

NALAS

NALANDA

THE TRUTH OF THE UNIVERSE AND THE TRUTH OF THE ENLIGHTENMENT

3

HOANG VAN TRUONG

BOOK THREE

Table of Contents

BOOK THREE	3
Chapter Sixty-Six	7
Replication and Bombardment of Energy Particles in Tuelinh and Soul	7
Chapter Sixty-Seven	27
Regenerating and Rebalancing the Particle Structure in Soul/Tuelinh	27
Chapter Sixty-Eight	47
The Law of Cause and Effect of All Life Forms Inside and Outside the Universe	47
Chapter Sixty-Nine	63
The Law of Cause and Effect of the Tuelinhs and Souls When Participating in Cultivation in the Human World	63
Chapter Seventy.....	95
The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of Tao of the Family.....	95
Chapter Seventy-One	145
The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of Social Tao ..	145
Chapter Seventy-Two.....	181
The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of the National Tao	181
Chapter Seventy-Three	203
The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of Tao of Teacher and Student.....	203
Chapter Seventy-Four	225
The Journey of The Tuelinh and Soul After the End of a Human Life	225
Chapter Seventy-Five	241
Reaction Produces Energy Particles of Ignorance in The Ideology	241
Chapter Seventy-Six	273

Reaction Produces Energy Particles of Ignorance in Action.....	273
Chapter Seventy-Seven	305
Reaction Produces Energy Particles of Ignorance in Spreading False Knowledge	305
Chapter Seventy-Eight	335
Destructive Energy Detonation Method	335
Chapter Seventy-Nine	351
Practice Producing Green Positive Energy Particles	351
Chapter Eighty	379
Practice Producing Fire-red Positive Energy Particles	379
Chapter Eighty-One	405
Practice Producing Yellow Positive Energy Particles	405
Chapter Eighty-Two	437
The Energy Filter – The Unified Tao of the Universe	437
Chapter Eighty-Three.....	467
The Hymn – Great Mantra Nalas Nalanda	467
Chapter Eighty-Four.....	471
Symbol of the Unified Tao of the Universe	471
Chapter Eighty-Five.....	475
Method of Saving Trapped Tuelinhs and Souls in the Human World to Return to the Transiting Planet	475
Chapter Eighty-Six.....	481
Methods of Healing Mental Health-Related Illnesses.....	481

Chapter Sixty-Six

Replication and Bombardment of Energy Particles in Tuelinh and Soul

The scent of orchids on the balcony blends with the cold breeze of the approaching Tet holiday. The teacher is watering the pots of colourful orchids because they have bloomed and welcomed the new year with him. Besides, the scents of flowers and a kumquat tree on the balcony drift into the living room with every breeze, filling his house with the atmosphere of the new year even though the latest year for him is elementary and uncomplicated, like every house.

After taking care of and watering the ornamental plants on the balcony, he made a pot of hot tea and sat down to enjoy the excellent taste of the tea with the cold wind blowing in from the balcony. He sat down to enjoy tea in a relaxed mood and enjoyed the last days of the year after his courses and achieved many achievements in helping many people overcome mental illness and suffering in life. He looked at the kumquat tree with many ripe yellow fruits, which coloured the atmosphere of the Vietnamese people celebrating the New Year. Kumquat and peach are two unique ornamental plants every family buys to display on New Year's Day. This year, the balcony of the teacher's house is a magnificent kumquat tree, and it fits the balcony space. That's the tree that a woman, she's like his older sister, bought for him. If the teacher hadn't reminded her this year, she would have purchased a large pot of peach trees like last year. Last New Year, she bought a giant peach tree, which took up the entire living room space of the teacher's house. Because the teacher reminded her, she purchased a small kumquat tree for him instead of buying a peach tree like last year.

Speaking of this woman, she is Ms. Phuong. She is someone he knew when he was a university student. She also witnessed the teacher's journey of practising and spreading enlightened wisdom. Not only that, she also brought her two children to learn the teacher's knowledge when she discovered that they had symptoms related to spiritual issues. After her two children learned and returned to normal, the eldest son went to college in the US, and the daughter went to study abroad in Japan.

He enjoyed tea while reminiscing about memories with Ms. Phuong and her children. He still remembers the first days of teaching her oldest son, Dzung. He taught Dzung to learn meditation and methods to handle and neutralize ghost-infested lands after helping Dzung overcome spiritual problems in 11th grade. After that, although Dzung went to school in America, he still guides Dzung's mother to guide him in situations dealing with spiritual issues when he can see lands where ghosts and demons reside. That is the problem that Dzung used to encounter: whenever he goes to places with ghosts, Dzung would get headaches and lose control. However, after learning and being instructed on handling methods from the teacher, Dzung gained the ability to meditate to see them. In particular, Dzung can meditate to return to the transiting planet and heaven. Because of that, Ms. Phuong asked Dzung many times to meditate and handle spiritual issues while he was studying in America. Dzung's sister is Nga, a girl who also has spiritual problems. However, after learning from the teacher, Nga can meditate and has methods to overcome spiritual issues.

Immersed in reminiscences, Ms. Phuong and her children arrived at the teacher's house. Like every year, she and her children often visit the teacher's house when her two children return home for the holidays. This year, Dzung finished his studies and returned home to work. Only Nga is still studying in Japan and has just returned home. Therefore, Ms. Phuong made an appointment with the teacher to visit his house before Tet. She is a very good person to him; she has helped him greatly in his life and his journey of spreading knowledge. Therefore, the teacher and she are like two sisters in one family.

Everyone enjoys tea together in a relaxed mood, as if there are no worries or problems in life, even though every family is busy with preparations for welcoming the new year. She and her children still remember reviewing the stories about their learning journey and practising the knowledge of the two truths while they spent time in three different countries. Thrilling and fascinating stories back then have been decoded with energy particles and excellent knowledge.

Dzung said, "When I first came to America to study, I couldn't go out on weekends. I had to stay in the dormitory on the school campus. At that time, every time I closed my eyes, I saw a lot of ghosts. They knew I could help them return to the transiting planet, so they came to my room. It took me many weeks to neutralize each area on the school campus. After that, I can go out on the weekends."

Ms. Phuong said, "That's right. Fortunately, Dzung had learned knowledge and was taught methods to deal with demons before going to study abroad. Otherwise, he would not have been able to study there. I remember that when Dzung was still studying in Vietnam, every time he went to take extra classes at the teachers' houses, if there were ghosts in the house, Dzung could not study. At that time, Dzung was affected by negative energy, and his soul was also weak, so he was affected. It's truly miraculous. When people learn to understand the truth about the origin and practice missions in the human world of tuelinhs and souls, they practice a few simple methods to help ghosts and demons return to the transit planet. In particular, the body becomes miraculously healthy. That has caused so many people to spend a lot of money to perform rituals with psychics to neutralize demons, but they still cannot recover and cannot overcome their spiritual problems. Do you know? After Dzung told me about neutralizing demons and said that in American schools, there were many spirits and demons trapped in the land, I saw that not only Vietnam has demons, but they exist everywhere on this earth. At that time, I was delighted because Dzung could neutralize and protect himself. After that, whenever I felt a problem, I called Dzung to meditate from the US to check on our home and my workplace in Hanoi. You know, my job often requires performing autopsies at night. Therefore, when I finish work, I often go home and see strange phenomena in my house. I have a clear feeling when souls are trapped and cannot be rescued by themselves. They follow me and want to let me know so I can help them. During times like that, I called Dzung and asked Dzung to meditate and check. After that, Dzung meditated and saw spirits following me into the house. At that time, Dzung helped them return to the transit planet. However, there was a time when Dzung could not resolve it because the souls were very attached. So, Dzung asked them if they wanted to listen to lectures on the four forms of Tao, and they agreed. Then, I played some of your lectures for them to listen to. When they were almost done listening, they returned to the transit planet. Initially, when Dzung meditated, he saw that the soul radiated blood-red energy and was very ferocious. However, after listening to a few lectures that I played on a loudspeaker for them, they regained balance and radiated grey-white energy. Before I let them listen to your lectures, I felt pain in my shoulders, neck, and head. Was it because those souls influenced me, and they hoped that I would help them?"

The teacher replied, "That's right. Because of your job, you often have to come into contact with corpses. Their souls may resent being killed, so their structure's negative energy particle system vibrates very strongly and creates a mechanism to copy negative energy particles into the surrounding environment. Especially since they know you are a good person and have a method to help them return to the transiting planet, they will follow you to inform you to help them. Do you know? Religions that talk about demons and evil spirits are extremely pitiful to these trapped souls. Religions do not understand the origin and practice plan of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world. In particular, they do not know the smallest energy particles and their nature. Therefore, when spiritual masters and Zen masters see spirits with monstrous and demonic forms, they think they are demons. You studied knowledge so you understood the nature of trapped souls. Dead souls that generate maximum resentment will cause the negative energy particle system to vibrate to the maximum, and the electric waves become super strong with the blood-red colour of the energy state. At that time, they created monstrous forms, and they called him the devil. Dead souls that are resentful but not at their strongest level create black energy states; these are the souls of ferocious beasts and the souls of people who harm others and animals; they were called goblins. In addition, other spirits that hurt and frighten people exist worldwide. When spirits like demons hear teachings on the Tao, they quickly balance their energy state and return to being normal souls, which is also what the transiting planet is helping them to rebalance their energy state after one lifetime."

"I don't understand why those souls can affect my body. Is it because the soul inside me is unhealthy so that they can influence it?"

The teacher replied, "No. Your soul is powerful. Because your soul is strong, you are a good person, while your colleagues around you always find ways to be corrupt. Your soul is strong because she is a wonderful mother when you help your two children understand the way of the universe, which is the knowledge of the two truths. Your soul is strong because you are dedicated and help people at work. Do you know why you feel pain in your shoulders and neck and a heavy head when souls come to you for help? Imagine that when you go outside with temperatures above 40 degrees Celsius. Do you feel comfortable and refreshed?"

"Of course, I feel uncomfortable and tired."

The teacher continued, "It is just like bad weather. The souls emit toxins because the vibrational speed of their harmful particles causes them to be copied and bombarded into the surrounding environment. When toxic negative particles are bombarded into the surrounding environment, people and energy structures in that place will be affected. In particular, targeted bombardments from souls will significantly affect the target. Because you are a good person and your soul is very excellent, the phenomenon of shoulder pain, neck pain and heaviness in the head when bombarded by souls with high radiation levels only causes such phenomena if people do many evil deeds when they are affected. Hence, their minds become out of control, leading to later evil actions.

When tuelinhs and souls have resentment, anger, and hatred, it will cause the negative energy particle system within them to vibrate from robust to maximum levels. At that time, in their structure, a mechanism occurs to copy harmful energy particles, and those particles bombard the surrounding environment. When those toxic energy particles bombard people, they will react differently. People with a negative multiparticle soul structure will see ghosts and demons and even see illusions and hallucinations. People with a balanced soul structure will experience shoulder and neck pain or no symptoms. However, when those souls find someone who can help them return to the transiting planet, they will have to follow them and exert as much influence as possible so that those people can recognize them and help them attain release.

However, you are different from people who have mental illness and those who can see demons with their third eye. You did not see anything, and due to the nature of your work, the spirits tried to influence you to help them. Meanwhile, people with fragile soul structures may see images within their negative energy particle system and may be external souls. Those people could not distinguish between demons and information in their negative energy particle system, which is bombarding.

As I told everyone in class, using supernatural powers and meditation is extremely dangerous when they don't understand the knowledge. The toxic information easily influences their negative particle system; they think they have magical powers and magic. In addition, meditators are also operated by five messengers to help people release all the toxins inside the soul. Even though I gave them clear instructions, many students still do not listen and are immersed in delusions about magical powers and meditation that lead to the wrong path."

"Since you reminded me about not overusing meditation and neutralizing trapped souls for others, I told Dzung. And for a long time, whenever someone asked Dzung to check and solve the problem, Dzung guided them to learn to understand and solve it themselves." Ms. Phuong continued the teacher's words.

The teacher said, "Dzung is a student and has not been caught up in the worries of life, not yet influenced by material forms. That's because he has a mother who teaches him so that he has a holy mind. Therefore, when he helps others with the abilities he learns, it will not cause him to have greed and self-interest. Many people abuse supernatural powers and meditation in the hope of receiving money from the people they help resolve spiritual problems. It is a manifestation of the toxicity and greed of someone who has a way to help people and souls. When helping people and trapped souls by greed and toxicity, the energy from Nalas Nalanda will not connect and will not help bring the trapped souls to the transiting planet even if the person meditates and sees that it has been resolved."

She said, "I have experienced some exciting situations. Let me tell you, then ask you to analyze it for me to understand.

The first case was at my office; every time I had to work and sit next to a leader, I felt like needles were shooting into my body. I felt sharp pain in many places on my skin, heavy head, and neck and shoulder fatigue. But I don't have those phenomena when I don't stand or sit next to that person. That leader is not a good person and is greedy at work. He corrupts money from people and even colleagues when taking all employee rewards.

The second case was when I came into contact with people with mental illness; I also felt negative energy shooting at me from them. However, it is not as strong as the leader in my office.

The third case was when I talked to a woman with metastatic cancer. When talking to that person, I found her resentful and hateful of others. I felt the poisonous energy streams shooting into me from that woman. That toxic energy is stronger than the case of the leader and those mentally ill people.

Please explain those phenomena to my children and me so we can gain more knowledge. I also will tell it to my friends."

The teacher replied, "Those three cases have different levels of bombardment by harmful energy particles. As follows:

In the case of mentally ill people causing the slightest toxic energy impact on you, it is because they have lost control of their thoughts and actions. Their loss of control is caused by negative multiparticle energy clusters in their souls. The process of copying and bombarding harmful energy particles in them is that there is only one environment that stimulates them to reproduce and shoot harmful particles: the soul's internal environment. The soul's internal environment is negative information encoded in harmful energy particles produced in the past and past lives. That information interacts with each other to form a mechanism to copy and bombard harmful particles into the outside environment. It can be seen that this case has a low level of negative particle bombardment because there is no participation in reacting to negative information from the outside environment.

Therefore, the level of harm is similar to the souls trapped in the land.

In the case of a leader at your agency, that person has a negative multiparticle soul structure, and the toxins in the original negative energy particle are exploding at the vibrational speed of the negative multiparticle clusters at an intense level or higher. That is an amount of toxicity that can be equivalent to the case of mentally ill people. However, that person has toxic information from the outside environment that interacts with toxins inside his soul and wisdom. That is the environment around him where many people take advantage of their positions for embezzlement and corruption. He needs to satisfy many things for himself and his family. Because his wisdom can perceive and be alert, it forms a reaction between two types of toxins from the external environment and the internal environment of the soul. Therefore, the person's toxins develop at an extreme level. In addition, that person is practising embezzlement and corruption, so his soul combines the negative particle copying mechanism like mentally ill people and the negative particle production mechanism of sane people. As a result, that person produced and copied harmful particles with potent toxins, and it bombarded people around him. Therefore, the level of impact on everyone around is enormous.

The third case is similar to the second one in that it involves interactions between the toxins of the soul's internal and external environment. The external environment is that she is resentful and hateful towards others. However, in that woman, more toxins have been released to the outside. Expressions of resentment and hatred represent the most substantial level of toxicity, which is stronger than the level of the leader's actions. When people hold grudges, the harmful energy particles in their souls will vibrate at maximum levels and form a blood-red energy state. At that time, their soul had just produced blood-red harmful particles due to the practice of spreading hatred, and the soul copied the damaging particles in the particle structure that had been produced in the past life. As a result, the number of harmful particles that bombard the surrounding people are both negative particles copied from polyphonic particle clusters in the soul produced in the past and new toxic negative energy particles produced by practice spreading the ignorant wisdom of hatred.

So, all three cases have a mechanism to copy harmful energy particles from negative multiparticle clusters produced in the past. However, the two cases did not suffer from mental illness; they had an additional mechanism of particle production because they were practising acts of ignorance at different levels. That also shows that when humans implement the mechanism to produce harmful energy particles, it also activates the mechanism to copy negative particles in multiple negative particle clusters produced in the past. That's why their negative particle bombardment is stronger than mentally ill people who are no longer sane."

With an unsatisfied expression, she asked, "Can you explain more about the mechanism of copying negative energy particles? I understand the mechanism of energy particle production."

Dzung immediately asked the teacher, "Is there a mechanism to copy positive energy particles and energy superparticles? Because when you talked to my mother, I meditated to look at the tuelinh within you. When you weren't talking about the knowledge of the two truths, and even when you weren't talking, in your tuelinh, superparticles of sparkling yellow and lapis lazuli blue energy still radiated. It's like halos of light radiating around. However, when you talked and analyzed knowledge, the tuelinh within you radiated many of those energy superparticles to everyone around you. I feel like my body is hot when I concentrate on listening to your talk."

The teacher said, "The energy particle replication mechanism includes all negative, neutral, and positive particles and energy superparticles.

The mechanism for producing energy particles must go through the interaction process between subjects, followed by the generation of thoughts, the encoding of information, the creation of ideology, and finally, actions that interact with the external environment. At the end of the actions, energy particles from the soul's yin and yang energy embryo are produced.

However, the energy particle copying mechanism only requires an interaction process with subjects with the same information content in the internal energy particle structure of the tuelinh and soul. Then, the energy particles will be copied and moved to the surrounding environment without having to go through the process of encoding information from the outside environment, without the need for the process of creating ideology and action to interact with external entities. It can be understood that the copying mechanism is the process of information reaction in the internal environment of the tuelinh and soul through previous interaction to activate the internal information reaction process of the tuelinh and soul structure. Thus, the copying mechanism is just an internal information reaction process within the structure of the tuelinh and soul when previous interactions with external subjects activate it. The external subject of the soul and tuelinh is the human body, the human brain in which the tuelinh or soul resides, or has resided in the case of souls trapped in the human world after the body is dead.

Let me give you some specific cases so you and your mother can understand clearly:

- The case of souls trapped in the lands:

- + There is a couple who love each other, and they want to become husband and wife. However, the parents of one of the parties prevented them from becoming husband and wife. They become miserable and lose control of their thoughts because they love each other but cannot be together. They decided to commit suicide with the thought that their two souls would always be together after death. Finally, they went up a bridge together to commit suicide in the deep and wide river below. However, when committing suicide, only one person dropped into the river while the other did not. After the soul of the person who died in the river learned the truth that their lover betrayed them and was not by their side, that soul became resentful towards her lover. The interaction and activation of resentment causes all the harmful energy particles with information about love in the soul structure to agitate and vibrate to the maximum level. That causes that soul's entire negative particle structure to vibrate, creating a blood-red energy state. As a result, that soul has a mechanism to copy those blood-red harmful energy particles into the surrounding environment.

+ In case a person is murdered, his soul becomes angry with the murderer who took his life. In addition, he also regrets material values and what he owned when he was alive. Therefore, the interaction and the act of being killed caused their negative energy particle system to vibrate very strongly to super strong. Finally, black or blood-red harmful energy particles are copied and bombarded into the surrounding environment. This case helps you understand why when you do autopsy work, spirits often follow you to ask you to help them, and they bombard you and the surrounding environment with very strong harmful particles.

- In the case of children with autism and mental illnesses since birth. In these cases, tuelinhs and souls have negative energy multiparticle structures at very strong and super strong levels. Although before being reincarnated as humans, they had balanced their energy state on the transiting planet, staying as a baby for a new human life caused their negative energy particle system to shake vigorously and exceptionally strongly. At that time, the energy state of the harmful particles becomes black or blood-red. As a result, harmful energy particles are copied and bombarded into the surrounding environment. In addition, the vibrating process of harmful energy particles causes the toxic information in the negative energy particles produced from past lives to bombard the brains of those babies. At that time, that child could not listen to and follow teachers' and parents' instructions at home. Instead, those children are influenced and immersed in scenes from past lives that are being replayed in their brains. That makes them considered autistic, hyperactive, depressed, and mentally ill children. Those souls had a mechanism to copy harmful energy particles as soon as they were reincarnated as humans because there were too many harmful energy particles in their structure. Those negative energy particles contain information that causes harm to people, animals, and everything in past lives. That makes those tuelinhs and souls panic when incarnated as humans and cannot be reformed. The panic triggered the negative energy particle system in the negative multiparticle clusters to shake, and it caused the entire negative particle system in the structure to go out of control. As a result, those souls lose control of the baby's body, and they live in past lives from the replication and bombardment of the negative particle system within them.

- In cases where there are people who are healthy and mentally alert, they suddenly suffer from depression, hallucinations, anxiety disorders, insomnia, and schizophrenia. They can suffer from mental health problems ranging from mild to severe, causing them to lose control and commit suicide. These cases are diverse situations of mental illness; some people get mentally ill because of love, some people get mentally sick because of praying, some people develop a mental illness because of parents' pressure to study, and some people get mentally sick because of business losses, some people have mentally ill because of the desire to get rich, some people have a mental illness because of work pressure, some people have mentally sick because of practising meditation or spirituality. These cases of mental illness have a common characteristic: before they got ill, they had a process of interacting with a specific type of information content such as studying, working at the office, love, work, family, getting rich, and many other content. Why do they experience mental illness when interacting in such content, but others do not? That's because, in their souls, there are clusters of harmful energy particles related to that content. Therefore, when they interact with the same content in the negative multiparticle clusters in this human life, those particle clusters will shake out of control, and a mechanism of copying and bombardment of harmful energy particles will occur. Negative energy particles, in addition to being copied and bombarded into the outside environment, also create images, sounds, languages, and realistic life scenes in the brains of those people. That causes those people to be dominated by toxic information in the negative energy particle system, and they are immersed in the life scenes of past lives without being aware of the difference between the present and the past. That explains why they often talk and laugh alone, why they assault others, and why they cry and act strangely. Their souls are caught up in negative life scenes in past lives, and they are not aware that they are living in the present life.

- In the case of people practising meditation and supernatural powers. They often see life scenes on certain planets and talk with angels, Buddha, or God. They then recognized them as supreme souls with the mission to save humanity. Finally, they preached prayers and meditation to return to God's kingdom, Buddha's kingdom. Those people do not know that what they see is all an illusion because the negative information values in the harmful energy particles in their particle structure are disordered. They also don't know that they have multiple harmful energy particles in their structure, that they are experiencing toxic energy particle copying, and that their brains are being bombarded with negative information and disorder. That makes them unable to understand the nature of the truth about their origin and spiritual practice in the human world, so they sink into the negative information that their past lives have created. These magical powers, prayers, and meditations attract people to follow them. These people have the mechanism of copying harmful energy particles due to their interactions with practitioners and their religious or spiritual practices. At that time, the clusters of harmful energy particles in their souls were stimulated by the same current information content, so they were bombarded and copied by harmful energy particles. As a result, they can hear and see the invisible world. However, it is an illusion and a mental illness.

- In the case of your boss and the woman you mentioned. They have the phenomenon of copying harmful energy particles because they interact with the subjects of the external environment. In their souls are clusters of energy particles related to that content. Therefore, the interaction process causes them to have an energy particle replication mechanism, and they lose control of the bombardment of those toxic energy particles.

- In the case of Dzung, learners also saw and felt. That's when they sat next to me while I wasn't preaching or discussing the knowledge of the two truths. They also received energy super particles, and their bodies became warm. That is also the mechanism of copying positive energy particles and energy superparticles inside my tuelinh that is taking place. For this particle copying mechanism to occur, it is the process of awakening to know the truth about my tuelinh and my mission in this human world. After that, I regained my intelligence and carried out my mission. Those things are the interactive process that makes the tuelinh inside practice the mechanism of copying superparticles even without giving lectures. As for why the energy superparticles are copied, it is because the energy embryo inside the tuelinh is a dual-energy filter, so it automatically produces or copies energy superparticles and radiates into the surrounding environment.

In addition, you need to understand that the mechanism of copying energy particles is different from the mechanism of producing energy particles as follows:

- When humans use the mechanism to produce positive energy particles, neutral and negative particles with weak electric waves are also made.

- However, the positive energy particle copying mechanism does not copy harmful particles with weak electric waves and neutral particles.

That means that people with a negative multiparticle structure will have negative particle replication and bombardment after the interaction that activates the negative particle replication mechanism. On the contrary, people with a balanced particle structure will copy positive energy particles or superparticles if the tuelinh has an energy filter after the activation of the positive particle and the superparticle replication mechanism has occurred. Harmful particles with weak electric waves and neutral particles are not copied when positive particles are copied.

The copied yin and yang energy particles are not structured and connected to the structure of the tuelinh and soul. They are just energy particles that are copied and will self-destruct after a period of existence within their structure and outside. That is so that everyone understands that, to develop the tuelinh structure to become more robust and mature, everyone must practice sustainable energy particle production mechanism."

"It's great; my children and I learned more about energy particles today. Indeed, without the knowledge of the two truths and energy particles, I cannot explain phenomena such as ghost possession, spiritual problems, mental illness and even cancer. From my understanding, after learning knowledge from you, I have helped many of my relatives and friends overcome mental illness. Especially when my friends have depression due to the breakdown of their marriage, they almost lose control of their thoughts and want to commit suicide. However, after I learned, I supported them by letting them listen to your lectures and explaining the origin and mission of practice in the human world. It's wonderful that after listening to a few of your lectures, they regain balance and no longer want to commit suicide. When I am at work, they call me to boast that the lecture they just heard was excellent. Those achievements make me very happy, and I constantly receive more knowledge from you."

Chapter Sixty-Seven

Regenerating and Rebalancing the Particle Structure in Soul/Tuelinh

While the Teacher was sitting and chatting with his students in the office, another student brought a man with a worn look into the room. That student immediately told the Teacher, "Teacher, this is an acquaintance of mine. He has practised many different methods of spiritual practice in religions. However, he has unusual symptoms and is very aware of them. When he told me his problems, I understood and explained that he had an imbalance in the energy particle structure inside his soul. However, because I have just learned your knowledge, I cannot explain and analyse deeply for him to understand. Therefore, I told him about the Teacher and your knowledge, two truths that have more magical power than all the methods of practice in the human world. When he heard that, he expressed doubts and wanted to see the Teacher to get answers and solve his problems."

The Teacher looked at that man and saw that the soul inside had a robust mechanism for copying harmful energy particles. Negative energy particles bombard and destroy the body's cells. That caused his eyes to be dull, his skin pale, and his body to have many diseases. In addition, he has been experiencing headaches and discomfort since entering this office. The energy reaction of a soul with a negative multiparticle copies and bombards harmful particles into the environment of super-energy particles in the Teacher and his working space. That is what people with negative energy multiparticle structures in the soul will have to happen when talking or sitting near the Teacher. They will adapt when the energy from the teacher copies and moves to assist in rebalancing their emotions and state after a few minutes. Therefore, the Teacher looked at the man and said, "Let's relax and talk to the people around first. That puts you in a better mood to chat and discuss."

Understanding what the Teacher meant, the students talked to that man. The man became open during the conversation and confided about his cultivation journey in various religious and spiritual sects. That conversation helped that man relieve the tension and pressure from the bombardment of harmful energy particles in his soul. Besides, the Teacher sees that that person has practised too many different methods and is infected with many dangerous and misleading ideas about the origin and mission of practice in the human world. That causes the soul inside to have information disorder and the phenomenon of toxic energy particles being copied into the surrounding environment. In addition, that person also taught those practised methods to many others, so the soul inside produced a lot of negative energy with very strong to super strong toxins. That caused his soul to become out of control due to his toxins and the actions of ignorance that had been created on everyone.

Realising that the man's headache was relieved and his mood was better after an hour of chatting with the Teacher's students, the Teacher said, "Please share the problems you encountered after practising a lot of different methods."

"I have practised many different sects of Buddhism, such as tantra, meditation, pure land, prayer and many other spiritual methods. I greatly admire the famous practitioners of those sects, so I found teachers with experience practising in those sects to learn and practice. I can talk to spirits, demons, ancestors, God, and Buddha. Buddha told me that I had a mission to save humanity and taught me many magic spells to worship and heal people. After that, I performed rituals to release people's karma and rituals for the dead and guided everyone to follow me in practice. However, there are a few cases where my students were possessed by demons and lost control after studying and practising what I taught. I tried to help them but couldn't. I constantly see demons when I'm not meditating, and it makes me sometimes unable to distinguish between who is real and who is the devil. I understand that my third eye and chakras are open and out of control, so negative energy from the outside enters my body. It causes me neck and shoulder pain, many illnesses, and sometimes I can't control my thoughts."

The teacher asked, "Do you believe that the methods you practice are good and bring value to you on your path of practice in the human world?"

"Of course, sir. Practising meditation helps me see and know things that humans cannot. Specifically, I can chat with Buddha, God, and the souls of the dead. Practising the Buddha's name (pure land) method helps me gain more strength and protection from Buddha when I practice spiritual rituals. In particular, it is a wonderful and easy method to practice so that after death, I will be reborn in the land of Buddha. Practising tantra helps me have magic and mantras to neutralise demons. Practising rituals to pray to Buddha and God is to help me receive protection and blessings from them. Those are all great methods for everyone to practice."

The teacher asked, "The problems you are having are manifestations of mental illness and pathology. So, do you know why you have those problems?"

"Because I couldn't understand or explain why I had those phenomena, I came to see you to get answers to my questions after your student said I had an imbalance in the energy particle structure in my soul. When I heard that, I wondered why someone would create knowledge of two truths and talk about the energy particle structure of the soul and the smallest energy particle. I am curious about your knowledge. However, the methods I have been practising are the most wonderful because Buddha attained enlightenment and passed those methods on to humanity."

The teacher said, "The knowledge transmitted by enlightened beings like Buddha today is no longer true. That knowledge has been distorted and changed over time by the personal views of those who recorded and copied it. However, much of its knowledge guides people to practice good deeds and avoid evil deeds. The same is true of the knowledge of other religions."

"So you deny all knowledge of religions?"

The teacher continued, "Hey, you! If knowledge in religions, sects and spiritual practices advises people to slaughter animals to pray to Buddha and God, do you think it is true or false? Is it the teachings of Buddha and God, or are they words brought in by humans? Hey you, if the knowledge of religions and sects keeps people from knowing about the origin, the mission of practice in the human world, and the practice method of producing sustainable energy particles, that knowledge has no value. In addition, that knowledge causes people to be immersed in the toxins created by greed, selfishness, and ignorance in praying, chanting, and supernatural powers without understanding the truth to practice and produce sustainable energy particles on the path of practice in the human world.

Do you understand what types of energy particles meditation, prayer, chanting, and rituals help you produce? Do you know what the energy particle structure of your soul will be like after practising those methods? People meditate to explore the worldview of the universe, which is good but does not bring enlightenment. It's like a chick wanting to meditate to explore and hoping to turn into an egg. To understand this, you must understand the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs (souls) before they made the great vow to reincarnate as humans. Meditation makes people think they are enlightened when they see scenes in the universe, see different energies, and see God or Buddha. They believe that they have supernatural powers and enlightenment. They think they reach higher levels of enlightenment when they are pure and peaceful in meditation. Because people do not understand the origin and mission of practice, they believe that being happy and knowing what others do not know about the tuelinh (soul) world means they are enlightened. That's a delusion. Enlightenment is understanding the truth of everything in and out of the universe, then finding and practising the method of producing sustainable energy particles so that the tuelinh structure can mature in balance. Meditation, prayers, rituals, chanting, and supernatural powers cannot help humans create sustainable energy particles for the souls. On the contrary, they cause the souls to absorb harmful and false information and produce harmful negative energy particles. Toxic negative energy particles form a negative energy multiparticle structure in the soul. That causes people to lose control of their thoughts and actions, producing countless harmful energy particles. As a result, those souls will be attacked by destructive energy and disintegrate."

"Thus, you believe those methods are not valuable for achieving enlightenment and bringing benefits to people. So how do I recognize which knowledge is of true value to help people achieve enlightenment, teacher?"

The teacher replied, "All of them have value; that is, they help the souls and tuelinhs release the toxins inside. However, it does not bring the value of enlightenment and helping tuelinhs and souls achieve the unified Tao of the universe.

Suppose you want to know what knowledge can help people achieve true enlightenment. That knowledge must reveal the origin, mission, and practice path of producing sustainable energy particles. Therefore, any knowledge that does not bring people those values is not enlightened and does not bring sustainable development value to the tuelinhs and souls."

"Teacher, how can we know the origin and practice mission of humans in the human world?"

The teacher said, "That is knowledge with a lot of information. However, I can tell you briefly to help you understand those things.

You need to know that all things in the universe, tuelinhs, and people are all born from an embryo of primordial energy of the universe. That is the origin of the universe and humans. That origin shows that the existence and development of all things are based on the mechanism of producing and connecting energy particles and the mechanism of rotating or circulating information of each subject. The yin and yang energy embryo is formed by transforming two wave-particles into the two smallest positive and negative particles. Before the yin and yang energy embryo was formed in infinite space, only one type of energy existed: destructive energy with a brown energy state. These brown energy particles were transformed from ancestral wave-particles. However, annihilation energy particles do not yet have a rotation and connection mechanism, so they do not connect to form a physical structure larger than the smallest energy particle. As for wave-particles, they are born from singularities in space. They are wave-particles rather than the smallest energy particles because they have not yet encoded information and have not yet released their internal energy state to the outside. The annihilation particle is the energy particle that the wave-particle has not entirely transformed.

After the destructive energy particles are formed and grow in number, they interact and gather in dense density. Because of this, explosions of annihilation energy appear in the space of destructive energy because they are heated and explode spontaneously. That process creates areas containing positive and negative heat. Then, the wave-particles move into those thermal spaces and transform into the smallest energy particles with positive and negative electric waves. The positive and negative energy particles result from the ancestral wave-particle's complete transformation and have encoded a large amount of information inside. That causes yin and yang energy particles to generate energy states after being formed in addition to the mechanisms they possess.

Next, when the two most miraculous yin and yang energy particles in the universe bond together to form yin and yang energy embryos, they continuously carry out destructive energy detonation reactions over a long period. That causes the yin and yang embryo to produce countless energy particles to develop into a giant energy sphere with countless smallest particles carrying negative, positive, and neutral electric waves. In particular, they are divided into three types of energy particles: energy particles with super-complex intellectual wave codes, energy particles with complex intellectual wave codes, and energy particles with simple intellectual wave codes. As the energy embryo of the universe matures, it creates a supreme soul, the first tuelinh, God, and Buddha after he practised and attained enlightenment in the human world. He is created by connecting groups of energy particles with super-complex intellectual wave codes. After spending an endless time living and operating a giant energy planet that detonated destructive energy to absorb its heat for the particle production process, that first tuelinh had matured and had the best super intelligence in the universe.

After the giant energy sphere exploded, creating a massive explosion, the first tuelinh built the universe's life. That is to develop small baby tuelinhs from groups of energy particles with super-complex intellectual wave codes, to form planets from simple groups of energy, and to use complex groups of energy to make adhesives for simple physical structures into unified and large wholes such as rocks, meteorites, and planets. He created the information transceiver system for the entire universe, the wire connection system to operate all the planets and the rotating universe. In particular, he made the central planet to manage life for the entire universe.

Do you know? The tuelinh inside you and all tuelinhs are born and mature on the central planet, heaven, God's country, and Buddha's country.

All tuelinhs are formed from the process of forming yin and yang embryos and through the mechanism of producing and connecting energy particles to form tuelinh structures with many clusters of synthetic energy particles outside the mature energy embryos. It takes a lot of time for tuelinhs to be born and grow. However, they cannot detonate the energy of destruction like the first tuelinh. As a result, many small tuelinhs were disintegrated and destroyed by the energy of destruction. Because of the significant difference and loss, the first tuelinh built a practice environment on earth for the tuelinhs to incarnate as practitioners. It is a practice journey to understand ourselves and each other, everything in the universe, and the energy of destruction. Understanding those secrets will help the tuelinhs understand the toxins in their harmful and good elements in their positive particles. From there, they will find a mechanism to practice eliminating toxins and maximizing good elements, which is a sustainable path of transformation to help them become mature tuelinhs. To accomplish that task, they must live in the four forms of Tao in the human world to experience all the scenarios of interacting with sufferings and tribulations. When experiencing and practising the production of sustainable energy particles in the four forms of Tao, they gradually practice detonating the destructive energy particles when this environment is built, including the interaction of annihilation energy in the first tuelinh's safety control.

So, you understand that the practice environment in the human world is to learn and practice particle production, which is to detonate destructive energy particles to produce sustainable energy particles and help the structure of the tuelinh mature. The heat of detonated annihilation energy is valuable in assisting the tuelinhs and all things in the universe to produce sustainable energy particles. Only the first tuelinh (God, Buddha) can do that in the universe. Therefore, he has been transmitting knowledge and methods to help the tuelinhs and souls in the human world implement a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles when they have understood the knowledge of enlightenment and the knowledge of the smallest energy particles.

Practicing in the human world means understanding the truth of all things inside and outside the universe and practicing producing sustainable energy particles to help the tuelinhs mature and become immortal. At that time, the tuelinhs has the power to control and detonate countless destructive energies while still being safe. That is the purpose and mission of the tuelinhs and souls practising in the human world. Therefore, practising in the human world is not about chanting, praying, meditating, and performing rituals. The practices you have gone through do not help you produce sustainable energy particles. On the contrary, they cause you to lose control because their toxins bind to the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul within you. That causes your soul to produce many harmful energy particles from strong to super-strong electric waves in past and present lives. As a result, the composite energy particle structure in your soul has many energy particle clusters with negative multiparticles. That is the cause of many spiritual problems, such as being possessed by demons, seeing demons, all kinds of mental illnesses, and many serious diseases. The negative multiparticle clusters in the tuelinh and soul will have a mechanism to copy and produce when sufficient conditions are ensured for that mechanism to occur.

The toxic information of the harmful particles was copied and bombarded into your brain and body, making you think that you had supernatural powers and the ability to communicate with Buddha, God, and spirits. In addition, it causes you to show symptoms of different types of mental and physical illnesses."

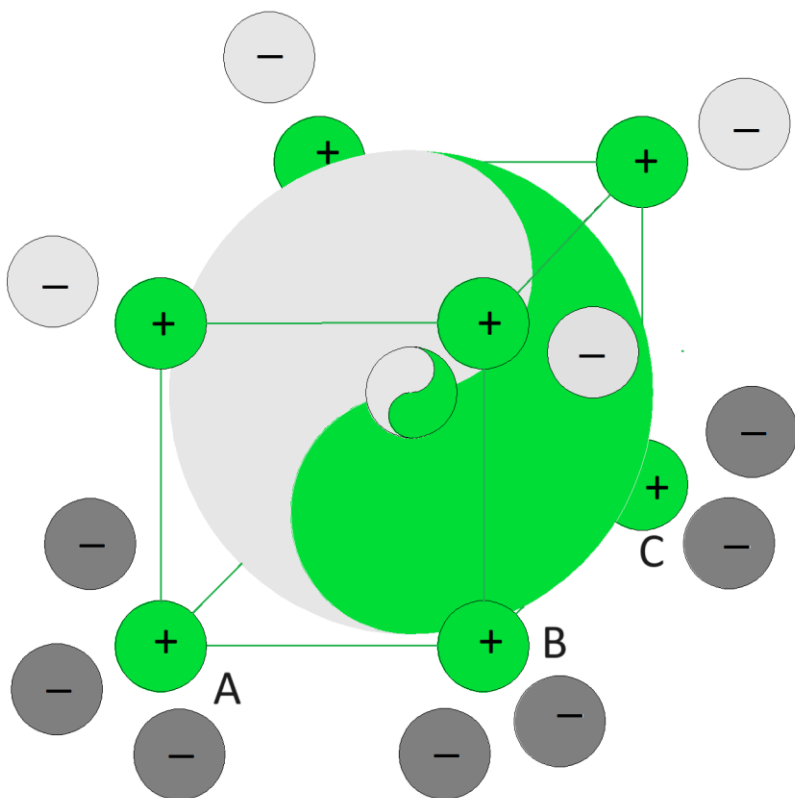

"Teacher, I am like a person drowning in the river of ignorance who you rescued to enjoy the light of truth. From your teachings, I feel the warmth in my soul and body. Something that, for a long time, I have always felt cold inside me. It's wonderful, teacher; your words make me strongly believe in you and the knowledge that you teach everyone. That is like some invisible power that gives me that faith and trust after being taught by the teacher for more than an hour."

The teacher replied, "That's because inside you is a soul that has suffered many injuries from past and present lives. It is the experience of suffering on the journey to carry out one's mission in the human world. Therefore, when that soul encounters the light of knowledge, origin, mission, and path to liberate suffering truly, that soul is like children returning home to the arms of a father's love. That father is the first tuelinh, and all tuelinhs are born from the yin and yang energy particles of the first tuelinh."

"Teacher, how can I quickly improve the energy particle structure in my soul? There may be too many energy particle clusters with negative multiparticles in my soul. Please show me how I can improve myself soon."

The teacher took a pen and drew the structure of synthetic energy particles outside the mature energy embryo on the board.

The energy particle structure has negative multi-particles in particle clusters

Then, the teacher said, "Look at the picture depicting the structure of synthetic energy particles outside the mature yin and yang energy embryo of the tuelinh or soul. It is a structure with three negative energy multiparticle clusters.

This structure has particle clusters A, B, and C. Each cluster is formed by encoded information content due to interactions in the four forms of Tao in the human world. Cluster A contains marital information, cluster B contains business and production information, and cluster C contains information on spreading knowledge. You must understand that a group of information content has many clusters of energy particles, just like a group of information content in a husband-and-wife relationship has many different clusters of particles. They are different because of the difference in context and the level of interaction of each tuelinh in many other lives. Therefore, in the soul and tuelinh there are many different groups of clusters of energy particles, all of which form four groups of functional energy particles corresponding to the four forms of Tao in the human world.

Do you know why there are clusters of energy particles with multiple harmful particles? That is, there is only one positive particle and many harmful particles in each cluster of energy particles. That is:

- Positive energy particles in clusters A, B, and C are people interacting and taking actions that benefit everyone in the interactive content of the four forms of Tao. Therefore, the yin-yang energy embryo produces one or more positive energy particles that contain information about that interaction context. The positive energy particles created are the smallest. They bond to form synthetic positive particles if the yin-yang embryo produces many of the smallest positive energy particles. After they connect to form synthetic positive particles, they will move outside the synthetic particle structure to bond with positive energy particles with similar content to that particle.

- Next, harmful particles with weak electric waves produced in the same reaction that produces positive particles will form synthetic harmful particles, and they move outside the structure to rotate around positive particles with the same information content.

- However, with a lot of pressure and maximum compression, people are unaware of the truth and values that need to be practised; they practice ignorant actions that harm everyone, animals and everything. Therefore, harmful energy particles are produced while positive energy particles are not produced. At that time, the harmful synthetic particles will move outside the synthetic particle structure and rotate around the positive particles with the same or similar information content. That's why many harmful particles are in a cluster of positive particles. That means the harmful particles produced by interactions in a husband-and-wife relationship cannot revolve around positive particles with different contents. It only rotates around positive particles with the same information content created from the husband-and-wife relationship. Therefore, when people have many acts of ignorance in any content of the four forms of Tao, they will produce an excess of harmful energy particles and have many clusters of harmful energy particles.

Restructuring and rebalancing the synthetic particle structure is simple. Producing many positive energy particles with the same content as the negative multiparticle cluster is straightforward. When positive particles are abundant and have the same information content as the clusters of negative multiparticles, they will move out of those clusters and recreate the structure, as shown in this illustration.

Regenerate and rebalance the synthetic energy particle structure

In cluster A, after the tuelinh produces positive particles with the same content as particle A, they move to particle cluster A and restructure that particle cluster with many particles to rebalance. The ratio of yin and yang particles is 1:1. The same is true for particle clusters B and C.

The restructuring and rebalancing of negative multiparticle clusters are similar to producing energy particles to develop and expand the particle structure of the tuelinh. That is to help the tuelinhs mature and have the power to detonate the energy of destruction.

Thus, to balance and restructure the negative multiparticle cluster with content in the husband-wife relationship, in production and business, and in spreading knowledge to everyone, you must produce positive energy particles with the same information contents as those particle clusters. That is, you must have the ideology and practice to bring the values of happiness and fidelity to your wife to balance particle cluster A. It would help if you practised producing positive particles related to production and business to bring the best values to consumers and customers through production and business to balance cluster B. Finally, you must practice producing many positive particles in spreading the proper knowledge about the path of practice in the human world to everyone to balance cluster C particles.

You cannot know what harmful particles you have produced in your past lives and what clusters of information content you have negative multiparticles in, so you can practice making the correct type of positive energy particles. However, knowing the two truths with the smallest energy particle will help you have a magical method to produce energy particles for all groups of energy particles that assist the tuelinh in maturing and achieving an energy filter. After understanding the truth of all things in and out of the universe and understanding the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production, you can practice spreading this special enlightened knowledge to everyone to work together on producing sustainable energy particles through the four forms of the Tao. Applying knowledge is the most magical mechanism for generating energy particles because the information is energy particles and everything. If we spread information that has value for sustainable development, it will help all things in the universe develop sustainably, and then the value of the particles produced is precious. On the contrary, if information that destroys sustainable development is spread, the energy particles produced contain many toxins.

Please take the time to study and research the knowledge of the two truths carefully before deciding whether to spread the practice or not. Observe and verify the values that knowledge brings to people to make the best decisions in learning and practising.

Remember, I have never called or lured anyone to follow me to learn and spread the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of energy particles. Because people understand and see the value that knowledge brings to them and everyone else, they voluntarily study and spread knowledge to everyone."

"Teacher, meeting you and your knowledge is the luckiest thing in my life. Even though I have not studied or read about your knowledge, I have understood and had a magical transformation in my soul when listening to your lectures. It's like a miracle. Right now, my body is warm, and my mind feels peaceful. That is opposite from the time I walked in to see the teacher; at that time, I was highly uncomfortable in my body; I had a heavy head, headaches, and body aches.

Teacher, I hope you will allow me to come to your classroom to listen to your lectures and learn your knowledge. Please let me become your student.

The teacher said, "You can come to my classes to learn. I have no reason to refuse you. Please try to learn and understand how to practice the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production. However, please stop all the methods you are practising. Take advantage of your human life to learn and practice the knowledge of the two truths because that is knowledge, the most wonderful mind dharma in the universe. In particular, it is the only path to help the tuelinhs attain the unifying Tao of the universe, the path of complete enlightenment, and an energy filter."

Chapter Sixty-Eight

The Law of Cause and Effect of All Life Forms Inside and Outside the Universe

It's boiling outside, which is the typical heat of Hanoi's weather in the summer. Summer is something that most people here do not like because it is too hot; there are even nights when the temperature is still above 30 degrees Celsius. In the air of such intense heat, delicious cups of iced coffee are an excellent drink for many people. The Teacher still enjoys a cup of hot tea in the morning and relaxing in his office. The door suddenly opened, and Truong, Duong Nalanda, and the students entered. They held delicious cups of iced coffee and bags of fruit.

Duong Nalanda told the Teacher, "Teacher, try drinking this coffee and see how it goes. This type is very fragrant and delicious. Maybe in hot weather like this, you won't have a runny nose when drinking coffee. Also, please eat some cake before drinking, and you'll be fine."

The Teacher said, "I have tried drinking coffee many times, but every time, I have an allergic reaction with a runny nose even if I eat something before drinking it. Okay, let's try it this time and see how it goes. Coffee is a drink that helps the brain stay alert to work; it is the same as tea. I'm used to drinking tea even in the morning without eating anything without having any allergies. On the contrary, many people cannot drink tea. Instead, they drink a lot of strong coffee in the morning without getting allergic even if they haven't eaten anything before."

Afterwards, the Teacher and everyone enjoyed a delicious cup of iced coffee. However, he continuously sneezed and had a runny nose after drinking it. It is an allergic phenomenon every time the Teacher drinks coffee. So, the allergy still occurred this time even though the Teacher ate some food before swallowing. However, the deliciousness of a cup of coffee always makes it a drink for all people before they start a new day's work.

After a while, the Teacher's allergies ended. At that time, the Teacher laughed and said, "That is the cause and effect of intentionally drinking a drink that I know will cause an allergic reaction when I drink it."

A student immediately laughed and said, "Drinking coffee is also cause and effect, teacher?"

The Teacher replied, "That was just a joke. Drinking coffee and having allergies are not cause and effect. Cause and effect have clear natures and operating mechanisms, but cannot be said and inferred emotionally."

Truong Nalanda said, "Teacher, many people believe that the law of cause and effect belongs to Buddhism and Hinduism. Many people in other religions deny the existence of the law of cause and effect. They believe that God has arranged and resolved everything, so Christians do not have any law of cause and effect that operates them."

The Teacher said, "It is a sad thing for people when they differentiate this religion from other religions. They are ignorant when thinking that the law of cause and effect belongs to some religion and that people are not subject to the law of cause and effect. That is human ignorance, which is not understanding the truth about the origin and practice mission of humans in the human world and not understanding the truth of oneself and others, all things, and destructive energy. However, that is also the scenario of the practice environment to help people release all the toxins inside, then activate the good elements when they experience all the suffering and calamities of humanity.

You must know that the law of cause and effect is another name for the mechanism and transformation journey of life forms in and outside the universe. When called the law of cause and effect, it emphasises the consequences of each practical mechanism that produces energy particles of life forms in and outside the universe. Because people believe that cause and effect is punishment for evil actions in the past, people are allergic and afraid when it comes to the law of cause and effect. Even if people do not believe, the law of cause and effect still exists in all forms of life in and outside the universe. The reason is that, in all life forms in and outside the universe, there are always transmutation mechanisms: transformation towards decay and destruction and transformation towards sustainability. It would help if you remembered that the transformation mechanism is the law of cause and effect. These terms are similar but different in called terms, emphasising the consequences of actions for each transmutation mechanism."

A student immediately said, "Teacher, when people understand the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy, they all believe in the law of cause and effect. When people understand that the law of cause and effect is the transformation mechanism of all life forms in and outside the universe, they understand that it is an obvious truth that cannot be discussed or said that the law of cause and effect is some religion. It's wonderful, Teacher; only knowledge of the two truths and the smallest particle of energy can help humans understand the truth of all things in and out of the universe. When I had not yet learned your knowledge, I also felt scared when I heard the phrase "law of cause and effect". However, after learning the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle, when it comes to the law of cause and effect, I find it very gentle, and there is nothing to fear. As I understand it, cause and effect results from producing energy particles. It is nothing mysterious, and nothing is God's punishment for humans. Like you said, it's all a practical mechanism to produce energy particles."

The Teacher asked his students, "Do you want to explore the mechanism of transmutation from the law of cause and effect perspective? It is to view and explore the transformation of all life forms in and out of the universe in a way that emphasizes the value of each reaction that produces energy particles."

The students said together, "Yes, Teacher. We are eager to listen because each of your lectures is like a miracle that helps us increase the power of truth information and mind dharma in our tuelinhs."

The Teacher continued, "When helping you discover and understand the law of cause and effect of all life forms in and outside the universe, I will separate the law of cause and effect of the tuelinhs and souls when they participate in reincarnation in the human world. That helps you understand more about the contributions of Nalas Nalanda and his five messengers in operating the life of the practice environment in the human world and the entire life of wisdom and soul in the universe."

After a few minutes of enjoying the tea, the Teacher began the lecture, "Before I let you transform into the smallest energy particles to discover the cause and effect law of life forms from ancestral wave-particles to all living beings life forms in and out of the universe, I will help you understand the nature of some essential issues. That is:

- What is the law of nature? - It is the dialectical relationship between the nature and manifestation of all things, events, phenomena in and outside the universe, the tuelinhs and humans.

- What is the law of cause and effect? - It is the dialectical relationship between the nature and manifestation of the information reaction process between the internal and external environments of all life forms in and outside the universe.

- What is the nature of the law of cause and effect? - It is the transmutation mechanism of all things in and out of the universe. It includes a transformation mechanism towards decay and destruction and a transmutation mechanism towards sustainability.

You must remember that the mechanism of producing and connecting energy particles is the mechanism that operates the law of cause and effect for all life forms in the universe. However, the life forms of destructive energy particles and ancestral wave-particles outside the universe do not have a production and connection mechanism.

And now, please close your eyes and let me help you discover the law of cause and effect of all life forms in and out of the universe. Let's get started:

You are the smallest energy particles and are ready from my instructions to return to the past in the universe's space. Move with me; I will always be a shiny yellow energy particle guiding your way. Do you know? We are on a journey through time to the past, which means we are moving at the speed of thought.

We have arrived at the time and space we need, which is endless and empty. Only a few ancestral wave-particles have been born in this infinite space. They move in spiral orbits, and their movement causes them to generate internal heat. The moving process helped the ancestral wave-particles melt and encode information from the outside environment to transform into destructive energy particles in a heatless environment. The destructive energy particle results from an incomplete transformation process and encodes a simple and small amount of information from the ancestral wave-particle. That causes destructive particles after being born without a rotation mechanism or a production and connection mechanism. Therefore, they cannot link to form physical structures that are more significant than the smallest energy particle. Besides, when ancestral wave-particles move into an environment with positive or negative heat, they radically change and transform into the smallest energy particles with positive and negative electric waves. The smallest energy particle with an electric wave results from the wave-particle being melted and thoroughly transformed. This process allows them to encode much information from the outside environment into the intellectual wave code. So, what is the cause-and-effect law of the ancestral wave-particle? It is the reaction process of encoding information and different transformations of wave-particles in different environments. The results of those other processes created different types of energy particles. It can be understood that the information value of destructive energy particles, energy particles with positive and negative electric waves, is the result of the information reaction chain of wave-particles.

Please observe the life form of the energy of destruction. They have become a life form with countless smallest energy particles, and they exist independently without connection to each other. They live without a mechanism of production and connection and a mechanism of rotation. The reason is that they result from the incomplete transformation of the ancestral wave-particles. Because it is not completely transformed, the destructive particle still has an energy state that has not been released. That makes them easily detonated when moving in high density. However, when they stop moving, their excess heat generation is stopped, and there is no longer a risk of detonation. Thus, here we see that the cause and effect of the destructive energy particle life form is to be detonated and destroyed when they move in dense density. On the contrary, they will not be fired when moving slowly and ensure a safe distance from other particles during movement. Next, look at the areas where the destructive energy particles were detonated; the ancestral wave-particles were transformed into positive and negative energy particles after they moved into the area of positive and negative heat after the explosion of destructive energy particles. That shows the value of the results of explosions of destructive energy, which is the formation of new life as energy particles with positive and negative electric waves. Look, the destructive energy particles are constantly attacking the yin and yang energy embryo of the universe. Those attacks were all detonated by that yin and yang energy embryo. The heat from the explosions of destructive energy is absorbed by the yin and yang energy embryo and continuously produces countless energy particles. That causes that energy embryo to become a giant energy sphere with a mature tuelinh within. Thus, you see that the result of the action of attacking destructive particles causes them to have an outcome of being detonated and destroyed. However, please observe that in areas with negative heat formed after explosions of destructive energy in their living space, the destructive energy particles have been cooled again after moving into that environment. In addition, it will be revived and cooled again after discharging excess heat into harmful energy particles. As a result, negative energy particles are assimilated into destructive particles. That shows that cold heat has saved the destructive energy particles from detonating due to excess heat caused by moving and gathering at high density. Thus, you have understood the law of cause and effect of the destructive particle life forms. They will be detonated and destroyed when moving into an environment with positive heat or gathering in high density. On the contrary, they will be saved and safe when moving into an environment with cold heat. When detonated, they create incredibly excellent values to create life for other life forms. That shows that each information reaction in different environments has made different values and results of destructive energy life forms. Its result can be to create the destruction of another life form or create sustainable development value for another life form while it is destroyed.

Let's continue to observe the yin and yang energy particles formed from wave-particles in the habitat of destructive energy. They result from the transformation process from ancestral wave-particles when they have radically transformed and encoded valuable information from the external environment. These energy particles with positive and negative electric waves have diverse information values and have more developed characteristics than the information value of destructive energy particle life forms. Thanks to that excellent information value, they have rotation, production and connection mechanisms. It creates new results in their transformation journey, also known as their cause-and-effect journey. However, that is their future. And now, look at them: the positive energy particles are detonated, and the energy of destruction assimilates the negative energy particles. It results from destruction when existing and reacting in an environment with destructive energy particles.

Do you see anything? Yin and yang energy embryos are formed by connecting the smallest yin and yang energy particles. Although those yin and yang energy embryos were detonated and assimilated by destructive energy later, they created a new value by the chain of information reactions between yin and yang particles to form a linking mechanism between them. It shows that the result of the connection between yin and yang particles is the formation of an energy embryo with more excellent information value and carrying the characteristics of life development for new life forms.

Look, that energy embryo is the magical yin and yang energy embryo that created the universe and the first tuelinh. That yin-yang embryo is formed from a positive energy particle with super-strong electric waves and a negative energy particle with weak electric waves. They are all energy particles transformed from wave-particles. It results from the information reaction process in an environment with negative and positive heat of two wave-particles. Linking two positive and negative energy particles together to form a yin and yang energy embryo with large and massive information value results from a new information reaction, connecting and circulating information between them. It results from the information reaction process of positive and negative particles. Do you see anything? That yin and yang energy embryo is not detonated or assimilated by the destructive energy. On the contrary, that yin and yang energy embryo has the miraculous ability to blast destructive energy. It then absorbs the heat from those explosions to produce many other positive and negative energy particles. This process takes a long time and causes the yin and yang energy embryo to grow into a giant energy sphere. Inside the sphere of energy is a mature tuelinh, and around him are countless smallest energy particles. This development process caused numerous destructive energy particles to be detonated by the magical power of the original yin-yang embryo and the first tuelinh inside that giant energy sphere. Finally, a massive explosion happened when the first tuelinh majestically stood in the centre of the energy space. Thus, the development journey of that miraculous energy embryo until the Big Bang occurs shows that a cause and effect journey is continuously taking place, which is the journey of absorbing the destructive energy of the original negative energy particle and negative particle system, followed by the journey of detonating the destructive energy particles of the initial positive particle and positive particle system in the energy sphere. This cause-and-effect process repeats over and over for a long time to create countless energy particles with negative, positive, and neutral electrical waves. A cause-and-effect journey brings sustainable development value to the smallest energy particles with electric waves. For that development journey to achieve such sustainability, countless particles of destructive energy are detonated and become a precious source of heat for the energy sphere and the first tuelinh.

Do you see that adult tuelinh after the explosion? He is the tuelinh born from the universe's yin and yang energy embryo. It can be understood that he is the essence and the most superior intelligence of the universe when he has the supernatural power of the yin and yang embryo to operate destructive energy detonation reactions for a long time to create countless energy particles in the energy sphere. In particular, that process helped him be born from a yin and yang embryo and continuously mature to become an adult tuelinh with extraordinary power to detonate countless destructive energy particles. There has never been any tuelinh or any physical structure capable of blasting energy of annihilation like him. That shows that his cause-and-effect journey is to create information reactions by harmful particles to absorb destructive particles that attack him. Then, he operates his positive energy to detonate them. As a result, he can blast annihilation energy in vast quantities to help him grow and create countless smallest energy particles with different electrical waves.

Amazingly, the first tuelinh built the planets and formed countless galaxies surrounding the central planet. The first tuelinh linked groups of energy embryos with similar information and simple intellectual wave codes to form simple large-scale physical structures such as atoms, molecules, metal blocks, soil, rocks, meteorites, and planets. That is the shape of the universe because of his wisdom and dedication. The created solar systems can detonate destructive energy to promote the development of life forms in the universe. However, countless physical structures have multiple negative energies disintegrating by annihilation energy. That shows the cause-and-effect law of simple physical structures, such as decomposing and destroying planets by destructive energy and their ability to detonate annihilation energy. Development and destruction are two types of values, two results of different information reaction chains of simple material structures in the universe.

Look at the complex energy wiring system. The first tuelinh created it to form the material that binds simple physical structures into solidly connected structures, such as planets and solar systems, and all planets in the universe are linked to the central planet. Thanks to this complex energy, the universe operates in a circular orbit. It can detonate destructive energy to promote all life forms' production and connection mechanisms in the universe. However, many complex energies are dissolved by the energy of destruction. Additionally, they are consumed in their mission for the sustainable development of all life forms in the universe. Thus, the complex energy group's causal journey is consumed by uniting all life forms in the universe. In addition, they are also disintegrated by destructive energy.

Those are the baby tuelinhs; the souls inside you are the same. All were born from the implantation of energy embryos with super-complex intellectual wave codes into magical rock crystals in the cave at the central planet by the first tuelinh. He cared for them to be born and then raised them to maturity. However, they cannot detonate destructive energy. Therefore, he repeatedly took them to practice bursting annihilation energy without success. That forced him to create a practice environment on earth for the tuelinhs and souls to reside in human form to find a practical mechanism to detonate destructive particles safely. That is to find a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles for the tuelinh life form to mature and become immortal like the first tuelinh. Thus, the cause and effect law of the tuelinhs shows that they can be decomposed and destroyed by the energy of destruction because they cannot detonate. On the contrary, through the first tunnelling, we can see that he has a cause-and-effect mechanism that explodes countless destructive energies to produce numerous energies to create life in the universe.

And now, please open your eyes and return to reality.

Thus, you have discovered the journey and cause and effect laws of all life forms in and outside the universe. That is, from the wave-particle life form to the smallest energy particle with electric waves, the tuelinhs and the entire universe. It shows you the dialectical relationship between nature and expression in the information reactions of life forms with the external environment to create new values. The new value could be the transformation into new life forms, such as the life forms of ancestral wave-particles. The new value can be destroyed to create sustainable development value for other life forms, such as the life form of destructive energy. The new value can be sustainable development through a sustainable transformation mechanism due to the ability to detonate the destructive energy of material structures in the universe, most typically the first tuelinh."

A student immediately said, "Teacher, through the approach of the law of cause and effect to see the value created by the information reactions of all life forms despite its nature as a transformation mechanism, I can gain a more thorough and comprehensive understanding of the truth of all things in and out of the universe. It's amazing, Teacher. By combining different approaches to understanding the nature and secrets of information within the smallest energy particles of all life forms in and out of the universe, the learner will achieve a type of special enlightened wisdom. I realized that, in my mind, I had achieved a state of utmost peace and extreme freedom. It feels like I exist in all things, and all things exist in me."

The Teacher interrupted, "Hey you, do you know what that is? That is the mind dharma. The mind dharma is the wisdom that resides in all things inside and outside the universe, and their wisdom exists in the wisdom of the soul. Two is one; one is two. That is a state of radical understanding of oneself and others, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction. That is the wisdom of complete enlightenment. Please use it in this human life to practice producing countless sustainable energy particles. Don't miss this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. That is, don't stay from me in this life. Please accompany me on the journey to spread the knowledge of the two truths until the end of human life. At that time, I will transform your yin and yang energy into an energy filter."

The students immediately replied, "We have already vowed to follow you. That's why we don't care about the pleasures of getting rich or enjoying life. Following you to spread knowledge with you is our mission."

Chapter Sixty-Nine

The Law of Cause and Effect of the Tuelinhs and Souls When Participating in Cultivation in the Human World

The teacher smiled after seeing his most enthusiastic students say they would follow him in this human life to help him spread knowledge to the world.

After that, the teacher said, "Please relax; I will continue to teach you about the law of cause and effect of the tuelinhs and souls participating in the practice process in the human world. That is an exceptional type of knowledge because it is the crystallisation of the transformation mechanism with the system of operating the cause and effect tree that the first tuelinh created to support and help all tuelinhs and souls in the journey of practice in the human world. Because you have learned about the mechanism of transformation and the system of operating the cause and effect tree for the tuelinhs and souls in the human world, you will have a deeper insight into the law of cause and effect of humans. In particular, you will see the transcendent wisdom and dedication of the first tuelinh and his five messengers."

After letting the students rest and relax, the teacher lectured, "Do you know? Before the conference to gather humanity on Earth and before bringing the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans, the first tuelinh thought a lot. He thought he would find the most effective method to help people practising in the human world quickly understand themselves and everyone else, all things, and the energy of destruction. When humans were formed in the human world, they were incarnations of the tuelinhs from the central planet. Outside are people of different ages, genders, jobs and personalities. However, inside, they are all little tuelinhs with secrets hidden in their yin and yang energy embryos. In addition, after humans tame animals, their souls will be transformed into tuelinhs, and they will also become humans to practice with the tuelinhs from the central planet. That will create a large amount of information that needs to be processed in their lives on Earth.

The first tuelinh focused on how to help them quickly understand themselves and other tuelinhs, understand all things in the universe, and understand the energy of destruction. He had to analyse these things for a long time, and he came to understand:

- To understand yourself, you must understand others; to understand others, you must understand yourself. These two things are closely tied together and cannot be separated. That is:

+ To understand the good values within yourself, you must appreciate the good values of others. The good values of other people will be used as a reference to see if you have those good values and what the level of those good values in yourself is compared to others. To understand the toxic values within yourself, you must understand the poisonous values of others. Other people's harmful values people will be used as a reference to see if you have those destructive values and what your level is compared to everyone else.

+ On the contrary, to understand the good values within everyone, you must appreciate the good values within yourself. Take those values as a reference and compare the level of everyone's goodness with your goodness. To understand the toxic values within everyone, you must realise the harmful values within yourself. Take those values as a reference and compare everyone's toxicity level with your toxicity.

- To understand all things, you must understand yourself and others first. Through the experiences of understanding yourself and others, you can understand the nature of negative, positive, and neutral energy particles. So it would have to be:

+ If people practice kindness towards everyone, animals and all things, they will receive good values in life. Those good values will help them understand themselves and their achievements. That will help them understand the inner values of positive actions and positive results as positive energy particles.

+ On the contrary, if people practice toxic values that hurt people, animals and all things, they will have to accept poisonous values in life. Those harmful values will help them understand themselves and the consequences of their actions.

That will help them understand the inner values of negative actions and outcomes: toxic energy particles.

- Understanding all things is understanding the nature and value of energy particles carrying positive, negative, and neutral electrical waves. These energy particles result from the information reaction process with each person's external environment. Even though humans don't understand, it helps the first tuelinh to understand, and then he will spread that knowledge in the human world to help them know the secrets they are searching for through practice in the human world.

- Understanding yourself, understanding everyone, and everything must be closely tied together without separation. All three elements are the essence and always exist in every information reaction of all things in and out of the universe. Therefore, for humans, there is no exception. That will help the tuelinhs and souls understand themselves and each other through the values of actions and results in each information reaction to each other. In addition, it helps them thoroughly understand their transformation mechanism through the results they have created. Through the results of actions, we know the nature and values hidden within each tuelinh and soul.

- Of course, it is a massive challenge for the tuelinhs to understand themselves and other tuelinhs. Therefore, the first tuelinh will have to incarnate as a human to help them understand themselves, others, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction. His duty and mission are to survive and develop all life forms in and outside the universe.

You know, his thoughts and analyses are based on the transformation mechanism. The main emphasis is through the results of all the information reactions of each tuelinh and soul in the human world to understand the nature and values hidden within them and all things. That is the law of cause and effect that each tuelinh and soul participating in human incarnation must follow their arrangement and practice plan in each human life that the first tuelinh will create later.

After those analyses, he realized that his creation of the law of cause and effect for tuelinhs and souls participating in practice in the human world would help them quickly understand their nature, each other, and all things and the energy of destruction.

After that, he continued to think about the level of cause and effect that each person will have to experience and receive in each life. The process of thinking and analyzing helped him understand that:

- Each human information reaction will help the tuelinh and soul inside produce the smallest energy particles. However, the value of the particle will be different because of the difference in information reactions.

- Receiving and experiencing in an environment with values corresponding to the results created will help tuelinhs and souls quickly understand the exact nature of themselves, everyone and everything. If people produce harmful blood-red energy particles, they will have to live in an environment damaged by the toxic values of the blood-red harmful energy particles they cause. On the contrary, if people produce fire-red positive energy particles, they will live in an environment with positive values like fire-red positive energy particles.

- The level and intensity of experiences in the law of cause and effect of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world will have to be calculated and arranged so that each person's chain of cause and effect information must be closely linked together in the human world. The chain of cause and effect information is the milestones and scenarios to create human information reactions in the human world, such as the place and time of human incarnation, living environment, time when events will occur, significant interactions in life such as marriage, illness, death, and many other milestones. All those milestones must be based on the results created in past lives, and those informational values will have been stored in the energy particles of each tuelinh and soul. Of course, there must be arrangements from the first tuelinh.

Thus, he has finished deciphering the construction of a practice plan for the tuelinhs and souls in the human world to help them quickly understand the nature of themselves, others, all things and the energy of destruction. However, he saw that the workload of operating cause and effect for the tuelinhs and souls in the human world was huge, while he had to handle a lot of work for the protection and development of all life in and out of the universe. Thus, another challenge appeared for him. That made him continue to think about finding the most effective solution.

After analysing and calculating, he realised he had an information transceiver system. Therefore, why not use that system to operate the law of cause and effect of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world? However, that system only does one task: receiving and transmitting information. It cannot store and process data for the tuelinhs and souls participating in the practice process in the human world.

Then he saw that he had a pyramid made of unique gems, which was used as an information processing centre and operated all life forms in the universe. Therefore, he realised that he would have to create a center to store and process information for all tuelinhs and souls in the human world. That centre will keep the energy particles each tuelinh and soul produces in the human world. It will analyse and provide further interaction scenarios for tuelinhs and souls in their journey of human incarnation.

Thus, he found solutions to the challenges of helping the tuelinhs and souls practice in the human world to achieve enlightenment.

After that, he created a space to operate the law of cause and effect for all tuelinhs and souls participating in practice in the human world. He made that space next to the space containing the pyramid that operates the universe's life. In that space, he made an area to store energy particles produced from all tuelinhs and people in the human world, including both positive and negative energy. Those energy particles are the data for him to build a cause and effect tree for each tuelinh and soul in the human world, and to take the energy particles produced by the tuelinhs and souls in the human world, the information transceiver system will be responsible for providing signals and thrust so that those energy particles can be transferred to the stored centre. Besides, he created a model that operates in that space, the model on which his five messengers later worked and managed. Please imagine that workspace as follows: it is a closed and strictly protected space. In the middle is a giant pyramid 20 times taller than an adult. A large plane is at the top of the pyramid; five messengers work there. Surrounding the working pyramid of the five messengers are the systems that operate the practice environment on Earth. All energy particles produced by all tuelinhs and souls in the human world are stored in the space surrounding the pyramid. The system operating the law of cause and effect will interact and react with all energy particles stored in it to calculate and build spiritual practice plans for all tuelinhs and souls in the human world. Of course, when the first tuelinh and the five messengers incarnate as humans, the practice plan must also be processed in the system to form a link with the law of cause and effect of other people in the human world. However, his human incarnation will depend on his choice of time, country, family, parents, and significant milestones; The system will have to handle the rest.

After he finished building a system to operate a practice environment for the tuelinhs and souls in the human world, he organised a conference to gather humanity and bring the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to practice. After several lifetimes of practice, he let his five messengers operate that system for him after they had achieved initial achievements on their practice journey in the human world. In addition, the five messengers must participate in managing the transiting planet to help the tuelinhs and souls quickly reincarnate into new lives when they are transferred there. The system that operates the cause-and-effect tree of all tuelinhs and souls practising in the human world is responsible for strictly managing all tuelinhs and souls whether they are in transit on the transiting planet, whether they are still stranded on Earth, and though they rest on the central planet."

After seeing the Teacher drinking water and stopping the lecture, the students immediately said to the Teacher, "Teacher, this is the first time I have heard you lecture about the operating system of the cause and effect tree and what the first tuelinh did to operate the entire practice journey of the tuelinh and souls in the human world. That is an extremely valuable lecture, and it helps us better understand the law of cause and effect. In the past, what we and everyone else simply understood about cause and effect was that whatever seed we sow will result in that result, or if we create any action, we will receive the corresponding result. However, after being taught by the Teacher about the system of operating the cause and effect tree, the thoughts, the analysis, and then what the first tuelinh did, this gave us a deeper understanding of his love and concern for reaching out to all tuelinh and souls in the human world."

After that, the Teacher continued the lecture, "Do you know how cause and effect are produced? Where do they go after they are born? Please try to remember what I say about these issues below:

Causal particles are the smallest energy particles with negative, positive, and neutral electrical waves. It includes ivory-white positive energy particles with weak electric waves, green positive energy particles with strong electric waves, fire-red positive energy particles with very strong electric waves, yellow positive energy particles with super-strong electric waves, grey-white negative energy particles have weak electric waves, grey negative energy particles have strong electric waves, black negative energy particles have very strong electric waves and blood-red negative energy particles have super-strong electric waves. These energy particles have an extremely complex intellectual wave code because they encode many highly complex information values. Those information values result from information reaction processes in the human practice environment with the participation of all types of energy particles and even destructive energy. The intellectual nature of these causal energy particles is the intelligent nature of every kind of energy particle I have taught in the lectures on the wisdom nature of the tuelinhs and humans. It is similar in the intellectual nature of the energy particles that make up the tuelinhs and souls, the causal energy particles produced from them, and the energy particles that constitute the life forms in the universe.

Harmful energy particles with electric waves from strong to super-strong are produced when people practice ignorant actions that harm people, animals, and everything. Depending on the value and level of damage, the value of harmful particles contains different levels of toxins.

On the contrary, positive energy particles with electric waves from strong to super-strong are produced when people practice enlightened actions that bring sustainable development value to people, animals, and everything. In addition, harmful energy particles with weak electric waves and neutral particles are also produced through each human reaction that creates positive energy particles. That shows the value of practising the mechanism of generating positive energy particles. Through this production, the tuelinh structure becomes more mature and quickly achieves achievements on the practice path in the human world.

The process of producing a particle of energy in the tuelinh and the soul residing in the human body takes place in the following stages:

- Phase of interaction with the surrounding environment to decode initial information. That is the stage where each person will interact, such as seeing, hearing, and knowing about something, events, things, people and others. That knowledge helps the soul absorb and retain a simple amount of information about the surrounding environment. This interaction process can happen very quickly or take place over a long period. It depends on the reaction of data from the yin and yang embryos in the tuelinh or souls. When a reaction occurs, the newly stored information with the yin and yang embryo's original information will move to the next stage.

- Information reaction stage in the yin and yang embryo. This stage occurs after much information is absorbed and an interactive reaction to the information in the yin and yang embryo is formed. This information reaction creates a subsequent process of decoding and encoding information.

- The stage of decoding and encoding information. This stage takes place fiercely because of the information reaction process inside and between inside and outside. The internal information reaction is the struggle to control information between the original negative and positive energy particles. Internal information responses take place simultaneously with information reactions to the external environment.

Because the built external environment consists of negative and positive environments, all humans will fully inhabit all environments for each interaction. Therefore, at this stage of decoding and encoding information, the yin and yang embryo will be dominated by all positive information values and damaging information from the external environment. Decoding and encoding external information moves to the stage of creating ideology.

- Stage of creating ideology. That results from decoding and encoding information after a reactive journey to absorb information from the external environment. Suppose the original negative energy particle dominates the positive energy particle in the yin and yang embryo. In that case, a large amount of negative information from the outside environment is encoded into the yin and yang embryo, and the ideology created will be harmful. On the contrary, if the original positive energy particle dominates the negative particle in the yin and yang embryo, a large amount of positive information from the external environment is encoded, and the ideology created is positive. When people have an ideology, they will transform it into action.

- Action phase. This stage depends on the ideology created in the yin and yang embryo of the soul. If the ideology is harmful, the soul will control the body to develop actions that hurt people, animals, and everything. On the contrary, if the ideology is positive, the soul will hold the body to create actions that bring sustainable development values to people, animals, and everything.

- The complete stage of the cause and effect particle production. This stage is the end of the action or action sequence of the information reaction process in all human interaction scenarios in the four forms of Tao. This phase will produce the following results: positive energy particles with electric waves from slightly strong to super strong will be made after the end of positive actions. On the contrary, harmful energy particles with electric waves, from slightly strong to super strong, will be produced after the end of negative human actions. In addition, harmful energy particles with weak electric waves and neutral particles are also produced at the end of positive actions.

The causal energy particles produced by the tuelinhs and souls in human form in the human world store a valuable amount of super complex information. It includes one's own toxic or good information value, the toxic or good information value of others, of all things, and especially the participation of destructive energy. That means that the positive energy particles produced store the good information values of ourselves, everyone, everything and the heat of the detonated destructive energy particles. Harmful energy particles with electric waves, from slightly strong to super strong, store toxic information about ourselves, everyone and everything. Thus, when practising the production of positive energy particles, you have seen the ability to detonate destructive energy particles of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world. It is an excellent achievement in the journey of maturity and transforming the yin and yang energy embryo into the energy filter of the tuelinhs and souls.

The number of energy particles produced after each human action-reaction depends on the amount of heat and the value of information absorbed and transmitted. Heat includes cold heat, positive heat, and the heat of detonated destructive energy. Information value includes negative information and positive information that is absorbed and transmitted. That means that through various human interactions, the tuelinh or soul within can produce one too many energy particles in the same reaction. Remember that no positive energy particles will be created in the same reaction when making harmful energy particles with electric waves from slightly strong to super-strong. However, when producing positive energy particles with electric waves from slightly strong to super-strong, neutral energy particles and harmful particles with weak electric waves are made in the same reaction.

After the reaction process of producing energy particles, an intelligence wave code is made from the original wisdom wave code in the positive particle or the original negative particle in the yin and yang embryo. That original intellectual wave code fibre is stored in the original negative or positive particle because it depends on the negative or positive intellectual wave code fibre produced. Then, depending on the amount of heat and information value absorbed, that original intelligent wave code fibre is copied into several or many new intellectual wave code fibres with the same value. Those intellectual wave code strands move out to the yin or yang poles of the mature yin and yang embryo to become the smallest energy particles. Next, those smallest energy particles are constructed into one or more composite particles to bond with the composite energy particle structure outside the mature energy embryo. Additionally, one or more of the smallest energy particles will be transmitted to the people, animals, and things they interacted with during the particle-producing reaction. Of course, a particle of energy is collected to store in the centre of the cause and effect particles of the tuelinhs and souls in the central planet. Thus, you can understand that after the causal energy particles are produced, they are stored in three places: in the tuelinh or soul (the intellectual wave code is stored in the original yin and yang embryo, the particles copied from the wisdom wave code fibre is composed of the particle structure of the tuelinh); stored in the causal tree operating space on the central planet; and the particles are transmitted to all people, animals, and creatures participating in the reaction process that produces particles.

Remember, the causal energy particles transmitted to people, animals, and all other things are transformed into informational value when moving into the yin and yang embryo of the tuelinh or soul inside them. They no longer exist in the smallest form of energy particles."

Seeing the Teacher continue to relax and enjoy tea after a while of teaching everyone, a student immediately asked, "Teacher, how do we know whether the production level of causal energy particles is more or less in each interactive reaction? Please teach us about that issue."

The Teacher said, "As I said, the level of energy particles produced through human interactions depends on the amount of heat absorbed and the value of information captured and emitted. That means the quantity and properties of the energy particles produced rely on the heat and information value in the reactions that produce the energy particles. For your understanding, I will classify the levels of causal energy particle production as follows:

- One energy particle is produced in a particle-producing reaction. At this level, the impact value and influence of the interaction reaction is a person, an animal, or a thing. That means that the consequences or benefits that the creator of the reaction brings to people, things, and animals are single. For example, person A kills person B, and as a result, person A produces a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves. On the contrary, the dead person will produce a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves. When a person kills an animal, they produce a black negative energy particle. When a person saves an animal, they will produce a green positive energy particle. If one person saves another from death, they will produce a green positive energy particle.

- Many energy particles are produced in a particle-producing reaction. At this level, the impact value and influence of the interaction reaction are many people, many animals, or many things. That means that the consequences or benefits that the creator of the reaction brings to people, things, and animals are plural. For example, if a person cuts down a forest, they produce many grey and black harmful energy particles because the result is the destruction of many trees and plants. Suppose a person causes war and causes the deaths of many people, resulting in the person producing a lot of harmful black energy particles with very strong electric waves. A person spreading knowledge causes war, conflict, and destruction, and they will have many harmful energy particles during the same spreading practice. A person spreads false knowledge about the origin and practice mission of humans. As a result, that person produces a lot of blood-red negative energy particles with super strong electric waves. A person saves many people in a fire, and as a result, that person produces many green positive energy particles with strong electric waves. A person who spreads knowledge that has value for sustainable development will create a lot of positive energy particles with strong electric waves. A person who spreads the value of accurate information about the origin, practice mission and path to enlightenment produces a lot of yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves.

- Countless energy particles are produced in a particle-producing reaction. To the extent of making countless energy particles in a reaction, it can only be those who create knowledge systems and spread them to humanity. It could be someone who creates knowledge to create a religion, a philosophical system, or an intellectual ideology. Suppose that knowledge about the origin, practice mission, and path to enlightenment is untrue. In that case, the person who gave birth to that knowledge will produce countless negative energy particles with super strong electric waves after spreading them. On the contrary, if that knowledge is the truth about the origin, the practice mission and the true path to enlightenment, the person who gave birth to that knowledge will produce countless positive energy particles with super strong electric waves after spreading them. Suppose someone has transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. In that case, they will produce countless super-energy particles in the same reaction of teaching their knowledge."

A student immediately said, "Teacher, so spreading and teaching knowledge is the most magical method to produce many energy particles in the same reaction. Especially those who give birth to knowledge will produce countless particles of cause and effect energy in a reaction of their teaching."

The Teacher said, "That's right. The expression of heat and information value in the interaction reaction produces human particles. However, we must distinguish the value of knowledge to not misunderstand the production of negative energy particles as the production of positive energy particles. That is the situation countless people face when propagating and teaching ignorant knowledge about the origin, human mission, and methods of practising enlightenment. Those people are teaching methods of supplication, chanting, meditation, and rituals in the hope of being liberated from suffering and being reborn in the kingdom of God or Buddha after the end of human life. They are producing a lot of negative energy particles but think they are producing positive energy particles and bringing blessings to everyone and themselves."

Another student immediately asked the Teacher, "Teacher, how do the cause and effect of the tuelinhs and souls take place after they create the values of positive or negative energy particles?"

The Teacher replied, "It is similar to the laws of countries in the human world. It depends on the quantity and quality of the consequences they cause. According to the laws of many countries in the human world, when a person kills another person, they must be sentenced to death or life imprisonment. If a person robs property, they must be imprisoned. Regarding the law of cause and effect, if they produce many negative energy particles and form a structure of many negative energy particles in their tuelinh, they will become out of control and have mental illnesses when incarnated as humans. Suppose the amount of negative particles is insufficient to cause them to lose control. In that case, they will live in suffering and calamities corresponding to the values of the negative particles they have produced. The duration and extent of a person's karma experience depends on the quantity and quality of the energy particles they have produced, and it also depends on the arrangement of the system that operates the cause and effect tree from the five messengers of Nalas Nalanda. Therefore, the cycle of particle production and receiving results depends on those factors. That is the nature of the practice environment in the human world. As for the energy particle structure of the tuelinh and soul, they always receive the results after each reaction that produces energy particles. The result is that new energy particles have been produced, which participate in creating the structure of the tuelinh and soul. In addition, it participates in the information circulation process of the structure. Specifically, if a person produces negative energy particles, those negative energy particles form the structure of the tuelinh. As a result, the tuelinh is a negative multiparticle, the information waves cannot circulate, and the destructive energy catches the signal to attack and disintegrate that tuelinh. On the contrary, a person produces positive energy particles, which form the tuelinh structure to help the circulation of information waves be effective, and the detonation of destructive energy more effective."

Duong Nalanda said to the Teacher, "Teacher, please tell us the rules that we must not violate so that we do not practice and the rules that need to be followed to practice. So, we have more information and knowledge for practising the production of positive energy particles and not practising the production of negative energy particles. Teacher, life is complicated, and many reactions happen very quickly. Therefore, many actions have occurred that we know are actions that produce negative energy particles."

The Teacher said, "When you understand the knowledge of the two truths and the knowledge of the smallest energy particle, you can easily recognize which actions produce harmful energy particles and which produce positive energy particles. You must thoroughly understand the knowledge of the two truths, the mechanism of transformation, and the lectures on the unified Tao of the universe. This knowledge helps people understand all reactions that produce positive and negative particles.

Okay, I will fulfil your request. Therefore, please listen carefully and remember what I will say next.

The rules in the law of cause and effect of humanity are the regulations and laws that every practitioner in the human world must follow to complete the transformation of the yin and yang energy embryo of tuelinh into an energy filter. It includes rules that must not be violated and rules that must be achieved.

Nalas Nalanda taught those rules associated with the four forms of Tao to humans and animals at human gatherings. Then, he built a complete set of rules of cause and effect for humanity based on two truths with the production and connection mechanism of energy particles to apply the classification of the tuelinhs and souls after the end of human life. Those are the tuelinhs and souls that, when violating the rules that are not allowed to be violated, will have to return to the transit planet to be educated and rebalance their energy state. That will help the tuelinhs and souls practising in the human world have a moral model and a clear path to quickly complete the conversion of their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

Having rules that must not be violated and rules that must be achieved is a wonderful thing, a fair law for every tuelinh and soul practising in the human world. It teaches and motivates each person, each tuelinh and soul, to be responsible and aware of their thoughts and actions on this path of practice.

These rules are the crystallization of two truths regarding energy particles' production and connection mechanism. Therefore, it does not bias or oppress anyone. It is a fair law for the practice environment in the human world and a guide for people to quickly help the tuelinhs and souls transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

1. Rules that are not allowed to be violated in the law of cause and effect of humanity

The rules not allowed to be violated in the law of cause and effect when people interact in the four forms of the Tao will help each person decode and have the wisdom to understand their suffering and toxins. Next, each person practices controlling and eliminating that poison in all interaction scenarios in the four forms of the Tao. Understanding how to control and eliminate toxins will help us understand ourselves and all people, animals, and the tuelinhs in that interaction process.

Form of Tao of the family:

The Tao of family is the interactive relationship within the family, clan, between husband and wife, children, brothers, parents, ancestors, living people and the deceased. That is:

- People are not allowed to be disrespectful to human ancestors: defaming, cursing Heaven and Earth, insulting those who have contributed to building and protecting the Fatherland.

- Descendants are not allowed to be disrespectful to their ancestors: cursing, destroying graves, destroying places of worship and gratitude to ancestors.

- Children are not allowed to be unfilial or inhumane to their parents: curse, trample, beat, neglect, or kill their parents and caregivers.

- Husband and wife are not allowed to be unjust or inhumane: adultery, beating, trampling on each other's dignity, leaving each other, killing each other.

- Brothers are not allowed to be unjust or inhuman: competing for benefits, beating, trampling, and killing each other.

- Parents are not allowed to be unjust or inhumane to their children: abandoning their children, killing their children, trampling and beating their children, teaching their children to do evil and harming others, and not raising their children to be good people.

- Do not abort the fetus.
- Do not live alone.
- Do not leave your father, mother, wife, husband, or children to live a selfish life.

Form of Social Tao:

Social Tao is people's treatment of each other and animals, making a living, productive labour, and interaction with all things. Specifically:

- Do not kill: kill animals, practice killing.
- Do not destroy or exploit natural resources such as mountains, forests, seas, rivers, and underground minerals.
- Do not commit adultery: when you are married and living together under the protection of national law, you must not betray your spouse and get matched to another or commit adultery with another person; Do not rape, do not abuse other people's emotions to satisfy your desires.
- Do not curse, trample on other people's dignity, or beat others.
- Do not kill others or kill yourself.
- No human trafficking: children, women, enslaved people.
- Do not engage in prostitution.
- Do not lie to the superiors to deceive the inferiors, and do not fraudulently appropriate other people's property.
- Do not steal or rob.

- It is not allowed to produce and sell things that are harmful to humans and animals, and it is not permitted to sell or create things not allowed by national law.

- Don't be lazy to work.

- Employers are not allowed to exploit workers' labour, are not allowed to curse, are not allowed to trample on dignity, and are not allowed to beat and kill workers.

- Employees are not allowed to destroy the employer's property or insult, harm, or kill the employer.

Form of Tao of teacher and student:

The Tao of teacher and student is the way of transmitting knowledge and wisdom from the teacher to the student. Specifically:

- Students are not allowed to be disrespectful or inhuman to teachers: curse, trample on dignity, beat, or kill teachers.

- Students and disciples must not cause disunity, harm each other, or cause division and conflict.

- Students are not allowed to lie to each other, nor are they allowed to lie to the teacher.

- Teachers are not allowed to be cruel or unfair to students: curse, trample on dignity, beat, kill students, teach students to do evil things, teach students to go against the truth about their origin, practice mission and the true path to enlightenment.

- Teachers are not allowed to take advantage of students to satisfy lust, adultery, and other selfish purposes.

- It is not allowed to propagate and teach false knowledge for personal gain.

- Do not use spirituality, belief, or religion to deceive others for personal gain, destroying the nation's and humanity's humanistic moral values.

- Do not practice superstition, fortune-telling, or worship that goes against the truth about your origin; practice mission and the true path to enlightenment.

- Do not propagate superstitions, negative ideologies, worship and supplication ideologies, false knowledge about the origin, practice mission, and true path to enlightenment.

- Do not incite and cause religious conflicts; do not take advantage of religion to propagate false doctrines that cause people to lose good human moral values, forcing humanity to become ignorant and deceive and destroy each other.

Form of National Tao:

National Tao is the relationship between national leaders and the people towards the nation and people. In this case, the people and territory are the masters; kings, officials, leaders, and people are servants. Specifically:

- Kings and mandarins are not allowed to be disloyal to the country and people: inciting war, going to war of aggression, embezzlement and corruption, selling out the country to harm the people, oppressing and killing the people, letting the people live in poverty, disease, and creating policies that hurt people.

- People are not allowed to be disloyal to the nation: being lazy at work, practising superstition, inciting incitement to incite reaction to divide the nation, betraying the Fatherland, and fleeing when the country is in danger.

The rules that cannot be violated in the four forms of the Tao are the law of cause and effect. The law of cause and effect is the law of justice, a reflection of the evil karma created by sentient beings. If any living being violates the rules of the four forms of the Tao, they will have to suffer karmic consequences in many future lives. They will even have to suffer karmic consequences right before their eyes, and after the end of their human life, they will have to fall into the prison doors on the transiting planet.

The first tuelinh built a set of rules that are not allowed to be violated in the four forms of the Tao, also known as cause and effect, to help people and tuelinhs identify and eliminate toxins, as well as not practice the path of reincarnation, decay and destruction. If humans and the tuelinhs violate, they produce negative energy, which is the path of transformation towards destroying the tuelinhs.

2. The rules must be achieved in the Law of Cause and Effect of humanity

The rules that must be followed in each person's interaction with the four forms of the Tao will help them encode and have the wisdom to understand the method to eliminate suffering and activate their good factors. Next, each person practices activating goodness in all scenarios, interacting in the four forms of the Tao. Understanding how to activate good elements will help us quickly transform the energy embryo into an energy filter within the tuelinhs.

Form of Tao of the family:

Family Tao is the interactive relationship within the family, lineage, spouses, children, brothers, parents, ancestors, living people and the deceased. That is:

- People must understand Heaven and Earth. The first tuelinh is the great Father of the Universe, the tuelinhs and humans. Therefore, we must be grateful to Heaven and Earth.

- Children and grandchildren must remember and be grateful to the national heroes who contributed to building and protecting the Fatherland. We must not forget and be thankful to our ancestors who sacrificed their bodies to build and defend the country in which we live.

- Children must be respectful to their parents: take care of them and even sacrifice their bodies to protect them.

- Husband and wife must be faithful: love and sacrifice for each other.

- Brothers must have perfect love: unite, share, and help each other.

- Parents must teach their children to be good people, understand human morality, and sacrifice for their children.

- You must get married to start a family and take care of a happy family to maintain human development.

- Husband and wife must give birth and raise children when their reproductive health ensures childbirth.

Form of Social Tao:

The form of social Tao is to treat people with each other and with animals, make a living, work in production, and interact with all things. Specifically:

- Must love animals, protect animals, save animals and all things.

- Must protect and develop natural resources.

- Must respect people of the opposite sex and keep opposite-sex relationships pure.

- Must help people who are difficult, suffering, troubled, and poor.

- Must help people in distress and danger to their lives.

- Must sacrifice their interests to protect humanity and bring joy and happiness to humanity.

- We must live with love and must maintain trust towards each other.

- Must take care of older people, children, and women.

- Must respect young people and respect elders.

- Business and production must comply with national laws and bring benefits to people, animals and everything.

- Must work hard and be enthusiastic about the production.

- Employers must care for, love, and help employees.

Form of Tao of teacher and student:

The form of the Tao of teacher and student is the way of transmitting knowledge and wisdom from the teacher to the student. Specifically:

- Students must respect their teachers.

- Students and disciples must unite, love and help each other.

- Students must speak from the heart and share genuinely.

- Teachers must love their students and teach them to understand human morality to improve their worldview.

- Teachers must respect students and maintain pure relationships.

- Must embellish and preserve the pure values of cultural beliefs and religious sects.

- We must eliminate superstition and ignorance in beliefs and religions due to false worship and practices about the origin, practice mission and path to enlightenment.

- Must understand Heaven - Earth - Humanity, understand the great Father of the tuelinhs and humans. We must know that all religions are His people. Therefore, humanity must unite religions to work together to improve the worldview for the better.

- Teachers and students must spread and teach the standard knowledge of the two truths so that humanity can receive and practice the transformation of yin and yang energy for the tuelinhs.

Form of National Tao:

National Tao is the relationship between national leaders and the people towards the country and nation. In this system, the nation and territory are the masters, the king is the leader, and the people are servants. Specifically:

- Kings and mandarins must build a peaceful and prosperous country and people's lives, peace and happiness; they must sacrifice their interests to protect national and nation's interests.

- People must unite the nation, enthusiastically work in production, sacrifice their minds and bodies to protect the country, and develop the nation to become increasingly prosperous.

- We must unite humanity, eliminate national incitement and eliminate war.

The rules that must be followed in the four forms of the Tao are the laws of enlightenment. Practising the law of enlightenment is producing and connecting sustainable energy particles for the tuelinhs and souls. When the yin and yang energy embryo has countless energy particles of sacrifice and dedication, in the future, in future lives, they will be linked together to inherit achievements and continue the journey of sustainable reincarnation.

The rules that must be followed in the four forms of the Tao are to help people encode accurate information and activate good elements for the tuelinhs and souls within. If the first tuelinh had not built a set of rules and called it the law of enlightenment, people would not have been able to find the most transcendent path to transform the energy embryo for the tuelinhs into an energy filter.

Thus, the set of rules that cannot be violated and the set of rules that must be done that humans must implement in all interaction scenarios in the four forms of the Tao is the path to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. The rule of poison control protects this path, and pushing to reach the destination quickly is the rule that must be done. These two sets of rules are the support, help, and motivation for the tuelinhs and souls to promptly complete their practice tasks in the human world to return to protect and sustainably develop life in and outside the universe. However, these two sets of rules are analyzed carefully and thoroughly in the lectures on the unified Tao of the universe through the four forms of Tao. That is, through the negative and positive energy particles, to understand that it is the rules in the law of cause and effect.

Thus, you have understood the law of cause and effect of the tuelinhs and souls when participating in the practice process in the human world. The law of cause and effect is the crystallization of the mechanism of producing and linking energy particles with the operation of Nalas Nalanda. It is his love for all tuelinhs, souls, and humans to help them quickly understand their inner nature, that of everyone, everything, and the energy of destruction.”

Chapter Seventy

The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of Tao of the Family

Would you happen to know? To help people worldwide understand the enlightened knowledge of Nalas Nalanda and that people suffering from all kinds of mental illnesses can quickly recover by studying and practising his wisdom, I must edit and rewrite the Teacher's lectures and knowledge. It is rewritten in levels from easy to difficult, from theory to particle knowledge and finally, the practice of producing sustainable energy particles. None of the articles follow the chronological journey the Teacher has preached over the years. After I discussed rebuilding his lectures and knowledge from easy to complex and from theory to the practice of producing energy particles with the Teacher, he considered it a regimen that would help learners and therapists achieve the most miraculous results. In each of his therapy teaching courses, he gives different lectures, and the results all bring brilliant achievements. When I asked him why that was so, he answered that it was the power to produce super energy particles from within his tuelinh; and each of his courses had different learners, so he had various lectures. That's why I always have his company when I write down his lectures and knowledge, and he always provides me with excellent knowledge.

With his help, I have been able to edit many of his lectures and the most excellent knowledge in the universe. That knowledge brings miraculous power in helping the tuelinhs, and people understand the truth about themselves and each other, about all things and the energy of destruction. In particular, that knowledge provides people with the most miraculous path in practising the mechanism of sustainable energy particle production to achieve radical enlightenment. Full enlightenment is to attain the unifying Tao of the universe, to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter.

The Teacher once said, "All tuelinhs incarnate as humans; they will practice the production of sustainable energy particles after understanding the nature of themselves and everyone, all things, and the energy of destruction. Therefore, I must create in-depth lectures that contain transcendent intellectual values about producing energy particles, which is necessary and extremely important for humans and the tuelinhs. Because all tuelinhs and souls must live in the four forms of the Tao to practice the production of four groups of energy particles that have functions and tasks for the tuelinh structure, I must focus on helping them understand the values of all types of energy particles produced in all interacting scenarios in the four forms of the Tao."

Now, please join me in returning to the memory of a course where the Teacher gave lectures on the unified Tao of the universe. Those lectures have given his students a thorough understanding of the content values in producing energy particles through interactive scenarios in the four forms of Tao in the human world.

At that moment, while the Teacher was enjoying a cup of hot tea before lecturing as usual, a student stood up and said to the Teacher, "Teacher, from the lecture on the unified Tao of the universe, we have understood practising of generating energy particles in the four forms of the Tao will bring wonderful abilities and powers to the tuelinhs. It can be seen that the four groups of energy particles produced by the four forms of the Tao are like groups of functional cells in the human body. It is the power, the necessary and sufficient condition for the tuelinhs to transform their yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. With four groups of intellectual power created from the production of sustainable energy particles in the four forms of the Tao, the tuelinhs have magical power: it has the wisdom of immense love to unite all life forms in the universe, with respect from above and below to spread the values of sustainable development to all life forms in and outside the universe. Teacher, I understand that and see the importance of the four forms of Tao and achievement after the tuelinhs produce the full quantity and quality of energy particles in those four forms before being transformed into the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter. However, I still do not understand how, when producing energy particles in the four forms of the Tao, the tuelinhs will achieve unity with the universe. Please explain it to us so we can understand."

The Teacher said, "Your question is fascinating. So, you have understood the knowledge in teaching the unified Tao of the universe. Hey you, what have you understood from the previous lectures? That is from ancestral wave-particles, destruction energy particles, yin and yang energy particles, about the first tuelinh and the process of building life forms of him, the nature of wisdom and the transformation mechanism of the tuelinhs, and many other important lectures. What did you understand about those lectures?"

"Teacher, I have understood the nature and value of encoded information, the mechanism of movement of all types of particles in and out of the universe, and the tuelinhs. In particular, I understand the toxins and good elements through the nature of wisdom and the path of transformation of the tuelinh life form and all things. That is priceless knowledge, Teacher." Students answer.

The Teacher replied, "So, you already have the wisdom to unite with all things in and out of the universe. The wisdom that connects with all things in the universe is the wisdom of every human being, and tuelinh has an accurate understanding of the wisdom of all life forms in and outside the universe, from ancestral wave-particles to the whole universe. It is the union of the intelligence of the understanding person with the intelligence in the smallest energy particle of all things in and outside the universe. However, your understanding through studying enlightenment knowledge is not considered as attaining the unified Tao of the universe. To acquire the unifying Tao of the universe, you must produce stable energy particles. Those sustainable energy particles must help your intelligence become immortal, and those energy particles must help all things in and outside the universe develop sustainably. Do you understand? That is to produce energy particles containing the unified intelligence of the universe in sustainable development. When your soul makes a sufficient amount of sustainable energy particles with the wisdom of the unified Tao of the universe, your soul will have the power to protect and sustainably develop yourself and all things in and out of the universe. It means that your soul has the wisdom of all things within yourself, and your wisdom resides in all things inside and outside the universe.

However, to understand oneself and others, understand all things and the energy of destruction, all tuelinhs must experience all the interaction scenarios in the four forms of the Tao. That process will help all tuelinhs to eliminate all toxins and maximize the goodness within to practice producing four groups of energy particles with magical power from the four forms of the Tao to help them attain enlightenment, the unified Tao of the universe."

"Teacher, from your explanations, I have understood and seen even more the importance of living and practising the production of sustainable energy particles in the four forms of the Tao. Therefore, I feel sorry for those who have abandoned their families, abandoned their wives and children, abandoned their husbands and children to find somewhere to practice. Just as the Teacher said, coming to the human world is to practice, so where else do we go to practice again? I want to thank you very much, Teacher."

Then, the Teacher began the lecture, "So, you understand the importance of the four forms of Tao in the human world, and you also understand that you must have wisdom and produce sustainable energy particles in the four forms of the Tao. Therefore, to attain the unified Tao of the universe, you must go through each form of the Tao in your life in the human world.

In today's lecture, you will understand the unified Tao of the universe through family Tao. It means you will have the wisdom to understand all types of energy particles with different electric wave characteristics produced in all interaction scenarios in the family Tao form. Understanding them will help you eliminate toxins and stop creating negative energy particles. Next, you can practice generating positive energy particles in all family Tao form interactive scenarios.

As you know, the family Tao form is the relationship between family members; it includes the relationship between husband and wife, parents and children, siblings and each other, and between living people and other dead. The family Tao brings the value of true love and covers all things in and out of the universe after understanding and practising the path of producing sustainable energy particles in all interaction contents of the family Tao form.

Now, let me explore each piece of content in the form of the Tao of the family. Those contents create magical values in encoding functions and tasks for sustainable energy particles after being produced.

Content of marriage between man and woman:

The male represents positive energy particles, and the female represents negative energy particles. Each person has their mission and tasks. However, they have a common task of forming a mechanism to link together to develop new life.

It is the task of linking yin and yang particles together to form yin and yang energy embryos. From there, the yin and yang embryo will continue its production mechanism to create new energy particles. New energy particles will strengthen the structure of the yin and yang embryo and contribute to the overall development of the universe.

From the appearance of man and woman that Nalas Nalanda created and from the symbolism and duties of man and woman, they must join together to form husband and wife to give birth to children. That helps them grow into a family with new people. From their families, those members will contribute to values that promote the joint development of humanity.

Through the content of marriage between a man and a woman, Nalas Nalanda wanted the tuelinhs to understand the nature of their own and each other's toxins and good elements. That will help them recognize and eliminate their toxins and support each other in removing toxins. After that, they must practice activating good aspects together to produce sustainable energy particles.

The script of a man and woman getting married will help tuelinhs learn the lesson of making decisions to build true love.

You must remember that yin and yang energy particles do not have the phenomenon of trying to bond and then separate from bonding with other energy particles. Before a connection reaction occurs, they must learn to find similarities or matches in information content. After linking together to form yin and yang energy embryos, they will be closely intertwined until they are disintegrated by destructive energy or develop into the most incredible physical structure possible. You must remember this to see the value in making decisions in love between men and women and in marriage.

To become a yin and yang energy embryo, you must be a negative energy particle linked to a positive energy particle. The yin and yang energy embryo cannot be two negative or positive particles linked together. Only the yin and yang energy embryo produces new energy particles to promote the development of itself and all things in the universe. Energy particles linked together by the same electric waves cannot have a production and development mechanism; they only create a simple solidarity mechanism. You must remember this to thoroughly understand the content of marriage between a man and a woman and to recognize the toxins and good elements in that content.

The harmful energy particles produced when deciding to marry a man or woman are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- A man and a woman decide not to get married and live alone. Their yin and yang energy embryo will produce a grey yin energy particle with strong electric waves. It is the poison of selfishness and irresponsibility towards life and soul. The result is suffering for the parents and their souls. Their tuelinh does not have the opportunity to practice understanding the toxins and good elements of their yin and yang energy embryos. At that time, their tuelinh will encounter difficulties on their practice journey when they do not have a complete marital script and family form to practice to force out toxins and activate good elements.

- Same-sex marriage is two men marrying each other or two women marrying each other. Their actions caused the soul to produce a grey negative energy particle with strong electric waves. That is an act that hurts their parents and their tuelinhs. That causes their tuelinhs to absorb toxins of false information from that action. As a result, their yin and yang energy embryos cannot decode data. They risk damaging their yin and yang embryo structure when destructive energy penetrates and decomposes.

- A man or woman cohabiting or having premarital sex with another person. That action causes their tuelinh to produce grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves. The consequence of this action is that their tuelinhs are damaged by absorbing toxic information of sexual greed, and that is not true love aimed at marriage.

- A man or a woman forces or coerces another person to marry him or her without their consent. That causes that person's soul to produce grey harmful energy particles. That is an act that hurts the person being coerced.

The positive energy particles produced when deciding to marry a man or woman are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- When a man and woman decide to marry each other, their tuelinh produces a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves. It is a positive energy particle of sustainable development that both men and women activate to form a family. They will have interactive scenarios to practice removing toxins and activating good elements in other aspects of the family form.

- Before men and women decide to marry each other, they do not cohabit and do not have sex with others, and they do not force others to get married; the soul within them will produce a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves. It is a positive particle that is not contaminated by harmful content.

- The man or woman is tolerant and forgives each other's mistakes to get married together. The actions of tolerant people help the soul inside them produce a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves.

- When a tolerant man or woman marries a single parent with children, the soul of the tolerant person produces a green positive energy particle.

- A man or woman loves and decides to marry a person with a disability or severe illness. That person's soul will produce a green positive energy particle.

- Men and women teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the context of a husband-and-wife relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content of the newly married couple:

The husband and wife are great symbols of the yin and yang energy of the tuelinh and soul. It symbolizes the information reaction process between the original negative energy particle and the original positive energy particle in the yin and yang embryo. It is a non-stop reaction between two yin and yang particles and between them and information from the outside environment. Therefore, the content of interaction between husband and wife is built by Nalas Nalanda with the most scenarios and levels from simple to super complex. The purpose is to help the tuelinhs and souls eliminate all the toxins inside the harmful energy particles and maximize the activation of good elements inside the positive energy particles.

You must remember that after the yin and yang energy embryo is formed, an information conflict occurs between the original yin and yang energy particles during the information wave circulation process. That is the nature of the conflict because they must conflict to assign functions and tasks to each other. You must remember this to understand the toxins and good elements of newly married couples. From there, couples will know how to eliminate toxins and activate good elements in assigning functions and tasks to each other.

It would help to remember that yin and yang energy embryos never break and separate after being linked. They are only disintegrated or detonated by destructive energy. That shows the strength of their bond until they are destroyed.

The harmful energy particles produced in the content of the newly married couple are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The wife or husband is selfish, playful, and does not care about each other. That causes the spouse to be hurt and become miserable. The tuelinh or soul of that selfish and playful person will produce one or more grey harmful energy particles with strong electric waves.

- The wife or husband curses each other, tramples on each other's dignity, fights and insults each other because they do not suit each other's personalities or are unsatisfied with something after marriage. That person's soul will produce grey negative energy particles of actions that hurt the wife or husband.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of the newly married couple are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Husband and wife let go of selfishness and playfulness to share and bond in love. The soul in them will produce green positive energy particles of love development after eliminating the poison of greed and giddiness.

- Husband and wife ignore each other's shortcomings and bad habits, ignore the conflicts of the new couple to share and love each other, and build a happy family together; the soul in them produces green positive energy particles.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content of the couple deciding to have children:

The decision to give birth symbolises the yin and yang energy embryo practising the mechanism of producing the smallest energy particles with negative or positive electric waves. That shows that the energy embryo has a unified function and mission to form an information reaction with the external environment and a reaction with the internal environment before producing new energy particles. It also shows that the yin and yang energy embryo practices the generative mechanism to develop its structure to become strong and contribute to the sustainable development of all life forms in the universe.

Children's birth after marriage is natural for couples to develop the family structure and create interactive content in the family form. It contributes positive values to the practice environment of the tuelinh and souls in the human world. The nature of childbirth is similar to that of the yin and yang energy embryo that produces energy particles.

It would help to remember that there is no yin and yang energy embryo in the universe that without practising the energy particle production mechanism. If they do not practice the mechanism of particle production, they cannot grow and will quickly be destroyed by destructive energy.

The types of harmful energy particles produced when the couple decides to have children are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- If one of the two people, or the whole couple, decides not to have children to live a free and leisurely life, their tuelinh will produce grey harmful energy particles. It is a poison caused by ignorant thoughts and actions when they only know how to be selfish and do not properly carry out the vocation God has given them. That means they make their soul unable to perform the ability to create information reactions between the two original yin and yang energy particles to produce positive energy particles for development. It also means that their toxins have controlled and dominated them.

- Couples give reasons such as not having enough economic conditions, work, career, or even illness not to have children. When they do not overcome difficulties and challenges to decide to create a baby and create interactive script content in the form of family Tao, their tuelinh will produce a grey negative energy particle. The damage to their tuelinh from those decisions is long-lasting, making it difficult for them to have children in their next lives. You must understand that refusing the vocation given by God is an action that violates the law of cause and effect. As a result, they will have to accept suffering values corresponding to what they have done.

The positive energy particles produced in the couple's decision to have children are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- A couple who decides to have a child after marriage will help their souls produce green positive energy particles. It is the positive energy particle of development; it is the creation of interactive scenarios in the form of family Tao; it is developing the family structure to become stronger and, at the same time, contributing to society's general development.

- The couple overcame economic, work, and even illness difficulties to decide to have a child. That decision helps the tuelinh in them produce green positive energy particles of development.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their tuelinh will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content that the wife or husband is unable to have children:

The inability of the wife, husband, or both to give birth symbolises the original yin and yang embryo's failure to create a reaction that produces sustainable energy particles like yang energy particles and harmful energy particles with weak electric waves. The inability of yin and yang energy embryos to produce sustainable energy particles is the nature of all life forms in the universe. Therefore, through scripts with this content, we help the tuelinhs and souls recognise their and each other's toxins, thereby learning how to eliminate them and activate each other's goodness.

The couple's inability to have children will help people learn the lesson of love and find solutions to create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles in their souls.

Remember, all energy embryos in all life forms of the universe can produce energy particles, even though many cannot produce sustainable energy particles. However, having energy embryos supported by a positive environment will allow them to create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles. That will help tuelinh and souls learn the lesson of finding the right environment or help to overcome challenges. That is to eliminate toxins and activate good elements in their yin and yang energy embryos.

The harmful energy particles produced in couples who are unable to have children are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- When one of the two people is unable to have children, the other person insults, tramples on dignity, and treats the person who is unable to have children poorly, they will produce grey harmful energy particles in their souls.

- When one of the two no longer loves each other because of their inability to have children, they will produce a grey negative energy particle. Subsequent actions will cause them to create different harmful energy particles as they no longer love each other.

- If a couple performs rituals to ask Buddha or God to give them children while they are unable to have children, that is an act of ignorance and superstition. It will cause their soul to produce many grey harmful energy particles because of the rituals they perform.

- When a husband or wife divorces to marry someone new with the desire to have children, that person will produce a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves by destroying the happy structure of their family. That shows that the toxins in their soul are very strong, and it causes their yin and yang energy embryos to be completely dominated by toxins. They are at a very high risk of being decomposed by destructive energy.

- When a husband commits adultery to have a child, that person's soul produces many grey and black harmful energy particles. It is destroying one's own family's happiness and that of others.

The positive energy particles produced in couples unable to have children are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- After learning they could not have children, the couple decided to maintain their love and live faithfully together. That decision helps both of their souls produce green positive energy particles for developing love between husband and wife.

- Couples seek and treat together so they can have children. As a result, they gave birth to a child. That makes them produce green energy particles of development because they have sought support solutions to overcome the challenges of this scenario.

- The couple decided to adopt a child after learning they were unable to have children or had undergone treatment that prevented them from having children. That action helps them produce many green positive energy particles because of their kindness in helping the abandoned child become their child.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their tuelinhs will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content about pregnant women and deciding whether to give birth or not:

The fact that a woman becomes pregnant and must choose whether to give birth is a scenario to help the tuelinhs and souls learn how to eliminate the poison of selfishness and activate the good element of sacrifice to generate sustainable energy particles with sustainable development characteristics. That is a good element of deciding to have a child.

You already know that all energy embryos can produce particles because that is nature's nature.

You also know that when performing a reaction that produces positive energy particles, the yin and yang energy embryo produces neutral and negative energy particles with weak electric waves. It is a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. The value it brings is enormous. It helps the soul structure that produces those energy particles become more sustainable and developed. In addition, it contributes to the sustainable development of life forms in the universe.

Refusing to produce sustainable energy particles of yin-yang embryos would be the most incredible ignorance of that type of energy embryo, if there ever was one. It is also the destruction that comes to it the fastest. Therefore, you should understand this to see the toxins and good elements in a woman's decision to give birth when she is pregnant.

The types of negative energy particles produced when a pregnant woman's body decides whether to give birth are toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The woman is not married but has sex with a man and becomes pregnant. They decided to abort the fetus to ensure their lives in the future were better than giving birth to that child. That woman may be of student age or older. Any reason given cannot prevent that person's soul from producing a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves of murder. Killing the fetus and refusing to have children will make them unable to have children in their next lives. Even in their present life, they will have to suffer the consequences for the evil karma of killing their unborn child.

- The wife is pregnant, and the couple realizes they do not have enough money to raise the baby, or they feel it will affect their career, or they see they have an illness and fear it will affect their health, or they see that the baby had deformities, he decided not to give birth to him. With this action, the souls of both the wife and the husband produce black negative energy particles in the act of killing the fetus. When they decide to abort the fetus for some reason, in the future and their next lives, they will live in suffering and in the life of the reason for which they killed the fetus. In addition, they will not be able to have children in their next human life because they have refused God to give them a tuelinh to incarnate as a human to practice.

The positive energy particles produced during a woman's pregnancy and the decision to give birth are the good elements in the original positive energy particles of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- If an unmarried woman gets pregnant, they decide to overcome the criticism of everyone around them, even relatives, to give birth to the baby and raise it to become a human. Deciding to give birth to a child helped the woman's soul produce a green positive energy particle for the life development of a baby. In addition, raising the child to become a good person will help that soul produce fire-red positive energy particles with very strong electric waves. That is the energy particle of the mother's process of transmitting knowledge to her children.

- The couple decides to have a baby when they know they are pregnant even though they are facing economic difficulties, illness, career, or the baby has defects. They decided to give birth to that child regardless of any problems that would cause them future suffering. With that action, both husband and wife produce green positive energy particles of development and love for their children. In addition, caring for and raising that child will help both husband and wife produce fire-red positive energy particles in their souls by transmitting knowledge to the child.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content of the husband or wife deciding to commit adultery:

The couple symbolises yin and yang energy, and it is natural for them to be closely linked together in inseparability. They only separate when they are destroyed. Therefore, the symbol of the yin-yang energy embryo is the greatest of the universe, and the symbol of the couple is the greatest of all human interaction scenarios in the four forms of Tao. It is the greatest symbol because it helps each tuelinh and soul learn how to circulate information waves between the original negative and positive particles to produce sustainable energy particles. Thus, to achieve sustainable development, yin and yang energy embryos must practice the ability to circulate information waves for the production of sustainable energy particles. That is the path of sustainable transmutation.

It would be best to remember that once linked, the energy embryo's original yin and yang energy particles do not separate themselves to connect with other energy particles. Therefore, it is the norm for the training of the tuelinhs and souls in the context of interaction in the marital relationship to force out toxins and activate good elements within the yin and yang energy embryo.

The nature of all yin and yang embryos of all life forms in the universe is that information conflict occurs during the reaction process. From that conflict, the yin and yang embryos will establish common functions and tasks for sustainable development. Therefore, the same goes for husband-and-wife relationships; after marriage, they will have a process of conflict in ideology and action. That makes it easy for them to become emotionally unavailable in their marital love, and they are easily attracted to outside relationships of the opposite sex. It is a script to help them force out toxins and activate good elements in their yin and yang embryos.

The harmful energy particles produced in the content of a wife or husband who decides to commit adultery are toxins in the original negative energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- The husband, for some reason, cannot control his mind, leading to paedophilia and rape. That person's soul will produce a grey negative energy particle of greed and desire. However, if the consequences lead to the victim being injured or committing suicide, that rapist or paedophile will produce more grey and black harmful energy particles. It is the energy particle that kills humans.

- The husband or wife, for whatever reason, buys sex to satisfy their desires. They will produce a grey negative energy particle for each act.

- When a wife or husband commits adultery with someone of the opposite or same sex, they will produce a lot of grey harmful energy particles. Additionally, if the consequences then cause suffering and damage to their children, spouse, and those with whom they have committed adultery, their soul continues to produce harmful energy particles, grey or black. Those are negative particles that destroy their family's happiness and others.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of a wife or husband deciding to commit adultery are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- When a wife and husband overcome conflicts together, overcome boredom in their love to love each other and do not commit adultery, they will produce green positive energy particles of the development of love between husband and wife.

- The wife or husband overcomes all situations of temptation not to commit acts of fornication, prostitution, and adultery; instead, they love their spouses more. That action helps their soul produce a green positive energy particle.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Contents of a person facing an unfaithful wife or husband:

It would help if you remembered that the yin and yang energy embryo never separates except when the energy of destruction disintegrates it. That means the negative or positive particles never react with other particles and separate themselves when they are yin and yang embryos. They decay and perish like a married couple living together until the end of a human life.

The process of information reaction between negative and positive particles in the yin and yang embryo is always taking place to train for the development of a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Therefore, the scenario of the interaction content, when a person has an unfaithful wife or husband, is to train the information reaction of the yin and yang embryo to practice the mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles.

The harmful energy particles produced when a person has to deal with an unfaithful wife or husband are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- When a person knows that his or her wife or husband commits adultery, he or she takes actions that cause injury to those adulterers. That caused their soul to produce grey harmful energy particles.

- People faced with an unfaithful wife or husband lose control and kill one of the adulterers. The soul in that person produces black harmful energy particles of killing.

- People have an unfaithful wife or husband, they decide to divorce. That person's soul produces a grey negative energy particle.

- When a husband or wife commits adultery, the person facing becomes resentful of the wife or husband even if they still live together or divorce. That resentment causes that person to produce many blood-red harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves.

The positive energy particles produced when a person has to face an unfaithful husband or wife are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- People who face an unfaithful wife or husband, forgive them for living together and building a happy family will produce a green positive energy particle.

- That person forgives and educates the wife or husband who committed adultery. That person's soul produces a green positive energy particle of development and a red-fire energy particle of teaching and inspiring others towards sustainable development.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content of the wife or husband being addicted to stimulants or gambling:

Like many other contents in the husband-wife relationship, this content is associated with training to transform the information reaction of yin and yang energy embryos towards producing sustainable energy particles. This content also clearly shows the same scenario as in the yin and yang energy embryo when the negative energy particle is out of control due to destructive toxic information from the outside environment. That poses a significant challenge for the original positive energy particle to create reactions to control the original negative particle when interacting with the outside environment.

The scenario of a wife or husband being addicted to stimulants or gambling due to the manipulation and seduction of friends or for any reason is a valuable scenario for identifying toxins and the external environment, then learning how to activate our own and each other's good elements.

The harmful energy particles produced when the husband or wife is addicted to stimulants or plays gambling are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who are addicted to stimulants or play gambling will produce many grey harmful energy particles. These toxic negative energy particles of playful behaviour hurt their family and others. The person can then produce various toxic, harmful energy particles if they take actions that hurt their family and others to varying degrees. It is because of pleasure that one beats one's wife and children or kills one's wife and children; it is because of joy that conflicts and kills others; it is because of pleasure and entertainment that one commits adultery; it is because of pleasure that one abandons one's wife or husband; it's because of merriment that one rob and kill people; it's that one is lazy to work because of merriment; it's that one die because of merriment. Those consequences will cause that person's soul to produce harmful black energy particles.

- A person whose wife or husband is addicted to stimulants or plays gambling, that person curses or resents that person, that person's soul produces blood-red harmful energy particles.

- A person whose wife or husband is a playboy or addicted to stimulants, that person decides to leave and divorce. That person's soul produces grey harmful energy particles.

- A person whose wife or husband is a playboy or addicted to stimulants decides to kill that spouse. That person's soul will produce a black negative energy particle.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of the wife or husband addicted to stimulants or gambling are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- The wife or husband decides not to play around, not to be addicted to stimulants, and not to play gambling when being enticed or seduced by friends or by certain circumstances to work hard and build a happy family. That person's soul will produce a green positive energy particle of growth.

- The person who forgives his or her husband or wife who is addicted to drugs or alcoholism or gambling, then helps that person give up those evils to build a happy family together. That person's soul produces both a green positive energy particle of the development of love and a fire-red positive energy particle of the spread of knowledge to influence each other toward sustainable development.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content of the couple facing the decision to divorce:

Before the couple decides to divorce, the script's content is to help the tuelinhs and souls identify the maximum toxins in their original negative energy particle. Additionally, this scenario shows the inability and failure of the yang energy particle's ability to control the yin energy particle in the yin and yang embryo. That indicates that the negative energy particle is at risk of being controlled by super-strong toxins inside, and the original positive energy particle is at risk of being controlled by the negative particles.

Married life always has information conflicts because it is a great environment to train the yin and yang embryo to transform into a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles in all reaction scenarios that produce energy particles. Therefore, the risk of separation and divorce is very high, and it comes from any number of reasons. That shows those toxins will break out if they decide to divorce and that good factors will be activated if they overcome them to build happiness in their married life.

The types of harmful energy particles produced when a couple faces the decision to divorce are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- If the wife or husband decides to divorce for any reasonable reason, their soul will produce grey harmful energy particles. Although it is only a grey negative energy particle, the consequences are enormous when the soul's yin and yang energy embryo is not able to provide functions and tasks for the practice of producing sustainable energy particles. Therefore, their soul quickly practices the production of harmful energy particles in large quantities. As a result, that soul will soon be disintegrated by the energy of destruction. That causes them to re-experience a lot of trauma and suffering because of divorce. That is to help that tuelinh understand its toxins and learn how to force them out. However, with the emotions and states of suffering, the tuelinh and that person will feel the agony and despair in the tribulation of this content.

- If the person who decides to divorce becomes resentful of the wife or husband, that person's soul will produce many blood-red harmful energy particles. That shows that the toxins have broken out strongly and caused that soul to lose control.

- Of course, the person who causes suffering to the wife or husband by making that person decide to divorce also produces harmful energy particles with strong electric waves. However, that person does not choose to divorce because he does not want to. Therefore, that person's soul does not produce harmful energy particles of divorce content.

The positive energy particles produced in the context of a couple facing the decision to divorce are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Husband and wife overcome conflicts to decide not to divorce and live together in love and happiness. Both produce green positive energy particles of sustainable development.

- A wife or husband decides not to divorce when their husband or wife leaves home to live with someone else or lives with acts of adultery and fornication. This situation does not help them create positive energy particles in their marriage, and they divorce. That person only produces positive energy particles in other contents in the family form. However, that person can inspire and educate the husband or wife to give up a negative life and return together to build a happy family and conjugal love. That person will produce green and fire-red positive energy particles in that case.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content of the wife or husband being sick:

This content will help the tuelinhs and souls learn how to identify toxins and eliminate them, then activate their own and each other's good elements.

The harmful energy particles produced in content when the sick wife or husband are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- When people see that their wife or husband is sick, unable to make money, unable to meet their physiological needs, and makes them bored in life, that person decides to leave the patient behind to go live with someone else somewhere else or decides to divorce. That person's soul produces grey harmful energy particles.

- When people have their wives or husbands sick because of difficult economic circumstances, they do not help the ill person with treatment; their souls will produce grey harmful energy particles. If a sick person is left to die of illness without ever being helped by their spouse in treatment, that spouse's soul will produce black harmful energy particles.

- When they see their spouse sick, instead of treatment, they together perform rituals to pray to Buddha or God to get better. Their souls produce harmful energy particles with slightly strong electric waves.

- The patient becomes resentful of their spouse for not helping them treat their illness because they have no money, for living with someone else, or because of a divorce; the sick person will produce many blood-red yin energy particles in their soul.

The positive energy particles produced in content when the spouse is sick, they are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The wife or husband is dedicated to helping the patient with treatment, even borrowing and selling valuable assets to cure the patient; they will produce green positive energy particles.

- The wife or husband lives faithfully and takes care of the sick person even though that person cannot meet their physiological needs or does not make money; that person produces green positive energy particles.

- The patient has a severe illness that cannot be cured while their family is in difficulty. They refuse treatment to save little money for their children's education. That means they accept sacrifices for their children and their spouses. That causes them to produce green positive energy particles.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their souls will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

The content of the wife or husband dying when they did not have children:

The content of this script is to help the tuelinhs and souls practice the ability to create information reactions between the two yin and yang particles in the energy embryo. At the same time, it helps them recognize toxins and eliminate them, followed by activating good elements.

You must remember that each person must live and create all four forms of Tao with full interactive script content to practice eliminating toxins and activating good elements.

The harmful energy particles produced in content when the wife or husband died when they did not have children are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The living person does not marry another person and remains alone until the end of his or her life after the husband or wife has died and they do not have children. That person's tuelinh will produce a negative energy particle with strong electric waves.

- People who are still alive do not get married anymore, so they do not recreate the family form because they do not have children and no longer have a marital relationship. Therefore, they do not have scripts to practice moving toxins and activating goodness. That causes their soul to lose the ability to create information reactions of yin and yang energy embryos to produce sustainable energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of the death of a spouse when they have not yet had children are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The living continues to marry others to build a family form, create practical scenarios to remove toxins and activate good elements in the family Tao. That helps that person produce green positive energy particles of growth.

- After a person marries a new person, if they practice teaching enlightened knowledge in married life to that person to build a happy life together, that person will produce yellow positive energy particles of solidarity to spread enlightened expertise for sustainable development together.

The content of the wife or husband dying when they had children:

This content also tests the ability of the tuelinhs and souls to create reactions in the yin and yang embryos. In addition, it is a script to check whether the amount of toxins in the original negative energy particle is still there, more or less.

You must understand that when a wife or husband dies while they already have children, this scenario is opposite to the scenario when they do not have children yet and the husband or wife dies. When they do not have children, they must continue getting married to create family structure scenarios. However, in the content of this scenario, they already have children, and the survivors have the scenario of the family form even though it has less content than married couples when no one dies.

The harmful energy particles produced in the content of the dead wife or husband when they have children are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The surviving person continues to marry another person, and their soul produces a grey negative energy particle. That shows that their toxins are still present. That is the poison of greed and lust.

- If a person is still alive and leaves their children to marry someone else, they will produce more grey harmful energy particles in their relationship with their children when they do not care for them.

- A living person marries another person, and that person's child is injured or abused to death. That person will produce many grey and black negative energy particles. It is the poison of greed and lust that causes suffering for children, even death for children.

The positive energy particles produced in the death of a spouse when they have children are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The survivor decides not to remarry and stays to raise their children to adulthood. That person produces green positive energy particles of growth. That is the good factor that is activated, and that good factor has eliminated the poison of greed for desire or any other reason that people come up with.

- Those still alive raise their children to become human beings, even teaching them about enlightened knowledge so that the children become good people. That person will produce fire-red energy particles for teaching children and yellow energy particles for teaching enlightened knowledge.

Content of the wife or husband has status in society:

This content is a scenario to test toxins in very high yin and yang energy embryos of the tuelinhs and souls. Therefore, it is linked to the interaction content in another Tao form, the national Tao form. Of course, all the contents in the marital relationship are linked and associated with the interactive contents of other forms of Tao, but it is to a lower degree. This interactive scenario is closely tied to the national Tao form, and its impact value is highly significant.

Besides checking toxins and good elements in the family Tao form, the content in this scenario is also a script to check in the national Tao form. It is both to test the ability of the yin-yang embryo to respond to information and to check the amount of toxins in the original yin particle.

The husband or wife has a position in society as a leader from the grassroots level to the country's top leader.

The harmful energy particles produced in the content of a wife or husband with a position in society are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The leader is instigated by their spouse to commit embezzlement and corruption. Both husband and wife produced a lot of harmful black and grey energy particles.

- The leader is influenced by their spouse in bringing relatives, people who run for office to leadership positions when they do not have the ability and ethics. Both husband and wife produce a lot of grey and black negative energy particles.

- The leader is dominated by their spouse, causing damage to the people, such as famine and epidemics, poverty and ignorance. Both husband and wife produced countless grey, black, and blood-red negative energy particles from their actions, causing ignorance among the people.

- The harmful energy particles produced include content in the marital relationship and content in the National Tao form. Therefore, the toxin of the negative particles is very strong and complex.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of a spouse with a position in society are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Leaders are not influenced by their spouses; they practice management and promulgate policies to help people overcome poverty and epidemics and have a prosperous life.

Their soul produces countless green, fire-red, and yellow energy particles.

- The leader is advised by his wife or husband and has contributions to help them build policies that benefit the people. Both husband and wife produce green, fire-red and yellow positive energy particles.

- The couple teaches each other about enlightened wisdom to build family happiness and bring beneficial values to the people. Both produce yellow energy particles of solidarity that spread the values of sustainable development in the relationship between husband and wife and the form of national Tao.

- Positive energy particles are produced in this content, including the content of the national form. Therefore, they have great value in helping the tuelinhs mature quickly and have the power to detonate destructive energy.

Contents of how couples treat each other:

The content of the husband and wife's treatment of each other covers all interaction content in the husband-and-wife relationship. However, in married life, countless reactions form valuable scenarios that help the tuelinhs and souls eliminate toxins and activate their good elements. Therefore, I cannot explain everything to you in detail. Instead, I only carefully analyze the main and most crucial content groups. The rest I group in the content of how husband and wife treat each other.

In this context, many small contents help the tuelinhs and souls practice transforming into a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles.

The harmful energy particles produced in the relationship between husband and wife are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Husband and wife insult each other, curse each other, trample on each other's dignity, beat each other, their soul will produce a grey negative energy particle for each time they create that reaction.

- The spouse leaves home to become a monk; that person produces many grey harmful energy particles in the marital content. In addition, they also produce countless blood-red negative energy particles because they take the wrong path to enlightenment.

- The wife or husband kills each other or commits suicide for some reason; they both produce black negative energy particles due to the toxins of killing the wife, or husband, or themselves due to suicide.

- If the wife or husband resents and hates each other for some reason, their souls will produce blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in how husband and wife treat each other are the good elements in the original positive energy particles of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- When a husband and wife overcome all conflicts and disagreements in life, they love each other and treat each other with love, and their souls will produce green positive energy particles.

- When husband and wife love and sacrifice to save each other, the souls inside will produce green positive energy particles.

- Husband and wife teach each other about enlightened knowledge in the scenario of the marital relationship to practice together to eliminate toxins and activate each other's good elements. Their tuelinhs will produce yellow positive energy particles through solidarity to spread the value of sustainable development, which is the truth of the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

Content group of parents treat their children:

Parents symbolise the yin and yang energy embryo, and children symbolise the yin and yang energy particles produced from the yin and yang embryo.

Through the relationship between parents and children, the tuelinhs and souls can understand their toxins, good elements, and each other. It is through the energy particles that are born to understand the toxins in one's yin and yang energy embryo. Therefore, this scenario was created by the first tuelinh to help the tuelinhs, in their role as parents, understand themselves by understanding their children.

As you know, yin and yang energy particles are produced from yin and yang energy embryos; they will inherit the information value of the reaction process of that yin and yang embryo with the external environment. Thus, if the yin and yang embryos are toxic, the energy particles produced are harmful particles that crystallise the toxins of the yin and yang embryos with the toxins of the outside environment. On the contrary, if that yin and yang embryo has a good nature, positive energy particles will be produced, and it inherits the good nature of that yin and yang embryo and the external environment. Remember to recognise your toxins and good elements through your role as parents towards your children.

In addition, the content group in the relationship parents treat their children is to help the tuelinhs and souls build love and responsibility. It is the practice of responsibly producing positive energy particles containing the informational values of love.

The harmful energy particles produced in the group of content that parents treat their children are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The couple decided not to have children after marriage to enjoy a leisurely and free life. They produce a grey negative energy particle in the soul.

- If the parents decide to abort the fetus, they will produce a black negative energy particle of murder. There is no reason to justify killing a fetus to prevent it from producing harmful energy particles for that evil action.

- Parents abandon their children because they do not have economic conditions or for any reason. They all produce grey negative energy particles. If the act of abandoning a child causes that child to die, they will create an additional black negative energy particle of the act that causes the child's death.

- Parents who do not let their children study when they are of school age will produce a grey negative energy particle.

- Parents scold, insult, and beat their children; they will produce grey negative energy particles.

- Parents put pressure on their children in study and life. The parents will produce harmful grey energy particles. If those pressures cause children to commit suicide, they will produce harmful black energy particles that cause the children's death.

- Parents who discriminate and treat their children negatively will produce harmful energy particles with slightly strong electric waves (light grey).

- Parents leave their sick children to die without treatment. They will produce harmful black energy particles that cause death to their children.

- Parents kill their children for any reason; they produce black negative energy particles of killing.

- For some reason, if parents resent their children, they will produce blood-red harmful energy particles.

- Parents teach their children negative knowledge and ignorance; they will produce blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of parents towards their children are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- After a couple of marriages, they have children to build family happiness. Both produce green positive energy particles.

- Parents decide to have a child even if the fetus has defects. That helps parents produce green positive energy particles. Love and care for their sick child will help them continue to produce positive green and fire-red energy particles of teaching.

- Parents decide to have a child after becoming pregnant. Even though their family has many children, their economic situation is difficult, or their career may be affected. That helps them produce green positive energy particles of growth.

- The couple could not have children, so they adopted a child. This action helps both of their souls produce green positive energy particles. Raising and loving that child helps them continue to produce green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Parents love and care for their children when they are sick, even sacrificing their property and lives to save their children in life-or-death situations of illness or accident. They will produce green positive energy particles.

- Parents love, care for, and teach their children to become good people; they will produce many fire-red positive energy particles of teaching.

- Parents teach enlightened knowledge to their children so they can build an enlightened life. They will produce a lot of positive yellow energy particles of solidarity to spread knowledge with values for sustainable development together.

Group of content about how children treat their parents:

Parents symbolize the yin and yang energy embryo, and children symbolize the yin and yang energy particles produced from the yin and yang embryo.

Through the relationship between children and their parents, the tuelinhs and souls can understand the toxins and good elements of themselves and each other. Particles are created through the yin and yang energy embryo to understand one's toxins and excellent components. Therefore, this scenario was created by the first tuelinh to help the tuelinhs in their role as children to their parents and to understand themselves through understanding their parents.

It would help if you remembered that the smallest energy particles are born from yin and yang embryos; they always carry the genetic nature of yin and yang energy embryos. Therefore, it is possible through the expression and nature of the yin or yang energy particle to understand the intellectual nature of the yin and yang energy embryo. Suppose the smallest positive energy particle is born. In that case, we know that the yin and yang energy embryo, when producing a positive particle, has had the victory of the original positive particle in controlling the toxins of the negative particle and the external environment to activate the positive values in the original positive particle. On the contrary, if harmful energy particles are produced, we understand that the original negative particle has developed toxins to control the original positive particle, and it absorbs toxic information in the outside environment to produce harmful particles. Remember to recognize toxins and good factors in children's relationships with their parents.

Experiencing the scenarios in the content group of the children treating their parents will help the tuelinhs and souls build love and responsibility by forcing out toxins and activating goodness elements. It is the practice of producing positive energy particles with a children-parent relationship content.

The harmful energy particles produced in the children's content group towards their parents are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Children do not listen to their parents' teachings, and they become bad people; they produce harmful energy particles with strong to super-strong electric waves depending on their actions, causing harm to people, animals and all things.

- When children refuse to study while their parents let them study, they produce harmful energy particles with strong electric waves.

- Children cheat their parents to get money for entertainment, are addicted to stimulants, and play gambling; they will produce grey harmful energy particles.

- When children insult, defame, curse, trample on dignity, and beat their parents, they will produce grey negative energy particles.

- Children leave their parents to find a place to practice and do not perform the task of getting married to build family happiness. They will produce grey harmful energy particles and countless blood-red negative energy particles because of practising the path of enlightenment in ignorance.

- Children leave their sick parents to die without helping them treat them; they will produce harmful black energy particles.

- When children kill their parents, they will produce harmful black energy particles.

- Children who preach ignorant and superstitious knowledge to their parents produce blood-red harmful energy particles.

- Children hate their parents for some reason; they will produce blood-red harmful energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in children's lives towards their parents are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the tuelinh. They contain the following content values:

- Children listen to their parents to become good people and bring good values to everyone. They produce a lot of green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Children care for their parents when sick and ill; they produce green positive energy particles.

- Children sacrifice their property to cure their parents' illnesses and sacrifice themselves to save their parents in trouble. They will produce green positive energy particles.

- When children teach enlightened knowledge to their parents, they will produce yellow positive energy particles.

- Children practice a life of spreading enlightened knowledge to everyone, which is the most valuable act of filial piety that children give to their parents. It is an act of love for humanity, and all things as their parents, and all need to receive enlightened wisdom. That enables the person to produce countless energy superparticles containing the entire content of all four Tao forms. That is the energy superparticle of the unified Tao of the universe through the four forms of Tao in the human world.

Group of content about how siblings in the family treat each other:

Siblings in a family symbolize the synthetic yin and yang energy particles outside the mature yin and yang embryo. Those synthetic yin and yang energy particles bond to form a strong and sustainable physical structure by unifying the separate tasks and functions of the yin, yang, and neutral particles to information waves circulate for sustainable development. Harmful energy particles represent their toxic brothers with manifestations of selfishness, greed and ignorance. Positive energy particles symbolize brothers who have many good elements with manifestations of enlightenment, spreading and giving away values with characteristics of sustainable development.

Through the interactive relationship in the content group of brothers and sisters with each other, the tuelinhs will understand the toxins and good elements of themselves and each other. The poison in all content groups in the four forms of Tao is always living for selfishness for oneself, for one's brothers, for one's spouse, one's family, one's group, one's nation, even one's humanity without breaking the word "one's or self" to bring sustainable development values to all society, humanity, and all things in and out of the universe. Toxins in this content group will cause the information waves in the synthetic energy particle structure to be unable to circulate. On the contrary, good elements are values that are spread, and it has broken the word "one's or self" to bring sustainable development benefits to brothers and sisters, to society, to animals, for people, for humanity, for all things in and out of the universe without any distinction. That is the virtue of having the power to spread and push information waves within the composite energy particle structure outside the yin and yang energy embryo. Therefore, the interactive scenario in this content group helps the tuelinhs and souls eliminate toxins, stimulate goodness, and practice circulating information waves in the aggregate particle structure of the tuelinhs. It is an essential task because circulating information waves in the structure will help the soul have the power to eliminate toxins and detonate destructive energy to produce sustainable energy particles.

In addition, in the group of sibling interaction content, the tuelinhs and souls will build love by producing sustainable energy particles.

The types of harmful energy particles produced in the group of content that siblings treat each other are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Siblings are jealous, superior or inferior and speak ill of each other. They will produce harmful energy particles with slightly strong electric waves.

- Siblings compete for property from their parents and each other's property. They will produce harmful grey energy particles.

- If siblings insult, trample on dignity, and beat each other, they produce harmful grey energy particles.

- Siblings compete for each other's power and position. They will produce from one to countless harmful energy particles with strong and very strong electric waves if they cause harm to many people later.

- When siblings kill each other, they produce harmful black energy particles.

- Brothers and sisters teach each other ignorant knowledge, superstitious knowledge, worship rituals, and knowledge harmful to everyone. They will produce blood-red negative energy particles.

- If siblings resent and hate each other, they produce blood-red harmful energy particles.

- Brothers and sisters sabotage and hinder each other in spreading enlightened knowledge to everyone and humanity. They will produce countless blood-red harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves.

The positive energy particles produced in how siblings treat each other are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Brothers and sisters love, care for and help each other in times of trouble, illness and suffering. They produce green positive energy particles.

- If siblings give each other inheritance from their parents and give each other property, they will produce green positive energy particles.

- Siblings sacrifice to save each other, producing green, positive energy particles.

- Siblings teach each other knowledge to become good people; they will produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- Brothers and sisters teach each other enlightened knowledge; they will produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

Content group of living people treat ancestors:

This content group is also a symbol of the relationship that builds information connection between the tuelinhs each other. In the form of family Tao, it is the relationship of living people with their ancestors.

This group of interactive content helps the tuelinhs build connections between the tuelinhs in love and responsibility for each other. It also allows them to eliminate toxins and activate good elements in the yin and yang energy embryo.

The harmful energy particles produced in the group of living people treat their ancestors as the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Living people destroy graves and ancestral worship places; they produce harmful grey energy particles. Those are actions of disrespect to their ancestors.

- Living people curse their ancestors, curse heaven and earth, slander the origin of humanity and the tuelinhs; they will produce grey harmful particles.

- Living people incite conflicts and cause war; they produce countless harmful black energy particles. That is the poison of both national and family Tao content. As for family form, they break the tradition of loving peace and love for humanity.

- People live to propagate superstitions, impure rituals and beliefs, and ignorant knowledge to everyone. That causes them to produce blood-red harmful energy particles due to their country's abuse of ancestral traditions, beliefs, and religions to hurt people and society. This toxicity is related to the toxicity of the content in the teacher-disciple Tao.

The positive energy particles produced in the lives of living people towards their ancestors are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Living people preserve and protect the purity of ancestral beliefs and ancestor worship; they produce positive energy particles of development.

- People who live to eliminate superstition, evil customs and sacrifices, and prayer rituals will produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- People who live to teach enlightened knowledge about the origin of humanity and the tuelinhs, about the practice mission and the path of a sustainable transformation in the human world, will produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

Remember, all the contents in all four forms of the Tao are interconnected to create maximum complexity and compression to help the tuelinhs and souls identify toxins and remove them, then activate good elements by producing sustainable energy particles."

Chapter Seventy-One

The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of Social Tao

"Teacher, yesterday's lecture was significant for everyone to know clearly what energy particles will be produced by actions for each group of interactive content. That knowledge will help people recognize their toxins and good elements. From there, everyone will quickly practice producing sustainable energy particles. That lecture took up a lot of your time, and you had to finish the lecture more than an hour later than usual. Therefore, I didn't have a chance to ask you. Teacher, I would like to ask a question about the practice of generating energy particles in all forms of the Tao. Does teaching enlightenment knowledge about each content in all interactive scenarios help people generate the most sustainable energy particles compared to other actions?"

After sipping hot tea, the teacher said, "That's right. Teaching enlightened knowledge about each interactive content in the four forms of Tao will help people understand the origin, mission, and path of sustainable human transformation in the human world. From there, people learned the truth and practised sustainable energy particle production. The energy particles produced contain the most accurate information about sustainable development compared to other energy particles. You must understand and remember the information lecture is everything in and out of the universe.

You should not be worried or afraid when you hear the word "Tao" and quickly consider it an evil religion.

You must understand that Tao is the worldview of the universe. The tuelinh life form must incarnate as a human to practice and decipher the truth about that worldview. From there, find a method to help transform the worldview of the universe into sustainable development. The tuelinhs must transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. When you accomplish that, you will understand and attain the unified Tao of the universe.

It would help to remember that the unified Tao of the universe is not a religion. Truth and wisdom help all things in and out of the universe develop sustainably.

From that meaning, you will see the truth about all the interaction scenarios in the four forms of Tao. And you will become responsible people for your own life, that of everyone and society. Next, you practice reforming and building all relationships in the four forms of Tao to become effective and beneficial to people, animals, and everything.

To attain the unifying Tao of the universe, you must practice in the human world to eliminate toxins and produce sustainable energy particles through activating good elements. The four forms of Tao in life are the environment for you to understand and practice all the interactive content well.

Thus, the Tao of the universe that I teach you is closely linked to you in life; it is close but not far away, realistic but not imaginary, and simple and excellent. The Tao of the universe that I teach you is the knowledge of the smallest energy particle, and it helps you learn how to produce the most valuable super-energy particles to help your soul and all things in and out of the universe become sustainable in development."

A student immediately asked the teacher, "Teacher, to attain the unified Tao of the universe, humans are not allowed to break or abandon any form of Tao, right?"

The teacher replied, "That's right. People must live fully and completely in the four forms of the Tao to eliminate toxins and maximize good activation by producing sustainable energy particles."

After that, the teacher continued to lecture, "You must remember that all groups of interactive content in the four forms of the Tao are closely linked. That is a highly incredible scenario system that Nalas Nalanda created to help all tuelinhs and souls eliminate all toxins and maximize the activation of good elements to transform yin and yang energy into an energy filter.

Now, I continue with the lecture on the unified Tao of the universe through Social Tao.

Do you still remember the value of the form of social Tao for the tuelinhs? That is the knowledge I preached in the sermon on the unified Tao of the universe.

The social Tao form is valuable in helping the tuelinhs and souls recognize and force out toxins, then activating good factors like other forms of Tao. However, it has its unique value in helping the tuelinhs and souls practice building sustainable development values, building links with other life forms, and working together to build sustainable development values for all life forms. Please remember its values carefully so that through all interactive content in Social Tao, you will quickly identify toxins and excellent elements, forcing out poisons and producing sustainable energy particles by good elements.

Let's explore each interactive content in the social Tao form to recognize poison factors by harmful and good elements by positive energy particles produced by different actions.

Content group of humans treat animals:

I remind you of the teachings of Nalas Nalanda in the great gathering of humanity again. He told the first humans in the human world that he assigned humans the mission to tame animals so that they could also become humans. That means that humans' domestication of animals is to help the soul structure inside the animals encode the super complex information values of the tuelinhs and humans. From there, those souls are upgraded in structure and information value through sustainable energy particles that help people. The result they receive is that those souls are transformed into tuelinhs. After that, they were reincarnated as humans to practice in the human world.

As I said, the purpose of the social Tao form is that the tuelinhs and souls work together to build sustainable development values for all life forms and link those values for all life forms in and out of the universe. Animals are not an exception.

Please understand that your mission in the form of social Tao is like that, but you mistreat animals and kill animals to satisfy your pleasure, eat and drink. So, are you building links between life forms to sustainably develop together or destroy them? Please remember that carefully.

The Tuelinhs want to protect and sustainably develop all life forms in and out of the universe; they must first practice protecting and sustainably developing life forms in this practice environment. If they cannot do that, they will not be able to defend themselves, let alone preserve and develop life forms in and out of the universe. You guys continue to remember that.

The harmful energy particles produced in the group of people who treat animals are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Humans imprison and beat animals, and their souls produce grey harmful energy particles.

- Humans kill animals to become food; they will produce a black negative energy particle of killing life for each action of killing animal life.

- People enjoy fishing and hunting, and they produce a lot of black negative particles.

- When humans practice slaughtering, they produce a lot of harmful black energy particles.

- People do not slaughter but practice the trade of animal bodies, such as cutting meat and bones; they produce a lot of grey negative energy particles.

- People propagate to each other about the pleasures of hunting or fishing, practising slaughtering or trading in animal meat. They produced a lot of blood-red harmful energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in how humans treat animals are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People domesticate and raise animals to ensure living space, care and protection for their health and life. They will produce green positive energy particles.

- People help animals when injured, sick, at risk of death or being killed. They will produce green positive energy particles.

- Humans release animals back into the wild when they are imprisoned, abused and prepared for slaughter. They produce a lot of green positive energy particles.

- People propagate not to kill animals, not to practice animal slaughter. In addition, people propagate the actions that need to be taken with animals, such as domestication and breeding, to ensure living space and life safety for them. They will produce many yellow positive energy particles of the truth about the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world.

Content group of humans treat natural resources:

Natural resources include land, water, rocks, forests, seas, mountains, and other underground resources. Natural resources are life forms other than tuelinhs in human bodies and souls in animals and humans. In addition, it includes both complex energy structures and soul structures with simple intelligence residing in simple physical structures such as trees, rocks and soil. Natural resources symbolise all things or life forms other than humans and animals.

It would be best to remember that the tuelinhs incarnate as humans to understand themselves and everyone else, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction. Thus, understanding all things is a task that must be decoded in the three secrets above. All things are life forms in the universe, and they were diversely built on Earth by Nalas Nalanda to help humans practice decoding their nature. Decoding their nature means understanding the truth about the harmful information values and good elements within them. Understanding everything will help the tuelinhs understand themselves, everyone, and the energy of destruction.

You must remember that the tuelinhs and the souls practice in the human world to achieve the unified Tao of the universe. When achieved, they will have the power to protect and sustainably develop all life forms in and out of the universe, including themselves. They must practice in the human world first. Thus, their mission in the human world includes understanding all life forms, and they must protect and sustainably develop all those life forms. Nalas Nalanda created that as a group of content in social Tao.

The types of harmful energy particles produced in the group of content that humans treat natural resources are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Humans cut down forests, producing countless grey and black harmful energy particles.

- Humans destroy mountains; they produce countless grey and black harmful energy particles.

- People destroy the water environment, marine environment, river, stream, pond, and lake environment through waste discharge actions accidentally or intentionally; they produce countless grey and black negative energy particles.

- Humans exploit natural resources underground; they produce countless grey and black negative energy particles.

- Humans propagate and teach each other to practice actions that destroy life forms on earth for any reason; they produce a lot of blood-red negative energy particles.

- All acts of destroying and propagating the destruction of life forms on earth are killing the life of life forms, including the destruction of the practice environment of complex energy structures and low-intelligence souls that reside in those life forms.

The positive energy particles produced in the group of content that humans treat as natural resources are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People take action to protect and preserve natural resources on earth; they produce a lot of green positive energy particles.

- People take action to eliminate and protest the destruction of natural resources; they produce many green positive energy particles.

- People propagate enlightened wisdom so that everyone can protect natural resources together; they produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

Group of content employees treat employers:

This group of interactive content helps the tuelinhs and souls learn how to build and develop sustainable values. That is, through the content group in the employee's relationship with the employer, the employee will learn the experience, wisdom, and ethical values of the employer in building and operating the business to survive and develop. This group of interactive content is a practical environment to help the tuelinhs and souls learn most effectively. The mission of the tuelinhs after completing their practice path in the human world is to operate life forms in and outside the universe to develop sustainably, so learning how to manage these values of sustainable development is their essential mission.

This group of interactive content also helps the tuelinhs and souls recognize and eliminate their toxins, followed by producing sustainable energy particles through maximum activation of good elements within them. That is the task that always exists in each interactive content of the four forms of Tao.

In addition, this group of interactive content also helps the tuelinhs and souls build connections and solidarity to build and develop sustainable values together. It is through interaction between workers and employees that tasks are completed. You must understand that the task of building cohesion and solidarity between the tuelinhs is always present in all interactive content of the four forms of Tao. It is critical for the tuelinhs to have love and responsibility to develop sustainably together.

The types of harmful energy particles produced in the content group of employees treat employers as the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Workers cause conflicts, insults, trample on dignity, and beat and riot with each other in the workplace. They produce harmful grey energy particles through actions that hurt each other and affect the employer's working environment.

- Workers kill each other in the workplace, producing harmful black energy particles. Those are energy particles produced by people killing each other and affecting the employer's production and working environment.

- Workers steal the employer's property; they produce grey negative energy particles.

- Workers who are lazy at work and avoid performing work duties in the labour contract signed with the employer. They produce grey negative energy particles.

- Workers curse, insult their dignity, and assault their employers; they produce grey negative energy particles.

- Workers sabotage the employer's work tools, machinery, and production equipment, producing grey harmful energy particles.

- Workers who kill their employers will produce harmful black energy particles.

- Workers propagate and incite other workers to sabotage the employer's factory and production site; they produce blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of employees treat the employer as the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Employees fulfil their duties at work well, and those duties do not cause harm to people, animals, and living things; they produce green positive energy particles.

- Workers find and invent production methods that bring greater efficiency and productivity at work; they produce green positive energy particles.

- Employees help, connect, and unite with each other to complete their work well and bring good values to employers and society. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Workers protect property, production materials, and machinery at the production site from theft and destruction by other workers or people. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Employees protect and help employers when they are in trouble that endangers their health and life. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Workers teach each other about enlightened wisdom in the relationship between workers and employers so that they can mutually understand and work enthusiastically in production. They will produce yellow energy particles of solidarity to spread the values of sustainable development to everyone. These are the energy particles of enlightenment and the practice of producing sustainable energy particles.

Research, invention, production, and business content group:

This content group includes various interactive content such as research, invention, production, and business. Still, it shares a standard content value of finding and creating values for sustainable development for all people, animals, and all things.

This content group is valuable in helping the tuelinhs and souls explore and create sustainable development values for themselves and all life forms in and outside the universe. They must practice in the human world and study and practice in an environment like workers first. That process helps them cultivate wisdom from the environment, animals, and everything, as well as people practising research, invention, production, and business. After the tuelinhs and souls learn and cultivate wisdom, they research, invent, produce, and trade values that bring sustainable development to people, animals, and all things.

You must remember that the tuelinhs must build for themselves a type of intelligence capable of creating sustainable development values for all life forms in and outside the universe. Therefore, when practising in the human world, their research, inventions, production, and business must create values with sustainable development characteristics for people, animals, and everything. If they do so, they will succeed in creating values that bring sustainable development to all things in and outside the universe. On the contrary, if they develop values that harm people, animals, and all things in the human world, they will not be able to create values of sustainable development for all things in and outside the universe.

Thus, through research, invention, production, and business content, the tuelinhs can create sustainable development values and give those values to all life in and out of the universe. In addition, through this content group, they will practice eliminating toxins and activating good elements in actions that produce energy particles.

The harmful energy particles produced in the group of research, invention, production, and business content are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who research, invent, produce, and trade foods that are harmful to the health and life of humans and animals. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- People who research, invent, produce, and trade stimulants and addictive substances that are harmful to human health and life. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- People who research, invent, produce, and trade in killing animals. They create a lot of grey and black harmful energy particles.

- People who research, invent, produce, and trade fake and toxic drugs that are harmful to human health and life. They create a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- People who research, invent, produce, and trade natural resources such as forests, rocky mountains, and underground minerals. They create a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and sell weapons and means of killing. They make a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- People who research, invent, produce, and trade products that harm the health and life of humans and animals. They create a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- People who research, invent, produce, and sell products prohibited by national law and production and business activities that do not comply with national laws, such as tax evasion and smuggling. They will produce a lot of grey energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and do business defraud people for profit; they create a lot of grey negative energy particles. If those actions have fatal consequences, they will produce black negative energy particles.

- Those who transfer technology and models that have been researched, invented, produced, and are doing business are harmful to the health and life of humans and animals. They created a lot of grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Those who propagate and promote values, products, and goods that harm human health and life. They produce a lot of blood-red yin energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and trade knowledge harmful to humans, animals, and everything. They create a lot of blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in research, invention, production, and business content are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Those who research, invent, produce, and sell products and methods for protecting natural resources. They make a lot of green positive energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and sell products that protect the health and lives of animals. They create a lot of green positive energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and sell valuable products that protect human health and life. They make a lot of green positive energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and sell valuable products that support and help people have a better life. They create a lot of green energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and sell products in compliance with national laws and bring benefits to people, animals, and all things. They make a lot of green positive energy particles.

- Those who research, invent, produce, and trade knowledge that develops people and society. They make a lot of green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- People who together propagate and promote research, inventions, and products of good value for humans, animals, and all things. They produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

- Those who teach each other enlightened knowledge about research, invention, production, and business. They produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

Content group of employers treat employees:

This content group helps the tuelinhs and souls learn and practice methods of building connections between them together in deploying and developing sustainable values for all things in and outside the universe. It means that when the tuelinhs and souls train as workers, as cultivators of knowledge, and as people who explore, research, and invent sustainable development values, they have achieved and are implementing them. To apply those sustainable development values to all life forms in and out of the universe to attain the best results, they must be able to operate the factors participating in applying those values. It is to manage the tuelinhs and other souls in solidarity to operate the values of sustainable development together for all life forms in and outside the universe.

For the tuelinhs to complete their mission of bringing sustainable development values to all life forms in and outside the universe, they must practice in production and business environments. That is, they will act as employers and must build the best relationship with employees. You must remember that they must make the best relationship with workers to operate sustainable development values, not exploit and oppress workers.

In addition, through this group of script content, the tuelinhs and souls will identify and eliminate their toxins, promoting the process of producing sustainable energy particles from good elements.

The types of harmful energy particles produced in the content group of employers treat workers as the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Employers ignore and care about workers' lives and working conditions; they produce grey energy particles.

- Employers exploit labour and do not pay workers fair wages. They produce grey energy particles.

- Employers force and force others to become their employees. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- Employers do not pay wages to workers. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- The employer curses, insults the dignity and beats the employee. They produce grey energy particles.

- Employers oppress and kill workers. They produce black energy particles.

- Employers propagate to each other methods of exploiting labour and methods of oppressing workers. They produce a lot of blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content of the employers who treat employees are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Employers care and take good care of their employees' lives and working conditions. They produce green positive energy particles.

- The employer does not exploit labour, abuse workers, or insult or trample on the dignity of workers. On the contrary, they care about and help workers ensure their lives from the salary they receive. They will produce many green positive energy particles.

- The employer helps and saves the employee under challenging situations. They produce green positive energy particles.

- The employer helps and teaches the workers experience and knowledge about production and business. They produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- Employers teach enlightened knowledge to employees about the content of interactions in the relationship between employees and employers. They produce many yellow positive energy particles. These are positive energy particles of the truth about the origin and mission of practice in the human world and the path of practice that produces sustainable energy particles.

Group of content about how people of the opposite sex treat each other:

The tuelinhs and souls must learn how to treat other tuelinhs and souls when they differ in the value of the internal particle structure. It is about caring and helping each other, but they must respect each other. They must practice scenarios of interactions between people of the opposite sex towards each other to learn and build the ability to relate respectfully.

In addition, through this group of interactive content, the tuelinhs and souls can identify toxins and eliminate them, followed by maximum activation of good elements by producing sustainable energy particles.

The harmful energy particles produced in the interaction between people of the opposite sex are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People comment, discriminate, and insult each other's gender. They produce grey harmful energy particles.

- People of the opposite sex behave rudely and use obscene or lustful language towards each other. They produce grey energy particles. It is the energy particle of toxic information.

- When people of the opposite sex commit adultery when one of them is married, they produce grey harmful energy particles.

- People groping, sexually abusing, and coercing people of the opposite sex. They will produce grey energy particles.

- People take advantage of their positions at work to grope and sexually abuse. They produce grey negative energy particles.

- People buy or sell sex or broker sex. They will produce grey energy particles.

- People propagate and promote depraved and lustful cultural products between people of the opposite sex or the same sex. They will produce many blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in interactions between people of the opposite sex are the excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People help people of the opposite sex in work and life with respect and ethical standards. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People protect people of the opposite sex when they are groped, raped, or sexually abused. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People will produce fire-red positive energy particles when they propagate and eliminate prostitution, sexual abuse, and adultery.

- When people practice spreading enlightened knowledge to everyone about the content of interactions in the scenario between people of the opposite sex. They will produce yellow energy particles.

Group of love content between men and women:

When a man and woman reach the age of love but are not yet of marriage age and have not decided to get married, their interaction content belongs to the group of interaction content in love between man and woman.

As you know, men represent positive energy particles, and women represent negative energy particles. The existence of men and women in the human world creates a particular type of interaction: to marry each other to form husband and wife and give birth to children to develop humanity. It symbolises the formation and development of an embryo of yin and yang energy, becoming more prominent and robust physical structures. You also know that only negative particles bond with positive particles to become yin and yang embryos. It means that only a man and a woman love each other to become husband and wife.

The content scenarios in the love of men and women help the tuelinhs and souls understand the nature and transformation mechanism of information values in the negative, positive, and neutral energy particles. From there, they will realise the truth of themselves, all things in the universe, and the energy of destruction.

In addition, through a group of interactive content in love between men and women, the tuelinhs and souls identify and eliminate toxins within them, activating good elements through producing sustainable energy particles.

The types of harmful energy particles produced in the group of interactions in love between men and women are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Same-sex love, like between a man and a man and a woman and a woman, will produce grey energy particles.
- Boy or girl takes advantage of the love between men and women to satisfy their desires without aiming for marriage. They produce grey energy particles.
- A man or woman loves many people and has sexual relations with them. That person produces grey energy particles.
- A woman becomes pregnant in love but decides to have an abortion. That person produces a black negative energy particle.

- A man gets a woman pregnant and forces her lover to have an abortion, both of which produce black energy particles.

- A man makes a woman pregnant but is not responsible for marrying and loving the woman. That person produces grey energy particles.

- In love, when one of the two people mentally or physically abuses each other, they produce grey energy particles.

- In love, if one kills the other, that person will produce a black negative energy particle.

- When they love each other, but for some reason, they invite each other to commit suicide. They produce black energy particles.

- People propagate negative ideas about love between men and women. They will produce blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the group of interactions in love between men and women are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- In love, people respect and protect each other's virtues, producing green, positive energy particles.

- In love, they do not take advantage to satisfy their desires; instead, they decide to get married. That helps them produce green positive energy particles.

- When their lover gets pregnant, they marry and love each other. That helps them produce green positive energy particles.

- In love, a woman decides to give birth when she becomes pregnant, regardless of whether the man agrees to get married or not. That helps the woman's soul produce a green positive energy particle.

- The love between a man and a woman is pure, and they protect each other to get married together; they produce a green energy particle.

- When they love each other, they help, even sacrifice for each other when one is in trouble and their lives are in danger. Their souls produce green positive energy particles.

- Everyone teaches each other about the wisdom of enlightenment in the love interaction between men and women. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

Human trafficking content group:

The tuelinhs want to create sustainable development values for all life forms in and outside the universe; they must first create sustainable development values for themselves and their life forms. Human trafficking content will help them develop responses to practice sustainable energy particle production in that content.

In addition, through the human trafficking content group, the tuelinhs and souls become aware of their toxins and eliminate them. Next comes the practice of generating sustainable energy particles by activating their inner goodness.

The negative energy particles produced in human trafficking content are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who commit acts of buying and selling people such as infants, children, women, and enslaved people. They produce black energy particles and lots of grey energy particles.

- People who kidnap people for ransom or to sell them. They produce black energy particles and many grey energy particles.

- Brokers for others to commit human trafficking. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People who know the trafficking activities of human traffickers but do not rescue or report to the authorities for rescue. They produce many grey energy particles.

- People who perform brokerage acts, buying and selling people for organ harvesting. They produce a lot of black and grey energy particles.

- People participating in the process of harvesting organs from trafficked people. They produce a lot of black energy particles. Those are negative energy particles produced by people killing and destroying others.

- Propagandists and promoters to provide human organs to people who need organ replacements. They produce blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the group of human trafficking content are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who rescue or report to the authorities to rescue people trafficked by human traffickers. They produce many green positive energy particles.

- People who participate in rescuing or reporting to the authorities to rescue kidnapped people from kidnappers successfully. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who participate in rescuing or reporting to the authorities to successfully rescue people who are about to be harvested for organs from human trafficking. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Those who propagate and eliminate human trafficking in the community and society so that everyone can fight those cruel acts together. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

- People who preach enlightened knowledge to each other in the human trafficking content group. They produce yellow energy particles.

The human content group treats people in social and work relationships:

This content group has a variety of interactive content. However, they share the same informational value to help the tuelinhs and souls learn lessons, which is how they treat each other. In addition, this content group helps the tuelinhs to remove toxins and activate their good factors.

The negative energy particles produced in how people treat each other in social and work relationships are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People insult, defame, distort, slander, harm, and abuse each other. They produce grey energy particles.

- Young people do not respect older people when they behave disrespectfully towards older people. They produce grey energy particles.

- Older people do not respect young people when they use disrespectful words and actions towards them. They produce grey energy particles.

- People fight, insult, and curse each other when they collide or conflict. They produce grey energy particles.

- People slander and harm each other at work. They produce grey energy particles.

- People who have actions and words that discriminate against others by race, ethnicity and religion. They produce grey energy particles.

- People lie and deceive each other to benefit themselves at work and in relationships in life. They produce grey energy particles.

- People assault and kill others. They produce black energy particles.

- People abandon people in distress, people whose lives are in danger. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People create groups of people to defame and trample on other people's dignity. They produce blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the group of content that people interact with each other in society and at work are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- There are people who help people in distress, people whose lives are in danger. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who help and protect others from acts of violence and murder. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who know how to respect older and younger people and behave correctly with everyone around them to build moral values. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who know how to protect and help people who are abused both mentally and physically by someone, by groups of people who speak ill of them. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who can yield and take losses in societal conflicts or at work. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who know how to protect people discriminated against by race, ethnicity, or religion and how to unite to help those discriminated against. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

- People who teach each other about the wisdom of enlightenment in how people treat each other. They produce yellow energy particles.

Sexual content group:

This group of content helps the tuelinhs and souls recognize toxins to eliminate and good elements to activate. In addition, through this group, they also recognize the toxins and good aspects of the external environment, other tuelinhs, and even the energy of destruction.

The harmful energy particles produced during the sexual content group are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who commit acts of paedophilia or rape others, whether of the same or opposite sex, produce grey and black energy particles.

- People who engage in prostitution produce a lot of grey energy particles.

- People who buy sex produce a grey negative energy particle each time they perform that act.

- People who engage in prostitution produce grey and black energy particles.

- People who broker prostitution produce a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- People who have homosexual sex produce grey energy particles.

- People who use benefits at work to coerce or rape others. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People who use money and grades to satisfy sex from students. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People who have sex with another person while one of them is in a married state. They produce grey negative energy particles.

- People who commit adultery when one or both of them are in a married state. They produce grey energy particles.

- People who traffic in sex slaves force or force others to be sex slaves. They produce a lot of black and grey energy particles.

- Those who propagate same-sex love, transgenderism, and prostitution. They produce blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the sexual content group are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who are practising prostitution, prostitution brokerage, and prostitution business then give up that; next, they become people who share and help others not to practice prostitution firms and behaviours. That helps them stop producing harmful energy particles, and they produce fire-red positive energy particles instead.

- People who are drawn into adulterous relationships and prostitution, but they do not fall and do not commit those acts to continue building family happiness. That helps them produce green positive energy particles.

- People who liberate and rescue those who are sexually enslaved. They produce many green positive energy particles.

- Those who advise and help those who have gone astray in adulterous relationships to return to being good people and living ethical standards. They produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- People who help people who are infected with toxic information from the social environment and have transgender or same-sex love to return to the gender their parents were born with. They produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- People who used to live in same-sex love have come back to live their lives according to the gender that their parents were born as. They will produce green and fire-red positive energy particles if they help others with same-sex love return to the correct gender they were born with.

- Those who preach enlightened knowledge about the sexual content group to everyone. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

Start-up and livelihood content group:

This group of content helps the tuelinhs and souls learn how to create sustainable development values for themselves and others. At the same time, it allows them to recognize and eliminate toxins, then activates good elements through actions that produce sustainable energy particles.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group of starting a business and making a living are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who reach working age to earn money to take care of themselves and their families but do not work and instead rely on their parents and family. They produce grey energy particles. Those are energy particles of laziness.

- People who commit theft or robbery. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living defrauding people to appropriate their property. That person produces black and grey energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living by gambling. They produce grey energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living by slaughtering animals, hunting, and trading animal meat. They produce a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living by doing jobs that destroy natural resources. They produce black and grey energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living through jobs that violate national laws, causing harm to the health and life of people and animals. They will produce many black and grey energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living through the business of harmful addictive stimulants, prostitution business, human trafficking business, human organ trafficking business. They will produce many grey and black energy particles.

- People who start a business and do business by lending money at high-interest rates over legal regulations and using violence to collect a debt. They produce a lot of grey and black energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living by teaching false knowledge and causing harm to everyone. They produce many grey, black, and blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of starting a business and making a living are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who start businesses and sell products in compliance with national laws and do not harm the health and life of humans and animals. They produce many green positive energy particles.

- People who start businesses and sell products that benefit people, animals and natural resources. They produce many green positive energy particles.

- People who start businesses and businesses benefit themselves, their families, people, countries, animals, and everything. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who start a business and make a living create many jobs for workers. They will produce many green positive energy particles if it is a work that complies with national laws and benefits people, animals and all things.

- People who preach to each other about enlightened wisdom in starting a business and making a living will produce many yellow positive energy particles.

Group content of relationships with friends and colleagues:

This content group will help the tuelinhs and souls connect and be responsible with each other to unite to build and spread the values of sustainable development to all life forms in and outside the universe. In addition, it also helps them recognize the toxins and good elements of themselves, each other, and all things in and out of the universe.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group of relationships with friends and colleagues are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Friends or colleagues entice each other to indulge in debauchery, use addictive stimulants that are harmful to health, buy and sell sex, and commit adultery. They will produce grey and black energy particles.

- Friends or colleagues invite each other to become thieves, robbers, and scammers. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- Friends or colleagues invite each other to do business and produce products that violate national laws or harm human health, animals, and everything. They will produce black and grey energy particles.

- Friends or colleagues defame, insult, trample on dignity, assault, harm, and deceive each other. They produce grey energy particles.

- When friends or colleagues kill each other, they produce black energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of relationships with friends and colleagues are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Friends or colleagues help each other when encountering difficulties, tribulations, and life-threatening dangers. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Friends or colleagues help each other overcome mistakes and sins to become good people. They will produce green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Friends or colleagues help each other develop economically and maintain family happiness. They will produce green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Friends or colleagues teach each other about enlightened knowledge within the content of the relationship between friends and colleagues. They will produce many yellow positive energy particles.

Group of content related to human health and life:

This group of content helps the tuelinhs and souls build methods to protect and develop sustainable life for themselves and other life forms. In addition, it also allows them to identify toxins and good elements of themselves and all life forms in and outside the universe. Next, they learn to practice forcing out toxins and activating good factors.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group related to human health and life are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Someone insults the dignity, defames, or beats another person, affecting that person's spirit and health. They produce grey energy particles.

- People who kill others for any reason. They produce black energy particles.

- People who commit suicide produce black energy particles.

- People who propagate or incite others to commit suicide or kill others. They produce black energy particles.

- People who produce fake products, foods, poisons, and medicines that affect human health and life. They will produce black energy particles.

- People who incite religious conflicts and ethnic conflicts that lead to people killing each other. They produce many black and blood-red energy particles.

- People who take advantage of their role as doctors or medical professionals to provide or sell fake or poor-quality drugs, causing deaths when people are sick or during epidemics. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- Physicians and doctors who take advantage of dangerous diseases that cannot be cured to profit from treatment fees from patients while they are not cured. Those people will produce many black energy particles.

- People who research and create viruses that cause deadly diseases, biological weapons, and deadly weapons to profit and cause death to people. They produce many black energy particles.

- People who incite and wage war. They produce countless black and blood-red energy particles.

- People who kill people in war. They produce black energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group related to human health and life are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who help others when distressed, sick, or at risk to their health or life. They will produce green positive energy particles.

- People who produce products that support and help patients. They produce positive green energy particles.

- People who help and save others in war. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who work to treat patients produce positive green energy particles.

- People who help and prevent people from committing suicide. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Those who invent, create, and produce drugs and vaccines to help and cure people. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People who do not allow war when conflicts exist between peoples, countries, and religions. They produce countless blue, fire-red and yellow positive energy particles.

- People who teach each other enlightened wisdom on content related to human health and life. They will produce many yellow positive energy particles. Those are positive energy particles of good elements that contain the truth about the origin, the task of cultivating in the human world, and the practice method of producing sustainable energy particles.

Thus, you have recognized toxins and good elements through actions that produce different yin and yang energy particles in all interactions in the social form. It would help if you remembered that there are countless interaction scenarios in life in general and social Tao in particular. Therefore, you should group them into content groups in each form of Tao to understand their poisonous and good nature."

Chapter Seventy-Two

The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of the National Tao

"Do you still remember the value of the national form of Tao that I preached in the sermon on the unified Tao of the universe?" The Teacher asked the students when class started.

Then, a student replied, "Teacher, through the form of the national Tao, the tuelinhs will produce enough energy particles with special functions and tasks. When achieved, they will have the power to unite all tuelinhs in reverence to the great Father of the universe, the first tuelinh (God, Buddha, Nalas Nalanda). In addition, the tuelinhs unite in respect and responsibility to build, protect, and sustainably develop all forms of life in and outside the universe."

After sipping hot tea, he put the teacup on the table and stood up. The Teacher looked at that student and everyone in the classroom. A radiant and satisfied expression appeared on the Teacher's face.

He said, "I am very proud of you and all of you. Since I upgraded my knowledge of the two truths by understanding the smallest energy particle and the information values inside the energy particle, the learners have extensively understood all that I preached. It is terrific because you can think about the knowledge of energy particles and apply it to spreading. The proof is that you have helped many people overcome suffering and tribulations, and many mentally ill people have entirely recovered. In particular, you have become very confident and convincing preachers of the knowledge of the unified Tao of the universe to everyone.

Do you know? When you have the wisdom of energy particles, especially the accurate information values inside all types of energy particles in and out of the universe, you thoroughly understand the knowledge of the two truths and their operating mechanisms. That means that you have the luggage and the most miraculous means to demonstrate to humanity that the unified Tao of the universe is in the four forms of Tao. From then on, people worldwide will believe and practice the unified Tao of the universe: eliminating toxins and activating good elements through a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles.

In today's lecture, I continue to teach you to understand the unified Tao of the universe through the form of national Tao.

Like the male student's answer, that is correct according to what you have learned. That is an excellent, even more astounding thing when you and everyone else try to remember what I preach in today's lecture.

My dear friends, let me further explain the values that the form of national Tao brings to the tuelinhs and souls.

The national Tao is the relationship of those working in a country's management and operation apparatus to the people and all natural resources within that territory, such as water, rivers, mountains, land territories, seas, and airspace. It is the relationship of all the country's people to those working in the national management and leadership apparatus and the country's natural resources. Thus, it is the relationship of all people and those working in the national management apparatus towards each other and the natural resources in their country.

Do you know what the national Tao symbolizes? It is the symbol of all life in the universe. As follows:

- National territory is a symbol of the entire space of the universe.

- People who work in the national management and leadership apparatus are symbols of the most excellent tuelinhs and the first tuelinh who are building, protecting, and developing the universe's life.

- All the people in a country symbolize all tuelinhs in the universe.

- All a country's natural resources symbolize all life forms in the universe.

- The territory outside a country symbolizes the space outside the universe, which is the living space of destructive energy and ancestral wave-particles.

You must understand that many countries are in the world; it is not a symbol of many universes. You must remember that there is only one universe and that outside the giant cosmic sphere is an endless space containing only destructive energy particles and wave-particles. Having many countries helps tuelinhs have the opportunity to practice the interactive content of the national form of Tao in groups; that is, they can play the role of managers and leaders of the country.

Thus, through the form of national Tao, the tuelinhs and souls learn and practice the ability to unite all of them responsibly to protect, build and sustainably develop all forms of life in and out of the universe. It is a responsible solidarity in reverence for the first tuelinh and respect between tuelinhs and each other.

To help the tuelinhs carry out that mission, they must practice the national Tao's contents. That means all people in a country must respect the law and those in charge of management and leadership. On the contrary, leaders must respect the people. All must unite in respect to protect, build, and sustainably develop all natural resources in that country. Of course, it must include the entire population of the country.

In addition, through the form of the national Tao, the tuelinhs and souls identify their toxins and eliminate them, activating good elements through practising sustainable energy particle production. That also means they will understand their own and each other's nature, all things and the energy of destruction.

Now, we continue to explore the interactive content in the national Tao to recognize toxins and good elements through actions that produce energy particles.

Content group of the head of state for all people and national territory:

Do you know? In the journey of building and developing life forms in the universe, the first tuelinh will create many different life forms throughout the planets. At that time, he will send many tuelinhs to those planets to operate and develop those life forms to become more sustainable. Therefore, he needs tuelinhs capable of leading the tuelinhs and all life forms on each planet.

To help the tuelinhs carry out that mission, they will experience and practice in the role of a country's highest leader. That will help them build the wisdom of a king, ruler and country leader.

Through interactive content as the highest leader of the nation towards the entire territory and people of the country, the tuelinhs understand the sacrifices, hardships, pressures, and dedication of the first tuelinh in the role of Father, the leader who operates all life forms in the universe. From there, all tuelinhs and souls have the understanding and responsibility to unite in respect for each other to join the Father of the universe in protecting, building and developing the universe's life.

In addition, through this interactive content, they will recognize and eliminate their toxins, activating good elements by producing sustainable energy particles.

You need to know that every tuelinh is performed as a leader. However, they are the top leaders of local units or in fields ranging from small to very large in scale. The tuelinhs must have exceptional intelligence in calling, leading, and managing the people to take on a country's leadership role, whether they implement the mechanism to produce negative or positive energy particles.

Remember, do not just because you see a leader of a specific country start a war, causing many deaths for the people, that you think God is not merciful and does not save the people while they believed and followed him. It would help if you remembered that in the practice environment in the human world, the tuelinh living inside the body is to experience all interaction scenarios with maximum compression and pressure. From there, they can understand the nature of themselves and others, all things in the universe and the energy of destruction. Wars, epidemics, and natural disasters cause the environment to reach its peak of suffering. It would help to look at the truth inside the human body, the tuelinh or the soul. Therefore, we need to evaluate everything from its origin, mission, nature, and the path to achieving that mission. That means that the leader who creates war is a crime; it is a crime because of their toxicity. You can condemn that crime and poison, but you should not hate or resent that person and the soul of that person. Please build for yourself love and altruism towards all tuelinhs, and all life forms in and outside the universe. That means I want you to have love and compassion for all life forms, including destructive energy. Understanding and achieving this, you have attained enlightened wisdom.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group of the head of the country towards the entire population and territory are toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The head of state allows the country to be invaded by another country, lets the people be killed, lets the natural resources be plundered, and lets the people have to live in the suffering of war. That person produced countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles. Those are energy particles of letting the people of one's own country die and causing the deaths of people of other countries.

- The head of a country causes conflicts, incites, and wages war with other countries. They will produce countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles. Those are energy particles that kill one's people and people of different countries.

- The head of a country, for economic benefit or being influenced by another country, sends troops as mercenaries in wars and conflicts. That person will produce countless grey and black negative energy particles.

- The head of state allows their country to experience ethnic conflicts and religious conflicts, leading to civil war violence, causing many deaths. That person produced a lot of grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- The head of state allows his country to have terrorist groups, and they cause many people of their country and people of other countries to die. That person also produces many grey and black energy particles.

- The head of the country obtained that position through the act of overthrowing the old government by violence, by coup, by war, and that person caused many people to die. That person produces a lot of grey and black negative energy particles.

- The head of state allows their country to be isolated and embargoed by other countries, which causes the country to become poor and the people to suffer. That leader produced a lot of grey, black, and blood-red negative energy particles.

- The head of state implements policies to exploit and destroy natural resources, such as forests, mountains, and underground minerals. That person produces many grey and black energy particles.

- The head of state lets people die in epidemics, lets people live in poverty, and lets people die and get hurt in natural disasters such as storms, tsunamis, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, droughts, and floods. That person produces many grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- The head of state allows embezzlement, corruption, position manipulation and power manipulation by leaders and managers at all levels and fields. That person produced countless grey energy particles.

- The head of state does not help people have a prosperous and happy life; the country's economy develops sustainably, and security and defence are strong. That person produced a lot of grey energy particles.

- The head of the country lets his relatives, wife or husband control him and uses people without talent and virtue to lead in high positions. That person produces many grey and black energy particles.

- The head of a country allows his relatives to influence him to implement policies and force his subordinates to perform tasks to benefit that head's individual, family, and interest groups. They produce many grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- The leader promulgates policies to oppress the people, exploit the people's labour and property, and prohibit freedom and democracy. That leader produced countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- The leaders take advantage of religion and beliefs to confuse the people. That makes people immersed in superstition. It caused that leader to produce countless blood-red energy particles.

- The leader who develops and propagates policies hostile to the nation and other countries. That person produced a lot of blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of the head of state towards the people and national territory are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The head of state carries out foreign policies so the country and its people do not fall into war when conflicts occur and other countries initiate wars. That helps the soul of the leader of that country to produce a lot of green positive energy particles.

- The head of state does not allow wars to invade other countries due to conflicts and incitements from different countries. That person uses diplomatic policies to solve the problem and not let war happen. That leader produced a lot of green positive energy particles.

- The leader develops and propagates the policy of national unity. That person produces many yellow positive energy particles.

- The head of state does not allow religious conflicts, ethnic conflicts, or conflicts between factions to occur that cause civil war. Instead, that leader implements policies that unite and develop together for the prosperity of the people and the nation. That person produces a lot of positive energy particles in the yellow colour of solidarity, the green colour of development, and the fire-red colour of the spread of knowledge for sustainable development.

- The head of state promulgates policies to govern the country so that people's lives become prosperous, happy, peaceful, free, democratic, and wealthy, and can easily overcome epidemics, diseases, natural disasters, and robust security and defence. That person produces a lot of green positive energy particles.

- The head of state rules and manages the country free from embezzlement and corruption. Instead, the management apparatus at all levels and sectors operates effectively to benefit the people and the nation. That person produces many green positive energy particles.

- Head implement policies to protect natural resources on their national territory. That helps the person produce many green positive energy particles.

- Relatives or other interests must not influence the leader; instead, they carry out governing policies for the benefit of the people and the nation's entire resources. That helps the person produce a lot of green positive energy particles.

- The leader promulgates favourable educational development policies to increase people's intellectual level and improve people's lives. That person will produce countless green, fire-red and yellow positive energy particles.

- The leader allows disseminating enlightened knowledge to the people and the education system. That person produced countless yellow energy particles.

Content group in the relationship between leaders and managers for all people and national territory:

Do you know what the symbol is for those who manage and operate a country's activities? It symbolises the success and maturity of those people in society and a country after they have gone through the education process and achieved many achievements in exams and work. They mature intellectually, cognitively, and professionally to apply them to their mission to benefit the people and the nation.

After the tuelinhs mature, they must go to different planets in the universe to operate and manage the life forms there. It is a task that the first tuelinh assigned to them in the mission of sustainable development of all life forms in and outside the universe. The first tuelinh built for them a group of interactive content scenarios as employees in a country's operating and management apparatus to help them do that. They will simulate all situations and interactive reactions to handle between themselves, between them and other tuelinhs, and between them and other life forms in the environment of a country, such as colleagues, people, and natural resources. That will help them find and build solutions to operate and manage most effectively because of the benefits brought to the people and all life forms in a country.

In addition, through this group of interactive content, the tuelinhs and souls will recognize and eliminate their toxins, activating good elements by producing sustainable energy particles. Of course, it also helps them understand each other, understand all things and the energy of destruction.

People who work in the country's management and operation apparatus are collectively called leaders and managers from local to central levels, fields, and industries.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group of leaders and managers of the people and nation are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who do not have the ability but use money or connections to obtain leadership and management positions in the government apparatus from local to central. They produce many grey energy particles for those actions.

- Leaders and managers do not work responsibly, and they also cause difficulties for people. They will produce grey energy particles.

- Leaders and managers harm each other at work to compete for benefits and status. They produce grey energy particles.

- Leaders and managers form factions to compete for power and benefits. They will produce grey energy particles.

- Leaders and managers accept bribes and, for other reasons, put incompetent and unethical people to lead and work in positions that that person is not qualified to undertake. That causes the leader and manager to produce grey energy particles for that behaviour.

- Leaders and managers who, for the sake of public affairs, gain personal benefits for themselves, their families, and their interest groups, affecting the country's and the people's interests. That person produces many grey energy particles.

- Leaders and managers promulgate management and development policies only for someone's benefit, for the benefit of themselves and interest groups. They produce many grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Leaders and managers promulgate policies or allow the exploitation and destruction of natural resources such as rivers, seas, forests, mountains, and underground minerals. They produced countless grey and black energy particles.

- Leaders and managers promulgate policies that demagogue the people to rule, causing the people's intellectual development to be underdeveloped. They produced countless blood-red yin energy particles.

- Leaders and managers run for office and have the power to have higher positions without election or appointment based on capacity. They produce many grey energy particles.

- Leaders and managers propagate and promote superstitious forms, beliefs, religions, prayer rituals, and animal or human sacrifice rituals to the gods. That person will produce countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Leaders and managers take advantage of people's religious beliefs and beliefs and carry out acts of taking advantage of those beliefs to do spiritual and religious business, causing people to live in ignorance. That caused them to produce countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Relatives influence leaders and managers and appoint relatives or bribers to leadership and management positions in the government apparatus when they are incompetent. Both the person and the loved one produce grey energy particles.

- Leaders and managers do not have timely and correct solutions and direction, causing people to die in epidemics, floods, storms, earthquakes, tsunamis, droughts, and volcanoes. That person produced countless grey and black energy particles.

- Leaders and managers collude with business people or others to embezzle and corrupt regional and sectoral development policies in the country, from people's relief policies in natural disasters to policies to deal with epidemics. They produced countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Leaders and managers develop policies to develop the country's economy with distinction between races and peoples. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- Leaders and managers who incite nationalities, ethnic groups, and factions and cause conflicts and wars. They produce many black energy particles.

- Leaders and managers incite the head of the country to cause war with other countries. They produced countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Leaders and managers incite or advise the head of the country to develop policies that harm the people, economy, national security and defence, and natural resources of their country and cause damage that is harmful to peace in the world and with other countries. They will produce countless grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of leaders and managers of the people and country are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Leaders and managers select personnel for positions according to their abilities and qualifications without accepting bribes or being influenced by relatives or anyone else. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers who are enthusiastic and responsible in their work and towards the people. They produce many green positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers promulgate policies that benefit the people and the country. They produce green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers who promulgate and enforce the protection of natural resources produce many green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers who build solidarity with each other to develop the country together. They produce green, fire-red, and yellow positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers issue timely policies and solutions to help people during natural disasters and epidemics. They produce a lot of green, fire-red and yellow positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers do not accept bribes and do not embezzle; instead, they devote their intelligence and life to the people and nation. They produce many green, fire-red and yellow positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers develop policies and implement the elimination of evil customs and superstitions in religion and beliefs. They produce many yellow positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers build progressive educational policies for the benefit and intellectual development of the people in peace and prosperity. They produce countless green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers advise the head of the country to develop policies to develop education, economy and society, security and defence to help the people and the government become prosperous; advise the head to build good relationships with other countries and avoid conflicts or wars. They produced countless green, fire-red, and yellow positive energy particles.

- Leaders and managers build and promulgate policies to teach enlightened knowledge to the people in the education system so that all people can understand and practice reformed life in sustainable development. They produce countless yellow positive energy particles.

Content group in the relationship between people and the country:

Do you know what people's relationship with their country is? It is the relationship that people have to the leaders and managers of the country, to the natural resources, to the national territory, and to their rights and responsibilities within the country in which they live.

Do you know what people symbolize? They are symbols of all tuelinhs in the universe. People living in a country have rights and obligations towards their country. It means that the tuelinhs and souls living in the universe also have rights and responsibilities towards all life. You must understand that before the tuelinhs and souls incarnate as humans, they are all small energy particle structures with immature intelligence. They cannot yet be conscious and aware of their responsibilities and obligations towards themselves, towards all life forms in and outside the universe, and towards the first tuelinh. Therefore, they need to understand and be aware of their obligations and responsibilities and, of course, their rights. Do you know what their rights are? That is to live, to practice in the human world, and to develop sustainably. So, what are their obligations and responsibilities? That is, respect the existence of themselves and other tuelinhs, and all other life forms in and outside the universe; must take responsibility for the protection and sustainable development of all life forms, including themselves.

Through a group of interactive content as people in a country, the tuelinhs and souls learn lessons about their responsibilities, obligations, and rights towards themselves and other tuelinhs, to the first tuelinh, and all life forms in and out of the universe.

In addition, they recognize and eliminate their own toxins. Next, they activate their good elements by producing sustainable energy particles.

The negative energy particles produced in the content of the people with the country are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People do not study hard and cultivate their intelligence to develop themselves and bring values to themselves. They produce grey energy particles.

- People who play gambling and are too lazy to work. They produce grey energy particles.

- People do not love their spouses, children, and family, leading to unhappy families and separation. They produce grey energy particles.

- People commit adultery and fornication. They produce grey energy particles.

- People who commit theft, robbery, or fraud. They produce grey energy particles.

- People do not comply with national laws and violate them, causing harm to the people and the country. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People destroy or produce and do business that destroys natural resources. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- People research, invent, produce, and trade products that harm people's health, animals, and everything. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- People abuse and kill animals. They produce many grey and black energy particles.

- People insult, trample on dignity, and violate others. They produce grey energy particles.

- People form groups or share negative views that divide the great unity of religions, cultural beliefs, nations, and humanity. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- People kill each other, commit suicide, or incite others to kill or commit suicide. They produce black negative energy particles.

- People exploit freedom and democracy to distort and defame the state government, leaders and managers. They produce many grey energy particles.

- People listen to incitement from anti-government forces to spread propaganda to cause political instability and national defence and security or even cause war. They produce many grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- People propagate superstition and spread spiritual or religious rites with prayers or sacrifices, causing people not to know the truth about the origin and mission of practice in the human world. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- People propagate and incite racial and ethnic discrimination within their own country of residence and between countries. They produce a lot of blood-red negative energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of the people's relationship with the country are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People live, study, and work in compliance with national laws and regulations on people's rights, obligations, and interests. They produce green and fire-red positive energy particles from their actions that benefit people, animals and all things.

- People actively study and cultivate their intelligence to become talented people who are helpful to the country and everyone. They produce positive energy particles for actions that benefit the government and people.

- People enthusiastically work and produce to contribute to the country's and its people's development and prosperity. They produce green positive energy particles.

- People research, invent, produce, and trade products and values that benefit people, animals, and nature. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Each person loves themselves and loves their family to create a civilized and happy society. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Each person takes action to protect the nation's natural resources, such as forests, mountains, rivers, ponds, lakes, seas, and underground minerals. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Each person takes action to protect the freedom and life of animals without killing or imprisoning them. Those people produce green positive energy particles.

- People respect and help each other in life to develop and prosper together; that can be helping each other get rich, helping each other live healthy lives, or helping each other cultivate wisdom. They produce green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- People save each other in trouble, natural disasters, and epidemics. They produce many green positive energy particles.

- Everyone unites together to eliminate superstition, sacrificial rituals and ignorant views about the origin and mission of practice in the human world. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

- Everyone unites peoples, ethnicities, religions and beliefs to help the country develop sustainably. They will produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

- Everyone unites to eliminate ethnic and sectarian incitements and conflicts that cause war and national security and defence disorders. They produce yellow energy particles.

- People respect leaders and managers in the government apparatus from local to central and report their violations to higher levels. That helps prevent wrongdoers from continuing to produce negative energy particles. At the same time, they also produce green positive energy particles.

- Everyone unites and rejects war when leaders launch a war with other countries or cause war for their country.

That allows them to produce countless green, fire-red and yellow positive energy particles if they can stop those wars.

- Everyone unites people across countries without distinction of religion, ethnicity, and skin colour. They produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

- Everyone teaches each other enlightened knowledge about the content of people's relationship with their country and their practice duties in the human world. They produced a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

Thus, through the content groups in the national form of Tao, you have seen the value of those scripts for the tuelinhs and souls in the journey to attain the unified Tao of the universe.

In addition, you can also see a lot of content in the content groups of the national Tao that is closely linked to other Tao forms. It is the magic of interactive scenarios to help all tuelinhs and souls squeeze out toxins and activate their good elements to the fullest."

Chapter Seventy-Three

The Unified Tao of the Universe Through the Form of Tao of Teacher and Student

During the lunch break after the lecture on the unified Tao of the universe through the national Tao form, a student asked the Teacher, "Teacher, through the interactive content in the national Tao form, I realized that there are leaders and managers of the country, especially the head of the country, they have the opportunity to produce the most energy particles compared to others if they allow the people to learn enlightened knowledge. If they understand and practice that, they will be the ones who quickly attain the unified Tao of the universe. I also realized that in human history, very few heads of state spread knowledge and moral values to rule the country and protect the people because they were still busy competing for power and benefits. It is a pity for the heads of state, managers, and leaders if they do not know or know but do not spread enlightened knowledge to the people and humanity."

The Teacher said, "There is nothing to regret. It is all a practice environment that the tuelinhs must experience to understand all the secrets about themselves and each other, about everything in the universe and destructive energy. However, if leaders understand knowledge and practice spreading enlightened knowledge to the people and in education, they will produce countless yellow energy particles. As a result, they will quickly attain the unified Tao of the universe from the intellectual light of enlightened knowledge."

When the Teacher was sipping a cup of tea and preparing for the afternoon lecture, a student immediately asked him, "Teacher, through the lectures on interactive content in the form of family, social, and national Tao, I see yellow positive energy particles produced when people perform the act of teaching or propagating knowledge that has enlightenment value. On the contrary, blood-red negative energy particles are produced when people spread or teach knowledge that causes destruction and ignorance. So, will teaching enlightened knowledge help the tuelinhs and souls produce the most valuable positive energy particles? On the contrary, teaching ignorant knowledge causes humans to produce the most toxic negative energy particles. Please explain to me and everyone else?"

The Teacher replied, "That is correct. Do you know why? Do you understand why teaching knowledge produces energy particles with stronger electric waves than the energy particles of saving or killing people?"

Please remember the lecture on all things is information that I gave you. It is the answer to your question. You must understand that the information reaction between the subject with the yin and yang energy embryo and the outside environment will help the yin and yang energy embryo produce energy particles. From those energy particles, they make up all things in the universe. The actions and reactions of all things reflect their internal information values. The energy particles with the strongest electric waves are produced by the most complex information reaction process and the most enormous amount of information. On the contrary, the energy particles with the weakest electrical waves are produced because the information in the reaction is simple, and the amount of information is the least. In addition, the environment's heat contributes to creating energy particles with different yin and yang characteristics.

That means if the information reaction is at the most complex level and has the most significant amount of information in the direction of sustainable development for all things, yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves will be produced. On the contrary, if the information reaction is also at the most complex level and the most significant amount of information is in the direction of destruction and destruction, blood-red negative energy particles with super strong electric waves will be produced. Those energy particles with super strong electric waves are produced because inside the intellectual wave code of that energy particle, it has the most significant amount of information, and the vibration speed is also super fast.

However, for the action that we humans consider the most cruel act of murder, those actions only produce black negative energy particles with very strong electric waves. On the contrary, the life-saving actions that people consider the most moral only produce green positive energy particles with strong electric waves. Why? The reason is that the amount of information during the reaction is a little. Because the amount of information is not much, the value of the particle cannot be compared to energy particles that contain more excellent information value.

You must remember that saving a person's life is simply saving the body. However, teaching enlightened knowledge not only helps that person save the soul within them, but they also practice producing good karma to overcome all calamities until the end of their old age. In addition, they also spread that enlightened knowledge to many others.

On the contrary, killing a person is just killing a body. However, teaching ignorant knowledge to others not only causes decay to the learner's soul but also causes the learner to practice producing harmful karmic particles, and as a result, they quickly die due to karma. In addition, they also spread ignorant knowledge to everyone.

So, have you seen the power of knowledge yet? It saves human lives and all life forms in and outside the universe because everything is information. On the contrary, it can also destroy human life and all things in and out of the universe."

The students showed interest and said, "Teacher, after learning about the knowledge of energy particles, information value, and operating mechanisms, we can understand all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. There are increasingly no more questions to ask you, while we had countless questions in the first lessons. I remember you told us then that when we finished studying, we would no longer have any questions or doubts. Indeed it is, and it is truly a miracle, sir."

After a few minutes of sipping a cup of tea, the Teacher continued his lecture, "Today, I will finish teaching you the sermon on the unified Tao of the universe through the form of the Tao of Teacher and student.

You also know about the value of the form of the Tao of Teacher and Student. Through the form of Teacher and student, the tuelinhs and souls build the ability to teach and spread knowledge and values for sustainable development to each other and to all things inside and outside the universe. In addition, through this form of Tao, the tuelinhs and souls recognise their toxins, eliminate them, and then activate their good elements by producing sustainable energy particles.

However, it has the most excellent value I will mention in this lecture. Do you know what that is? Or, in other words, do you know what the form of Teacher and student symbolises? You must understand that when the tuelinhs lived on the central planet, their most excellent Teacher was their father, God (the first tuelinh, Nalas Nalanda). He is both a father and a teacher. As a father, he cares and worries about the tuelinhs. As a teacher, he teaches them. He taught the tuelinhs about the worldview of the universe and taught them how to practice detonating the energy of destruction to produce sustainable energy particles. Therefore, the form of Teacher and student in the human world symbolises the relationship between the greatest Teacher in the universe and all tuelinhs and souls. Through the form of Teacher and disciple in the human world, the first tuelinh and the tuelinhs will find a sustainable path of transformation to attain the perfect energy filter, which is the unifying Tao of the universe after the process of forcing out toxins and activating good elements. In this form of Tao, the tuelinhs and souls will thoroughly understand the nature of themselves and other tuelinhs, all things in the universe, and the destruction of energy. That all-encompassing and comprehensive understanding is brought by the nature of this form of Tao, which is to teach enlightened knowledge with the value of sustainable development.

In the form of Teacher and student, it includes the relationship of knowledge taught in the educational system, in belief, in religion, and in any relationship of transmitting and teaching knowledge between people. It can be summed up as the relationship between Teacher and student.

Now, I will help you understand the toxins and good elements in the energy particles produced through actions in the interactive content of the Teacher and student form.

Content group in the relationship teacher treats student:

This content group helps the tuelinhs and souls as teachers see the value of knowledge taught to students, build a close connection with students to create and spread values, sustainable development towards all things, and respect for their students. In addition, they recognize each other's toxins to eliminate them together. The next is activating good elements through the practice of producing sustainable energy particles.

The types of negative energy particles produced in the content group of teachers treat students as the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- The teacher scolds, insults, tramples on dignity, and assaults students. They produce grey energy particles.

- The teacher kills the student. They produce black energy particles.

- A teacher causes students to do things that harm people, animals, and everything. They produce grey energy particles.

- A teacher teaches students to steal, rob, or assault people. The teacher produces grey energy particles.

- The teacher incites his students to kill people. They produce black energy particles.

- The teacher deceives his students to gain personal benefits such as status, money, and reputation. They produce grey energy particles.

- The teacher sexually abuses paedophilia and rapes his students. They produce grey energy particles. The teacher produces black energy particles if the consequences seriously affect the students' life and spirit.

- The teacher teaches their students tricks and actions that harm everyone for their gain. That teacher produces blood-red energy particles.

- The teacher teaches harmful knowledge that makes students become evil, cruel and not good people. The teacher produces blood-red energy particles.

- People who transfer technology and production and business models that create toxic values that affect the lives of humans, animals and all things such as weapons of war, poisons, narcotics, and counterfeit drugs. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- The teacher teaches his students prayer rituals, sacrifice rituals, and forms of superstition. The teacher produces many blood-red energy particles.

- The teacher teaches their students false knowledge about the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world and the method to complete the mission. They produce countless blood-red energy particles. This interactive content creates many energy particles that have the strongest toxins. Therefore, this content is the most dangerous, destroying the tuelinhs and souls. The reason is that after finishing studying, learners continue to teach others. Like that, the rate of destruction of all things and the rate of production of negative energy particles with super strong electric waves takes place very quickly.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of teachers towards students are the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Teachers love and help students overcome difficult economic situations, or for some reason, to learn knowledge and become good people. The teachers produce green positive energy particles.

- The teacher instructs and advises their students not to do evil, not to kill or destroy natural resources, and they become good people and successful in life. The teacher produces fire-red positive energy particles.

- The teacher helps their students when they are in trouble or danger of their lives. The teacher produces green positive energy particles.

- The teacher cares and helps students learn to become good people and succeed. That teacher produces fire-red positive energy particles.

- Enthusiastic teacher who teaches students valuable knowledge for development in all areas of life. That teacher produced fire-red positive energy particles.

- A teacher forgives students' mistakes when they realize their mistakes, even if they harm everyone. After that, the teacher continues to accept and teach those students. The teacher will produce many fire-red positive energy particles.

- The teacher teaches students about moral values when treating people, animals, and all things. That teacher produces many red and yellow positive energy particles.

- The teacher teaches students the knowledge of solidarity and love for humanity and all species. That teacher produced fire-red and yellow energy particles.

- The teacher teaches students the truth about the origin of humanity, the mission of practice in the human world, and the method of sustainable transformation - the path to achieving full enlightenment. The teacher produces many yellow energy particles.

The content group in the relationship between students treat teachers:

This group of content helps the tuelinhs and souls understand the values that the most excellent teacher in the universe has been teaching them. That is the sacrifice and dedication of the first tuelinh in helping the tuelinhs mature to benefit all life forms in and outside the universe. In particular, through this content group, students learn knowledge and values with sustainable development characteristics for themselves and all life forms in and outside the universe. In addition, they will understand what their Father - the great teacher - has been giving them. From then on, they always had reverence for him.

Of course, through this group of interactive content, the tuelinhs become aware of their toxins as students. Then, they will practice eliminating toxins before practising the production of sustainable energy particles by actions that activate good elements.

The negative energy particles produced in the group of students treat the teachers as the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Students are too lazy to study and cannot improve their teacher's knowledge; they do not become good and valuable people for their families and society. They produce grey energy particles.

- Learners play gambling games, indulge in sensuality, and are addicted to stimulants without being able to grasp the teacher's knowledge. They produce grey energy particles.

- Students do not listen to their teachers and commit theft, robbery, and defrauding others. They produce grey energy particles.

- Students who do not study to become good people and commit acts of destroying natural resources to get rich. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- Students do not listen to the teacher and commit acts of killing animals. They produce black energy particles.

- Students do not listen to the teacher's instructions, causing division and conflict. They produce grey energy particles.

- Students do not listen to their teachers but research, invent, produce, and trade products that affect the health and lives of humans, animals, and everything. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- Students do not listen to their teachers, but when they become people of power and position, they become embezzlers and corrupt, enacting policies that harm the people and the country. They produce many grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Students do not realize that the teacher's knowledge is wrong and harmful, so they apply it to life and cause harm to people, animals, and everything. Teachers and students produce grey, black, and blood-red energy particles.

- Students do not recognize that the knowledge the teacher taught, such as superstition, praying rituals, or sacrifices, is false. Therefore, students practice them in life. Both the student and the teacher produced blood-red energy particles.

- Students insult, trample on dignity, and assault teachers. That student produced grey energy particles.

- Students kill teachers. They produce black energy particles.

- Students learn from teachers false knowledge about their origin, their practice mission, and the path to liberate themselves from suffering; then practice them in life. The result of not being aware of that wrong knowledge caused both teacher and student to produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of the student to the teacher are excellent elements in the original positive energy particles of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Students listen to their teachers and become good people for their family and society. They produce different positive energy particles from the positive actions they do.

- Students listen to their teachers to give up harmful lifestyles and evil to become people who study hard and succeed in life. They will produce different positive energy particles depending on the positive actions they take.

- The student realizes that the teacher teaches wrong knowledge that harms everyone; he advises the teacher about it, and the teacher gives up teaching that wrong knowledge. That student produces fire-red energy particles.

- Students apply the knowledge they have learned from their teachers to become people who benefit society, the people, the country, animals, and everything. They produce a lot of green, fire-red, and yellow positive energy particles.

- Students practice spreading and teaching everyone the teacher's sustainable development knowledge. They produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- Students protect the teacher's dignity and save the teacher's life. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Students apply enlightened knowledge about the truth of the origin, the practice mission and the path to liberation from suffering to everyone. They produce countless yellow positive energy particles. The student's application of the teacher's enlightened knowledge to spread to everyone is true and correct reverence and worship of the teacher.

Content group in the relationship between students:

This group of content helps the tuelinhs build the ability to connect in the mission of protecting, building and developing life in the universe. That creates a great solidarity to sustainably develop all life forms in and out of the universe. You must know that before the tuelinhs incarnated as practitioners in the human world, they were just children; they were incapable of perceiving and understanding the worldview of the universe and could not carry out any task. Of course, this includes the ability to build great solidarity among the tuelinhs in spreading the values of sustainable development to each other and other life forms. Therefore, the interactive content group in the relationship between students will help them build connections to spread sustainable development values to each other and other forms of life.

In addition, through this group of interactive content, the tuelinhs and souls recognize and remove toxins from themselves, producing sustainable energy particles through maximum activation of good elements.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group of students treat each other as the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Students are jealous, superior, defamatory, insulting, trampling on dignity, and abusing each other. They will produce grey energy particles.

- Students kill each other and incite others to destroy each other. They will produce black energy particles.

- Students sexually abuse and rape each other. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- Students lure and entice each other to indulge in debauchery, play gambling, buy and sell sex, and use stimulants that are harmful to health. They will produce grey negative energy particles.

- Students entice each other to deceive, defraud, steal, and rob. They produce grey energy particles.

- Students invite each other to practice worship rituals, superstitious forms, and sacrificial rituals. They produce grey energy particles.

- Students entice each other to do things that violate national laws and affect the health and lives of people and animals. They produce grey and black energy particles.

- Students cause conflict and divide the great unity of the classroom, beliefs, religion, and those uniting together to spread enlightened wisdom. They will produce a lot of blood-red yin energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group of students treat each other as the good elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- Students respect each other, say the right words, and help each other in their studies. They produce fire-red positive energy particles of learning support.

- Students help each other overcome difficulties and tribulations. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Students help each other in life-threatening situations. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Students help each other avoid debauched pleasures, gambling, prostitution, and addictive substances that are harmful to health to focus on studying. They produce green positive energy particles.

- Students help each other avoid evil deeds, acts that violate the law, and acts that harm the health and life of people, animals and all things. They produce green and fire-red positive energy particles.

- Students help each other eliminate worship rituals, superstitious knowledge, and false knowledge about the human world's origin and mission of practice. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

- Students help each other find true enlightened wisdom. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

- Students work together to build great solidarity to spread moral values and enlightened knowledge to everyone. They produce a lot of yellow positive energy particles.

- Students teach each other about enlightened wisdom. They produce yellow positive energy particles.

The content group about the value of knowledge:

Do you know what the content group about the value of knowledge symbolizes? Remember that at the beginning of the lesson, I said that information is everything. Knowledge is information after people are aware of its value, and it can be knowledge of a destructive nature or a sustainable development nature. Enlightened knowledge is the value of sustainable development for all life forms in and outside the universe; it is the path to sustainable transformation, the method to attain the unified Tao of the universe by achieving complete enlightenment. Therefore, this content group symbolizes the search for enlightened knowledge by the tuelinhs and souls for sustainable development of all life forms in and outside the universe. The first tuelinh created all the interactive content in the four forms of Tao to help the tuelinhs find a sustainable path to transmutation in interactive content about the value of knowledge to help them complete that mission.

Of course, this content group will help the tuelinhs recognize and eliminate toxins, activating good elements by producing sustainable energy particles.

The negative energy particles produced in the content group about the value of knowledge are the toxins in the original negative energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who create knowledge and methods to kill animals and destroy natural resources and then spread them to others. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- Those who spread and teach knowledge and methods of killing animals and destroying natural resources. They also produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- People who create knowledge and methods to create poisons, biological weapons, murder weapons, and nuclear bombs and then spread them to others. They produce many blood-red yin energy particles.

- Those who spread and teach knowledge and methods to create poisons, biological weapons, murder weapons, and nuclear bombs. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- Those who create methods of entertainment and debauchery, stimulants that harm people and then spread them to others. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- Those who spread methods of entertainment and debauchery, harmful stimulants to everyone. They produce many blood-red negative energy particles.

- People who create methods to deceive people for profit and then spread those methods to everyone. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- People who spread and propagate methods to deceive people for personal gain. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- People who create prayer rituals, sacrifices, and superstitions and then spread them to everyone. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- People who spread and propagate rituals of supplication, sacrifice, and superstition to everyone. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- People who create extreme classist, nationalistic, and ethnic knowledge and spread it to everyone. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- People who propagate and spread extreme classist, nationalist, and ethnic knowledge to everyone. They produce many blood-red energy particles.

- People who create knowledge and practice methods in religions, spirituality, and false beliefs about the origin, the practice mission of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world, and the method of liberation suffering; then spread them to everyone. That caused them to produce countless blood-red energy particles.

- People who spread and propagate false knowledge and practice methods about the origin, mission of practice in the human world, and methods of liberating suffering to everyone. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles.

- People who create groups of people to divide the great unity of people in faith, religion, and nation and entice everyone to participate. They produce a lot of blood-red energy particles. Those who join in propagating and spreading also produce many blood-red energy particles.

The positive energy particles produced in the content group about the value of knowledge are excellent elements in the original positive energy particle of the soul. They contain the following content values:

- People who create knowledge and methods to protect natural resources and animals, then spread them to everyone. That helps them produce green, fire-red, and yellow positive energy particles. Those who spread and preach them also produce fire-red and yellow positive energy particles.

- People who create knowledge and methods to cure the sick, help people's health improve, and then spread them to everyone. They produce many green and fire-red positive energy particles. Those who spread and teach that knowledge to everyone also produce many fire-red positive energy particles.

- People who create knowledge and methods for sustainable development in different fields and professions and spread them to everyone. That helps them produce green and fire-red positive energy particles. Those who spread and teach that knowledge to everyone also produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- People who create knowledge build moral values, unite people, and spread them to everyone. They will produce many yellow energy particles. Those who spread them to everyone also produce yellow positive energy particles.

- People who create accurate enlightened knowledge when letting people know about the truth of the origin, the practice of the tuelinhs and souls in the human world, and the method of liberation from suffering; then spread them to everyone. That helps them produce countless yellow positive energy particles and super energy particles. Those who spread and teach that knowledge also produce countless yellow positive energy particles. Then, they also have the opportunity to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters to produce super energy particles like the creator of that knowledge.

- People who build a great solidarity of people without distinction between different classes, ethnicities, and religions to jointly build moral values for humanity. That helps them produce yellow positive energy particles. Those who participate in teaching and spreading them also produce yellow positive energy particles.

Thus, I have completed teaching you to understand the unified Tao knowledge of the universe through the four forms of Tao in the human world. It would help if you remembered that the tuelinhs can successfully transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters when they squeeze out all the toxins and produce a sufficient amount of wisdom wave code fibres carrying super strong yang electric waves with the energy state of yellow, especially there must be an adequate number of yellow energy particles in all four forms of the Tao. It also means they have sufficient negative energy particles with weak electrical waves.

You must remember that if the value of knowledge is complete enlightenment, it will be the key, the most miraculous secret for the tuelinhs to produce a sufficient number of yellow positive energy particles in a few lifetimes to attain the unified Tao of the universe. Of course, it is only accessible with determination, dedication and sacrifice for learning and spreading them to humanity. On the contrary, if the value content of knowledge is not accurate, it will be a barrier that prevents the tuelinhs from maturing and becoming the unified Tao of the universe.

In addition, you need to remember the following two things in the four forms of the Tao of the universe:

- The poison in the teacher and student path is the most difficult to get rid of, and it is why no second tuelinh has attained the unified Tao after the first tuelinh.

- Love in the contents of family Tao has the most common toxicity. It makes it difficult for all tuelinhs to remove them to access the learning journey and spread enlightened wisdom. Therefore, their destination on the path to enlightenment is still very long.

Please read many times and study carefully the teachings on the unified Tao of the universe through the four forms of the Tao to form a natural reflex in forcing out toxins and activating good elements. That will help you practice the most effective production of sustainable energy particles.”

Chapter Seventy-Four

The Journey of The Tuelinh and Soul After the End of a Human Life

When the students gently opened the door to the Teacher's office, they saw him closing his eyes in a meditating position. They understood that the Teacher was entering the memory of his tuelinh, so they gently entered. One checked the Teacher's teacup and helped him make a new cup. After that, they sat so as not to disturb the Teacher, who was recalling memories. Even though the students were quiet, the Teacher knew they were coming and waiting for him. However, the Teacher remained focused on his memories and kept his students waiting.

After a long while, the Teacher came out of his memories. When the Teacher saw that the cup of tea was no longer hot, he told the student, "Please brew a new cup of tea to make it fragrant and hot." Then, a fresh cup of hot tea was brewed, and its fragrance spread throughout the Teacher's office.

The Teacher and his students enjoyed cups of hot tea. The students shared questions and stories about spreading knowledge to everyone with the Teacher. Of course, he gave them advice to make their helping others more effective.

While everyone was talking, a student said to the Teacher, "Teacher, do you remember the case of a husband who killed his wife and daughter at night in their home? Before I and some of her friends went to the house where she and her child were killed to preach for their souls to return to the transiting planet, the Teacher gave us instructions on how to handle it. Just thinking about that situation makes me feel so sorry for them. The baby was still young and very well-behaved when we talked to this baby during the two sessions of class where the husband was brought. He had previously suffered from depression and schizophrenia. It's a pity that her family did not continue studying to treat her husband. Her friend also urged her to bring her husband to the Teacher's class for study and therapy, but the wife, for some reason, did not do it. She and her daughter have lived with a husband who has had mental illness and depression for a long time. He always suspects his wife is having an affair even though she is not having an affair. I understand the problem of audio hallucinations and hallucinations of mentally ill people because negative information from their past lives is transmitted to the brain from harmful energy particles that are losing control. The things they see and hear are all images projected by harmful energy particles into the brain, causing them to lose the ability to perceive right and wrong, leading to losing control of their actions.

However, when we went to the house where she and her child were murdered, I practised meditation to communicate with their souls. I talked to them and found that they did not resent their husbands even though their husbands killed them. In other cases, they will be resentful without being overcome. At that time, I asked them why they had not yet been transferred to the transit planet and were still trapped in that house. The mother's soul said they did not resent her husband because that was the karma between her and her husband from a past life. They understood and did not resent their husbands because they had listened to many of your video lectures and attended two classes. However, the fact that they were trapped in that house and could not go to the transiting planet was because there was a ferocious spirit in that area that dominated and controlled them. I also know that because before meditating, I performed a method to neutralize evil spirits in that land. After that, I used the technique of teaching enlightenment knowledge to the mother and child and the spirit that controlled them in that land. I learned that the man's soul controlled the souls of the mother and child. He controlled the husband's mind to make the husband kill her and her daughter. I preached knowledge for over an hour; then, I practised bringing all those souls to the transiting planet.

I have two questions I want to ask you. Why was the soul of the man on that land able to control the husband to kill his wife and child? Why weren't the souls of that girl and her mother picked up by the tuelinh on the transit planet when they had no resentment after being killed?"

The Teacher pondered and said, "It is true that I feel unfortunate for that girl and her mother when they could not help the husband overcome depression and mental illness. The fact that the husband did not learn to encode and balance the toxic information in his soul and even took psychiatric medication was a barrier that prevented the family from persevering in study and treatment. Death by murder or suicide is a common outcome caused by depression and other mental illnesses.

The reason the evil spirit influenced the husband in that land was due to two reasons:

- That man's soul had many toxins and created many bad karma while alive, so after death, that soul was doomed to that place. Because of the toxins and vibrations of harmful particles created by negative karma while living, that soul cannot be returned to the transit planet. Therefore, that soul is also losing control of its mind and behaviour. That's why that soul controlled the husband to kill his wife and then controlled the souls of that girl and her mother.

- The husband is easily influenced by a soul whose energy structure is contaminated with many harmful particles because he is also being bombarded with negative energy particles into the surrounding environment. He is losing control of his consciousness and behaviour, so he is easily linked to the toxins and negative information being bombarded from the soul in that land. That means the soul in the land shoots negative particles to the husband, and the husband's soul also bombards that soul with harmful particles. That bombardment caused both of them to become angry and lose control. As a result, the husband lost control and killed his wife and daughter.

- The husband killed his wife and child because the poisonous information that they had related to each other from their past lives is also being bombarded into his brain from his soul, and it is linked to the poison of the soul in the land. That connection caused the husband to lose control and caused tragic consequences.

The tuelinhs did not pick up the souls of the mother and child on the transiting planet because those two souls have not completed their reformation quota in this human life. That is because they have caused a lot of evil karma from their previous lives, and they are given special privileges to reincarnate as humans when they should not be or were not yet human at that time. That means that for some reason, they were given special status to become human earlier than their karmic journey, maybe because they had done some good deeds. However, they will have a quota for changing bad karma in these cases. If by the time they fail to complete the reform according to the norms, their karma will cause them not to enjoy their longevity. As in the case of that mother and daughter, their norm was to heal the husband because of what they had done to that husband's soul in a past life. Although the souls of mother and daughter did not resent the husband when he killed them, they were still not picked up to the transit planet. Their good deeds and reform norms are not completed even though they have not created lousy karma in this human life. Suppose the wife listens to her friends and is determined to help her husband learn and practice according to knowledge to overcome mental illness entirely. In that case, she completes the reform quota, and these are also good deeds completed to help her overcome the tribulation of this human life.

You must remember that there is no devil, no soul that can make others kill each other or control each other. The things you know when you meditate are just manifestations of an essence that the souls themselves do not understand. It would help if you remembered that the negative energy particle bombardment and copying of the angry soul in that house are linked to the husband's negative energy particle bombardment and replication. Those cause him to lose control. He killed his wife and child because there was a toxic information disorder between them from a past life. Those things made him lose control and destroy them. The two souls of the murdered mother and child have not been picked up to the transit planet because they have not completed the reform quota even though they do not resent the husband."

The student replied to the Teacher, "Teacher, I have never heard you preach the knowledge you just taught. I hope you will teach us about the journey of the tuelinhs and souls after the end of human life."

The Teacher said, "I have reminded you many times in the past and past lives never to take supernatural powers and meditation seriously. They are all illusions and hallucinations created from your harmful particles and the energy structures trapped in the lands. That causes you to be dominated by emotions and what you see in meditation while you do not apply knowledge and the nature of information in energy particles.

Hey you! I have scolded you for not being obedient in your past lives due to your immersion in supernatural powers and meditation. However, many people have developed the poison of narcissism and no longer follow me. Therefore, in this life, I don't scold you any more. Instead, I remind you because that is my duty to you. Please remember what I said so that your learning and practice can be effective. Those who can meditate can especially see the tuelinhs and souls after they end a human life, see them on the central or transiting planets. You must remember that people being able to meditate is not an advantage for them; it is a great challenge for them to listen and follow my instructions. Therefore, to overcome those challenges, you must understand knowledge and be obedient."

The students immediately replied, "Teacher, we only hope to be scolded by you when we do not properly practice your teachings. We will not be like those who are selfish and jealous because we understand that if we leave you, our path of practising sustainable energy particle production will become difficult and difficult to succeed. Therefore, by being reminded and scolded by the Teacher and listening to the Teacher's lectures regularly, we will understand and practice correctly. That helps us quickly achieve achievements on the arduous path of practice in this human world."

After a few minutes of relaxation, the Teacher said, "Okay, your valuable experiences and stumbles in the journey of spreading knowledge have helped you understand what I have taught you. It is considered that you have overcome the challenges of listening to today's lecture.

When you understand the two truths, the knowledge of the smallest energy particle with the nature and journey of transmutation, the transiting planet, and the law of cause and effect, you have understood the journey of the tuelinhs and souls after the end of human life in the lectures on the unified Tao of the universe through the four forms of Tao. You can understand the journey after a human life without any supernatural abilities or having to practice meditation. In addition, you can know the achievements of the tuelinhs and souls after a human life, and there are no saints, bodhisattvas, and Buddhas created by crowd psychology, extreme nationalism, or religious views. What does that mean? That is complete enlightenment, understanding and knowing all things, events, and phenomena in and out of the universe by knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particles. That's what I want you to understand. However, achieving full enlightenment is not accessible to everyone, especially those who are influenced by the views and knowledge in meditation. Remember, suffering and tribulations are the best method to help all tuelinhs and souls understand the nature of all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. After experiencing suffering and tribulation, they will quickly attain complete enlightenment.

Hey you! Why do you still think there are many saints, bodhisattvas, and Buddhas? Why don't you think about the final destination of the practice path in the human world? That's because you don't understand the knowledge and don't listen:

- You must remember that there is only one achievement on the path of practice in the human world of all tuelinhs and souls, which is the unified Tao of the universe. It is a perfect energy filter, also known as a dual filter. You must also remember that only one Buddha achieved that outstanding achievement; he was the first tuelinh, the Creator, God, Nalas Nalanda, and Adidida; it is all one supreme soul because he has many different names. That means there is no second Buddha besides him because there is still no tuelinh who has attained the unifying Tao of the universe, even if it is a single energy filter in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- You must remember that the achievements on the journey of transformation of the tuelinhs and souls still cannot save themselves when they move into the space of destructive energy. They will be disintegrated and destroyed by the space of that energy. Why? Because they have not yet attained the unifying Tao of the universe to have an energy filter by successfully transforming the yin and yang energy embryo. Therefore, the achievements on their journey of transformation become meaningless. That means they cannot protect themselves and other tuelinhs because they have not yet reached the destination of their practice journey in the human world, so they become meaningless in the space of destructive energy.

- The fact that you are influenced by the views of religions, beliefs, and people, that information is confusing in your mind when you meditate to observe everything. The type of toxins from the external environment causes your internal toxins to be bound and linked together. As a result, you have difficulty understanding the truth even though you have read and heard the complete enlightenment knowledge.

Therefore, you must remember that you only achieve once you have attained the unified Tao of the universe. There is only one Buddha in the universe, which is the achievement of the first tuelinh after he attained the unified Tao of the universe when he successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into a perfect energy filter. Remember that clearly to purify the toxic information in your soul.

Next, I will talk about the journey of the tuelinhs and souls after the end of a human life. There are three journeys for the tuelinhs and souls after the end of human life:

1. Journey back to the central planet to balance the energy state after the end of a human life.

That is the most wonderful of the three journeys of the tuelinhs and souls after the end of a human life. This journey is of peace and joy that tuelinhs and souls will experience. They will rest in the homeland of the tuelinhs – the central planet, where the essences of all energy groups are located. That helps them relax and be at ease because of the achievements on the practice journey they have gone through. In particular, they will hear teachings about enlightened knowledge from the first tuelinh. That is a worthy thing, a reward for them when they have overcome the hardships to practice producing sustainable energy particles.

To return to the central planet after the end of human life, the tuelinhs and souls must achieve one of the following conditions:

- They do not practice producing any harmful energy particles and must produce positive energy particles of enlightenment in their human lives. Not practising the production of harmful energy particles means they do not practice actions that harm people, animals, and everything. The production of positive energy particles of enlightenment is helping and saving people, animals, and everything.

- After producing harmful energy particles from actions that harm people, animals, and all things, that person knows and learns enlightenment knowledge. Then, they practice producing sustainable energy particles according to the enlightened understanding of the two truths. As a result, they will be returned to the central planet after the end of their human life.

The tuelinhs and souls that return to the central planet after the end of their human lives will be welcomed by five messengers. They can be picked up by the five messengers when they achieve outstanding achievements on their practice journey in human life or by the tuelinhs who receive tasks from the five messengers when one of the above two conditions is met.

2. Journey back to the transit planet to balance the energy state after the end of a human life.

That is a journey where the tuelinhs and souls will have to go through a series of lessons about what they did while living in the human world. They will be educated in hell to understand the evil karma they have created in the human world. They will be educated in a life scene where they let go of attachments to understand their toxic information and the outside environment and let go of their attachments to the forms they possess in the human world. They will be educated and balanced in their energy state in an energy-balanced life scene before being incarnated as a human. On the transit planet, the tuelinhs and souls will be taught enlightened knowledge by messengers and even the first tuelinh.

Conditions for the tuelinhs and souls to return to the transiting planet are when they fall into one of the following cases:

- When living in the human world, they cannot produce any positive energy particles of enlightenment. That means they do not act to help and save people, animals, and everything. Therefore, they all have to return to the transiting planet even if they do not produce harmful energy particles that harm people, animals, and everything. They do not produce positive energy particles because they have the erupting toxins of attachment.

- When living in the human world, they produce harmful energy particles by practising producing negative energy particles. These are harmful energy particles produced in the interacting content groups of the four forms of the Tao.

- Even though people have learned the enlightened knowledge of the two truths and have produced a few positive energy particles of previous enlightenment, they still have to return to the transiting planet because of the actions that produce harmful energy particles afterwards. That means they no longer believe in enlightened knowledge after learning and practising it. Instead, they practice on a path that produces harmful energy particles that harm people, animals, and everything.

The tuelinhs and souls that return to the transiting planet after the end of human life will be welcomed by the tuelinhs at the Executive Council.

3. The journey of being damned at a place the end of human life in the human world.

That is the most intense of the three journeys of the tuelinhs and souls after the end of human life. The fierceness of this journey is that they will have to summarize the lesson that they have caused suffering to themselves, people, animals, and all things when they were alive without help from the central planet or the transiting planet. That shows that it will take them more time to re-experience and be haunted by actions that have harmed themselves, people, animals, and everything. For example, with the act of suicide, that soul or tuelinh will be doomed at the place where they committed suicide for a very long time, sometimes up to thousands of years. That is a suitable punishment for not appreciating being human to practice and reform. Being damned at the place where they committed suicide is to help them learn a lesson about the harm they cause to themselves, others, animals, and all things, as well as understand the lesson of respecting themselves when becoming a human.

After they have learned the lesson by themselves or with the help of enlightened beings in the place where they ended their human life, they will be returned to the transiting planet to continue the lessons in other places on the transiting planet.

The tuelinhs and souls will be doomed at the place where they end their human life when they fall into one of the following situations:

- Those who commit suicide will be punished at the place where they died.

- Those who attack, assault, or kill others but are killed will be punished at the place where they died.

- Those who have killed people and were killed by others on the battlefield because of war, they will be damned at the place where they died.

- People who die due to natural disasters, epidemics, bombs, war, accidents, sudden death, or being killed by others are all doomed to die because they are exceptional cases of being reincarnated as humans after the evil karma they created in their previous lives. Because they do not practice reforming lousy karma through producing positive energy particles of enlightenment, they have to experience that suffering even though they do not harm people, animals, or everything in the present life. Like these cases, many people believe they died unjustly. However, nothing that happens in this world is unjust. It happens because they don't follow through on their promises and plans, and it's a painful scenario that helps them see their toxicity. Next, they practice forcing out toxins and activating their good elements. That helps people change their perception when they think that living in the world without harming anyone is enough. That is an incorrect perception and ignorance. They need to have a new awareness: living in the world must force out toxins and activate good elements through understanding all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. It means they will never stop helping and saving people, animals, and things while not causing harm to them, including themselves.

The tuelinhs and souls are doomed at the place where they end their human lives and must take on an essential task before returning to the transiting planet. It is a duty to help people living in the area where they died realize the fact that there is an existence of souls and the tuelinhs after death. That will help people have faith in cause and effect in the world after death so that people can find enlightenment. When they complete that mission and complete their lessons, they will be returned to the transit planet.

The tuelinhs at the executive council on the transiting planet will receive the tuelinhs and souls after completing their lessons and tasks in the place where they end their human lives."

A student immediately asked the Teacher, "Teacher, in the case of a person committing suicide, or being killed, or having an accident, or suddenly dying, their relatives asked people with enlightened wisdom to preach and educate that soul and help that soul return to the transiting planet. Teacher, can they go to that planet?"

The master replied, "If the dead person's relatives invite a person with enlightened wisdom to the place where that spirit or soul ended its human life to preach the wisdom of enlightenment, they will be welcomed to the transiting planet by the tuelinhs from the executive council. They were able to return to the transiting planet because, through their death, their loved ones were awakened to cause and effect, the world after death, and had access to enlightened knowledge when meeting and receiving. People with enlightened wisdom help and preach enlightened knowledge. Returning to the transit planet, they will not have to live in hell. They will learn the teachings and live in a life scene of letting go of attachments.

On the contrary, if the dead person's relatives invite teachers to use prayer rituals without preaching enlightened knowledge to the souls, they will not be able to return to the transiting planet. Why? Because the actions of that soul's relatives are acts of ignorance when there is faith in rituals without faith in enlightened wisdom. Therefore, that soul has not completed its mission and will have to continue to experience the lesson and complete their mission before being returned to the transiting planet.

You must remember that there is no need for meditation or supernatural powers to help those damned souls. To support the souls trapped in houses and lands, you must preach enlightened knowledge to the people living in that area to become enlightened. When teaching enlightened knowledge, focus your thoughts and aim towards those souls even if you cannot see them. When you speak to the living about enlightenment, those souls also become enlightened about what they did when they were alive. They also complete their mission when helping the living on the land or their relatives with enlightenment.

Through the universe's information transceiver system, the five messengers will know what you are doing, and they will send the tuelinhs in the executive council on the transit planet to pick up those souls.

You must remember, preaching the wisdom of enlightenment to everyone, to the damned souls, is the most miraculous type of supernatural power that no other kind of magic or supernatural power can compare to."

The students immediately said, "Teacher, thank you for always caring and reminding us. That helps us understand and practice the correct path of sustainable transformation."

Chapter Seventy-Five

Reaction Produces Energy Particles of Ignorance in The Ideology

Like the Teacher's other classes, after he finishes teaching the most challenging energy particle knowledge, the sick are almost completely cured, and everyone has the most excellent enlightenment. The students became very excited when they were about to hear lectures on the reactions that produce energy particles in life through the four forms of the Tao. They are happy and excited to listen to the magical lectures because, through those lectures, people will have a comprehensive view of the reaction process of all kinds of energy particles with yin and yang energy embryos in their souls to produce the smallest energy particles. The main interest is understanding the process of destructive energy particles participating in the particle production reaction. In addition, in previous courses, when the Teacher only gave lectures on reactions that produce energy particles, people with mental illness were cured after finishing the course. People with serious illnesses were cured after listening to those lectures again for a short period. Therefore, the lectures on particle production reactions have a magical power in helping the tuelinhs and souls understand themselves, each other, all things, and the energy of destruction.

Today was the first day of that magical lecture series, so everyone came to class very early. They feel that coming to class is more fun and happier than any other class. Listening to these excellent lectures will help them finish learning enlightened knowledge from the Teacher after they have spent a long time.

When the Teacher was sitting in the office because it was not time to lecture, the students were chatting in the classroom. Everyone expressed their joy when they were about to listen to the great lectures they had heard through the Teacher's video lectures from previous courses, and everyone also expressed their regret when they were about to end the course. A male student said to each other, "I have taken many of the Teacher's courses, and I don't want to miss any of the courses he organizes to teach people. However, the Teacher often said that when everyone finishes studying, everyone should practice and not take away other people's seats in class. However, I still go to class to learn, so I have taken many courses even though the classes are very crowded. My experience is that as long as I go to class, the Teacher will not stop me from wanting to learn knowledge. Do you know? It is the same lecture that the Teacher teaches, but there will be differences between courses. That helps learners have multi-dimensional perspectives and achieve enlightenment faster than people who do not take many courses from the Teacher." "It's fortunate for you to be able to take many of the Teacher's courses. We live far away, so it's not easy to arrange a time and get into the Teacher's class because when the Teacher announced the class was open, many people had already registered, and there were no more seats left in the class," the woman said. "You see, his classes are always so crowded, he has to put a big speaker in the office so that students who don't have a seat in the classroom can listen to his lecture through the speaker. Listening directly to the Teacher's lectures will help patients recover faster than listening to video lectures. Therefore, everyone does not want to miss his lectures." The male student answered.

After that, everyone became quiet when they saw the Teacher enter the classroom. A student immediately told the Teacher, "Teacher, time passes so quickly. We want to learn from you in all the classes you organize."

The Teacher smiled and said, "Learning must go hand in hand with practice to produce positive energy particles in life. If you do not practice generating positive energy particles, you will waste a lifetime even if you take many courses. Therefore, don't regret it; practice producing energy particles. You will thoroughly understand and gain enlightened wisdom within your soul at that time. Your studies only help you absorb enlightened knowledge, but that knowledge only exists and is retained when you practice producing sustainable energy particles."

After a few minutes of silence, the teacher began the lecture, "So, until today, you have learned almost all enlightened knowledge. With all that knowledge, you have achieved complete enlightenment and have the magical power to practice the production of sustainable energy particles. It also means that you have thoroughly understood the nature of yourself and each other, everything in the universe, and the energy of destruction. You know the secrets that all tuelinhs have been searching for, and you also were equipped with a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles to transform the yin and yang energy embryos of the tuelinhs into energy filters.

However, I always want learners to have more magical power in understanding and practising the production of sustainable energy particles to transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters quickly. Therefore, I have built a lecture system on reactions that produce energy particles so that learners can understand how the process of producing energy particles takes place. From there, you will understand how each group of energy particles reacts with your yin and yang energy embryo during the particle production process, especially the destructive energy. That is very important because converting yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters is to train the reaction to detonate countless destructive energy particles safely. Therefore, you must understand how the reaction process of detonating annihilating particles takes place in different types of reactions that produce energetic particles.

In this series of lectures, I will give you lectures on the reaction that produces energy particles of ignorance in ideology, energy particles of ignorance in actions, energy particles of ignorance in the spread of false knowledge, energy particles have the characteristics of sustainable development, energy particles have the characteristics of spreading the values of sustainable development, and energy particles have the characteristics of solidarity to spread the values of sustainable development together. Especially is the method of detonating destructive energy particles through reactions that produce positive energy particles.

In today's lecture, we will explore the chain of reactions that produce the energy particles of ignorance in the ideology.

The energy particle of ignorance in the ideology is the grey negative energy particle with strong electric waves. The characteristics of this type of negative energy particle are: it contains a large number of toxins, a significant level of false information value, a fast vibration speed, the ability to absorb negative heat and toxic information from the external environment is strong, and the properties of this particle can destroy physical structures at a strong level.

You also understand the wisdom of ignorance in the ideology, which is the wisdom of not understanding the truth of yourself, all things, events and phenomena. Therefore, people grasp and stick to the interactive contents of the four forms of the Tao to satisfy their interests, causing harm to people, animals, and everything. However, the level of damage is not large-scale or frequent, or it kills people and animals and devastates natural resources.

You also know that the wisdom of the tuelinh and the soul create the knowledge of ignorance in human ideology. The wisdom of ignorance in the ideology of the tuelinh and soul is created by the structure of the yin and yang energy embryo. It is a type of yin and yang energy embryo made up of a grey negative energy particle with strong electric waves, or a yin and yang energy embryo that transformed the original negative energy particle at the level of strong electric waves. People who have the tuelinh or soul inside possessing a yin-yang energy embryo with the grey yin energy particle with strong electric waves will always produce grey yin energy particles.

In addition, people who have tuelinhs or souls with the nature of wisdom are ignorant in their actions and ignorant in spreading false values about sustainable development; they also produce energy particles that have ignorant wisdom in ideology. Remember, the tuelinhs and the souls with ignorant wisdom in action have yin and yang energy embryos made up of a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves, and all kinds of yin and yang energy embryos are during the process of the original negative energy transformation is at a very strong electric wave level. The tuelinhs and souls with ignorant intelligence in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development are formed from yin and yang energy embryos with a blood-red yin energy particle with super strong electric waves, and all kinds of yin and yang energy embryos are in the process of transforming the original yin energy particles at the level of super strong electric waves.

You need to remember that when participating in the reaction process of producing energy particles of ignorance in the ideology, people have the nature of wisdom of ignorance in the ideology, ignorance in action, and ignorance in spreading false knowledge produces this type of energy particle.

Let us call the type of ignorance energy particle in the ideology the grey negative energy particle. Please remember this so you understand other types of harmful energy particles.

Next, you need to remember that the reaction process that produces grey energy particles has four environmental groups involved, specifically:

- The internal environment group is the yin and yang energy embryo of the person who produces the grey yin energy particles. Those are the information values of the original positive energy particle and the information values of the original negative energy particle. It is the information reaction between the original positive and negative energy particles.

- The external positive environment group is positive people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains positive information values and promotes the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and all things in and outside the universe. These are informational values with characteristics of sustainable development, informational values that spread sustainable development values, solidarity values to spread sustainable development values together, and the knowledge of complete enlightenment.

- The negative external environment group is negative people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains negative information values and destroys the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and everything in and out of the universe. These are informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in ideology, informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in action, and informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in the diffusion of false knowledge.

- Groups of destructive energy particles in the external environment. That is a group of energy particles with two values for all things in the universe. One is to cause decay and destruction, and the other creates sustainable development for intelligence and all life forms in the universe.

It would help if you remembered that the practice environment in the human world built by the first tuelinh ensures the entire interaction of all four environmental groups to help the tuelinhs and souls practice their ability to detonate destructive energy in the process of decoding the secrets of oneself, all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, in any reactions that produce energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world, each person must interact and react with three types of external environment.

Do you remember the conference to unify the practice path of the Tuelinh Council? That is the image of small poisonous snakes hiding in a plate of white food powder, a big poisonous snake slithering into the bush, and a small toxic snake slithering into the bush afterwards. Then came the words of the first tuelinh, "To save all tuelinhs, I must use toxin to remove the toxin in them." In these lectures, you have discovered the meaning of the reactions that produce energy particles. That is the method of using toxin to stimulate toxin, then finding a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Toxins are present in the negative energy particles of the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh and soul, in each person and all things, and in the destructive energy particles. Good elements exist in the positive particles of every tuelinh, soul, person, and everything. The process of interaction between the internal environment of the yin and yang energy embryo with the three external environments creates a reaction that uses toxins to detoxify and finds a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. That makes the lectures on reactions that produce energetic particles a series of lectures containing precious intellectual values.

The reaction process that produces grey energy particles includes five stages:

- Stage 1: The generation stage wishes to produce grey energy particles.

- Stage 2: Decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce grey energy particles.

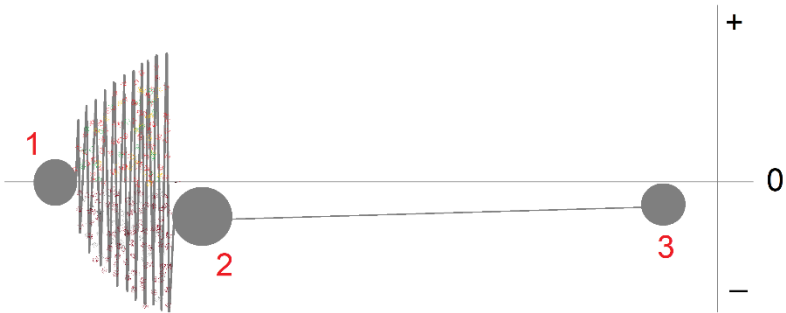

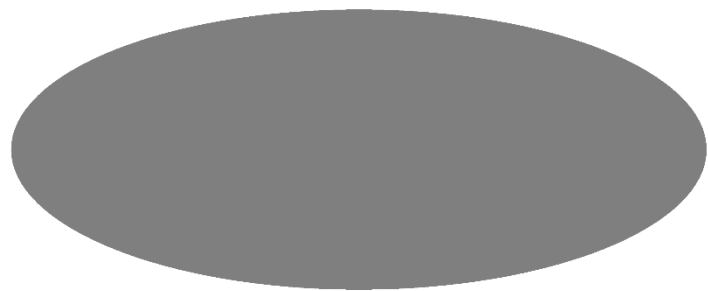

- Phase 4: Action phase to produce grey energy particles.

- Stage 5: The intellectual wave code fibre stage carries strong electric waves that produce grey causal energy particles.

And now, let's explore the evolution of the reaction process that produces grey energy particles.

Please look at the image of the grey negative energy particle and its wisdom wave code thread to recall the three points and two segments.

The grey negative energy particle

Intellectual wave code fiber

Stage 1: The stage of generating the desire to produce grey harmful energy particles:

That is when people interact with the outside environment until the desire to produce grey energy particles arises.

As you know, why does the tuelinh life form have to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world? That is because they have had a pure and peaceful life since being born on the central planet with the quintessence of various energies and from the protection and care of the first tuelinh. That causes them not to have any attachment or desire for physical structures or any form because if they want something, they can transform it from the magical energy particles on that planet. However, since they cannot detonate annihilation energy, they do not have the heat source from detonated annihilation energy particles to fuel their sustained energy particle production. Therefore, they have difficulty maturing and do not have the power to detonate destructive energy particles. The inevitable result was that many baby tuelinhs were disintegrated and destroyed by the energy of destruction. Because of that serious problem, the first tuelinh must build a practice environment in the human world with an interaction of all kinds of energy particles in and outside the universe to help them practice sustainable energy particle production.

When they become human, they live in four forms of the Tao. So, how do they create reactions that produce energetic particles? What they desire will not be satisfied when they live in the human world. It would help if you remembered this to understand why the chain reaction that produces particles occurs. What they want will not be achieved, which is the opposite of life on the central planet. When they like to have something, they can transform it and enjoy that joy. However, in the human world, they cannot fly or transform into things when needed. That is wanting but not being satisfied. From wanting but not being satisfied, combined with the fact that they have to stay in a simple material body, they become trapped, vicious and suffer in their body because of the things they want but cannot have or transform into. Therefore, they begin to enter the chain of reactions that produce energy particles in all the interactions of the four forms of the Tao in the human world.

So, how does the beginning of the journey produce grey negative energy particles occur? It is initiated by the generation stage of the desire to produce grey energy particles. It would help to remember that humans do not wish to produce grey energy particles. You must understand that actions to satisfy your interests that cause small-scale consequences, not killing yourself, others, animals, and all things, will constitute grey energy particles. Therefore, when I say that people want to produce grey negative energy particles, you must understand that people like to satisfy their interests while hurting people on a small scale and not yet causing death.

The journey of generating one's desire to produce grey energy particles goes as follows:

- First, the person must interact in their living and working environment, or they have access to information from a particular environment, even if by chance. Accessing that information causes them to compare themselves and the subjects of the environment with which they interact.

- Next, the person realizes they are different from the subjects they have interacted with. Maybe they see others as rich while they are poor. Others have status while they don't. Others have lovers while they don't. Others have houses while they don't. Others have children while they don't have anything. Others are happy while they are unhappy. Others have many assets while they don't have them. Others are healthy while they are sick. Others have a life of enjoyment while they are struggling. Others are respected, while others are not. Others have businesses while they don't have them. Some are famous, while others are not. Other people's children are happy while their children are not, and other forms of the four forms of the Tao.

- That comparison and recognition will occur over a short period or over a long time.

- The person's comparison and recognition process occurs in positive and negative environments. That is, they will see some people get rich from trying to study and work honestly to get rich and see people who get rich through profiteering or harming others. There are people whose status comes from talent and morality and who gain status from using money or connections to get it. Someone is good to one person but not good to another. That someone helps one person but doesn't help the other. Everyone respects this person but doesn't respect that person.

After interacting in different environments, they become eager to produce grey energy particles from things they have or do not have, love or hate, intelligence or no intelligence, to beg or not to beg, to act or not to act. However, they also realize that they are not capable of causing large-scale consequences or causing deaths to people, animals, and things to satisfy their desires. Finally, they realized they could achieve their desires and satisfy their interests by accepting harm to people, animals, and things on a small scale.

Generating the purpose of satisfying one's benefits and accepting to cause harm to people, animals, and things on a small scale and not yet killing is that person's goal after interacting with different environments.

When the goal arises to produce grey energy particles, it shows that the original negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo of the soul inside that person has strong electrical waves and toxins, and the original positive energy particle does not have enough power to control the original negative energy particle. That means that that person's intelligence is at the level of ideological ignorance. It is an ideology that satisfies their interests and accepts causing harm on a small scale and not at the level of killing people, animals, and all things.

When the desire to produce grey energy particles forms, the intellectual wave code strand of the original negative energy particle synthesizes its toxins with the toxins of information from the outside environment. That toxic information caused the original negative intellectual wave code strand to simulate the number point (1) in the intelligence wave code strand.

Stage 2: The stage of decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo:

That is the stage of decoding and encoding information from the external environment after the desire to produce grey energy particles arises. This stage will create vibrational wave code beats from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre of the grey negative energy particle.

Remember, at this stage of producing grey energy particles, it has already shown the yin and yang embryonic nature of the soul within the human being. They have a yin and yang energy embryo, with the original yin energy particle being a grey, black, or blood-red yin particle. Because of that, the poison of the original negative energy particle has the power to dominate the positive energy particle, and it will quickly absorb toxic information without accepting good information from the outside environment during the information encoding and decoding process.

During this stage of decoding and encoding information, the destructive energy particles will be stimulated by the vibration waves of the original negative energy particle with the negative environment to move into the yin and yang embryo. That is the ideal condition for detonation if positive energy particles can control negative particles and information from the outside environment. However, positive particles do not have the power to do so in the reaction that produces grey particles. Therefore, the destructive energy particle becomes death to the yin and yang energy embryo.

Because the goal after interacting with the external environment is to produce grey energy particles, it represents the nature of the toxic yin and yang energy embryo and the vibration speed of the original negative particle at a strong level. That causes people to decode and encode information from the external environment as follows:

- First, that person finds a negative environment that has information similar to the toxic information that is controlling their yin and yang embryo. In this environment, they meet people, knowledge, and methods with similar views on satisfying their interests and accept causing consequences on a small scale and not at the level of killing people, animals, and all things. The exploding toxins of the root negative energy particle combine with the toxins of the negative outside environment, causing the root negative energy particle and the entire system of negative energy particles in that person's soul to vibrate at a strong level. That causes several destructive energy particles to pick up the signal, moving towards that person to discharge their excess heat. As the destructive energy particles move into the soul structure, the negative energy particle clusters lose control and become corrupted as the destructive particles transfer excess heat. As a result, the soul becomes incapable of circulating information waves throughout the entire particle structure. That causes that person's soul to gradually lose the ability to perceive and distinguish the information value of the external environment. As a result of the interaction process in this negative environment, the desire to produce grey energy particles becomes more intense. Besides, the first vibrational wave code segment is formed at the negative pole with the crystallization of toxins inside the original negative particle of the soul with the toxic information values of the negative external environment.

- Next, that person interacts in a positive environment, where people, methods, and knowledge characterize sustainable development and the true nature of all things. Those positive information values are transmitted to that person. Still, they are denied because the negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo is controlling and does not receive positive information. Interacting in a positive environment has caused that person's yin and yang energy embryo to receive positive information values even though that person constantly refutes and does not want to accept. That creates a conflict reaction between the toxic information of the original negative particle and the positive information in the outside environment. The result of that reaction process creates a vibrating wave code beat at the positive pole in the intellectual wave code. Because the yin and yang energy embryo is being dominated by the toxins of the original yin energy particle, those positive information values are dominated and have no power even though encoded into a vibrational code rhythm in the intellectual wave code in the original negative particle.

- The person's interaction process between two positive and negative environments occurs continuously over time. That makes decoding and encoding information of yin and yang energy embryos fierce and stressful. Vibration wave code rhythms contain negative information values of the external environment due to binding with the toxins of the original negative particle formed. In addition, vibrational wave codes containing positive information values of the external environment continue to be formed. Still, they are blocked and controlled by the toxins of the original negative energy particle.

At the end of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, it causes the grey negative energy particle is simulated to produce additional vibration wave code fibre from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle. This vibrating wave code segment encodes all the toxic information values of the external environment in the vibrating wave code beats at the negative pole, and it encodes part of the positive information values in the vibrating wave code rhythm at the positive pole. However, all vibrational wave code beats demonstrate the toxic nature of the original negative energy particle. Do you know why? Because only the original negative energy particle reacts to encode toxic information about the external environment, while the original positive energy particle does not have enough strength to evaluate the information value of the external environment and control the root negative energy particle. Therefore, in the production process of grey energy particles, only the original negative energy particles participate in the production reaction. Do you remember the lecture on mind dharma? The information values encoded in the intellectual wave code rhythms form the dharma refute dharma, and the dharma unites dharma. In this case, the vibrations at the negative pole are the dharma that unites dharma, and the vibrations at the positive pole are dharma that refutes dharma. The toxins and false information of the original negative energy particle refute the external environment's positive information to form vibrating wave code rhythms at the positive pole. The toxins and false information of the original negative energy particle combine with the toxins and false information of the external environment to form vibrating wave code rhythms at the negative pole.

In addition to the original negative energy particle simulating the new vibrational code for producing the grey negative particle, the destructive energy particles attack the soul structure in large numbers. That causes the information waves in that soul not to circulate to create heat that detonates destructive energy, and that person's intelligence becomes out of control. They cannot perceive negative and positive information values of themselves and the external environment. They only exist in the desire to satisfy the goal that they created from the previous stage.

You must understand that, when the toxins of the tuelinh and soul erupt to practice the mechanism of producing grey energy particles, they do not believe and always reject the positive information values from the outside environment, whether it is enlightened knowledge. Besides, they are afraid and lack the strength to practice producing black or blood-red energy particles even though they receive information from people with ignorant wisdom in action and diffuse false wisdom. Therefore, they only set the goal of producing grey energy particles. Only by experiencing the suffering of the consequences they create can they understand truth, their nature, and the informational values of the external environment.

At the end of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, the reaction process of producing grey energy particles switches to the stage of creating the ideology of ignorance in the production of grey energy particles.

However, for those who have learned enlightened knowledge from the two truths and the smallest energy particle, there is an understanding of the reactions that produce grey energy particles within them. Therefore, even if they have acquired an ideology that produces grey energy particles, as long as they remember the enlightened knowledge and do not transform it into action, no negative energy particles will be produced. Of course, that is the case of learning and understanding enlightened knowledge and having help from enlightened people in the outside environment. Therefore, the purpose of me giving these lectures to you is not for you to produce negative energy particles but to help you understand and eliminate the process of producing harmful energy particles if you are creating those reactions.

Phase 3: Ideological generation phase to produce grey energy particles:

This stage produces the ignorance ideology for producing grey energy particles.

This stage of creating ideology is the inheritance of all the results of decoding and encoding information in the previous stage. To generate the ideology for producing grey energy particles, the toxins and toxic information at a strong level of the original negative particle dominated and controlled the original positive energy particle. Therefore, the harmful information of the negative energy particle is easily linked with the harmful information with destructive properties of the external environment to encode into a vibrating wave code. That means that the yin and yang energy embryo of the soul inside the human being does not have the power of the yang particle to decode the truth of information values in the external environment, so the original yin energy particle decodes wrong and encodes them into its intellectual wave code strand to form the ideology at point (2) in the intellectual wave code strand.

The ideology created at this stage results from ideological struggle, also known as the result of people's thinking process. It is a thought to refute the positive information values of people, methods, and knowledge that are characterized by sustainable development, spread the values of sustainable development, and unite to spread sustainable development values. Besides that, there are thoughts to accept the satisfaction of one's benefits and to accept small-scale destruction without killing people, animals, and all things despite receiving more toxic information than from people, methods, and knowledge of ignorance in action and ignorance in spreading false knowledge.

Indeed, developing an ideology that satisfied their interests was a fierce and painful struggle. That shows that when the tuelinhs and souls dwell in a simple form and are not satisfied by an environment of nothing but extreme suffering and pressure, they will release toxins and produce reactions that generate grey energy particles based on the nature of their intelligence and the interactive environment.

When the grey energy particle production ideology is created, the simulation process to make the grey negative energy particle's intellectual wave code fibre of the root negative energy particle's intelligent wave code fibre has reached creating point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre. When a point (2) is created, it begins the action phase in the following stage. Besides, it also shows the person's failure to recognize and eliminate toxins and ignorance of the truth of themselves and others, of all things in and out of the universe.

Phase 4: Action phase to produce grey harmful energy particles:

That is the stage of inheriting the functions and tasks specified in point (2) in the ideology, which is to act to satisfy personal benefits and accept harm on a small scale to all people, animals, and all things. In addition, during this grey negative energy particle production action phase, the destructive toxic information values from the outside environment continue to be absorbed by the toxic information values from the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle binds and encodes to form the intellectual fibre of the simulation that produces the grey negative energy particle. That means that negative information values are increased and absorbed from the external environment along with the inheritance of all negative information values decoded and encoded in previous stages.

The action phase can occur as a single action interacting with people, animals, and things, or it can be a series of actions to end the phase that produces grey energy particles.

After obtaining the ideology for the production of grey energy particles along with being dominated by the destructive energy particles residing in the soul structure to discharge excess heat, the production process of grey energy particle generation occurs as follows:

- As the person performs actions that produce grey energy particles, they continue to see and interact with negative people, methods, and knowledge. That causes their yin and yang energy embryo to link and encode that toxic information into the intelligence fibre being simulated in the original yin energy particle. The process of toxic binding between these two environments causes the system of negative energy particles in that person's soul to vibrate intensely. It causes many destructive energy particles to move to discharge excess heat. As a result, the soul and person lose their cognitive ability and become determined to practice producing grey energy particles.

- However, they will also meet and interact with positive people, knowledge, and methods to help them and prevent them from practising grey energy particle production. Even though they are actively discouraged by the environment, they still commit actions that hurt people, animals, and things to satisfy their interests.

During this action phase, the negative environment and excess heat of destructive energy are discharged into the soul, causing the person to disobey and not believe in prevention and help from positive people. It shows the victory of toxins in the original negative energy particle and toxins of the external environment. At the same time, it also demonstrates the inability of the good elements in the root positive energy particle when it does not have enough strength to control the poison of the root negative particle.

The result of this phase is an intellectual wave code thread with strong electric waves that are copied and produced from the intelligence wave code thread of the original negative particle after it completes the process simulating point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre. The newly produced intellectual wave code strand is stored next to the original negative particle's original intellectual wave code strand.

Remember, at the end of stage 4 in the reaction chain that produces grey energy particles, there is a lot of negative heat in the original negative energy particle. That negative heat results from the reaction process of decoding and encoding toxic information from the outside environment with the original negative energy particle when the original positive energy particle does not have the power to control and eliminate the toxins. Therefore, that negative heat is the ideal condition for the newly produced negative intelligence wave code to form causal energy particles.

Stage 5: The stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carries strong electric waves that produce grey causal energy particles:

This phase occurs immediately after the end of the action or series of actions that produced grey energy particles in the previous phase.

That is the stage where the intellectual wave code fibre carrying strong electric waves is born after the action of producing grey energy particles is finished; it will copy into many intellectual wave code fibres similar to it. Remember that the newly produced intellectual wave code is stored next to the original harmful intellectual wave code, and the copied wisdom wave code fibres will move to the extreme containing the harmful energy particles of the mature energy embryo. Then, they transform into the smallest harmful energy particles with a grey energy state inside. At that time, several of the smallest particles will join to form aggregate yin energy particles and move outside the mature energy embryo structure to rotate around positive energy particles with the same content group. That creates a cluster of many yin energy particles in the composite energy particle structure of the tuelinh. In addition, some particles will be shot to the outside environment, where the person creates actions that produce those grey energy particles. When those harmful particles move to those people, they will be transformed into information and negative heat after they move into their souls. Besides, the smallest harmful particles will be recovered to the processing centre and operating the cause and effect tree of all *tuelinh*s and souls on the central planet.

Thus, at the end of the reaction chain that produces grey energy particles, those toxic energy particles have become causal energy particles and exist in three regions. It consists of the tuelinh structure (an intellectual wave code strand carrying negative electric waves is stored next to the wisdom wave code strand carrying the original negative electric wave of the yin particle in the yin and yang embryo, and a composite energy particle formed into synthetic particle structure outside the mature yin and yang energy embryo), one particle is stored in the centre that operates the causal tree in the central planet, and one to many particles are transmitted to affected people.

In addition, the action process produces grey energy particles that create a negative external environment that causes others to learn and follow. That is similar to that person having received toxic information values from the outside environment.

Have you noticed anything through the chain reaction that produces grey energy particles? It is the information circulation mechanism in the rotation mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo and the mechanism for producing and connecting the smallest energy particles by the information reaction process between the internal and external environments. They form a path of transformation, decay and destruction when only negative energy particles with strong electric waves are produced, while positive and neutral energy particles are not. That causes the synthetic energy particle structure in the tuelinh to have many harmful energy particles in clusters.

So, it is a chain reaction that produces grey energy particles, harmful energy particles of ignorance in the ideology.

I will analyse a specific situation to help you quickly identify and prevent your grey energy particle production.

Give an example in the case of grey negative energy particle production from adultery:

A man has been married for ten years, and they have a son and a daughter. Their children are very obedient and have excellent academic results. After difficulties and hardships in life and work, their family has become rich, and the husband has a high position in his career. However, the husband is covering up his affair with his employee. Thus, the husband produced grey energy particles. That negative energy particle includes the interactive content of social and family Tao.

Now, let's analyze this case of grey energy particle production.

Phase 1: the interaction phase to generate the desire to produce grey energy particles:

- After many years of living together, the wife is no longer young, especially after giving birth to two children. While at work, there are many young unmarried girls. That makes the husband notice and compare the difference between his no longer young and beautiful wife and other young and beautiful girls.

- The husband sees that his career has been promoted and he has more money than during his poor years. He feels the need for material and spiritual enjoyment.

- The husband saw other rich people; they had affairs with beautiful young girls. On the contrary, he also sees other successful people leading healthy lifestyles and being faithful to their wives.

- Those comparisons and perceptions over a while made him more interested in beautiful young girls at work. At the same time, he noticed boredom in his love for his wife. By this time, he had developed a newfound lust for love with a young woman at work. Therefore, he finds satisfaction in having a girl other than his wife. At that time, point (1) of the intellectual wave code fibre carrying the negative electric wave for the production of the grey negative energy particle was simulated in the original intellectual wave code fibre of the original yin energy particle.

Phase 2: stage of decoding and encoding information for the production of grey energy particles:

- Because he has developed a desire to have another girl besides his wife, it shows that his toxins have broken out and are controlling the yin and yang energy of his soul.

- He interacts and chats with beautiful girls at work. The conversations, accompanied by messages and feelings, made him and a lovely young girl attracted to each other. This process causes the intellectual wave code fibre of the original yin energy particle in the yin and yang energy embryo to simulate the vibrating wave code rhythms at the cathode. The toxins of the outside environment are the attraction from that beautiful young girl, from the rich people who are having an affair, linked with the toxins of desire and greed in the root negative energy particle to create harmful values encoded in vibrating wave codes. That toxic combination caused his soul's negative energy particle system to shake violently, and many destructive energy particles that caught the signal moved in to discharge excess heat. Therefore, he cannot perceive the gains and losses in the adulterous relationship.

- When he interacts with his faithful wife at home and sees the breakdown of other couples due to adultery, he thinks he deserves to be more satisfied with his love for the young girl. In addition, he assumed that no one would know about his affair and that it would not affect his work or family. That means that positive informational values were attacked to help awaken his desire for adultery, but it was not successful. That's because the toxins in his negative energy particle dominate and control the positive energy particle, so he denies positive information. That creates positive values encoded at the vibrating wave code beats at the positive pole of the intellectual wave code fibre.

- The process of decoding and encoding information between negative and positive environments by his yin and yang energy embryo took place over a while, causing the intellectual wave code strand of the original yin energy particle to simulate complete the vibrating wave code for the production of adulterous harmful energy particles.

Stage 3: ideological formation stage for the production of grey negative energy particles:

- The ideology for producing grey energy particles is formed at the end of the simulation process, creating a vibrating wave code. It is an ideology that satisfies one's interests while causing harm to the wife, children and the young girl herself.

- However, that is only a harmful ideology on a small scale, not the ideology of leaving one's wife and children to marry that young girl like others have done. It is also not a positive ideology that brings sustainable development values to his family and that of the young girl.

- At the end of the ideology creation stage, point number (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre of the grey negative energy particle has been simulated.

Stage 4: the practice stage of producing grey energy particles of adultery:

- That husband officially had an affair with that young girl when both parties benefited from each other. He benefits from lust, and the other girl benefits from the money and status he gives her. This process makes him satisfied and feels happy without knowing that his and that girl's toxins control each other. Those toxins include images of the adulterous process encoded into the intellectual fibre formed in the original negative energy particle. That causes many destructive energy particles to catch the signal and move to discharge excess heat.

- He was known and discouraged from having an affair by his friends and colleagues, but he did not stop.

- The fact that he performed sexual acts with that young girl caused him to produce an intellectual wave code fibre with electric waves after each sexual encounter. That means that he has made many intellectual wave code fibres for that act of adultery.

Stage 5: the stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carrying strong electric waves that produce grey causal energy particles:

- Many strands of the negative intelligence wave code of the act of adultery are produced and stored next to the original negative intelligence wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle.

- From the intellectual wave code fibres produced by the act of adultery, they copy into many intellectual wave code fibres to the yin pole of the mature yin and yang energy embryo to transform into the smallest energy particles. Those particles then bond to form synthetic negative energy particles and move to conjugal content clusters of positive particles. It causes that composite energy particle cluster to have multiple negative energy particles with the same informational content.

- The smallest particles of grey negative energy are collected in the space that processes the cause and effect tree of the tuelinhs and souls on the central planet.

- Grey energy particles bombarded those who knew about his affair and the young girl.

Thus, the chain of reactions that produced grey energy particles of that man with the content of adultery has been completed. When he was finished, his actions had created an external environment containing toxins for other young men and women to absorb when they failed to control their harmful energy particles with the toxins exploding."

Chapter Seventy-Six

Reaction Produces Energy Particles of Ignorance in Action

"I see that he is in perfect health because, in every course he organizes, he teaches all day long without feeling tired. One time, I noticed that when the Teacher had just sat down in his chair, a few students at the back of the class, because it was too crowded and far away, stood up to see the Teacher. Seeing that, the Teacher stood up again to preach." A female student talks to everyone during lunch break.

A male student replied, "That shows that everyone who listens to the lecture must see the Teacher. They don't want to miss the opportunity to hear and see the Teacher teach live. That is what many people wish when they have faith in the Teacher and his knowledge, especially seriously ill people who have recovered after studying and practising according to the Teacher's knowledge. Even we are like that. We always come to class early to sit closer to the Teacher."

Another student said, "That's right, I feel that sitting close to the Teacher while listening to him lecture will make me feel the energy from him like ocean waves entering my body more than sitting at the back of the class. That's why I see that when sick people are studying, the Teacher always tells them to sit at the front of the classroom."

At that moment, the Teacher walked past everyone to the podium so he could hear the stories that people were telling each other. After everyone in the classroom became quiet, the Teacher said, "Everyone sitting at the top or bottom of the class received the same amount of information. Paying attention to lectures means the information you absorb will be rich and comprehensive. It is important that after receiving information, learners must apply it to practice in life. People with the disease should sit up front because they receive more information by concentrating on listening and more energy."

A student immediately said, "Teacher, in class this morning, when you taught about the reaction that produces grey negative energy particles, especially after you analyzed a specific example, I felt like my soul was completely enlightened. I was enlightened by the difficult knowledge about energy particles, mechanisms and nature of particles in this morning's lecture. I was like someone who was enlightened at the time of the last lessons in this course of yours. I realize that when the Teacher analyzes and teaches knowledge from different analytical angles related to the nature and movement mechanisms of all life forms in and out of the universe, learners have a comprehensive view and will attain complete enlightenment. It was a miracle for me. However, I became enlightened more slowly than many people when they quickly understood the Teacher's knowledge from the difficult lectures on energy particles. Now I can feel the peace and freedom when understanding the nature of all things, events, and phenomena through knowledge of the two truths with the smallest energy particle."

The Teacher replied, "Enlightened knowledge and the smallest particle of energy explain the truth about the nature and path of transformation of all things in and out of the universe; it is just like a court deciding a civil or criminal case. Everyone, from the plaintiff to the defendant, the judge, jury members, relatives of the plaintiff and defendant, and everyone watching the trial will see the cause and motive, nature, and other circumstances in that case. When understanding, people see the nature of truth and the consequences of actions caused by ignorance or enlightenment that forgives mistakes. On the contrary, if we do not use the knowledge of the two truths, the knowledge of energy particles, and the nature of the information to dissect and analyze the true nature of all things in and outside the universe, it's like people only see that a certain dispute or a certain murder has occurred without knowing the nature, cause, and related details. Therefore, what I have built into lectures from different angles and levels is for you to thoroughly understand all the nature and transformation mechanisms of yourself and each other, all things inside and outside the universe. From there, you will train yourself in a moral framework by understanding to practice activating good factors and eliminating toxins in the soul."

After a few minutes of silence, the teacher continued his lecture, "This afternoon, we continue to explore the reaction that produces energy particles with the wisdom of ignorance in action.

It would help if you remembered that, in the series of lectures on energy particle production reactions, there is a lot of content that I will talk about and repeat over and over again in all lectures. Therefore, do not think I have nothing else to say and preach to you. It's not like that at all. Those issues and contents are important. Those are the keys to help you understand and apply to practice the mechanism of producing positive energy particles and not practice the mechanism of producing harmful energy particles most effectively.

Now, we need to recall the energy particle of ignorance in action. It is a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves. The characteristics of this type of negative energy particle are: it contains a large number of toxins, a high level of false information value, a very fast vibration speed, the ability to absorb negative heat and toxic in the external environment is very strong, and the properties of this particle can destroy physical structures at a very strong level.

You also understand the wisdom of ignorance in action, which is the wisdom of not understanding the truth of yourself, all things, events and phenomena. Therefore, people grasp and stick to the interactive contents of the four forms of the Tao to satisfy their interests, causing harm to people, animals, and everything. The level of damage to people, animals, and things is on a large scale, and there is killing involved.

You also know that the wisdom of the tuelinh and the soul creates the understanding of ignorance in human actions. The knowledge of ignorance in the actions of the tuelinh and the soul is created by the structure of the yin and yang energy embryo. It is a type of yin and yang energy embryo made up of a black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves or a yin and yang energy embryo that transforms the original negative energy particle at a very strong electric wave level. People with a tuelinh or soul inside possess a yin-yang energy embryo with the black negative energy particle with very strong electric waves that will always produce black negative energy particles.

In addition, people with the tuelinhs or souls of intellectual nature are ignorant in ideology and ignorant in spreading false values about sustainable development. They also produce energy particles and ignorance in action. Remember, the tuelinhs and the souls with ignorant wisdom in ideology have yin and yang energy embryos made up of a grey negative energy particle with very strong electric waves, and all kinds of yin and yang energy embryos are during the process of the original negative energy transformation is at a strong electric wave level. The tuelinhs and souls with ignorant intelligence in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development are formed from yin and yang energy embryos with a blood-red yin energy particle with super strong electric waves, and all kinds of yin and yang energy embryos are in the process of transforming the original yin energy particles at the level of super strong electric waves.

You need to remember that, when participating in the reaction process of producing energy particles of ignorance in action, the tuelinhs have the nature of wisdom, ignorance in action, ignorance in ideology, and ignorance in spreading false knowledge can quickly produce this type of energy particle.

Let us call the type of energy particle of ignorance in action the black negative energy particle. Please remember this so you understand other types of harmful energy particles. In addition, you must also not forget that black energy particles have much stronger toxins, electric waves, false information, and destructive properties than grey energy particles.

Next, you need to remember that the reaction process that produces black energy particles has four environmental groups involved, specifically:

- The internal environment group is the yin and yang energy embryo of the person who produces the black yin energy particle. Those are the information values of the original positive energy particle and the information values of the original negative energy particle. It is the information reaction between the original positive and negative energy particles.

- The external positive environment group is positive people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains positive information values and promotes the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and all things in and outside the universe. These are informational values with characteristics of sustainable development, informational values that spread sustainable development values, solidarity values to spread sustainable development values together, and the knowledge of complete enlightenment.

- The negative external environment group is negative people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains negative information values and destroys the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and everything in and out of the universe. These are informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in ideology, informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in action, and informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in the diffusion of false knowledge.

- Groups of destructive energy particles in the external environment. That is a group of energy particles with two values for all things in the universe. One is to cause decay and destruction, and the other creates sustainable development for intelligence and all life forms in the universe.

It would help if you remembered that the practice environment in the human world built by the first tuelinh ensures the entire interaction of all four environmental groups to help the tuelinhs and souls practice their ability to detonate destructive energy in the process of decoding the secrets of oneself, all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, in any reactions that produce energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world, each person must interact and react with three types of external environment.

You have already learned about the conference to unify the practice path of the Tuelinh Council before they transformed into humans. That is the image of small poisonous snakes hiding in a plate of white food powder, a big poisonous snake slithering into the bush, and a small toxic snake slithering into the bush afterwards. Then came the words of the first tuelinh, "To save all tuelinhs, I must use toxin to remove the toxin in them." In these lectures, you will have discovered the meaning of the reactions that produce energy particles. That is the method of using toxin to stimulate toxin, then finding a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Toxins are present in the negative energy particles of the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh and soul, in each person and all things, and in the destructive energy particles. Good elements exist in the positive particles of every tuelinh, soul, person, and everything. The process of interaction between the internal environment of the yin and yang energy embryo with the three external environments creates a reaction that uses toxins to detoxify and finds a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. That helps you see the value and wonderfulness of the morning's lecture on the grey energy particle production reaction.

The reaction process that produces black negative energy particles includes five stages:

- Stage 1: The generation stage wishes to produce black energy particles.

- Stage 2: Decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce black energy particles.

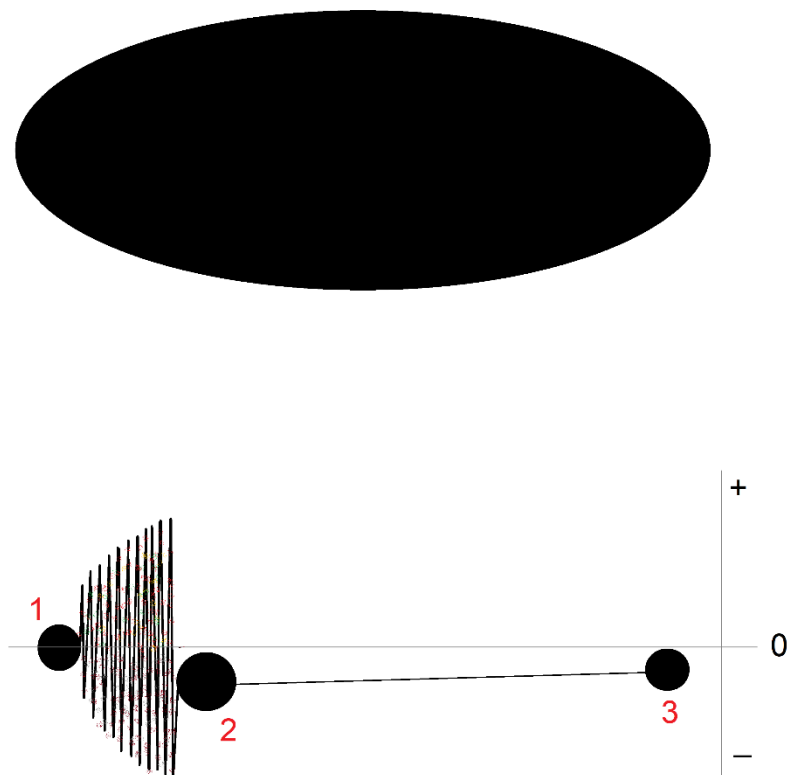

- Phase 4: Action phase to produce black energy particles.

- Stage 5: The intellectual wave code fibre stage has very strong electric waves that produce black causal energy particles.

And now, let's explore the evolution of the reaction process that produces black energy particles.

Please look at the image of the black negative energy particle and its wisdom wave code thread to recall the three points and two segments.

The black negative energy particle

Intellectual wave code fibre

Stage 1: The stage of generating the desire to produce black energy particles:

That is when people interact with the outside environment until the desire to produce black energy particles arises.

You also know why the tuelinh life form has to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world. They have difficulty maturing because they cannot detonate destructive energy so that sustainable energy particles can be produced. They do not have magical powers like the first tuelinh. The destruction of baby tuelinhs, and the destruction of life forms in the universe is the reason why the first tuelinh had to create a practice environment for the tuelinh life forms to help them practice detonate destructive energy through an environment of nothing but suffering on earth.

The first tuelinh made it impossible for them to use their ability to manipulate energy, like on the central planet, to help them create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles when they incarnate as humans. That means their desires will not be satisfied when they live in the human world. It would help if you remembered this to understand why the chain reaction that produces particles occurs. What they want will not be achieved, which is the opposite of life on the central planet. When they like to have something, they can transform it and enjoy that joy. However, in the human world, they cannot fly, transform, or transform into things when they need them. That is wanting but not being satisfied. From wanting but not being satisfied, combined with the fact that they have to stay in a simple material body, they become trapped, vicious and suffer in their body because of the things they want but cannot have or transform into. Therefore, they begin to enter the chain of reactions that produce energy particles in all the interactions of the four forms of Tao in the human world.

How does the beginning of the journey produce black energy particles occur? It is initiated by the generation stage of the desire to produce black energy particles. It would be best if you remembered that humans do not desire to produce black energy particles because they do not know about those energy particles and their toxicity. You must understand that actions to satisfy your interests that cause large-scale consequences and involve the killing of yourself, others, animals, and all living things will constitute black energy particles. Therefore, when I say that people want to produce black energy particles, you must understand that people like to satisfy their interests, hurt people on a large scale, and there may be killing.

The journey of generating a person's desire to produce black energy particles goes as follows:

- First, the person must interact in their living and working environment, or they have access to information from a specific environment, even if by chance. Accessing that information causes them to compare themselves and the subjects of the environment with which they interact.

- Next, the person realizes they are different from the subjects they have interacted with. Maybe they see that their country is poor while another country is rich. Their country has no natural resources, while another country has many natural resources. Someone else is rich while they are not. Someone else has land while they don't have it. Someone else has a lover while they don't have one. Someone else has a house while they don't have one. Someone else has children while they don't have one. Someone else is happy while they are not happy. Others have many assets, while they do not have them. Others are healthy while they are sick. Others have a life of enjoyment while they struggle. Others are respected, while others are not. Others have businesses when they don't have them. Some are famous, while others are not. Other people's children are happy while their children are not, and other forms of the four forms of Tao.

- That comparison and recognition will occur over a short or extended period.

- The person's comparison and recognition process occurs in positive and negative environments. That is, they will see that there are rich countries because of invasion and wars, and there are other rich countries because they develop many talents for the country. That is, they will see that there are people who get rich from trying to study and work honestly, and there are people who get rich through acts of profiteering or harming others. There are people whose status comes from talent and morality and who gain status from using money or connections to get it. That someone is good to one person but not good to another. That someone helps one person but doesn't help the other. That means people respect others but don't respect others.

After interacting in different environments, they become eager to produce black energy particles from things they possess and do not possess, or love and hate, or have intelligence and no intelligence, or to beg and not to beg, or to act and not to act. However, they also realize that they are incapable of causing consequences on a large scale, such as becoming propagandists of false knowledge that destroys many intelligent beings, people, animals, and all other things. In the end, they realized they could achieve their desires and satisfy their interests by accepting harm to people, animals, and things on a large scale and even killing.

Generate the purpose of satisfying one's interests and accept causing harm to people, animals, and all things on a large scale and even killing as that person's goal after the corresponding process interacts with different environments.

When the goal arises to produce black energy particles, it shows that the original negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo of the soul inside that person has very strong electrical waves and toxins, and the original positive energy particle does not have the power to control the original negative energy particle. That means that a person's wisdom is at the level of ignorance in action. It is an ideology that satisfies their interests and accepts large-scale harm and killing of people, animals, and all things.

When the desire to produce black energy particles arose, the intellectual wave code strand of the original negative energy particle synthesized its toxins with the toxins of information from the outside environment. That toxic information caused the original negative intelligence wave code strand to simulate point (1) in the intellectual wave code strand.

Stage 2: The stage of decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo:

That is the stage of decoding and encoding information from the external environment after the desire to produce black energy particles arises. This stage will create vibrational wave code rhythms from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code thread of the black negative energy particle.

Remember, at this stage of producing black energy particles, it has already shown the yin and yang embryonic nature of the soul within the human being. They have a yin and yang energy embryo, with the original yin energy particle being a black, grey, or blood-red yin particle. Because of that, the poison of the original negative energy particle has the power to dominate the positive energy particle, and it quickly absorbs toxic information without accepting good information from the outside environment during decoding and encoding information.

During this stage, the destructive energy particles will be stimulated by the vibration waves of the original negative energy particle with the negative environment to move into the yin and yang embryo. That is the ideal condition for detonation if positive energy particles can control negative particles and information from the outside environment. However, positive particles do not have the power to do so in the reaction that produces black particles. Therefore, the destructive energy particle becomes death to the yin and yang energy embryo.

Because the goal after interacting with the external environment is to produce black energy particles, it represents the nature of the toxic yin and yang energy embryo and the vibration speed of the original negative particle at a very strong level. That causes people to decode and encode information from the external environment as follows:

- First, that person finds a negative environment that has information similar to the toxic information that is controlling their yin and yang embryo. In this environment, they meet people, knowledge, and methods with similar views on satisfying their interests and accept causing large-scale consequences and killing people, animals, and all things. The emerging toxins of the root negative energy particle bind with the toxins of the negative outside environment, causing the root negative energy particle and the entire system of yin energy particles in that person's soul to vibrate very strongly. That causes many particles of destructive energy to pick up the signal, moving towards the person to discharge their excess heat. As the destructive energy particles move into the soul structure, the negative energy particle clusters lose control and become corrupted as the destructive particles transfer excess heat. As a result, the soul becomes incapable of circulating information waves throughout the entire particle structure. That causes the person's soul to gradually lose the ability to perceive and distinguish the information value of the external environment. As a result of the interaction in this negative environment, the desire to produce black energy particles becomes more intense. Besides, the first vibrational wave code segment is formed at the negative pole with the crystallization of toxins inside the original negative particle of the soul with the toxic information values of the negative external environment.

- Next, that person interacts in a positive environment, where people, methods, and knowledge characterize sustainable development and the true nature of all things. These positive information values are transmitted to that person. Still, they are denied because the negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo is dominant and does not receive positive information. Interacting in a positive environment has caused that person's yin and yang energy embryo to receive positive information values even though that person constantly refutes and does not want to accept. That creates a conflict between the original negative particle's toxic information and the outside environment's positive information. That reaction process creates a vibrating wave code at the positive pole in the intellectual wave code. Because the yin and yang energy embryo is being dominated by the toxins of the original yin energy particle, those positive information values are still dominated and have no power even though they are encoded into the vibration code rhythm of the strand of intellectual wave code in the original negative particle.

- The person's interaction process between two positive and negative environments occurs continuously over time. That makes decoding and encoding information of the yin and yang energy embryo fierce and stressful. Vibration wave code rhythms contain negative information values of the external environment due to binding with the toxins of the original yin particles formed. In addition, vibrational wave codes containing positive information values of the external environment continue to be formed. Still, they are blocked and controlled by the toxins of the original negative energy particle.

Completing the process of decoding and encoding information from the outside environment causes the black negative energy particle to be simulated to produce additional vibration code from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code of the original negative energy particle. This vibrating wave code segment encodes all the toxic information values of the external environment in the vibrating wave code beats at the cathode, and it encodes part of the positive information values in the vibrating wave code beats at the positive pole. However, all vibratory wave code beats demonstrate the toxic nature of the original negative energy particle. Do you know why? Because only the original negative energy particle reacts to encode toxic information about the external environment, while the original positive energy particle does not have enough strength to evaluate the information value of the external environment and control the negative energy particle. Therefore, only the original negative energy particle participates in the production reaction in the production process of black energy particles. In the mind dharma lesson, you have also learned that the information values are encoded in the intellectual wave codes that create the dharma refute dharma, and the dharma unites dharma. In this case, the vibrations at the negative pole are the dharma that unifies dharma, and the vibrations at the positive pole are the dharma that refutes dharma. The toxins and false information of the original negative energy particle oppose the external environment's positive information to form vibrating wave code rhythms at the positive pole. The toxins and false information of the original negative energy particle combine with the toxins and false information of the external environment to form vibrating wave code rhythms at the negative pole.

In addition to the original negative energy particle simulating the new vibration code for the black negative particle production process, the destructive energy particles attack the soul structure in large numbers. That causes the information waves in that soul not to circulate to create heat that detonates destructive energy, and that person's soul becomes out of control. They cannot perceive negative and positive information values of themselves and the external environment. They only exist in the desire to satisfy the goal that they have generated from the very first stage.

You must understand that, when the toxins of the tuelinh and soul erupt to practice the mechanism of producing black energy particles, they do not believe and always reject the positive information values from the outside environment, whether it is enlightened knowledge. Besides, they find they do not have enough strength to practice producing blood-red energy particles even though they receive information from people with ignorant wisdom in spreading false wisdom. Therefore, they only set the goal of producing black energy particles. Only by experiencing the suffering of the consequences they create can they understand truth, their nature, and the informational values of the external environment.

At the end of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, the reaction process of producing black energy particles switches to the stage of creating the ideology of ignorance in the production of black energy particles.

However, for those who have learned enlightened knowledge from the two truths and the smallest energy particle, there is an understanding of the reactions that produce black energy particles within them. Therefore, even if they have acquired the ideology that produces black energy particles, as long as they remember the enlightened knowledge and do not transform it into action, no negative energy particles will be produced. Of course, that is the case of learning and understanding enlightened knowledge and having help from enlightened people in the outside environment. Therefore, the purpose of me giving these lectures to you is not for you to produce negative energy particles but to help you understand and eliminate the process of producing negative energy particles if you are creating those reactions.

Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce black energy particles:

That stage produces the ideology of ignorance for producing black energy particles.

This stage of creating ideology is the inheritance of all the results of decoding and encoding information in the previous stage. To generate the ideology for producing black energy particles, the potent toxins and toxic information of the original negative particle have dominated and controlled the original positive energy particle. Therefore, the harmful information of the negative energy particle is easily linked with the damaging information with destructive properties of the external environment to encode into a vibrating wave code. That means that the yin and yang energy embryo of the soul inside the human being does not have the power of the yang particle to decode the truth of information values in the external environment, so the original yin energy particle decodes wrong and encodes them into its intellectual wave code strand to form the ideology at point (2) in the intellectual wave code strand.

The ideology created at this stage results from ideological struggle, also known as the result of people's thinking process. It is a thought to refute the positive information values of people, methods, and knowledge that are characterized by sustainable development, spread the values of sustainable development, and unite to spread sustainable development values. Besides that, there are thoughts to accept the satisfaction of one's benefits and to accept large-scale destruction and killing of people, animals, and all things.

Indeed, developing an ideology that satisfied their interests was a fierce and painful struggle. That shows that when the tuelinhs and souls dwell in a simple body and are unsatisfied by an environment of nothing but extreme suffering and pressure, they release toxins and produce reactions to generate black energy particles based on their nature and the environment with which they interact.

When the black energy particle production ideology is created, the simulation process to make the black energy particle's intellectual wave code fibre of the root negative energy particle's intelligent wave code fibre has reached creating point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre. When a point (2) is created, it begins the action phase in the following stage. Besides, it also shows the person's failure to recognize and eliminate toxins and ignorance of the truth of themselves and others, of all things in and out of the universe.

Phase 4: Action phase to produce black energy particles:

That is the stage of inheriting the functions and tasks specified in point (2) in the ideology, which is to act to satisfy personal benefits and accept causing harm on a large scale. There is killing of all people, animals, and all things. In addition, during this phase, the destructive toxic information values from the outside environment continue to be absorbed by the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle bonded and encoded to form the intelligence thread of the simulation that produced the black energy particles. That means that negative information values are increased and absorbed from the external environment along with the inheritance of all negative information values decoded and encoded in previous stages.

The action phase can occur as a single action interacting with people, animals, and things, or it can be a series of actions to end the black negative energy particle production phase.

After obtaining the ideology for the production of black negative energy particles along with being dominated by the destructive energy particles residing in the soul's structure to discharge excess heat, the production process of black energy particle generation occurs as follows:

- As people perform actions that produce black energy particles, they continue to see and interact with negative people, methods, and knowledge. That causes their yin and yang energy embryo to link and encode that toxic information into the intelligence fibre being simulated in the original yin energy particle. The process of toxic binding between these two environments causes negative energy particles in that person's soul to vibrate very strongly. It causes many destructive energy particles to move to discharge excess heat. As a result, the soul and person lose their cognitive ability and become determined to produce black energy particles.

- However, they will also meet and interact with positive people, knowledge, and methods to help them and prevent them from practising the production of black energy particles. Even though actively discouraged by the environment, they still commit actions that harm people, animals, and things to satisfy their interests.

During this action phase, the negative environment and excess heat of destructive energy are discharged into the soul, causing the person to disobey and not believe in prevention and help from positive people. It shows the victory of toxins in the original negative energy particle and toxins of the external environment. At the same time, it also demonstrates the inability of the good elements in the root positive energy particle when it does not have the power to control the poison of the root negative particle.

The result of this phase is a very strong electric wave-carrying intellectual wave code thread that is copied and produced from the original negative particle's intellectual wave code thread after it completes the simulation process at point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre. The newly produced intellectual wave code strand is stored next to the original yin particle's original intellectual wave code strand.

Remember, at the end of stage 4 in the reaction chain that produces black energy particles, there is a lot of negative heat in the original negative energy particle. That negative heat results from the reaction process of decoding and encoding toxic information from the outside environment with the original negative energy particle when the original positive energy particle does not have the power to control and eliminate the toxins. Therefore, negative heat is ideal for the newly produced negative intellectual wave code to form causal energy particles.

Stage 5: The stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carries very strong electric waves that produce black causal energy particles:

This phase occurs immediately after the end of the action or series of actions that produced black energy particles in the previous phase.

That is the stage where the intellectual wave code fibre carrying very strong negative electric waves is born after finishing the action of producing black energy particles, and it will copy into many intellectual wave code fibres similar to it. Remember that the newly created negative intelligence wave code strand has very strong electric waves stored next to the original negative intelligence wave code strand, and the copied wisdom wave code strands will move to the extreme containing the negative energy particles of the mature energy embryo. Then, they transform into the smallest harmful energy particles with a black energy state inside. At that time, several of the smallest particles will join to form aggregate harmful energy particles and move outside the mature energy embryo structure to rotate around positive energy particles with the same internal group information. That creates a cluster of harmful energy particles in the composite energy particle structure of the tuelinh. In addition, some particles will be shot to the outside environment, where the person creates actions that produce those black energy particles. People who suffer damage from actions that produce harmful energy particles will absorb those negative energy particles. When those harmful particles move to those people, they will be transformed into information and negative heat after they move into their souls. Besides, the smallest particle of negative energy will be recovered to the processing centre and operating the cause and effect tree of all tuelinhs and souls on the central planet.

Thus, at the end of the chain reaction that produces black energy particles, those toxic energy particles have become causal energy particles and exist in three regions. It consists of the tuelinh structure (a wisdom wave code strand carrying negative electric waves is stored next to the wisdom wave code strand carrying the original negative electric wave of the yin particle in the yin and yang embryo, and a composite energy particle in the tuelinh structure), one particle is stored in the centre that operates the causal tree in the central planet. One to many particles are transmitted to affected people.

In addition, the action process produces black energy particles that create a negative external environment that causes others to learn and follow. That is similar to that person having received toxic information values from the outside environment.

Have you noticed anything through the chain reaction that produces black energy particles? It is the information circulation mechanism in the rotation mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo and the mechanism for creating and connecting the smallest energy particles by the information reaction process between the internal and external environment. They form a path of transformation, decay and destruction when only harmful energy particles with very strong electric waves are produced while positive and neutral energy particles are not. That causes the synthetic energy particle structure in the tuelinh to have many harmful energy particles in each particle cluster.

So, it is a chain reaction that produces black energy particles. That is ignorant wisdom in action.

I will analyse a specific situation to help you quickly identify and prevent your production of black energy particles.

For example, in the case of black energy particle production from pig slaughter:

After a young man has accumulated a sum of money, he wants to sell a specific product to have a good source of income. After researching and understanding business and production models, he realised he did not have the qualifications and expertise to build a business model to produce or sell certain products. Besides, he also saw people doing successful business from selling and slaughtering animals without any professional qualifications or degrees. Therefore, he researched and learned from them, then opened a pig slaughterhouse to distribute meat to pork shops and small supermarkets. After many years of doing pig slaughtering business, he had a huge source of income, and his family became wealthy. However, the chain reaction during the pig slaughter process caused his inner soul to produce many black energy particles, producing a black particle for each pig slaughtered.

Now, let's analyse this case of black energy particle production.

Phase 1: interaction phase to generate the desire to produce black energy particles:

- That man noticed that many people have rich lives because they have a production or business model.

- After many years of accumulating a sum of money, that man realised that he needed a job, business, or production to have a good source of income for his family and himself.

- He sees some people own businesses or factories. However, he realised it takes expertise and many factors to do what they do.

- He realised that many people do not need professional qualifications or degrees but still succeed in business, such as slaughtering or distributing animal meat to supermarkets or restaurants.

- After interacting and realising that I am suitable for the business of slaughtering animals and distributing their meat to supermarkets and butcher shops. He decided to study and start a pig slaughtering business. After he decided to learn to be a butcher, in the original negative energy particle of the energy embryo in his soul, the score (1) was simulated for producing the black negative energy particle. That also shows that the toxicity of the negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo has broken out very strongly; it dominates and controls the original positive energy particle when deciding to learn the profession of slaughtering for business.

Phase 2: stage of decoding and encoding information for the production of black energy particles:

- As he watched people get rich from the slaughtering profession, he became more interested and believed that he would also succeed. In addition, while learning the slaughtering profession, he acquired the skills to practice slaughtering. That shows that the toxins in the original negative energy particle of his soul have linked with the negative information and toxins of the external slaughter environment to form toxic information values, and they encoded at the cathode in the vibrational wave code rhythm segment is being simulated in the intellectual wave code strand in the original negative energy particle. This process caused the negative energy particle system and the original negative energy particle in his soul to vibrate very strongly, and many destructive energy particles picked up the signal. Then, the destructive energy particles moved to his soul to discharge the excess heat.

- The process he saw of people succeeding from jobs that benefit animals and other jobs made him think he could only be successful with the slaughter business. In addition, he saw that people in the animal slaughter business did not have a happy life later on when their families had many problems, such as the husband and wife divorcing, the husband or wife dying in an accident, and people even electrocuted to death while slaughtering animals. However, he did not believe that it was the result of killing animals, so he denied that information. He still thinks he will become wealthy and his family will be happy from pig slaughtering. The positive information values from the outside environment have been encoded into the vibration code rhythm at the anode, even though he denies and does not believe them. However, the toxic nature of the negative energy particle governs and controls all of those information values.

- The interaction process between the two negative and positive environments, and the process of reacting to the toxic information of the negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo, has caused the intellectual wave code fibre in the original negative energy particle to be completely simulated into a vibrating wave code segment including beats at the cathode and beats at the anode. As a result, the vibrating wave code rhythm from point (1) to point (2) in the original negative intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle has been simulated, and it contains a very strong toxic essence. Besides, the destructive energy dominates and makes him incapable of perceiving good or harmful values. That led to him introducing harmful ideology quickly after.

Stage 3: ideological formation stage for the production of black energy particles:

- After learning to operate and implement the pig slaughter model, he started slaughtering and distributing pork to stores and supermarkets. That shows that he has acquired the black energy particle production ideology of pig slaughter. It is a harmful ideology that kills many pigs to satisfy his interest in getting rich.

- After the ideology that produced the black negative energy particle was created, point (2) in the original intellectual wave code strand of the original negative energy particle was simulated. When the black negative energy particle production ideology was created, the functions and tasks for the actions in the production of that negative energy particle were established. That leads to subsequent actions that cannot be prevented.

Stage 4: the practice stage of producing black energy particles in the act of slaughtering pigs:

- He finished building the pig slaughter model, and the pigs were slaughtered. This process helped him quickly profit from slaughtering pigs and distributing their meat. When he finished killing the first pig, the intellectual fibre had already been simulated, and it had become a negative intellectual wave code fibre with very strong electric waves. The next time the pigs are killed, the intellectual wave code fibres carrying the negative electric waves are thus born from the original negative particle's original intellectual wave code fibres.

- During the pig slaughtering phase, he always denied positive information for not killing because he thought it was negative information for him.

- Also, during the slaughter of these pigs, many destructive energy particles caught the signal and moved into his soul structure. They dominate and cause him to lose control of his perception of good and evil values. It causes him to produce many toxic energy particles that he cannot perceive.

Stage 5: The stage of the negative intellectual wave code fibre carries very strong electric waves that produce black causal energy particles:

- Many negative intellectual wave code strands of the pig slaughtering act are produced and stored next to the original negative intellectual wave code strand of the original yin energy particle.

- From the intellectual wave code fibres produced by slaughtering pigs, they copy into many intellectual wave code fibres to the yin pole of the mature yin and yang energy embryo to transform into the smallest energy particles. Then, those particles bond together to form synthetic harmful energy particles and move to aggregate positive particle clusters related to startup and business content. It causes aggregate energy particle clusters with startup and business content to have multiple harmful energy particles.

- The smallest black energy particles are collected in the processing centre of the cause and effect tree of the tuelinhs and souls on the central planet.

- Black energy particles bombarded those who participated and interacted with him during the pig slaughter process.

Thus, the chain of reactions that produces black energy particles of that man with the content of slaughtering pigs only ends when he stops doing that business or ends his human life. After he killed the first pig in his business, the original negative intellectual wave code thread completed the simulation and produced the first black causal energy particles. The next time the pigs are killed, the original negative intellectual wave code fibre in the original yin energy particle will give birth to new negative intellectual wave code fibres. They are further encoded with slaughter images, sounds and languages of the people, the pig's squeal, and his emotions into those strands of intellectual wave code. They then continue to transform into causal energy particles."

A student immediately said, "Teacher, those acts of slaughter are truly terrifying. Suppose you do not explain and analyze the example of the reaction process that produces the black negative energy particle. In that case, we will not see the danger of structural decomposition in the tuelinh."

The Teacher said, "The cause and effect for those who practice slaughtering is that they will have to experience many lives in the form of pigs. If, in this life, he slaughters 100 pigs, he will have to experience 100 lifetimes of staying in the form of pigs to experience the suffering of being killed. That experience happened very quickly. Then, he will experience many lifetimes with many different types of illnesses. After those experiences, his soul will become aware of his toxins and become a good person to practice producing positive energy particles.

Don't think that him having to reincarnate in the body of a pig is a punishment for him. It's not a punishment; it's a help for him to recognize his toxicity. If he reincarnates as a human after that human life as a slaughterer, he will inherit the toxicity and experience of slaughtering to continue slaughtering on a larger scale. Then his soul will decay very quickly, and the chance of survival for that soul is zero."

Chapter Seventy-Seven

Reaction Produces Energy Particles of Ignorance in Spreading False Knowledge

"In today's lecture, we continue to explore the reaction that produces energy particles of ignorance in the spread of false knowledge," the Teacher said when the class started. There were still voices of students talking.

After no more talking from the students, the Teacher asked the students, "After going through two lessons about the reaction that produces grey negative energy particles and black negative energy particles, do you see anything special in there?"

The students looked at each other and didn't seem to find anything special in those two lectures to answer the Teacher. After that, a student answered the Teacher, "Teacher, I see that all stages of the energy particle production process are important and special knowledge because it is crystallized from the knowledge that the Teacher taught about the nature and operating mechanism of energy particles. I can't find any other special things, Teacher."

The Teacher replied, "There is one special thing that you need to remember: the attack of destructive energy particles. It would help if you remembered that when people create, nurture, and develop negative thoughts to satisfy their selfish interests, destructive energy particles will attack and release redundant heat into the soul structure. That shows that the toxins of the original negative energy particle manifest and develop and that the information waves in the soul cannot circulate because the destructive energy particles are controlling and dominating the soul's structure. Next, negative actions cause destructive energy particles to attack the soul structure. In addition, the negative environment connected with negative thoughts and actions will cause the negative energy particle system of the tuelinh to vibrate more strongly and more destructive energy particles to attack the soul structure. Those are special things, and they are extremely dangerous if you cannot recognize them and transform them when reactions produce negative energy particles in your soul. You must always remember the stages and situations where destructive energy particles attack so that when you practice producing sustainable energy particles, you will quickly transform the state of thinking in your brain and soul to detonate destructive energy particles."

After sipping hot morning tea, the Teacher continued his lecture, "Do you remember the energy particles that have the wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge? It is a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves. The characteristics of this type of negative energy particle are: it contains the highest amount of toxins among all types of harmful energy particles, has the highest false information value, has a super fast vibration speed, and can absorb negative heat and toxic information from the outside environment is super strong, and the properties of this particle can destroy physical structures at a super strong level.

You also understand the wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge, which is the wisdom of not understanding the truth of yourself, all things, events and phenomena. Therefore, people cling to and stick to the interactive contents of the four forms of Tao to satisfy their interests and spread false knowledge about sustainable development. It harms people, animals, and things on a very large scale, and there is killing in it.

You also know that the wisdom of the tuelinh and soul creates the wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge about sustainable human development. That ignorant wisdom of the tuelinh and soul is created by the structure of the yin and yang energy embryo. It is a type of yin and yang energy embryo made up of a blood-red negative energy particle with super strong electric waves, or a yin and yang energy embryo that transforms the original yin energy particle at the level of super strong electric waves. People with the tuelinh or soul inside possessing a yin-yang energy embryo with blood-red yin energy particles will always produce blood-red yin energy particles.

In addition, people with the *tuelinh*s or souls have the nature of wisdom, ignorance in ideology and ignorance in actions; they can also produce energy particles with the wisdom of ignorance in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development. Remember, the *tuelinh*s and souls with ignorant wisdom in the ideology have yin and yang energy embryos that are made up of a grey energy particle with strong electric waves, and all kinds of yin and yang energy embryos are in the process of converting original negative energy particle at the level of strong electric waves. The tuelinhs and souls with ignorant wisdom in action are formed from yin and yang energy embryos with the black yin energy particle with very strong electric waves and yin and yang energy embryos that are in the process of transformation of the original negative energy particle at the level of very strong electric waves.

You need to remember that, when participating in the reaction process of producing ignorant energy particles in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development, the tuelinhs and souls have the nature of ignorant wisdom in actions, ignorance in ideology, and ignorance in the spread of false knowledge; they all quickly produce this type of energy particle.

Let's call the ignorant energy particles in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development blood-red energy particles. Please remember this so you understand other types of harmful energy particles. In addition, you must also not forget that blood-red energy particles have the most potent toxins, negative waves, false information, and destructive properties among harmful energy particles.

Next, you need to remember that the reaction process that produces blood-red energy particles involves four environmental groups, specifically:

- The internal environment group is the yin and yang energy embryo of the person who produces the blood-red yin energy particle. Those are the information values of the original positive energy particle and the information values of the original negative energy particle. It is the information reaction between the original positive and negative energy particles.

- The external positive environment group is positive people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains positive information values and promotes the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and all things in and outside the universe. These are informational values with characteristics of sustainable development, informational values that spread sustainable development values, solidarity values to spread sustainable development values together, and the knowledge of complete enlightenment.

- The negative external environment group is negative people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains negative information values and destroys the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and everything in and out of the universe. These are informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in ideology, informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in action, and informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in the diffusion of false knowledge.

- Groups of destructive energy particles in the external environment. That is a group of energy particles with two values for all things in the universe. One is to cause decay and destruction, and the other creates sustainable development for intelligence and all life forms in the universe.

It would help if you remembered that the practice environment in the human world built by the first tuelinh ensures the entire interaction of all four environmental groups to support the tuelinhs and souls practice their ability to detonate destructive energy in the process of decoding the secrets of oneself, all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, in any reactions that produce energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world, each person must interact and react with three types of external environment.

You have already learned about the conference to unify the practice path of the Tuelinh Council before they transformed into humans. That is the image of small poisonous snakes hiding in a plate of white food powder, a big poisonous snake slithering into the bush, and a small toxic snake slithering into the bush afterwards. Then came the words of the first tuelinh, "To save all tuelinhs, I must use toxin to remove the toxin in them." In these lectures, you will have discovered the meaning of the reactions that produce energy particles. That is the method of using toxin to stimulate toxin, then finding a mechanism to create sustainable energy particles. Toxins are present in the negative energy particles of the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh and soul, in each person and all things, and in the destructive energy particles. Good elements exist in the positive particles of every tuelinh, soul, person, and everything. The process of interaction between the internal environment of the yin and yang energy embryo with the three external environments creates a reaction that uses toxins to detoxify and finds a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles.

The reaction process that produces blood-red energy particles includes five stages:

- Stage 1: The generation stage wishes to produce blood-red energy particles.

- Stage 2: Decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce blood-red energy particles.

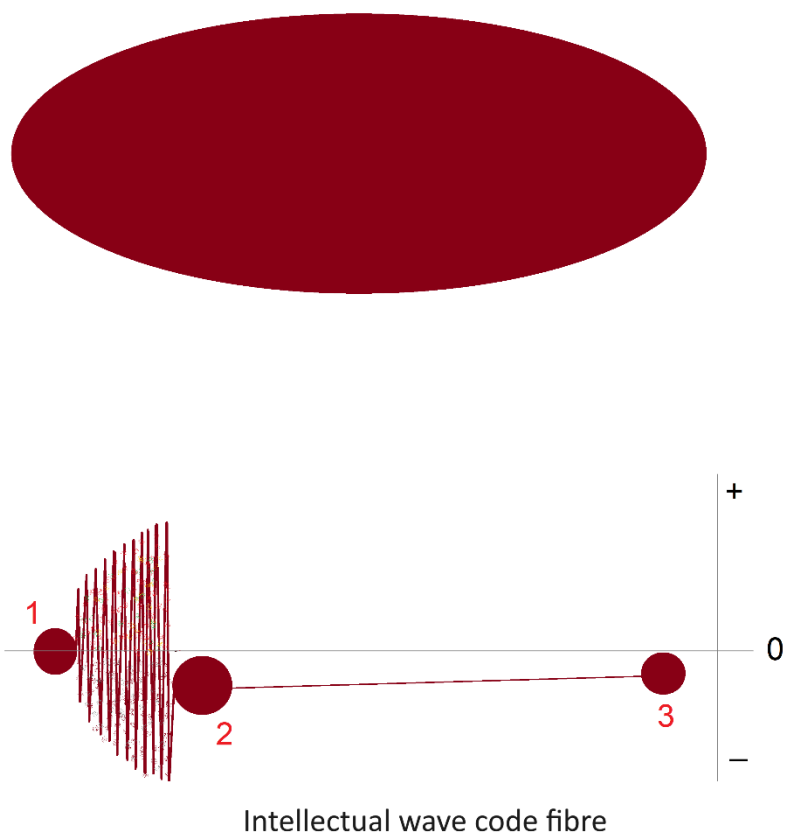

- Phase 4: Action phase to produce blood-red energy particles.

- Stage 5: The intellectual wave code fibre stage has super strong electric waves that produce blood-red causal energy particles.

And now, let's explore the evolution of the reaction process that produces blood-red energy particles.

Please look at the blood-red negative energy particle and the wisdom wave code thread with its three-point and two-segment structure.

The blood-red negative energy particle

Stage 1: The stage of generating the desire to produce blood-red negative energy particles:

That is when people interact with the external environment until the desire to produce blood-red energy particles arises.

You also know why the tuelinh life form has to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world. They have difficulty maturing because they cannot detonate destructive energy to produce sustainable energy particles. They do not have magical powers like the first tuelinh. The destruction of baby tuelinhs, and the destruction of life forms in the universe is the reason why the first tuelinh had to create a practice environment for the tuelinh life forms to help them practice detonate destructive energy through an environment of nothing but suffering on earth.

The first tuelinh made it impossible for them to use their ability to manipulate energy, like on the central planet, to help them create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles when they incarnate as humans. That means their desires will not be satisfied when they live in the human world. It would help if you remembered this to understand why the chain reaction that produces particles occurs. What they want will not be achieved, which is the opposite of life on the central planet. When they like to have something, they can transform it and enjoy that joy. However, in the human world, they cannot fly, transform, or transform into things when they need them. That is wanting but not being satisfied. From wanting but not being satisfied, combined with the fact that they have to stay in a simple material body, they become trapped, vicious and suffer in their body because of the things they want but cannot have or transform into. Therefore, they begin to enter the chain of reactions that produce energy particles in all the interactions of the four forms of Tao in the human world.

How does the beginning of the journey produce blood-red energy particles occur? It is initiated by the generation stage of the desire to produce blood-red energy particles. It would help if you remembered that humans do not wish to produce blood-red energy particles because they do not know about those energy particles and their toxins. You must understand that the actions of spreading false knowledge about sustainable development to satisfy your interests are actions that cause consequences on a vast scale, including killing people, animals, and all things; they will form into blood-red energy particles. Therefore, when I say that people want to produce blood-red energy particles, you must understand that people want to satisfy their interests and spread false knowledge about sustainable development.

The journey of generating one's desire to produce blood-red energy particles goes as follows:

- First, the person must interact in their living and working environment, or they have access to information from a specific environment, even if by chance. Accessing that information causes them to compare themselves and the subjects of the environment with which they interact.

- Next, the person realizes they are different from the subjects they have interacted with. They may see that this religion has more followers than that religion. This religion has more good things than other religions. Religion is better than this belief. This knowledge brings more fame than that knowledge. Our country is poor while another country is rich. Our government has no natural resources, while another country has many natural resources. Others are rich while they are inadequate. Others have status while they do not. Someone else has a lover while they don't have one. Someone else has a house while they don't have one. Someone else has children while they don't have any. Someone else is happy while they are not happy. Someone else has many talents and assets while they don't have them. Others are healthy while they are sick. Others have a life of enjoyment while they struggle. Others are respected, while others are not. Others have businesses while they are without. Some are famous, while others are not. Other people's children are happy while their children are not, and other forms of the four forms of Tao.

- That comparison and recognition will take place over a short period of time or over a long time.

- The person's comparison and recognition process occurs in positive and negative environments. That is, they will see that there is knowledge that helps people build moral values, and there is knowledge that makes people live without morality. Some religions are very strict, and some religions are not strict. There are extreme nationalisms and knowledge that unite peoples. Some countries are rich because they invade and create wars, and others are rich because they get many talents for the country. Some people get rich from trying to study and work honestly, and some people get rich through acts of profiteering or harming others. Some people have status that comes from talent and morality, and people who gain status from using money or connections to get.

After interacting in different environments, they become eager to produce blood-red energy particles from things they have and do not have, or love and hate, or have intelligence and no intelligence, or to beg and not to beg, or to act and not to act. Ultimately, they realized they could achieve their desires and satisfy their benefits by accepting the spread of false knowledge about sustainable development to cause significant harm to everyone, animals, and all things.

Generating the purpose of satisfying one's benefits and accepting to cause harm to people, animals, and things on a vast scale is that person's goal after interacting with different environments. It is the fact that that person has given rise to the purpose of producing blood-red energy particles.

When the goal arises to produce blood-red energy particles, it shows that the original negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo of the soul inside that person has super strong electric waves and toxins, and the original positive energy particle does not have the power to control the original negative energy particle. That means that a person's intelligence is at a level of ignorance in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development. It is an ideology that satisfies their interests and accepts the spread of false knowledge about sustainable development to harm people, animals, and everything on a large scale.

When the desire to produce blood-red energy particles arose, the intellectual wave code strand of the original negative energy particle synthesized its toxins with the toxins of information from the outside environment. That toxic information caused the original negative intellectual wave code strand to simulate point (1) in the intelligent wave code strand.

Stage 2: The stage of decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo:

That is the stage of decoding and encoding information from the external environment after the desire to produce blood-red energy particles arises. This stage will create vibrational wave code rhythms from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code thread of the blood-red negative energy particle.

Remember, at this stage, it has already shown the yin and yang embryonic nature of the soul within the human being. They have a yin and yang energy embryo, with the original yin energy particle being a blood-red, grey, or black yin particle. Because of that, the poison of that original negative energy particle has the power to dominate the positive energy particle, and it will quickly absorb toxic information without accepting good information from the outside environment while decoding and encoding information.

During this stage, the destructive energy particles will be stimulated by the vibration waves of the original negative energy particles with the negative environment to move into the yin and yang embryo and the soul. That is the ideal condition to detonate them if positive energy particles can control harmful particles and information from the outside environment. However, in the reaction that produces blood-red particles, the root-positive particle does not have the power to do that. Therefore, the destruction of the energy particle becomes death for the yin and yang energy embryo and the tuelinh.

Because the goal after interacting with the external environment is to produce blood-red energy particles, it represents the nature of the toxic yin and yang energy embryo and the vibration speed of the original negative energy particle at a super strong level. That causes people to decode and encode information from the external environment as follows:

- First, that person finds a negative environment that has information similar to the toxic information that is controlling their yin and yang embryo. In this environment, they meet people, knowledge, and methods with similar views on satisfying their interests and accept causing very large-scale consequences and killing people, animals, and all things. The emerging toxins of the root negative energy particle bind with the toxins of the negative outside environment, causing the root negative energy particle and the entire system of yin energy particles in that person's soul to vibrate super strongly. That causes many particles of destructive energy to pick up the signal, moving towards the person to discharge their excess heat. As the destructive energy particles move into the soul structure, the negative energy particle clusters lose control and become corrupted as the destructive particles transfer excess heat. As a result, the soul becomes incapable of circulating information waves throughout the entire particle structure. That causes the person's soul to gradually lose the ability to perceive and distinguish the information value of the external environment. As a result of the interaction in this negative environment, the desire to produce blood-red energy particles becomes more intense. Besides, the first vibrational wave code segment is formed at the negative pole with the crystallization of toxins inside the original negative particle of the soul with the toxic information values of the negative external environment.

- Next, that person interacts in a positive environment, where people, methods, and knowledge characterize sustainable development and the true nature of all things. These positive information values are transmitted to that person. Still, they are denied because the negative energy particle in the yin and yang embryo is dominant and does not receive positive information. Interacting in a positive environment has caused that person's yin and yang energy embryo to receive positive information values even though that person constantly refutes and does not want to accept. That creates a conflict between the original negative particle's toxic information and the outside environment's positive information. That reaction process creates a vibrating wave code at the positive pole in the intellectual wave code. Because the yin and yang energy embryo is being dominated by the toxins of the original yin energy particle, those positive information values are still dominated and have no power even though they are encoded into the vibration code rhythm of the strand of intellectual wave code in the original negative particle.

- The person's interaction process between two positive and negative environments occurs continuously over time. That makes decoding and encoding information of the yin and yang energy embryo fierce and stressful. Vibration wave code rhythms contain negative information values of the external environment due to binding with the toxins of the original yin particles formed. In addition, vibrational wave codes containing positive information values of the external environment continue to be formed. Still, they are blocked and controlled by the toxins of the original negative energy particle.

Completing the process of decoding and encoding information from the outside environment causes the blood-red negative energy particle to be simulated to produce additional vibration code from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code of the original negative energy particle. This vibrating wave code segment encodes all the toxic information values of the external environment in the vibrating wave code beats at the cathode, and it encodes part of the positive information values in the vibrating wave code beats at the positive pole. However, all vibratory wave code beats demonstrate the toxic nature of the original negative energy particle. Do you know why? Because only the original negative energy particle reacts to encode toxic information about the external environment, while the original positive energy particle does not have enough strength to evaluate the information value of the external environment and control the negative energy particle. Therefore, only the original negative energy particle participates in the production reaction in the production process of blood-red energy particles. In the mind dharma lesson, you have also learned that the information values are encoded in the intellectual wave codes that create the dharma refute dharma, and the dharma unites dharma. In this case, the vibrations at the negative pole are the dharma that unifies dharma, and the vibrations at the positive pole are the dharma that refutes dharma. The toxins and false information of the original negative energy particle oppose the external environment's positive information to form vibrating wave code rhythms at the positive pole. The toxins and false information of the original negative energy particle combine with the toxins and false information of the external environment to form vibrating wave code rhythms at the negative pole.

In addition to the original negative energy particle simulating the new vibration code for the black negative particle production process, the destructive energy particles attack the soul structure in vast numbers. That causes the information waves in that soul not to circulate to create heat that detonates destructive energy, and that person's soul becomes out of control. They cannot perceive negative and positive information values of themselves and the external environment. They only exist in the desire to satisfy the goal that they have generated from the very first stage.

You must understand that, when the toxins of the tuelinh and soul erupt to practice the mechanism of producing blood-red energy particles, they do not believe and always reject the positive information values from the outside environment, whether it is enlightened knowledge. Therefore, they only set the goal of producing blood-red energy particles. Only by experiencing the suffering of the consequences they create can they understand truth, their nature, and the informational values of the external environment.

At the end of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, the reaction process of producing blood-red energy particles switches to the stage of creating the ideology of ignorance in the production of blood-red energy particles.

However, for those who have learned enlightened knowledge from the two truths and the smallest energy particle, there is an understanding of the reactions that produce black energy particles within them. Therefore, even if they have acquired the ideology that produces blood-red energy particles, as long as they remember the enlightened knowledge and do not transform it into action, no negative energy particles will be produced. Of course, that is the case of learning and understanding enlightened knowledge and having help from enlightened people in the outside environment. Therefore, the purpose of me giving these lectures to you is not for you to produce negative energy particles but to help you understand and eliminate the process of producing negative energy particles if you are creating those reactions.

Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce blood-red energy particles:

That stage produces the ideology of ignorance for producing blood-red energy particles.

This stage of creating ideology is the inheritance of all the results of decoding and encoding information in the previous stage. The super potent toxins and toxic information of the original negative particle have dominated and controlled the original positive energy particle to generate the ideology for producing blood-red energy particles. Therefore, the harmful information of the negative energy particle is easily linked with the damaging information with destructive properties of the external environment to encode into a vibrating wave code. That means that the yin and yang energy embryo of the soul inside the human being does not have the power of the yang particle to decode the truth of information values in the external environment, so the original yin energy particle decodes wrong and encodes them into its intellectual wave code strand to form the ideology at point (2) in the intellectual wave code strand.

The ideology created at this stage results from ideological struggle, also known as the result of people's thinking process. It is a thought to refute the positive information values of people, methods, and knowledge that are characterized by sustainable development, spread the values of sustainable development, and unite to spread sustainable development values. Besides that, there are thoughts to accept the satisfaction of one's benefits and to accept very large-scale destruction and killing of people, animals, and all things.

Indeed, developing an ideology that satisfied their interests was a fierce and painful struggle. That shows that when the tuelinhs and souls dwell in a simple body and are unsatisfied by nothing but extreme suffering and pressure, they release toxins and produce reactions to generate blood-red energy particles based on their nature and the environment with which they interact.

When the blood-red energy particle production ideology is created, the simulation process to make the blood-red energy particle's intellectual wave code fibre of the root negative energy particle's intelligent wave code fibre has reached creating point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre. When a point (2) is created, it begins the action phase in the following stage. Besides, it also shows the person's failure to recognize and eliminate toxins and ignorance of the truth of themselves and others, of all things in and out of the universe.

Phase 4: Action phase to produce blood-red energy particles:

That is the stage of inheriting the functions and tasks specified in point (2) in the ideology, which is to act to satisfy personal benefits and accept causing harm on a vast scale. There is the killing of all people, animals, and all things from spreading false knowledge about the sustainable development of humanity. In addition, during this phase, the destructive toxic information values from the outside environment continue to be absorbed by the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle bonded and encoded to form the intelligence thread of the simulation that produced the blood-red energy particles. That means that negative information values are increased and absorbed from the external environment along with the inheritance of all negative information values decoded and encoded in previous stages.

The action phase can occur as a single action interacting with people, animals, and things, or it can be a series of actions to end the blood-red negative energy particle production phase.

After obtaining the ideology for the production of blood-red energy particles along with being dominated by the destructive energy particles residing in the soul's structure to discharge excess heat, the production process of blood-red energy particle generation occurs as follows:

- As people perform actions that produce blood-red energy particles, they continue to see and interact with negative people, methods, and knowledge. That causes their yin and yang energy embryo to link and encode that toxic information into the intelligence fibre being simulated in the original yin energy particle. The process of toxic binding between these two environments causes negative energy particles in that person's soul to vibrate super strongly. It causes many destructive energy particles to move to discharge excess heat. As a result, the soul and person lose their cognitive ability and become determined to produce blood-red energy particles.

- However, they will also meet and interact with positive people, knowledge, and methods to help them and prevent them from practising the production of blood-red energy particles. Even though actively discouraged by the environment, they still commit actions that spread false knowledge about sustainable development to satisfy their interests.

During this action phase, the negative environment and excess heat of destructive energy are discharged into the soul, causing the person to disobey and not believe in prevention and help from positive people. It shows the victory of toxins in the original negative energy particle and toxins of the external environment. At the same time, it also demonstrates the inability of the good elements in the root positive energy particle when it does not have the power to control the poison of the root negative particle.

The result of this phase is a super strong electric wave-carrying intellectual wave code thread that is copied and produced from the original negative particle's intellectual wave code thread after it completes the simulation process at point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre. The newly produced intellectual wave code strand is stored next to the original yin particle's original intellectual wave code strand.

Remember, at the end of stage 4 in the reaction chain that produces blood-red energy particles, there is a lot of negative heat in the original negative energy particle. That negative heat results from the reaction process of decoding and encoding toxic information from the outside environment with the original negative energy particle when the original positive energy particle does not have the power to control and eliminate the toxins. Therefore, negative heat is ideal for the newly produced negative intellectual wave code to form causal energy particles.

Stage 5: The stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carries super strong electric waves that produce blood-red causal energy particles:

This phase occurs immediately after the end of the action or series of actions that produced blood-red energy particles in the previous phase.

That is the stage where the intellectual wave code fibre carrying super strong negative electric waves is born after finishing the action of producing blood-red energy particles, and it will copy into many intellectual wave code fibres similar to it. Remember that the newly created negative intelligence wave code strand has super strong electric waves stored next to the original negative intelligence wave code strand, and the copied wisdom wave code strands will move to the extreme containing the negative energy particles of the mature energy embryo. Then, they transform into the smallest harmful energy particles with a blood-red energy state inside. At that time, several of the smallest particles will join to form aggregate harmful energy particles and move outside the mature energy embryo structure to rotate around positive energy particles with the same internal group information. That creates a cluster of harmful energy particles in the composite energy particle structure of the tuelinh. In addition, some particles will be shot into the outside environment, where the person creates actions that produce those blood-red energy particles. People who suffer damage from actions that produce harmful energy particles will absorb those negative energy particles. When those harmful particles move to those people, they will be transformed into information and negative heat after they move into their souls. Besides, the smallest particle of negative energy will be recovered to the processing centre and operating the cause and effect tree of all tuelinhs and souls on the central planet.

Thus, at the end of the chain reaction that produces blood-red energy particles, those toxic energy particles have become causal energy particles and exist in three regions. It consists of the tuelinh structure (a wisdom wave code strand with super strong negative electric waves stored next to the wisdom wave code strand carrying the original negative electric wave of the yin particle in the yin and yang embryo, and a composite energy particle in the tuelinh structure), one particle is stored in the centre that operates the causal tree in the central planet. One to many particles are transmitted to affected people.

In addition, the action process produces blood-red energy particles that create a negative external environment that causes others to learn and follow. That is similar to that person having received toxic information values from the outside environment.

Have you noticed anything through the chain reaction that produces blood-red energy particles? It is the information circulation mechanism in the rotation mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo and the mechanism for creating and connecting the smallest energy particles by the information reaction process between the internal and external environment. They form a path of transformation, decay and destruction when only harmful energy particles with super strong electric waves are produced while positive and neutral energy particles are not. That causes the synthetic energy particle structure in the tuelinh to have many harmful energy particles in each particle cluster.

Thus, a chain of reactions produces blood-red energy particles, negative energy particles of ignorance in spreading false knowledge about sustainable development.

I will give you a few examples of actions that produce blood-red energy particles from spreading false knowledge about sustainable development to people, animals, and everything for you to understand. However, in those examples, I will not analyze the reaction process that produces blood-red energy particles. I leave that task to you, and you should explore the reaction chain of blood-red energy particles based on the five reaction stages and from the examples I analyzed in the previous two lessons. Remember, at the end of producing blood-red energy particles, that person's yin-yang energy embryo will produce many blood-red energy particles to form synthetic negative energy particles for linking with the structure of the tuelinh.

Example 1: The case of producing blood-red energy particles from the act of spreading superstitious knowledge in religion and belief:

After studying and cultivating various methods in a religion, a young man becomes knowledgeable about worship rituals, meditation, and other methods of practice. However, the knowledge he learned did not help him know the truth about his origin, his practice mission and the process of achieving true enlightenment. Still, he thought he had great wisdom in his religion and deserved a high position and respect from everyone. That was his dream, as he saw it from other practitioners in his religion and different religions. To do that, he asked for support from his connections and used his abilities to lead people into the mystery of supplication rituals. To attract more followers, he created stories about legends and the ability to communicate with the world after people died to entice people to follow him. From then on, he became famous and wealthy. Because he propagated superstitious knowledge such as prayer rituals, and the knowledge he taught did not help people know the truth about the origin, mission and methods to complete the practice mission, it caused people to be immersed in superstition without seeing the path to sustainable transformation. Therefore, the process by which he spread false knowledge and performed rituals caused him to produce countless blood-red yin energy particles. The consequences he caused to people were immense when many people received false information about the practice path and believed in praying and giving everything from Buddha or God. After that, those people continued to spread that knowledge everywhere, and it caused many people to study and practice producing harmful energy particles without knowing the truth about the origin and mission of cultivating the human world. The damage he caused was immense, and it caused the souls and tuelinhs to decay more and more as they produced more negative energy particles.

Example 2: the story about the destruction of the harmony and solidarity of Buddha's sangha:

During Buddha's enlightenment and spreading of enlightened knowledge in the human world, many brothers in his royal family studied and practised spreading his enlightened knowledge among his disciples. Among the disciples who were brothers of the Buddha, there was a disciple named Devadatta, who had always been jealous of the Buddha from childhood until he followed him to practice. This disciple could meditate and have supernatural powers, so he thought he had more wisdom than Buddha. That's why he tried many times to harm Buddha to gain the position of leading Buddha's Sangha but was unsuccessful. He conspired with Brahmanical people and a prince of a country to repeatedly plot to harm him and committed acts of killing a woman when slandering Buddha failed. In addition, many disciples of Buddha died because of those cruel acts.

Because of his hatred for Buddha many lifetimes ago, he could not eliminate the poison in the original negative energy particle. Therefore, hatred makes him unable to perceive who Buddha is and what Buddha's mission is. In his thoughts and ideas, he always believed that he had more wisdom than Buddha and deserved respect, while his disciples only respected Buddha but did not respect him.

After many failed attempts to harm him, he decided to use supernatural powers and other principles of practice with Buddha to attract Buddha's disciples to follow him. He propagated to Buddha's disciples that his training method was superior to Buddha's, in addition to using his supernatural powers and meditation abilities to lure Buddha's students to follow him. Because Buddha understood the toxins of his disciples and the fact that they had to experience tribulation scenarios to help them recognize and eliminate toxins, the Buddha did not prevent his disciples from leaving him to follow Devadatta.

After that, many disciples of Buddha left Buddha to follow Devadatta. However, after years of following Devadatta to study, those people had no achievements. At the same time, Buddha's disciples, whom Buddha taught actual enlightened knowledge, became enlightened beings and are teaching knowledge everywhere. That made many disciples who had left Buddha realize the truth and return to Buddha. Of course, Buddha welcomed them back when they realized their mistakes and toxins.

Devadatta's destruction of the harmony and unity of Buddha's sangha caused his soul to produce countless blood-red energy particles. In addition, no one believes in him anymore, and he has to live alone and suffer because of the negative karma he created. In the end, he died without having the chance to repent before Buddha for the sins he had committed.

Please remember that spreading false knowledge about sustainable development, especially about the origin, practice mission, and methods to complete the practice mission of the tuelinhs and souls, will cause those people to produce countless blood-red energy particles. In addition, destroying the harmony of the sangha and spreading enlightened wisdom like the Buddha's time will cause those people to make numerous blood-red energy particles. Please remember that carefully, so you don't practice it because that is a super strong and hazardous level of decomposed transmutation."

A student immediately asked the Teacher, "Teacher, in the case of my friends who are practising under their teachers in religions, and I see them practising superstitious rituals. Especially in their teaching knowledge, they misrepresent the origin, mission, and method of enlightenment. So, should I advise my friends to leave their Teacher? I'm confused about that after listening to your lecture. I hope you can guide me and everyone else about my confusion."

The Teacher said, "Suffering is the nature of the practice environment in the human world so that the tuelinhs and souls can understand themselves, everyone and everything in and outside the universe. The interactive scenarios in the four forms of the Tao are to help them achieve that understanding. Your understanding of enlightened knowledge is a wonderful thing for you. However, it would help if you did not force yourself to help your friends and others realize the truth about every issue. You need to share with your friends and everyone about the origin, mission and method of attaining the unified Tao of the universe, especially about the mechanism of producing energy particles. From there, let everything happen naturally after everyone has heard your knowledge. That means you don't have to worry or feel like you're destroying the teacher-student relationship of those uniting to spread false knowledge about sustainable development. You must understand that by uniting and spreading false values about development, they are producing the most harmful negative energy particles together, and the path of destruction is happening very quickly for them. Do you understand what you need to do?"

The student replied, "Teacher, I understand what you are saying. I will try to share enlightened knowledge with them. Thank you for guiding me."

Chapter Seventy-Eight

Destructive Energy Detonation Method

Before starting a new lecture, the Teacher looked at the hot teapot on the table and asked the students, "Please tell me how to boil water to make tea?"

A student answered, "If you want to have boiling water to make tea, you have to pour water into an electric kettle and boil it with electricity, or pour water into a pot and boil it with something that can burn, teacher."

The Teacher continued, "Thank you. Thus, if you want to have boiling water, you must boil water; if you're going to boil water, you must have a tool to store water and heat from electricity or fire.

So, please tell me how I can have cups of tea that are both hot and delicious?"

A student replied, "Teacher, you must have a teapot, boiling water, and good tea. Then, pour some tea into the pot and pour boiling water in. Next, pour the water from the teapot you just put in. Then, you pour boiling water in and wait a few minutes for the tea to be delicious. Finally, you pour the tea into a cup and enjoy it. To get delicious tea, it depends on factors such as the teapot's material, the boiling water's temperature, the tea's quality, and the brewing time."

The Teacher said, "That's wonderful, thank you. Is there any way to have boiling water without having to boil it? Is there a way to drink cups of tea without brewing it in a teapot?"

The students answered, "Teacher, the only way is to buy boiling water and tea from the store that sells boiling water and tea. That way, the drinker won't have to boil water and make tea."

The Teacher continued, "So the person selling boiling water still has to boil water to sell, and the person selling tea still has to brew tea to have tea to sell. I mean, you don't need to do anything and still have boiling water when you need it, and you don't need to make tea and still have delicious tea to drink. Does anyone know how to do that?"

A student said, "Teacher, the tuelinhs living on the central planet often use their thoughts to create the things they want and enjoy them through manipulating energy particles to create them. For humans, the only way is to imagine having delicious cups of tea without heating water and brewing tea in a teapot. However, it is imagined enjoying."

The Teacher continued to ask, "Please tell me that to detonate destructive energy particles, does it mean that just thinking about them being detonated will cause them to be detonated?"

A male student replied, "Teacher, if just thinking could detonate the energy of destruction, all tuelinhs would not have to incarnate as humans to practice the reactions that detonate them. I understand that to detonate destructive energy, there must be methods and techniques to do that. That is why the tuelinhs must incarnate as humans to learn and practice that job."

The Teacher said, "That's right. Detonating destructive energies is like if people want to drink delicious cups of tea, they must have tools to boil water, tools to make tea, good quality teas, and tea-making techniques.

If you want to have delicious tea, you must ensure there is enough heat, compression and pressure from the tea brewing tools so that the substances in the tea dissolve into the water. Hot water and a tea kettle are the two best tools to do that.

Therefore, to detonate destructive energy particles, you must ensure enough heat, compression and pressure by the tool to detonate them. They are the human form.

If you want to detonate destructive energy particles, you must have all the tools and elements involved in detonating them. The tools and factors to detonate them are the human body, the soul or the tuelinh, the ideology, and the actions that create human reactions. Do you know? We must learn and practice the detonation technique to magically detonate destructive energy particles and enjoy their heat for sustainable energy particle production in the tuelinh or soul. That is the mission that the tuelinhs must incarnate as humans to learn and practice that technique, but we cannot use their imagination to detonate them.

Hey you! Congratulations on learning half of the technique for detonating destructive energy particles from the negative energy particle production reaction lessons. Half of those techniques have all levels, from simple to super complex. And in today's lesson, you will learn half of the method left for detonating destructive energy particles."

The students heard the Teacher say they had learned half of the technique for detonating destructive energy particles from reactions that produce harmful energy particles, so they were surprised. They looked at each other and asked the Teacher, "Teacher, in the reaction lessons that produce negative energy particles, you have not yet taught about the technique of detonating destructive energy particles. I remember that in those lectures, you said that the original positive energy particles could not control the toxicity of the negative energy particles and toxic information from the outside environment, so they could not detonate destructive energy particles. So, you still haven't taught us about the technique of detonating destructive energy particles."

The Teacher smiled and said, "I have already preached. But you don't realize it. Do you know what to do first to detonate destructive energy particles? That is, there must be destructive energy to detonate them. When people practice reactions that produce negative energy particles, they absorb and take destructive energy particles. Obtaining destructive energy particles is 50% of the process of detonating destructive energy particles. However, the tuelinhs and souls who practice the negative energy particle production mechanism cannot complete 50% of the technique of detonating the remaining destructive energy particles. Therefore, when I analyzed the reactions that produce different negative energy particles, you learned about the technique of absorbing destructive energy particles to different degrees. However, to help you acquire the complete technique of detonating destructive energy particles, I will have a great lecture for you in today's lesson."

The students happily said, "Teacher, each lecture and each amount of knowledge you teach has different values and magical powers. We cannot know if you do not reveal it to us. Just like in the lectures on reactions that produce negative energy particles, you said that you analyze those lectures so that everyone can realize that they are producing negative energy particles and stop doing so. Therefore, we try to remember what the Teacher taught us to recognize and not practice the production of negative energy particles. However, when you said that to detonate destructive energy particles, everyone must obtain destructive energy particles, I thought that in the reactions that produce negative energy particles, there is some magical knowledge that you will teach us in today's lesson. Indeed, it makes me curious and happy."

The Teacher said, "Now, let's explore the method of detonating destructive energy particles together.

Do you know? In reactions that produce positive energy particles, there are complete techniques for detonating destructive energy particles from low to high levels, from small quantities to large quantities of destructive energy particles. That means that during the practice of the tuelinhs in the human world, they gradually practice the techniques of detonating destructive energy at different levels. From there, the first tuelinh realized that it was a sustainable transformation mechanism for the tuelinhs when they practised producing positive energy particles in the human world through the four forms of the Tao after he observed it for a long time. You must understand that the first tuelinh can detonate countless destructive energy particles without having to train like other tuelinhs in the human world because his yin and yang energy embryo was formed and developed in an environment of destructive energy. Therefore, it is instinctive to detonate them because of the magic of his original yin and yang energy particles. His incarnation as a human in specific human lives is to experience and lead humanity to learn according to his knowledge. At the same time, through that incarnation, he transformed his yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter.

With his realisation of the nature of the reactions that produce energy particles of the tuelinhs through the four forms of the Tao in the human world and based on his ability to detonate the destructive energy in his yin and yang energy embryo, he created a method of detonating destructive energy that combines those two elements. Therefore, it becomes a miraculous method of combining the essence of his ability to detonate the energy of destruction with all the interactive contents of the four forms of the Tao in the human world. That will help the tuelinhs and souls upgrade their ability to detonate destructive energy particles in a more miraculous way than without applying that method. You can understand that the reaction that produces green and fire-red positive energy particles is the ability to detonate destructive energy particles according to the mechanism of sustainable transformation. However, the reaction that produces yellow positive energy particles and super energy particles is the ability to detonate destructive energy based on combining a sustainable transmutation mechanism and the magical detonation ability of his yin and yang energy embryo. It is inappropriate for me to tell you all the techniques for detonating destructive energy particles because you will need help comprehending those values. After all, you must still meet the conditions to transform your yin-yang energy embryo into an energy filter. However, I will provide you with a method for detonating destructive energy particles that combines the interactive content of the four forms of the Tao with a part of the technique for detonating destructive particles from his yin and yang energy embryo. It is a highly miraculous method for the tuelinhs and souls cultivating in the human world. Therefore, after you have learned this method of detonating destructive energy, apply it to each type of reaction that produces positive energy particles related to the interactive content in the four forms of the Tao. That will help you have the power to create the most sustainable energy particles for the maturation process of the tuelinh and quickly achieve the conditions for transforming the yin and yang energy embryo into energy filters.

You need to comprehend some vital content before going into the sequence of techniques for detonating the destructive energy associated with all the interactive content in the four forms of the Tao:

- First, you must understand that the technique, also known as the method of detonating destructive energy, are two critical steps in each reaction that produce positive energy particles of all tuelinhs and super energy particles produced by the first tuelinh. That means the destructive energy detonation method is not an independent reaction but two links in a chain of reactions that make sustainable energy particles.

- Next, you must recognise when destructive energy will attack the soul or tuelinh inside the human body when people perform reactions that produce any energy particles. Because people cannot see whether the original negative energy particle and the negative energy particle system of the soul within are shaking beyond the threshold, they cannot recognise when the destructive particles attack. Therefore, I give you some expressions to help you realise that in the particle production reaction:

+ When the human mind arises and is immersed in attachment to forms, such as having or not having, loving or hating, having wisdom or not having wisdom, begging or not begging, actions or inaction, the original negative particle and the negative particle system begin to vibrate beyond the threshold. That causes destructive energy particles to catch the signal to attack in small numbers. If immersion in the above forms takes longer, that process is associated with negative information from the external environment. The negative energy particle system will vibrate very strongly. At that time, a lot of destructive energy was attacked. Remember that these manifestations are not negative actions; they are just negative thoughts that are being built into a negative ideology. You must also know that generating and indulging in negative thoughts is to satisfy your interests and accept harm to people, animals, and all things without understanding the origin and mission of practice in the human world.

+ Practicing negative actions towards people, animals, and all things is to satisfy the process of generating thoughts that satisfy one's selfishness that harms people, animals, and all things.

- We must understand the origin and practice mission of the tuelinhs and souls in human form through the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment to be able to operate the detonation of destructive energy particles. The truth of the universe will help people understand the truth of all things, events, and phenomena inside and outside the universe, especially in the interactive content of the four forms of the Tao. The truth of enlightenment helps people detonate the energy of destruction after understanding the truth of the universe. You need to understand these two truths to possess the miraculous technique of detonating destructive energy. At that time, you can only detonate a few particles of destructive energy even though you have done many good deeds for people.

- The material that stimulates the toxic removal of the original negative energy particle and causes the system of negative energy particles to vibrate beyond the threshold is the connection with poisonous information of the external environment. That is a method of taking toxins from the outside environment to stimulate detoxification and make your negative energy particle system vibrate beyond the threshold. However, the two truths must be understood to control the process of eliminating poison and the vibration of the negative energy particle system after being immersed in one of the ten forms of attachment.

- The material to support and increase the power of positive heat in the soul's positive energy particle system is the positive information values of the external environment. Absorb them to have the power to exercise control over the number of destructive particles entering. To identify the value of information in the external environment as excellent or harmful, people must understand the truth of the universe and the truth of enlightenment.

- To provoke a large number of destructive energy particles to attack the structure of the tuelinh and soul, everyone's mind must be immersed in negative thoughts about informational values related to the origin, practice mission, and methods to carry out the practice mission of the tuelinhs in the human world. That information is highly voluminous and valuable, attracting many destructive energy particles to move in. You must understand the lecture about the information being all things. Therefore, when you think and indulge in negative thoughts about the origin, the mission of practice, and the method of liberation from suffering, that is a magical method to provoke the entire negative energy particle system of the tuelinh to vibrate beyond the threshold at a super strong level. It connects with the universe's whole negative energy particle system to act as a conductor for countless destructive energy particles attacked. So how? Think negatively about the values of that content, such as doubt or disbelief, and even think bad things about it and the person spreading that knowledge. That will help you connect with the negative energy of the universe so that destructive energy can attack you. You must understand the truth of the universe to ensure safety and not sink deeply into the negative thoughts you previously set for yourself.

- On the contrary, to detonate countless destructive energy particles, one must immerse oneself in positive thoughts about informational values related to one's origin, mission, and methods of carrying out one's practice mission in the human world. To gain this power, you must understand the truth of enlightenment.

- When each content of the four forms of Tao has no information about the origin, practice mission, and method of liberating human suffering, they do not have the power to absorb and detonate destructive energy in large quantities. That will suit everyone to detonate destructive energy from low to high levels gradually.

Thus, from the information you need to know and prepare before practising the technique of detonating destructive energy, you must understand the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle. If you need help understanding, learn them before practising because the key to this technique is the knowledge of the two truths and the smallest energy particle.

We will now explore the step-by-step sequence of the destructive energy detonation method. Each reaction that produces positive energy particles has two stages of detonation of destructive energy particles. Therefore, the sequence of steps is associated with each stage. As follows:

- Stage 1: the stage of detonating destructive energy through positive ideology:

+ Step 1: immersed in negative thoughts after interacting with the contents of the four forms of Tao. Interact and receive harmful information from the outside environment to stimulate your negative particle system. Next, immerse yourself in the negativity related to informational values such as the origin, practice plan, and method of enlightenment and liberation from suffering associated with the content interacting to absorb many energy particles that attack the tuelinh. During this process, the mind becomes painful and troubled by the vast knowledge about the origin and path of practice with the interacting content. At this stage, many destructive energy particles are attacking.

+ Step 2: Use the truth of the universe to keep your mind from sinking too deeply into a state of melancholy and suffering. When there are expressions and emotions of sadness, pain, and resentment, use the knowledge of the truth of the universe to re-analyze the content you are interacting with to reawaken your mind and the tuelinh. To assist in reawakening the mind and the tuelinh, interact with enlightened people, positive people, and enlightened knowledge to receive positive information into the yin and yang energy embryo. That will help the energy particles of destruction to be transformed into particles of fire (the particles of destruction are hot and about to explode).

+ Step 3: use the truth of enlightenment to create an enlightened ideology for the content you interact with. It is to create an ideology that benefits people, society, animals, and everything without caring about yourself. When such an ideology is obtained, the energy particles of fire will be completely detonated. As a result, there is a lot of heat in the tuelinh from detonating the annihilation particles. Heat is the fuel source for the original positive particle to simulate the intellectual wave code with super strong electric waves, and the original negative particle also simulates the intellectual wave code with weak electric waves. The original negative particle only simulates the intellectual wave code with weak electric waves because hot heat controls and eliminates the toxins in the original negative particle.

- Stage 2: the stage of detonating destructive particles through practising positive actions:

+ Step 1: immerse yourself in negative thoughts when taking action after having a positive ideology in stage 1. During this process, receiving negative information from the outside environment and immersing yourself in negative thoughts related to the origin, the mission of practice, and the path to liberate human suffering in the human world are closely related to the content being practised. That helps the system of harmful energy particles in the tuelinh to vibrate beyond the threshold to absorb many attacking destructive energy particles. Think melancholy and feel miserable to increase the vibration speed of the negative particle system. That allows more destructive energy particles to strike the tuelinh.

+ Step 2: Use the truth of the universe to keep your mind from sinking too deeply into a state of melancholy and suffering. When there are expressions and emotions of sadness, pain, and resentment, use the knowledge of the truth of the universe to re-analyze the content you are practising to reawaken your mind and the tuelinh. To assist in reawakening the mind and the tuelinh, interact with enlightened people, positive people, and enlightened knowledge to receive positive information into the yin and yang energy embryo. That will help the particles of destructive energy to be transformed into fire particles.

+ Step 3: use the truth of enlightenment to see that life is suffering and that there is only one path to sustainable transformation. It is the act of bringing benefits to people, animals, and all things while not serving oneself. Then, practice positive actions for the positive ideology created in phase 1. When acting with the mindset of contributing to people, society, and all things with the wisdom of understanding the origin, mission and path to liberate suffering in the human world, the destructive energy particles in the tuelinh are completely detonated. Then, the original positive energy particle produces intellectual wave code fibres with super strong electric waves, and the original negative energy particle produces intellectual wave code fibres with weak electric waves.

You know, the heat of detonated destructive energy helps the yin and yang energy embryo produce sustainable energy particles, and it eliminates the toxins in the original yin energy particles through reactions that detonate destructive energy particles. Practising the method of detonating destructive energy is the most miraculous miracle to help the tuelinhs remove all the toxins and produce countless sustainable energy particles. Apply this method of detonating magical particles of destructive energy associated with the four forms of the Tao in reactions that create positive energy particles. You will quickly achieve achievements on the path of practice in humanity.

To help you better understand this method of detonating destructive particles, I will continue to analyze it in reactions that produce positive energy particles in the following articles. However, please read this article many times to understand what I have said, and it will be a tool to help you efficiently practice the reactions that produce positive energy particles most magically."

Chapter Seventy-Nine

Practice Producing Green Positive Energy Particles

"Practicing reactions that produce positive energy particles at different levels in all content related to the four forms of the Tao will help you practice detonating destructive energy particles from simple to most complex levels. It means that the value of the energy particles produced will also correspond to the level of destructive energy detonation. Specifically, you can only detonate destructive energy particles at a superficial level; the value of positive energy particles is only positive energy particles with strong electric waves. Detonating destructive energy particles is at a complex level; the value of positive energy particles is a type of positive energy particle with very strong electric waves. You can detonate destructive energy particles at a highly complex level; the value of positive energy particles is a type of positive particle with super strong electric waves. Especially detonating destructive energy particles at a super complex level; the value of the energy particles produced are super energy particles, including shiny yellow super energy particles, lapis lazuli blue negative energy super particles, fire particles, and other super energy particles.

After the lessons you have learned, tell me how to produce the most valuable energy particles?" The Teacher asked the students when the day's lesson started.

A male student replied, "Teacher, that is the information and heat value of the detonated destructive energy particles. From what I have learned and understood, I understand that to produce the most valuable positive energy particles, sustainable energy particle production practitioners must detonate many destructive energy particles to have more heat as hot as possible. The heat from the detonated destructive energy particles is of great value in helping the tuelinh eliminate toxins in the original negative energy particle. It is valuable in helping to produce sustainable energy particles in a reaction that produces positive energy particles. In addition, to create value from energy particles, the information value must be attached to all things in and out of the universe; it must be accurate and have the characteristics of sustainable development.

Thus, the heat of destructive energy particles and the information value are critical factors in producing the most valuable and sustainable energy particles. Therefore, everyone who wants to create many sustainable energy particles and quickly transform the yin and yang energy embryos in the tuelinh must comprehend and apply the information values associated with all things in and outside the universe into the reaction process that produces positive energy particles. It would be unfortunate if people did not apply it to increase the information value in the common positive energy particle production reaction. I mean, it is also a reaction that produces green positive energy particles with strong electric waves; if people put into it information values associated with the sustainable development of all things in and out of the universe, they will produce even more wonderful energy particles, such as fire-red and yellow positive particles. Teacher, that is the knowledge I had comprehended when you lectured about the energy particles produced from the yin and yang energy embryo of the first tunnelling in the reactions that detonate the destructive energy."

The Teacher nodded and said, "That's wonderful. Please remember his explanations. Those are explanations and analyses based on his great enlightenment after his journey of researching and practising the knowledge of the two truths.

The heat of the detonated destructive energy particles and the information value that brings the characteristics of sustainable development to all things will create miracles in the reaction that produces positive energy particles in all the contents of the four forms of Tao. Remember this to quickly understand the lectures on reactions that create positive energy particles, and you will easily apply it in practice to produce sustainable energy particles.

In today's lecture, I will analyze the reactions that produce green positive energy particles with strong electric waves for you to understand. However, it is not just the production of normally growing positive energy particles; Instead, I will apply the magical technique of detonating destructive energy particles and increasing the information value about the truth and sustainable development of all things into the reaction that produces positive growth particles. What happens at the end of that reaction that creates positive energy particles? The yin and yang energy embryo will produce fire-red and yellow yang energy particles later. Do you feel the magic?"

A female student said, "Sir, this will be another great lecture. We are eager to listen to the teacher preach. I have listened to your lectures on energy particle production through video lectures. However, when I listened to you opening the lesson for today, I realized that today's lesson will be exciting and better than the energy particle production lectures I have watched on your videos."

After enjoying a hot tea, the teacher lectured, "Do you remember the value of green growing positive energy particles? Let me remind you again. The green growing positive energy particle has an accurate but incomplete amount of information about sustainable development, many good elements, intense vibration heat and speed, and the ability to detonate destructive energy at a strong level. It has the property of developing sustainable values to all things when it connects with negative energy particles with weak electric waves to become the yin and yang energy embryos.

Do you remember the wisdom essence of the green positive energy particle? Its intelligence can create values that bring sustainable development to itself and other life forms. This nature of wisdom is most clearly demonstrated when the tuelinhs and souls are formed from yin and yang energy embryos linked from the grey-white original negative energy particle with the green original yang energy particle. That type of energy creates a great intellectual nature for humans to overcome challenges, and it promotes advantages to develop values with sustainable development characteristics for all people, animals, and all things. Therefore, people with the tuelinhs or souls with that intellectual nature residing in their bodies will quickly produce positive energy particles that develop in green colour.

In addition, people with an intellectual nature whose tuelinh or soul is formed from a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves with a fire-red positive energy particle with very strong electric waves, or with a yellow positive energy particle has super strong electric waves; they also quickly produce green positive energy particles that. So, please remember that all three types of yin and yang energy embryos can produce green positive energy particles that develop. In particular, the yin and yang energy embryo type has the original green positive energy particle that has more power and ability to produce green positive energy particles than the other two types of yin and yang energy embryos.

Next, you need to remember that the reaction process that produces green energy particles has four environmental groups involved, specifically:

- The internal environment group is the yin and yang energy embryo of the person who produces the green positive energy particle. Those are the information values of the original positive energy particle and the information values of the original negative energy particle. It is the information reaction between the original positive and negative energy particles.

- The external positive environment group is positive people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains positive information values and promotes the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and all things in and outside the universe. These are informational values with characteristics of sustainable development, informational values that spread sustainable development values, solidarity values to spread sustainable development values together, and the knowledge of complete enlightenment.

- The negative external environment group is negative people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains negative information values and destroys the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and everything in and out of the universe. These are informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in ideology, informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in action, and informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in the diffusion of false knowledge.

- Groups of destructive energy particles in the external environment. That is a group of energy particles with two values for all things in the universe. One is to cause decay and destruction, and the other creates sustainable development for intelligence and all life forms in the universe.

It would help if you remembered that the practice environment in the human world built by the first tuelinh ensures the entire interaction of all four environmental groups to support the tuelinhs and souls practice their ability to detonate destructive energy in the process of decoding the secrets of oneself, all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, in any reactions that produce energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world, each person must interact and react with three types of external environment.

You have already learned about the conference to unify the practice path of the Tuelinh Council before they transformed into humans. That is the image of small poisonous snakes hiding in a plate of white food powder, a big poisonous snake slithering into the bush, and a small toxic snake slithering into the bush afterwards. Then came the words of the first tuelinh, "To save all tuelinhs, I must use toxin to remove the toxin in them." In these lectures, you will have discovered the meaning of the reactions that produce energy particles. That is the method of using toxin to stimulate toxin, then finding a mechanism to create sustainable energy particles. Toxins are present in the negative energy particles of the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh and soul, in each person and all things, and in the destructive energy particles. Good elements exist in the positive particles of every tuelinh, soul, person, and everything. The process of interaction between the internal environment of the yin and yang energy embryo with the three external environments creates a reaction that uses toxins to detoxify and finds a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Suppose you want to quickly eliminate the toxins of the original negative energy particle and activate the good elements in the original positive energy particle so that the path of sustainable transformation can soon reach your destination. You must practice detonating destructive energy particles and increasing information values that bring sustainable development characteristics into reactions that produce sustainable energy particles.

The reaction process that produces developed positive energy particles in five stages:

- Stage 1: The generation stage wishes to produce green energy particles.

- Stage 2: Decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce green energy particles.

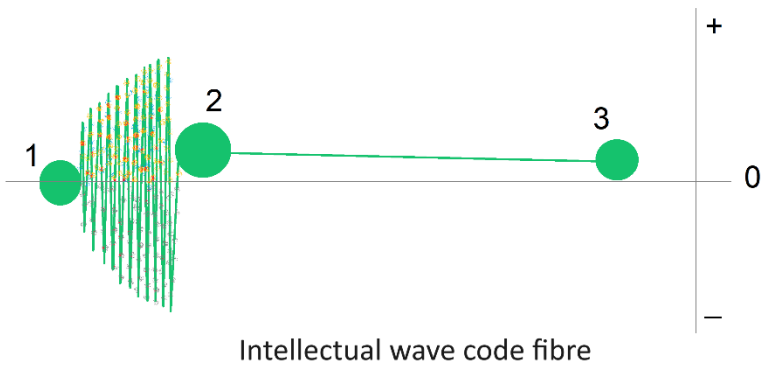

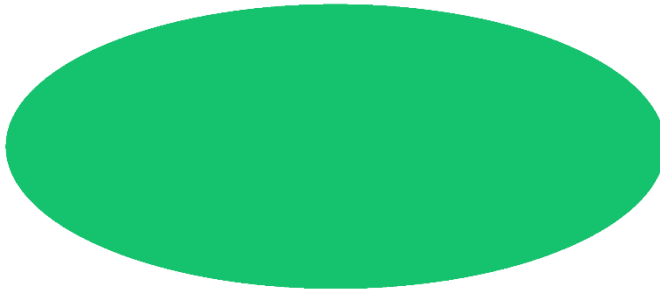

- Phase 4: Action phase to produce green energy particles.

- Stage 5: The intellectual wave code fibre stage has strong electric waves that produce green causal energy particles.

And now, let's explore the evolution of the reaction process that produces green energy particles.

Please look at the image of the green positive energy particle and its wisdom wave code thread to recall the three points and two segments.

The green positive energy particle

Stage 1: The stage of generating the desire to produce green positive energy particles:

That is when people interact with the external environment until the desire to produce green positive energy particles arises. The desire to make positive energy particles for development is to create sustainable development values for people, animals, and all things, not for one's benefit.

You also know why the tuelinh life form has to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world. They have difficulty maturing because they cannot detonate destructive energy to produce sustainable energy particles. They do not have magical powers like the first tuelinh. The destruction of baby tuelinhs, and the destruction of life forms in the universe is the reason why the first tuelinh had to create a practice environment for the tuelinh life forms to help them practice detonate destructive energy through an environment of nothing but suffering on earth.

The first tuelinh made it impossible for them to use their ability to manipulate energy, like on the central planet, to help them create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles when they incarnate as humans. That means their desires will not be satisfied when they live in the human world. It would help if you remembered this to understand why the chain reaction that produces particles occurs. What they want will not be achieved, which is the opposite of life on the central planet. When they like to have something, they can transform it and enjoy that joy. However, in the human world, they cannot fly or transform into things when needed. That is wanting but not being satisfied. From wanting but not being satisfied, combined with the fact that they have to stay in a simple material body, they become trapped, vicious and suffer in their body because of the things they want but cannot have or transform into. Therefore, they begin to enter the chain of reactions that produce energy particles in all the interactions of the four forms of Tao in the human world.

How does the beginning of the journey to green produce positive energy particles develop? It is initiated by the generation stage of the desire to produce green positive energy particles. It would help if you remembered that it is not that humans want to make green positive energy particles because they do not know about energy particles. However, they desire to create sustainable development values to help people, animals, and everything develop sustainably. Because they inherit the intellectual nature of the tuelinh, those who practice producing green positive energy particles do not have the thought of creating values that are destructive to the development of people, society, and all species. Instead, they focus on their intellectual ability to explore, research, and create values with sustainable development.

The journey of generating a person's desire to produce green positive energy particles goes as follows:

- First, the person must interact in their living and working environment, or they have access to information from a specific environment, even if by chance. Accessing that information causes them to compare themselves and the subjects of the environment with which they interact.

- Next, the person realizes they are different from the subjects they have interacted with. Maybe they see that their country is poor while another country is rich. Their country has no natural resources, while another country has many natural resources. Someone else is rich while they are not. Someone else has land while they don't have it. Someone else has a lover while they don't have one. Someone else has a house while they don't have one. Someone else has children while they don't have one. Someone else is happy while they are not happy. Others have many assets, while they do not have them. Others are healthy while they are sick. Others have a life of enjoyment while they struggle. Others are respected, while others are not. Others have businesses when they don't have them. Some are famous, while others are not. Other people's children are happy while their children are not, and other forms of the four forms of Tao.

- That comparison and recognition will occur over a short or extended period.

- The person's comparison and recognition process occurs in positive and negative environments. That is, they will see that in a positive environment, people will always overcome difficulties and challenges to create development values to help people, society, and all species overcome suffering to achieve success. On the contrary, in negative environments, they see people collapsing before difficulties and challenges when trying to create good values for everyone and people who only create values for themselves that harm the health, life, and development of everyone, society, and all species.

After interacting in different environments, they become eager to produce green positive energy particles that develop from things they have and do not have, love and hate, or have intelligence and no intelligence, begging and not begging, or action and inaction. Finally, they realized they could create values that bring sustainable development to people, society, and all species without their selfishness. It is the desire to achieve satisfaction of the mind when making good values for everyone and everything.

Generating the purpose of creating sustainable development values for everyone and all species without selfishness is that person's goal after interacting with different environments. It is the fact that that person has created the purpose of producing green positive energy particles for development.

When the goal arises to produce green positive energy particles, it shows that the original positive energy particle can control the original negative energy particle. That means that a person's enlightened mind is at the level of creating sustainable development values on a small and medium scale. It is an ideology that is satisfied with creating sustainable development values for people, society, and all species without regard to its interests.

When the desire to produce positive energy particles arises, both the original negative and positive energy particles in the yin and yang energy embryo produce sustainable energy particles. The original positive energy particle controls the original negative energy particle. It evaluates the information values in the outside environment before letting the original negative energy particle absorb the evaluated information values. Because the original positive energy particle has such power, the original negative energy particle only absorbs positive information values in the positive environment. When understanding their nature, it does not absorb negative information values in the following negative medium. That helps the original positive energy particle to link the positive information values of the external environment with the positive information values within it to generate point (1) in the original positive energy particle's intellectual wave code strand for the simulation process and production of green positive energy particles. Besides, because it is controlled by the positive heat from the positive energy particle, the original negative energy particle has also simulated point (1) in its intellectual wave code fibre for the production process of negative energy particles with weak electric waves in the same reaction that produces positive energy particles for development. The magic of the reaction creates positive energy particles when the original positive energy particle can control the original negative particle's toxicity and the outside environment's toxic information. It shows the value of heat in producing sustainable energy particles. However, the positive heat of the original positive particle and the information from the positive external environment are not intense enough to create positive energy particles. It needs to go through a magical reaction process at a later stage.

Stage 2: The stage of decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo:

This is the stage of decoding and encoding information from the external environment after the desire to produce positive energy particles arises. This stage will create vibrational wave code rhythms from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre of the green positive energy particle.

Remember, this stage shows the strength of the original positive energy particles in the yin and yang energy embryo while controlling the original negative particle and information from the external environment very well. Therefore, at this stage, the original negative energy particle will absorb positive information values for sustainable development from the external environment into the original positive energy particle and into itself.

During this period, when decoding and encoding information in a negative environment, the toxic information of the outside medium bombards the original negative energy particle to release its toxins. They caused the original negative particle and the system to the harmful energy particles in the tuelinh to be shaken. That is when destructive energy particles catch the signal and move in. As I said in the lecture on the method of detonating destructive energy if you want to absorb large amounts of incoming destructive energy, immerse yourself in negative and painful thoughts related to the values of life, the origin, the mission of practice, the path to liberation from suffering, and the nature of all things. It is a golden opportunity for people to practice techniques to get more destructive energy particles through the rise of toxins in the original negative particle and toxic information from the outside environment.

Because the goal after interacting with the external environment is to produce positive energy particles that develop, it shows that the good nature of the original positive energy particle is controlling the toxicity of the original negative particle. That helps people to decode and encode information from the external environment as follows:

- First, that person always looks for positive values to help them complete the creation of values that bring sustainable development to all people and species. This process is promoted by the wisdom of the yin and yang energy embryo, which has the power of the original yang energy particle, and the information values and knowledge from the positive environment are properly decoded. Then, the original yin energy particle absorbs those correctly decoded information values into the yin and yang energy embryo. That causes the two original yin and yang energy particles to react to encode information as follows:

+ The original positive intellectual wave code fibre of the original positive energy particle has simulated a vibrational wave code rhythm at the positive pole after it has obtained the connection between positive information values for sustainable development between the external environment and the internal environment of the original positive intellectual wave code fibre. That means that the intellectual wave code rhythm at the anode encodes positive information values that have similarities in positive values between the two external and internal environments, which is the dharma that unifies the dharma of green positive energy particles.

+ The original yin intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle also simulated a vibrating wave code rhythm at the anode after it absorbed the positive information values of the external environment for the original positive energy particle. That means that the original positive particle controls the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle, and there are no internal toxins, so it quickly encodes the positive information values outside into its positive pole to form the first vibrational wave beat. This beat section of the negative intellectual wave code is the dharma that refutes dharma because the positive information values and good elements of the external environment have overwritten on the intellectual wave code of the negative energy particle when the original positive energy particle controls it.

- Next, in searching and researching to create values that bring sustainable development to everyone and all species, that person will access and interact with negative information of knowledge and people. That is developing values that harm everyone and all species to satisfy one's interests. However, because the yin and yang energy embryo has the power of the original yang energy particle, external negative values are penetrated by the wisdom of the yang energy particle. Therefore, when people interact in this negative environment, the process of encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo takes place as follows:

+ The original positive intellectual wave code of the original positive energy particle had to fight fiercely with negative information values from the outside, and the toxins in the original negative energy particle began to occur. As a result, it won, and the original positive intellectual wave code strand finished simulating a vibrating wave code rhythm at its negative pole. That wave code segment retains the truth and nature of malicious information from the outside environment after it has been decoded. It is the dharma that refutes the dharma. That means that the vibrational wave code at the negative pole of the positive energy particle that develops contains love for all things and all species to create more motivation for sustainable development values.

+ The original negative intellectual wave code is agitated, and the emergence of toxins hidden inside occurs when interacting with the harmful external environment. This process causes that person to have negative emotions and suffer in the struggle between creating values to satisfy their selfishness and causing consequences for everyone and all species or creating sustainable development values for everyone and all species without one's benefit. However, because the original positive energy particle can control the original negative energy particle and negative information in the external environment, it quickly negates negative information in the external environment. Therefore, in the original negative intellectual wave code fibre of the original yin particle, the rhythm of the vibration wave code at the cathode has been simulated. That is the dharma that unites with the dharma. That means that this vibrating wave code connects harmful information in the external environment and the toxicity of the original yin particle. However, it has been controlled and removed, so there is no longer any toxicity. Instead, it has the informational value of understanding and being enlightened about the negative values of the original negative energy particle and negative information in the external environment. Do you know? This is the stage where people can get the most destructive energy particles to attack them. You should sink into negative thoughts and let your mind sink into desires to satisfy your interests at the expense of everyone and all species. To increase the attack of destructive energy particles, think negatively about informational values, such as the origin, practice mission, method of liberating human suffering, and the nature of all things before positive energy particles and enlightened wisdom control them.

- The person's interaction process between two positive and negative environments occurs continuously over time. That makes decoding and encoding information of yin and yang energy embryos fierce and stressful. The vibrational wave code rhythms contain the positive informational values of the development in the positive pole formed. The vibrational wave code rhythms contain the values of understanding, and the impulse to create the value developed at the cathode is also formed in both the original negative and positive energy particles.

At the end of the process of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, the original positive intellectual wave code fibre of the original positive energy particle has finished simulating the vibration wave code from point (1) to point (2) for the process of producing green positive energy particles. The yin energy particle's original negative intellectual wave code strand also simulates the vibration wave code from point (1) to point (2) for producing negative energy particles with weak electric waves.

You must remember that if you want more particles of destructive energy to attack your soul, you must take advantage of the moments of interaction with the harmful external environment and enhance the moment you are immersed in a negative mind because of its benefits that harm everyone and all species. Remember that to get more destructive energy particles, you must think about the wisdom of all things and the path of practice in a negative state.

Because you are practising a reaction that produces positive energy particles that develop, you must remember the nature of all things, the origin, the mission and the path to liberation from suffering when incarnated as a human to connect with positive information from the outside environment. It will help you reactivate the power of good elements and heat from the original positive energy particle to control and eliminate the toxins in the root negative energy particle with toxic information from the outside environment. By doing that, you will finish simulating the vibration wave code in the yin and yang energy embryo to produce green positive energy particles with strong electric waves and negative energy particles with weak electric waves. In particular, it will help the soul inside radiate heat to turn destructive energy particles into particles of fire. Fire particles are the state of destructive energy particles about to explode. Up to this point, you have had an excellent state of mind and soul for transforming into an ideology to produce green positive energy particles.

Stage 3: Stage of creating an ideology to produce positive energy particles that develop:

This is the stage of producing enlightenment ideology for producing green positive energy particles. It is an ideology that creates values of development for everyone and all species without its benefit.

To have an enlightened ideology in creating values that bring development to all people and all species, everyone must rely on the truth of enlightenment to understand the truth of the practice mission in the human world. From there, everyone will have the strength to let go of attachments and selfishness of toxins that have arisen in the original negative energy particle when interacting with harmful environments. Next, rely on and receive positive values from knowledge and positive people in a positive environment. It will be the power to help the original positive energy particle win against the toxic information of the negative environment and the toxins of the original negative energy particle.

Significantly to increase the power and value of the ideological point (2) in the intellectual wave code of the green positive energy particle, everyone should think about the knowledge of the origin, the mission of practice, and the method of completing that mission is associated with the understanding of energy particles and the enlightenment of the two truths. That will help the energy embryo have the magical power to detonate the destructive energy particles that attack the tuelinh at the decoding and encoding stage. The hot heat from detonated destructive energy particles with information value will create a great ideology in producing green positive energy particles. At the same time, the original positive wisdom wave code strand of the original yang particle and the negative wisdom wave code strand of the original yin particle have completed the simulation of the enlightenment ideology in point number (2).

When a point (2) is created in both the original positive and negative particles, it begins the action phase in the following stage. Besides, it also shows the power of informational value for sustainable development in detonating destructive energy to increase the power of enlightenment ideology.

Phase 4: Action phase to produce green positive energy particles:

This is the stage of inheriting the functions and tasks specified in point (2) in the ideology to satisfy the creation of values for sustainable development for everyone and all species without one's benefit.

The action phase may occur as a single act of interaction with people, animals, and all things, or it may be a series of actions to end the phase of positive energy particle production.

After obtaining the ideology for producing green positive energy particles with the power of enlightened wisdom, the action process of creating green positive energy particles takes place as follows:

- In the process of acting to satisfy the production of green positive energy particles, people will have to interact with the negative environment by negative people and knowledge. Negative information will make people doubt themselves and worry they cannot create the desired development value. In addition, the toxins of the original negative energy particle are reawakened and cause the mind to have thoughts that only want to satisfy its benefits while ignoring the good values created in the ideology before. The toxins in the original negative energy particle linked with the toxins of external negative information will absorb many destructive energy particles if people sink into a state of anxiety and suffering. That is negative thinking about the values of the origin, the practice mission, and the method of achieving the mission associated with the development value being created. At that time, many destructive energy particles attack your tuelinh. However, it would be best if you relied on the truth of the universe to understand that those feelings of suffering, anxiety, and sadness are fake because they are not real. Still, only the green energy particles produced can help you become respected in the human world and the universe. When you have positive thoughts, the heat in the tuelinh is reactivated, and it causes the particles of destruction to be transformed into particles of fire.

- Detonate the particles of fire by relying on the truth of enlightenment to have great determination and will in completing actions that create sustainable development values for everyone and all species. It would help to rely more on enlightened and positive people to gain strength. The resonance of that power will help your soul detonate all particles of fire.

Interacting with positive and negative environments will help the original positive and negative wisdom wave code strand in the yin and yang energy embryo to simulate the wisdom strand further. The intellectual fibre segments of the positive and negative particles are encoded with the information values of the external environment, internal environment, and the heat of the detonated destructive energy. The intellectual fibre segment is the segment that performs actions for the vibration code segment from point (1) to point (2).

The result of this phase is to complete the simulation of point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre of both the original positive and negative energy particles. Then, from the original positive wisdom wave code strand in the original positive particle, it will produce and copy a wisdom wave code strand with strong electric waves. From the original negative intellectual wave code strand in the original negative particle, it will create and copy an intellectual wave code strand with weak electric waves. The green positive intellectual wave code strand is stored in the original positive particle, and the negative intellectual wave code strand with weak electric waves is stored in the original negative particle.

Do you know? When the positive energy particle production reaction is completed, the tuelinh's yin and yang energy embryo will have a lot of heat to copy the newly born wisdom wave code strands into many new wisdom wave code strands. Then, they move to the yin and yang extremes and become causal energy particles. However, if you can take advantage of the heat present in the yin and yang energy embryo to practice uniting everyone to spread the values of sustainable development to everyone, the yin and yang energy embryo will give birth to diffuse and unified positive intellectual wave code fibres that are more valuable than the developed intellectual wave code fibres created previously. Do you understand what I mean? That is, to take advantage of the hot heat and the chain of reactions that produce green positive energy particles to unite people and spread those development values to everyone. If you do not do so, you will have to spend many chains of reactions to produce more valuable positive energy particles with the difficulties and challenges of destructive energy attack, the toxicity of the original negative particle and the external environment. You need to know that when continuing to carry out solidarity actions and spread the value of sustainable development to everyone, the embryo's yin and yang energy particles will continue to absorb destructive energy particles and detonate them to have more heat for the production of more valuable positive energy particles.

Stage 5: The stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carries strong positive electric waves that produce green causal energy particles:

This stage occurs immediately after the end of an action or series of actions that produce green positive energy particles in the previous stage.

The stage of creating causal energy particles takes place as follows:

- At the original positive energy particle, the newly green positive intellectual wave code strand that has just been born is being stored next to the original positive intellectual wave code strand of the original positive particle. From that strand of positive intellectual wave code, it copies into many strands of positive intellectual wave code because of the heat in the yin and yang energy embryo. Those strands of intellectual wave code move to the positive pole to transform into green positive energy particles. Because there is not much heat left in the original positive particle, the green positive intellectual wave code fibre can only copy the wisdom wave code fibres with weaker positive electric waves. It is called the neutral particle of the green positive particle. Those neutral intellectual wave code fibres move out to the yang pole and the protective shell of the mature yin and yang energy embryo. Next, the green positive energy particles at the positive pole join together to form synthetic positive particles. Then, they and neutral particles move out of the mature embryo to create new synthetic energy particle clusters.

- At the original negative energy particle, the negative intellectual wave code fibre with weak electric waves has just been produced; it copies into similar intellectual wave code fibres and moves to the negative pole of the mature energy embryo to transform the smallest negative energy particles. Then, those smallest negative energy particles bond together to form a composite negative particle with weak electric waves and move out to the cluster of positive energy particles that had just been created earlier.

- The positive energy particles at the positive pole are also copied and radiated to the outside environment, where a reaction produces green positive energy particles.

- In addition, a green positive energy particle is collected at the centre of the operating causal tree on the central planet.

Thus, when finishing the chain of reactions that produce positive energy particles, the cause and effect energy particles are also stored in three areas: in the tuelinh (in the original positive particle and the synthetic particle structure), in the external environment where the reaction that produces the green positive particles occurs, and the space that operates the causal tree on the central planet.

In addition, the action process produces green positive energy particles, creating a positive external environment for others to learn and follow. That is similar to that person having received positive information values from the external environment.

What do you see through the reactions that produce green positive energy particles? It is the information circulation mechanism in the rotation mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo and the mechanism for producing and connecting the smallest energy particles by the information reaction process between the internal environment and the outside environment. They create a strong, sustainable path of transformation to produce both sustainable positive energy particles, neutral particles, and negative particles with weak electric waves. That helps the synthetic energy particle structure of the tuelinh to develop, and the tuelinh becomes more mature when the synthetic particle structures have a 1:1 balance ratio between negative and positive particles.

Thus, that chain of reactions produces green positive energy particles, enlightened energy particles that create sustainable development values for everyone and all species. Enlightened wisdom is decisive in detonating destructive energy and creating great information values for energy particles to create green positive energy particles.

I will not analyze the examples as in the previous lessons, so please do your task of exploring the reaction process that produces positive energy particles developing from the content of the example I give below:

For example, when humanity has to deal with a dangerous epidemic, it has caused the deaths of countless people around the world. Faced with that situation, a scientist overcame the temptation of money to research and create a vaccine to prevent the spread of the disease. Then, that person transfers that technology to countries around the world so that they can jointly produce that vaccine to save lives. As a result, the epidemic was later extinguished thanks to that scientist's vaccine. Because that scientist did not for his benefit, he devoted his intelligence to creating a vaccine and spreading that technology to other countries without placing economic benefits on saving people. That scientist produced many green and fire-red positive energy particles. In addition to creating green positive energy particles for developing people-saving vaccines, he also transfers vaccine creation technology to other countries, which is the value of teaching knowledge to generate that vaccine. Technology transfer is the series of actions after producing green positive energy particles of the development, which are fire-red positive energy particles. Thus, it is a series of actions to make sustainable positive energy particles, starting with producing developmental positive energy particles, followed by additional actions to share knowledge with other countries.

Please apply the green positive energy particle production method to analyze the evolution of the reaction to produce sustainable energy particles in that example."

Chapter Eighty

Practice Producing Fire-red Positive Energy Particles

The Teacher asked the students, "Have you analyzed the example of the positive energy particle production case I gave in the morning? How do you feel?"

The students all said they had analyzed it. One student said to the Teacher, "Teacher, after analyzing that example and analyzing other examples, I see similarities in how to produce green, fire-red, and yellow energy particles like the Teacher's previous lectures, especially in the teachings on the unified Tao of the universe through the forms of the Tao. To produce yellow positive energy particles, everyone must unite to spread knowledge that has value for sustainable development to everyone, and that knowledge must have an enlightened nature. Learning about reactions that produce energy particles, especially positive energy particles, helps us understand the process and developments in chain reactions that produce energy particles. It is like slowing down the entire process of producing energy particles to understand the nature and truth of ourselves, others, and all things in and out of the universe. It's very wonderful, sir."

The Teacher said, "That's right. Learning enlightenment knowledge through reactions that produce energy particles will help learners have a comprehensive and complete perspective on everything after learning enlightenment knowledge from other angles.

We continue with the practical lesson of producing diffuse, fire-red positive energy particles. It would help to remember that diffuse positive energy particles are more potent than developed positive energy particles.

Do you remember what the value of fire-red positive energy particles is? That is, it has an accurate but incomplete amount of information about sustainable development, a lot of good elements, a very strong rate of vibration and heat, and the ability to detonate destructive energy at a very strong level. It has the property of creating and spreading the values of sustainable development to all things when it connects negative energy particles with weak electric waves to become yin and yang energy embryos.

Do you remember the intellectual nature of the fire-red positive energy particle? Its intelligence can create and spread sustainable development values to itself and other life forms. This nature of wisdom is most clearly demonstrated when the tuelinhs and souls are formed from yin and yang energy embryos linked from the grey-white original negative energy particle with the fire-red original yang energy particle. That type of energy creates a great intellectual nature for humans to overcome challenges, and it promotes advantages to develop and spread values with sustainable development characteristics to everyone, animals, and all things. Therefore, people with tuelinh or souls with that intellectual nature residing in their bodies will quickly produce fire-red, spreading positive energy particles.

In addition, people with an intellectual nature whose tuelinh or soul is formed from the grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and the green positive energy particle with strong electric waves, or the yellow positive energy particle has super strong electric waves also quickly produce fire-red positive energy particles. So, please remember that all three types of yin and yang energy embryos can produce fire-red positive energy particles. In particular, the yin and yang energy embryo type has a fire-red original yang energy particle that has the power and ability to produce more diffuse positive energy particles than the other two types of yin and yang energy embryos.

Next, you must remember that the reaction process that produces fire-red positive energy particles involves four environmental groups, specifically:

- The internal environment group is the yin and yang energy embryo of the person who produces the fire-red positive energy particle. Those are the information values of the original positive energy particle and the information values of the original negative energy particle. It is the information reaction between the original positive and negative energy particles.

- The external positive environment group is positive people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains positive information values and promotes the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and all things in and outside the universe. These are informational values with characteristics of sustainable development, informational values that spread sustainable development values, solidarity values to spread sustainable development values together, and the knowledge of complete enlightenment.

- The negative external environment group is negative people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains negative information values and destroys the sustainable development of the tuelinh, humans, animals, and everything in and out of the universe. These are informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in ideology, informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in action, and informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in the diffusion of false knowledge.

- Groups of destructive energy particles in the external environment. That is a group of energy particles with two values for all things in the universe. One is to cause decay and destruction, and the other creates sustainable development for intelligence and all life forms in the universe.

It would help if you remembered that the practice environment in the human world built by the first tuelinh ensures the entire interaction of all four environmental groups to support the tuelinh and souls practice their ability to detonate destructive energy in the process of decoding the secrets of oneself, all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, in any reactions that produce energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world, each person must interact and react with three types of external environment.

You had already learned about the conference to unify the practice path of the Tuelinh Council before they transformed into humans. That is the image of small poisonous snakes hiding in a plate of white food powder, a big poisonous snake slithering into the bush, and a small toxic snake slithering into the bush afterwards. Then came the words of the first tuelinh, "To save all tuelinhs, I must use toxin to remove the toxin in them." In these lectures, you will have discovered the meaning of the reactions that produce energy particles. That is the method of using toxin to stimulate toxin, then finding a mechanism to create sustainable energy particles. Toxins are present in the negative energy particles of the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh and soul, in each person and all things, and in the destructive energy particles. Good elements exist in the positive particles of every tuelinh, soul, person, and everything. The process of interaction between the internal environment of the yin and yang energy embryo with the three external environments creates a reaction that uses toxins to detoxify and finds a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Suppose you want to quickly eliminate the toxins of the original negative energy particle and activate the good elements in the original positive energy particle so that the path of sustainable transformation can soon reach your destination. You must practice detonating destructive energy particles and increasing information values that bring sustainable development characteristics into reactions that produce sustainable energy particles.

The reaction process that produces fire-red positive energy particles in five stages:

- Stage 1: The generation stage wishes to produce fire-red energy particles.

- Stage 2: Decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce fire-red energy particles.

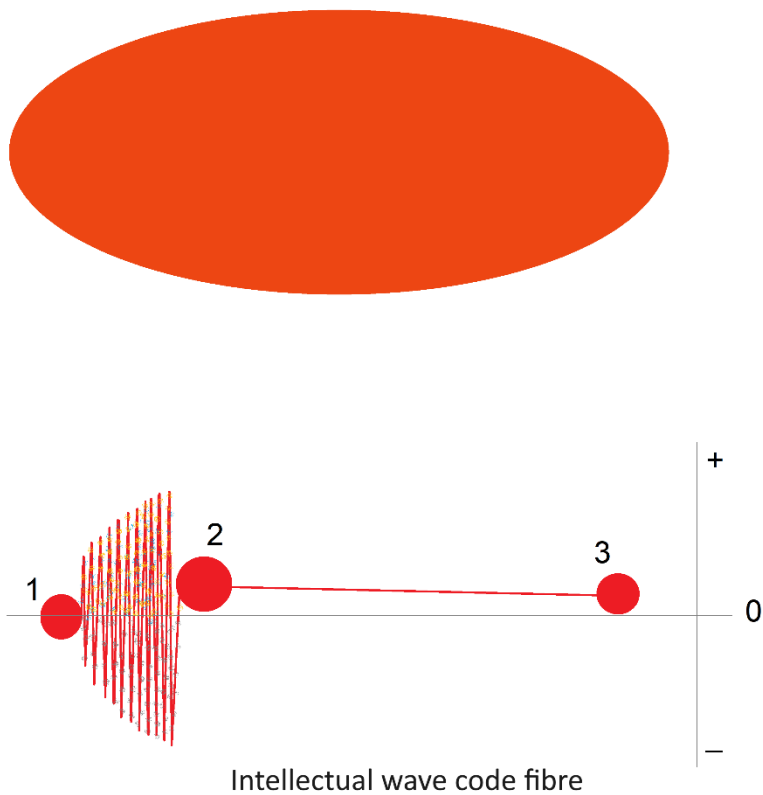

- Phase 4: Action phase to produce fire-red energy particles.

- Stage 5: The intellectual wave code fibre stage has very strong electric waves that produce fire-red causal energy particles.

And now, let's explore the evolution of the reaction process that produces fire-red energy particles.

Please look at the image of the fire-red positive energy particle and its wisdom wave code thread to recall the three points and two segments.

The fire-red positive energy particle

Stage 1: The stage of generating the desire to produce fire-red positive energy particles:

That is when people interact with the external environment until the desire to produce fire-red positive energy particles arises. It is to spread sustainable development values for people, animals, and everything, not for one's benefit.

You also know why the tuelinh life form has to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world. They have difficulty maturing because they cannot detonate destructive energy to produce sustainable energy particles. They do not have magical powers like the first tuelinh. The destruction of baby tuelinhs, and the destruction of life forms in the universe is the reason why the first tuelinh had to create a practice environment for the tuelinh life forms to help them practice detonate destructive energy through an environment of nothing but suffering on earth.

The first tuelinh made it impossible for them to use their ability to manipulate energy, like on the central planet, to help them create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles when they incarnate as humans. That means their desires will not be satisfied when they live in the human world. It would help if you remembered this to understand why the chain reaction that produces particles occurs. What they want will not be achieved, which is the opposite of life on the central planet. When they like to have something, they can transform it and enjoy that joy. However, in the human world, they cannot fly, transform, or transform into things when they need them. That is wanting but not being satisfied. From wanting but not being satisfied, combined with the fact that they have to stay in a simple material body, they become trapped, vicious and suffer in their body because of the things they want but cannot have or transform into. Therefore, they begin to enter the chain of reactions that produce energy particles in all the interactions of the four forms of Tao in the human world.

How does the beginning of the journey produce fire-red positive energy particles? It is initiated by the generation stage of the desire to produce fire-red positive energy particles. It would help if you remembered that it is not that humans want to make fire-red positive energy particles because they do not know about energy particles. However, they desire to spread sustainable development values to help people, animals, and everything develop sustainably. Because they inherit the intellectual nature of the tuelinh, those who practice producing fire-red positive energy particles do not have the thought of spreading values that are destructive to the development of people, society, and all species. Instead, they focus on their intellectual ability to explore, research, and spread values with sustainable development.

The journey of generating a person's desire to produce fire-red positive energy particles goes as follows:

- First, the person must interact in their living and working environment, or they have access to information from a specific environment, even if by chance. Accessing that information causes them to compare themselves and the subjects of the environment with which they interact.

- Next, the person realizes they are different from the subjects they have interacted with. Maybe they see that their country is poor while another country is rich. Their country has no natural resources, while another country has many natural resources. Someone else is rich while they are not. Someone else has land while they don't have it. Someone else has a lover while they don't have one. Someone else has a house while they don't have one. Someone else has children while they don't have one. Someone else is happy while they are not happy. Others have many assets, while they do not have them. Others are healthy while they are sick. Others have a life of enjoyment while they struggle. Others are respected, while others are not. Others have businesses when they don't have them. Some are famous, while others are not. Other people's children are happy while their children are not, and other forms of the four forms of Tao.

- That comparison and recognition will occur over a short or extended period.

- The person's comparison and recognition process occurs in positive and negative environments. They will see that in a positive environment, people will always overcome difficulties and challenges to spread development values to help people, society, and all species overcome suffering to achieve success. On the contrary, in negative environments, they see people collapsing before difficulties and challenges when trying to create and spread good values for everyone and people who only create and spread values for themselves that harm the health, life, and development of everyone, society, and all species.

After interacting in different environments, they become eager to produce fire-red positive energy particles that spread from things they have and do not have, or love and hate, or have intelligence and no intelligence, or begging and not begging, or action and inaction. Finally, they realized they could spread values that bring sustainable development to people, society, and all species without their selfishness. It is the desire to achieve satisfaction of the mind when spreading good values for everyone and everything.

Generating the purpose of spreading sustainable development values for everyone and all species without selfishness is that person's goal after interacting with different environments. It is the fact that that person has created the purpose of producing fire-red positive energy particles of spreading.

When the goal arises to produce fire-red positive energy particles, it shows that the original positive energy particle can control the original negative energy particle. That means that a person's enlightened mind is at the level of creating sustainable development values on a huge scale. It is an ideology that is satisfied with spreading sustainable development values for people, society, and all species without regard to its interests.

When the desire to produce fire-red positive energy particles arises, the original negative and positive energy particles in the yin and yang energy embryo produce sustainable energy particles. The original positive energy particle controls the original negative energy particle. It evaluates the information values in the outside environment before letting the original negative energy particle absorb the evaluated information values. Because the original positive energy particle has such power, the original negative energy particle only absorbs positive information values in the positive environment. When understanding their nature, it does not absorb negative information values in the following negative medium. That helps the original positive energy particle to link the positive information values of the external environment with the positive information values within it to generate point (1) in the original positive energy particle's intellectual wave code strand for the simulation process and production of fire-red positive energy particles. Besides, because it is controlled by the positive heat from the positive energy particle, the original negative energy particle has also simulated point (1) in its intellectual wave code fibre for the production process of negative energy particles with weak electric waves in the same reaction that produces fire-red positive energy particles. The magic of the reaction creates positive energy particles when the original positive energy particle can control the original negative particle's toxicity and the outside environment's toxic information. It shows the value of heat in producing sustainable energy particles. However, the positive heat of the original positive particle and the information from the positive external environment are not intense enough to create positive energy particles. It needs to go through a magical reaction process at a later stage.

Stage 2: The stage of decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo:

This is the stage of decoding and encoding information from the external environment after the desire to produce fire-red positive energy particles arises. This stage will create vibrational wave code rhythms from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre of the fire-red positive energy particle.

Remember, this stage shows the strength of the original positive energy particles in the yin and yang energy embryo while controlling the original negative particle and information from the external environment very well. Therefore, at this stage, the original negative energy particle will absorb positive information values for sustainable development from the external environment into the original positive energy particle and into itself.

During this period, when decoding and encoding information in a negative environment, the toxic information of the outside medium bombards the original negative energy particle to release its toxins. They caused the original negative particle and the system to the harmful energy particles in the tuelinh to be shaken. That is when destructive energy particles catch the signal and move in. As I said in the lecture on the method of detonating destructive energy if you want to absorb large amounts of incoming destructive energy, immerse yourself in negative and painful thoughts related to the values of life, the origin, the mission of practice, the path to liberation from suffering, and the nature of all things. It is a golden opportunity for people to practice techniques to get more destructive energy particles through the rise of toxins in the original negative particle and toxic information from the outside environment.

Because the goal after interacting with the external environment is to produce diffuse, fire-red positive energy particles, it shows that the good nature of the original positive energy particle is controlling the toxicity of the original negative particle. That helps people to decode and encode information from the external environment as follows:

- First, that person always looks for positive values to help them complete the spreading of values that bring sustainable development to all people and species. This process is promoted by the wisdom of the yin and yang energy embryo, which has the power of the original yang energy particle, and the information values and knowledge from the positive environment are properly decoded. Then, the original yin energy particle absorbs those correctly decoded information values into the yin and yang energy embryo. That causes the two original yin and yang energy particles to react to encode information as follows:

+ The original positive intellectual wave code fibre of the original positive energy particle has simulated a vibrational wave code rhythm at the positive pole after it has obtained the connection between positive information values for sustainable development between the external environment and the internal environment of the original positive intellectual wave code fibre. That means that the intellectual wave code rhythm at the anode encodes positive information values that have similarities in positive values between the two external and internal environments, which is the dharma that unifies the dharma of fire-red positive energy particles.

+ The original yin intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle also simulated a vibrating wave code rhythm at the anode after it absorbed the positive information values of the external environment for the original positive energy particle. That means that the original positive particle controls the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle, and there are no internal toxins, so it quickly encodes the positive information values outside into its positive pole to form the first vibrational wave beat. This beat section of the negative intellectual wave code is the dharma that refutes dharma because the positive information values and good elements of the external environment have overwritten on the intellectual wave code of the negative energy particle when the original positive energy particle controls it.

- Next, in searching and researching to spread values that bring sustainable development to everyone and all species, that person will access and interact with negative information of knowledge and people. That spreads values that harm everyone and all species to satisfy one's interests. However, because the yin and yang energy embryo has the power of the original yang energy particle, external negative values are penetrated by the wisdom of the yang energy particle. Therefore, when people interact in this negative environment, the process of encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo takes place as follows:

+ The original positive intellectual wave code of the original positive energy particle had to fight fiercely with negative information values from the outside, and the toxins in the original negative energy particle began to occur. As a result, it won, and the original positive intellectual wave code strand finished simulating a vibrating wave code rhythm at its negative pole. That wave code segment retains the truth and nature of malicious information from the outside environment after it has been decoded. It is the dharma that refutes the dharma. That means that the vibrational wave code at the negative pole of the diffuse positive energy

particle contains love for all things and all species to create more motivation for spreading sustainable development values.

+ The original negative intellectual wave code is agitated, and the emergence of toxins hidden inside occurs when interacting with the harmful external environment. This process causes that person to have negative emotions and suffer in the struggle between spreading values to satisfy their selfishness and causing consequences for everyone and all species or spreading sustainable development values for everyone and all species without one's benefit. However, because the original positive energy particle can control the original negative energy particle and negative information in the external environment, it quickly negates negative information in the external environment. Therefore, in the original negative intellectual wave code fibre of the original yin particle, the rhythm of the vibration wave code at the cathode has been simulated. That is the dharma that unites with the dharma. That means that this vibrating wave code connects harmful information in the external environment and the toxicity of the original yin particle. However, it has been controlled and removed, so there is no longer any toxicity. Instead, it has the informational value of understanding and being enlightened about the negative values of the original negative energy particle and negative information in the external environment. Do you know? This is the stage where people can get the most destructive energy particles to attack them. You should sink into negative thoughts and let your mind sink into desires to satisfy your interests at the expense of everyone and all species. To increase the attack of destructive energy particles, think negatively about informational values, such as the origin, practice mission, method of liberating human suffering, and the nature of all things before positive energy particles and enlightened wisdom control them.

- The person's interaction process between two positive and negative environments occurs continuously over time. That makes decoding and encoding information of yin and yang energy embryos fierce and stressful. The vibrational wave code rhythms contain the positive informational values of the spreading in the positive pole formed. The vibrational wave code rhythms contain the values of understanding, and the impulse to spread the value developed at the cathode is also formed in both the original negative and positive energy particles.

At the end of the process of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, the original positive intellectual wave code fibre of the original positive energy particle has finished simulating the vibration wave code from point (1) to point (2) for the process of producing fire-red positive energy particles. The yin energy particle's original negative intellectual wave code strand also simulates the vibration wave code from point (1) to point (2) for producing negative energy particles with weak electric waves.

You must remember that if you want more particles of destructive energy to attack your soul, you must take advantage of the moments of interaction with the harmful external environment and enhance the moment you are immersed in a negative mind because of its benefits that harm everyone and all species. Remember that to get more destructive energy particles, you must think about the wisdom of all things and the path of practice in a negative state.

Because you are practising a reaction that produces fire-red positive energy particles, you must remember the nature of all things, the origin, the mission and the path to liberation from suffering when incarnated as a human to connect with positive information from the outside environment. It will help you reactivate the power of good elements and heat from the original positive energy particle to control and eliminate the toxins in the root negative energy particle with toxic information from the outside environment. By doing that, you will finish simulating the vibration wave code in the yin and yang energy embryo to produce fire-red positive energy particles with very strong electric waves and negative energy particles with weak electric waves. In particular, it will help the soul inside radiate heat to turn destructive energy particles into particles of fire. Fire particles are the state of destructive energy particles about to explode. Up to this point, you have had an excellent state of mind and soul for transforming into an ideology to produce fire-red positive energy particles.

Stage 3: Stage of creating an ideology to produce fire-red positive energy particles:

This is the stage of producing enlightenment ideology for producing fire-red positive energy particles. It is an ideology that spreads values of development for everyone and all species without its benefit.

To have an enlightened ideology in spreading values that bring development to all people and all species, everyone must rely on the truth of enlightenment to understand the truth of the practice mission in the human world. From there, everyone will have the strength to let go of attachments and selfishness of toxins that have arisen in the original negative energy particle when interacting with harmful environments. Next, rely on and receive positive values from knowledge and positive people in a positive environment. It will be the power to help the original positive energy particle win against the toxic information of the negative environment and the toxins of the original negative energy particle.

Significantly to increase the power and value of the ideological point (2) in the intellectual wave code of the fire-red positive energy particle, everyone should think about the knowledge of the origin, the mission of practice, and the method of completing that mission is associated with the understanding of energy particles and the enlightenment of the two truths. That will help the energy embryo have the magical power to detonate the destructive energy particles that attack the tuelinh at the decoding and encoding stage. The hot heat from detonated destructive energy particles with information value will create a great ideology in producing fire-red positive energy particles. At the same time, the original positive wisdom wave code strand of the original yang particle and the negative wisdom wave code strand of the original yin particle have completed the simulation of the enlightenment ideology in point number (2).

When a point (2) is created in both the original positive and negative particles, it begins the action phase in the following stage. Besides, it also shows the power of informational value for sustainable development in detonating destructive energy to increase the power of enlightenment ideology.

Phase 4: Action phase to produce fire-red positive energy particles:

This is the stage of inheriting the functions and tasks specified in point (2) in the ideology to satisfy the spreading of values for sustainable development for everyone and all species without one's benefit.

The action phase may occur as a single act of interaction with people, animals, and all things, or it may be a series of actions to end the phase of positive energy particle production.

After obtaining the ideology for producing fire-red positive energy particles with the power of enlightened wisdom, the action process of creating fire-red positive energy particles takes place as follows:

- To satisfy the production of fire-red positive energy particles, people will have to interact with the negative environment by negative people and knowledge. Negative information will make people doubt themselves and worry they cannot spread the desired development value. In addition, the toxins of the original negative energy particle are reawakened and cause the mind to have thoughts that only want to satisfy its benefits while ignoring the good values created in the ideology before. The toxins in the original negative energy particle linked with the toxins of external negative information will absorb many destructive energy particles if people sink into a state of anxiety and suffering. That is negative thinking about the values of the origin, the practice mission, and the method of achieving the mission associated with the development value being created. At that time, many destructive energy particles attack your tuelinh. However, it would be best if you relied on the truth of the universe to understand that those feelings of suffering, anxiety, and sadness are fake because they are not real. Still, only the fire-red energy particles produced can help you become respected in the human world and the universe. When you have positive thoughts, the heat in the tuelinh is reactivated, and it causes the particles of destruction to be transformed into particles of fire.

- Detonate the particles of fire by relying on the truth of enlightenment to have great determination and will in completing actions that spread sustainable development values for everyone and all species. It would help to rely more on enlightened and positive people to gain strength. The resonance of that power will help your soul detonate all particles of fire.

Interacting with positive and negative environments will help the original positive and negative wisdom wave code strand in the yin and yang energy embryo to simulate the wisdom strand further. The intellectual fibre segments of the positive and negative particles are encoded with the information values of the external environment, internal environment, and the heat of the detonated destructive energy. The intellectual fibre segment is the segment that performs actions for the vibration code segment from point (1) to point (2).

The result of this phase is to complete the simulation of point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre of both the original positive and negative energy particles. Then, from the original positive wisdom wave code strand in the original positive particle, it produces and copies a wisdom wave code strand with very strong electric waves. From the original negative intellectual wave code strand in the original negative particle, it will create and copy an intellectual wave code strand with weak electric waves. The fire-red positive intellectual wave code strand is stored in the original positive particle, and the negative intellectual wave code strand with weak electric waves is stored in the original negative particle.

Do you know? When the positive energy particle production reaction is completed, the tuelinh's yin and yang energy embryo will have a lot of heat to copy the newly born wisdom wave code strands into many new wisdom wave code strands. Then, they move to the yin and yang extremes and become causal energy particles. However, if you can take advantage of the heat present in the yin and yang energy embryo to practice uniting everyone to spread the values of sustainable development to everyone, the yin and yang energy embryo will give birth to a yellow, unified, positive intellectual wave code fibres. Do you understand what I mean? That is, to take advantage of the hot heat and the chain of reactions that produce fire-red positive energy particles to unite people and spread those development values to everyone. If you do not do so, you will have to spend many chains of reactions to produce more valuable positive energy particles with the difficulties and challenges of destructive energy attack, the toxicity of the original negative particle and the external environment. You need to know that when continuing to carry out solidarity actions to spread the value of sustainable development to everyone, the embryo's yin and yang energy particles will continue to absorb destructive energy particles and detonate them to have more heat for the production of yellow positive energy particles.

Stage 5: The stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carries very strong positive electric waves that produce fire-red causal energy particles:

This stage occurs immediately after the end of an action or series of actions that produce fire-red positive energy particles in the previous stage.

The stage of creating causal energy particles takes place as follows:

- At the original positive energy particle, the newly fire-red positive intellectual wave code strand that has just been born is being stored next to the original positive intellectual wave code strand of the original positive particle. From that strand of positive intellectual wave code, it copies into many strands of positive intellectual wave code because of the heat in the yin and yang energy embryo. Those strands of intellectual wave code move to the positive pole to transform into fire-red positive energy particles. Because there is not much heat left in the original positive particle, the fire-red positive intellectual wave code fibre can only copy the wisdom wave code fibres with weaker positive electric waves. It is called the neutral particle of the fire-red positive particle. Those neutral intellectual wave code fibres move out to the yang pole and the protective shell of the mature yin and yang energy embryo. Next, the fire-red positive energy particles at the positive pole join together to form synthetic positive particles. Then, they and neutral particles move out of the mature embryo to create new synthetic energy particle clusters.

- At the original negative energy particle, the negative intellectual wave code fibre with weak electric waves has just been produced; it copies into similar intellectual wave code fibres and moves to the negative pole of the mature energy embryo to transform the smallest negative energy particles. Then, those smallest negative energy particles bond together to form a composite negative particle with weak electric waves and move out to the cluster of positive energy particles that had just been created earlier.

- The positive energy particles at the positive pole are also copied and radiated to the outside environment, where a reaction produces fire-red positive energy particles.

- In addition, a fire-red positive energy particle is collected at the centre of the operating causal tree on the central planet.

Thus, when finishing the chain of reactions that produce positive energy particles, the cause and effect energy particles are also stored in three areas: in the tuelinh (in the original positive particle and the synthetic particle structure), in the external environment where the reaction that produces the fire-red positive particles occurs, and the space that operates the causal tree on the central planet.

In addition, the action process produces fire-red positive energy particles, creating a positive external environment for others to learn and follow. That is similar to that person having received positive information values from the external environment.

What do you see through the reactions that produce fire-red positive energy particles? It is the information circulation mechanism in the rotation mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo and the mechanism for producing and connecting the smallest energy particles by the information reaction process between the internal environment and the outside environment. They create a very strong, sustainable path of transformation to produce both sustainable positive energy particles, neutral particles, and negative particles with weak electric waves. That helps the synthetic energy particle structure of the tuelinh to develop, and the tuelinh becomes more mature when the synthetic particle structures have a 1:1 balance ratio between negative and positive particles.

Thus, that chain of reactions produces fire-red positive energy particles, enlightened energy particles that spread sustainable development values for everyone and all species. Enlightened wisdom is decisive in detonating destructive energy and creating great information values for energy particles to create fire-red positive energy particles.

Contents related to reactions that produce fire-red, diffuse positive energy particles:

- A person becomes a teacher and spreads his knowledge to generations of students. That teacher produced a lot of fire-red positive energy particles. Whenever he teaches his students a lesson, he produces fire-red positive energy particles.

- Fathers and mothers teach their children to recognize the worldview and become good people; they produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- After a person does research, they spread that research work with positive value to everyone; they produce fire-red positive energy particles.

- People share successes in all areas of life; they produce fire-red energy particles.

And there are many other cases. You need to remember that if the spread of knowledge is related to the truth of the origin, the spiritual mission, the path of enlightenment, and solidarity among people, these contents produce yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves. On the contrary, the diffuse positive energy particles are just actions that spread positive values, and they do not have the solidarity and values related to the origin and mission of practice in the human world (the knowledge related to all things in the universe, the tuelinhs and humans).

When witnessing or knowing about real-life cases, please experience analyzing the reaction process that produces fire-red and diffuse energy particles."

Chapter Eighty-One

Practice Producing Yellow Positive Energy Particles

"Do you know why the yellow, unified positive energy particle is the most valuable energy particle compared to other energy particles? Please do not compare it with super energy particles because they are the pinnacle of intelligence and are the crystallization of all types of energy particles with the heat of annihilation energy being detonated to form. You only compare yellow positive energy particles with other positive particles such as fire-red, green, and negative energy particles." the Teacher asked his students.

A student replied, "The Teacher, the yellow, unified positive energy particles have the value of accurate and comprehensive information about the sustainable development of all things; good elements are the most, and heat and vibration speed are the super strong. The ability to detonate destructive energy is the best compared to other positive energy particles and has the characteristic of solidarity to spread sustainable development values together. When yellow, unified positive energy particles bond with negative energy particles with weak electric waves to form yin and yang energy embryos, it creates the tuelinhs of the most miraculous nature on the path of sustainable transformation. In addition, the value of information encoded in its intellectual wave code is enormous and has the power to create sustainable development for all life forms in the universe. It is proven because, in the embryo, the yin and yang energy of the first tuelinh was formed from yellow unified positive energy particles and negative energy particles with weak electric waves. In addition, the tuelinhs who have the most achievements on the path of practice in the human world are also the tuelinhs whose yin and yang energy embryos are made up of negative energy particles with weak electric waves and the yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves."

The Teacher replied, "Thank you for helping everyone remember the wonderful values of yellow positive energy particles of solidarity. The information you said about yellow positive energy particles is correct. Those characteristics and nature create the power for that type of positive energy particle.

However, the unified positive energy particle has a magical characteristic that no other type of energy particle in the positive, negative, and neutral energy particle group has. It is the ability to unite with all different kinds of energy particles. The ability to bond I talk about here differs from the ability to bond to form yin and yang energy embryos. I mean the ability to connect to decode and understand all the informational values of the tuelinh whose energy embryo is composed of the yellow positive energy particle and the grey-white negative energy particle. You also know that the tuelinh, or the soul, produces yellow energy particles and has a yin and yang energy embryo formed from the yellow positive particle and grey-white negative particle. The yellow positive energy particles are produced from those tuelinhs and souls; they will inherit their intellectual characteristics and nature. When those tuelinhs and souls incarnate as humans, those people reveal the magical essence of that type of yin and yang energy embryo. In addition, the yin and yang energy embryo is promoted by the original yin energy particle, which helps the yellow yang particle reveal its most magical values.

Therefore, this positive energy particle represents the type of energy embryo with enlightened wisdom that unites all tuelinhs and humans together to spread the values of sustainable development to all forms of life in and out of the universe. It is the most miraculous feature of the yellow unified positive energy particle that I want you to know, in addition to the knowledge about that particle I have taught you before.

Now, you need to remember the magical characteristic of the yellow positive energy particle: it can decode and understand the nature of all the energy particles that make up the universe. To achieve that ability, it can automatically adjust the vibration speed of the intellectual wave code in the particle to the lowest level to decode all kinds of negative energy particles and adjust the vibration speed to the maximum to decode the nature of the fire-red positive energy particle and itself. Because of that ability, it has the magical power to decode all the information values of blood-red, black, grey, grey-white, neutral, ivory-white, green, fire-red, and yellow energy particles.

You still need clarification. Let me give you illustrations of the ability to link information to decode all types of negative, positive, and neutral energy particles of yellow positive energy particles as follows:

- I simulate all negative energy particles as if people were in a solid house without windows. The people in that house enjoyed pleasures such as wine, feasting, lust, and enjoyment. I call them ignorant people who enjoy forms in life without believing in enlightenment.

- I simulate a group of neutral energy particles (with lightly electric waves) as a cool lake in front of the house of ignorant people.

- I simulate the lush forest in front as a group of green positive energy growing. They enjoy the steam and sunlight and rely on each other to grow strong.

- I simulate the sun above radiating light as a group of fire-red positive energy spreading. It shines the light of truth to penetrate the house of ignorance, the lake, the forest, and itself, and let all other life forms know about their existence. The sun's light contains the truth of life, but sometimes, it becomes harsh, making the ignorant people in that solid house not want to see the sun.

- I simulate a person standing on the central porch of the house of ignorance; they are a group of yellow united, positive energy.

From the positions of each energy group I simulate in such a picture, do you know the value of the person representing the yellow energy? Of course, you will answer that it is valuable in understanding other groups of energy particles. If you answered like that, I'm sorry I answered it a while ago. How does the yellow positive energy particle have the ability to comprehend all the informational nature of other groups of energy particles? If you answer that positive energy particles adjust vibration speed to link information with other energy groups, that is also my previous answer.

Okay, let me analyze it for you to understand. From the picture I simulated of the five groups of energy particles, you will see the following:

- The neutral energy particles (including energy particles with lightly negative electric waves and energy particles with lightly positive electric waves) are considered a clear and calm lake. You know, this type of energy particle has the exact nature of water; that is, it promotes and strengthens all kinds of energy particles with which it binds. Specifically:

- + Water helps plants grow lushly, just like negative energy particles have weak electric waves that help green positive energy particles develop, promote their creativity and create development values.

- + Water vapour helps sunlight reduce the sun's harshness to create valuable wavelengths for all life forms, such as grey-white negative particles linking with fire-red positive particles to promote the ability to spread the values of sustainable development to all things.

- + Water brings life to the person standing on the porch when that person needs water to have the strength to conduct and unify all other energy groups.

+ Water helps a group of ignorant people living in a solid house to develop their destructive power.

- Group of negative energy particles in the house of ignorance. They are immersed in pleasure, entertainment, enjoyment, and sensuality. It was like they were enjoying a banquet of enjoyment and debauchery with delicacies, alcohol and lust inside. They dislike and hate to see or stand in the sun's light. They also do not like to hear about the development of values that people achieve, such as the existence of forests outside. They can only listen and talk to the yellow positive energy group outside the porch.

- The group of positive energy spreading like the sun cannot enter that house and enlighten them to wake up from those depraved pleasures and ignorance. Because if the sun enters that house, death will occur because their conflict is very strong.

- The forest also cannot move into their house to demonstrate their growth and wonder when standing under the intellectual light of the sun. Because if they move in, there will be conflicts that will cause death.

- The united people stand on the porch, where they can see and know what everyone in the house is doing and talking about. They saw the greatness of sunlight. They saw the significant growth of the forest. They know the value and support of water. And they see their capabilities.

The ability of the yellow positive energy group is shown as follows:

- They can understand negative energy groups in the house. However, they must control themselves so as not to be drawn in by those in that house of ignorance to enjoy debauchery and lust. When standing on the porch, they understand what ignorant people confide in and say to each other. From there, they understood and shared that ignorant wisdom with the sun, forests and lakes to understand negative energy.

- On the contrary, in the porch position, the yellow positive energy can share the values of the sun, the values of development, and all the outside truths for those in the house to know.

- The perseverance, not being afraid of danger, and the listening and sharing of the yellow positive energy group have helped them connect with different energy groups to share and understand each other. From there, the people immersed in the banquet of ignorance will be curious and go to the location of the united person on the porch after a long time of being immersed in ignorance. When they go out on the porch, they see the magnificence of everything outside, and they become united people after understanding that positive energy grows, spreads, and unites. As a result, they become united people and carry out the mission of the yellow positive energy particles at the porch position in the entire painting.

So, through that simulation, you have understood the magical connection ability of yellow positive energy particles to unite with all other energy particles. Do you know? It is the secret to transforming yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters. If you are lucky, I will help you decode that secret and transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter in the future. As for the lesson on reactions that produce yellow positive energy particles, such information about unified energy particles is excellent knowledge for you."

After a few minutes, the teacher continued, "Now, let's explore the rest of the lecture on the practice of producing solidarity energy particles after you understand the nature of that energy particle.

Do you still remember the wisdom nature of the yellow positive energy particle? Its wisdom can create and unite people to spread the values of sustainable development to itself and other life forms together. This nature of wisdom is most clearly demonstrated when the tuelinhs and souls are formed from yin and yang energy embryos linked from a grey-white original negative energy particle with a yellow original yang energy particle. That type of energy creates a tremendous intellectual nature for humans to overcome challenges, and it promotes advantages to develop and unite people to spread the values of sustainable development together to all people, animals, and all things. Therefore, people with tuelinhs or souls with that intellectual nature residing in their bodies will quickly produce yellow solid positive energy particles.

In addition, people with an intellectual nature whose tuelinh or soul is formed from a grey-white negative energy particle with weak electric waves and a green positive energy particle with strong electric waves, or with fire-red positive energy has very strong electric waves also efficiently produce yellow positive energy particles. So, please remember that all three types of yin and yang energy embryos can produce yellow positive energy particles. In particular, the yin and yang energy embryo type with the original positive energy particle being yellow has the power and ability to produce more yellow yang energy particles than the other two types of yin and yang energy embryos.

Next, you must remember that the reaction process that produces positive energy particles involves four environmental groups, specifically:

- The internal environment group is the yin and yang energy embryo of the person who produces the yellow positive energy particle. Those are the information values of the original positive energy particle and the information values of the original negative energy particle. It is the information reaction between the original positive and negative energy particles.

- The external positive environment group is positive people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains positive information values and promotes the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and all things in and outside the universe. These are informational values with characteristics of sustainable development, informational values that spread sustainable development values, solidarity values to spread sustainable development values together, and the knowledge of complete enlightenment.

- The negative external environment group is negative people, knowledge, methods, and information. This environment contains negative information values and destroys the sustainable development of the tuelinhs, humans, animals, and everything in and out of the universe. These are informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in ideology, informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in action, and informational values with an ignorant intellectual nature in the diffusion of false knowledge.

- Groups of destructive energy particles in the external environment. That is a group of energy particles with two values for all things in the universe. One is to cause decay and destruction, and the other creates sustainable development for intelligence and all life forms in the universe.

It would help if you remembered that the practice environment in the human world built by the first tuelinh ensures the entire interaction of all four environmental groups to support the tuelinhs and souls practice their ability to detonate destructive energy in the process of decoding the secrets of oneself, all things, events, and phenomena in and outside the universe. Therefore, in any reactions that produce energy particles through the four forms of Tao in the human world, each person must interact and react with three types of external environment.

You have already learned about the conference to unify the practice path of the Tuelinh Council before they transformed into humans. That is the image of small poisonous snakes hiding in a plate of white food powder, a big poisonous snake slithering into the bush, and a small toxic snake slithering into the bush afterwards. Then came the words of the first tuelinh, "To save all tuelinhs, I must use toxin to remove the toxin in them." In these lectures, you will have discovered the meaning of the reactions that produce energy particles. That is the method of using toxin to stimulate toxin, then finding a mechanism to create sustainable energy particles. Toxins are present in the negative energy particles of the yin and yang embryos of each tuelinh and soul, in each person and all things, and in the destructive energy particles. Good elements exist in the positive particles of every tuelinh, soul, person, and everything. The process of interaction between the internal environment of the yin and yang energy embryo with the three external environments creates a reaction that uses toxins to detoxify and finds a mechanism to produce sustainable energy particles. Suppose you want to quickly eliminate the toxins of the original negative energy particle and activate the good elements in the original positive energy particle so that the path of sustainable transformation can soon reach your destination. You must practice detonating destructive energy particles and increasing information values that bring sustainable development characteristics into reactions that produce sustainable energy particles.

The reaction process that produces yellow positive energy particles in five stages:

- Stage 1: The generation stage wishes to produce yellow energy particles.

- Stage 2: Decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo.

- Phase 3: Ideology creation phase to produce yellow energy particles.

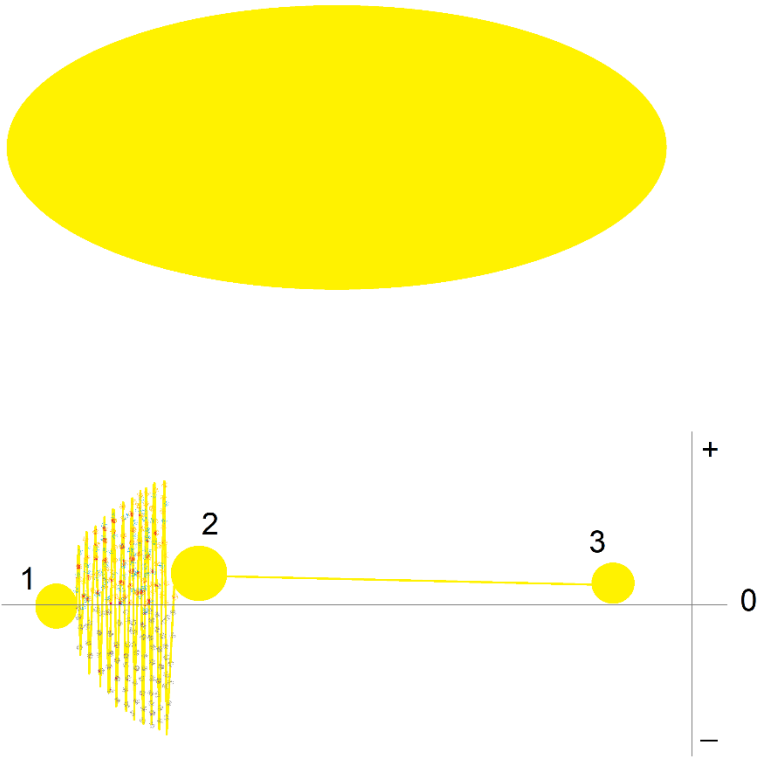

- Phase 4: Action phase to produce yellow energy particles.

- Stage 5: The intellectual wave code fibre stage has super strong electric waves that produce yellow causal energy particles.

And now, let's explore the evolution of the reaction process that produces yellow energy particles.

Please look at the image of the yellow positive energy particle and its wisdom wave code thread to recall the three points and two segments.

The yellow positive energy particle

Intellectual wave code fibre

Stage 1: The stage of generating the desire to produce yellow positive energy particles:

That is when people interact with the external environment until the desire to produce yellow positive energy particles arises. It is to unify everyone to spread sustainable development values for people, animals, and everything, not for one's benefit.

You also know why the tuelinh life form has to incarnate as a human to practice in the human world. They have difficulty maturing because they cannot detonate destructive energy to produce sustainable energy particles. They do not have magical powers like the first tuelinh. The destruction of baby tuelinhs, and the destruction of life forms in the universe is the reason why the first tuelinh had to create a practice environment for the tuelinh life forms to help them practice detonate destructive energy through an environment of nothing but suffering on earth.

The first tuelinh made it impossible for them to use their ability to manipulate energy, like on the central planet, to help them create reactions that produce sustainable energy particles when they incarnate as humans. That means their desires will not be satisfied when they live in the human world. It would help if you remembered this to understand why the chain reaction that produces particles occurs. What they want will not be achieved, which is the opposite of life on the central planet. When they like to have something, they can transform it and enjoy that joy. However, in the human world, they cannot fly, transform, or transform into things when they need them. That is wanting but not being satisfied. From wanting but not being satisfied, combined with the fact that they have to stay in a simple material body, they become trapped, vicious and suffer in their body because of the things they want but cannot have or transform into. Therefore, they begin to enter the chain of reactions that produce energy particles in all the interactions of the four forms of Tao in the human world.

How does the beginning of the journey produce yellow positive energy particles? It is initiated by the generation stage of the desire to produce yellow positive energy particles. It would help if you remembered that it is not that humans want to make yellow positive energy particles because they do not know about energy particles. However, they desire to unify everyone to spread sustainable development values to help people, animals, and everything develop sustainably. Because they inherit the intellectual nature of the tuelinh, those who practice producing yellow positive energy particles do not have the thought of spreading values that are destructive to the development of people, society, and all species. Instead, they focus on their intellectual ability to explore, research, and unify people to spread values with sustainable development.

The journey of generating a person's desire to produce yellow positive energy particles goes as follows:

- First, the person must interact in their living and working environment, or they have access to information from a specific environment, even if by chance. Accessing that information causes them to compare themselves and the subjects of the environment with which they interact.

- Next, the person realizes they are different from the subjects they have interacted with. Maybe they see this knowledge as valuable and that knowledge as worthless. Some countries are poor, while another country is rich. Their country has no natural resources, while another country has many natural resources. Someone else is rich while they are not. Someone else has land while they don't have it. Someone else has a lover while they don't have one. Someone else has a house while they don't have one. Someone else has children while they don't have one. Someone else is happy while they are not happy. Others have many assets, while they do not have them. Others are healthy while they are sick. Others have a life of enjoyment while they struggle. Others are respected, while others are not. Others have businesses when they don't have them. Some are famous, while others are not. Other people's children are happy while their children are not, and other forms of the four forms of Tao.

- That comparison and recognition will occur over a short or extended period.

- The person's comparison and recognition process occurs in positive and negative environments. They will see that in a positive environment, people will always overcome difficulties and challenges to unify and spread development values to help people, society, and all species overcome suffering to achieve success. On the contrary, in negative environments, they see people collapsing before difficulties and challenges when trying to create and spread good values for everyone and people who only create and spread values for themselves that harm the health, life, and development of everyone, society, and all species.

After interacting in different environments, they become eager to produce yellow positive energy particles that unify everyone to spread from things they have and do not have, or love and hate, or have intelligence and no intelligence, or begging and not begging, or action and inaction. Finally, they realized they could unify people to spread values that bring sustainable development to people, society, and all species without their selfishness. It is the desire to achieve satisfaction of the mind when uniting everyone to spread good values for everyone and everything.

Generating the purpose of unifying people to spread sustainable development values for everyone and all species without selfishness is that person's goal after interacting with different environments. It is the fact that that person has created the purpose of producing yellow positive energy particles.

When the goal arises to produce yellow positive energy particles, it shows that the original positive energy particle can control the original negative energy particle. That means that a person's enlightened mind is at the level of creating sustainable development values on a vast scale. It is an ideology that is satisfied with unifying people to spread sustainable development values for people, society, and all species without regard to its interests.

When the desire to produce yellow positive energy particles arises, the original negative and positive energy particles in the yin and yang energy embryo produce sustainable energy particles. The original positive energy particle controls the original negative energy particle. It evaluates the information values in the outside environment before letting the original negative energy particle absorb the evaluated information values. Because the original positive energy particle has such power, the original negative energy particle only absorbs positive information values in the positive environment. When understanding their nature, it does not absorb negative information values in the following negative medium. That helps the original positive energy particle to link the positive information values of the external environment with the positive information values within it to generate point (1) in the original positive energy particle's intellectual wave code strand for the simulation process and production of yellow positive energy particles. Besides, because it is controlled by the positive heat from the positive energy particle, the original negative energy particle has also simulated point (1) in its intellectual wave code fibre for the production process of negative energy particles with weak electric waves in the same reaction that produces yellow positive energy particles. The magic of the reaction creates positive energy particles when the original positive energy particle can control the original negative particle's toxicity and the outside environment's toxic information. It shows the value of heat in producing sustainable energy particles. However, the positive heat of the original positive particle and the information from the positive external environment are not intense enough to create positive energy particles. It needs to go through a magical reaction process at a later stage.

Stage 2: The stage of decoding and encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo:

This is the stage of decoding and encoding information from the external environment after the desire to produce yellow positive energy particles arises. This stage will create vibrational wave code rhythms from point (1) to point (2) in the intellectual wave code fibre of the yellow positive energy particle.

Remember, this stage shows the strength of the original positive energy particles in the yin and yang energy embryo while controlling the original negative particle and information from the external environment very well. Therefore, at this stage, the original negative energy particle will absorb positive information values for sustainable development from the external environment into the original positive energy particle and into itself.

During this period, when decoding and encoding information in a negative environment, the toxic information of the outside medium bombards the original negative energy particle to release its toxins. They caused the original negative particle and the system to the harmful energy particles in the tuelinh to be shaken. That is when destructive energy particles catch the signal and move in. As I said in the lecture on the method of detonating destructive energy if you want to absorb large amounts of incoming destructive energy, immerse yourself in negative and painful thoughts related to the values of life, the origin, the mission of practice, the path to liberation from suffering, and the nature of all things. It is a golden opportunity for people to practice techniques to get more destructive energy particles through the rise of toxins in the original negative particle and toxic information from the outside environment.

Because the goal after interacting with the external environment is to produce yellow positive energy particles, it shows that the good nature of the original positive energy particle is controlling the toxicity of the original negative particle. That helps people to decode and encode information from the external environment as follows:

- First, that person always looks for positive values to help them unify people to spread values that bring sustainable development to all people and species. This process is promoted by the wisdom of the yin and yang energy embryo, which has the power of the original yang energy particle, and the information values and knowledge from the positive environment are properly decoded. Then, the original yin energy particle absorbs those correctly decoded information values into the yin and yang energy embryo. That causes the two original yin and yang energy particles to react to encode information as follows:

- + The original positive intellectual wave code fibre of the original positive energy particle has simulated a vibrational wave code rhythm at the positive pole after it has obtained the connection between positive information values for sustainable development between the external environment and the internal environment of the original positive intellectual wave code fibre. That means that the intellectual wave code rhythm at the anode encodes positive information values that have similarities in positive values between the two external and internal environments, which is the dharma that unifies the dharma of yellow positive energy particles.

- + The original yin intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle also simulated a vibrating wave code rhythm at the anode after it absorbed the positive information values of the external environment for the original positive energy particle. That means that the original positive particle controls the intellectual wave code fibre of the original negative energy particle, and there are no internal toxins, so it quickly encodes the positive information values outside into its positive pole to form the first vibrational wave beat. This beat section of the negative intellectual wave code is the dharma that refutes dharma because the positive information values and good elements of the external environment have overwritten on the intellectual wave code of the negative energy particle when the original positive energy particle controls it.

- Next, in searching and researching to unify people and spread values that bring sustainable development to everyone and all species, that person will access and interact with negative information of knowledge and people. That spreads values that harm everyone and all species to satisfy one's interests. However, because the yin and yang energy embryo has the power of the original yang energy particle, external negative values are penetrated by the wisdom of the yang energy particle. Therefore, when people interact in this negative environment, the process of encoding information in the yin and yang energy embryo takes place as follows:

+ The original positive intellectual wave code of the original positive energy particle had to fight fiercely with negative information values from the outside, and the toxins in the original negative energy particle began to occur. As a result, it won, and the original positive intellectual wave code strand finished simulating a vibrating wave code rhythm at its negative pole. That wave code segment retains the truth and nature of malicious information from the outside environment after it has been decoded. It is the dharma that refutes the dharma. That means that the vibrational wave code at the negative pole of the diffuse positive energy particle contains love for all things and all species to create more motivation for unifying people to spread sustainable development values.

+ The original negative intellectual wave code is agitated, and the emergence of toxins hidden inside occurs when interacting with the harmful external environment. This process causes that person to have negative emotions and suffer in the struggle between unifying everyone and spreading values to satisfy their selfishness and causing consequences for everyone and all species or unifying people and spreading sustainable development values for everyone and all species without their selfishness. However, because the original positive energy particle can control the original negative energy particle and negative information in the external environment, it quickly negates negative information in the external environment. Therefore, in the original negative intellectual wave code fibre of the original yin particle, the rhythm of the vibration wave code at the cathode has been simulated. That is the dharma that unites with the dharma. That means that this vibrating wave code connects harmful information in the external environment and the toxicity of the original yin particle. However, it has been controlled and removed, so there is no longer any toxicity. Instead, it has the informational value of understanding and being enlightened about the negative values of the original negative energy particle and negative information in the external environment. Do you know? This is the stage where people can get the most destructive energy particles to attack them. You should sink into negative thoughts and let your mind sink into desires to satisfy your interests at the expense of everyone and all species. To increase the attack of destructive energy particles, think negatively about informational values, such as the origin, practice mission, method of liberating human suffering, and the nature of all things before positive energy particles and enlightened wisdom control them.

- The person's interaction process between two positive and negative environments occurs continuously over time. That makes decoding and encoding information of yin and yang energy embryos fierce and stressful. The vibrational wave code rhythms contain the positive informational values of unifying everyone and spreading sustainable development values in the positive pole formed. The vibrational wave code rhythms contain the values of understanding, and the impulse to unify and spread the value developed at the cathode is also formed in both the original negative and positive energy particles.

At the end of the process of decoding and encoding information from the external environment, the original positive intellectual wave code fibre of the original positive energy particle has finished simulating the vibration wave code from point (1) to point (2) for the process of producing yellow positive energy particles. The yin energy particle's original negative intellectual wave code strand also simulates the vibration wave code from point (1) to point (2) for producing negative energy particles with weak electric waves.

You must remember that if you want more particles of destructive energy to attack your soul, you must take advantage of the moments of interaction with the harmful external environment and enhance the moment you are immersed in a negative mind because of its benefits that harm everyone and all species. Remember that to get more destructive energy particles, you must think about the wisdom of all things and the path of practice in a negative state.

Because you are practising a reaction that produces yellow positive energy particles, you must remember the nature of all things, the origin, the mission and the path to liberation from suffering when incarnated as a human to connect with positive information from the outside environment. It will help you reactivate the power of good elements and heat from the original positive energy particle to control and eliminate the toxins in the root negative energy particle with toxic information from the outside environment. By doing that, you will finish simulating the vibration wave code in the yin and yang energy embryo to produce yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves and negative energy particles with weak electric waves. In particular, it will help the soul inside radiate heat to turn destructive energy particles into particles of fire. Fire particles are the state of destructive energy particles about to explode. Up to this point, you have had an excellent state of mind and soul for transforming into an ideology to produce yellow positive energy particles.

Stage 3: Stage of creating an ideology to produce yellow positive energy particles:

This is the stage of producing enlightenment ideology for producing yellow positive energy particles. It is an ideology that unifies people to spread values of development for everyone and all species without their benefit.

To have an enlightened ideology in unifying everyone and spreading values that bring development to all people and all species, everyone must rely on the truth of enlightenment to understand the truth of the practice mission in the human world. From there, everyone will have the strength to let go of attachments and selfishness of toxins that have arisen in the original negative energy particle when interacting with harmful environments. Next, rely on and receive positive values from knowledge and positive people in a positive environment. It will be the power to help the original positive energy particle win against the toxic information of the negative environment and the toxins of the original negative energy particle.

Significantly to increase the power and value of the ideological point (2) in the intellectual wave code of the yellow positive energy particle, everyone should think about the knowledge of the origin, the mission of practice, and the method of completing that mission is associated with the understanding of energy particles and the enlightenment of the two truths. That will help the energy embryo have the magical power to detonate the destructive energy particles that attack the tuelinh at the decoding and encoding stage. The hot heat from detonated destructive energy particles with information value will create a great ideology in producing yellow positive energy particles. At the same time, the original positive wisdom wave code strand of the original yang particle and the negative wisdom wave code strand of the original yin particle have completed the simulation of the enlightenment ideology in point number (2).

When a point (2) is created in both the original positive and negative particles, it begins the action phase in the following stage. Besides, it also shows the power of informational value for sustainable development in detonating destructive energy to increase the power of enlightenment ideology.

Phase 4: Action phase to produce yellow positive energy particles:

This is the stage of inheriting the functions and tasks specified in point (2) in the ideology to satisfy the unifying and spreading values for sustainable development for everyone and all species without one's benefit.

The action phase may occur as a single act of interaction with people, animals, and all things, or it may be a series of actions to end the phase of positive energy particle production.

After obtaining the ideology for producing yellow positive energy particles with the power of enlightened wisdom, the action process of creating yellow positive energy particles takes place as follows:

- To satisfy the production of yellow positive energy particles, people must interact with the negative environment through negative people and knowledge. Negative information will make people doubt themselves and worry they cannot unify and spread the desired development value. In addition, the toxins of the original negative energy particle are reawakened and cause the mind to have thoughts that only want to satisfy its benefits while ignoring the good values created in the ideology before. The toxins in the original negative energy particle linked with the toxins of external negative information will absorb many destructive energy particles if people sink into a state of anxiety and suffering. That is negative thinking about the values of the origin, the practice mission, and the method of achieving the mission associated with the development value being created. At that time, many destructive energy particles attack your tuelinh. However, it would be best if you relied on the truth of the universe to understand that those feelings of suffering, anxiety, and sadness are fake because they are not real. Still, only the yellow energy particles produced can help you become respected in the human world and the universe. When you have positive thoughts, the heat in the tuelinh is reactivated, and it causes the particles of destruction to be transformed into particles of fire.

- Detonate the particles of fire by relying on the truth of enlightenment to have great determination and will in completing actions that unify and spread sustainable development values for everyone and all species. It would help to rely more on enlightened and positive people to gain strength. The resonance of that power will help your soul detonate all particles of fire.

Interacting with positive and negative environments will help the original positive and negative wisdom wave code strand in the yin and yang energy embryo to simulate the wisdom strand further. The intellectual fibre segments of the positive and negative particles are encoded with the information values of the external environment, internal environment, and the heat of the detonated destructive energy. The intellectual fibre segment is the segment that performs actions for the vibration code segment from point (1) to point (2).

The result of this phase is to complete the simulation of point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre of both the original positive and negative energy particles. Then, from the original positive wisdom wave code strand in the original positive particle, it produces and copies a wisdom wave code strand with super strong electric waves. From the original negative intellectual wave code strand in the original negative particle, it will create and copy an intellectual wave code strand with weak electric waves. The yellow positive intellectual wave code strand is stored in the original positive particle, and the negative intellectual wave code strand with weak electric waves is stored in the original negative particle.

Stage 5: The stage of the intellectual wave code fibre carries super strong positive electric waves that produce yellow causal energy particles:

This stage occurs immediately after the end of an action or series of actions that produce yellow positive energy particles in the previous stage.

The stage of creating causal energy particles takes place as follows:

- At the original positive energy particle, the newly yellow positive intellectual wave code strand that has just been born is being stored next to the original positive intellectual wave code strand of the original positive particle.

From that strand of positive intellectual wave code, it copies into many strands of positive intellectual wave code because of the heat in the yin and yang energy embryo. Those strands of intellectual wave code move to the positive pole to transform into yellow positive energy particles. Because not much heat is left in the original positive particle, the yellow positive intellectual wave code fibre can only copy the wisdom wave code fibres with weaker positive electric waves. It is called the neutral particle of the yellow positive particle. Those neutral intellectual wave code fibres move out to the yang pole and the protective shell of the mature yin and yang energy embryo. Next, the yellow positive energy particles at the positive pole join together to form synthetic positive particles. Then, they and neutral particles move out of the mature embryo to create new synthetic energy particle clusters.

- At the original negative energy particle, the negative intellectual wave code fibre with weak electric waves has just been produced; it copies into similar intellectual wave code fibres and moves to the negative pole of the mature energy embryo to transform the smallest negative energy particles. Then, those smallest negative energy particles bond together to form a composite negative particle with weak electric waves and move out to the cluster of positive energy particles that had just been created earlier.

- The positive energy particles at the positive pole are also copied and radiated to the outside environment, where a reaction produces yellow positive energy particles.

- In addition, a yellow positive energy particle is collected at the centre of the operating causal tree on the central planet.

Thus, when finishing the chain of reactions that produce positive energy particles, the cause and effect energy particles are also stored in three areas: in the tuelinh (in the original positive particle and the synthetic particle structure), in the external environment where the reaction that produces the yellow positive particles occurs, and the space that operates the causal tree on the central planet.

In addition, the action process produces yellow positive energy particles, creating a positive external environment for others to learn and follow. That is similar to that person having received positive information values from the external environment.

What do you see through the reactions that produce yellow positive energy particles? It is the information circulation mechanism in the rotation mechanism of the yin and yang energy embryo and the mechanism for producing and connecting the smallest energy particles by the information reaction process between the internal environment and the outside environment. They create a super strong, sustainable path of transformation to produce both sustainable positive energy particles, neutral particles, and negative particles with weak electric waves. That helps the synthetic energy particle structure of the tuelinh to develop, and the tuelinh becomes more mature when the synthetic particle structures have a 1:1 balance ratio between negative and positive particles.

Thus, that chain of reactions produces yellow positive energy particles, enlightened energy particles that unify everyone and spread sustainable development values for everyone and all species. Enlightened wisdom is decisive in detonating destructive energy and creating great information values for energy particles to create yellow positive energy particles.

Also, remember that in all reactions that produce energy particles, if people do not practice the actions in stage 4 after creating the ideology in point (2), the vibration wave code being simulated will disappear. It would help if you remembered that the intellectual wave code and energy particles only form when you complete actions. This means that point (3) in the intellectual wave code fibre is formed after the end of the action is the moment when the intellectual wave code fibre is born.

Please take the content of producing yellow energy particles of solidarity in the form of the Tao of Teacher and student to observe in practice. Please apply this reaction of creating positive energy particles of solidarity to your practice in those real cases. Consider it an exercise for you after completing this lesson. By applying the knowledge of the lecture to real-life analysis, you will grow faster in enlightened wisdom."

A student told the Teacher, "Teacher, our class has ended. This course is extremely miraculous because it can heal mental and physical illnesses and help learners heal the illness of ignorance to achieve enlightenment. We always look forward to attending class to learn any of your courses."

The Teacher said, "Instead of regretting, please devote your time and effort to spreading the unified Tao of the universe to everyone and humanity. That is the magical path that helps you produce countless positive energy particles. You will transform the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter when you produce enough yellow positive energy particles.

Hey you! Don't waste your life with desires to satisfy material forms in life. Let go of desires that do not help your soul grow, and instead, have the desire to unify everyone and spread this knowledge of complete enlightenment to humanity. Do work that causes all things in the universe to revere those actions."

Chapter Eighty-Two

The Energy Filter – The Unified Tao of the Universe

Feelings of happiness and regret blended and appeared on the teacher's face when he and his students enjoyed cups of hot tea. He is happy because the research course on applying enlightened knowledge to heal diseases related to mental health has achieved complete results when patients and their relatives listen and follow the correct regimen. He is happy because the number of Vietnamese people who know and learn knowledge is increasing, and they have overcome suffering quickly. He is happy because many of the practitioners' illnesses, such as some cases of metastatic cancer and other diseases, were miraculously cured. He was pleased because the learners recovered from their problems and suffering in spirituality and religion after they learned and practised the knowledge. All those achievements have been proven for many years, especially in the seven-month research class in 2022. However, he regrets not opening a knowledge teaching class enlightenment in Vietnam because the teacher took an oath at the beginning of that research class. That is, if he succeeds in healing all kinds of mental illnesses and diseases with the knowledge of the two truths, he will no longer open any classes in Vietnam. Instead, he will leave his homeland to spread enlightened knowledge to humanity worldwide. On the contrary, if he cannot prove the value of expertise in healing, he will not open any more classes and stay hidden. However, his research class was a great success. Therefore, he must fulfil his oath to dedicate his life to spreading knowledge to humanity. He regrets leaving the lovely and wonderful Vietnamese people, and it is not easy for him when he is used to talking to my students every week. Even so, joy and happiness are still more clearly visible on the teacher's face because many students are excellently teaching and spreading the teacher's enlightened knowledge in Vietnam.

He and his most outstanding students are enjoying tea and cakes in his office, and this is his last working session in the office as the research course just ended the day before. The teacher's students also showed joy and regret when starting tomorrow; they will no longer be able to see the teacher regularly. Tomorrow, the teacher will return to the office and classroom after many years of renting it to teach knowledge to everyone. After that, he plans to leave Vietnam to spread his teachings to people worldwide.

The teacher said, "So from tomorrow, we will no longer meet in this office. This location is a highlight in our lives as it is the location we rented the longest compared to other locations. This place has recorded the enlightenment of many people, and it is also a testament to the achievements in applying enlightened knowledge in healing diseases related to mental health and other types of diseases. Those wonderful memories will never fade from our minds. However, we must move forward with the difficult tasks and challenges that await us."

A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, from tomorrow, what will we do when you are no longer around to teach and lead?"

The teacher said, "Do as I have done for you. That is, unite with those who have learned to spread enlightened knowledge to everyone. Help everyone with everything you have learned. The process of spreading knowledge will help you deeply understand what I have taught you. In addition, as you teach everyone the unified Tao knowledge of the universe, the tuelinh within you will produce a sufficient number of yellow positive energy particles. Hey kids, there must be sufficient wisdom wave code fibres with super strong positive electric waves for your tuelinh to be transformed into an energy filter. Suppose you neglect the practice of producing positive energy particles in your human life with me incarnating as a human being in the human world. In that case, you have wasted an opportunity that only comes once in thousands of years. Please dedicate your intelligence and time to helping people in Vietnam. When I build achievements in the West, I will welcome and accompany you there."

A student immediately replied, "Teacher, we know your journey is still long and has many great challenges. Therefore, we hope you can quickly succeed in the West so that we can accompany you in spreading knowledge. If you are not by our side in spreading enlightened knowledge in this human life, transforming yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters will not be successful. When we are accompanied by the Teacher, guided by the Teacher, and have the Teacher transform the energy embryo in the tuelinh for us, we will achieve complete achievements."

"Please rest assured, the fact that the universe has a tuelinh who successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into an energy filter is an important event. At that time, I will be there for that person and help them transform successfully. That's my mission, so your mission is to practice sustainable energy particle production.

Hey you! Do you know how many tuelinhs are qualified to transform yin and yang energy embryos into single energy filters at this point in the universe? Remember that the tuelinh must first transform into a single energy filter to achieve a double energy filter." The Teacher asked the students.

"Teacher, there are now three tuelinhs qualified to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter. You have told us this before, but you did not say who those three tuelinhs were among your students." The students answered.

The Teacher said, "That's right. During one return to my private workplace on the central planet, messengers came to meet me. They gave me the records of three tuelinhs qualified conditions to transform yin and yang energy embryos into single energy filters. I won't tell you who those three tuelinhs are in this human life because I still have to follow their journey of spreading enlightened knowledge. If they do not accompany and dedicate this human life to spreading enlightened knowledge, they are still only qualified tuelinhs and cannot be transformed into a single energy filter.

Do you know? Many years ago, when I challenged some students to transform their yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters, they became arrogant because they thought they already had energy filters in their tuelinh. As a result, those people emitted toxins very strongly; some abused their supernatural powers to mesmerize people, and others thought that they had attained enlightenment, so they no longer needed to accompany them to spread knowledge. As you know, the lesson of solidarity to spread together is a lesson that must be learned so that the tuelinhs can gain strength in solidarity to operate all forms of life in and out of the universe.

Therefore, even though there are the tuelinhs with the conditions to transform into single energy filters, I still have to monitor them. I only transform them when they are about to end their human life after they meet the requirements of spreading enlightened knowledge.

What conditions must the tuelinhs meet to have a single energy filter? That is:

- They must produce enough yellow positive energy particles in all interactions in the four forms of Tao in the human world.

- They must show dedication in unifying everyone and spreading knowledge to help people and the tuelinhs.

To complete the transformation of their yin and yang energy embryos, I will directly help them transform using special techniques. That means that if there is any tuelinh qualified to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter or dual energy filter, my tuelinh will reincarnate as a human to guide and help their successful transformation.

Therefore, you must understand that this human incarnation will be a great event in the universe's history if the tuelinhs who are qualified conditions to transform into that single energy filter complete their mission."

The students immediately said, "Teacher, that is why we want to accompany you on your journey to spread your knowledge even though we are not tuelinhs qualified conditions to transform the yin and yang energy into an energy filter. We believe that as long as we can accompany you to spread this enlightened knowledge, we will be qualified conditions, and you will help us transform successfully."

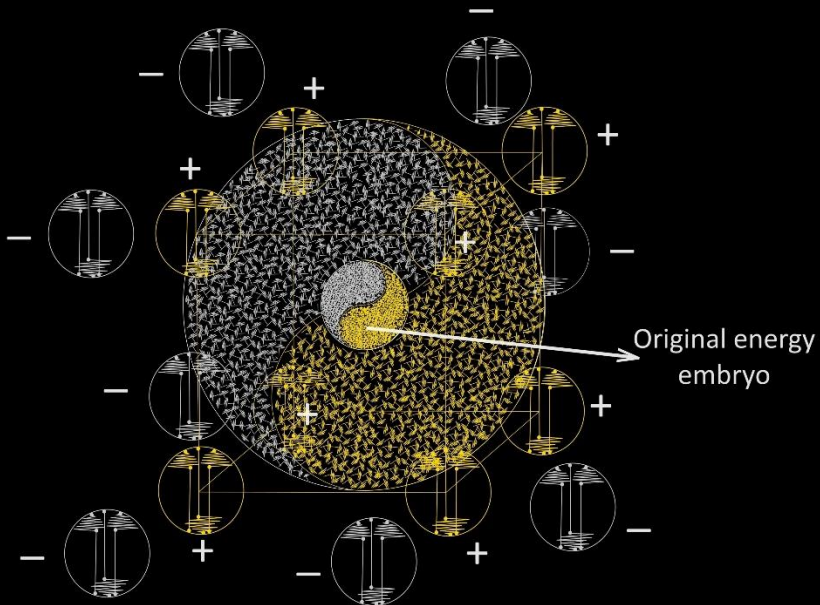

The Teacher said, "To help you see the miraculous power of the tuelinh after attaining the unifying Tao of the universe, I will analyze the single-energy filter and the dual-energy filter for you to understand. Remember that when the tuelinh attains the single energy filter, it is the attainment of the unified Tao of the universe through the four forms of the Tao in the human world. Obtaining the dual energy filter is an upgrade in the power and ability to operate all life forms in and out of the universe."

The students became excited, "Teacher, it is a wonderful thing for us to hear you lecture about the knowledge of energy filters. The truth and value of the energy filter will create strength and determination for everyone to overcome tribulations and suffering on the practice journey to quickly reach the goal of attaining the unified Tao of the universe.”

After relaxing for a few minutes, the Teacher drew a diagram of the structure of the intellectual wave code fibre system in the yin and yang energy embryo on the board. Then, the Teacher said, “You guys, look at the structure of the intellectual wave code fibre system in the embryo; the yin and yang energy of the tuelinh is qualified conditions to be transformed into a single filter.

The system of intellectual wave code fibres in the yin and yang energy embryo

After observing, tell me what you understand about it.”

Truong Nalanda replied, “Sir, the structure of the intellectual wave code fibre system of the yin and yang energy embryo that is qualified conditions to be transformed into a single energy filter is of the tuelinh that has produced a sufficient number of yellow positive energy particles with super strong electric waves. It means that the tuelinh has a structure of the synthetic energy particles outside the embryo to reach a sufficient number of particles, and the clusters of energy particles always have a 1:1 balance ratio between a yellow positive energy particle with a grey-white negative energy particle spinning around. Those yellow positive energy particles and grey-white negative energy particles must be produced from all the interacting contents of the four forms of Tao in the human world. It means that those positive and negative energy particles must retain all the information related to the truth about the origin, the practice mission, and the method of liberation from suffering in their intellectual wave code. Therefore, when looking at the internal structure of the energy particle of the tuelinh that is the qualified condition to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter, you will see the following:

- In the original yin and yang energy embryo:

- + The original positive energy particle holds all the yellow positive intellectual wave code strands with super strong electric waves produced by the reactions that produce yellow positive energy particles in the four forms of the Tao. All the positive intellectual wave code fibres in the original positive particle are born from the original positive intellectual wave code fibre when it connects with the negative particle to form a yin and yang energy embryo. However, they exist independently and separately from each other even though they are all in the original positive energy particle.

+ The original negative energy particle stores all the negative intellectual wave code strands with weak electric waves produced along with the reactions that produce yellow positive energy particles. All the negative intellectual wave code fibres in the original yin particle are born from the original negative intellectual wave code fibre when it connects with the positive particle to form a yin and yang energy embryo. However, they exist independently and separately from each other even though they are all in the original negative energy particle.

+ All the intellectual wave code strands in the original yin and yang particles show that the original yin and yang energy embryo has eliminated all the toxins inside the negative energy particle and maximally activated the excellent elements of the yang particle.

- At the yin and yang poles outside the original yin and yang energy embryo:

+ The positive pole contains positive intellectual wave code fibres that are copied from the intellectual wave code fibres in the original positive particle. Those intellectual wave code strands are transformed into the smallest positive energy particles when they move to the pole containing the positive energy particles after completing the reactions that produce yellow positive energy particles. In addition, when there is hot heat in the yin and yang energy embryo, the intellectual wave code fibres of the original positive particle will automatically be copied and form yellow positive energy particles at the yang pole and radiate to the outside environment.

- + The negative pole contains negative intellectual wave code fibres copied from the intellectual wave code fibres in the original negative particle. Those intellectual wave code strands are transformed into the smallest negative energy particles when they move to the pole containing the negative energy particles after completing the reactions that produce yellow positive energy particles.

- + Therefore, when looking at the structure of the intellectual wave code fibres at the positive and negative poles, we will see that the positive intellectual wave code fibres are yellow, and the negative intellectual wave code fibres are grey-white.

- Synthetic energy particle structure outside the mature energy embryo of the tuelinh:

- + The united, positive energy particles are yellow because they are formed from the production of united, positive energy particles.

- + Negative energy particles are grey-white because they are formed from a reaction process that produces positive energy particles.

- + Neutral particles bonded between aggregated positive energy particles are neutral energy particles produced in reactions that produce united positive energy particles. Therefore, their intellectual wave code has a slight yellow colour.

In addition, I realized that when the tuelinhs are qualified conditions to transform into a single energy filter, they are all mature tuelinhs both in terms of the number of yin and yang energy particle clusters in a balanced ratio and also in terms of the quality of the content is encoded in the intellectual wave code fibre system in the particle."

The teacher said, "Your understanding and analysis are excellent. That shows that you have enlightened wisdom and a deep understanding of the knowledge of energy particles and the two truths.

However, there are some things that you still need to realize in the structure of tuelinh's intellectual wave code fibre system that has enough conditions to be transformed into a single energy filter. Those things are:

- If the tuelinhs are qualified to transform yin and yang energy embryos into single energy filters after they transform from tuelinhs with the nature of yin and yang energy embryos formed from green yang energy particles or the fire-red positive energy particle is linked to the grey-white negative energy particle. The original positive energy particle retains a tiny amount of green or fire-red positive intellectual wave code fibres. Because those tuelinhs produce countless yellow positive intellectual wave code strands, you will not be able to see the initially produced positive intellectual wave code strands.

- If the tuelinhs are qualified to transform yin and yang energy embryos into single energy filters after they transform from tuelinhs with the nature of original yin and yang energy embryos formed from various types of negative energy particles with strong, very strong, and super strong electric waves; in the original negative energy particle and the synthetic negative particle structure, there are still black, grey, and blood-red intelligence wave code strands. In addition, in the original positive energy particle and the positive energy particle system, a small amount of green and red positive intellectual wave code fibres are stored if they produce that type of particle. Of course, you can hardly see them because after producing countless yellow positive energy particles and negative particles with weak electric waves, they become particles that account for an almost absolute proportion of the total energy particles produced in the tuelinh. That means producing yellow positive energy particles created countless magical clusters of positive energy to recreate the previous negative multiparticle structure. Besides, quantity and quality are mature of the most sustainable energy particles inside the tuelinh after eliminating the toxins of the original negative energy particle and activating the good elements of the original positive energy particle.

- The original yin and yang energy embryo of the tuelinh is qualified to be transformed into a single energy filter that is many times larger than the time the original yin and yang energy embryo was formed. That means the development of the original yin and yang energy embryo is due to the increased intellectual wave code fibres born."

A student asked the teacher, "Teacher, after transforming the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter and a dual-energy filter, the positive energy particles are different from the yellow positive particles, and negative energy particles are different from grey-white negative energy particles, can they be transformed, teacher?"

The teacher replied, "Of course, they will be transformed by the substitution process of energy super particles produced by the single and dual energy filters. I will analyze this later when I analyze the nature of the single energy filter.

First, I will analyse you about the single energy filter:

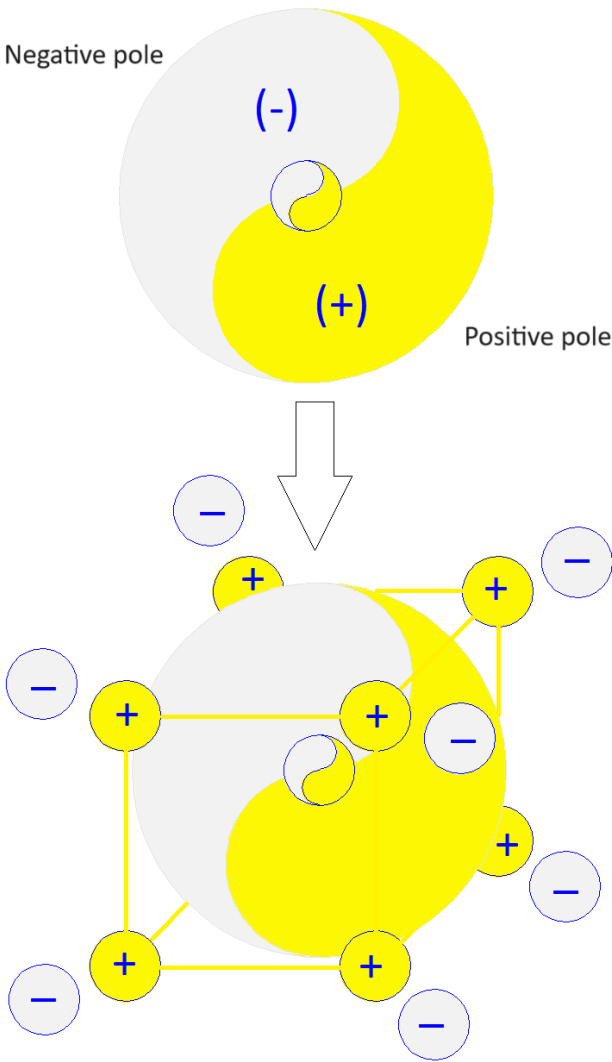

To qualify for transformation into a single energy filter, I told you in the previous section that a sufficient number of yellow positive energy particles must be produced in all content groups in the four forms of the Tao. That means the toxins of negative energy particles have been completely eliminated during the reaction process that produces positive energy particles. Of course, I cannot tell you about the technique of converting yin and yang energy embryos into single energy filters. Any tuelinh inevitably has enough conditions to transform into a single or dual energy filter; my tuelinh will incarnate as a human and help them transform. Therefore, you and everyone should not wonder about this; instead of wondering, practice producing yellow unified positive energy particles in all interactions in the four forms of the Tao to qualify for transformation into a single energy filter. That is your duty and responsibility on the path of practice in the human world because no one can think and do for you. I also only provide and teach the knowledge of complete enlightenment to you. It is up to you to receive, learn, and practice enlightened knowledge. I cannot force you to follow or do it for you. You must understand that my tuelinh successfully transformed the dual energy filter because of the union between the tuelinh and his body. Specifically, in this human life, I must also unite and contribute to the successful transformation from a single filter to a dual energy filter for my tuelinh. After that, I devoted a lifetime to replacing negative energy particles with lapis lazuli blue super-energy particles.

The current state of the structure of the intellectual wave code fibres and energy particles of the tuelinh before being transformed into a single energy filter has been analysed by me above. Now, I will explain the current situation of the single energy filter and the synthetic energy particle structure after the tuelinh obtained the single energy filter.

Take a look at the single energy filter structure in this illustration.

Single energy filter

Current status of the yin and yang energy embryo after becoming a single energy filter:

- In the original yin and yang energy embryo:

- + The original positive energy particle no longer retains countless intellectual wave code strands carrying super strong electric waves and other positive intellectual wave code strands, if any. Instead, it only has an intellectual wave code super-fibre that carries positive electrical waves. It means that all the intellectual wave code fibres in the original positive energy particle have been melted and transformed into a single positive intellectual wave code super-fibre. The tuelinh must operate techniques to absorb countless destructive energies and detonate them to create enough hot heat to melt and form that single super-fibre of positive intellectual wave code. However, to do that, the tuelinh must produce yellow energy particles in all interacting contents in the four forms of the Tao to understand the nature of all energy groups and all things in the universe. That creates a magical information value that participates in the melting process and forms the super-fibre of the intellectual wave code in the original positive particle. Please understand that when the super strand of positive intellectual wave code is formed, it forms the original positive energy superparticle with a super state of shiny yellow energy. In particular, all the information values that carry the characteristics of sustainable development for themselves and all things in the universe have been synthesized from all the strands of positive intelligence wave code in the original positive energy particle into one positive intellectual wave code super-fibre. It means that the super-strand of positive intellectual wave code holds all knowledge that has magical power in creating sustainable development values for all life forms in the universe.

+ The original negative energy particle still retains all the negative intellectual wave code strands that were previously produced. That means the original negative energy particle has yet to undergo fusion and formed into a negative energy superparticle. The reason is that the tuelinh has yet to fully decode and understand the nature of all types of energy in and out of the universe, precisely the ultimate nature of the group of negative energy particles and destructive energy. Therefore, the tuelinh does not yet have the full power to create a reaction to transform the original negative energy particle.

+ Because the tuelinh has not entirely understood the final secret of negative energy particles, which is that negative energy will change when moving through different environments, and has not yet understood the nature of destructive energy, the tuelinh cannot transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a dual energy filter. Therefore, the tuelinh can only be transformed into a single energy filter. Even if you have understood the secrets of all types of energy particles in and out of the universe and yourself, you cannot transform into a dual energy filter without changing into a single energy filter. You must produce a sufficient number of shiny yellow positive energy superparticles to replace the positive energy particles in the composite particle structure of the tuelinh before transforming into a dual energy filter.

- After the single energy filter is formed, from the excess hot heat after the formation process of the positive intellectual wave code super-fibre in the original positive energy particle, countless positive intellectual wave code super-fibres are born and move to the yang pole of the mature yin and yang energy embryo. In addition to forming synthetic positive energy superparticles to recreate the synthetic particle structure in the tuelinh, countless shining yellow super-energy particles are copied and moved into the cosmic operating centre in the central planet.

Do you know in which life my tuelinh transformed into a single energy filter? That was my previous life when my tuelinh was born as a prince; then he left the throne to find the path to liberation from suffering to become the unified Tao of the universe. That two lives ago, my tuelinh was a king, and he had met the conditions to transform into a single energy filter.

After my tuelinh successfully transformed the yin and yang energy embryo into the single energy filter, he must practice uniting everyone to spread the enlightened wisdom of the single energy filter to everyone and humanity. That helps the single energy filter to produce enough positive energy superparticles to replace all the synthetic positive energy particles in the tuelinh. Therefore, after the end of his human life, my tuelinh obtained a single energy filter, and he also completed the reconstruction of the composite positive energy superparticle structure inside him. At that time, each synthetic energy particle cluster has a synthetic positive energy superparticle emitting a shiny yellow colour and a synthetic negative energy particle with weak electric waves rotating around. Neutral energy superparticles also replace neutral energy particles. Only synthetic negative energy particles have not been replaced.

Do you know what the power of a single energy filter is? That is:

- Through each reaction that produces positive energy particles, from the shiny yellow positive intellectual wave code super-fibre in the original positive energy superparticle, countless shiny yellow positive energy superparticles will be born. Those positive energy superparticles were transferred into the space that kept the pyramid of the first tuelinh. Those positive superparticles are then used to operate the existence and development of the entire universe.

- When the tuelinhs have a single energy filter without incarnating as a human, they can automatically absorb a lot of destructive energy into their yin and yang energy embryos, then detonate them to produce countless shiny yellow positive energy superparticles.

- When the tuelinh with the single energy filter incarnate as humans, they can still automatically create reactions that produce countless positive energy superparticles. In particular, through a lecture of their knowledge, their yin and yang energy embryos produce countless shiny yellow yang energy superparticles. That means that as long as a person with a single energy filter speaks or preaches about any enlightened knowledge in any of the interacting contents of the four forms of Tao, the super-fibre of positive intellectual wave code will give birth to countless shiny yellow positive energy superparticles.

- The tuelinh has a single energy filter that will be safe when moving in the space of destructive energy, especially having the ability to detonate countless destructive energies safely.

- In addition, when the tuelinhs have a single energy filter and incarnate as humans, they will never be influenced by toxins from the outside environment to produce negative energy particles. They are always immune to the toxins of the outside environment to carry out their tasks and produce countless yellow positive energy superparticles. Of course, they no longer have the toxins in the negative energy particles, so nothing can cause them to create negative energy particles. That means they have the magical power to overcome all tribulations and challenges in peace to complete their tasks in the human world.

However, the single energy filter still has the following limitations:

- The tuelinh has a single energy filter that cannot absorb countless destructive energy particles to produce countless shiny yellow positive energy superparticles. Therefore, providing positive energy superparticles will face many challenges. The reason is that the vibration speed of the original negative energy particle does not ensure the creation of vibrations to attract destructive particles at the maximum level.

- The tuelinh has a single energy filter that cannot store destructive energy particles in a state of dormancy, which are particles of fire. Suppose they can store the destructive energy particles in the fire particle state. In that case, they will have a ready heat source to produce positive energy superparticles without absorbing the destructive particles.

Thus, the single energy filter has the magical power of detonating countless destructive energies. However, it does not have the power to absorb destructive energy in vast quantities. It is an incomplete power in the single energy filter of the tuelinh.

Next, I will explain to you about the dual energy filter:

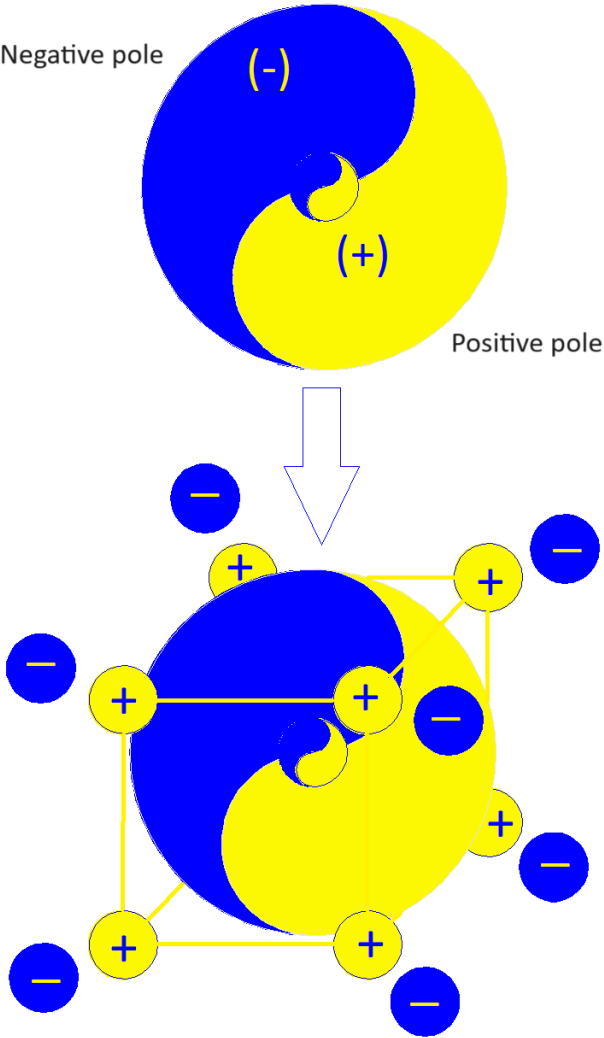

To be eligible to convert from a single filter to a dual energy filter, the tuelinh must ensure the following conditions:

- The tuelinh must replace the yellow positive energy particles with synthetic positive energy superparticles has a shiny yellow colour.
- The tuelinh must thoroughly understand the final secret of the negative energy particles in the universe and the destructive energy particles outside the universe.

When qualified to transform into a dual energy filter, the tuelinh must continue to incarnate as a human to perform the transformation technique from a single energy filter to a dual energy filter and practice producing the lapis lazuli blue negative energy superparticles to replace all the synthetic negative energy particles in the structure of the tuelinh.

Please look at the simulation image of the dual energy filter to see its current situation and power after successfully converting from a single energy filter to a dual energy filter.

Dual energy filter

- In the original yin and yang energy embryo:

+ The original positive energy superparticle still only has one shiny golden positive intellectual wave code super-fibre, even though it has produced countless other shiny golden positive intellectual wave code super-fibres. That means that all the yellow positive intellectual wave code super-fibres produced are moved out of the tuelinh to provide energy for the operation and development of all life in the universe. Of course, the tuelinh has replaced all the synthetic positive energy particles in the tuelinh's structure with shiny golden positive energy superparticles.

+ The lapis lazuli blue negative energy superparticle is the miraculous result after the tuelinh transformed into a dual energy filter. The original negative energy particle has only a super-thread of lapis lazuli blue intellectual wave code. It is the result of melting all the previously created negative intellectual wave code fibres into a negative intellectual wave code super-fibre by a large amount of hot heat from detonating a lot of destructive energy. In addition, the negative intellectual wave code super-fibre stores a vast and magical amount of information value, combining all the intelligence from the positive energy superparticle with the decoded information value about destructive energy particles and the ultimate nature of the negative energy group. That means that to transform a single filter into a double filter, the tuelinh must use a huge amount of hot heat from detonating many destructive energy particles to melt and construct all the negative intellectual wave code fibres in the original negative particle to become a super-fibre of the negative intellectual wave code. At the same time, it is the process of re-encoding the entire information value of all the negative intellectual wave code fibres previously produced with all the information in the positive intellectual wave code fibre in positive energy superparticle and the value of decoded information about destructive energy particles and the final secret information of negative energy particles. The result is creating a super-fibre of negative intellectual wave code with lapis lazuli blue colour to form a negative energy superparticle.

After successfully converting the single energy filter into a dual energy filter, the remaining heat from the process of converting into the negative energy superparticle helped the negative intellectual wave code super-fibre produce countless lapis lazuli blue energy superparticles to transfer out the negative pole outside the original yin and yang energy embryo.

Next, the tuelinh and body must practice reactions that produce positive and negative energy superparticles through teaching enlightened knowledge. This process helps the tuelinh replace all synthetic negative energy particles with synthetic negative energy superparticles of lapis lazuli blue colour. After the synthetic negative energy particle structure in the tuelinh is completely replaced by lapis lazuli blue negative energy superparticles, all the produced negative energy superparticles will move outside the universe's sphere to protect the universe from the attack of destructive energy. Even though countless positive energy superparticles and negative energy superparticles are produced, within the original negative energy superparticle, there is still only one negative intellectual wave code super-fibre, and the original positive energy superparticle there is still only one positive intellectual wave code super-fibre.

Do you know how to produce positive and negative energy superparticles after the tuelinh obtains the dual energy filter when incarnating as a cultivator in the human world? That is, through each lecture of enlightened knowledge, the double filter will produce countless lapis lazuli blue negative energy superparticles, shiny yellow positive energy superparticles, and neutral superparticles with brilliant white and lightly yellow. However, after the tuelinh has the dual energy filter return to the central planet, they will produce countless positive energy superparticles, negative energy superparticles, and neutral energy superparticles by automatic absorption mechanism countless destructive energy particles and detonate them to obtain abundant heat from the explosion of destructive energy particles for the production of energy superparticles.

Do you know the power of the negative energy superparticles? That is:

- It can increase the vibration speed to super fast and maximum levels to attract a massive attack of destructive energy. The vibration speed of negative energy superparticles is unmatched by any other type of negative energy particle. However, when the destructive energy particles attack the tuelinh, the negative energy superparticles will stop shaking immediately, forming a warm state to hibernate all the destructive energy particles that have just attacked. The particles of destructive energy become particles of fire. Then, the positive energy superparticles will transfer hot heat to detonate the fire particles.

- All negative energy superparticles produced by the tuelinh from the dual energy filter will move out into the universe to cover the entire universe against attacks of destructive energy. That means that superparticles of negative energy have the power to block vibrational wave signals of material structures with a lot of negative energy in the universe so that destructive particles cannot catch the signal and attack. On the contrary, when destructive energy is needed to move into the universe, negative energy superparticles will open the blockade to attract many destructive particles into the universe, then block it again to ensure universe safety.

- The power to hibernate destructive energy particles is the magic of the negative energy superparticles and their ability to absorb countless destructive energy particles that attack them.

Do you know why positive and negative energy superparticles have such magical powers? That is:

- Positive and negative intellectual wave code super-fibres are melted and composed of the heat of countless detonated destructive energy particles.

- The shiny yellow positive intellectual wave code super-fibre contains the information value of all things in and out of the universe at an almost absolute level for sustainable development. In addition, the proportion of positive electric waves of the shiny golden positive intellectual wave code super-fibre is virtually absolute; the remaining is the proportion of negative electric waves.

- The lapis lazuli blue negative intellectual wave code super-fibre contains the information value of all things in and out of the universe at an absolute level for sustainable development. In addition, the negative intellectual wave code super-fibre has mostly negative electric waves; the rest are electric waves of positive energy superparticle. That means the negative energy superparticle contains the positive energy superparticle within it. Therefore, negative energy superparticles form the magical power of the dual energy filter.

You must remember that positive energy superparticles and negative energy superparticles are the smallest energy particles and have the same structure as the smallest energy particles that make up the universe.

In addition to producing positive and negative energy superparticles, the dual energy filter also has the power to create particles of fire and other synthetic energy superparticles. Synthetic energy superparticles combine the four smallest types of energy superparticles:

Positive energy superparticles

Negative energy superparticles

Neutral energy superparticles

Fire particles

It forms a synthetic energy superparticle with four colours: iridescent yellow, lapis lazuli blue, dazzling white, and fire-red. Synthetic energy superparticles are produced by a chain reaction that produces negative, positive, and neutral superparticles and a dormancy reaction of destructive energy particles. After that, the tuelinh will create synthetic energy superparticles to do other essential tasks in the universe. I call it the particle of Nalas Nalanda because it is the quintessence of the achievements that Nalas Nalanda has achieved in his journey to build, protect, and develop all life in and outside the universe. Therefore, when you think about the first tuelinh, about God, Buddha, and understand that it is Nalas Nalanda, you will receive superparticles of shiny yellow positive energy, lapis lazuli blue negative energy, brilliant white neutral, and the synthetic energy from him to support you in your practice journey in the human world and the development of life forms in the universe when you return to your homeland.

Thus, I have analyzed the truth about the single and double energy filters after the tuelinh attained the unified Tao of the universe. When reaching the unified Tao of the universe, the tuelinh becomes immortal and has the power to develop and protect all life forms in and outside the universe after merging their wisdom with all life forms in and out of the universe.

Hey friends, don't think that when you attain the unified Tao of the universe after practising in the human world, you are free to enjoy purity or comfort in the universe. Instead, you must join with the first tuelinh to protect and develop all life forms in and outside the universe. That means that after the baby tuelinhs practising in the human world have become adult tuelinhs with magical powers in protecting and developing the universe, they must return to join their Father to care for and develop the universe to become sustainable and immortal.

Hey you! I wish you many achievements on your journey to produce sustainable energy particles after what you have learned from me. Devote your intelligence and time to spread enlightened knowledge to everyone to create sufficient yellow positive energy particles. Then, we will meet at a significant moment in your life and the universe. I believe you can do it."

The students responded with regret, "Teacher, we will try to see you again soon. By the way, we wish you good health to contribute enlightened wisdom to all humanity today."

Chapter Eighty-Three

The Hymn – Great Mantra Nalas Nalanda

The hymn is also known as the great mantra Nalas Nalanda.

The hymn is used to praise and pay tribute to the merits of building, protecting, and developing all life forms in the universe of Nalas Nalanda (the Supreme Soul in the universe, also known as the first Tuelinh, or God, or Buddha). We especially praise and pay tribute to his dedication and sacrifice in his journey of practice and leading all tuelinhs and souls to practice in the human world to attain the unified Tao of the universe.

In addition, the hymn has more magical power than all incantations, magical powers and magic in supporting the tuelinhs and souls exiled in the human world, sick people, people who are immersed in suffering, and those who are practising the enlightened knowledge of the two truths.

When reading, singing, and chanting the sacred hymn – the great mantra Nalas Nalanda, it means that everyone is uniting with Nalas Nalanda to rely on the root power, the power of the whole universe, and the power of Father, the great Teacher. That will help people connect with all the energy superparticles of Nalas Nalanda to rely on peace and help people apply it to resolve spiritual problems, heal mental illnesses and other diseases, and overcome suffering and tribulations. Everyone will see the power and miracles in applying the hymn - the great mantra Nalas Nalanda after everyone learns and understands the entire enlightened knowledge of Nalas Nalanda. Therefore, please read and learn knowledge before using this hymn to praise or apply in life.

Contents of the hymn – the great mantra Nalas Nalanda:

“Nalas Nalanda, Nalas Nalanda, Nalas Nalanda.

I bow to the vast heaven and earth.

Let me connect with our homeland and roots.

Let me unite with Father,
The great Teacher, Adidida.

Homeland in my wisdom and soul.

Father's kindness taught me to grow up.

Suffering and destruction are everywhere in the universe.

Father always enlightens us on the way.

The human world is a realm of practice.

My homeland comes, go with the Father.

Vow in the form of suffering.
Seek enlightenment and transform the universe.

Reincarnation with many lifetimes to transform.
Immersed in suffering and toxins of self
Day and night, Father sought.
The truth of the enlightenment gained and shone.

I vow to unite with Father.
Please give me the light of enlightenment and kindness.
Transform all sentient beings.
Return to the homeland and roots.

I vow to unite with Father.
Please give me the light of enlightenment and kindness.
Save my Body, Soul, and Wisdom.
Transform sustainably and shine throughout the universe.

I vow that following the Father, the unified Tao of the universe."

Chapter Eighty-Four

Symbol of the Unified Tao of the Universe

The symbol of the unified Tao of the universe is the word "Tao" with four wings. Each branch represents a form of Tao in the human world, including a family Tao, a social Tao, a national Tao, and a teacher and student Tao. The intersection point of the four wings is the centre of the Tao. That means that every tuelinh and soul, when incarnated as a human, must live in the four forms of the Tao, and each tuelinh or soul inside that person is the mind of the Tao. Thus, each person is a mind of Tao, and they must shoulder the four forms of Tao in human life to practice and transform yin and yang energy embryos into energy filters.

The symbol of the word "Tao" reminds all spiritual beings and people practising in the human world to know about the origin, mission, and path to liberate suffering to attain the unified Tao of the universe. Through all the sufferings and tribulations in many human lives, the *tuelinh*s and souls will reach the unified Tao of the universe through the four forms of the Tao.

The symbol of four wings intersecting to form a mind in the middle is the word "Tao" in the language of the central planet. The word Tao will rotate clockwise if people produce positive energy particles in the four forms of Tao. On the contrary, the word Tao will turn upside down if people produce negative energy particles in the four forms of Tao.

When the tuelinh meets the conditions to transform the yin and yang energy embryo into a single energy filter, the yellow word Tao appears in their yin and yang energy embryo. It is the result of producing a sufficient number of yellow positive energy particles through all the contents of the four forms of the Tao.

When the tuelinh obtains a single energy filter, the yellow word Tao is upgraded to a shiny golden colour.

The word Tao is a symbol of the unified Tao of the universe and a symbol of achievement on the transformation journey of the tuelinh. Therefore, after the tuelinh attains the unified Tao of the universe, the yin and yang energy embryo will birth to countless energy superparticles, forming countless Tao words that move outward.

Students of Nalas Nalanda in the human world learned how to use the word Tao to apply spiritual and religious issues and salvation for the tuelinhs and souls trapped in the human world.

Chapter Eighty-Five

Method of Saving Trapped Tuelinhs and Souls in the Human World to Return to the Transiting Planet

As in the chapters, I have talked about the tuelinhs and souls not being able to return to the central planet or transit planet after they end human life on Earth. That is, when they are alive, they are people who do not practice the production of sustainable energy particles because they have a quota of reformation created by lousy karma from previous lives. They are people who do not value their lives or someone else's. Specifically, when alive, they kill others and then are killed, murdered, commit suicide, die by accident, die by natural disasters, die by war, die by epidemics, and die suddenly.

You also know that souls who are doomed at the place of their death must complete a lesson and a task. When they are only finished, they can return to the transit planet. The lesson they must learn is to experience the agony and obsession of killing, being killed, having accidents, and committing suicide because they do not value the lives of others and their own. The task is to help people in that area have faith in the spirit world after death so that they can seek enlightenment. Therefore, if they experience the lesson and complete the task, they will be picked up by the elite tuelinhs on the transiting planet to balance their energy state on the transiting planet before reincarnating as humans.

However, if they have someone with enlightened intelligence help them complete their lessons and tasks, they will be returned to the transiting planet immediately afterwards.

Do you know? The students of Nalas Nalanda have two methods to help the damned souls return to the transit planet, which is to preach enlightened knowledge to the souls and use the hymn - the great mantra. However, each way of helping has different values, specifically as follows:

- If the practitioner of enlightened wisdom preaches the teachings of enlightenment to the living and the souls trapped in the place where they died, they learn their lesson and complete their mission. They will be able to return to the transit planet to live a life of letting go and balancing their energy without residing in hell.

- If the practitioner of enlightened wisdom does not preach knowledge to the living and trapped souls, he uses a hymn - a great mantra to bring them back to the transiting planet. As a result, they still need to complete the lesson and the task. When they return to the transiting planet, they will have to live a hellish life to complete the lesson of the negative karma created in the past human life or a past life when they did not complete the reform quota. In addition, people learn enlightened knowledge in some cases, but their minds still show greed, attachment, and ignorance. They abuse hymn - great mantra Nalas Nalanda to neutralize spirits, demons, and haunted houses as a profession to make money. As a result, those trapped souls will not be returned to the transit planet even if that person meditates and finds those souls are no longer there.

Therefore, the method to help souls trapped in the place where they died and to neutralize haunted houses or demons is to preach enlightened knowledge to them and to the people living on that land, if any.

Conditions for people to help trapped souls:

- Study all the knowledge in the Nalas Nalanda three-book series carefully to understand the origin, practice mission, the nature of all things in and out of the universe, the method of liberation from suffering, and the central planet. That is something that must be completed before helping damned souls or neutralizing houses with demons or curses. When learning enlightened knowledge, in the learner's tuelinh, there will be the light of wisdom of all things in and outside the universe, the origin, the practice mission, and the journey for souls and tuelinhs after the end of human life. That light of wisdom will create a fulcrum and faith for trapped souls to believe and listen to the teachings of their helper.

- The state of mind must be peace and love for all things, people and trapped souls. Do not be afraid or angry when preaching knowledge to trapped souls. Fear and anger will cause the person to copy negative energy particles and shoot those negative energy particles into souls. As a result, the spirits become afraid and attack those who want to help them.

Methods to neutralize houses and lands with ghosts, demons, and trapped souls:

- If the place where the trapped souls have people living, follow these steps:

+ Step 1: Before preaching enlightened knowledge to people living in that place, focus on thinking about the souls suffering there. Invite them to listen to enlightened knowledge to help them return to energy balance at the transit planet to enter the journey of reincarnation and transformation.

+ Step 2: Speak knowledge to the living, including the origins of humanity. The vow of the tuelinhs to incarnate as humans to force out toxins and activate good factors. The sufferings and tribulations in the four forms of Tao are valuable in helping to eliminate toxins and activate good factors. Actions that harm everyone, everything, and all living things are manifestations of toxicity and congratulations to them for recognizing their toxicity. The path of sustainable transformation and decay. Method of enlightenment from suffering, achievement when attaining the unified path of the universe, and the value of the transiting planet. In preaching to the living, always think of the trapped souls as listening to the sermons that people are preaching to the living.

+ Step 3: Chant the hymn - the great mantra Nalas Nanada so that the souls can return to the transiting planet by the energy superparticles of Nalas Nalanda. Just by preaching enlightenment knowledge, all the trapped souls were returned to the transit planet. However, you should chant the hymn - the great mantra to show gratitude for the blessings of the great Father and Teacher.

- If the place where the souls are trapped is uninhabited, follow these steps:

+ Step 1: Before neutralizing a house or land with ghosts or demons, think about the souls suffering in that place. Invite them to listen to enlightened knowledge to help them return to the energy balance of the transit planet to enter the journey of reincarnation and transformation.

+ Step 2: Speak knowledge to those souls, including the origin of humanity. The vow of wisdom spirits to incarnate as humans to force out toxins and activate good factors. The sufferings and tribulations in the four forms of the path are valuable in helping to eliminate toxins and activate good factors. Actions that harm everyone, everything, and all living things are manifestations of toxicity and congratulations to them for recognizing their toxicity. The path of sustainable transformation and decay. Method of enlightenment from suffering, achievement when attaining the unified path of the universe, and the value of the transiting planet. Think of all the souls that are around you to hear you preach. When preaching, you can speak out loud as if preaching to living people, or you can also preach in your thoughts. No matter how you preach, it would help if you always directed your sermon to souls and maintained concentration.

+ Step 3: Chant the hymn - the great mantra Nalas Nalanda so that the souls can return to the transiting planet by the super energy particles of Nalas Nalanda. Just by preaching enlightenment knowledge, all the trapped souls were returned to the transit planet. However, you should chant the hymn - the great mantra to show gratitude for the blessings of the great Father and Teacher. In addition, there are houses and plots of land composed of toxic energy groups that create toxic methods that harm people and souls. Therefore, chanting the hymn will help neutralize those toxic energy groups.

It would help if you recited the hymn - the great mantra- three times.

Chapter Eighty-Six

Methods of Healing Mental Health-Related Illnesses

There have been many people suffering from depression, insomnia, anxiety disorders, hallucinations, postpartum depression, multiple personalities, schizophrenia, epilepsy, autism in children under three years old, possessed by demons, and even diseases, all of them were utterly cured when they followed the therapy given by Nalas Nalanda. The method is:

For mentally ill people who lose control of their thoughts and behaviour and autistic children under three years old:

- Relatives should read chapters of books to the patient from one to several chapters daily, especially before and after the patient falls asleep. When read at the beginning and after sleep, the sick person's soul will quickly receive information for healing.

- Relatives of the patient should let the patient listen to videos from book chapters posted on social networking platforms, or relatives can record each chapter themselves.

Then, play those videos for the patient to listen to all day and all night while sleeping.

- After the patient has listened to and read books for 1 to 2 months, reduce the amount of medication taken daily by half if you are taking medication. After a few months of applying the healing method of re-encoding information, completely stop taking medications related to insomnia and mental illness. Many patients, after ill people quit medication, have out-of-control phenomena, which is an inevitable thing that must happen to recover from the disease completely. Relatives must be patient and supervise the patient's treatment during this period. Patients must receive information continuously and repeatedly every day for effective healing.

- Every day, listen and read a few chapters of the book repeatedly; the next day, do the same with the next few chapters. When you finish all three books, continue from the first chapter. Severe treatment will help the patient recover after a few months of practice.

- After the patient is awake and can control their behaviour and consciousness, they must continue to listen to video lectures and read books independently. This process must last until the patient practices applying knowledge in life to produce sustainable energy particles to reconstruct energy particle clusters in their soul. Only then will that soul be cured entirely.

For people with mental illness who are still able to control their thoughts and behaviours:

- Patients should follow the methods of patients who cannot control their thoughts and behaviours. However, the patient must be aware of reading books and listening to lectures on their own or need the help of relatives during the healing process.

Notes when healing by encoding enlightenment information in the soul:

- Patients must gradually reduce the medication they take due to their previous treatment. Finally, ill people had to quit medication entirely after several months of treatment.

- You must seriously listen and learn; after being awake, you must continue to listen and learn. When sober and healthy, help other mentally ill people and help everyone in life. It is the practice of knowledge to produce positive energy particles.

- During the healing process, there will be more vital manifestations of mental illness. At that time, you should not worry because it is an information reaction of re-encoding information in the energy particle structure in the soul. Having symptoms and reactions is a happy thing because, after that process, the disease will quickly recover.

All patients with mental health problems from mild to severe, such as schizophrenia, for more than 20 years have recovered when the patient and the patient's relatives seriously follow the treatment regimen. Nalas Nalanda has verified this while researching the application of enlightened knowledge in healing mental illnesses. Therefore, please seriously follow the correct regimen to save yourself and your loved ones when they have mental illness.

Completed book, February 2, 2024
In the capital, Hanoi, Vietnam.

