eat with others, you should eat those dishes, whether they are vegetarian dishes or dishes made from animal meat. Don't insist and ask someone to prepare vegetarian dishes for you because you don't eat animal meat. Remember, don't slaughter animals and don't ask someone to kill animals for your food."

"Master, people have many questions and concerns regarding raising animals, growing plants, exploiting natural resources and minerals, and how best to treat all things. We often get confused when analyzing and explaining to people. Therefore, I hope you will help us improve our understanding of those issues." A student asked the teacher.

The teacher said, "I accept your offer. To help you and everyone have a thorough approach and understanding of the life of all things in and outside the universe, I will teach you about the mechanism and journey of transformation of all things.

When you study these lectures, you will have a deep understanding of the knowledge of energy particles and the two truths, especially the information values inside the smallest energy particles. That is fantastic knowledge, and it has helped you understand yourself and everyone else, all things, and the energy of destruction. I am proud of your dedication and ability to help people understand the two truths. You are genuinely Nalandas, as you have given this enlightened knowledge to everyone and humanity. These things make me continue transforming the difficult information values in particles and all things in the universe

Do you know what the transmutation mechanism means with the two truths? – It is the soul of the two truths and the operating mechanism of the two truths. You have also accessed part of the knowledge of the transformation mechanism through previous lectures. However, today, I will lecture in-depth on the mechanism and transmutation journey of all things in and out of the universe so that you can understand life and the struggle for survival of all life forms in and out of the universe. By approaching and understanding all things through their mechanism and journey of transmutation, you will increase and gain the most excellent enlightenment about all things in the universe. With this knowledge, you will build the best and most solid path to accelerate the process of producing sustainable energy particles. As a result, you will quickly attain the unified Tao of the universe.

Do you know what transformation is? – It is a change in the nature of all things and life forms. That change is the change in information values within them.

Do you know what the transformation mechanism is? – That is the nature of transforming information values within all things and life forms when they participate in the information reaction process. You also know that all things are information because through the process of reaction between all things, new information values are created, and those information values are encoded and composed into new energy particles. Thus, the transmutation mechanism is the mechanism that produces energy particles of different natures after the reaction and interaction of things with each other in different environments.

Participating in the transmutation mechanism of all things and life forms includes factors such as:

- Physical entities or entities of life include ancestral wave-particles, destructive energy particles, energy particles with electric waves, yin and yang energy embryos, larger physical structures, tuelinhs, souls, people, planets, galaxies, and the entire universe.

- Environment includes environment without heat, environment with positive heat, and environment with negative heat.

- The movement and interaction reactions of all things and living things exist for a certain period to produce new energy particles with new information value.

Now, please join me in following the transformation journey of all things in and out of the universe from the appearance of ancestral wave-particles until the first tuelinh attains the unifying Tao of the universe. After that, you will understand what the transformation mechanism consists of and the nature of each mechanism.

Please close your eyes and think you are the smallest energy particle with great power, like positive energy particles with super strong electric waves. Then, move and abide in the tuelinh within me, Nalas Nalanda. And now, I am returning to the past to help you explore the transformation journey of all things.

Look, do you see anything? – Those are ancestral wave-particles. They are born from singularities in space with no positive or negative heat. Space without heat causes them to move without spinning around themselves. Instead, they move slowly and in spiral orbits. That's the moving trajectory formed when they were born from singularities. Maybe a push from within the singularity caused them to move like that after they were born. However, after they moved for a long time, they transformed and no longer ran in a spiral orbit. The wave-particles have transformed into destructive energy particles after moving and changing their nature in a heatless environment. Thus, wave-particles no longer exist after transforming into annihilation particles. You keep looking; the wave-particles continue to move in space with many destructive energy particles and transform into annihilation particles. Explosions of destructive energy appeared, and the wave-particles moved into small spaces containing hot and cold heat. Miraculously, the wave-particles were transformed into energy particles with positive and negative electric waves. Those wave-particles no longer exist after they are transformed into energy particles with different information values, such as annihilation particles and particles with positive and negative electric waves. At singular points, wave-particles are born and continue to transform into destructive energy particles. Thus, the only transformation path of wave-particles after birth is to change their nature and encode information in different environments to form other energy particles. It is a transformation process to upgrade the value of internal data and create a diversity of life in and outside the universe. The loss of a wave-particle is not annihilation and ceasing to exist; instead, it still exists, but it has evolved to become a more intelligent physical structure.

Look at the space of the energy of destruction. The annihilation particles exist independently and are not connected to become a physical structure more extensive than the smallest energy particle structure. They live and move in endless space, increasing in number because of the evolution of wave-particles in a non-thermal environment. Do you see anything? The annihilation particles have just been detonated, creating an area of positive and negative heat. They burst because they experience increased heat after moving and gathering in dense density. When they are detonated, the annihilation particles become hot heat, and they no longer exist in the structure of particulate matter. The heat from the detonated destructive energy particles has become an ideal environment for wave-particles to move in, and information reactions occur to evolve into energy particles with positive electric waves. In addition, that heat also promotes the change in the nature of the wave-particle when the wave-particle moves through a hot thermal environment before moving through a non-thermal environment and becoming a negative energy particle in the cold medium. Look, when they stop moving for a long time and do not gather in dense density, the destructive energy particles have cooled themselves and are no longer at risk of being detonated. In particular, they discharge excess heat very quickly when they move into an environment with negative heat. Thus, life forms of destructive energy particles have two paths of transmutation: one is to be detonated to become hot heat and become an ideal environment for the development of other forms of matter; the second is to continue to exist and survive if they can get rid of excess heat inside. Looking at the two transformation mechanisms of destructive energy particles, you have seen that they cannot evolve to become more significant and sustainable physical structures. Instead, they must fight for their survival in the smallest particle structures.

Do you see anything? - They are the smallest particles of positive and negative energy. They are formed from the evolution of ancestral wave-particles when the wave-particles move in an environment with heat and a variety of information reactions. Energy particles with electric waves are a material structure with greater intelligence and encoded information value than destructive energy particles. Those are energy particles that have positive and negative electric waves with a rotation mechanism and a linking mechanism, while annihilation particles do not have those two mechanisms. Movement mechanisms exist because of the difference in intelligence and information values encoded within the intellectual wave code between different types of energy particles. Look, the harmful energy particles have been assimilated and become destructive energy particles. The annihilation energy particles formed from being assimilated are different from the annihilation particles formed from wave-particles: the intellectual wave code of the assimilated annihilation particle is not green; it rots and becomes brown. Positive energy particles with weak electric waves are also assimilated and become destructive particles. However, positive energy particles with stronger electric waves were detonated when attacked by annihilation energy. Annihilation and positive particles with strong electric waves are detonated and become hot heat. Do you see anything?

The smallest positive and negative energy particles have linked together to become a physical structure more extensive than the smallest energy particle, even though they are disintegrated by destructive energy particles later. Look, that's the magical embryo of yin and yang energy that creates the universe; It is formed by a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and a super-strong yellow positive energy particle. It is a physical structure more extensive than the smallest energy particle in terms of both intelligence and informational values. Therefore, the energy embryo will have its operating mechanisms. So, you have seen that energy particles with electric waves have a mechanism of transformation in the following directions: one is that positive and negative energy particles bond together to develop into a physical structure with evolution and development in terms of information and intelligence; second, they are decomposed and destroyed by the energy of destruction. Remember, the heat from the detonation of destructive energy particles is the ideal environment and great information value to create the smallest energy particles with electric waves and evolution of information value compared to annihilation energy particles and wave-particles. In addition, with the bonding and rotation mechanism, the yin and yang energy particles have linked together to become a material structure with more intelligence than the smallest energy particle, which is the yin and yang energy embryo.

Please observe the wonderful yin and yang energy embryo of the universe. Have you seen any phenomena? That yin and yang energy embryo continuously reacts with the destructive energy particles, detonating all the annihilation particles that attack it. The smallest energy particles are produced from that energy embryo after an explosive reaction with destructive energy. Those reactions have occurred over time; the yin and yang embryo made countless energy particles with negative, positive, and neutral electric waves. That helps that energy embryo become a giant energy sphere with numerous smallest energy particles inside, and in the middle is a supreme soul. In the centre of that tuelinh is a mature energy embryo with a synthetic energy particle structure system outside. Continuing to undergo destructive energy detonation reactions on an increasingly larger scale over a long period, the first tuelinh and the energy sphere became giant and great. The first tuelinh has become a mature tuelinh, and the sphere contains countless types of energy particles with negative, positive, and neutral electric waves. So, you know, that magical yin and yang energy embryo transforms in the direction of producing many energy particles with different yin and yang electric waves. Then, the most valuable energy particles are linked to form a composite energy particle structure outside the mature energy embryo. They are constantly growing and are closely linked to the original energy embryo within the mature energy embryo. As a result, a baby tuelinh is born and then becomes an adult tuelinh. In addition, all the smallest energy particles in the giant energy sphere were taken from the energy embryo of that tuelinh. Did you realize anything from the transformation process of that miraculous energy embryo? It is a reaction process that detonates destructive energy to create heat and the power of new information values. Then, that energy embryo absorbed heat and new information values for the production of countless smallest particles. Thus, heat from the detonation of destructive particles and information values through detonation reactions and movement of particles in the energy sphere have created evolution and development from an energy embryo into a mature tuelinh and a cosmic sphere. That is the most excellent transmutation mechanism in the history of the universe. That remarkable transformation is accomplished through the emergence of a new movement mechanism, production, in which heat and information play an essential role in the transformation process.

The first tuelinh is gathering yin and yang energy embryos with super complex intelligence wave codes to help them develop into baby wisdom spirits. Then, he placed those energy embryos into unique gem crystals in the cave of the central planet. Next, he provided heat from the enormous explosion outside the cosmic energy sphere to help those energy embryos mature. As a result, tuelinh babies are born. Over time, the central planet has had many tuelinhs; they were all children. The children have been having difficulty practising detonating annihilation particles to absorb heat to produce and link their energy particles. That makes them face significant challenges in developing intellectually and encoding the information values inside. While their Father is the first tuelinh, he has the miraculous power to detonate destructive energy. The children were disintegrated and destroyed when they practised blasting destructive energy particles in areas in the universe containing annihilation particles. So, what have you seen from the transformation process of those tuelinh children? They are formed from yin and yang energy embryos, and their structure has developed in intelligence and information values through the mechanism of production - link and rotation mechanism. The tuelinh children have two transformation mechanisms: decomposition and destruction; the second is to maintain existence and develop slowly but cannot avoid decay when attacked by destructive energy. In contrast, the first tuelinh had a sustainable transmutation mechanism that could magically detonate annihilation particles.

You continue to observe the journey of the first tuelinh to build planets and galaxies. Do you see anything? He has assembled small physical structures formed from mature energy embryos with simple intellectual wave codes; then, he uses complex energy groups to connect simple physical structures to planets. To create a gravitational force and magnetic field for each planet, he placed a rare gem crystal-like pyramid in the centre of each planet. Complex energy and rock crystals have helped simple physical structures be tightly linked. Over a long period in building planets, the universe has had countless galaxies. They are all interconnected and connected to the central planet so that the entire universe revolves around that central planet. Look, some planets are disintegrated by destructive energy; complex energy groups are also disintegrated by annihilation energy. You see, the first tuelinh still had to create reactions that detonated annihilation energy to create heat to serve the development and existence of all life in the universe. So, how do you see the transformation mechanism of planets and the entire universe? It is a transmutation mechanism with increased information and intelligence values of life forms and all matter in the universe, including complex and simple matter. From simple energy particles developing into mature energy embryos, planets, and galaxies, everything must go through the mechanism of production - connection and rotation, especially the operation and creation of the first tuelinh with transcendent intelligence when creating the connection between simple physical structures into planets by complex energy. That is a new creation and development in the transformation journey of the universe. It is the residence and existence in each other between simple matter and complex matter so that they can develop and become more muscular physical structures in terms of intelligence and information value. Hey you, the planets and all things in the universe have two paths of transmutation: one is to be decomposed and destroyed by the energy of destruction; second, they are linked together to coexist and develop intellectually and in terms of information values.

Hey you, we continue to explore the earth's habitat after the first tuelinh created the first experiment. It is an experiment in making connections between simple and complex physical structures to analyze their transformation mechanisms. It is the first research stage before bringing tuelinhs to incarnate as practitioners in the human world. Do you see anything? Trees and vegetation systems are formed. They are formed from simple energy embryos and, within them, are nourished by complex energy embryos. The purpose of this research on the first tuelinh is to see how the reaction of detonation of destructive particles and the maturation of physical structures when combining energy

As a result, you can see that big trees and forests have been formed, and the vegetation system has developed wonderfully. That has shown the rapid development of simple physical structures when complex energy structures reside within them. In addition, complicated, intelligent energy structures have been formed after living within trees, rocks and vegetation systems. These are soul structures with high levels of intelligence in large tree trunks, rocky soil and ancient trees. Complex energy groups exist in systems of vegetation and small trees. The first tuelinh was amazed at the miraculous speed at which complex energy structures developed when embedded in tree trunks, rocks, and vegetation systems. He was extremely surprised by the rapid growth and evolution of simple and complex matter groups. In particular, the group of complex matter has developed significantly in terms of intelligence and encoded information to become souls. His first experiment was successful when he saw the power of compression and pressure of the living environment to help energy structures carry out the change mechanism towards sustainable development. That is how complex physical structures blast destructive energy to promote their maturation. Thus, through the first experimental phase, the first tuelinh achieved outstanding achievements when complex physical structures became intelligent souls through living in simple physical structures. However, many complex physical structures have decayed and destroyed because they did not have enough power to detonate the destructive energy.

Let's observe the second stage of research of the first tuelinh. Look, the first tuelinh created different animals, and they were diverse in species. Many species live underground, many species live underwater, many species live on the ground, and many species fly above. The first tuelinh created each animal from the connection of simple physical structures and intelligent soul structures from the souls of trees or complex energy embryo structures from the universe. During this period, he wanted to understand clearly and in detail the transformation mechanism of complex soul structures residing within simple material structures. However, unlike the previous research phase, using simple physical structures that cannot move, like trees and rocks; During this period, he created simple physical structures capable of movement, which are animals. The aim is to increase the complexity and compactness of interspecies reactions. From there, he will see the difference more clearly in the ability to react to detonate destructive energy and the evolution of the complex physical structures that are souls. Having spent a long time observing the reactions and interactions between animals, he noticed that there was differentiation and different development between the soul structures of animals:

- Many animal souls produce too many excess harmful energy particles. That leads to an imbalance of energy particles in their structure, and they are quickly attacked by destructive energy and subsequently disintegrate. They are animals that kill and eat other species.

- Many animal souls have the power to produce positive energy particles with stronger electric waves. Therefore, they develop rapidly intellectually and have the power to detonate destructive energy. They are animals that do not kill other species; they help and save many other animals.

After seeing the remarkable intellectual development of souls in particle production and the transformation mechanisms of animal souls, he saw the value of creating an environment with high compression and pressure to help the tuelinhs learn and practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production. Therefore, he decided to bring tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to practice in the human world.

After humans domesticated animals for a long time, animals contributed and helped humans in labour and production. This process has helped their souls encode super complex information values to produce more valuable energy particles than before. As a result, many animal souls were transmuted into tuelinh structures. After that, they incarnate into humans and practise with other tuelinhs. That is the most miraculous evolution and development of complex energy structures when they reside in the simple physical form of trees and rocks; then, they are established in the form of animals; finally, they were incarnated as a human to practice transforming yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

And now, please open your eyes.

How do you feel about the transformation journey of wave-particles until humanity appears and lives in a world with extreme compression and pressure?"

A student said, "Teacher, I find the development of things and life forms very intense because of how they interact and react. To survive and develop, species, life forms, the tuelinhs and humans must create reactions that detonate destructive energy particles. That seems difficult for humans when they cannot see the destructive and smallest energy particles. However, I feel peaceful and free after discovering the transformation journey of all things in the universe through your lecture. I realize that life and all interactions are information reactions. My task is to purge toxic information in the soul and re-encode positive information that brings development."

The teacher continued, "That's right. The essence of transmutation is the process of encoding information values to create new energy particles. Encoding information and producing energy particles have made a transformation mechanism with two clear directions: change towards sustainable development and transformation in the direction of decay and destruction.

When practising the transformation mechanism in the direction of decay and destruction, life forms will decay and be destroyed by destructive energy when they produce too much and have excess harmful energy particles. This transformation mechanism shows the intellectual nature of all things and life forms in the universe; wisdom contains many toxins and false information values and is not conducive to sustainable development.

When practising the mechanism of change in the direction of sustainable development, life forms will develop and evolve in intelligence and information values through the production of sustainable energy particles. This change mechanism helps life forms have the ability to detonate destructive energy particles.

The most special and miraculous thing in the transformation journey of all things in the universe is the evolution and development of the yin and yang energy embryo structures with complex intellectual wave code. The complex energy structures developed and became an intelligent soul after being established in a simple material structure in an environment with excellent compression and pressure. After that, they continue to reside in the animal form and practice the transmutation mechanism. The miracle is that through the sustainable change mechanism, they have upgraded their energy particle system's intelligence and information value to become tuelinhs. Finally, those tuelinhs were incarnated as humans to practice with the tuelinhs from the central planet.

All things are equal and can change to become the most excellent and sustainable energy structure, that is, to become a tuelinh who attains the unifying Tao of the universe through practice environment in a simple physical form on this earth. The tuelinh life form and the soul life form formed from complex energy particles must live in simple physical form to practice a sustainable transformation mechanism and become immortal tuelinh. On the contrary, simple physical structures rely on the abiding of souls, tuelinhs and complex energy groups for them to exist and develop sustainably. It is about relying on each other to transform together sustainably.

So, have you understood the values that animals, plants, rocks, and all things bring to humans? If you want to disintegrate and destroy the inner tuelinh according to the mechanism of transformation destruction, you should practice a life of destroying other lives. On the contrary, if you want to develop your inner tuelinh and wisdom to become immortal and attain the unified Tao of the universe through the mechanism of sustainable transmutation, you should give to all things, all species, tuelinhs, and people with sustainable development values."

Chapter Sixty-Four

The Tuelinh's Journey of Transformation

At that time, the class was full of students, and the teacher was preparing to lecture while some were talking to each other about the souls of animals. They were surprised to learn the truth about animal souls being upgraded and transformed into tuelinhs and then incarnating as humans to practice the incarnations of the tuelinhs in the human world. Their stories show they were highly excited and saw the miracle when embryos of yin and yang energy with complex intellectual wave codes became the tuelinhs through abiding in the form of trees, rocks and soil, and then there are the animals. In particular, they realize the value of a practice environment with pressure, compression, and harshness in helping the souls of animals and the tuelinhs transmute in the direction of sustainable development.

Seeing the students talking and expressing surprise, the teacher interrupted, "That's why people should not kill animals and destroy life forms on this planet. Killing animals, destroying mountains, cutting down forests, and mining rocks and minerals in the ground are destroying the practice environment of souls. It's like someone killed you, and the soul inside lost the opportunity to practice in your current human life. Not only that, your soul will be greatly affected on your transformation journey."

After the class became quiet and everyone was attentively waiting for the teacher to continue speaking, the teacher said: "In previous lessons, you have learned about the intellectual nature of the tuelinhs, formed from different yin and yang energy embryos. That is an advantage and a great thing to help you easily understand the tuelinh's transformation journey when incarnating as a practitioner in the human world. In this lecture, I will continue to help you understand the transmutation journey of the tuelinh through the intellectual nature of the yin and yang energy embryo that forms the tuelinh. That means through different information environments and interactive scenarios in the four forms of the Tao with extreme pressures, compressions and harshness, the tuelinhs will reveal their path of transformation. The change mechanism includes two paths: one is the path of transformation, decay, and destruction; the second is the path of sustainable transmutation. Each path of change will show a different destination. Therefore, we will see the destination of the path of transformation that we and everyone else are practising. From there, we will know whether we should continue practising that path of transformation or reform and change from ideology to action to enter the path of sustainable transmutation.

Those are tuelinhs formed from energy embryos with the grey negative particle carrying strong electric waves and the ivory-white positive energy particle carrying weak electric waves, or the green positive particle carrying strong electric waves, or the fire-red positive particle carrying very strong electric waves, or the yellow positive particle carrying super strong electric waves.

During the first lives of the tuelinhs with this type of energy embryo in the human world, the natural nature of their transformation path was revealed and clearly expressed as follows:

- The original negative energy particle of this group of energy embryos has strong toxins, a lot of false information value and destructive properties, strong negative heat and fast vibration speed, making it easy for destructive energy to catch the signal to attack and discharge their excess heat. From the information nature of this negative energy particle, after it connects with positive energy particles with different electric waves, they form a yin and yang energy embryo with the nature of ignorant wisdom in the ideology. It is a negative and selfish ideology about oneself that harms people, animals and all things. However, the level of harm and destruction is not great, there is no killing, and the scale of damage is not significant.

- The negative energy particle of this type of energy embryo has strong electric waves; therefore, it causes the positive energy particle with which it is linked to change its nature when interacting in the four forms of Tao. With the natural nature of this type of energy embryo, whether tuelinhs live and interact in positive or harmful environments, they change the nature of the original yang energy particle in their yin and yang embryo. That is:

- + The ivory-white original positive energy particle with weak electric waves maintains its energy state.

- + The green original positive energy particle with strong electric waves will transform into an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves. The good elements, sustainable development values, high vibration speed, and heat of the green particle are no longer there.

- + The fire-red original positive energy particle with very strong electric waves will transform into an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves. The good elements, the values that spread the values of sustainable development, the very fast vibration speed and the heat of the fire-red particle are no longer there.

- + The yellow original positive energy particle with super strong electric waves will turn into an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves. The good elements, the values of solidarity to spread the values of sustainable development, and the super strong vibration speed and heat of the yellow particle are no longer there.

- During the first human lives, these tuelinhs produced grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves in greater quantity and abundance than the positive energy particles. The positive particles produced during this stage are all positive particles whose nature has been changed, and their energy state is all ivory white. As a result, the synthetic energy particle structure outside the mature yin and yang embryo begins to appear as clusters of positive energy particles, with many harmful energy particles rotating around each positive energy particle.

It would help if you remembered that when tuelinhs have not yet transformed into humans, their particle structure is still balanced in the ratio of a negative particle rotating around a positive particle. The nature of the yin and yang particles is the same as the embryo's original yin and yang particles. The reason is that the tuelinhs are provided heat and support from the first tuelinh to ensure their particle production usually occurs. However, during the first stages of practice in the human world, their synthetic particle structure began to change both the positive and synthetic particle structures.

Over many subsequent lives of practice, the nature of the wisdom of ignorance in the ideology has developed stronger by the process of absorbing toxic and false information from the outside environment. The result is:

- The original positive energy particle of the tuelinh becomes weakened and has no power to control the negative energy particle that absorbs information from the outside environment.

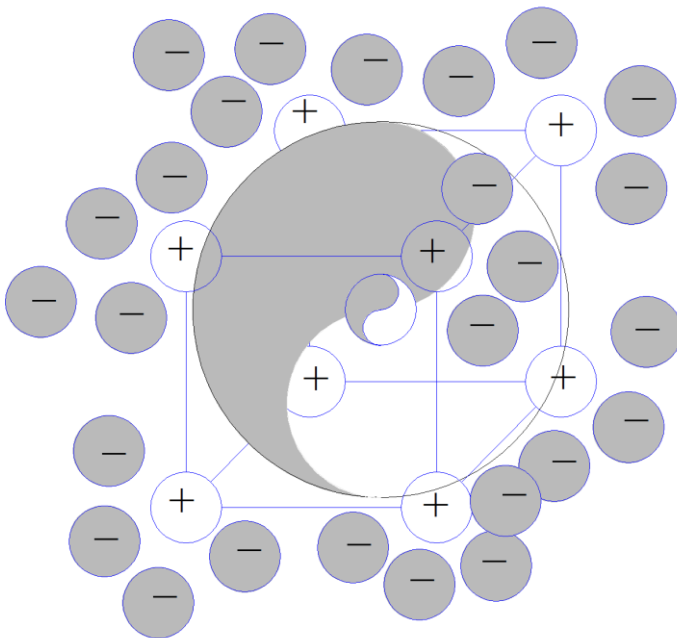

- The original negative energy particle increases toxicity and its level of destruction.

- The tuelinh loses control in producing too many excess grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves. In contrast, positive energy particles are not created or are only produced in a few quantities. That causes the synthetic energy particle structure outside the mature energy embryo to have many harmful energy particles at each positive particle cluster point.

- The tuelinh becomes disconnected in the particle structure because of the attack to discharge the excess heat of the destructive energy. That causes the tuelinhs to become even more out of control, and the process of decomposition and destruction begins to take place fiercely for those tuelinhs.

Thus, after many lifetimes of practice in the human world, whether in a positive environment or a harmful environment, the tuelinhs with ignorant wisdom in the ideological system become tuelinhs with a level of decomposition in strong level.

Strong negative electric multi-wave structure

The negative energy multiparticle structure at the strong level of the tuelinhs is formed from a group of the tuelinhs with ignorant intelligence in the ideological system. It is also formed from a group of the tuelinhs with intelligence that is vibrated and manipulated.

From the natural nature of the ignorant wisdom of the tuelinhs formed from the yin and yang energy embryo with the grey negative particle carrying strong electric waves, their next transformation journey in the human world will be:

- The ivory-white original positive energy particle in the embryo still only has weak electric waves and is weaker.

- The original negative energy particle will transform into a black particle with very strong electric waves, and black negative particles will be produced in excess to form the structure of the tuelinh. Next, the original negative energy particle will be transformed into a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves, and these blood-red particles will be produced in excessive and excessive quantities.

Thus, the natural nature of the path of transmutation of the tuelinh with ignorant wisdom in the ideological system is decay and destruction. To be wholly decomposed and destroyed, their original negative energy particle must go through a journey of change to become a black negative particle with very strong electric waves and then a blood-red negative particle with super strong electric waves.

However, when the people and tuelinhs with ignorant wisdom in ideology fully experience the sufferings and tribulations resulting from the toxins and actions they have created, they will change their path of transformation after meeting and learning enlightened knowledge. At that time, they will believe in and practice eliminating toxins by practising the mechanism of producing positive energy particles on the path of sustainable transformation. Thus, those tuelinhs only sustainably practice the path of transformation when they experience all the sufferings and tribulations in the four forms of the Tao. It is an excellent and happy thing for them when they abandon the path of transmutation, decay and destruction to achieve sustainable transformation.

2 - The transmutation journey of the tuelinh group has the wisdom of ignorance in action.

Those are tuelinhs formed from energy embryos with a black negative particle carrying very strong electric waves and an ivory-white positive energy particle carrying weak electric waves, or a green positive particle carrying strong electric waves, or a fire-red positive particle with very strong electric waves, or a yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves.

During the first lives of the tuelinhs with this type of energy embryo in the human world, the natural nature of their transformation path was revealed and clearly expressed as follows:

- The original negative energy particle of this group of energy embryos has very strong toxins, a lot of false information value and destructive properties, very strong negative heat and very fast vibration speed, making the destructive energy easy to attack in large numbers and discharge their excess heat. From the informational nature of this type of negative energy particle, after it connects with positive energy particles with different electric waves, they form a yin and yang energy embryo with the nature of ignorant wisdom in action. Those actions for one's own benefit harm people, animals and all things. Those harms are on a large scale and include acts of killing people, animals and living things.

- The original negative energy particle of this type of energy embryo has very strong electric waves; therefore, it causes the original positive energy particle with which it is linked to change its nature when interacting in the four forms of Tao. With the natural nature of this type of energy embryo, whether tuelinh's live and interact in positive or harmful environments, they change the nature of the original yang energy particle in their yin and yang embryo. That is the change from the yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves, from the fire-red positive particle with very strong electric waves, from the green positive particle with strong electric waves to an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves.

- During the first lives of these tuelinh's in the human world, the natural natures in their yin and yang embryos are revealed in all interactions of the four forms of Tao. The tuelinh began to appear many clusters of energy particles surrounded by many harmful energy particles with very strong electric waves. Then, each cluster point of positive particles has many black negative energy particles. Besides, positive energy particles are produced less than negative particles, and the electric waves of positive particles are weak and have an ivory-white colour. We still have to remember that, before incarnating as humans, these tuelinh children still had a 1:1 ratio of yin and yang energy particles in their structure because they were provided with heat and help from the first tuelinh in the process of formation and maturity in heaven. However, when incarnated as a human, the original positive particle has turned into an ivory-white positive particle with weak electric waves. In contrast, the black negative particle still has very strong electric waves. That causes the nature of ignorance in action to develop more and more because of the influence and decay from the excess heat of destructive energy attacking in large quantities.

During the subsequent lives of tuelinhs in the human world, the speed at which this group of tuelinhs encode malicious and misleading information from the outside environment becomes faster and more uncontrolled. Since then, actions have hurt and destroyed the lives of humans, animals and all living things on a large scale, and the damage has become more serious. That causes a large amount of destructive energy to capture vibrational signals from the tuelinh's negative particle system to attack. The result is:

- These tuelinhs become disconnected in their large-scale structure, and the information waves in the tuelinhs do not circulate; therefore, the warmth in the tuelinhs gradually disappears, and they cannot detonate any destructive energy particles.

- The harmful black energy particles with very strong electric waves are produced in excess, while positive energy particles are produced too little, and their electric waves are weak.

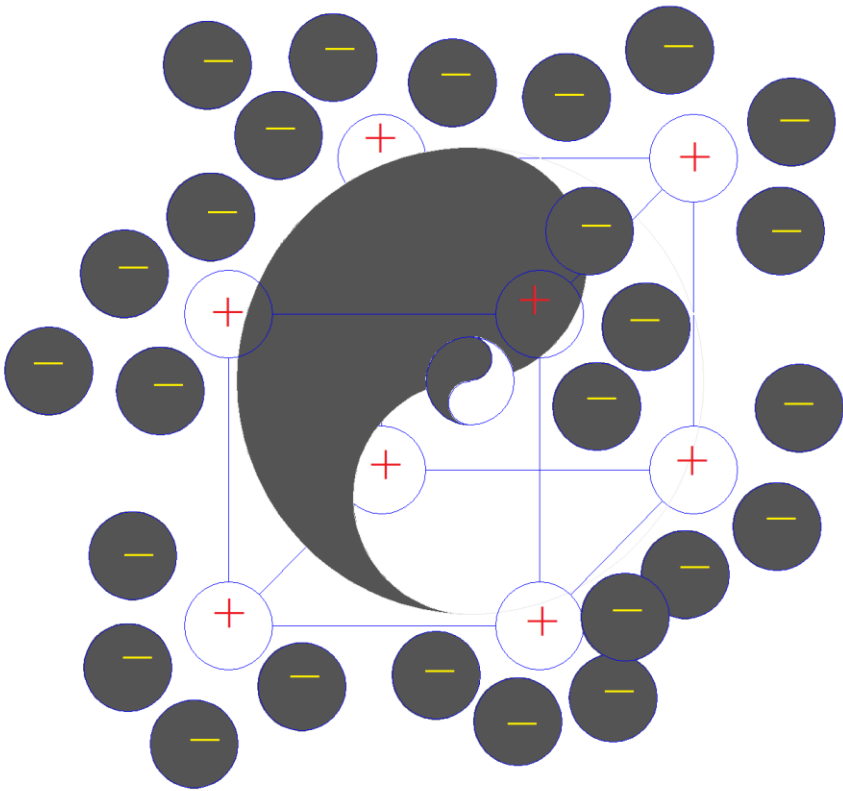

- The synthetic particle structure outside the mature energy embryo has too many negative energy multiparticle clusters with very strong electric waves.

- The original positive energy particle is increasingly weakened. It cannot participate in the reactions that control the process of absorbing information from the external environment of the original negative energy particle. Of course, the initial positive particle cannot detonate the destructive energy particle.

- The original negative energy particle increases toxicity and vibration speed by absorbing large amounts of harmful and misleading information from the outside environment.

The process of practising the mechanism of transformation, decomposition and destruction at such a very strong level during the lives of practice in the human world has caused the tuelinhs to have many negative particles in the positive particle clusters, and they are like people with metastatic cancer. In negative multiparticle clusters, toxic radiation always occurs and causes damage to nearby energy structures.

Very strong negative electric multi-wave structure

Please remember the negative energy multiparticle structure at the very strong level of the tuelinhs is formed from groups of tuelinhs with the wisdom of ignorance in action. It is also created from the transformation process of groups of tuelinhs with wisdom easily vibrated and manipulated, and the tuelinh group has ignorant wisdom in ideology.

With the natural nature of the group of the tuelinhs having ignorant wisdom in such actions and going through the next lives on their practice journey in the human world, their level of decay and destruction will become stronger. That is, the original negative energy particle in the energy embryo becomes a negative particle with super strong electric waves after absorbing too much toxic and false information; the original positive energy particle becomes weak and no longer has any strength. The synthetic particle structure in the tuelinh has many clusters of negative multiparticles with blood-red negative particles having super strong electric waves. That means that the destination of the path of destruction and disintegration of this group of tuelinhs becomes closer.

Thus, the group of tuelinhs with the nature of ignorant wisdom in action has a stronger level of negative multiparticles and decomposition than the group of tuelinhs with the wisdom of ignorance in the ideology system.

However, if the tuelinhs and people who have the nature of wisdom of ignorance in action fully experience all the sufferings and tribulations and then encounter enlightened knowledge, they will be saved. That means they will believe in enlightened knowledge when they have identified their toxins. Next, they became enthusiastic about learning and practising the positive energy particle production mechanism. As a result, they leave the path of transmutation decay and destruction and enter the path of sustainable transformation.

Those are tuelinhs formed from energy embryos with a blood-red negative energy particle carrying super strong electric waves and an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves, or a green positive energy particle carrying strong electric waves, or a fire-red positive particle carrying very strong electric waves, or a yellow positive particle carrying super strong electric waves.

During the first lives of the tuelinhs with this type of energy embryo in the human world, the natural nature of their transformation path was revealed and clearly expressed as follows:

- The original negative energy particle of this group of energy embryos has super strong toxins, too much false information value and destructive properties; super strong negative heat and super fast vibration speed make the destructive energy easy to attack in very large numbers and discharge their excess heat. From the informational nature of this type of negative energy particle, after it is linked with positive energy particles with different electric waves, they form a yin and yang energy embryo with the nature of ignorant wisdom in spreading false knowledge. Those are actions that teach false knowledge about sustainable development, the origin and practice mission of humans in the human world, methods of practice, and methods that cause division in the community connection of man and humanity. The damage is immense as it spreads across the globe and many lifetimes. That damages the lives of humans, animals, and all living things, especially the decay and destruction of the tuelinh.

- The negative energy particle of this type of energy embryo has super strong electric waves; therefore, it causes the positive energy particle with which it is linked to change its nature when interacting in the four forms of Tao. With the natural nature of this type of energy embryo, whether tuelinhs live and interact in positive or toxic environments, they change the nature of the original yang energy particle in their yin and yang embryo. That is the change from the yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves, from the fire-red positive particle with very strong electric waves, from the green positive particle with strong electric waves to an ivory-white positive energy particle with weak electric waves.

- In the first lives of these tuelinhs in the human world, the natural natures on the path of transformation are clearly expressed through four forms of Tao. That is, the tuelinhs produce too many excess harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves. At the same time, too few positive energy particles are produced, and the electric waves of the positive particles are weak. As a result, the composite particle structure of the tuelinh appears to have particle clusters with too many blood-red negative particles rotating around each ivory-white positive energy particle. That causes the destructive energy to capture large vibrational signals from the harmful particles and attack them in huge numbers. That differs from their synthetic particle structure before incarnating as humans to practice when they had a 1:1 ratio of yin and yang particles because the first tuelinh helped them.

Over many subsequent lives of practice in the human world, the nature of the ignorant wisdom of this group of tuelinhs makes their path of transformation more fierce. These tuelinhs produce too many harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves, while too few positive energy particles are produced. In addition to their synthetic energy particle structure being negative multiparticles and disintegrating at super-powerful levels, they have caused damage and destruction to other life to the greatest extent. As a matter of necessity, the particle structure in the tuelinh is broken, and a severe decay occurs due to the attack of destructive energy in large quantities.

multi-wave structure

The negative energy multiparticle structure at the super strong level of the tuelinhs is formed from the tuelinh group with ignorant wisdom in spreading false knowledge. It is also created from the transformation process of the tuelinh group with the wisdom of ignorance in action, the tuelinh group with ignorance in ideology, and the tuelinh group with intellect that is easily vibrated and manipulated.

When there is no intervention from the first tuelinh, these tuelinhs consistently demonstrate the nature of ignorant wisdom in spreading false knowledge. That makes producing harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves faster and more intense, while positive energy particles are not produced. It causes the synthetic particle structure to become negative multiparticles and disintegrate super powerfully. At that time, too many toxins and negative heat were inside the tuelinh structure; therefore, those toxic yin particles were copied and bombarded into the surrounding environment. The people, tuelinhs, souls, and other physical structures near these people will be affected by their decay. As a result, these tuelinhs will completely disintegrate and destroy. Symptoms of schizophrenia, hallucinations, and demons possessing people are manifestations of souls being decomposed at a super strong level.

However, they will be saved when they learn and practice according to enlightened knowledge. To believe and learn, they must go through all the suffering and tribulations caused by the consequences of their ignorant actions in spreading false knowledge. They can only identify their toxins to learn and practice sustainable energy particle production.

Thus, when they go through all the suffering and tribulations and encounter enlightened knowledge, they will leave the destructive transformation path to sustainable transmutation."

The Teacher sensed the students' confusion and difficulty in fully remembering information, so he stopped the lecture to help the students have time to relax. Then the Teacher asked, "Do you understand the lecture?"

A student immediately replied, "Teacher, we find it easy to understand and visualize what you are teaching because we have learned and read many times about the types of intellectual nature of the tuelinhs. However, to preach like the Teacher, we need to practice a lot to be able to do it."

The Teacher said, "It is a wonderful thing. You try to understand first. When you share this knowledge with everyone, that knowledge from the soul will be transmitted to the brain to help you miraculously teach the knowledge. At that time, you also felt surprised yourself about why you were able to preach this knowledge so well."

After a few minutes for the students to rest and relax, the Teacher continued teaching. "So, you have just finished learning about the path of transformation, decay and destruction of the tuelinhs with the nature of ignorant wisdom. And now, you continue to learn about the path of sustainable transmutation of the tuelinhs with intellectual nature who develop the values of sustainable development, spread the values of sustainable development and unite to spread sustainable development values."

These tuelinhs are formed from the energy embryo formed from a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves and a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves.

As you know, the green positive particle with strong electric waves contains accurate but incomplete information for sustainable development, many good elements, high vibration speed and intense heat, and the ability to detonate the destructive particle is strong. Its characteristic is to create sustainable development values. In particular, when it bonds to a type of negative particle with weak electric waves, it receives all its support and promotion from the negative particle. It is a negative energy particle with minor false information, little toxicity, weak vibrational speed, and little negative heat. In addition, it has the property of promoting the values of positive energy particles. That constitutes the incredible power of this yin and yang energy embryo in its ability to detonate destructive energy particles at low and moderate levels. Therefore, when these tuelinhs incarnate as humans, they have great intelligence in creating research, inventions, works, and values that bring sustainable development to humanity, society, and everything. They are not selfish to cause harm to people, animals, and all things; instead, they always bring values and benefits to people, animals, and all things.

Through their first lives of practice in the human world, their natural natures are revealed as they react in all interactions of the four forms of the Tao. They show and prove to everyone, animals and everything, that they are people with great souls. They dedicate their lives and intelligence to creating values that bring sustainable development to everyone, society, and everything. At the same time, they do not hurt or harm people, animals, or anything else. That causes them to reveal their nature of producing energy particles as follows:

- Green positive energy particles with strong electric waves are produced in large quantities. In addition, neutral particles are also produced to form a connecting thread between the synthetic positive particles in the structure of the tuelinh.

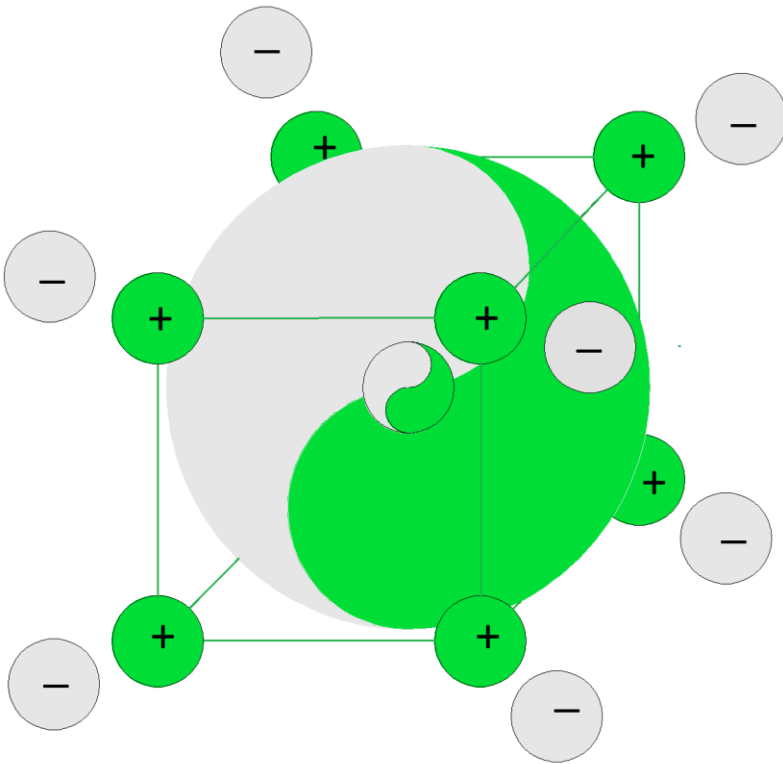

- Negative energy particles are produced sufficiently, and the electric waves are weak. Those are grey-white harmful particles produced in the same reaction that produces positive particles.

- The structure of the synthetic energy particles outside the mature energy embryo still maintains the balance ratio between yin and yang particles of 1:1, which means that before incarnating as humans, these tuelinhs still had the same particle ratio. So, the synthetic particles have the same electric wave properties as the two particles in the original yin and yang embryo.

- The original green positive energy particle still maintains the characteristics of strong electric waves, and the original grey-white negative energy particle still retains the characteristics of weak electric waves.

These tuelinhs still express their wonderful nature when experiencing many lifetimes of practice in interactive scenarios with maximum compression, pressure and harshness. That means that even though they live and work in an environment with negative and toxic information, they still create good values to benefit people, society and everything. As a result, these tuelinhs continue to produce many green positive energy particles with strong electric waves, accompanied by neutral particles and grey-white harmful energy particles with weak electric waves. Therefore, the synthetic energy particle structure outside their mature energy embryos overgrew, and these souls had the power to detonate more miraculous destructive energy.

Strong positive electric multi-wave structure

You will see that the tuelinh group with a multi-positive particle structure at a strong level of sustainable reincarnation is formed from the tuelinh group with an intellectual nature that develops sustainable values. It is also formed from transforming a group of the tuelinhs whose intelligent nature is easily vibrated and manipulated.

With the innate intelligence nature of these tuelinhs, even without help from the first tuelinh, they still continuously increase the production of positive energy particles with strong electric waves, and negative particles have weak electric waves. This process will help their original positive energy particle transform into a fire-red positive energy particle with very strong electric waves. Therefore, the composite particle structure of these tuelinhs will have many clusters of positive energy particles with very strong positive electric waves. Meanwhile, the original and produced negative particles have weak electric waves. That helps these tuelinhs increase their power to detonate destructive energy in larger quantities. However, when these tuelinhs move into the energy space of destruction, they are still easily disintegrated and destroyed.

On the other hand, if these tuelinhs experience suffering and tribulation and then access the knowledge of enlightenment, they will believe and practice accordingly. When they practice according to enlightened wisdom, transforming their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters will take place much faster than if they do not learn and do not practice according to enlightened knowledge. Thus, if they do not practice particle production according to enlightened knowledge, they cannot transform their yin and

5 - The transmutation journey of the tuelinh group that spreads the values of sustainable development to all things.

These tuelinhs are formed from energy embryos from a fire-red positive energy particle with very strong electric waves and a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves.

As you know, fire-red positive particles contain accurate but incomplete information for sustainable development, many good elements, very fast vibration speed and very strong heat, and the ability to detonate destructive particles is very powerful and has the characteristic of spreading sustainable development values. In particular, when it bonds to a type of negative particle with weak electric waves, it receives all its support and promotion from the negative particle. It is a negative energy particle with the least amount of false information, little toxicity, little vibrational speed, and little negative heat; in addition, it promotes the values of positive energy particles. That constitutes the incredible power of this yin and yang energy embryo in its ability to detonate destructive energy particles to a large extent. Therefore, when these tuelinhs incarnate as humans, they have great intelligence in creating and spreading research, inventions, works, and values that bring sustainable development characteristics to humanity, society, and everything. They do not create and spread values that harm people, animals and everything.

Experiencing their first lives of practice in the human world through the four forms of the Tao, these tuelinhs reveal their natural nature. That is:

- They constantly create and spread values of sustainable development to everyone, animals and all things. At the same time, they do not care about their benefits and do not harm people, animals and everything.

- These tuelinhs produce many positive energy particles in each interactive reaction, spreading values to everyone. Positive energy particles have very strong electric waves that help them have more power to detonate destructive energy and control the absorption of information from the outside environment.

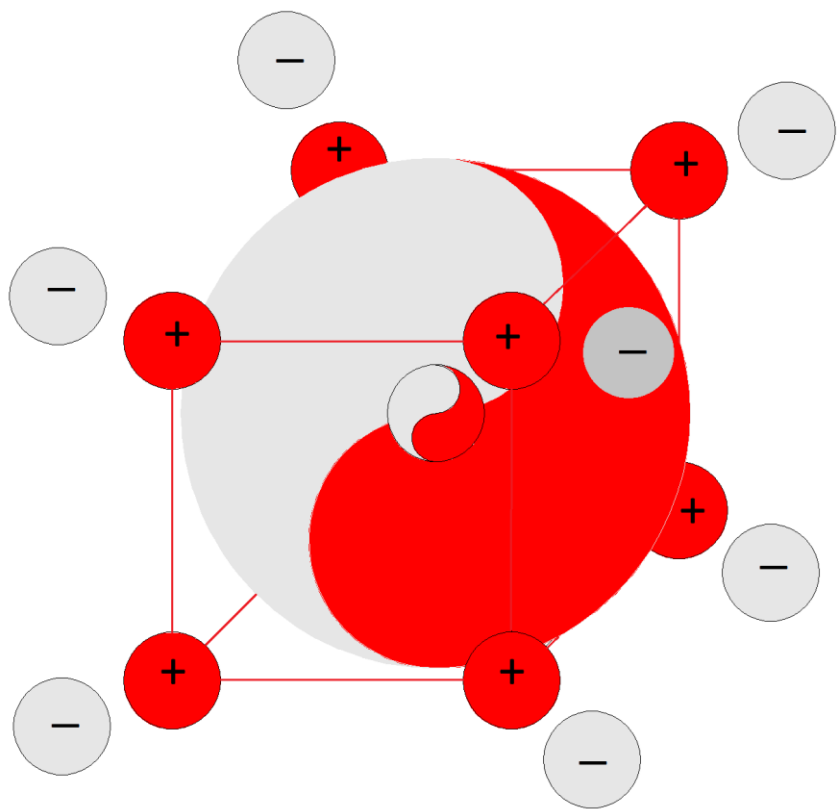

- Neutral energy particles and harmful particles with weak electric waves are produced in the same reactions that generate positive particles.

- The synthetic energy particle structure outside the mature energy embryo retains the golden ratio between negative and positive particles at 1:1. Before incarnating as a cultivator, their composite energy particle structure was always like that.

- The original yin energy particle in the yin and yang embryo remains unchanged. In contrast, the original yang particle increases in strength as the aggregate particle structure of the tuelinh grows stronger. That creates the tuelinhs with many positive electric waves at a very strong level, and they can detonate many destructive energy particles in one reaction.

Through the process of practice in many subsequent human lives, the intellectual nature of this group of tuelinhs remains the same. They still devote their lives and intelligence to creating and spreading values of sustainable development to everyone and everything without caring about themselves. As a result, they continued to produce many positive energy particles with very strong electric waves, while harmful particles had weak electric waves. That helps the aggregate particle structure of these tuelinhs grow more robustly, and they mature faster. The tuelinh still maintains the synthetic particle structure according to the golden ratio between negative and positive particles of 1:1. As a result, they can detonate more destructive energy particles than in their first lives on earth.

The tuelinh group with a multi-positive particle structure at a very strong level of sustainable reincarnation is formed from the tuelinh group with the nature of wisdom spreading the values of sustainable development. It is also formed from the tuelinh group with the wisdom to develop sustainable development values, and the tuelinh group is easily vibrated and manipulated.

With their natural intelligence, these tuelinhs continue to produce many positive energy particles with very strong electric waves in their next lives despite facing many extremely harsh challenges. Their synthetic energy particle structure is growing, and they have tremendous power to detonate destructive energy in larger quantities. This process helps the original positive particle of these tuelinhs transform into a yellow positive energy particle with super strong electric waves, producing yellow positive energy particles. That allows the synthetic particle structure of the tuelinhs to have more magical power on a sustainable transformation path. However, these tuelinhs are still easily decomposed and destroyed when moving into the space of destructive energy.

On the other hand, if they receive help from the first tuelinh to learn and practice enlightened knowledge after experiencing suffering and tribulation, they will quickly reach the destination of the path of sustainable transmutation. That is, successfully transforming the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. Only when they have an energy filter can they be safe and control the destructive energy when moving into the space of annihilation energy.

6 – The transmutation journey of the tuelinh group unites everyone to spread sustainable development values to all things.

The path of transmutation of this tuelinh group is a sustainable one at a super strong level.

These tuelinhs are formed from energy embryos from a yellow positive energy particle with super strong electric waves and a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves.

As you know, the yellow positive particle with super strong electric waves contains accurate and comprehensive information on sustainable development, many positive elements, super fast vibration speed and super intense heat, and the ability to detonate destructive energy is super powerful. Its characteristic is to create and unite to spread the values of sustainable development. Especially when it bonds to a type of negative particle with weak electric waves, it receives all its support and promotion from the negative particle. It is a negative energy particle with minor false information, little toxicity, little vibrational speed, and little negative heat. In addition, it has the property of promoting the values of positive energy particles. That constitutes a miraculous power of this yin and yang energy embryo in its ability to detonate destructive energy particles to a vast extent. Therefore, when these tuelinhs incarnate as humans, they have great wisdom in creating and uniting people to spread research, inventions, works, and values that have the characteristics of sustainable development for humanity and all things. They do not care about their interests and do not harm people and things.

Experiencing the first lives of practice through interactive scenarios in the four forms of the Tao in the human world, the natural wisdom natures of this group of tuelinh are revealed. They are the most wonderful people in the human world. They have created and united people to spread values for sustainable development, especially knowledge about the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs and humans. That helps countless people see the light of knowledge and truth on their journey to reform their tuelinhs in the human world. These wonderful tuelinhs achieved the following results:

- The original positive energy particle in the yin and yang energy embryo has increased strength, and the original negative particle provides more effective support for the initial positive particle. That gives this energy embryo and tuelinh group the magical power to detonate destructive energy in larger quantities.

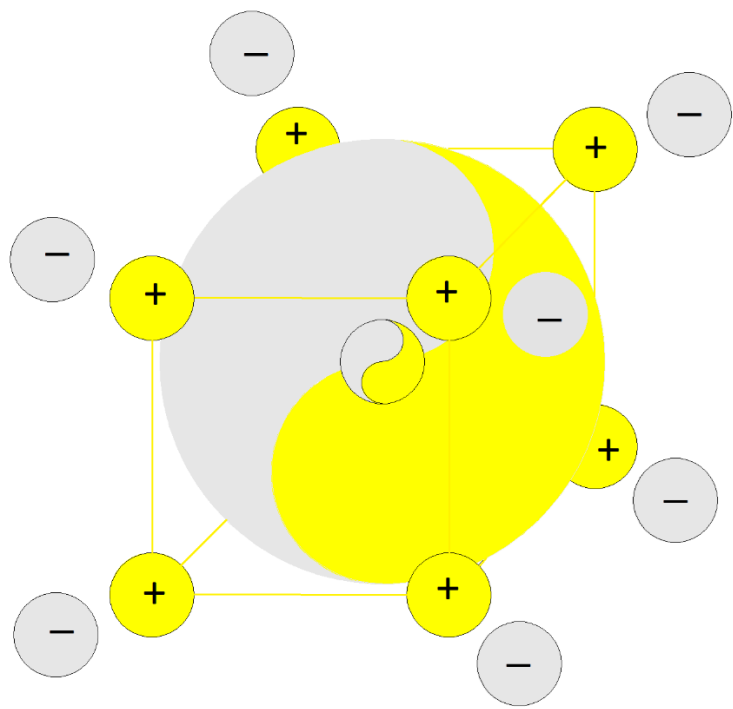

- Positive particles with super strong electric waves are produced massively after each reaction, creating sustainable development values, moral values, and enlightened knowledge and then uniting everyone to spread them to everyone and society.

- Negative particles with weak electric waves and neutral particles are produced in sufficient quantities in the same reactions that generate positive particles.

- The synthetic particle structure of the tuelinh always maintains the golden ratio between negative and positive particles at a 1:1 ratio from before incarnating as a human. In addition, this group of tuelinh develops and matures rapidly because their aggregate particle structure overgrows and has the power of super strong positive electric waves.

With their natural wisdom, this group of tuelinhs quickly overcame the extreme and harsh challenges of the practice environment in the human world to continue to increase the power of their tuelinhs. That is to produce countless positive energy particles with super strong electric waves and harmful energy particles with weak electric waves. That helps the tuelinh to mature faster with a synthetic particle structure carrying super strong multi-positive electric waves to detonate destructive energy in large quantities.

The tuelinh group with a multi-positive particle structure at a super strong level of sustainable transmutation is formed from a tuelinh group with a united intellectual nature to spread the values of sustainable development. It is also formed from a group of tuelinhs with an intelligent nature that extends the values of sustainable development, a group of tuelinhs with an intellectual nature that creates sustainable development values, and a group of the tuelinhs that is easily vibrated and manipulated.

Continuing to practice in the human world for many lifetimes helps these tuelinhs produce a sufficient number of positive energy particles with super strong electric waves and harmful energy particles with weak electric waves. Even if they have enough positive particles and quality information within the intellectual wave code fibres, they are still easily disintegrated and destroyed when moving into the destructive energy space. That is the case where they are not helped and supported by the first tuelinh to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. Thus, even though this group of tuelinh has reached a super strong level of sustainable transmutation, they are still easily destroyed by the destructive energy space. However, the fact that they could detonate a large amount of annihilation particles and mature quickly was a miracle for all tuelinhs. That is the level of sustainable transmigration that all tuelinhs must achieve if they wish to transform the energy embryo into an energy filter.

Suppose these tuelinhs learn enlightened knowledge and are guided directly from the first tuelinh in the human world. In that case, they will efficiently and quickly successfully transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. However, they still need suffering and tribulations in their lives of practice to help them fully reveal their good nature. Thus, suffering and tribulations are the necessary materials to help all souls practice in the human world to eliminate all toxins and practice the production of sustainable energy particles. Finally, attain the unified Tao of the universe."

Seeing the teacher stop the lecture for a few minutes to drink tea, a student immediately asked, "Teacher, is it true that if the yin and yang energy embryo has not been transformed into an energy filter, the tuelinh will be disintegrated and destroyed when moving into the space of destructive energy even though they have achieved a sustainable transmutation path at a super strong level?"

The teacher replied, "That's true. The tuelinhs can be only safe and control the particles of destruction in large numbers, even moving in their space, when they have successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter."

Then, the teacher continued the lecture, "So I have clearly explained to you the two paths of transmutation of tuelinhs in the human world. The path of transformation, decay, and destruction is the natural nature of tuelinh groups, with the intellectual nature of ignorance in ideology, actions, and spreading false knowledge. Their final destination is complete decay and destruction. They can only be saved and changed to a sustainable path of transmutation when they go through all the suffering and tribulations to understand themselves and practice according to enlightened knowledge.

The path of sustainable transmutation is the natural nature of the groups of tuelinh whose intellectual nature creates sustainable development values, spreads sustainable development values, and unites people to spread sustainable development values. Their destination is to qualify to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. However, suppose they do not learn and practice according to enlightened knowledge and receive the help of the first tuelinh. In that case, they cannot transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. At that time, they are still destroyed when moving into the space of destructive energy. You must remember that suffering and tribulations are a must-have condition to help all souls, whether on the path of sustainable transformation or decay and destruction. Only suffering and tribulations in all the interactive scenarios of the four forms of the Tao will help them understand themselves to force out all poisons and maximize the activation of good elements within them.

Do you know which path of transformation belongs to the group of tuelinhs whose intellectual nature is easily vibrated and manipulated? Let me help you understand the transmutation journey of this group of tuelinhs.

This group of tuelinhs is formed from an energy embryo with a grey-white negative energy particle carrying weak electric waves and an ivory-white positive energy particle having weak electric waves. The positive energy particle contains little accurate information on sustainable development, few good elements and positive heat, low vibration speed, and properties that are only balanced and cannot promote growth. The negative energy particle has the nature of the least amount of incorrectly encoded information, little toxins and negative heat, and weak vibration speed, and the characteristic is to balance and promote the values of positive energy particles when they link together. This yin and yang energy embryo does not provoke many particles of destructive energy to attack; it also cannot detonate annihilation energy.

When the tuelinhs with this type of energy embryo incarnate in the human world to practice, they reveal the nature of their natural wisdom. That is, they cannot perceive and understand the nature of all things, events and phenomena; they do not understand right and wrong, the value of development or destruction; they do neither good nor evil deeds. However, when living and working in different environments, they will easily be swayed and drawn to the information values in those environments.

The intellectual nature of this group of tuelinhs and their path of transmutation depends on the environment in which they live. That is:

- These tuelinhs will transmute in the direction of decay and destruction when living in a negative environment. That is the path of transformation, decay and destruction at a weak level. As follows:

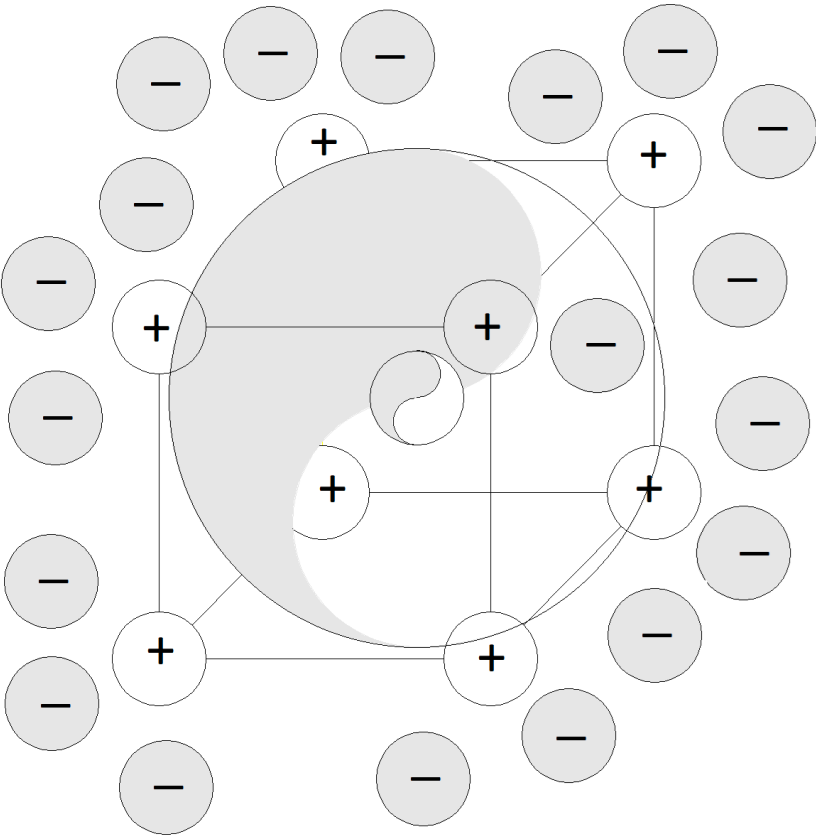

- + When living in an atmosphere containing negative and false information values about sustainable development, these tuelinhs absorb and encode negative information over time and many lifetimes of practice.

+ Next, they practice producing harmful energy particles with weak electric waves, while positive energy particles are produced in small quantities.

+ Although the harmful energy particles that result from ideologies and actions do not cause significant consequences for everyone and everything, they cause the original positive energy particle to lose heat, the original negative energy particle becomes increasingly toxic, and the vibration speed is more incredible.

+ As a result, the energy particle structure of tuelinh has many clusters of positive particles with many harmful energy particles spinning around. It forms a negative multiparticle structure and decays at a weak level.

Weak negative electric multi-wave structure

+ In their next lives of practice, if they still live in a harmful environment, their original negative energy particle will transform into a grey negative particle with strong electric waves after being loaded with toxic information from the outside environment. At that time, the energy embryo will produce many harmful particles with strong electric waves, and the synthetic particle structure will be strongly negative multiparticles. That is the journey and the path of transformation to the destination of destruction if there is no change in the practice environment.

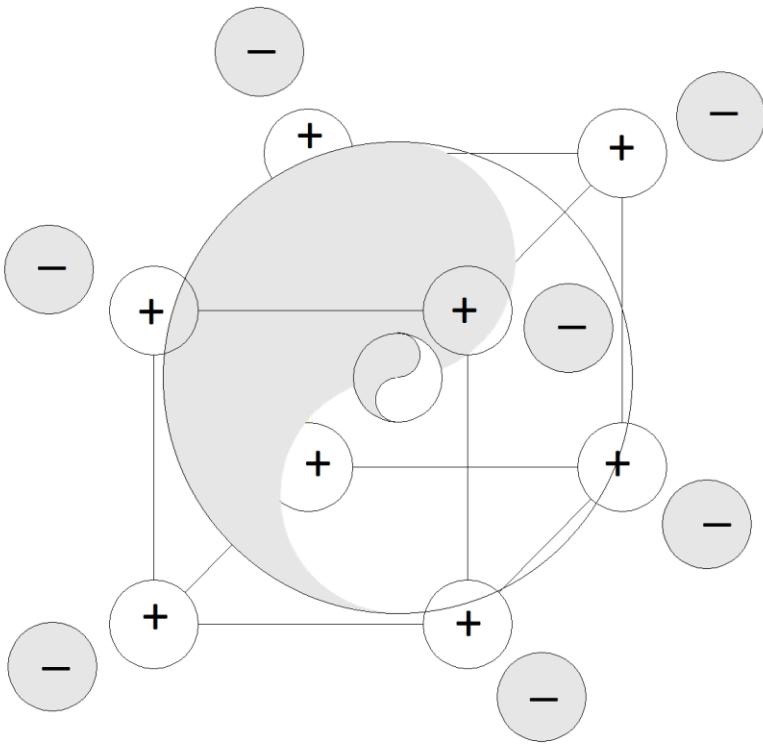

- On the contrary, they will sustainably transmute when living in a positive environment. That is the path of sustainable transmutation at a weak level. As follows:

+ When living in a medium containing accurate information values and sustainable development, these souls absorb and encode that positive information over time and many lifetimes of practice.

+ Next, they practice producing positive energy particles with increased information value and electric waves. Meanwhile, negative particles with weak electric waves are produced in the same reactions that generate positive particles. It is the result of ideologies and actions that bring value to everyone and everything but are insignificant.

+ As a result, the synthetic energy particle structure of tuelinh has a balanced ratio of negative and positive particles in a 1:1 ratio. That helps the tuelinh later has more strength to detonate the destructive particles and transform the original positive energy particle. That also allows tuelinhs to have a weak multi-positive particle structure, and their level of sustainable transformation is weak.

Weak positive electric multi-wave structure

+ These tuelinhs can produce positive particles while not being able to detonate destructive particles because they absorb positive heat from the positive environment to generate them. However, the positive heat of the environment is not comparable in strength to the heat from the detonation of destructive particles.

+ In the following lives, if these tuelinhs live in a positive environment, they will continue to practice producing positive energy particles with stronger electric waves. This process helps them transform the original positive energy particle into a positive particle with strong electric waves. Therefore, their energy particle structure becomes stronger on the path of sustainable transformation, and they can detonate destructive energy for the maturation process. Suppose they encounter enlightened knowledge after experiencing suffering and tribulation. In that case, it will be easier for them to learn and practice so that their sustainable path of transformation becomes more effective and faster to reach their destination.

Thus, you have understood the two transformation paths in the reincarnation journey of tuelinhs in the human world. That helps you clearly understand that to attain the unified Tao of the universe, all tuelinhs must learn and practice enlightened knowledge. In addition, even though tuelinhs are at different levels of the path of transformation, decay and destruction, they will return to sustainable transmutation after experiencing suffering and tribulations and encountering enlightened knowledge to learn and practice. And, all tuelinhs are that. They will attain the unified

Chapter Sixty-Five

The Transit Planet of Tuelinhs and Souls When They Incarnate as Humans in the Human World

When the Teacher arrived at the office, Duong, Truong Nalanda and several other students had already arrived. They were standing outside the office door, and in their hands were bags of fruit. Some of them are in provinces far from Hanoi, and they asked permission to meet the Teacher today, then will stay on Sunday to listen to the lectures in his classroom. They contacted the two brothers, Duong and Truong Nalanda, to come together and received the Teacher's consent. When the Teacher and everyone entered the office, some students placed plates of fruits and candies from their homeland on the table, and one made tea.

Some of these students were people who suffered from mild and severe mental health problems and recovered after learning and practising the Teacher's knowledge. These students are very active in helping people suffering from life and mental health-related issues. They have achieved many achievements by assisting many people to recover from mental health-related diseases. After sick people recover, they continue to help others. Therefore, they are very interested in cultivating knowledge directly from the Teacher to gain more strength in sharing and helping everyone learn and practice most effectively.

Everyone enjoyed tea, cakes, fruits, and stories about the journey of spreading knowledge and the difficulties in helping people with mental health problems. A student confided, "Teacher, if mentally ill people do not have relatives help them listen to lectures, it will take them a long time, and it will be difficult for them even to recover because they cannot control their thoughts and behaviour. Therefore, during the treatment process, in addition to the strength of knowledge and support from the Teacher's students, the patient's relatives play a decisive role in helping them recover quickly or slowly."

"I have said in classes many times that enlightenment knowledge accounts for 50%, and the sick person and their relatives account for 50% for them to recover. That means the power of knowledge to heal mental illness and pathology and resolve suffering and problems is beyond debate. The remaining problem is the patient's obedience, relatives and everyone." The Teacher said.

A student continued, "Teacher, when I help mentally ill people learn knowledge, they become frightened, and more hallucinatory phenomena appear when they hear about the transiting planet of tuelinhs and souls. Maybe when they heard about that planet, they remembered that they used to stay on it and became scared. Teacher, should I preach to mentally ill people about that planet?"

The Teacher replied, "For those who are treating mental illness, in the early stages of listening to the knowledge, they should not listen to knowledge about the transiting planet of tuelinhs and souls. It is not necessary for them in the initial stages of the treatment. However, after they are more alert and healthy, let them hear about the truths of that planet. Understanding all the truths will help the souls within them purify the false information they have encoded in past lives. It will contribute to the strength of the yang energy particle system and the original yang particle in their yin and yang embryos."

Truong Nalanda asked his Teacher, "Teacher, what value does the transiting planet of tuelinhs and souls have for practitioners in the human world?"

The Teacher preached, "This planet plays a vital role in the practice journey of tuelinhs and souls in the human world. When I analyze each life scene on that planet for you to understand, you will see its great value. When practising in the human world, please imagine that each tuelinh and soul is like people walking on a long journey. The transiting planet is like inns, hotels, and places for those walkers to stay for the night. Simply put, it is a transiting planet to help tuelinhs and souls have time to rest after a life of practice in the human world. Their resting on that planet is for them to regain their spirit, health, and energy after completing the practice journey of a human life. Depending on the achievements of each soul and tuelinh in human life, after the end of their human life, they will be placed in different life scenes on the transiting planet. It is similar to staying overnight in good and luxurious places such as hotels, villas, and comfortable houses, or staying in inns without amenities or sleeping near bridges and dangerous places. That depends on what they have after each day of their long journey. When they sleep overnight in those places, they will have different emotions and values. The transiting planet with different life scenes, it's like that."

A student immediately said, "Teacher, religions have different views about hell, which is the place where human souls are imprisoned and tortured by demons after their human life ends. The same goes for the spiritual views and beliefs of nations; they create knowledge about the life of souls after people die, which are scenes of torture by evil spirits or demons. They fascinate people with rituals to pray for the souls to escape the sin of returning to hell because of their bad deeds while they were still alive on earth. Besides, there are many rituals for living people to pray to the souls of the dead. These are prayer rituals of the living to their ancestors for health, fortune and status. Is all of that not true?"

The Teacher said, "Hey guys if I answer those questions, you will have countless more questions about this transiting planet. That will, of course, happen to anyone who does not understand the nature of the problem. As in the case of this transiting planet, if you do not understand the origin, purpose, life scenes and truth there, you will remain confused and unsatisfied with my answers. Therefore, today I will explain this planet in detail for you to understand."

The students became happy and said, "It is wonderful, Teacher. Thus we will increase the knowledge of enlightenment in our tuelinh and mind."

The Teacher said, "Not only that. When you understand that transiting planet, your soul will radiate the light of the truth about the practice journey after a human life; it is the intellectual light of information about that planet's life scenes and values. At that time, you need to focus on places where demons are present; they will follow the light of wisdom in you and go to that planet. Especially when you talk about knowledge with people who live in houses and lands where the souls of the dead are trapped, they will go immediately when you talk to living people about the origin and plan of practice in the human world and on that transiting planet. In addition, you can use mantras to help them and return them to that transiting planet after enlightening the people living in that house. It would help if you remembered that when you thoroughly understand the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle, you will have the mind dharma. Mind Dharma is a superpower formed from enlightened wisdom when the tuelinh encodes all true and comprehensive information about the path of sustainable transformation. The power is so magical that using mantras or thoughts to free trapped souls and demons becomes too simple and cannot be compared to mind dharma. If you want to have every unit of the power of mind dharma, you must practice producing many positive particles on the path of sustainable transmutation. Those positive particles must have enlightened knowledge in them."

Truong Nalanda said, "That's right, teacher. Because of my luck, you taught me about this transiting planet before so I could save the souls trapped in a house where I had stayed for many days. I help them achieve rescue by sharing enlightenment and knowledge about the transiting planet with those living in that house. I know their house has a trapped soul because they came to me and told me when I slept there. After preaching that night, I saw they had gone to the transit planet. I did not use spells or methods to neutralize those spirits in the land; instead, I practised according to the method taught by the teacher, which was to teach knowledge to people living on that land and talk about the transiting planet. That's wonderful, sir."

The teacher said, "That is the power of the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest particle of energy. When you preach and share knowledge with the living, the spirits or demons trapped in that land will receive that truth information. They will recall the memories of their practice journey and the transiting planet. At that time, they will be linked with information through the universe's information-receiving and transmitting system and the help of the first tuelinh to have enough strength to move to that transiting planet. Of course, the light of your wisdom when teaching knowledge to both the living and the souls is the key to helping them balance their energy state to move towards that planet. That shows you that no person, no practitioner in the human world, has any magical powers or magic; it is all true information and information connection between planets through the system receiving and transmitting information in the universe of the first tuelinh. Therefore, we must rely on the source, on the first tuelinh to achieve great achievements on our practice journey in the human world."

After sipping a few more cups of tea, the teacher said, "Now I will teach you all the knowledge about the transit planet of tuelinhs and souls when they practice in the human world. Please listen to me:

After the first tuelinh had made achievements in studying the transmutation path of the complex energy structures in the bodies of animals, he noticed that there were problems with some of the souls of these animals. Those are the souls of ferocious beasts; their energy structures are filled with harmful particles ranging from strong to very strong. That causes toxins and harmful energy particles to be copied and bombarded into the surrounding environment. Those toxic, harmful energy particles caused the surrounding energy structures to be negatively affected. That is like having habitats destroyed and polluted by poisonous energies. From that problem of animal souls, he realised that tuelinhs, when incarnated as cultivators, will also have tuelinhs transmuted in the direction of decay and destruction. Therefore, they will also have the phenomenon of copying toxic, harmful energy particles and bombarding the surrounding environment. Thus, it is a big problem that he needs to develop a solution for the souls of animals and tuelinhs affected by many particles of negative energy when humans appear in the human world. He realised that he must create a place separate from the practice environment in the human world, which could not be located in heaven. Therefore, he believed that he must make a planet to serve as a transit place for tuelinhs and human souls after each life of practice in the human world.

He thought about the souls of animals. That is about how to handle their reincarnation journey when humans appear. Before that, he allowed animal souls to be reincarnated immediately after their bodies died. His operation is still stabilising the reincarnation process of animal souls through the information-receiving and transmitting system he has built covering the entire universe. After a long period of thinking, he decided that only animal souls that had been transformed into tuelinhs and reincarnated as humans could go to that transiting planet. As for animal souls, they will continue to reincarnate right after one life ends. They need time to encode information and produce particles through endless reincarnation.

He also thought about which tuelinhs would return to heaven to rest after a human life and which tuelinhs would have to go to a transiting planet to rest. After a period of reflection, he decided that any tuelinh that produced an excess of negative energy particles in each cluster of positive energy particles in the structure must reach the transiting planet after one lifetime; tuelinhs who do not produce an excess of harmful energy particles compared to the combined positive energy particles, they will all be able to return to heaven to rest.

Hey guys, let me remind you about the production of yin and yang energy particles of tuelinhs in the human world. Suppose people practice positive actions that bring sustainable and positive development values to everyone, animals and all things. In that case, they will produce positive energy particles with electric waves, from strong to upwards. In addition, negative energy particles with weak electric waves and neutral particles are produced in the same reaction to form a synthetic energy particle structure with a 1:1 ratio of positive and negative particles. Therefore, there will be no excess negative particles when making positive energy particles, and harmful particles have weak electric waves. On the contrary, when people practise actions that hurt people, animals and all things, the tuelinhs will produce many harmful particles with electric waves, from slightly strong to upwards, while positive particles are not produced, or if possible, the electric waves are weak. Therefore, it forms clusters of negative multiparticle particles with electric waves, from slightly strong to upwards. I have carefully analysed this knowledge in the mechanism and transformation journey of tuelinhs. You must remember them and remember them.

Thus, he decided which tuelinhs and souls must go to that transiting planet after experiencing a human life: They are tuelinhs and souls that produce excess harmful energy particles and form multi-negative particle clusters in their structure. As for souls, those souls must have been transformed into tuelinhs. However, we still understand that they are the souls because their life on the transit planet differs from the life of the tuelinhs.

Another challenge that arose, and the first tuelinh continued to seek a solution to that problem, was that he needed to have tuelinhs capable of operating and managing that transiting planet. To work and help the tuelinhs and souls that have many toxins bombarding the surrounding environment, the tuelinhs in charge of managing that planet must have the strength to withstand those toxins. They can help them quickly reincarnate into the human world. That is a massive challenge for him when his children cannot do it. After thinking and not finding a solution to this problem, when the time for bringing the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans had come, he decided to call the most mature tuelinhs among his children to see him. When they arrived, he told them about the problem and asked for their opinions on coming up with a solution. After thinking for a while, a tuelinh told him that during the first human lives of the tuelinhs in the human world, he should let them reincarnate immediately after the end of a human life. That is similar to the souls in animals, they reincarnate after their physical form dies. After going through many lifetimes of practice, there will be many tuelinhs who will achieve achievements, and they will be tuelinhs with enough strength to help him manage that transiting planet. After hearing that tuelinh gave his opinion, the first tuelinh found a solution to the problem of managing and operating that planet. He told those tuelinhs, "I will let the tuelinhs incarnate as humans immediately after each life of practice in the human world. After each tuelinh has incarnated many human lives and many generations of people in the human world have created a stronger human community, the good and poisonous natures of each tuelinh have been revealed; at that time, we will have specific information and development trends of information from the practice environment in the human world to create living scenes and management apparatus on the transiting planet. That planet will always have changes in both the managers and the way to help the tuelinhs and souls after one human life have the strength and ability to overcome the next sufferings in the new human life. Tuelinhs who have achieved achievements on the path of practice will have to return to the transiting planet, in turn, to manage and operate the living scenes there. They will continue to incarnate as humans when other tuelinhs have achieved achievements in their place."

After there was a solution to the problem of the tuelinh being able to manage and operate the life scenes on the transit planet, it was also the time for the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to create the first humans. After that, he organized a conference to gather humanity in the human world. That marked a great decision that changed the history of the universe's development.

After he completed helping the tuelinhs incarnate into the first humans in the human world, he began building an information operating system for each tuelinh and soul when they practised in the human world. That system operates the cause-and-effect tree. He later entrusted five messengers to work on his behalf. The system of managing the cause and effect tree of the tuelinhs practising in the human world is placed next to his private working space and is strictly protected by him. The cause and effect tree operating system collects complete information about all tuelinhs and souls in all interaction scenarios in the human world's four forms of the Tao. After each human life of the tuelinhs and souls, the first tuelinh will build their next journey with essential milestones and tribulations based on the informational reactions in their previous human life. All of this is handled with utmost care and precision by the system of cause and effect trees and the operation of the five messengers and the first tuelinh. The causal tree operating system was quickly completed afterwards and operated exceptionally effectively with the help of the universe's information-receiving and transmitting system.

Over many lifetimes of the practice of tuelinhs and souls in the human world, all information about their practice journey is stored in the cause-and-effect tree system. In addition to this system, the first tuelinh can see all the information reactions of each tuelinh and soul through the energy particles they produce when they practice in the human world. The energy particles produced by the process of information reaction through interactions in the four forms of the Tao are the causal particles of tuelinhs and souls. However, through the system of operating the cause and effect tree, he quickly analyses and builds scenarios for each tuelinh and soul and between tuelinhs when they reincarnate in the following human lives. After he saw many tuelinhs achieving achievements on the path of practice in the human world, he began to analyse the entire information system of tuelinhs collected in the system of operating the cause and effect tree. Also, at this time, the tuelinhs who were reincarnating along the path of decay and destruction had many negative particle clusters, and the toxins they released into the environment became a problem that needed to be solved. Therefore, he started building living scenes and management apparatus on that transiting planet.

The first tuelinh created three councils to operate and manage with clear duties for each separate council. It includes "the return of way council", "executive council", and "administrative council". All tuelinhs on duty in the three councils are under the direction and management of the first tuelinh. The tuelinhs performing this task will alternately incarnate as humans and have other tuelinhs replace them. Especially if these tuelinhs do not have achievements on the following practice journey, they will be completely replaced by other tuelinhs with more achievements for the task on this transiting planet.

The Return of Way Council:

- This council has another name, "the Return of Tao".
- This is a council of the most elite tuelinhs responsible for managing and operating all work on the transit planet. The five messengers of the first tuelinh are leaders of this planet. They will take turns operating and managing because they must simultaneously use the cause and effect tree of tuelinhs and souls practicing in the human world.

- The council works under the direct direction of the first tuelinh, and they have the right to direct all tuelinhs in the remaining two councils.

- The Return of Way Council organises classes and teaches knowledge to tuelinhs and souls on this transiting planet. The knowledge they teach depends on developing the enlightened understanding of the first tuelinh for humans in the human world. Therefore, the knowledge they teach will change according to the practice journey of tuelinhs and souls in the human world. In addition, the council is responsible for arranging tuelinhs and souls into different living situations after the end of human life in the human world; The next is to place for them to reincarnate in a new human life according to the operating system of the cause and effect tree.

- The purpose of teaching knowledge to tuelinhs and souls is to help them learn lessons after a lifetime of practice to quickly continue reincarnation on the journey to find the unifying Tao of the universe. That will help the tuelinhs and souls quickly balance their energy state after the toxins are bombarded into the surrounding environment by the speed of vibration and loss of control in thinking - vibration waves in the negative particle system. However, this is only a temporary balance, and the toxin will continue to bombard them as they interact in scenarios with information that is similar or identical to their negative multiparticle energy clusters. Therefore, they must reform and rebalance the multi-negative energy structure by producing positive energy particles with the same information content to reorganise the ratio between the negative and positive particles in the particle structure.

- The Return of Tao Council works based on the system of operating the cause and effect tree of the first tuelinh that the five messengers manage and use. Therefore, everyone can understand that the Return of Way Council keeps birth and death books for every human being in the human world. Thus, the five messengers of the first tuelinh are in charge of managing and operating all tuelinhs and souls practising in the human world, including tuelinhs and souls on the transiting planet and tuelinhs transit in heaven through their role as the highest managers in the Return of Tao Council.

- With the mission and purpose of the Council, the first tuelinh gave this Council the name "the Return of Tao". That is to return to the path of practice in the human world to seek enlightenment after balancing the energy state in the structure and learning the lessons of experience after human life.

The Executive Council:

- The Executive Council consists of many tuelinhs who have achieved achievements on their practice journey in the human world.

- The Executive Council works under the direct direction of the Return of Tao Council and the first tuelinh.

- The Executive Council implements tasks according to birth and death books. Specifically:

- + Responsible for bringing the tuelinhs and souls with multiple harmful particles in the human world to return to this planet after they end a human life according to their lifespan as determined in the death book.

- + Bringing tuelinhs and souls sometimes does not comply with the death book but follows the instructions of the first tuelinh and five messengers. The Council will catch tuelinhs and souls to return to the transiting planet when their particle structure reform quota is not fulfilled. They are given special permission to incarnate as humans after the harm they caused to people and everything in their past lives. However, the Council will not catch tuelinhs and souls when they successfully reform their particle structure reform quotas according to the death books that stipulate their lifespan. That means that as tuelinhs and souls produce many positive energy particles, they will not die suddenly due to the evil karma they created in their previous lives; Instead, they continue to live to practice producing more positive energy particles.

- + The Council will pick up tuelinhs and souls trapped where they ended their human life when there are instructions from the Return of Tao Council or the first tuelinh. That means that those who die by suicide, die by accident, die by war, die by stabbing each other will be damned in the place where they died. This Council does not take them back as soon as they die because their evil karma has not been reformed, so they have to stay there until there are instructions to be brought back. It is a lesson for the suffering they have caused themselves and others by not practising the transformation of their harmful particles.

- + The Council will be responsible for bringing tuelinhs and souls to reincarnate as humans.

- + In addition, the Council will have to carry out tasks under the direct direction of the Return of Tao Council and the first tuelinh.

The Administrative Council:

- The Administrative Council is the tuelinhs who have achieved achievements on the path of practice in the human world.

- The administrative Council is under the direct direction of the Return of Tao Council and the first tuelinh. Besides, they must coordinate with the Executive Council and the Return of Way Council to carry out their tasks.

- The mission of the Administrative Council is to manage the living scenes on this planet, which are the residing scenes awaiting judgment, the residing scenes of hell, the live environments of letting go of attachment, and the living environments of balancing energy states. In addition, the Council is responsible for organizing knowledge classes with the return of way council for tuelinhs and souls.

Thus, he has built an apparatus for operating and managing the transiting planet with precise tasks for each Council. These councils will help tuelinhs and souls quickly enter the reincarnation journey after rebalancing their energy state and learning lessons from each human life. They only help tuelinhs and souls balance their state, but cannot help them balance their particle structure. To balance and develop the structure of energy particles, tuelinhs and souls must incarnate as humans and practice particle production in an environment with information reactions of destructive energy and other energy groups.

To help the tuelinhs and souls with excess negative energy particle clusters in their structure to quickly balance their state, learn lessons from experience, and quickly enter the cycle of reincarnation on the journey of transformation, he has built four life scenes after thinking and calculating. The four living scenes include the waiting scene for judgment, the residing scene of hell, the living scene of letting go of attachments, and the living scene of energy state balance.

To promote the transit process of the tuelinhs and souls on this planet to take place quickly and effectively before their next reincarnation, the first tuelinh created spaces containing groups of super-complex energy particles with different encoded information values in each life scene. Those super-complex energy particle groups will link information together and connect information with each tuelinh and soul to create illusions for their transit journey on this transiting planet. That is a secret that people, practitioners, and Zen masters cannot know. The reason is that they have yet to reach the enlightenment to decode the information values in the smallest energy particle. Therefore, what they see are only reflected visions and are made up of the information linking the energy groups with the information in the particles of the tuelinhs and souls.

The living scene of waiting for judgment:

The living scene awaiting trial has many living rooms and detention rooms. That is the residence for the tuelinhs and souls who, when living on earth, were created from a cluster of particles with many or more negative particles in their aggregate energy particle structure.

The life scene awaiting judgment is the first life stage that tuelinhs and souls must come and live in after they end a human life in the human world.

In this life scene, tuelinhs and souls will see their practice journey from birth until the end of their human life. They will see all the critical milestones in their lives, including their achievements, failures, valuable lessons, and the hurt they caused to people, animals, and all things.

In each room of this residence, there are energy particles capable of linking information with all the information of a person's life encoded in their particle structure. Therefore, when the tuelinhs and souls enter their room, they will see all the significant milestones of their lives, whether they want to see them or not.

The time for tuelinhs and souls to live in that life scene is 49 days (calculated according to the calendar on earth) after they end a human life according to the lifespan specified in the death book.

For tuelinhs and souls who end a human life by committing suicide, dying by accident, dying by stabbing and killing each other, dying by war, while they have not yet reached the age to die according to the death book, there will be two cases as follows:

- They will have to live in those rooms equal to the remaining time on earth according to their lifespan in the death book if the time they are doomed to in the place of their death has not yet reached the end of their lifespan. In this case, the tuelinhs and souls are brought to the transit planet by those who can help them release the place of their death. While living in those rooms, they will see all the critical milestones in their lives in the human world.

- They will be judged without having to live in the scene of waiting for judgment if they are damned in the place where they die beyond the 49 days calculated according to the end of their lifespan in the human world. That is the case where tuelinhs and souls are damned at the place where they died for a long time, so they have experienced all their memories in one human life.

After their time in the waiting scene for judgment, they will be brought to the Return of Tao Council to judge what they did while alive on earth. Then, they will be taken to other life scenes depending on what they did while alive.

Thus, the purpose of the life awaiting judgment is to help tuelinhs and souls remember what they have done in a human life.

In addition, you will wonder why the Executive Council does not pick up tuelinhs and souls who end a human life by suicide, death by murder, death by stabbing each other, death by accident, died due to war to this living scene immediately after their human life ended. That is the justice that those tuelinhs and souls must receive and learn. That means that through the time of damnation in the place of their death, they will remember what they did in that human life. Their recollection will leave them haunted and unable to realize that they died in those situations without support from the living scene of waiting for judgment. They will have to go through the process of remembering a more complicated and intense human life because they deserve it. That's because they do not appreciate a human life to practice renovating the negative karma created in previous lives and killing lives, including their bodies, in the present life.

Tuelinhs and souls will be transferred to other living scenes after being judged by the Return of Tao Council. Each life scene they will come to depends on the energy particle structure they created while living on Earth, which is:

- They will have to move into the hell gates of the hell scene if their particle structure has clusters of harmful multiparticle energy particles from strong to super-strong levels. That means that when they lived on Earth, they practised producing harmful energy particles with strong, very strong, and super strong waves. Those actions hurt people, animals and everything on a small to large scale.

- They will be transferred to the living scene of letting go of attachments if their structure has clusters of weak harmful multiparticle particles, which are negative particles with weak electric waves. That is when living in the human world, they think negatively and take actions that cause harm to other people, animals, and all other things to a negligible extent.

Hell scene:

Hell is an extraordinary space to help tuelinhs and souls learn the lessons from what they have done to people, animals and all things while they were still alive in the human world. This scene of life is said to be the most intense and terrifying on the transit planet. It is so scary and fierce that practitioners, Zen masters, religions and cultures believe that there are demons there, punishing and torturing tuelinhs and souls to the point of death. This living scene is hugely fierce and scary, but it completely differs from what other religions, beliefs, practitioners, and Zen masters see and talk about.

The space of this unique living scene is designed into two separate areas, one for tuelinhs and one for the souls. The first tuelinh had to create two different places like this because there is a difference in toxicity between tuelinhs and souls transmuted as humans from animal souls. The tuelinhs have massive toxins, and the information value in their structure is at a super-complex level. In contrast, the souls have fewer toxins, and the information value in their structure is only at a complex level. Therefore, if they were all allowed to live together in the same area, the toxins of the tuelinhs would cause damage and danger to the souls in relearning the lessons of human life in the human world.

The living space of hell is divided into prison doors; each is a closed space, and inside contains different groups of super-complex energy particles. Life in the hell of the tuelinhs and the souls are the same in terms of nature and the number of hell gates; However, there is a difference between them in the degree of reflection of the illusion. That means that the happenings in the prison doors of the tuelinhs are much more fierce and terrifying than those of the souls.

The living area of tuelinhs has six great prison doors; each great prison door is divided into nine small prison doors, and there are 54 small prison doors. Inside each small prison door is a large space containing energy groups with different information values. The same goes for the living area of the soul; they have six great prison doors; each great prison door is divided into nine small prison doors, and there are 54 small prison doors in total. Thus, the entire hellish living scene has 108 small prison doors.

Each small prison door was put into it by the first tuelinh, a group of harmful energy particles with the same toxicity. This group of particles has information values corresponding to the information values in the energy particles of tuelinhs and souls produced in the human world. Illusions appear when the information values between the group of harmful energy particles in the prison door are linked with the information values of the negative energy particles in the tuelinhs and soul. It causes tuelinhs and souls to be transformed into illusions. At that time, they do not have the ability and awareness to recognize and escape the illusions. They live in those illusions as if they were living a human life. Between the small prison doors, the first tuelinh put in harmful energy particles with different levels of electric waves, and all the prison doors of tuelinhs and souls contain harmful energy particles with super-complex wisdom wave codes.

When the information value in the harmful energy particles of the tuelinhs reacts with the harmful energy particles of each prison door, they will create the most fierce and terrifying illusions. At the same time, the reactions of the souls in the gates of hell are not as intense and scary as those of tuelinhs. The reason is that the value and complexity of information in the souls are more straightforward than in the tuelinhs.

It would help if you remembered that in the gates of hell, there are no demons, wild beasts or cruel spirits to torture and kill tuelinhs and souls. All images in the gates of hell are illusions of the reaction process linking information between the harmful energy particles in each hell gate with the energy particles in the tuelinhs and souls. In addition, in the gates of hell, there are no positive energy particles; instead, they only exist as harmful energy particles. That will help tuelinhs and souls quickly summarize the lessons for a human life that they have experienced with things that have caused harm to people, animals and all things.

Subjects who must live in hell are tuelinhs and souls who, when they live in the human world, produce negative energy particles with electric waves from strong to super strong.

The Return of Tao Council will be based on harmful energy particles produced from actions that harm people, animals, and everything else to decide which prison the tuelinhs and souls will have to live in. In particular, some tuelinhs and souls have to go through many different prisons because they produce different negative energy particles when they live. There are even tuelinhs and souls that go through all six great prison gates of hell.

The six great prison gates of tuelinhs and souls are:

- The prison gate of hard labour:

+ The prison gate of hard labour is divided into nine small gates. Each door corresponds to different levels of negative karma that they did while living in the human world.

+ The scene of life in the prison of hard labour is the image of tuelinhs and souls having to do hard labour such as carrying heavy objects, breaking rocks and doing many harmful jobs while their limbs are chained. Besides, some wild beasts and demons beat and torture them while they work, especially when they are not allowed to eat or drink even though they are hungry and thirsty.

+ When living in the human world and creating the following negative karma, the tuelinhs and souls will have to fall into the gates of brutal labour hell, which are being lazy to work, cursing and beating workers, trampling on the dignity of workers, exploiting and appropriating the labour of others.

- The prison gate of mortification:

+ The prison gate of mortification is divided into nine small gates. Each door corresponds to different levels of negative karma that they did while living in the human world.

+ The life scene in the mortification prison consists of pythons, snakes and giant wild beasts. The tuelinhs and souls were thrown into the space where those ferocious beasts were. Those evil beasts slithered and broke their bodies, pursuing them to devour the tuelinhs and souls. This scene is non-stop and goes on continuously for a very long time.

+ When living in the human world and creating the following evil karma, they will fall into the gate of mortification hell: lying causes damage to the wealth, health and lives of others; crime of fraud; crime of robbery; crime of appropriating other people's property; crime of beating animals; crime of beating and harming others; human trafficking crime; doing business that violates the law and trading in products that are harmful to human health and life.

- The gate of the cold night hell:

+ The great door of the cold night hell is divided into nine small doors. Each door corresponds to different levels of negative karma that they did while living in the human world.

+ The scene of living in a cold, dark prison door is the image of a night with rain and snow falling and extremely cold. Tuelinhs and souls found themselves being pierced into the heart by ice arrows. They panicked, fled in the dark, cold, rainy night, and were chased by giant ferocious beasts to devour and devour. They found themselves hanging naked on poles and animals jumping on them to eat them. Tuelinhs and souls saw that they were evil demons with very long fangs and that they were eating each other, while before, they had intended to commit adultery with the other person. They saw themselves die and then regain consciousness and were chased and killed until they died and then regained consciousness. This process repeats over a very long time.

+ When living in the human world and creating the following evil karma, they will fall into the cold, night prison: practising killing; killing animals for fun or for food; killing animals for business to get rich; adultery, rape, paedophilia, decide and cause divorce; brokering or practising prostitution; cursing and beating others; trample on other people's dignity.

- The prison of the execution death penalty:

+ The jail of the execution death penalty is divided into nine small gates. Each door corresponds to different levels of negative karma that they did while living in the human world.

+ The living scene in the prison of the execution death penalty is the image of five demons tearing the bodies of tuelinhs and souls; is the scene where they are chased and killed; are scenes of them being pushed into the abyss and dying, scenes of being hit on the head and dying, scenes of being killed and dissected, and many other scenes of killing. The scene of them being killed was repeated many times for a very long time.

+ When living in the human world and creating the following evil karma, they will fall into the gates of hell and be executed: inciting and inciting people to kill each other and others; kill yourself; aborting and killing fetuses, trafficking in organs and parts of the human body.

- The gate of cremation hell:

+ The gate of cremation hell is divided into nine small gates. Each door corresponds to different levels of negative karma that they did while living in the human world.

+ The scene of life in the gate of cremation hell is the scene in which tuelinhs and souls are chased by demons and thrown into cauldrons of oil to burn to death. They are thrown into volcanoes and burned to death by demons, were shot by a fiery arrow and died, were set on fire and burned to death. They were burned and died over and over again for a very long time.

+ When living in the human world and creating the following evil karma, they will fall into the gate of cremation hell: beating, trampling, killing parents; trampling, and killing their teachers; setting fire to kill people and themselves.

- The gate of frozen hell:

+ The door of frozen hell is divided into nine small doors. Each door corresponds to different levels of negative karma that they did while living in the human world.

+ The scene in the frozen prison door is endless. Tuelinhs and souls are frozen, buried in glaciers and ice mountains. They couldn't move their bodies; they were cold and indescribable. The indescribable coldness is a lesson for creating too much negative karma that causes enormous harm to tuelinhs, humans, all things, and animals. It will take them a very long time, the longest compared to other hell gates, to learn the lessons of the negative karma they have created, which are lessons for their strongest toxins when living in the human world.

+ When living in the human world and creating the following evil karma, they will fall into the icy hell: embezzlement and corruption; inciting and making war; inciting and creating ethnic conflicts; revealing national secrets to cause consequences for the people and the country; betray the Fatherland; enacting policies that harm people; taking advantage of natural disasters and epidemics to deceive and hurt people.

If tuelinhs and souls, when being human, create values that are false to the truth about the path of spiritual practice in the human world, and teach and spread false knowledge about the origin and mission of the tuelinhs and humans, spreading superstition, creating religious conflicts such as slandering and causing religious wars, cursing God, cursing Gods and Buddha, destroying temples, churches, and ancestral graves; They will have to live in all the prisons of hell; after that, they will suffer torment in the frozen gates of hell.

When living in hell, tuelinhs and souls are under illusions that make them think that they are people with status, jobs, wealth, and gender just like when they were humans. The illusions will help them learn lessons because cruel acts have harmed people, animals and all things.

Thus, the living scenes of hell are crucial and extremely valuable to help tuelinhs and souls learn the lesson of recognising the toxins that have emerged as humans. Therefore, after experiencing illusions to identify and reduce the vibration speed of the negative particle system in their structure, they will be transferred to the scene of letting go of attachments to live.

Remember, any action that creates grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves or more, the tuelinhs and souls will have to live in hell. In particular, hell is not to punish or torture tuelinhs and souls; it is a place to help them learn lessons from the evil karma they create. The feeling of torture and torture that the tuelinhs and souls feel when they live in the gates of hell is a lesson for the sense of suffering they have caused to people, animals and all things when they live in the human world.

The living scene of letting go of attachments is the life of tuelinhs and souls after the end of their time in hell. That means that after they identify and understand the negative values and injuries they have caused to people, animals and everything, they will be moved into this living scene of letting go of attachments. To transition to a life of letting go, they must reduce the vibration speed of the negative energy particle system after their experiences in hell. However, the vibration speed of their negative particle system is still strong.

In addition, the scene of letting go of attachments is also for those tuelinhs and souls with weak negative multiparticle structures. They will be transferred to the living scene of letting go of attachments after experiencing the residing scene of waiting for judgment. As for the tuelinhs with this weak level of multiparticle structure, they are people with ignorant wisdom and attachment to four forms of the Tao when living in the human world. They think and cause harm to people, animals, and things at an insignificant level.

The purpose of the living scene of letting go is to help tuelinhs and souls let go and eliminate attachments in the four forms of the Tao while they are still living in the human world. Attachments include being a person of status, power, wealth, an engineer, teacher, businessman, worker, farmer, doctor, etc. They cling to their body's appearance, careers, and every form of life. They need to let go and purify their attachments because it is information that does not bring value to their reincarnation process on their practice journey. Quickly cleansing the information that carries the clinging nature of harmful energy particles will help the tuelinhs and souls rapidly transition to the living scene of energy state balance before being reincarnated into the next human life.

To help tuelinhs and souls quickly let go of attachments, the first tuelinh created a vast space with all kinds of harmful energy particles with super-complex intelligence wave codes with weak to strong electrical waves. Besides, he allowed each tuelinh and soul to have a small house. When tuelinhs and souls are transferred into this life scene, the information values of the energy particle system in the living space of letting go will link with the information value of their energy particle system to create Illusionary reactions to life. Their illusions have different forms depending on their negative particle system's information value and vibration level, from weak to strong. Specifically, as follows: For tuelinhs and souls when they are still living in the human world, they are doctors, but in their illusion in the living scene of letting go of attachments, they are also doctors with the tools of a doctor. For tuelinhs and souls, they were teachers when living; the illusion in their life of letting go is also teachers. For tuelinhs and souls, they are mandarins when living in the human world; the illusion of letting go of them in the living scene is also mandarins.

From the information connection of the energy particles in the space of the living scene to letting go of the information values in the negative energy particle system of the tuelinhs and souls, the living space of this residing scene is very gloomy. The entire space is covered in grey and dark tones, an energy state representing the nature of that connection. This living scene creates illusions such as rice fields with farmers working, projects with workers building, teachers with students and teaching, officials with small offices to work in, researchers focusing on work, doctors treating patients, etc. The architecture and buildings are simple and small. Especially in this living situation, there is no form of husband and wife and family like when they lived in the human world. That means that when living in the human world, they were husband and wife and lived in the same house, but when they lived in this living situation, they were aware of it but did not live together. In this residing scene, there is no day or night; it is only grey and black and white space.

How quickly tuelinhs and souls live in this scene depends on their process of letting go of attachments. Some tuelinhs and souls soon eliminate attachments and quickly move to the living scene of energy state balance. However, many tuelinhs and souls have difficulty letting go and do not readily transition to living in the energy state balance.

The living scene of energy state balance is the most beautiful life of this transiting planet. That is the living space for tuelinhs and souls after completing the lessons of letting go of attachments in the residing scene of letting go. In particular, when tuelinhs and souls live in this living scene, it means they are preparing to reincarnate to the human world to continue their practice journey in the human world.

This living scene is a vast space of countless low hills interwoven with trees and grass. Each mountain is divided into many small, equal parts; each part is just enough for a tuelinh or soul to rest and meditate while balancing their energy state. When all the tuelinhs and souls meditate in their positions, it creates a beautiful scene due to the existence of countless tuelinhs and souls in the space of the positive energy group with super-strong electric waves, and later is iridescent yellow super-energy.

Do you know any signs to tell that the tuelinhs and souls on this planet have completed the living scene of energy state balance? – That is, when looking at their appearance, they are no longer the shape of the life they just went through. Instead, they return to their original form of tuelinhs and souls. Then, looking at this scene of life, you will see them who are children. In addition, the negative energy particle system within their structure no longer vibrates at a strong level or more even though the nature of the particle has not changed.

After balancing the energy state in this living scene, the tuelinhs and souls continue to enter the journey of reincarnation as humans in the human world.

Please remember that this life scene balances the energy state, not rebalance the energy particle structure in the tuelinhs and souls. Balancing the energy state is to absorb positive heat and trustworthy information to control and reduce the vibrational speed of the intellectual wave code in their negative energy particle system. The tuelinhs and souls must practice particle production in the human world to balance and develop the energy particle structure.

This transit planet has no day or night. Each living scene has different lights because they are created from groups of energy that the first tuelinh put in to serve the purpose of each life scene. It is understandable that in the hell life scene, there are blood-red, black and grey tones caused by harmful energy particles with strong to super-strong electric waves that tuelinhs and souls cause when they live in the human world.

It is the living scene of letting go of attachments with grey and dark tones because the harmful energy particles have weak electric waves when alive. The toxic energy particles have strong electric waves when they are transferred from the hellish life, and that is the space that contains yellow positive energy with super-strong electric waves, and later shiny yellow super-energy in the living scene of energy state balance.

After completing the construction of living scenes for the transit planet, the first tuelinh arranged tuelinhs with achievements in practice in the human world there to manage and operate. They operated and worked wonderfully when the first tuelinhs and souls came from the human world after the end of a human life.

Did you know? After the tuelinhs and souls went to the transit planet, the first tuelinh began training the tuelinhs to do their duty at the Return of Tao Council. That means that in this planet's early stages of operation and management, he teaches knowledge to tuelinhs and souls after they end a human life on earth. Through his lectures, the tuelinhs on duty at the Return of the Way Council will learn the method and content for the lectures they will have to deliver. Just like that, after a while, they completely take on the task of teaching knowledge to all tuelinhs and souls after they return to this transit planet.

Do you know what knowledge "the Return of Tao Council" teaches on this transiting planet? – The Council always teaches the four teachings of the first tuelinh that he spoke at the conference gathering humanity and the knowledge related to the four forms of Tao. This knowledge helps the tuelinhs and souls understand what they did while living in the human world; that is, they know what actions help them produce positive energy particles and what actions cause them to create harmful energy particles. From there, they will comprehend and summarise valuable lessons to have more ability and strength to overcome suffering and tribulations when incarnated as humans. In particular, after the first tuelinhs achieve achievements on the path of practice in the human world, he will directly teach at the Return of Tao Council so that the tuelinhs can learn and practice. After he found and built an enlightened knowledge system by successfully transforming his energy embryo into a single energy filter in his past life and a dual-energy filter in this life, he allowed the Return of Tao Council to teach all that knowledge in all courses on the transiting planet. However, in all classes, they must always teach the four commandments of the first tuelinh. You must understand that his four commandments are the guideline for all tuelinhs and humans to practice to attain the unified Tao of the universe.

Do you know when the Return of Tao Council organises the classes to help the tuelinhs and souls quickly enter the journey of reincarnation? – Classes are held for the tuelinhs and souls on this planet as follows:

- The class teaches doctrine to the tuelinhs and souls when they finish their journey in the living scene of waiting for judgment. This class helps the tuelinhs and souls recall all the memories of important milestones in their lives, including their achievements, failures and the harm they caused to everyone, people and everything in human life.

- The class teaches catechism to the tuelinhs and souls after they end the living scene of hell. This class helps them recognise the toxins they have caused to people, animals and all things while living in the human world.

- The class teaches knowledge to the tuelinhs and souls during the living scene of letting go. This class helps them identify and let go of attachments to forms in life in the human world.

- The class teaches knowledge to the tuelinhs and soul as they live in the living scene of energy state balance. This class helps them summarise all the lessons learned from their recent human lives and receive positive information and values of sustainable development. That will help them have the strength and energy to easily overcome suffering and practice producing positive energy particles in the human world.

Thus, after completing the work of building the transiting planet with its governing councils and living scenes, the knowledge taught on this planet is gradually perfected through the process of developing the enlightened understanding of the first tuelinh. Up to now, the teaching knowledge has been fulfilled in helping the tuelinhs and souls on that planet through the wisdom of the two truths associated with the smallest particle of energy.

Hey friends, the transit planet is magical to help tuelinhs and souls on their practice journey in the human world. Don't think that this is a dangerous place or that this is a place where demons torture souls and tuelinhs. That is an important place and a must-visit place for tuelinhs and souls who have practised the mechanism of producing harmful particles while living in the human world. Suppose those tuelinhs and souls do not return to this planet to learn lessons for what they did in their human lives. In that case, they will have to fall where their human lives ended, or they will have difficulty overcoming the tribulation when reincarnated as a human. You must understand that when those tuelinhs and souls return here right after the end of human life, they will shorten their practice journey in the human world because they are not interrupted by long periods damned where they end their human lives. As tuelinhs and souls quickly enter the journey of transformation, they will soon achieve their final achievements on the path of practice in the human world.

Of course, you would like to return to heaven after a human life and do not want to go to this transiting planet. It would help if you practised generating positive energy particles to return to that beautiful place. On the contrary, if you practice the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles, you must return to the transiting planet to achieve the fastest and most effective transformation journey."

A student asked the Teacher, "Teacher, if a person produces a cluster of many negative energy particles, but they also produce many positive energy particles, will that soul go to heaven or the transiting planet after the end of human life?"

The Master said, "That soul must go to the transiting planet because they have produced the negative multiparticle energy cluster. That soul must go there to learn lessons from the negative values and toxins they have caused to people, animals and everything. When returning to the transiting planet, all will learn enlightened knowledge for their actions in the human world and relearn four commandments of the first tuelinh in the conference gathering humanity."

The student continued to ask, "Teacher, when people ever produce clusters of energy particles with multiple negative particles at a weak level or higher, then they learn the enlightened knowledge of the two truths associated with the smallest energy particles, and they practice producing positive energy particles through spreading that knowledge to everyone; where will those tuelinhs go after their human lives end?"

He replied, "The purpose of the transiting planet is to help the tuelinhs and souls learn the lessons from the toxins they inflicted on everyone and everything when they were human. The next is to help them balance the energy state in the negative multiparticle clusters in their particle structure. Therefore, when people practice producing positive energy particles after learning the enlightened knowledge of the two truths despite having produced negative energy particles, they will return to heaven after the end of their lives. Why? Through the knowledge of the two truths, they understood all their toxins and activated their good elements by producing positive energy particles. That means they have learned all their lessons and practised positive particle production to reconstruct the negative multiparticle cluster and develop their composite particle structure to grow according to the production mechanism of positive particles. Therefore, they have enough strength to reincarnate, and the place they return to is paradise to rest before reincarnating as humans in the next life."

Another student immediately asked, "Teacher, what happens in the opposite case? Everyone who learns the knowledge of the two truths and practices produces a few positive energy particles. However, after that, they no longer learn and practice according to knowledge; instead, they practice the mechanism of producing negative energy particles. After their human life ends, can they return to heaven?"

The Teacher replied, "Of course, they cannot go to heaven. They must return to the transit planet, and their living situation will be hell. That is inevitable because their toxins have harmed people, animals, and everything else by producing negative energy particles. The fact that they produce negative particles after having studied and practised enlightened knowledge shows that there are too many toxins in them and that they have not truly learned knowledge. If a person learns the two true truths, they will never produce negative energy particles to harm everyone and everything."
